The foregoing sketch, so far as our present purpose is concerned, exhausts the continent of Asia. We complete our survey by a brief reference to Africa. And what shall we say of Africa? Strange country! Once of brilliant promise to the early church; now a perpetual sorrow to the people of God. Land of wonders, paradoxes and mysteries; who shall solve the riddle of her destiny? The cradle and the tomb of science; first in the race of civilization, last to reach the goal; sphinx-like she looks and waits, but still the same fierce sun glares down on desert wastes; her riddle is yet unsolved. Her area, washed on all sides by oceans or seas, measures 10,936,000 square miles, and her population is estimated at 71,325,000.

Passing to the grand divisions which comprise Africa, we notice, first, the Barbary States, a narrow strip of territory situated in the extreme north, and sandwiched between the desert and the Mediterranean sea. Their area is 700 000 square miles; population, 16 200,000, consisting of Moors, Berbers and Arabs, nearly all of whom are Mohammedans. Next we name the valley of the Nile, comprising Egypt, Nubia and Abyssinia. Of these countries the aggregate area is 780,000 square miles, and the population is 6,500,000, consisting of Copts, Turks, Arabs and Negroes. These countries are open to the propagation of the gospel.

The remaining divisions of Africa comprise the eastern, western, southern and central portions, and have an aggregate area of about 9,000,000 square miles, sustaining a population of 48,000,000. The portions best known to us constitute a narrow belt extending along the line of the coast, with an occasional movement toward the interior. What we know of the central portion of Africa is entirely due to the efforts of learned and intrepid explorers like Drs. Barth and Livingstone, Messrs. Burton, Baker, Speke and others. Aside from unhealthiness of climate in eastern parts of the country, there seem to be no serious difficulties in the way of evangelizing Africa—certainly none sufficiently formidable to justify the church in declining to enter at once upon the work. Would that we had wise and courageous men to arouse the zeal of the church on this subject! Let us carry the war into Africa. Let us plant the cross in the heart of the continent, and thus, perhaps, solve the enigma of the Sphinx.

The art of petrifying the human body is said to have reached a high state of perfection at the hands of Italian professors. They can render the body like stone, or by immersion in certain liquids it seems only to be asleep. Gozini, of Genoa, has a curious museum of humanity petrified, well worth seeing. The ancients mummified, but that changed the appearance, while this process leaves the subject life-like in appearance.

A parsimonious sea captain, answering the complaints of his men that the bread was bad, exclaimed: "What! complain of your bread that is made from flour! What do you think of the apostles? They ate 'shew bread,' made from old boots and shoes."

THE TEMPLE OF DIANA.

Mr. J. T. Wood writes to the Times a full account of the manner in which the discovery of the Temple of Diana at Ephesus was made, which in interest and historical importance claims the attention of every biblical scholar.

"For the first five years I merely devoted the little time I could with difficulty spare from my professional avocations in Smyrna to my explorations at Ephesus. The whole of the first small grant from the trustees of the British Museum was entirely expended in clearing out the Odeon, where I found several inscriptions, a statue of Euterpe with the seven-stringed lyre, and a mutilated statue of Commodus.

"In the course of the season 1867-68 a small portion of the grant which I had at that time for explorations at Ephesus was expressly allotted to the search for the temple. At the same time the great theater was explored, and here many interesting inscriptions were found, including some decrees from a former Temple of Diana, also a very long Greek inscription, covering the whole of one of the walls of the southern entrance lobby. This inscription describes a number of gold and silver images, which were devoted to Diana by a certain wealthy Roman, and were placed in the temple, and on particular days of assembly in the theater were carried there in procession through the 'Magnesian Gate,' and after the assembly through the 'Coressian Gate,' back to the temple.

"Having previously found the Magnesian Gate, I determined to seek for the road which led thence to the temple, and, opening up the ground near the gate and the road leading outward, I found that at some little distance from the gate it branched off in two opposite directions—one toward Magnesia and Meandrum, and the other round Mount Coressus toward Ayasalouk. The latter road was paved with thick blocks of marble, from the neighboring quarries, and the double line of chariot-ruts, worn to the depth of five or six inches, made me feel certain that I was now fairly on my way to the temple; but I had to follow this well-worn road, which was in some places as much as fourteen feet below the present surface of the ground, for the distance of three thousand two hundred feet before I found the road which I especially sought for, striking out at right angles toward the temple. It was at this point, probably, that the Portico of Damianus, alluded to by Philostratus, in his 'Lives of the Sophists,' really commenced.

"At the time I found this road I had made a dash for the Peribolus wall of the temple to a spot where I had previously made some efforts to discover a wall. Putting on a sufficient gang of workmen, I soon found a thick wall, built of rough blocks of marble, which ultimately proved to be, indeed, the Peribolus wall, inclosing the Artemisium and Augusteum, with their adjacent buildings. The distance from the point where I found the road leading away from the mountain to the angle of the Peribolus wall is two thousand feet. In December of the year 1869 I found the Greek pavement, which I reported to the trustees of the British Museum as probably that of the temple itself, and which, indeed, it proved to be; but it was nearly twenty feet under ground, and it took a long time to open up an area sufficiently extensive to discover some of the fragments of the building, which were scattered far and wide. Eventually, however, a long line of drums of a column, which had fallen athwart a wall, and had been allowed to remain as they fell, together with the happy discovery of a base insitu, surmounted by the lowermost drum of the column to which it belonged, fully proved that the Temple of Diana had been found."

A large number of fragments of the temple have just reached the British Museum, including fragments of the immense Columnæ Cœlatæ, on which were figures in bas relief.

THE UNEXPECTED FRUIT.

At a session of the General Synod of our Reformed Church, held in the old lecture-room of the North Reformed church in the city of Albany, more than thirty years ago, Mr. Bourne was a delegate, as was the writer. The clerk was calling the roll, when the Rev. Dr. T. B. Welch, then pastor of the Baptist church in Pearl street, came in and seated himself by me. Soon the name of George Bourne was called and the answer was given, "Here." Dr. Welch turned to me and said: "Is that George Bourne who was formerly pastor of a church in Germantown, near Philadelphia?" I replied: "Yes, sir. Do you know him?" "Very well, sir." "Will you introduce him to me?" "Certainly, sir." At the recess the introduction was given, when the following conversation ensued:

Dr. Welch asked Mr. Bourne: "Do you remember, when your home was in Germantown, your preaching a sermon to young men in Dr. Stoughton's church in Sansom street, Philadelphia, where there was an immense assembly present?"

"Yes, very well," said Mr. Bourne.

"Have you that sermon with you?"

"Yes, here," putting his finger up to his head.

"Will you preach it in my pulpit next Sabbath evening?"

"Where's your church?"

"In this street, sir."

"Then I will do as you wish." The arrangement was made.

On the Sabbath morning Dr. Welch, then in the height of his popularity, drawing large congregations, invited the great assembly to attend in the evening to hear the same sermon under which, more than twenty years ago, their pastor had been converted unto God.

The church was thronged. Mr. Bourne preached the sermon. At the close Dr. Welch rose and told the congregation that they had now heard substantially the same sermon which was God's instrument whereby he had been brought to receive Christ Jesus as his Savior. Then turning around, he addressed Mr. Bourne, and told him that when he preached "that sermon in Sansom street church, about twenty young men were hopefully brought to Christ, of which number I am one, and nearly all of us have become ministers of the gospel of the blessed God"—when Mr Bourne, deeply moved, said aloud: "I never heard of it before. 'Bless the Lord, O my soul.'"

A prayer of devout thanksgiving then followed from the lips and the heart of the overwhelmed pastor of that church, in which the congregation joined with deep emotion, while Mr. Bourne was ascribing all the glory to God.—Recollections of Old Ministers, in Christian Intelligencer.

FESTIVAL OF JUGGERNAUT.

The Times' Calcutta correspondent sends, as last year, a pen-and-ink sketch of this idolatrous festival, which, in spite of the progress of British influences, continues to be celebrated. This year the sketch is drawn at midnight. "I drove along the main roads, and walked through some of the byways, alive with pilgrims gathered there, thousands upon thousands, to see Juggernaut bathed. I said last year, and I now repeat, that I saw nothing at all like licentiousness during my tour; and it is a curious fact that this is the one festival that empties all the zenanas. * * * The temple is in a large inclosure, and it was lighted up. The inclosure was literally filled with people, mostly, if not entirely, women and children, all stretched on the ground, asleep or trying to sleep. Not a foot of the inclosure was unoccupied. In front of the car there is a much larger space of ground open to the road, and it was similarly crowded, and so were the sides of the roads, highways and byways, for, I am sure, two miles. The full moon, shining from a cloudless sky through the picturesque bamboo, plantain and cocoanut palm upon the white coverings—I can hardly say dress—and upturned faces (the latter the very picture of placid serenity,) supplied light and shade for a picture to which the practical life of Europe has no counterpart, or anything at all approaching one. For about half a mile on each side of the car the center of the road was densely crowded with men of all castes and positions in life, laughing and chatting with a noise that resembled nothing so much as the distant roar of the sea. And still the bands of women came strolling in from every road that led to the temple and the car; and right glad many of them seemed when they had relieved themselves of their loads, and thrown themselves down at the roadside to pass over the few hours before morning. They—men and women—courteously made way for our horses, slowly led along the road. They made way also for each other. There was no drink, no quarreling, a few merry-go-rounds going round, a few peep-shows open, books and a thousand articles for sale; several native Christian preachers denouncing Juggernaut sturdily, and no one interfering with them in the least, but in many cases listening quietly, and going away as quietly. The writer concludes his semi-apologetic notice with the expression of his conviction that "if Dean Stanley had been present, and master of the Bengalee tongue, he would no more have preached to that people than I would." Very likely.

"Sarah, have any of those mischievous children been playing with the piano while I have been out of town? Some of the keys won't sound at all." Sarah—"Please, mum, I don't know nothing about it—leastwise, Master Tom said there was something wrong with it, which he was sure there was a mouse in it. So he got Joe to hold up the cover while he put the dog and cat into it; but, instead of catchin' the mouse, mum, they took to fightin', and did make such a funny noise among the wires—so, now, be, mum, the mouse is in there still, mum."

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

Ceylon.—Christianity is doing a great work in Ceylon. Our English Baptist brethren have a prosperous mission there. In the Missionary Herald (London) Rev. C. B. Lewis, of Calcutta, gives a most interesting account of a visit to Ceylon. He says: "We saw several of the native Christians we had known before, and we were deeply affected by the pleasure they evinced in meeting us again. I was especially delighted to see Mr. John Pandetasekera, whom I baptized, now a deacon of the Grand Pass Church, and a sincere helper in every good work there. In another of the deacons we found David Perera, who had been our servant in Colombo, and whose affectionate joy when he saw us again was most touching. We found him now in better circumstances than of old, and with grown-up sons and daughters, who all seemed to have been taught to love our names, and were evidently delighted to see us. We saw also a younger brother of the latter, who was also in our service, and who has been still more successful. He manages a coffee estate for the English proprietor, and has also a plantation of his own. He is a devoted Christian, and has promised fifty pounds toward the new chapel. Mr. Silva hopes soon to build at Grand Pass." The Wesleyan Mission here is in a most prosperous condition.

Free Religion.—There was recently organized, in St. Louis, a Free Religious society that calls for some attention on account of the peculiar tenets of its members, and the extraordinary boldness with which they are avowed. The sole qualification for membership is the rejection of the Bible and Christianity. Materialists and Spiritualists are expected to lie down together, and there will be, it is hoped, a union of negative signs and wonders that may result in the development of some positive characteristics. The Missouri Democrat says of this heterogeneous society: "There are seventy-three members. They are bound together by a regularly adopted constitution and by-laws. The object of the society, as set forth in the constitution, is 'to promote the search for and the discussion of the nature, origin, duty and destiny of man, so far especially as they are related to his happiness as a moral, intellectual, rational and spiritual being.' But it is, of course, in the matter of faith that it differs so widely from other religious organizations. There are not any 'thirty-nine articles' in which doctrinal points are set down, with the utmost possible exactitude of language. No catechism is used to draw from the members an exact expression of their spiritual faith. On this question they take a broad stand. 'No member of the society shall, as such, be held on any account responsible to this organization for either his belief, unbelief or conduct,' is the sum and substance of the article on belief. Any member may withdraw by giving one week's notice to the secretary in writing, and settling any indebtedness that may have been incurred."

The Japanese government seems to be taking vigorous measures to establish the Shinto religion at the expense of Buddhism. A convocation of Buddhist priests from all parts of the empire was held in Yedo about the middle of June, summoned by the government to appear before the Department of Religion, to show cause why all aid from the government should not be withdrawn. The design of the government is evidently to sequestrate all land not actually occupied by temples. They have already passed a law forbidding the erection or repair of Buddhist temples. Buddhism is very rapidly declining, and strenuous efforts are making to plant the Shinto religion everywhere. Many new temples are building, and many hundred families have signified their intention of adopting the Shinto religion; but the losses of Buddhism are, as yet, very imperfectly made good by Shintoism. The Japanese daily newspapers announce these changes in their columns, and a private letter tells us that the streets of Yedo during the month of June would remind a Philadelphian of his native city during the week of the annual meeting of the Friends. The telegraphic announcement received a few weeks since, stating that the Japanese government has decided upon the promulgation of a new form of religion, to which all the native sects will be compelled to conform, refers, probably, to some modification of Shintoism. The telegraph says that "the new religion will be enlightened, simple, and adapted to common sense, and is likely to meet the approval of all classes," which is as complimentary as some of the puffs of patent medicines. A memorial to the Mikado, urging toleration and trial of the Christian religion, prepared by a Japanese official, has excited considerable comment.—Independent.

Great Camp Meeting in England. The camp meeting is an American institution, and the churches in other countries have been very slow to introduce it. Occasionally, however, we hear of it abroad. Recently one was held by the Methodists in Hull, England, and with very encouraging success. The Primitive Methodist, describing the closing service, says: Four stands were erected in the Rifle Barracks Field, where many a powerful sermon was preached during the day. About twenty thousand persons were on the ground in the afternoon, most of whom gave the greatest heed to the things which were spoken. The prayer meetings were especially unctuous and powerful. We are informed that an old man was converted to God on the field, and that an infidel was convinced of his error and saved therefrom while listening to a sermon on the "Reasonableness of Religion." The love-feasts and the prayer meetings that followed them were a glorious finish to the services of the day. At one chapel twenty persons professed to get salvation, while at the others souls were saved and made happy by God. One brother writing to us says: "One of the best love-feasts I was ever in." Another says: "We had a full chapel and a glorious time." Others tell us of equally pleasing results. Thus, by the conversion of between thirty and forty souls and the reclamation of others, and the spiritually stimulating of believers to greater earnestness, one of the most glorious days that ever dawned upon the good old town of Hull came to a close.

The Pope, in a recent interview with a German circle, recently established in Rome, used some strong language about the German prime minister. He said: "Let things turn out as they may, do you lift up your eyes and hearts to God. Trust in him. Be united; and at length there will fall from the mountain a little stone that shall break the head of the colossus." This pointed allusion to Bismarck has made some talk in Germany; and his official paper, the Provincial Correspondence, says in reply: "This open utterance of the Pope contains, above all, a new hint for our government that, on all these ecclesiastical questions the opinions and actions of the individual bishops are of no consequence, but that there is intended a united conducted contest; and that, therefore, the defense cannot be directed against single cases, but the great connection of the anti-national ecclesiastic movement must always be kept in view. At each further step we must remain conscious that the opposite party is desirous to smash the foot of the mighty German empire." Partly, perhaps, as an answer to this defiance of the Pope, the German government has resolved upon the bold step of deposing the Bishop of Ermeland, who has been excommunicating Old Catholic priests. This issue between the Chancellor and the Pope is now joined, and we shall await the result with interest. The Old Catholics have, however, secured at length the services of a prelate which they have so long been wanting. Archbishop Loos, of Utrecht, a schismatic and Jansenist heretic, has gone to Munich to confirm the children of the Old Catholics, and has been received with great enthusiasm. It is also announced that during his stay in Munich he will consult with the Old Catholic leaders upon the advisability of consecrating one of their number to be a bishop. The "orders" of the Jansenists are acknowledged at Rome to be "regular," although the Jansenists themselves are heretics; and those of the Old Catholics, to whom "regularity" is a religion, will be greatly comforted by this visit of Archbishop Loos. We also hear that several students of theology in Cologne have just gone to Utrecht, to remain under instruction for a short time, before ordination as priests of the Old Catholic Church. * * * The Pope's threat that he will leave Rome is a conditional one. He has assured the members of the diplomatic corps that he will quit the Holy City if the Italian Parliament enacts the proposition of suppressing the religious orders. It is not the first time he has made the threat, and we imagine it will not seriously frighten the Parliament.—Independent.

Christ has Died.—It is natural for the heart to long for something better than itself—to long for a God; Christ came and satisfied that longing; we see him at a terrible price giving himself for God. Why does he this? Not for himself, for us. This attracts our attention of him, and we long to know more of him. Then comes the Holy Spirit. The man is made new and started in life afresh with God's blessing. Man's Christianity is gratitude to Christ. How simple! Do not dispute over trifles; here is a great thing: Christ has died for us.—Rev. Phillips Brooks.

The reproof of a good man resembles fuller's earth. It not only removes the spots of our character, but it rubs off when it is dry, and has answered its purpose.

The Christian Advocate.

Organ of the Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 5, 1872.

REV. LINUS PARKER, D. D., Editor.
ROBT. J. HARP, PUBLISHER.

OFFICE—No. 112 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

Address, on all matters of business, Rev. R. J. HARP, 112 Camp street, New Orleans.

Address all communications designed for publication to Rev. LINUS PARKER, 112 Camp street, New Orleans.

AGENTS—All the members of the patronizing Conferences.

CONFERENCE PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

FOR ALABAMA CONFERENCE:
REV. W. A. McCARTY.
REV. EDWARD WADSWORTH, D. D.
A. W. LAMPKIN, ESQ.

FOR MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE:
REV. W. H. WATKINS, D. D.
REV. JAMES A. GODFREY.
REV. J. G. JONES.

FOR LOUISIANA CONFERENCE:
REV. WILLIAM V. TUDOR, D. D.
REV. JOHN MATHEWS.
REV. LINUS PARKER, D. D.

REDUCTION.

The New Orleans Christian Advocate will be furnished to subscribers hereafter at the following rates:

For One Year	$2 00
For Six Months	1 25
For Three Months	75

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR

to all ministers of the gospel, traveling or local, and widows of deceased traveling preachers.

FREE ONE YEAR

to any person forwarding to us four new yearly subscribers with EIGHT DOLLARS.

PERMANENT INVESTMENTS.

A singular mutability attends the efforts of men to accumulate earthly fortunes. If successful in amassing wealth, and in holding it during their lives, it is almost certain to be scattered soon after they are dead. A forcible illustration is presented in the case of H. R. W. Hill, a well-known merchant of New Orleans, who died in 1853, leaving a fortune estimated at $1,500,000. Of this vast estate not a dollar is left at the present time. Happily Mr. Hill was a large and liberal giver in his life-time. One of our churches in New Orleans, to the extent of several thousand dollars, was erected by him, and we believe that the Bishop's residence in Nashville was a gift by him to the church. These, and other benevolent institutions to which he contributed, are all that remain of the accumulations and investments of a long and successful career. Nothing is more common than to meet those who have lost their fortunes by the war, regretfully dwelling upon the fact that they did not do more for benevolent and religious objects when it was in their power. Now all is swept away, and the futile wish to give cannot remove the sense of their past folly and unfaithfulness. Men, converted in middle life, wake up to the alarming conviction that they have been all their lives wasting their Lord's goods, and that while nothing is left to themselves, there is not a church, school or orphan house in the land which they can think of as in any degree due to their liberality.

Religions and benevolent institutions are the only permanent things on the earth. They will stand when the families and estates of individuals are utterly obliterated, and their work will continue and increase from generation to generation. The man who puts his money into stocks and bonds, or into houses and lands, may live to see all melt away. If he dies possessed of enormous wealth, he knows well enough that it will rapidly pass into other hands than those for whom he has gathered it. After it has ruined his children, and excited the selfish cupidity of his kindred, it becomes dissipated, and is as water spilt on the ground. A portion of the same wealth devoted to the spread of the gospel, like the gospel itself, endures forever. Nothing can destroy the money which has become incorporated into the great and living stream which is to flow on through all generations, and to bless the world until the end of time. The brick and mortar of a church will be the only visible results of a most successful business life, and may stand for long years after the private fortune has disappeared in the ever-changing current of human affairs. A college built and endowed judiciously is something almost immortal when compared with the duration of business firms, stock companies and banking institutions. In the roll of years these break up, and are succeeded by other competitors for an ephemeral existence, while the college grows with the lapse of time, and becomes more deeply rooted and vigorous at the end of centuries.

Look at the publishing interests of our church. Those who began the work are gone, and their immediate successors have also passed away, but the monument of their piety and wisdom stands firmer and rises higher after a century has passed. What is there left of all the fortunes which witnessed the inauguration of the American Bible Society in 1816? All that went into that institution can be identified to-day, and what has since been contributed is visible and increasing in its widespread usefulness. Twenty-five years sweeps Wall street clean of an entire generation of men and their fortunes, and the same may be said of nearly all great financial centers. The capital men are accumulating, the mansions they are building, the homes they are beautifying are mere vapors, as fragile as the flower, and as certainly doomed as the bubble whose prismatic splendors reach their height at the moment of dissolution. There are men to-day who have lost everything but their honor and their religion, and who can point to no durable results of a life of toil except that which, in more prosperous times, they gave to advance the kingdom of God. Not a trace or vestige is left but that which they made immortal by consecrating it to the Redeemer's cause.

And so it will be when the world is burned up, and the Son of God shall come with clouds. All other investments will then appear as they really are—worthless, transient and often criminal—while those which have been made in the interests of religion and charity abide forever. There is nothing even temporally permanent but that which goes to the spread of the gospel, and to the building up of religious institutions. The oldest families perish at last, the most colossal fortunes are soon dispersed, the pampered children of wealth become the starvelings and paupers of another generation, the mausoleums of marble and brass yield to the tooth of time. A Sunday school library will outlive the name and estates of the proudest millionaire, and the humblest chapel built by consecrated poverty will survive the best-laid plans of avarice. But beyond this, as we look into eternity, where all that is substantial and real in the universe is gathered, the conclusion admits of no dispute. Not to invest for eternity is to waste and destroy the means which God has placed at our disposal. How many shall be saved so as by fire we cannot tell; but there is danger that thousands of Christian spendthrifts will be burned along with the money which they have expended on the hay, wood and stubble of vanity and covetousness.

DR. BOND'S LAST ARTICLE.

We subjoin the closing paragraphs of Dr. Bond's final article on the History and Character of David. The series constitutes a masterly delineation of the great warrior, monarch and sweet singer of Israel, and should be published in a more permanent form for the edification of the church. The last touches of a wonderful pen were fittingly given to a character of surpassing greatness and interest.

It would require a volume to do justice to the character of this great and interesting man, and a genius almost like his own to comprehend it. "In the complexity of its elements—passion, tenderness, generosity, fierceness, soldier, shepherd, poet, statesman, prophet, king," the man of ardor, prudence, patience, forbearance, daring, humility, submission, meekness, deep self-abhorrence and contrition, there is nothing in the biography of the Scriptures to compare to it in variety, fullness, romance and instruction.

The shadows of his life are remarkable as evidences of the impartiality of the Scriptures; in other words, of their truth. Macaulay well says that inconsistency is so universally characteristic of men, that whenever we read of a man whose life is represented as having been consistent with itself, we may be sure it is untrue. The converse is also true; and Scripture, even the oldest Jewish accounts of their most honored king, bear this test of truth. David was inconsistent with himself. Hence the great value of his life to inconsistent men like ourselves. Let those sneer at David's sin whose natures are too gross to be touched by the story of his sorrows and the inimitable pathos of his repentance. Men who know what is in man, though they be no friends of David's religion, cannot but admire and love him.

"Who," says Thomas Carlyle, "who is called the man after God's own heart?" David, the Hebrew King, had fallen into sins enough—blackest crime; there was no want of sin, and therefore the unbelievers sneer and ask: "Is this your man after God's own heart?" The sneer seems to us but a shallow one. What are faults, what are the outward details of a life, if the inner secret of it, the remorse, the temptation, the often baffled never ended struggle of it be forgotten. David's life and history, as written for us in these psalms of his, we consider to be the truest emblem ever given us of a man's moral progress and warfare here below. All earnest souls will soon discern in it the faithful struggle of an earnest human soul toward what is good and best. Struggle often baffled, sore baffled—driven as into entire wreck; yet a struggle never ended—ever with tears, repentance, true, unconquerable purpose, began anew!

DIVISION OF THE WORK.

Under this head Dr. McFerrin, in the Nashville Christian Advocate, addresses some words of advice to the Bishops and presiding elders. The doctor says:

A well-defined district, with a head-center and permanent arrangements, especially in the older Conferences, is very important. The districts should be large enough to occupy the time of the presiding elder and insure his support. A district with a few feeble appointments starves the presiding elder, or he becomes a burden to the people, and they ask for relief, and sometimes clamor for the discontinuance of the office. And then the division of the funds is large, and the preachers do not receive a support. Indeed, all the collections are injured and the cause suffers. Districts should, as far as possible, be permanent in their boundaries, and should never be changed only as change is essential. You can never have parsonages or district schools or district conferences of interest while you perpetually change and rearrange your work merely to suit persons. No just apology can be given for breaking up districts and circuits unless it be to enlarge and extend the work. I know districts that have only eight or ten charges within their bounds, and some of these are so feeble in numbers and resources that the presiding elder has to resort to other pursuits to sustain his family. And the same may be said of circuits. Many of these have been divided and subdivided, and have been so restricted that the people cannot sustain the institutions of religion. A circuit with four appointments and some two or three hundred members, including women, widows, and little boys and girls with but few resources, cannot afford ample support to its preacher. His salary must be paid; the presiding elder must have his portion; and then the Bishops' fund, Sunday schools, missions, Conference collections, periodicals, the building or repairing of churches, and the neighborhood poor, all have claims, besides the incidental expenses of sexton-hire, fuel, lights, etc. There is no use in talking—there are hundreds of little poor circuits, and many little poor districts, where you never can or will support the church in all its claims. Hence the preachers have to go to secular pursuits for a subsistence. They become merchants, farmers or traders, that they may supplement their meager salaries, and sustain their dependent families.

Consolidating churches and concentrating congregations has become popular, and properly so with suitable restrictions; but there is danger of carrying this to an injurious extreme. Whole sections of the country are being abandoned, and we are leaving room for our enemies to come in to plant their batteries. If you have a territory made up of rich and poor sections, divide, so as to give each district and circuit a portion of each. "A streak of fat and a streak of lean" is the old and equitable order. It is a great pity that the charges are cut up into such small fragments. You make by this arrangement twenty charges where there should be but ten; and make two presiding elders' districts where there should be but one. In my humble judgment it was a bad stroke of policy when a circuit with two preachers was substituted by the appointment of one. One experienced man to sustain, control, govern; and one young man to learn, study, help and be helped, is the old Methodist usage.

Will you allow an humble brother to suggest to you that, especially in the older and more densely populated States, it would be wise to enlarge the presiding elders' districts in two ways?

1. By consolidating circuits, and putting two or three into one, and placing upon it two or more preachers, as necessity may require.

2. By putting in each presiding elder's district at least twelve appointments.

3. To make, as far as may be, your districts and circuits permanent, and encourage the building of district and circuit parsonages.

Do these things and, my word for it, you will meet the wishes of the people and subserve the interests of our common Methodism.

LETTER FROM CHINA.

MR. EDITOR: I trust you will not think, by my not having written for some time, that your excellent paper is not appreciated by us in this dry and thirsty land. I assure you we do find it a welcome visitor, and in my traveling tours into the country I find it a most excellent companion. The work of grace which is going on in this land gives us much encouragement. North, south, east and west brings us good news of the saving power of the gospel of the Son of God upon the hearts of those who have been taught from their infancy to worship idols. In Shantung there are hundreds coming from many villages and towns in the interior, begging for instruction. In the province of Chihli, we hear, the work is progressing rapidly, and hundreds are being added to the church. From the south we hear good news of the steadfastness of native Christians in the midst of persecution. In the north of China the native church has suffered a great deal of persecution at the hands of their enemies, but the number of faithful followers of the Lord Jesus continues to increase. None but the missionary who labors among these heathen and idolatrous people can know their prejudices and their hatred for anything that is good and holy. But a few weeks since our own church door in the city of Suchow was set on fire, but I am happy to say it was not done by the people, who have always shown themselves friendly, but by two noted thieves who live in the neighborhood. The neighbors have for years paid them from time to time a small fee, asking them at the same time not to take any of their property. Such thieves you will find any and everywhere in China. The burning of this church door was not the manifestation of any hostility on the part of the people, for the magistrate, as soon as he heard it, expressed his regrets that anything of the sort should happen. He has since then put out a proclamation, and placed one at the church door, warning the people not to make any disturbance. We must and do expect difficulties and trials, as well as persecutions; but with all these the number of true believers is increasing. Faithful men and women have, like the prophet, cast themselves to the ground, and have pleaded long and earnestly for refreshing showers of grace; and they have not been disappointed. Little clouds are seen here and there, and give us abundant evidence of the coming shower. There is a war going on in China, as in other lands. "Michael and his angels fought against the dragon; and the dragon fought, and his angels, and prevailed not. And they overcame him by the blood of the Lamb, and by the word of their testimony; and they loved not their lives unto the death." This war is going on now in China, the dragon and his angels fighting against Christ and his church; but we are sure of the success and triumph of the gospel. "They shall come from the east and from the west, and from the land of Sinim." The people of God are waiting in faith and patience and prayer for the expected blessing, and we believe it is not far from us. The servants of God are united in China, seeking the one great end—the glory of God in the salvation of the heathen. Churches are springing up in all parts of the empire, and native ministers are proclaiming the gospel of our blessed Lord in many cities and towns where, two years ago, it would have been death to them. Missionaries are now building houses and living in cities where, two years since, they would have been thrust from the gates of the city as some evil beast. Jesus is being lifted up to the view of lost men; and as these are the appointed means for the conversion of men, God will bring it about in his own good time. Jesus says: "Go preach my word; and lo! I am with you, and will pour out my Spirit unto you." We do expect it, and I trust God's people are praying for us while engaged in this work. One man, one hundred and fifty miles from Shanghai, has come down to this place for baptism. He was received, and has returned, with much joy, to tell others of this blessed way. We hope soon to receive others, and we pray God's blessing upon them. Pray for them and us.

Yours in the love of Christ,

J. W. LAMBUTH.

SHANGHAI, CHINA, July 10, 1872.

WE WERE REFRESHED this week by a brief call from our friend, Rev. J. W. Cottrell, of Columbus, North Mississippi Conference. Bro. Cottrell has been enjoying a six-weeks' vacation with his family on the gulf coast at Ocean Springs. In his hearty and improved looks he shows the good effects of a period of rest and recreation, and we are gratified to learn that his family have been greatly benefited by the change. We have a profound respect for the stewards and people who devise an agreeable respite from labor for the faithful pastor. Besides the benevolence which prompts it, they are wise enough to know that it is repaid a thousand fold in the subsequent ministrations of the preacher, who has gathered strength and vigor for his onerous work.

HEALTH OF THE CITY.—The weekly mortuary reports indicate a most gratifying sanitary condition. No yellow fever has been reported this season. A day or two since we visited the office of the Board of Health. The courteous secretary, Dr. Russell, assured us that the city was never healthier, and that no case of yellow fever had occurred. Every practicing physician is liable to a fine of $50 if he fails to report every case which he treats. The means of information possessed by the board are complete, and our friends in the country can rely upon the statements made.

NOTE FROM REV. E. V. LEVERT.—We have received the following from this venerable and venerated member of the Alabama Conference. His bow still abides in strength, and so may it be for many years to come.

The health of my family has made it necessary for me to leave Glennville. I will therefore be much obliged if you change my paper from Glennville, Russell county, Alabama, to Marion, Perry county, Alabama.

Our country is indeed in a sad condition. During the latter part of June and all of July we were drenched with heavy rains, destroying crops and filling the marshes; and now an intensely hot sun is generating a great deal of malaria, causing much fatal sickness. Oh, may the people learn wisdom!

HUNTSVILLE FEMALE COLLEGE is located in a most salubrious country, and in the midst of a most refined and intelligent community. Rev. George W. F. Price, the eloquent preacher and accomplished educator, is the president. His former position as president of Tuskegee Female College secured him a most enviable reputation, and his old friends and patrons will all attest his ability and success. See advertisement.

THE following note from Rev. B. F. White, presiding elder of the Opelousas district, exhibits a very encouraging state of affairs in the bounds of his district:

Bro. Parker: We have had about one hundred conversions and accessions on my district since the first of June. Work generally prosperous.

WE HAVE RECEIVED from the Southwestern Book and Publishing Company, St. Louis, Missouri, a blank form of Sunday school reports, designed for the use of pastors in making out their written reports to the Quarterly Conference. It is an excellent thing, and we hope it will be generally introduced.

THE RUSSIAN CHURCH.

In the course of an Athenæum review of the Jesuit Father Gagarin's work on the Russian Clergy (Paris,) we read that the number of parishes in Russia is given as 36,000, and the aggregate of the incomes of their clergy is supposed to be about 4,700,000*l.*, of which the treasury contributes 600,000*l.*; "houses and properties belonging to parishes" yield 100,000*l.*, and the rest arises from the "contributions of the parishioners." The average income of the clergy of each parish amounts, therefore, to about 130*l.* Of this the priest gets half, the deacon a quarter, and the remainder goes to the "two clerics discharging the duties of sacristan, beadle, ringer, lector," etc.—that is to say, in parishes which are fully officered. As many districts, however, do not enjoy diaconal ministration, the average income of a parish priest, arising from the sources which have been mentioned, may be fixed at 83*l.* In addition to this, he derives from the share of land assigned to him an income which, in a fertile district, may rise as high as 40*l.* a year, and he receives from his parishioners "a species of tithe paid in kind," the value of which varies according to the locality. The deacons of Russia are 12,444 in number, and these cost the country (at about 32*l.* a head) 400,000*l.*, besides the value of the lands allotted to them. It is easy to believe that "the existence of the deacon is a painful one." His wants are similar to those of the priest, and he has only about one-third of a priest's income. "The character with which he is clothed forbids him the exercise of many professions, without opening to him access to the laborious practical functions of the ministry. His office ended, the church has no further need of him." He might, it is true, act as a schoolmaster, but he is generally so ignorant that he is incapable of teaching anything. The best thing that can be done with him, suggests Father Gagarin, is to suppress him altogether. Next to the deacons, in the Russian Church, come the "63,421 clerks, who discharge the duties of readers, chanters, sacristans, beadles and ringers. They form part of the clergy, take part of the perquisites, and, further, are enrolled in the caste." There are generally two in each parish, and their maintenance costs 600,000*l.*, or 9*l.* 10*s.* per head. Each has, besides, four hectares to cultivate, and creates resources from cows, pigs, poultry, kitchen-garden, etc. Sometimes they follow a trade, as that of a glazier, bookbinder, etc. One of their most essential accomplishments is the faculty of reading fast, for "the Eastern liturgy is extremely long, and if the reader read in an intelligible manner, the whole day would be spent in church." Accordingly the reader hurries on at such a pace that it is impossible to understand anything. Sometimes, indeed, "in order to proceed still faster, two read at the same time different parts." Father Gagarin suggests that the offices should be abridged, in which case one clerk would be sufficient, who might be "a layman of good life and manners." At present "the 63,000 families of the clerks form the great majority of the caste," and a serious obstacle to many of the attempts to reform it.

WE ARE pained exceedingly to hear that Rev. Robert B. Downer and wife have met with a heavy bereavement in the loss of their first-born son, a bright and promising little boy of four years and eleven months, who died on the twenty-second of August. May God sustain the sorrowing parents and graciously sanctify the dispensation.

THE Martha Washington College, Abingdon, Virginia, opens September 19. An excellent school for girls, and in the finest climate in the world.

ALL GOD'S DEVELOPMENTS have method. No matter how small a thing he sets himself to do, he does it with a plan. There is not a blade of grass under your feet, but he has a perfect method in its development. God would never clothe our fields and woods as he does if he were to work as we work, in haphazard dabs and dashes, here and there, persevering nowhere, finishing nothing, fragmentary patchwork.

A DEVOUTLY pious man, who lived some six miles from the house of worship, once complained to his pastor of the distance he had to go to attend public worship. "Never mind," said the good minister, "remember that every Sabbath you have the privilege of preaching a sermon six miles long—you preach the gospel to all the residents and people you pass."

APPOINTMENTS, once made, become debts. If I have made an appointment with you, I owe you punctuality. I have no right to throw away your time, if I do my own.—Cecil.

BOOKS AND PERIODICALS.

A COMMENTARY, CRITICAL, EXPERIMENTAL AND PRACTICAL, ON THE OLD AND NEW TESTAMENTS. By the Rev. Robert Jamieson, D. D.; St. Pauls, Glasgow; Rev. A. R. Fausset, A. M., St. Cuthbert's, York; and the Rev. David Brown, D. D., professor of theology, Aberdeen. Vol. II. Joshua–Esther. By the Rev. Robert Jamieson, D. D. Philadelphia: J. B. Lippincott & Co. Octavo, 650 pages.

The first volume was noticed by us some time ago. Volume II covers a most interesting portion of the Old Testament, and the learned author has accomplished this part of his undertaking most satisfactorily.—While the work is sufficiently critical for the majority of readers, it is eminently experimental and practical. We suppose Dr. Jamieson is Calvinistic in his doctrinal convictions, but the tone of his work is catholic and spiritual, and unexceptionable to all who are intent upon reading the Scriptures to the profit of their souls. We suppose this edition of Lippincott to be a reprint of the Scotch edition; but the work is recent, the first volume having appeared about five years ago. The results of all the latest discoveries in science and explorations are given where they are calculated to throw light upon the sacred text. Fresher and more up to the discoveries and progress of modern criticism than Clark, and less voluminous and comprehensive than Lange, it is for these reasons rather better than either for general use. For sale at our Depository, 112 Camp street.

MONKS, POPES, AND THEIR POLITICAL INTRIGUES. By John Alberger. Baltimore, 1871.

We have dipped into this book here and there, and have thrown it down with disgust. In exposing the abuses and evils of Romanism, the author exposes his own stupidity and folly. He is doubtless on the right side, presents a great many facts, sometimes reasons cogently, but in the main he damages the cause he seeks to advocate. A strong and useful book might be written on the subject of "Monks, Popes, and their Political Intrigues," but Mr. Alberger has not written it.

THE VICAR'S DAUGHTER. An autobiographical story. By Geo. McDonald. Boston: Roberts Bros., 1872. 12mo, 389 pages.

It is not often that we venture to recommend a novel, but we do not hesitate to commend this to such of our readers as need this sort of mental refreshment and recreation. It will profit religiously, and improve both mind and heart. It appeared originally as a serial in the Sunday Magazine. Our copy is from Kain & Co., Canal street, New Orleans.

POEMS BY MOLLIE E. MOORE. Houston, Texas: E. H. Cushing, 1872.

A duodecimo of 263 pages, tinted paper, bound in green and gold. From a hasty examination we are persuaded that the author has something of the art, and no inconsiderable amount of the genius of poetry. There is a great deal of true poetic feeling in her effusions. The sentimental pieces are, we think, the poorest. The best are those of a devotional character, and those which relate to Texas scenes, and to the incidents and events of the late war. After Dr. Holcombe's "Voices of the South," this volume takes rank with the best efforts of Southern authorship in verse which have appeared for years.

THE FIRST HEROES OF THE CROSS. By Benjamin Clarke. Revised by Atticus G. Haygood, D. D., Sunday school secretary. Nashville, Tennessee: Published by A. H. Redford, agent, for the Methodist Episcopal Church South, 1872.

A neat 12mo of 288 pages. It is the story of the apostles' lives as recorded in the Acts, and the characters and events are graphically portrayed. An excellent work for the young, and suited especially for our Sunday school libraries. Dr. Haygood has displayed a great deal of judgment and taste in the selection of such a book as this, as well as in the work of revision. For sale at the Publishing Houses, Nashville and New Orleans.

FIRST BOOK OF ANALYTIC ANATOMY, PHYSIOLOGY AND HYGIENE, HUMAN AND COMPARATIVE. For common and grammar schools, and for families. By Calvin Cutter, A. M., M. D. Philadelphia: J. B. Lippincott & Co., 1872.

Physiology is a most important branch of education, and we are glad to welcome every good text book on the subject. This work is well illustrated, and is eminently suitable for schools and for the use of general readers.

ABOVE RUBIES, OR MEMORIALS OF CHRISTIAN GENTLEWOMEN.

This is another little volume revised by our Sunday school secretary, and published by our Publishing House, Nashville, Tennessee. The biographical sketches are of such eminent Christian ladies as Anne, Countess of Balcarres, and her daughter, Lady Anne Lindsay, Louisa, Queen of Prussia, Katherine von Bora, wife of Luther, Anne Asken, Lady Jane Grey and Lady Vere. These sketches are drawn with skill and discrimination, and are written in a lively and entertaining style. They comprise a valuable selection of the richest biographical portraitures, and are especially adapted to the young ladies and the matrons of our day. For sale at Nashville and New Orleans.

MARTINDALE'S FIRST LESSONS IN NATURAL PHILOSOPHY, published by Eldredge & Bro., Philadelphia, is a work for beginners, excellently arranged, and addressed to the comprehension of the youngest pupils.

IN THE September Sunday school periodicals, from the Nashville Publishing House, Dr. Haygood has eclipsed all his previous efforts, excellent as they have been. The Sunday School Magazine, Visitor and Little People are all very fine. They are something to boast of, reflecting the highest credit upon both editor and publisher.

OF THE September magazines we have received the Household, a most invaluable publication for housekeepers; the Galaxy, a better number than we have seen for a long time; Arthur's Lady's Home Magazine, and the Children's Hour; Lippincott's Magazine, with a tempting table of contents; the Southern Magazine, filled, for the most part, with articles treating upon topics of interest at the present time.

WE HAVE RECEIVED Dr. Guilford Jones' pamphlet reviewing Rev Samuel Watson's book on Spiritualism. As we have not read Mr. Watson's book we cannot tell what justice he has received at the hands of his reviewer, although the review strikes us as an able and candid production. We regret that one old clock should have created such a stir, and perhaps have done so much mischief.

THE August numbers of Good Words, Good Words for the Young, and the Sunday Magazine are all up to their well-known standard of excellence.

WE LEARN from a correspondent of the Chicago Standard that there were individual Baptists in North Carolina as early as 1695. The first permanent church was organized at Shiloh, Camden county, in 1727. Two years afterward the church numbered 32 communicants, and the Baptists were one in 512 of the population of the State. Their progress since that time has been remarkable. In 1790 the Baptists numbered 7,000; in 1812, 13,000; in 1845, nearly 79,000; and last year over 100,000, or one to every twelve of the entire population of the State, and about as many as all the Christian denominations in the State put together. The Episcopalians in the State now number only 3,300 communicants, and the Quakers 3,633. Both added together do not equal the number added to our churches by baptism during the year 1871—namely, 7,300. The Presbyterian membership is 14,264; the Disciples, 3,475; the Free-Will Baptists, 3,300; and the Methodist Episcopal, South, less than 60,000.

THERE is a difference between entertaining of sins, as thieves and robbers, and as guests and strangers; wicked men entertain sin as a guest, the godly man as a robber; the one invites it as a friend and acquaintance, the other throws it off as a rebellious traitor.—Spencer.

Agt's & Publisher's Department

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS OF LETTERS and Funds, Received by Mail, for the week ending Aug. 31, 1872:

A—C G Andrews, Ed Alden 5 lets, American Tract Society, D Appleton & Co.

B—J R Riedsoc 50 cts, A Bourg $35, Riglow & Main, J E Bradley 2 lets, Bateman Bros $6 10, S T Burch $6.30, J E Beaman, Barnes & Wilkinson, T G Brockling.

C—G W & C H Collon & Co, E H Cushing, Crystal Door Plate Co, Jas E Cobb, Geo W Chatfield, A S Clarke.

D—W P Dickson $10, J P Drake, W D Dennis, J T Daves $62.50, W R Dennis, B Dulley.

F—James Ford.

G—W W Gamble, Georgia Paper Mills Co, Goodwyn & Co, Geo T Gray, J M Gann.

H—E J Hale & Son 2 lets, A C Hundley 2 lets, Haney & Sherman, R D How, F Harrington.

I—Ivison, Blakeman, Taylor & Co, R S Isbell, Iron World Publishing Co.

J—W H Jones, J G Jones.

L—J B Lippincott & Co 2 lets, A C Littlejohn 3 lets.

M—Lucien Minor 85 cts, Albert Menet, J Miller, Mrs M R McGehee, Martin & Goodman, E F Mullins, W G Millsaps $10, H H Montgomery, W H Mayo, T G Merriwether, T W Malin $1.45.

N—J W Newman.

O—Edgar Organ $2.

P—Isaac Pipes $1, Powers Paper Co, Packwood & Lampton, Pott, Young & Co, Robt Parvin 2 lets, Porter & Coates, U B Phillips.

R—E E F Hoss 3 lots, A D F Randolph, J K Randle, J Ritchie, T B Reno, Geo P Rowell & Co, A H Redford.

S—J J Smillie, F C Stephenson, H R Singleton, John L Scales, Mrs J L Scales, J T Stout.

T—Wm Tucker 50 cts, Geo Torry, E W Tarrant $2.

V—F Vaughan, J A Vance $10.

W—J D Willis $1, Geo Woods & Co, Jas L Wright, D M Watson, Horace Waters, T B White, J W Watson $3.80.

Y—R L Young $15.

Z—Zeigler & McCurdy.

Mr. E. E. F. Ross, our resident advertising agent, is now on a brief tour through the West and North, and we commend him to the attention of our patrons, and shall be thankful for courtesies extended to him. They are assured that Mr. Ross has no other business, but devotes his entire time to the paper, and is entitled to all the consideration of one of its business corps. Mr. Ross may be found at the Bingham House, corner of Eleventh and Market streets, Philadelphia.

CONFERENCE REGISTER.

Conference.	Place.	Time.	Bishop.
Missouri	Mexico	Sep. 11.	Pierce.
Pacific	Gilroy	Sep. 18.	McTyeire.
W. Virginia	Parkersb'g	Sep. 18.	Kavanaugh
W. St Louis.	Nevada C'y	Oct. 2.	Pierce.
Louisville.	Lebanon	Oct. 2.	Marvin.
Indian Miss.	Ocmulgee	Oct. 2.	Wightman.
Holston	Chattano'a	Oct. 2.	Doggett.
St Louis	Arcadia	Oct. 16	Pierce.
Arkansas	Bentonville.	Oct. 16.	Wightman.
Tennessee.	Nashville	Oct. 16.	Doggett.
Los Angeles.	Los Nietos.	Oct. 16	McTyeire.
N. W. Texas.	Belton	Oct. 23.	Keener.
White River.	Augusta	Oct. 30.	Wightman.
Trinity	Sul. Springs.	Nov. 6	Keener.
Memphis	Somerville	Nov. 20.	Wightman.
N. Alabama.	Tuskaloosa	Nov 20.	Doggett.
East Texas.	Tyler	Nov 20.	Keener.
Virginia	Petersburg	Nov. 20.	Paine.
N. Georgia	Atlanta	Nov. 27.	Marvin.
N. Miss'ppi.	Corinth	Nov. 27.	Kavanaugh
Little Rock	Pine Bluff	Dec. 4	Wightman.
Texas	Bryan	Dec. 4	Keener.
N. Carolina	Raleigh	Dec. 4.	Paine.
S. Georgia	Thomasville.	Dec. 11.	Marvin.
Mississippi	Brandon	Dec. 11	Kavanaugh
Alabama	Eufaula	Dec. 11	Doggett.
West Texas.	Victoria	Dec. 18	Keener.
S. Carolina	Anderson	Dec 18	Paine.
Louisiana	N. Orleans.	Jan. 8	Pierce.
Florida	Fernandina.	Jan. 8.	Marvin.
Baltimore.	Baltimore	Mar. 6.	Paine.

Married.

August 20, by Rev. T. R. White, HENRY W. FLY, of Texas, and MARY ALICE MOUNT, of Iberia parish, Louisiana.

On the fifteenth of August, at the residence of the bride's mother, Tangipahoa, Louisiana, by Rev. J. Nicholson, Mr. L. F. FENNIO to Miss EMMA W. BEGLOW.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

Price's Celebrated Stomach Bitters.—The Great Vegetable Restorative and Life-Giving Principle.—This wonderful vegetable restorative, since it has been before the public as a Tonic (October, 1869,) the quantity sold has been some 154,000 dozen, and in every instance given the greatest satisfaction. For dyspepsia, general debility, chills and fever, nervous affections, torpor of the liver, constipation of the bowels fever and ague, and all choleraic maladies, these Bitters will be found invaluable to all who desire a stimulating Tonic, and are particularly recommended to all persons traveling, by land or sea. Wherever introduced it has become a standard article. It is the best and purest Tonic offered. As a Tonic and Cordial it has no equal among stomachics.

It is also a great blood purifier, a life-giving principle, and a perfect renovator of the system. No one can take these Bitters long and remain unwell. A single trial will convince any one of the merits claimed for them. Sold by grocers, druggists and dealers throughout the South.

Address JAMES W. PRICE & Co., sole manufacturers and proprietors, Lock Box 166, New Orleans, Louisiana. se5 2m

"The Life of the Flesh is the Blood." This being the fact, it is very obvious that when the blood becomes corrupted the whole system becomes corrupted also. To relieve this the true policy undoubtedly is to direct the remedy to the source of the disease. It is in this manner that Dr. Tutt's Sarsaparilla acts. Its specific effect is on the blood; it purifies it, vitalizes it, and expels all distemper from the system. Being free from violent minerals, it is adapted to general use. The old and young may use it; the most delicate female, at any time, may take it; the weak and enfeebled will be strengthened by it; the tender infant, who may have inherited disease, will be cured by it.

Dr. Tutt's Liver Pills are a mild and gentle purgative, possessing the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving congestive or torpid liver. They have no equal. se5 ly

Dr. Tutt's Hair Dye is the Best in Use.

Best and Oldest Family Medicine.—Seaford's Liver Invigorator.—A purely Vegetable Cathartic and Tonic, for Dyspepsia, Constipation, Debility, Sick-headache, Bilious attacks, and all derangements of Liver, Stomach and Bowels. Ask your druggist for it. Beware of imitations. jal1 1yeow

Mrs. Whitcomb's Strap.—The great soothing remedy. Price only 25 cents. Gives rest to the mother and health to the child. Sold by druggists. jy18 1y

Have your Printing and Binding Done at

THE PELICAN JOB OFFICE,

112 and 114 Poydras St., New Orleans. jal8 1y

The Equitable Life Assurance Society, New York.

Assets, $18,000,000. Incor., $8,000,000.

Branch office—33 CAMP STREET.

A. P. CLEVELAND,
fe8 1y General Agent.

Dr. Henry's Root and Plant Pills.—Mild yet thorough; no nausea or griping; entirely vegetable; great Liver remedy. Price, 25 cents. Sold by druggists. jy18 1y

Use Dr. Henry's World's Tonic and BLOOD PURIFIER.—It is the great household remedy, pleasant to take, yet potent for the prevention and cure of diseases. It is better than Bitters, Cordials, Buchu or Sarsaparilla. Sold by druggists. jy18 1y

Caution!—Every genuine box of DR. MCLANE'S LIVER PILLS bears the signature of Fleming Brothers, Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, and their private United States stamp. ☞ Take no other; the market is full of imitations.

It is the popular verdict that people who have been accustomed to the use of Bitters or Cordials are obliged eventually to resort to McLane's Liver Pills for permanent relief. ap25 6m

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

Huntsville Female College,

HUNTSVILLE, ALABAMA.

NINETEENTH SESSION BEGINS SEPTEMBER 4, 1872. Eight Departments; four male, eleven lady teachers and officers; splendid parlor outfit; new furniture; gas, water, heating, bathing fixtures; grounds and scenery charming; climate delightful; health unrivaled; course liberal; Music (piano, organ, zithern, guitar, violin) by eminent professors and teachers; native French teacher; calisthenics free; art cheap. Board and English tuition per annum, $250.

REV. GEO. W. F. PRICE, President, Late President Tuskegee Female College. se5 1m

FREE TO BOOK AGENTS. AN ELEgantly bound Canvassing Book, for the best and cheapest Family Bible ever published will be sent free of charge to any Book Agent. It contains nearly 500 fine Scripture illustrations, and agents are meeting with unprecedented success. Address, stating experience, etc., and we will show you what our agents are doing,

NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO.,
se5 4m Memphis, Tenn.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

DR. D. JAYNE'S ALTERATIVE

WILL

BUILD UP THE SYSTEM,

PURIFY THE BLOOD,

AND

EXCITE THE ABSORBENTS TO

HEALTHY ACTION.

DR. D. JAYNE'S ALTERATIVE

IS A STANDARD MEDICINE;

a compound of those articles which long experience has proven to possess the most safe and efficient alterative and deobstruent properties, and containing no concealed poisons, no mercurial or other metallic preparations, having before us the testimonials of thousands of persons who have been restored to sound health from its use, it is recommended to the afflicted with entire confidence as to its ability to effectually eradicate from the human system the diseases for whose cure it is designed.

For Purifying the Blood

the Alterative will be found to be a most effective medicine. Acting directly on the circulation, it purifies the blood, and passes with it into every tissue and fiber of the body, removing every particle of disease from the system.

FOR SCROFULA IN ALL ITS FORMS,

whether Ulcerations of the Flesh or Bones, Enlargement of the Joints, Glands, Swellings, Eruptions, Tumors, etc., the Alterative has been found pre-eminently successful. By its action on the blood it destroys the virus or poisonous principle from which these diseases originate.

FOR SKIN DISEASES,

the immediate cause of which will always be found to be an obstructed state of the pores, JAYNES ALTERATIVE is a certain remedy. It not only removes the obstinate state of the pores, but it frees the blood and perspiration from all impurities and gross particles, which are so liable to obstruct the small perspiratory organs.

All Dr. D. Jayne & Son's Family Medicines are sold by our Agents in New Orleans.

E. J. HART & Co., 73 Tchoupitoulas St.,

and by Druggists and Dealers everywhere. se5 2m

IMMIGRANTS FURNISHED.

I WILL LEAVE, ON THE NEXT TRIP out of the Steamer St. Louis, for ENGLAND, and will furnish

English Farm Laborers and Servants

to those who will intrust their orders to me. For particulars I refer all persons to Messrs. Meeker, Knox & Co., 49 Carondelet street, New Orleans.

se5 1m GEORGE TORREY.

ARMSTRONG, CATOR & CO.,

IMPORTERS AND MANUFACTURERS OF

Ribbons, Millinery and Straw Goods,

WHITE GOODS, LINEN LACE AND EMBROIDERY,

Nos. 237 and 239 Baltimore Street,

BALTIMORE, MARYLAND.

Orders promptly attended to. se5 3m

HAVE YOU READ

MARK TWAIN'S

NEW BOOK?

The whole world is anxious for it, and every person who has read it is known by his cheerful look. 75,000 pies sold in 90 days, and eight presses running night and day on it to supply the demand. Nothing like it ever known before.

AGENTS WANTED—Send for circulars, terms, &c. Address NETTLETON & CO., 140 WEST FOURTH STREET, Cincinnati, Ohio. se5 1y

TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT.

Reaching the North Pole.—It is claimed that the North Pole will certainly be reached by one of the expeditions now in search of it. Suppose it should be, and the American flag should be hoisted there, to revolve with the axis of earth once in twenty-four hours! What then? Would the discovery be one-tenth as valuable to the world in general as is to the sick and suffering? Is not an agreeable preparation, that will cure indigestion, constipation, nervousness, bilious complaints and all manner of internal disturbances arising from debility, of more importance to mankind than the location of the Pole? Rather! The true article is procurable at all good drug stores. se5 2t

Tarrant's Effervescent Seltzer Aperient

FALL WORK FOR AGENTS!

"UP THE HEIGHTS OF

FAME AND FORTUNE.

And the Routes Taken by the Climbers to Become Men of Mark."

This is the title of our splendid new octavo, 700 pages of most instructive reading, bristling with facts and alive with fresh interest, to be ready shortly. Exclusive territory given; name district you desire, and state experience in business. Send $1 for prospectus book. Write at once for descriptive circular to WM. H. MOORE & CO.,
se5 6t Publishers, Cincinnati.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

ST. CLAIR HOTEL,

BALTIMORE, MARYLAND.

This new and beautiful Hotel is now open to the public. It is located on MONUMENT [illegible] to the lovers of man and the tourist. It is the only hotel in Baltimore embracing elevator, suits of rooms with baths, and all other conveniences.

To accommodate Merchants, Commercial Travelers and others, the rates will be $2 per day for rooms on the fourth and fifth floors, making the difference on account of the elevation. Ordinary transient rates for lower rooms, $3 per day.

Guests desiring to take advantage of the above rates will please notify the clerk before rooms are assigned. An improved elevator for the use of the guests is constantly running from six A. M. until eleven P. M.

se5 2m HARRY H. FOGLE, Manager.

WIRE RAILING AND ORNAMENTAL WIRE WORKS.

DUFUR & CO.,

No. 36 North Howard St., Baltimore,

manufacture Wire Railing for Cemeteries, Balconies, etc.; Sieves, Fenders, Cages, Sand and Coal Screens, Woven Wire, etc. Also Iron Bedsteads, Chairs, etc. se5 1y

MUSICAL BOXES,

PLAYING FROM ONE TO ONE HUNDred Airs, and costing from $2.50 to $1,000. All sizes, styles and prices. Send stamp for catalogue.

MAGIC LANTERNS,

specially for Sunday schools, lectures, etc. A priced and illustrated catalogue sent on receipt of stamp.

W. MITCHELL McALLISTER,
au29 3m 728 Chestnut st., Phila.

LANDRETH'S SEEDS

Have spoken their own praise for upward of three-quarters of a century.

Landreth's Rural Register and Almanac will be mailed to all who apply.

DAVID LANDRETH & SON,
au29 1y Philadelphia.

BARLOW'S INDIGO BLUE is the cheapest and best article in the market for BLUEING CLOTHES.

The genuine has both Barlow and Wiltberger's names on the label, and is put up at Wiltberger's Drug Store, No 233 North Second street, Philadelphia. For sale by grocers and druggists.

D. S. WILTBERGER,
au29 3m Proprietor.

GARDEN SEEDS,

FIELD SEEDS,

FLOWER SEEDS.

Grown largely by ourselves, on our own grounds, near Haddonfield, New Jersey.

COLLINS, DOWNS & CO.,
Warehouse, 1113 Market street,
Philadelphia, Pa.

Catalogue and Price-List furnished on application. The trade supplied on liberal terms. au22 3m

HOMER COLLEGE.

THE SCHOLASTIC EXERCISES OF THE Thirteenth Annual Term of Homer College begin on the First Tuesday of SEPTEMBER next, 1872.

Tuition at the rate of $5 per month. Board from $12 to $15 per month.

Students received in regular classes only, and to the end of a session.

A Preparatory Department, under competent management, is attached to the college. Tuition, $4 to $5 per month.

For further particulars address

REV. J. E. COBB,
President Homer College, La.

By order of the Board.
W. F. MORELAND,
Prest. Board of Trustees. au22 3m

UNIVERSITY OF VIRGINIA,

CHARLOTTESVILLE.

THE SESSION COMMENCES ON OCTOber 1. The institution embraces an Academic Department, and Departments of Law, Medicine, Engineering and Agriculture. For catalogues apply to WM. WERTENBAKER, Secretary of the Faculty, P. O. University of Virginia. CHAS. S. VENABLE, Chairman of the Faculty. au8 1m

IMPORTANT TO PLANTERS.

IRON COTTON TIES.

THE ARROW TIE

AND ALL OPEN-SLOT TIES.

All approved popular Patents:

ARROW,
ANCHOR,
WALLIS,
ALLIGATOR
AND DUNN.

For sale by all dealers in New Orleans, Mobile and Memphis, and by country merchants generally throughout the Cotton States.

RARTLETT & RAYNE,
General Agents,
48 Carondelet street, cor. Union.
my30 6m New Orleans.

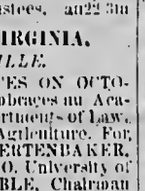
WATER

The Records of Tests

AT LOWELL, MASS., PROVE

N. F. BURNHAM'S

New Turbine



superior to all others. It gave a higher percentage than any other wheel of common finish. Pamphlet and Price List by N. F. BURNHAM, York, Pa. ap25 6m

For Churches, Schools, Fire Alarms, Farms, etc. FINE-TONED, WARRANTED, LOW-PRICED. Descriptive circular sent free.

BLYMYER, NORTON & CO.,
661 694 W. Eighth st., Cincinnati, O.
ja25 26teow

THE GREAT CHURCH MUSIC BOOK.

THE ADVANCE.

BY H. S. PERKINS.

This valuable collection of new Music for choirs, conventions, singing schools, etc., is now ready, and promises to be

THE SUCCESS OF THE SEASON.

Everything new, fresh and attractive. All wishing the best should examine THE ADVANCE before deciding on a new book.

☞ Price, $1.25, or $12 per dozen. A single copy sent for examination on receipt of $1. Specimen pages free.

S. BRAINARD'S SONS,
au22 1yeow Music Publishers, Cleveland O.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

STONEWALL INSTITUTE,

AT PLANTERSVILLE, ALABAMA,

TWENTY MILES NORTH OF SELMA.

THIS SCHOOL FOR BOYS WILL BEGIN its Eighth Annual Session on TUESDAY, OCTOBER 1, 1872.

Its reputation is based upon its merits.

The discipline is both parental and military, the latter only going far enough to promote physical development, promptness and application to books.

The elementary branches of education—spelling, reading, writing, the art of composing and arithmetic—receive special attention.

Small boys, ten years old, will be received. Economy in money and time will be gained by intrusting the education of such to the undersigned.

School session for day, seven hours; at night, two and a half. All boys board with the principal. Debating Societies on Saturday. Sunday school every Sunday.

Two hundred and thirty dollars, one-half payable in October, in cash, or a thirty days' acceptance draft; the other, February 1, 1873—will pay for a boy's board and tuition for one year.

It is confidently believed, by both students and patrons of this school, that no other does the whole work of education more thoroughly and satisfactorily than the Stonewall.

It is our set purpose to make the course of study equal to the demands of the age, whether in thoroughly preparing boys for college, or qualifying them for business in practical life. We are willing to have our work examined and compared with any done in academies or quasi colleges.

D. C. B. CONNERLY, ap29 4t Plantersville, Ala.

EMORY AND HENRY COLLEGE,

VIRGINIA.

THE FALL SESSION of this institution begins on the FIFTEENTH OF AUGUST next. One Hundred and Fifteen Dollars will pay all the necessary expenses of a five month session, including board, tuition, fuel, room-rent, washing and contingent fees. Payments are required in advance, except for board, which is $13 per month and payable monthly in advance. If you will consult the Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and her ministers generally, our alumni and students, or the professors of the University of Virginia, who have authorized this reference, you will be assured that we are offering excellent opportunities for a thorough collegiate training, surrounded by healthful, moral, religious influences. If you desire a catalogue, or any additional information, address

E. E. WILEY, President,
je20 1m Emory P. O., Virginia.

Centenary Female College,

SUMMERFIELD, ALA.

THE THIRTIETH SESSION OPENS SEPtember 23, 1872.

The Literary, Music and Art Departments are well organized and under a competent faculty.

The peculiar advantages are health, cheapness and thorough instruction.

Board and tuition, $230; if all paid in advance, $220. Cub rates, $210.

For catalogue and further information address

A. D. McVOY,
au22 1m President.

TUSKEGEE FEMALE COLLEGE,

TUSKEGEE, ALA.

THE SEVENTEENTH ANNUAL SESSION begins SEPTEMBER 16, 1872. The entire expense per annum of a boarding pupil, who takes no extra study, is $250, exclusive of books. No extra charge for vocal music, calisthenics or elementary drawing. For circulars, containing full information, apply to the President.

REV. HENRY D. MOORE,
au22 1m Tuskegee, Alabama.

TUSKALOOSA FEMALE COLLEGE,

TUSKALOOSA, ALABAMA.

THE NEXT SESSION OPENS SEPTEMBER 23, 1872.

The beautiful and healthy city of Tuskaloosa, Alabama, is unsurpassed as a location.

The Faculty will consist of three Professors and eight or ten Lady Assistants.

Course of study thorough. Domestic arrangements complete. Young ladies' sleeping apartments elegantly furnished and carpeted. Health department includes a finely conducted Gymnasium. This College is believed to be equal to the best in the United States, and the cheapest in the South. Special advantages for orphan children whose guardians wish to furnish them a home and school at once. For particulars and catalogue address the proprietor,

REV. B. F. LARRABEE,
Jy18 3m Tuskaloosa, Alabama.

MANSFIELD FEMALE COLLEGE,

Mansfield, DeSoto Parish, La.

THIS INSTITUTION, ENTERING UPON its Eighteenth Year, well supplied with Apparatus and other educational aids, and employing the most approved methods of instruction and government, will commence its Fall Session for 1872 on WEDNESDAY, the Twenty-fifth day of September, with a full corps of accomplished Teachers. For catalogues, with all particulars, address

CHARLES E. STUART,
au8 2m President.

Rendville Seminary for Young Ladies,

BATON ROUGE, LOUISIANA.

ESTABLISHED IN 1843. Incorporated in 1859. New buildings. Full corps of teachers. All the appliances of a first-class institution. For catalogues address

MRS. MARY W. READ, Principal,
au29 3m Baton Rouge, La.

WILLIAM HOGAN,

Manufacturer of and Dealer in

BOOTS, SHOES, TRUNKS, VALISES AND BAGS,

FRENCH AND AMERICAN,

Also Agent for the EMPIRE SEWING MACHINE,

99 AND 101 CANAL STREET,
au1 3m New Orleans.

S. COLLINS & CO.,

MANUFACTURERS OF

PRINTING INK,

Office and Depot—26 Frankfort Street,

jy25 6m NEW YORK.

JOSEPH GILLOTT'S

STEEL PENS,

OF THE OLD STANDARD QUALITY.

TRADE MARK: JOSEPH GILLOTT. Or Descriptive Name and Designation Number.

The well known Original and Popular Nos.,

303 . . . 104 . . . 170 . . . 351,

having been assumed by other Makers, we desire to caution the public in respect to said imitations. ☞ ASK FOR GILLOTT'S.

JOS. GILLOTT & SONS,
Jy25 1y 91 John street, N. Y.

OCEAN SPRINGS.

Summer Resort.—Board at the Seaside.

THE SUBSCRIBER has taken the MORRIS HOUSE, at Ocean Springs, which has just undergone a thorough repair, and will be open to boarders who wish to enjoy a pleasant home, good bathing, fresh sea air, and luxuriate on fish and oysters during the heat of summer.

Terms for board: $40 per month, $10 per week, and $2 per day. Apply to the subscriber by mail, at Ocean Springs.

Refer to Bishop Keener, Rev. Robert J. Harp, J. L. Dunnica & Co., and Samuel Hunt, Esq., New Orleans.

WM. C. CHAMBERLIN.
APRIL 20, 1872. ap25 1y

The Child's Corner.

THE TWO DISCONTENTED NURSES.

THE REQUEST.

"Come, Sammy O'Rory,
Now tell me a story,
As bad, just as bad as you're able;
Bridget won't let me out,
'Cause it rains, rains without—
I can't even thwack that old table.

"Sure, I'm stroked the wrong way,
For there's nothing to play—
To make me keep still is so mean:
When I grow a big man,
Won't I yell all I can!
Nurse, stop that old sewing machine!

"Don't you tell of nice boys
That, like mice, made no noise,
Or little girls ever so good—
Though they every one die,
Yet you can't make me cry
O'er Goodies and Babes of the Wood."

THE STORY.

"Twenty splendid white bears
Trotted down the front stairs,
Twelve lions our entry marched through:
Two owls and a monkey,
On top of a donkey,
Came parlor and kitchen to view.

"They ate Bridget, the nurse,
And the cook, which was worse,
Chopped Peter to mince meat so fine—
To their friend, the giraffe,
Of their meal they gave half;
Red Jerry they squeezed for port wine.

"All the spry kangaroos,
Perched on zebras and gnus,
With the crocodile waited out-doors.
'I would just like to see,'
Said the grim chimpanzee,
'Our elephant bird tread those floors.'

"Then a blue-nosed baboon
Sang a jolly old tune,
And like a steam whistle he sneezed;
Royal tigers lay still,
Purring like a saw-mill,
Each varmint did just as he pleased.

"A boy with a fiddle
Played Hi-diddle-diddle,
The monsters pranced 'round with delight;
Then they crunched every house,
Munched man, woman and mouse,
And gobbled the town up by night.

"But they spared the small boys,
'Cause they made lots of noise
On trumpet, drum, kettle and pan.
Now here is my story,"
Said Sammy O'Rory;
"'Tis as bad, just as bad as I can."

C. C. C., in Christian Union.

Work for Jesus, Children.

BY JESSIE GLENN.

This world is a great wilderness, full of weeds and brambles, of thickets and thorny hedges, and into its wild pathways God has placed men, women and children for its cultivation, as well as the cultivation of their own evil hearts, and all must be done for his glory. It is a severe school, but the discipline is necessary for the growth of the good seed which the Holy Spirit is hourly planting in the heart; and as the earth has to be carefully tilled, and the young plants fostered, watered and trained, if we would produce from its roughness lovely gardens and flowers of rarest beauty, so must the heart be cultivated; wild weeds must be uprooted, stony substances cast out, and beautiful fruits of love, and flowers of innocence and purity will be the reward.

But can little children do anything toward making the world more beautiful and the people in it better?

We think so. A little child who has the love of Jesus in his heart can do much toward making at least his own home a garden of delight, adorned with bright evidences of culture, a spot where contentment, like blush roses, can flourish, humility, like violets, bloom, and kind words, like clusters of carnation pinks, be scattered thickly around.

Little deeds of love cost nothing but effort. Many a parent's heart has been made happy by the prompt obedience and cheerfulness of a little child; many a brother's or sister's smiles have repaid the small endeavor to please, the gentle word spoken, or the loving kiss, on the part of even the youngest of the flock.

Don't be afraid to be polite, children. Strive to cultivate this trait at home, at the day school, at the Sabbath school, and even on the play ground, if you would make others happy. A simple pleasant answer, gently spoken, has often calmed an angry spirit, quenched a rising quarrel, and gladdened the heart of the unhappy; while angry bitter words stir up wrath, kindle a great fire of dissension, and, above all, displease God.

Then, children can pray, and by this means do good, for even the prayers of the smallest child are precious to our loving Savior, and he will never turn a deaf ear to the pleadings of the lambs of his flock.

Do any ill-use or torment you, little girls? The way is open for you to return good for evil, not only in actions, but by praying secretly for their conversion, that better things may be revealed to them, and that the Holy Spirit may descend into their hearts. Do larger boys swear in your presence, destroy your playthings, or wickedly tyrannize over you, little boy believer? Do not get angry and call names, but carry him to Jesus in your prayers at night, and, in praying for those who "despitefully use you," you may obtain not only a blessing for them, but one also for yourself.

Have you a pleasant Sabbath school and kind teacher, and do you know any little children who never enjoy such privileges? Here is a way in which little Christians can be useful. Tell them how much you enjoy the hours spent there, how many precious things are taught, and how gladly they will be allowed to attend, and perhaps your persuasions may lead them not only there, but from there directly to the arms of Jesus.

Do you know of any little children, either in your Sabbath or day schools, who are afflicted with ill-health, homeliness, poverty, or are in any other circumstances of distress? Much can be done to gladden their weary hearts by your sympathy, your kind assistance, or even by your praying looks. Strive, then, to comfort those who are in distress, to pray for those around you, and to do good wherever you have an opportunity; and, although you may be young in years, yours may be a life of usefulness and you may thus early work hard for Jesus.—New York Observer.

Captain Snarly.

His real name is Wilfred Henry Alton. But he doesn't get called by it very often.

When he is good and pleasant and sweet his mamma and grandma call him Birdie or Sunbeam. But when he is naughty he is called Captain Snarly. And this name suits him very well at such times.

One morning he came down stairs looking like Captain Snarly. Just as soon as his mamma looked at him she knew it was Captain Snarly. But she smiled, and said: "Good morning, dear. How do you do, this bright day?"

Wilfred put his finger in his mouth. "I dess I've dot a headache," he said.

"Have you? I'm very sorry," said mamma. "Where does it ache?"

"Way round de back of it!" snarled the captain.

"I guess you slept too long," said his mother. "You will feel better when you are washed and dressed, and have your hair combed."

So she brought his striped stockings, and the little slippers with rosettes, and a new plaid frock, which she had finished only yesterday.

But oh, how he snarled and fussed all the time she was dressing him!

And when she was combing his hair he cried loud enough to be heard in the next house, and the lady there said: "I guess Mrs. Alton has got Captain Snarly over to her house."

When his mother had made him look nice and neat, she said: "Now, come, and have your breakfast."

But this naughty little boy growled: "I don't fink I tan eat anything 'cept a piece of mince-pie."

"I haven't any mince-pie in the house," said his mother, "and you know I never let you eat it for breakfast. Here is some nice bread and milk in your little China bowl, and the cookies grandma sent you."

"If I tan't have some mince-pie I tan't eat anything," said Captain Snarly.

"Very well," said mamma. So she put the things away, and sat down to her sewing.

Wilfred pulled his little rocking-chair near the fire, and sat a long time scowling at the stove. Presently he began to kick it with his foot. He knew his mother disliked the noise, but he didn't care. She did not ask him to stop, and after awhile he was tired of it himself.

He was very unhappy, and he began to be a little bit ashamed of himself. Besides, he was getting hungry. He wished his mother would speak to him, but she didn't. She was sewing on a little coat, and singing to herself.

Wilfred knew the little coat was for him. Usually he liked to hear his mother sing, but now he wished she wouldn't look so happy when he was so miserable. The more he thought about it the worse he felt. He began to cry softly, but his mother took no notice.

Pretty soon he said: "O dear, I wish I tould have the nosebleed or somefin, so somebody'd care."

"People don't care much for Captain Snarly any way," said his mother. "I should like to hurt him myself, so he would stay away, and let me keep my little boy all the time."

"Should you prick his nose with your needle?" asked Wilfred.

"Yes, or I could whip him. I think it would be better to whip him."

Wilfred thought it over. He and Captain Snarly had a little fight all by themselves by the stove. In a little while his mother felt two soft arms around her neck, and two sweet kisses on her cheek.

"Why, here's my little rosebud again!" she said, looking down at the bright little face close to her own.

"Captain Snarly's gone," said Wilfred, "and he isn't ever coming back again."

"I hope not," said his mother.

Then Wilfred had his breakfast, and he was so hungry he never once thought of mince-pie.

Afterward he sat down at his mother's feet, and she talked to him a long time about his naughty temper. Wilfred promised to try hard to be a good boy; and he is keeping his word.

The last time I saw his mother she said she hadn't seen Captain Snarly for so long she had almost forgotten him. Youth's Companion.

The Man in the Moon.

Ages ago there went one Sunday morning an old man into the wood to hew sticks. He cut a faggot and slung it on a stout staff, cast it over his shoulder, and began to trudge home with his burden. On his way he met a handsome man in Sunday suit walking toward the church. This man stopped and asked the faggot-bearer:

"Do you know that this is Sunday on earth, and all must rest from their labors?"

"Sunday on earth or Monday in heaven, it is all one to me!" laughed the wood-cutter.

"Then bear your bundle forever," answered the stranger; "and as you value not Sunday on earth, yours shall be a perpetual Moon-day in heaven, and you shall stand for eternity in the moon, a warning to all Sabbath breakers."

Thereupon the stranger vanished, and the man was caught up with his stick and his faggot into the moon, where he stands yet.

The superstition seems to be old in Germany, for the full moon is spoken of as wealed, or weiled, a faggot.

SPEAK SOFTLY.—"Softly now, Harry! Softly, my boy! Do you know how loud your voice is, and how careless you are about it? I'm afraid you'll frighten the still sunshine with your noise, or scare away the quiet dew from the flowers about your yard. The birds avoid you now; and your little sister is afraid of you when she hears your merry call by the gate. Be a boy, Harry—a rollicking, joyful boy—but be a little more still about it. Softly, Harry, softly! Good night!"

Figure hard against a hasty temper. Anger will come; but resist it. A spark may set a house on fire; a fit of passion may give you cause to be sorry all your life.

The Farm and Garden.

Cotton Seed for Hogs.

How few persons value cotton seed as they should, as feed for hogs. The reason is the fear that they will kill hogs. After an experience of four years in giving hogs cotton seed in the summer, I would urge upon my farmer friends my plan, as it has proven safe to me. I haul the seed out in the winter or early spring near my clover lot, and then pile them so as they rot or heat through by the first of May; then I throw cotton seed and clover to the hogs every day. If they cough much I quit the cotton seed for a few days. If they can have access to green food while fed on cotton seed, there is but little danger. Brood sows will not be hurt by eating seed at any time of the year. We think it best not to give pigs or shotes (under eight months old) seed, though this year my pigs ran in a clover lot where there was a pile of cotton seed, and were not hurt in the least by them.—R., in Southern Cultivator.

Delicacy of Butter.

It is well known to all dairy-women of experience that butter, to be sweet, requires the cleanest and most delicate handling and care. A farmer's wife says: "Of all the products of the farm, butter is the most liable to be tainted by noxious odors floating in the atmosphere. Our people laid some veal in the cellar from which a little blood flowed out and was neglected until it had commenced to smell. The result was that the jar of butter, which I was then packing, smelled and tasted like spoiled beef." Another lady reader observes that there was a pond of filthy, stagnant water a few hundred feet from their house, from which an offensive effluvium would be borne on the breeze directly to the milk-room, when the wind was in a certain direction, the result of which was that cream and butter would taste like the disagreeable odor coming from that pond. As soon as the pond was drained we had no more damaged butter.

The Virtue of the Sunflower.

Mr. Martin, in a paper presented by him to the Societe Therapeutique de France, affirms that the common sunflower, extensively cultivated, has the effect of neutralizing the unwholesome vapors which are so fatal to health and life in marshy districts. The Dutch, who live only by diking and draining their low lands, and are, therefore, good authority, pronounce sunflower culture a specific for intermitting fever, the scourge of Holland. They assert that it has disappeared from every district where the experiment has been tried. It is not yet known whether this is the result of its rapid growth producing oxygen, or whether it emits ozone and destroys those germs, animal and vegetable, which produce that miasma which brings fever in its train.—Medical Record.

Bees and Fruit.

1. We have raised bees and fruit for twenty years or so, and love both, and for years defended bees against the charge of puncturing fruit.

2. That bees eat fruit, especially grapes, it takes but little observation to show. None will deny this.

3. That bees can, and will, and do eat millboard a thirty-second of an inch thick we have seen, and can prove by a dozen of witnesses.

4. That bees were seen at work cutting the skin of the grape and eating the contents.

5. We have bees and fruit, and only wish that the bees had converted one-fourth of our fruit into honey, and we would have made money with honey at fifteen cents a pound.—Colman's Rural World.

Commercial Fertilizers.

A meeting of the planters of Shriven county, Georgia, adopted the following:

Resolved, That after hearing the statements of the planters from the different sections of the county, we beg leave to report the following: That so far as commercial manures have been tested in this county the present year, they have been, as a general thing, of no advantage or benefit; and, inasmuch as they have failed to increase the yield of the crops, it would be contrary to good conscience on the part of the venders of useless fertilizers to demand pay for the same, and injurious and unjust to the planters to be required to pay for that which has not profited them anything.

Alsike or Swedish Clover.

This requires deep and thorough cultivation. Ashes, gypsum, superphosphate and lime are good applications for the crop, not carrying seeds of weeds. Its success depends very much on the soil and cultivation.—It thrives best on a moist (not wet) soil, and yields a rich and excellent fodder, making a superior hay to red clover, the stalk not being so woody. It is much relished by stock. The plant is fibrous, not tap-rooted, and succeeds best when the seed is sown with timothy or spring grain. It is well adapted for permanent grass land, either for pasture or mowing. Four or five pounds of seed are enough for an acre.

Spiders and the Weather.

If the weather is likely to become rainy, windy, or in any other respect disagreeable, spiders fix their terminating filaments, on which the whole web is suspended, unusually short. If these filaments are made unusually long the weather will be serene for ten or twelve days. If the spiders be totally indolent, rain generally succeeds; their activity during rain, on the other hand, being a sign that it would be only of brief continuance, to be followed by fair weather. Spiders generally make some alterations in their webs every twenty-four hours. If these changes take place in the evening they indicate a pleasant night.

HARDWARE, STOVES, ETC.

KURSHEEDT & BIENVENU,
IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN
Plantation and Builders' Hardware,
MARBLE, MARBLEIZED SLATE
AND IRON MANTLES,
Grates, Hearths and Fire Bricks,
NO. 114 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
my2 1y

THE UNRIVALED

BUCK'S BRILLIANT STOVE.
Every Brilliant is Fully Guaranteed.

H. HALLER,
No. 49 Camp street, New Orleans,
Sole Agent for Louisiana.

Sole Agent for the
CELEBRATED RINGEN WASHER,
In the States of Louisiana, Texas and Mississippi. oc19 1y

G. W. W. GOODWYN,
No. 52 Gravier Street,
DEALER IN
Stoves and Tinware of All Kinds.

While he is prepared to furnish, at the lowest rates, Cooking and Heating Stoves of all the various styles and patterns sold in this market, he makes a specialty of the following, to wit:

Cottage, Cricket, The Best, Relief, Gray Jacket, and Diadem.

These Stoves are sold under a guarantee, and may be returned if they do not perform well.

NOTE BY P. M. GOODWYN.—Lack of health has obliged me for a time to give up my regular calling—that of the ministry. In the meanwhile, in order to do what I can for a support, I have engaged as an assistant in my brother's establishment, as above advertised. And I take this method of soliciting from among the readers of the ADVOCATE—many of whom are my personal acquaintances and friends—a share of their patronage whenever they may have need of anything in the above line. Orders sent through their merchants, or to either of us direct, will receive prompt attention. jun7 6m

GROCERIES—GLASSWARE.

PURE LOUISIANA
SUGAR, MOLASSES AND SIRUPS.

REFINED SUGAR.—Cut Loaf, Crushed and Powdered.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

GOLDEN SIRUP.—A superior article of pure Louisiana, from the Crescent City Refinery.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

REFINED SIRUP AND MOLASSES.—Crescent City Refinery, Orleans, Louisiana, Chalmette and Pelican brands.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

LOUISIANA MOLASSES.—Various grades of Plantation, in barrels, half barrels and kegs.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

CLARIFIED SUGAR.—Various grades of White and Yellow, in hogsheads and barrels.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

LOUISIANA SUGAR.—Various grades of Plantation, in hogsheads and barrels.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

FOREIGN SUGAR.—Cuba, Demerara and Porto Rico, in hogsheads and boxes.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
my9 6m 48 Tchoupitoulas street.

W. C. SHEPARD & CO.,
—IMPORTERS OF—
CHINA, CROCKERY AND GLASS,
55.....CAMP STREET..... 55
New Orleans.

Country dealers supplied with ASSORTED CRATES OF ITEMS SHELF upon the most favorable terms.

Contents of our English Iron Stone China Dinner Set, No. 1:

12 Dinner Plates,	1 Round Soup Tureen,
12 Breakfast Plates,	1 Sauce Boat,
12 Tea Plates,	1 Salad,
12 Soup Plates,	1 Pair Covered Dishes,
12 Preserve Plates,	2 Vegetable Dishes,
12 Butter Plates,	2 Pickle Dishes,
12 Tea cups and saucers	4 Meat Dishes.

112 pieces best English Ware..... $15

Our Stone China Dinner and Tea Set, No. 2, contains
158 pieces..... $25

Our French China Dinner Set, No. 1, contains

12 Dinner Plates,	4 Meat Dishes,
12 Breakfast Plates,	1 Soup Tureen, round,
12 Tea Plates,	2 Covered Dishes, oval
12 Soup Plates,	1 Sauce Boat,
12 Preserve Plates,	1 Salad,
12 Tea cups and saucers	2 Pickles,
12 Butter Plates,	2 Vegetable Dishes.

112 pieces best French Ware..... $30

Our French China Dinner Set, No. 2, contains
166 pieces..... $45

Our French China Dinner Set, No. 3, contains
255 pieces..... $65

A large variety of the best SELF-SEALING FRUIT JARS always on hand.
Sole agents for the celebrated BLANCHARD CHURN. The best churn made.
The most complete stock of HOUSE-FURNISHING GOODS in the South.
W. C. SHEPARD & CO.,
ap1 6m Nn. 55 Camp st., New Orleans.

SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY.

THE NEXT SESSION OF THIS INSTITUTION will commence on
The First Wednesday in October.

It is one of the cheapest and most thorough colleges in this country. The instruction is of the highest character in all the schools of its Collegiate, Medical and Law Departments.

Board is from $10 to $16 per month.

For particulars and catalogue address Dr. A. S. Andrews or Prof. O. F. Casey.
A. S. ANDREWS, President.
GREENSBORO, ALA., July 14, 1872. au22 6t

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

CENTENARY COLLEGE,
JACKSON, LOUISIANA.

THE NEXT TERM OF THIS VENERABLE INSTITUTION OPENS ON THE FIRST MONDAY IN OCTOBER, 1872.

FACULTY.

Rev. C. G. ANDREWS, A. M., President, and Professor of Mental and Moral Science, Political Economy and International Law.
Rev. A. R. HOLCOMBE, A. M., Professor of Mathematics and Adjunct Professor of Natural Science.
G. H. WILEY, A. M., Professor of Ancient and Modern Languages.
T. S. JONES, M. D., Professor of Natural Science.
———, Principal of the Preparatory Department.

CHARGES.

Tuition, per session of forty weeks, in College	$40 00
Tuition, per session of forty weeks, in Preparatory Department	40 00
Contingent expenses	5 00

A matriculation fee of $5 must be paid on entering any regular college class. One-half the charges must be paid when the student enters; the other half on the beginning of the second term, March 1.

BOARD.

Board, including lodging, washing, lights and fuel, can be had in the best of families for $20 per month. Day-boarding with the same families, $13 per month. Rooms provided in the dormitories free of rent. Board to be paid in advance at least one month.

LOCATION.

This institution is located in the lovely village of Jackson, about twelve miles from Bayou Sara, in a grove of pine, magnolia, oak and beech. The location is remarkable for its beautiful woodlands, its bland and delightful atmosphere, its pure water, its unrivaled healthfulness, and its cultivated and refined society.

WHEN FOUNDED.

The college was established by the State of Louisiana in 1825, and ceded to the Methodist Episcopal Church South in 1845.

ALUMNI.

Its Alumni numbers 203, and they are to be found in the most honorable and useful stations in the land.

APPARATUS AND CABINET.

The college possesses a valuable set of Philosophical, Astronomical and Chemical Apparatus, and also a well-selected Mineralogical and Geological Cabinet. The apparatus includes a Theodolite, Sextant, Compass, Chronometer, Atwood's Machine, Whirling Tables, Electrical Machine, Air Pump, various combinations of the Mechanical Powers, Batteries, Chemical Tests, etc., sufficient for a thorough and extended course of observations and experiments. Steps have been taken by the Board of Trustees to put these in thorough repair.

LITERARY SOCIETIES.

There are two regular Literary Societies connected with the Institution. These are of great utility to young men acquiring a liberal education—improving them in the art of public speaking, making them in some degree familiar with the proceedings of deliberative bodies, and in cultivating systematic business habits. Each Society has a convenient hall and a well selected library—about 1,600 volumes each, which, added to the College Library of 2,000 volumes, makes over 5,000 volumes in the college.

BUILDINGS.

The Trustees are determined to continue the repairs on the buildings till completed. The grand Center Building is a noble specimen of architectural beauty and adaptation to the purposes of its erection. The wings, built of solid brick, present each a front of two hundred feet, while upper and lower galleries the entire length, supported by Tuscan columns, and with the center making in the perspective a continuous front of 700 feet.

PREPARATORY DEPARTMENT.

In the Preparatory Department students are fitted for regular college classes, or may obtain a thorough English or commercial education.
ITS FACULTY are men of experience and success in teaching.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES.

Rev. Bishop J. C. KEENER, D. D., President, New Orleans.

Rev. J. A. Godfrey, Clinton.	Hon. A. K. Farrar, Adams county, Miss.
Hon. John McVea, Clinton.	Hon. Edward J. Gay, parish of Iberville.
Hon. and Rev. Jas. H. Muse, St. Helena par.	Samuel J. Norwood, Esq., Shumsport, La.
Hon. Edward McGehee, Woodville, Miss.	C. G. McGehee, Esq., Wilkinson co., Miss.
Hon. E. T. Merrick, New Orleans.	Rev. W. H. Watkins, D. D., Natchez, Miss.
Prof. W. H. N. Magruder, Baton Rouge.	Rev. W. G. Millsaps, Jefferson county, Miss.
Rev. John C. Miller, Jackson.	Rev. J. A. B. Jones, Port Gibson, Miss.
Rev. R. J. Harp, New Orleans.	Rev. John A. Ellis, Meridian, Miss.
Hon. J. D. Fuqua, Baton Rouge.	B. H. Moss, M. D., New Orleans.
T. F. Collins, Esq., East Feliciana.	Josiah H. Nettles, Esq., East Feliciana.
Rev. J. L. Forsythe, Jackson.	Wilson H. Goodale, Esq. Baton Rouge.
Rev. L. Parker, D. D., New Orleans.	Rev. C. G. Andrews, Jackson, La.
D. C. Hardee, Esq., Clinton.	Rev. A. E. Goodwyn, Baton Rouge, La.

THE BEST ROUTE to the college is to leave the Mississippi river at Port Hudson, take the Clinton and Port Hudson railroad to Midway station, report to Captain F. J. Haynes as a student for Centenary, and he will convey you to the college, a distance of seven miles; for one dollar and a half for single passengers, or one dollar each where several are together. Address
au1 6m C. G. ANDREWS, President, Jackson, La.

Whitworth Female College,
AT BROOKHAVEN, MISS.

THE CONTINUED SUCCESS OF THIS INSTITUTION is one of the best evidences of its merit. During the past term there were in attendance two hundred and twenty-nine pupils.

The members of the Faculty—eleven in number—are selected on account of their ability to teach.

Prof. ECKHARDT, Music Director, has few equals.

Madame JULIUS, a Parisian lady of eighteen years' successful experience as a teacher, has been engaged to take charge of the French and Ornamental Department.

The very best care is taken of our pupils, both as to health and manners. Fires are provided for all.

No extravagance in dress is allowed.

The good health of Brookhaven is proverbial. Pupils from the miasmatic regions of Louisiana and Mississippi find this as healthful a school as can be found anywhere.

The charges are believed to be lower than in any school in the Southwest where similar advantages are afforded. Only from $230 to $265 for all expenses, excepting music, French and the ornamental branches.

No expense is spared in purchasing the most approved apparatus, maps, charts, etc., and all necessary school furniture.

Brookhaven is located on the New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern Railroad, 128 miles from the city.

Catalogues sent free on application to au1 6m REV. H. F. JOHNSON, Prest.

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE,
AT BATON ROUGE, LOUISIANA.

THE EXERCISES OF THIS SCHOOL will be resumed on Wednesday, the Second of October next.

For circulars, with all necessary information, apply to Rev R. J. Harp, 112 Camp street, New Orleans, or to myself, at Baton Rouge, Louisiana.
au1 6m W. H. N. MAGRUDER.

MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE,
ABINGDON, VA.,
ON THE VIRGINIA AND TENNESSEE RAILROAD.

$105 IN ADVANCE will pay Board and Tuition for five months in this institution, beautifully situated amid the mountains. For healthfulness, high grade and extent of instruction, and excellence of facilities, no institution in the land surpasses this.
Session begins SEPTEMBER 19.
For catalogue or particulars apply to
REV. W. G. E. CUNNYNGHAM, D. D.,
Or R. W. JONES, M. A., President.
jy25 2m

Wesleyan Female College,
MACON, GEORGIA.

THE THIRTY-FIFTH ANNUAL SESSION will begin OCTOBER 7, 1872.
For catalogues, containing full information, address
REV. E. H. MYERS, D. D.,
President, or
C. W. SMITH,
mn15 2m Secretary of Faculty.

RANDOLPH MACON COLLEGE,
Ashland, Hanover Co., Va.,

OFFERS, ON VERY LOW TERMS, THE advantages of thorough instruction high grade of scholarship, best religious influences in a refined community, and at a location remarkable for healthfulness. Just sixteen miles north of Richmond, on the R., F. and P. Railroad. Only $140 will pay all necessary for the half session! For catalogue address
REV. JAS. A. DUNCAN, D. D.,
Pres'dent, or
REV. ALEX. G. BROWN, Sec.,
jy25 2m P. O., Ashland, Va.

MEMPHIS CONFERENCE
FEMALE INSTITUTE,
JACKSON, TENNESSEE.

REV. A. W. JONES, D. D., PRESIDENT.

THIS OLD AND POPULAR INSTITUTION is most favorably located at the junction of the Mobile and Ohio and Mississippi Central railroads, in the healthy, intelligent, refined and religious community of Jackson, and furnishes all the advantages of a first-class Female College. The best professors and teachers employed. The discipline mild, firm and parental. The course of study thorough and extensive. The library large and valuable. The chemical and philosophical apparatus ample and appropriate. The buildings and grounds well arranged, commodious and beautiful. The conveniences and accommodations in all departments complete, excellent and satisfactory. The attention to the health, manners and comfort of pupils constant and faithful. For more than seventeen years no young lady has died within the walls of the institute, while the cases of severe sickness have been few.

Fall session begins on the FIRST MONDAY IN SEPTEMBER, and the opening address and concert on the following Tuesday evening. Spring session begins on the fourth Monday in January. Commencement day, the second Wednesday in June.

TUITION.

Collegiate department	$25 00
Music and use of piano	30 00
Latin and French, each	10 00
Board, washing, etc	90 00

Other charges moderate. Payments one-half in advance. For particulars address the president, or jy11 2m PROF. A. B. JONES, A. M.

TENNESSEE FEMALE COLLEGE,
FRANKLIN, TENNESSEE.
Rev. R. K. Hargrove, A. M., President.

FALL SESSION FOR 1872 opens on Thursday, SEPTEMBER 5.
Its organization and equipment are complete, and its facilities of the highest order. It will not substitute graduation for education.
Not one of its hundreds of pupils, for sixteen years past, has ever died in attendance on it.
Board and Collegiate Tuition, including French and Latin, one year, $220. To itinerant Ministers, literary tuition free, and board on special terms.
Circulars sent on application. au1 2m

Kentucky Wesleyan University,
MILLERSBURG, KENTUCKY.

SESSION FOR 1872-73 OPENS SEPTEMBER 16, 1872, and closes June 4, 1873.
The expense of the entire session can be brought within $240 by those who pay tuition, and $40 less by those who come on scholarships. All bills due the University are payable strictly in advance. Board bills are payable monthly.
This University is situated in the heart of the Blue Grass region of Kentucky. Climate invigorating and healthful. The Faculty of Instructors is now full. Persons seeking a good school for their sons are invited to correspond with the President, or A. G. Sill, Financial Secretary, or to send for catalogue.
jy18 10t B. ARBUCKLE, President.

ATHENS FEMALE INSTITUTE,
AT ATHENS, ALABAMA,

IS UNDER THE PATRONAGE OF THE North Alabama Conference. The next session will open on
The First Monday in September.

Our arrangements are all complete. A corps of able Teachers, a full course of study, thorough drilling and strict discipline have secured us gratifying success.
Board and tuition in Literary Department, one year, $210.
REV. J. M. WRIGHT,
au8 2m President.

MISCELLANEOUS.

ARE YOU GOING EAST OR NORTH?

Take the Iron Mountain, and Chicago and Alton Railroads,

THE ONLY ALL-RAIL ROUTE FROM all points South to CHICAGO.

The only line running the Pullman Palace Cars from all points South to St. Louis and Chicago.

Passengers by this line arrive in Chicago one hour in advance of all competing lines, and avoid 25 miles of steamboat transfer, and the annoying changes of cars incident to other lines. For all points in the Northwest, St. Paul, Milwaukee, or all points in the Canadas, New York, Boston and all Eastern cities, this is the pleasantest and most direct route. Parties going East via this line can lay over in Chicago and visit the Burnt District, and resume their trip at their leisure. Fare as low as by all other routes. Tickets to be had at all ticket offices in the South.

W. R. ALLEN,
General Ticket and Passenger Agent,
Iron Mountain Line, St. Louis.
JAMES CHARLTON,
General Ticket and Passenger Agent,
Chicago and Alton Line, Chicago.
D. A. FREER,
my30 4m Southern Traveling Agent.

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY

Established in 1837.
Superior Bells for Churches, Schools, etc., of Pure Copper and Tin, fully warranted, and mounted with our Latest Improved Rotary Hangings, the best in use.
Illustrated Catalogue sent free.
VANDUZEN & TIFT,
102 & 104 E. Second St., Cincinnati
fe22 1y

WM. PHILLIPS, UNION STABLES, 180 Calliope, near St. Charles street, has every accommodation in the line of Pleasure and Family Carriages, such as hacks, brettes, phætons, buggies, etc., for the use of the public, and at rates to correspond with the stringency of the times. All hacking done below tariff rates. Orders for weddings, balls, picnics, races, etc., will be attended to so as to guarantee satisfaction. I am also prepared to hire vehicles (alone) to parties having their own horses. de14 1y

SHERMAN HOUSE, NO. 1 WEST TWENTY-Sixth street, New York.—MR. ELKINS, Proprietor. Strangers visiting New York, desiring the comforts and retirement of a home and attendance of a hotel, in a first-class central location, can find the same at from $25 to $40 per week for a gentleman and wife; transient, $3 per day; American plan; lodgings, $1. je27 3m

BINGHAM HOUSE, PHILADELPHIA,
Corner of Eleventh and Market Sts.
CARLIS DAVIS, PROPRIETOR.

This popular Hotel being centrally located and accessible by street cars from all depots, makes it a desirable stopping place for travelers. It will be conducted in the same liberal manner as heretofore, it being the intention of the proprietor to maintain the reputation it has always enjoyed, of being in all respects a first-class hotel.
Terms, $3 a day. an8 1y

SMITH, ENGLISH & CO.,
BOOKSELLERS AND IMPORTERS,
(ESPECIALLY OF THEOLOGICAL BOOKS,)
No. 710 Arch street, Philadelphia.
☞ S., E. & Co. have on hand the best and most complete assortment of THEOLOGICAL BOOKS for sale in the country. Send for Complete Classified Catalogue, 25 cents, or with Alphabetical Index 50 cents—the best guide to purchasers in this department ever published. an15 2m

MEDICAL.

MRS. M. G. BROWN'S

CELEBRATED
POOR RICHARD'S
EYE-WATER

derives its name from Benjamin Franklin's Almanac, which is material for its philosophical sayings, one of which is: "An ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure."

Giving the Eyes a drink, morning and night, of

POOR RICHARD'S EYE-WATER

would prevent every disease which attacks the human body, thus lengthening life to an indefinite period.

The Body is of the Earth, and the Eye is a Plant, which requires moisture

The dust received into the eyes daily works itself into mortar, which clogs the machinery of the head, and closes up the eight thousand tubes and glands around the eyes; the balls contract and sink; they grow to the socket, and consequently the revolving power is impeded. This is what causes the bloodstreaks, the dark greenish color of the balls, and sunk.

When the eyes are neglected the entire machinery of the face becomes distorted; even the countenance is changed. How true: "The light of the body is the eye." It is as necessary to give the eye moisture as any plant of the field.

Language fails to make known the salutary effects upon the entire mental and physical machinery arising from giving the eyes a drink of POOR RICHARD'S EYE-WATER, morning and night; also the fearful consequence of neglecting so to do from the cradle to the grave.

POOR RICHARD'S EYE-WATER
Prevents Catarrh.

POOR RICHARD'S EYE-WATER
Cures Catarrh.
Opens the 8,000 tubes and glands in the head.
Prevents tightness and pains in the head.
Opens and keeps open the mucous membrane.
Removes phlegm from throat and chest.

POOR RICHARD'S EYE-WATER
Removes Wrinkles and Blotches.
Gives large, sparkling eyes.
Gives a clear, smooth complexion.
Lifts sunken eyes.
Strengthens weak eyes.

POOR RICHARD'S EYE-WATER
Removes tan freckles.
Gives blooming cheeks.
Removes all inflammation.
Cures all kinds of headache.
It penetrates through the eyes into the gums
And preserves the teeth.
Gives the sweetest breath.
Opens the gates for rivers
To pass from the head into the system.

POOR RICHARD'S EYE-WATER
Cures tan, freckles and grubs.
Is clear and beautiful.
Same taste as the tear.

POOR RICHARD'S EYE-WATER
Restores the memory, brightens the intellect.

Price, Twenty-five cents per bottle. Sold by druggists. E. J. HART & Co.,
Wholesale Agents,
73 75, 77 and 79 Tchoupitoulas street,
New Orleans.

☞ Inclose ten cents to the METAPHYSICAL UNIVERSITY, 51 Rond street, New York, for Mrs. M. G. Brown's pamphlet of sixty-eight pages, giving a synopsis of the Cause, Cure and Prevention of Disease; worth mines of gold to both sick and well. an15 1y

COMMISSION MERCHANTS.

PRICE, HINE & TUPPER,
General Commission Merchants,
FACTORS, AND
Agents of Atlantic Mail Transportation Co.
NO. 26 CARONDELET STREET,
NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Advances made on consignments to T. Tupper & Sons, Charleston, S. C.; Williams, Birale & Co., and Leverich & Co., New York. no2 1y

W. H. SUTTON. J. B. POWELL.
SUTTON & POWELL,
COTTON FACTORS
AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
186..... COMMON STREET 186
NEW ORLEANS, LA.
se21 1y

H. F. GIVEN. LUCIEN J. ROIZE.
H. F. GIVEN & CO.,
COTTON, TOBACCO AND SUGAR FACTORS,
—AND—
GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
No. 64 Baronne street, New Orleans.
oc5 1y

ANDREW J. AIKEN. JOHN W. WATT.
AIKEN & WATT,
Cotton Factors and Commission Merchants,
60.....CARONDELET STREET.....60
NEW ORLEANS.
Special attention given to orders for the purchase of all descriptions of Produce, Agricultural Implements and Plantation Supplies. no2 1y

J. L. DUNNICA, T. A. HAMILTON,
New Orleans, Memphis.
O. P. HARALSON, New Orleans.
J. L. DUNNICA & CO.,
FLOUR, PRODUCE AND PROVISION
COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
50.....TCHOUPITOULAS ST.....50
NEW ORLEANS, LOUISIANA.
oc22 1y

J. U. PAYNE. W. H. DAMERON. B. M. PAYNE
PAYNE, DAMERON & CO.,
COTTON FACTORS,
64 & 66....BARONNE STREET....64 & 66
Between Union and Gravier streets,
NEW ORLEANS, LA.
je19 1y

C. L. WALMSLEY & CO.,
Cotton Factors and General Commission Merchants,
31.....PERDIDO STREET.....31
oc3 1y NEW ORLEANS.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

G. W. RACE. W. H. FOSTER. E. T. MERRICK,
Former Ch. Jus. La.
RACE, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK,
Attorneys, Counselors and Solicitors,
Cor. of Camp street and Commercial Place,
se26 NEW ORLEANS.

W. W. EDWARDS,
COUNSELOR AT LAW
AND
COMMISSIONER OF DEEDS,
No. 88 Common street,
se14 1y New Orleans.

DR. JOHN G. ANGELL,
DENTAL SURGEON,
152.....JULIA STREET.....152
All operations in Operative, Mechanical and Surgical Dentistry carefully performed. Nitrous Oxide and other Anæsthetics administered. no30 1y

DR. C. J. BICKHAM,
Office—580 Magazine Street,
Between Philip and First sts., New Orleans.
Will call daily at College building, corner Common and Baronne streets, between eleven and twelve o'clock. je29 1y

TO METHODISTS.

SUNDAY HALF-HOURS WITH THE GREAT PREACHERS
is the best book of Sermons ever published.
Dr. Kynett says: "It should be welcomed to every Christian family."
Dr. Payne says: "Of inestimable value. * * Rich, rare and priceless."
Dr. Warren says: "I cordially commend it."
☞ Sold only by subscription.
AGENTS WANTED.
Liberal terms; money made rapidly, and a valuable and handsome book circulated.
Circulars sent free on application.
PORTER & COATES, Publishers,
au29 1m Philadelphia, Pa.

PUBLICATIONS FOR ALL Prominent Benevolent Organizations.

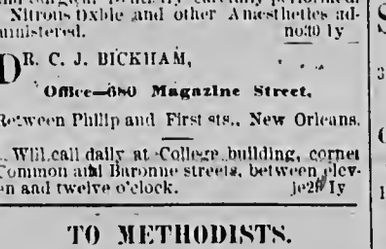
100,000 SOLD!—Masonic, Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias, Red Men, Mechanics, Temperance, etc.

Sale unrivaled by anything heretofore offered. Agents with no experience are selling 20 Pictures and upward a day. One of our agents has cleared over $1,200 in three months. The Brethren welcome these works. Our inducements are UNPRECEDENTED. Our commissions are positively one-fourth larger than any other house does or CAN offer. Send for circular of Order to which you belong, giving No. of your Lodge, and state where you saw this advertisement. You will certainly engage with us.

J. HALE POWERS & CO.,
Fraternity Publishers,
my9 7m Cincinnati, Ohio.

FRATERNITY.

READY-PREPARED
PLASTIC SLATE ROOFING.



Thoroughly Fire-Proof and Durable.
Adapted to any style of roof, steep or flat. Can be applied by any one. Its cost on the roof is less than shingles in nearly every section of the country, and the water from it is of the best quality. Sample sent on application to EDWARD THOMPSON, Manufacturer,
je27 6m 184 Peters street, New Orleans.

AGENTS WANTED TO SELL PARTON'S LIFE OF
HORACE GREELEY,
The Patriot, Statesman and Philanthropist.
Every citizen who is interested in the remarkable career of our next President should read the truthful story of his life, as told by the greatest American Biographer. A work of rare interest, and full of instruction. For circulars and terms address
NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO.,
jy25 2m Memphis, Tenn.

BUSINESS CARDS.

E. HEATH. M. LARA. J. P. HEATH.
HEATH, LARA & HEATH,
IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN
UPHOLSTERERS' MATERIALS,
WALL PAPER, WINDOW SHADES,
CORNICES AND CURTAIN GOODS,
Pictures, Frames, Moldings, Looking Glasses and Clocks,
NO. 99 CAMP STREET,
no16 1y NEW ORLEANS.

THE MITCHELL & RAMMELSBERG
FURNITURE COMPANY,
Manufacturers and dealers in all kinds of
Furniture, Mattresses, Looking Glasses,
ETC., ETC.,
103 and 105 Camp street, cor. Poydras,
Moresque Building, New Orleans,
have the largest and best assortment of FURNITURE of any house in the city.
Please give us a call before purchasing elsewhere. my23 1y

A. B. GRISWOLD & CO.,
CANAL ST., COR. ROYAL, NEW ORLEANS,
IMPORTERS OF
WATCHES, JEWELRY, CLOCKS,
PLATED WARE, HOUSEKEEPING GOODS,
Cutlery, Guns, Pistols, Bronzes, Porcelain and Fancy Goods.
MANUFACTURERS OF
PURE COIN SILVERWARE.
Watches and Jewelry carefully repaired.
Every article sold fully guaranteed.
no23 1y

J. THOMSON. G. THOMSON. W. R. THOMSON.
J. THOMSON & BROS.,

Manufacturers of
Carriages, Barouches, Buggies, Phaetons,
SPRING WAGONS, ETC.
68 and 70 Rampart Street,
Bet. Common and Gravier, New Orleans, La.
Repairing done in all its branches. no30 1y

LOUISIANA STEAM
SASH, BLIND AND DOOR FACTORY,
ROBERTS & CO., PROPRIETORS,
301, 303, 305 and 307 Gravier Street,
NEW ORLEANS. my30 1y

JAMES M'CRACKEN. GEO. E. BREWSTER.
McCRACKEN & BREWSTER,
DEALERS IN FURNITURE,
Nos. 37, 39 and 41 Royal street.
Manufactory, corner Derbigny and Custom-house streets, New Orleans. my9 6m

JOHN I. ADAMS & CO., (JOHN I. ADAMS, JAY L. ADAMS, GEO. W. WEST, WM. H. RENAUD,)
WHOLESALE GROCERS,
AND DEALERS IN
PROVISIONS, LARD, OILS, ETC., ETC.,
43, 45 and 47 Peters street,
(Formerly New Levee.)
mh21 1y NEW ORLEANS.

ELON G. SMITH, J. L. CHEATHAM,
J. W. BRAUGHON.
SMITH, CHEATHAM & CO.,
(SUCCESSORS TO ELON G. SMITH & CO.)
PORK PACKERS,
Provision and Commission Merchants,
CORNER THIRD AND SPRUCE STREETS,
SAINT LOUIS.
We solicit orders from the trade for goods in our line. oc26 1y

C. SAMPSON. F. G. SAMPSON.
SAMPSON BROTHERS,
(Late C. C. Sampson,)
FURNITURE.
33 & 35....ROYAL STREET.....33 & 35
NEW ORLEANS.
Established in 1833. ja11 1y

Carpet Warehouse—17 Chartres Street.
A. BROUSSEAU & CO.,
Importers and dealers, at Wholesale and Retail, in English and American Carpetings.
Floor Oil Cloths, Table and Enameled Oil Cloths.
Window Shades, Table and Piano Covers.
Crumb Cloths, in squares or pieces.
Curtain and Furniture Materials.
Brocatelles, Cotelenes, Terries, Reps, Lace and Nottingham Lace Curtains, Haircloth Ticking, Springs, Burlaps, Stop Covers, etc.
no23 1y A. BROUSSEAU & CO.

JOHN LAZARUS,
PRACTICAL OPTICIAN,
6.....ST. CHARLES ST.....6
Near Canal, New Orleans.
Sole Agent for the celebrated Pantascope Star Spectacles and Eye Glasses. mh21 6m

T. H. McMAHAN & CO.,
BANKERS,
And Dealers in Foreign and Domestic Exchange,
GALVESTON, TEXAS.
We have prompt and reliable correspondents at all the principal points throughout this State, and upon all collections payable in this city or Houston make no charge for collecting, and only actual charge upon interior collections.
Immediate and prompt attention given to all business intrusted to us. feb1 1y

RICHARD BROUERICK,
CISTERN MAKER,
132.....Julia street.....132
Bet. Camp and Magazine, New Orleans.
Second hand Cisterns always on hand. All work guaranteed.
☞ All orders left at Box 30, Mechanics' and Dealers' Exchange, will meet with prompt attention. my2 1y

HILL & VEAZIE,
74.....Camp street.....74
NEW ORLEANS, LA.,
LAMPS AND OILS, CHANDELIERS,
Globes, Chimneys, Shades, Trimmers, Wicks, Cans, Fillers, etc.
PRATTS' ASTRAL OIL, non-explosive and non-inflammable. ja18 1y

R. R. NOBLE. J. R. WOODS.
NOBLE & WOODS,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL GROCERS,
Nos. 9 and 11 Delta street, and 10 and 12 Front street,
ja18 1y NEW ORLEANS, LA.

JOHN D. MACLIN, L. C. MACLIN,
(Late R. D. Maclin.)
COAL! WOOD! COAL!
Pittsburg, Anthracite and Tunnel Coal, Oak, Ash and Pine Wood, at the lowest market rates, delivered to any part of the city.
Offices—26 Carondelet street, and corner of Third and Tchoupitoulas. mh7 1y

MENEELY'S BELLS.
THE genuine Troy Church Bells known to the public since 1826, which have acquired a reputation unequaled by any, and a sale exceeding that of all others—including more than seventy chimes and peals. One thousand testimonials received during the last six years. Every Bell made of best Copper and Tin, and formally warranted. New Patent Rotary Fixtures. Catalogues free. No agencies.
Post office address, either TROY or WEST TROY, New York.
je13 1y E. A. & G. R. MENEELY.

"Southern Books for Southern Schools."

School-Books which are Unsectional, Unpartisan, and Unpolitical.
PREPARED BY THE MOST EMINENT SOUTHERN SCHOLARS, AND
ENTIRELY ACCEPTABLE TO SOUTHERN TEACHERS AND PARENTS.

The University Publishing Co.,

An Association composed of many of the several Southern States, feel: School Books which should be unpolitical, and in their teaching thought and feeling of the Southern, the facts of history and science—of School and College Text-books and educators named below, which of the most eminent citizens of ing the necessity for a series of truly sectional, impartisan, and should not be offensive to the people—which should present only are now issuing a complete series by the eminent Southern scholars are the

Cheapest, Best, and Most Beautiful School-Books
Now published. The "University Series" embraces

MAURY'S GEOGRAPHICAL SERIES,
By Commodore M. F. Maury, of the Virginia Military Institute. A series of books which mark an era in the study of this science, and which, in the words of a well known and accomplished Southern teacher, "are characterized by a felicity of arrangement and simple freshness of style which must ever render them attractive to the young, and which will be used by all who wish to teach Geography as a science, as something to make pupils think, and not merely as an enumeration of dry facts."

Holmes' Readers and Spellers,
By GEORGE F. HOLMES, LL.D., Professor of History and General Literature in the University of Virginia. A series of Readers unequalled in cheapness, excellence, and typographical beauty. They are steadily progressive in character, bright and fresh in their selections of prose and verse, and illustrative of Southern scenes, incidents, and history.

Venable's Arithmetical Series,
By CHARLES S. VENABLE, LL.D., Professor of Mathematics in the University of Virginia. These books are received everywhere by intelligent teachers with the highest satisfaction, as being most admirably adapted for mental drill, as well as for business education. Their methods, rules, and reasonings are clear, distinct, logical, and comprehensive, and the series is carefully graded throughout.

Holmes' History of the United States,
By GEORGE F. HOLMES, LL.D., of the University of Virginia. It is enough to say of this admirable work, interesting, impartial, and truthful, as well as pure and graceful in style, that it is the only History of the United States which is acceptable to Southern teachers and parents. It comes down to the present date.

THE "UNIVERSITY SERIES" OF SCHOOL-BOOKS
COMPRISES, ALSO,

De Vere's French Grammar, Readers, etc.,
By M. SCHELE DEVERE, LL.D., Professor of Modern Languages in the University of Va.

Gildersleeve's Latin Series,
By B. L. GILDERSLEEVE, Ph.D., LL.D., of the University of Virginia.

Carter's Elements of General History,
By Rev. J. P. CARTER, A.M., of Baltimore, Maryland.

Holmes' English Grammars,
By GEORGE F. HOLMES, LL.D., of the University of Virginia.

LeConte's Scientific Series,
By the Professors LECONTE, late of the University of South Carolina.

Johnston's English Classics,
By R. M. JOHNSTON, A.M., late Professor of Rhetoric and Belles-Lettres in the University of Georgia.

To which list other books in other departments will early be added.
Send for our full ILLUSTRATED DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE, which will be mailed free to any teacher or school officer. Liberal terms given for introduction.
Address
UNIVERSITY PUBLISHING COMPANY,
155 and 157 Crosby Street, New York.
☞ A full supply of "The University Series" always on hand, and teachers and schools supplied by R. J. HARP, Bookseller, 112 Camp St., New Orleans.
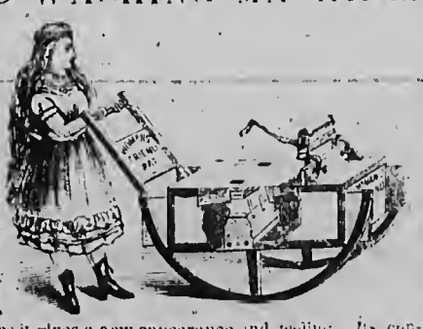
And by all prominent booksellers throughout the South.
W. IRVING CLARKE, the General Agent, will furnish any information, and afford every facility to teachers for examining the series. Office—92 CAMP ST., New Orleans. mh7 1y

WOMAN'S FRIEND WASHING MACHINE.



THE UNDERSIGNED OFFERS THIS Machine to the public as the Simplest and Best Washing Machine of the age, while the cost is the lowest. It is the invention of a Kentuckian, and is operated by rocking, and washes the clothes by beating, instead of rubbing. It will wash sixteen shirts or twenty-five ordinary pieces of clothing or two single blankets at a time, and it will thoroughly wash, rinse and blue one hundred pieces ordinary clothing in forty-five minutes, without the least wear of the clothing, the breaking of a button or the pulling of a thread.

The most delicate fabrics can be washed with it without the least injury. It gives a grass-bleached whiteness to the clothes. To blankets and woolen clothes it gives a new appearance and feeling. Its construction is so simple that it will last for years with care, and costs less than wash-tubs in the aggregate. Any one can repair it, as there are no cog-wheels or cranks to replace.

The directions for its use are very simple, and every Machine will do as represented if the directions are followed. It is a most excellent Wool-washer likewise. Send for circular and certificates of its merits.

PRICE, $12. WITH WRINGER, $18
EDWARD THOMPSON, Manufacturer and Proprietor.
je27 6m 184 Peters street, near Julia, New Orleans.

H. DUDLEY COLEMAN, Agent, NO. 9 UNION STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
THE UTICA STEAM ENGINE CO.,

Formerly WOOD & MANN.

These Engines are so well and favorably known that a description of them here is not deemed necessary.

They are EQUALLED by FEW, SURPASSED by NONE, perfect in workmanship, complete in appointments, safe, simple and substantial. Every boiler is practically tested before leaving the factory. By the use of a CIRCULATING WATER BOTTOM around and underneath the furnace, which lessens the

RISK FROM FIRE,

they are particularly adapted for GINNING COTTON. Engines of all sizes, at prices which challenge comparison for equal size of steam cylinder and measurements of boiler. A full stock of these Engines will be kept constantly on hand by the undersigned, who has been appointed general agent.

H. DUDLEY COLEMAN,
No. 9 Union street,
mh21 6m New Orleans, La.

Carpet and Oil Cloth Warehouse.
J. M. ELKIN. F. STRINGER.
ELKIN & CO.,
168.....CANAL STREET.....168
Near Baronne, New Orleans.
IMPORTERS OF ALL VARIETIES OF ENGLISH CARPETINGS, RUGS, Etc.
—ALSO—
Oil Cloths, Mattings,
Lace and Damask Curtains,
Window Shades, etc.,
—AND A—
Complete Assortment of Upholstery Goods.
fe8 1y

SAVE $20.

THE NEW WILSON
UNDER-FEED.
The Best and Cheapest First-Class Shuttle
SEWING MACHINE
In the World.
Wm. GREGG & CO.
General Southern Agents, No. 183 Canal street, New Orleans, La.
Agents Wanted. je27 6m

fe11 1y

AGENTS WANTED TO SELL THE ILLUSTRATED
HISTORY OF THE BIBLE
By Wm. SMITH, LL.D.
AUTHOR OF SMITH'S BIBLE DICTIONARY.
It contains 213 fine Scripture Illustrations and over 1,100 pages, and is the most comprehensive and valuable History of the Bible ever published. The labor and learning of centuries are gathered in this one volume to throw a strong, clear light upon every page of the inspired Word.
Send for circulars, and see our terms and a full description of the work. Address
NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO.,
274 and 276 Second street,
mh1 6m Memphis, Tenn.

EXCHANGE HOTEL,
JOHN SUMMERS, PROPRIETOR.
GALVESTON, TEXAS.
☞ This is the only Hotel in the city which has FREE OMNIBUSES to and from the cars and boats for the use of guests. Ask for Exchange Hotel Omnibus. feb1 1y

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

MILLER'S GREAT BIBLE,
WITH OVER TWO HUNDRED ENGRAVINGS.
LARGE PRINT. BEAUTIFUL BINDINGS.

THE CHRISTIAN HARMONY,
SEVEN-SHAPED NOTES.
The system of Music on which this work is based is remarkable for its simplicity, and the facility with which anyone can learn to sing, requiring far less time and labor than the ordinary four note system. It contains the choicest collection of Music, both original and selected, from the best sources; particularly designed for Choirs, Singing Schools and Private Societies. The great and unprecedented success of the Southern Harmony, by the same author, is a guarantee of the high musical merit of this work. Agents wanted.
Miller's Bible and Publishing House,
1102 and 1104 Sansom street,
je27 6m Philadelphia, Penn'a.

VALUABLE BOOKS.
THE ENCYCLOPEDIA OF RELIGIOUS Knowledge. New revised edition. Designed as a complete book of reference on all religious subjects. Illustrated by wood-cuts, maps and engravings on copper and steel. Royal 8vo., sheep, extra, $6.
THE COMPREHENSIVE COMMENTARY on the Holy Bible. Six Volumes, including Supplement, sheep, library style, $20.
COLEMAN'S HISTORICAL TEXT BOOK and Atlas of Biblical Geography. By Rev. Lyman Coleman, D. D. Imperial 8vo., new edition. Cloth, $2.
LABBERTON'S HISTORICAL SERIES.
LABBERTON'S OUTLINES OF HISTORY, with Original Tables, Chronological, Genealogical and Literary. By Prof. Robert H. Labberton, LL., D. Oblong 4to., cloth, $2.
LABBERTON'S HISTORICAL QUESTIONS, logically arranged and divided. Oblong quarto, cloth, $1.75.
LABBERTON'S HISTORICAL ATLAS, containing One Hundred Colored Maps, illustrating successive periods, from the Dawn of History to the Present Day. One volume, oblong quarto, cloth, $3.50.
For sale by booksellers generally.
CLAXTON, REMSEN & HAFFELFINGER,
au22 3m Publishers, Philadelphia.

A POPULAR MUSIC BOOK!
AT A POPULAR PRICE!
"THE SCEPTER,"
By Dr. A. BROOKS EVERETT,
ONLY $1.00.—BY THE DOZEN, $10.50.
"THE SCEPTER" contains a large variety of most valuable material, embracing Hymn-tunes, Anthems, Glees, the "Everett System of Teaching Vocal Music," etc., by the well-known professor of music, Dr. A. BROOKS EVERETT, recognized throughout the Southern States as a most successful and popular teacher of the art of singing, as well as the author of many of the most popular tunes contained in the Tabor or Richmond Collection.
"THE SCEPTER"
also contains contributions by Profs. R. M. McIntosh, B. H. Everett and other well-known composers, as well as a large number of old standard tunes.
☞ Every Choir Leader and Teacher of Music should examine "THE SCEPTER."
Sent, post paid, on receipt of $1.
PUBLISHED BY
BIGLOW & MAIN, NEW YORK,
SUCCESSORS TO WM. B. BRADBURY,
Publishers of the most popular series of SUNDAY SCHOOL SONG BOOKS. Golden Chain, Shower and Censer, Fresh Laurels, Bright Jewels, Pure Gold, etc. For sale by Booksellers generally.
All publications of Biglow & Main are for sale by ROBT. J. HART, Agent, 112 Camp street, New Orleans. je15 6m

SWINTON'S CONDENSED
SCHOOL HISTORY.
(Illustrated.)
Mr. Superintendent, you are to examine this book. What is of most importance in the work is its remarkable fairness. It is vastly superior, in this respect, to any history issued at the North that we have seen. Where a Northern writer finds it almost impossible, he comes nearer to Dr. Ramsay than any other.

NEW SCHOOL BOOKS.
SWINTON'S WORD ANALYSIS.
CATECHISM FOR THE SPEAKER.
ARITHMETICAL EXAMPLES (Mental and Written).
KERL'S SHORT COURSE IN GRAMMAR.
☞ A descriptive Catalogue of the American Educational Series, and our Educational Reporter, mailed free to any address upon application.
Ivison, Blakeman, Taylor & Co.,
Or T. MORONEY, General Agent,
mh28 1y 92 Camp street, New Orleans.

Uniform Lessons for 1872.
FOR TEACHERS.—The Sunday School World contains the explanations and studies prepared by Rev. John Hall, D. D., for teachers.
SCHOLARS' PAPER.—With the text of the lesson, and suggestive helps for the study of it; and questions at the foot of each page, to be answered in writing by the scholar.
INTERMEDIATE LESSON PAPER.—Adapted to the use of less advanced scholars, with questions and explanations.
Price of each Lesson Paper of four pages, at the rate of 75 cents per 100 copies for one month, or $3 per 100 copies yearly.
☞ Catalogues of the Society's publications and sample copies of its periodicals furnished gratuitously on application at the Depository of the
AMERICAN SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION,
au4 3m 1122 Chestnut st., Philadelphia.

AGENTS WANTED—for the Lives of
Grant Greeley
WILSON BROWN and the leading men of all parties. Over 40 Steel Portraits, worth twice the cost of the book. Wanted everywhere. Agents have wonderful success. Send for circular. Address
ZIEGLER & McCURDY,
au15 2m 301 N. Sixth st., St. Louis, Mo.

MINERAL SPERM OIL.
GUARANTEED AS SAFE AS SPERM OR LARD OIL.
It Will Not Take Fire in Case of Breakage of the Lamp.
THE OIL WILL EXTINGUISH the FLAME.
The Oil itself has no odor while burning. It gives a Light of TEN-CANDLE POWER at a cost not exceeding ONE-HALF CENT PER HOUR, and for lighting railroad cars, steamers, factories and dwelling houses it is invaluable and cannot be too highly recommended.
The Oil is patented, and made by a process which insures its uniformity.
It burns with great brilliancy in the
DUAL BURNER,
requires but little attention and no trimming. The Oil never gums in the lamp, as it absorbs no oxygen from the atmosphere. It does not deteriorate by age. This Burner fits all ordinary coal oil lamps.
BOSTICK & SEYMOUR,
Sole Agents for Louisiana, Alabama, Mississippi and Texas,
15 and 17 Front st., and 16 and 18 Fulton st.,
mh28 6m New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS MARKETS.

(From the New Orleans Price Current.)

The commercial year has opened with a more lively demand and better supplies of our leading staple, and some improvement in the wholesale trade, but with only a limited degree of animation in Western produce.

The river is 12 feet 7 inches below high water mark.

COTTON.—The following are the arrivals since the thirtieth ultimo:

Louisiana and Mississippi	bales	2,324
Lake		11
Mobile		8
Texas		71
Total		2,414

On Saturday the sales did not exceed 190 bales, but prices ruled more in favor of sellers, rendering it necessary for us to revise our quotations by dropping the inside figures for low middling, which we quoted at the close at 20(a) 20¼c., making no change in other grades. Low middling sold at 20@ 20⅛c., and strict at 20⅜c., middling at 20½c., strict middling to good middling at 20⅞c., and good middling at 21c. On Monday, the supplies being more copious and various circumstances combining to stimulate the demand, buyers came forward with increased spirit, and took 642 bales, partly at Saturday's prices and partly at a further advance of ⅛c., the market closing at 20⅛@20⅜c. for low middling, 20½@20¾c. for middling, 20⅞c. for strict middling, and 21c. for good middling. On Tuesday, with more liberal arrivals, including 1,200 bales by the R. E. Lee on Monday, the demand was still more active, and nearly all the new crop on sale was taken by noon, the day's business, which included some old also, summing up 1,722 bales. Prices exhibited some irregularity, a part of the business only being at previous rates, and a part at an improvement of ⅛@¼c., closing strong at our quotations.

The above makes an aggregate for the past three days of 2,554 bales, against 860 for the corresponding time last week, and 265 the week before.

The receipts proper since Friday evening embrace 2,335 bales, against 649 during the corresponding period last week, 182 the week before, and 1,570 last year.

We quote:

Good ordinary	18¾ @ 19c
Low middling	20¼ @ 20½
Middling	20⅝ @ 20¾
Strict middling	21 @ —
Good middling	21¼ @ —

COTTON STATEMENT.

Stock on hand Sept. 1, 1872, bales.		6,259
Arrived past three days.	2,414
Arrived previously		52,414
		8,673
Exported past three days.	13
Exported previously		13
Stock on hand and on shipboard		8,660

SUGAR.—The commercial year has opened with a very dull market, and there has been little or no movement since our last review. On Tuesday there were resales of 30 hhds. fully fair to prime Louisiana at 10¾@11c., and 50 hhds. fair to good fair Porto Rico at 10@10⅜c. ₱ lb. Of city refinery, yellow clarified is selling on orders at 11¼@11¾c., white 12⅛@12½c., crushed and powdered 13¼@13½c., cut loaf 14@14¼c. ₱ lb.

MOLASSES.—There is little or none coming in from plantation. The receipts consist of a few hhls. poor and thin, now and then, which sell at 25@30c. per gallon. City refinery is selling at 30c. for inferior, 40c. for common, 50c. for fair, 55c. for prime, 60c. for choice, and 80c.@$1 ₱ gallon for golden syrup.

CORN—Is in good supply, but the demand is only moderate, and prices for white mixed have ruled a little easier for buyers. On Tuesday 1,600 sacks sold at 58c. for mixed, 59c. for white mixed, and 60@62c. for white.

OATS.—On Tuesday there was a fair demand, and prices were firm. 2,250 sacks sold at 33c. for ordinary St. Louis, 34@36c. for prime do., 37c. for choice do., and 40c. for choice Galena.

BRAN—Is in good supply and moderate demand, and prices have ruled a little in favor of buyers. The sales on Saturday and Monday embraced 1,200 sacks at 92½@95c. ₱ 100 lbs. On Tuesday 2,200 bags sold at 90@95c. ₱ 100 lbs.

PORK.—On Tuesday buyers were asking $14 75 ₱ bbl, and 100 bbls. sold at $14.50 ₱ bbl. It is retailing at $15@$15.25 ₱ bbl.

LARD.—Choice continues scarce and in good demand, and prices are still higher, while inferior is dull and slow of sale. On Tuesday 100 tierces sold, in several lots, at 10c. for packers', and 10⅓@10¾c. for refined. Kegs were held at 12½c. ₱ lb.

DRY SALT MEAT.—The stock of shoulders is small, and sides are scarce. Dealers are retailing shoulders at 8½c. ₱ lb., and sides at 10c., for clear rib, and 10½c. for clear sides.

BREAKFAST BACON.—The market is barrel Western. It is in demand, and commands as received 15@15½c. ₱ lb. On Tuesday 75 boxes Western sold at 15@15½c. ₱ lb. Northern is dull at 11c. ₱ lb.

CORN MEAL—Is in good supply and dull. There were sales on Saturday and Monday of 700 bbls., in several lots, at $2.60@$2 80 ₱ bbl. It is retailing at $2.85@$3 ₱ bbl. On Tuesday 350 bbls. sold at $2.70@$2.75 ₱ bbl.

BEEF.—There is a fair supply of Texas, with a small stock of Western and Northern. We quote Texas mess at $11@$12. extra mess $12.50 ₱ bbl., and $7@$7.50 for half bbls. Tierces are quoted at $17@$17.50 for mess, and $18@$18 50 for prime mess. Western $14@$15 in bbls., and Northern $15.50 @$17.50 for bbls., and $9 for half bbls.

MONETARY.

Gold opened on Tuesday at 113@ 113¼ (against 113⅛ at New York,) and closed at the opening rates in both markets.

Nothing has been reported in silver. American half dollars are now quoted at 108@109, and Mexican dollars at 3½(a)4½ ₱ cent. premium in gold.

New Orleans Wholesale Prices.

REVISED AND CORRECTED WEEKLY.

Made up from Actual Sales by the Tradesmen.

ARTICLES.	FROM	TO
Agricultural Implements:
Cotton scrapers	4 50	6 00
Cotton sweeps	4 50	6 00
Cultivators, Diam. & shovel-tooth	7 75	10 50
Cultivators, riding	45 00	60 00
Cultivators, walking	30 00	35 00
Shovels	7 50	14 50
Spades	7 50	10 50
Axes	10 00	15 00
Potato diggers	13 50	— —
Shovel plows	6 00	7 00
Half do., with cutters	8 00	0 00
Manly's D. S plow	6 00	9 75
Corn mills, Coleman's	120 00	425 00
Bread, ₱ 100 lbs:
Pilot	5 00	6 00
Loaf	— —	— —
Crackers	5 00	12 00
Navy	— —	4 00
Cream crackers	11 00	12 00
Bricks, ₱ M:
Lake	13 00	16 00
English fire	— —	50 00
American fire	40 00	— —
Candles, ₱ lb:
Sperm, New Bedford	33	36
Tallow	16	18
Chocolate, ₱ lb:
Cocoa	38	60
No. 1	50	52
Sweet and spiced	25	— —
Cider, ₱ bbl:
Western	— —	— —
Coal, ₱ ton:
Anthracite	12 00	13 00
Western, ₱ bbl	— —	55
Corks, ₱ 1000:
Regular	— —	— —
Pointed	— —	— —
Coffee, ₱ lb:
Havana (curreacy)	25	28
Java	25	27
Cordova	— —	— —
Copper, ₱ lb:
Brazlers'	48	— —
Copper bolts	48	— —
Yellow metal	30	32
Cordage, ₱ lb:
Manilla	19	20
Tarred, American	— —	16
Russian	16	— —
Cotton seed:
Rough, ₱ ton	— —	13 00
In sacks	17 00	17 50
Dyes, ₱ lb:
Logwood, Camp'y	4	4½
Logwood, St. Domingo	4½	4½
Fustic, Tampico	5	6
Indigo, ₱ lb	1 40	1 60
Madder	15	18
Eggs, ₱ dozen:
Western	14	16
Feathers, ₱ lb	65	— —
Fish, ₱ box:
Cod	1 40	— —
Herrings	35	— —
Mackerel, No. 1, ₱ bbl	13 00	— —
Mackerel, No. 2	10 50	— —
Mackerel, No. 3	8 00	— —
Flaxseed, ₱ lb	6	— —
Flour, ₱ bbl:
Double extra	6 40	— —
Superfine	5 00	5 25
Fine	4 25	4 50
Fruit, ₱ lb:
Prunes	10½	13
Currants, new	9	10
Almonds, soft shell	16½	18
Almonds, shelled	28	30
Glass, ₱ box of 50 feet:
French, 8 by 10	3 50	4 00
French, 10 by 12	3 75	4 25
French, 12 by 18	4 00	4 50
Gunny bags, ₱ bag	18	— —
Hay, ₱ ton:
Prime	27 00	28 00
Choice	— —	29 00
Iron, ₱ ton:
Pig	54 00	55 00
Country bar, ₱ lb	— —	— —
English	5½	7½
Swedes, assorted	6½	8½
Hoop	6½	8
Sheet	7½	8½
Boiler	8	9½
Nail rods	— —	9
Castings, American	5½	6
Lead, ₱ 100 lbs:
Pig	— —	9 50
Bar, ₱ lb	8½	8½
Sheet	12	— —
Pipe	12	— —
Leather, ₱ lb:
Sole, hemlock	33	34
Sole, oak	37	43
Harness	33	45
Calf skins, ₱ dozen	42 00	70 00
Texas, rough, ₱ lb	24	28
Lime, ₱ bbl:
Western	1 25	1 50
Cement	2 10	3 00
Plaster Paris	4 00	— —
Lumber, ₱ M feet:
Boards, yellow pine	15 00	15 00
Boards, cypress	25 00	30 00
Flooring, dressed	25 00	30 00
Flooring, rough	15 00	18 00
Ceiling, dressed	20 00	25 00
Weatherboards, dressed	19 00	20 00
Weatherboards, rough	13 00	15 00
Scantling	13 00	15 00
Shingles, ₱ M	3 50	4 25
Laths	2 50	3 00
Moss, ₱ lb:
Country picked	4½	6
Clean picked	6½	7
Nails, ₱ Keg:
American, 4@6d	5 60	5 75
Wrought, German, ₱ lb	14	16
Wrought, English	14	16
Oils:
Lard, ₱ gallon	— —	70
Coal oil, in barrels	26	28
Coal oil, in cases	32	35
Linseed, raw	90	92
Sperm	— —	2 00
Whale, refined	95	1 00
Cotton seed, crude	— —	46
Cotton seed, refined	60	65
Castor	1 65	1 85
Olive, 24@24 oz	6 00	6 50
Olive, 11@12 oz	7 25	— —
Tanner's, ₱ gallon	75	85
Soap, ₱ lb:
Western	5½	7
Northern	5½	7
Southern	4½	5½
Castile, genuine	12	— —
Castile, imitation	11	— —
Sardines:
Half boxes	34	35½
Quarter boxes	21½	22½
Spices, ₱ lb:
Cassia	36	38
Cloves	19	20
Nutmegs	1 20	1 25
Pepper	21	21½
Pimento	12	12½
Sugar, ₱ lb:
Havana, white	13	— —
Havana, yellow	10½	11½
Havana, brown	10	11
Crushed	13	13½
Pulverized	13½	13½
Teas, ₱ lb:
Imperial	45	1 10
Gunpowder	75	1 50
Hyson	75	1 25
Young Hyson	75	1 10
Oolong	45	1 10
Pekoe	30	50
Tin, ₱ box:
Block	— —	— —
In plates, I. X	19 00	19 25
In plates, I. C	16 50	16 75
Leaded plates, I. X	17 25	17 50
Leaded plates, I. C	15 00	15 25

CATTLE MARKET.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 3, 1872.

Texas beeves, choice, ₱ head	—	@	50 00
Texas beeves, 1st qual, ₱ head	35 00	@	45 00
Texas cattle, 2d qual, ₱ head	20 00	@	28 00
Texas cattle, 3d qual, ₱ head	12 00	@	15 00
Western beeves, ₱ lb. net	— —	@	— —
Hogs, ₱ lb. gross	6	@	7½
Sheep, first quality, ₱ head	5 00	@	6 00
Sheep, second qual., ₱ head	3 00	@	4 00
Sheep, third quality, ₱ head	2 00	@	2 50
Milch cows, choice, ₱ head	80 00	@	100 00
Milch cows, ₱ head	50 00	@	80 00
Texas cows, with calves	— —	@	— —
Calves, ₱ head	7 00	@	10 00
Yearlings, ₱ head	5 00	@	12 00

Special Notices.

Camp Meeting.—Change of Time.

There will be a Camp Meeting on the Paulding circuit, Meridian district, Mississippi Conference, twelve miles west of Enterprise, near the Enterprise and Miami Rose road, commencing on Thursday before and embracing the third Sabbath in October. The meeting will be conducted on the primitive style. Provision will be made for all ministers and persons living at a distance. Persons living within fifteen or twenty miles of the camp ground must not expect accommodations from the citizens or tent-holders. All ministers are respectfully invited and urged to attend. There will be conveyance for ministers at Enterprise on Thursday morning. J. H. HOLLAND, P. C.

Camp Meeting.

There will be a camp meeting at Old Salem camp ground, East Pascagoula circuit, Mississippi Conference, commencing on Thursday before the second Sabbath in October. The tenters propose furnishing visitors. However, there will be a public table for the benefit of those who prefer furnishing themselves. Charges moderate. Preachers are invited. C. F. GILLASPIE, P. E.
U. B. PHILIPS, P. C.

Camp Meeting.

There will be a camp meeting at the New Hope and Pleasant Ridge camp ground, on the DeKalb circuit, beginning on the Friday night before the first Sabbath in October. Ministers are most cordially invited to attend. Those coming by railroad will be met on Friday morning, at Lauderdale station, with vehicles to convey them to the camp ground. D. G. W. ELLIS, P. C.

Camp Meeting.

We have appointed our camp meeting at Gilead, eight miles east of Clinton, Louisiana, to commence on Thursday night before the second Sunday in October. Ministers and friends of camp meetings are invited from a distance, and will be accommodated on the grounds free.

WILL. H. LEITH, Pastor.

Camp Meeting.

There will be a camp meeting at Sardis church, Greene county, Alabama, fifteen miles west of Eutaw, Alabama, on the Warsaw road, near the Big Bear river, commencing on Thursday night before the first Sabbath in October, 1872. Preachers are respectfully invited. J. W. MCCANN.

Camp Meeting.

There will be a camp meeting, twelve miles east of Pleasant Hill, Natchitoches parish—known as Beulah camp ground—commencing on the eleventh of October, instead of the eleventh of September. R. PARVIN.

Camp Meeting.

There will be a camp meeting at Hill's chapel, commencing on Friday before the fourth Sabbath in September, and continuing until the following Wednesday. Hill's chapel is in Montgomery county, Alabama, twenty-eight miles southeast of the city of Montgomery, seven miles east of Athens, five miles southwest of Pine Level, and twenty miles northwest of Troy. It is designed to make this camp ground self-supporting, and therefore, while everybody is invited, we request that all who can will come in their wagons, prepared to care for themselves. A public lot will be adjacent to the camp ground. Preachers, travelling and local, are invited.

WILLIAM A. SAMPEY, Pastor.

Camp Meeting.

There will be a camp meeting held at Indian Village, Castor circuit, Louisiana Conference, to commence on Wednesday before the first Sabbath in October, on the self-sustaining plan. Persons living at a distance, and desiring to tent, can have a tent built to order by addressing Rev. J. B. Landers, Forksville, Louisiana. A general invitation to ministers is here by given.

J. W HEARN, P. C.

Debate.

Rev. D. M. Hudson, of the Alabama Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and Elder J. M. Pickens, of the Christian Church, will discuss the Subjects, Design and Mode of Christian Baptism, and probably also the question of Denominational Names and Written Creeds, in the Baptist church at Pineapple, Wilcox county, Alabama, at the southern terminus of the Selma and Gulf railroad. The debate will commence on Tuesday, September 24, 1872, at ten o'clock A. M., and continue six or eight or ten days.

Camp Meeting.

A camp meeting will be held on Clear creek, Rapides parish, twelve miles north of Alexandria, on the old telegraph road to Harrisonburg, beginning on Thursday, September 19, 1872. The Alexandria District Conference will be held at the same time. All ministers, and members of the Quarterly Conferences and all friends are earnestly requested to attend and assist in the meeting.

JOHN F. WINN, P. C.
FRED. WHITE, P. E.

Camp Meeting.

A camp meeting will be held on Sprigg creek, thirty miles southwest of Alexandria, near Barr's ferry, on the road from mouth of Red river to the Sabine, and on the Opelousas and Natchitoches road, beginning on Friday, October 11. All ministers and all friends are earnestly requested to give us their attendance and assistance.

FRED. WHITE,
S. H COOPER,
C. KEENER,

Camp Meeting.

There will be a camp meeting on the Gaston circuit, Demopolis district, Alabama Conference, three miles west of DeSotoville, in the northern portion of Choctaw county, Alabama, commencing on Friday before the first Sabbath in October. Provision will be made for all visitors. Ministers of the gospel are cordially invited.

U. B. HEBOSE, P. C.

Camp Meeting.

There will be a camp meeting at Providence church, five miles east of Spanish Lake, Louisiana, commencing on Friday evening, September 13, 1872. The people are requested and invited to come in their wagons, provided to take care of themselves. The brethren and friends will please meet me at the place appointed, to select the place for their tents and prepare the ground, on the third day of September. Ministerial brethren are especially invited.

PHILIP ALLEN, P. C.

Shreveport District Conference.

The several brethren are requested to preach on the following subjects at our District Conference, to be held at Keachie, Louisiana, commencing on Thursday, September 26, viz.:

1. On the Obligation to Support the Ministry—Rev. C. B. Stuart.
2. On the Obligation and Manner of Keeping Holy the Sabbath Day—Rev. John Wilkinson.
3. On the Importance and Design of Infant Baptism—Rev. C. W. Carter.
4. On Missions—Rev. A. W. Williams.
5. On the Utility of Camp Meetings—Rev. R. Parvin.
6. On Faith or Trust in God—Rev. H. L. Smith.
7. On Experimental Religion.—Rev. J. M. Franklin.
8. On Christ a Present Savior—Rev. W. D. Stayton. JOHN PIPES, P. E.

Appointments for Quarterly Meetings.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

BROOKHAVEN DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Providence circuit, at Providence	Sept. 21, 22
Brandywine circuit	28, 29
Scotland circuit, at Caseyville	Oct. 5, 6
Pleasant Valley ct., at Rehoboth	12, 13
Burlington circuit, at Pisgah	19, 20
Beauregard	26, 27
Georgetown ct., at Pleas't Grove	Nov. 2, 3
Jackson circuit, at Spring Ridge	9, 10
Crystal Springs and Crystal Springs mission	16, 17
Bogue Chitto circuit, at Johnson's Station	23, 24
Brookhaven station and Brookhaven mission	30
Hazlehurst station	Dec. 7, 8

Secretaries of the respective Boards of Stewards will prepare a financial statement for the use of the Joint Board, as required by the Discipline. Trustees will report the condition and character of titles of all property they hold for the church.

W. E. M. LINFIELD, P. E.

BRANDON DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Brandon station	Sept. 28, 29
Hillsboro circuit	Oct. 5, 6
Philadelphia circuit	12, 13
Decatur mission	19, 20
Lake circuit	26, 27
Preston circuit	Nov. 2, 3
Raleigh and Morton circuit	9, 10
Forest circuit	16, 17
Taylorville mission	23, 24
Garlandsville circuit	30, Dec. 1
Brandon circuit	Dec. 7, 8

F. M. WILLIAMS, P. E.

SUMMIT DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Summit and Magnolia, at Bethany	Sept. 21, 22
District Conference, at Tangipahoa, Louisiana	27, 28, 29
Sacramental meeting, at Port Vincent	Oct. 12, 13
Holmesville circuit, at Holmesville	19, 20
Covington circuit, at Spring Hill	26, 27
Amite City circuit, at Amite City	Nov. 2, 3
Franklinton circuit, at Warren's	9, 10
Big Creek miss., at Shilling church	16, 17
St. Helena ct., at Center church	23, 24
Pontchatoula mission, at Joyner's church	30, Dec. 1
Greensburg ct., at Pipkin chapel	Dec. 7, 8

J. NICHOLSON, P. E.

SEASHORE DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Pearlington, at Jordan river	Sept. 7, 8
Ocean Springs, at Biloxi	14, 15
White Plains, at Poplar Head	21, 22
W. Pascagoula, at Mulberry Grove	28, 29
Green mission	Oct. 5, 6
East Pascagoula, at Salem camp ground	12, 13
Enon, at Enon	19, 20
Rankin	Nov. 30, Dec. 1

C. F. GILLASPIE, P. E.

MERIDIAN DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Spring Hill ct., at Linwood (camp meeting)	Sept. 21, 22
Shubuta, at Shubuta	28, 29
DeKalb ct., at New Hope (camp meeting)	Oct. 5, 6
Wayne circuit, at Frost's Bridge (camp meeting)	12, 13
Paulding circuit	19, 20
Enterprise station	26, 27
Clarke circuit	Nov. 2, 3
Enterprise ct., at Pleasant Valley	9, 10
Marion circuit	16, 17
Meridian station	30, Dec. 1

WM. B. HINES, P. E.

WOODVILLE DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Woodville	Oct. 5, 6
East Feliciana	12, 13
Clinton	19, 20
Buffalo	26, 27
Bayou Sara	Nov. 2, 3
Wilkinson	9, 10
Meadville	16, 17
Amite	23, 24
East Baton Rouge	30, Dec. 1
Jackson	Dec. 8, 9

For four long weeks I have been confined to the room of my afflicted wife, so that I have missed three of my appointments; but my dear brother, President Andrews, has and will supply my lack of service.

J. L FORSYTH, P. E.

JACKSON DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Jackson station	Sept. 14, 15
Canton station	21, 22
Madison ct., at Madison station	28, 29
Sharon circuit, at Sharon	Oct. 5, 6
Yazoo circuit, at Locust Grove	12, 13
Yazoo City and Silver Creek, at Yazoo City	19, 20
Mount Olivet circuit and Yazoo mission, at Mount Olivet	26, 27
Carthage circuit	Nov. 2, 3
Sulphur Springs circuit	9, 10
Raymond circuit, at Raymond	16, 17
Brownsville ct., at Queen's Hill	23, 24
Camden and Thomastown circuits	30, Dec. 1

The secretaries of Church Conferences will please present the report of statistics, as required by the Discipline, pages 55 and 56. The trustees of our church property will please make their report, as required by the Discipline, pages 55 and 102.

H. H. MONTGOMERY, P. E.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

OPELOUSAS DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Pattersonville	Sept. 14, 15
Opelousas	21, 22
Grand Chenier	28, 29
Lake Charles	Oct. 5, 6
Calcasieu	12, 13
Sugartown	19, 20
Bayou Boeuf	26, 27
Kimball chapel	Nov. 2, 3
Vermillionville	9, 10
Abbeville	16, 17
New Iberia	23, 24

B. F. WHITE, P. E.
Postoffice—Opelousas, La.

SHREVEPORT DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Pleasant Hill circuit, at Bethel	Sept. 7, 8
Springville circuit, at Coushatta Academy	21, 22
Many circuit, at Bayou Lee	Oct. 5, 6
Anacoco circuit, at Natchitoches	12, 13
Shreveport	19, 20

The District Conference will be held at Keachie, commencing on Thursday, September 26, at ten A. M. The Bethel camp meeting will commence on the sixth of September, and the Beulah camp meeting will commence September 11.

JOHN PIPES, P. E.

LAKE PROVIDENCE DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Oak Grove, at Oak Grove	Sept. 7, 8
Lind Grove, at Lind Grove	14, 15
Sicily Island, at Ratliff Prairie	22, 23
Wimsboro, at Oakley	28, 29
Rayville, at Little Creek	Oct. 6, 7

J. T. HAYES, P. E.

ALABAMA CONFERENCE.

SELMA DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

East Selma station	Sept. 21, 22
Uniontown station	28, 29
Selma station	Oct. 5, 6
Rembert Hills circuit, at Shiloh	12, 13
Pearlstree ct., at Mount Andrew	19, 20
Summerfield station	26, 27
Choctaw Corner circuit, at Bashi	Nov. 2, 3
Dayton and Spring Hill circuit, at Dayton	9, 10
Linden and Flatwoods mission
Orrville circuit, at Center chapel	16, 17
Jackson circuit, at Grove Hill	23, 24
Suggsville circuit, at Gainstown	30, Dec. 1

We hope for a full attendance, and complete reports, as required by the Discipline. Those who have subscribed to the district parsonage will please bring or send up their contributions to the quarterly meetings.

A. J. BROWN, P. E.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

YAZOO DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

French Camps circuit, at Liberty	Sept. 14, 15
Richland circuit, at Goodman	21, 22
Valden circuit, at Enon	28, 29
Attala circuit, at Pleasant Hill	Oct. 5, 6
Winona circuit, at Bethesda	12, 13
Greenwood and McNutt, at Greenwood	19, 20
Lexington	26, 27
Durant, at West's station	Nov. 2, 3
Kosciusko and Bethel, at Kosciusko	9, 10
Black Hawk, at Sweetwater	16, 17

W. P HARTON, P. E.

N. B.—Camp meetings at Liberty and Durant quarterly meetings.

DRY GOODS—CLOTHING.

D. H. HOLMES,

155 ..... CANAL STREET 155

—AND—

15 ..... BOURBON STREET 15

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALER

—IN—

ALL DESCRIPTIONS

—OF—

DRY GOODS,

—SUCH AS—

SILKS, TISSUES, EMBROIDERIES,
LACES, SHAWLS, CLOAKS, MADE SUITS, ETC.

The attention of the public is respectfully called to our stock, which will be found most complete, embracing every kind of Fancy and Staple Goods.

up25 6m

W. H. PIERSON. E. L. HEWS.

PIERSON & HEWS,

DEALERS IN

Fine Clothing & Furnishing Goods,

NOS. 13 AND 15 CAMP STREET,

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

feb15 1y

MISCELLANEOUS.

LOOK TO YOUR CHILDREN.

The Great Soothing Remedy!

MRS. WHITCOMB'S SIRUP. Cures Colic and Griping in the Bowels, and facilitates the process of Teething. PRICE, 25 CENTS.

Subdues Convulsions and overcomes all diseases incident to Infants and Children.

MRS. WHITCOMB'S SIRUP. Cures Diarrhea, Dysentery and Summer Complaint in Children of all ages. PRICE, 25 CENTS.

Relieves pain, weakness or exhaustion in 15 or 20 minutes, giving tone and power to the system.

It is the Infants' and Children's great Soothing Remedy in all disorders brought on by teething or any other cause.

Be particular to call for MRS. WHITCOMB'S SIRUP, and take no other

Prepared by the BRIGHTON MEDICINE CO., St. Louis, Mo. Sold by druggists and dealers in medicine everywhere. Jy25 1yeow

BUY ME AND I'LL DO YOU GOOD

DR. HENRY'S ROOT & PLANT PILLS.

By cleansing the blood and arousing the liver and secretive organs to a healthy action, Dr. Henry's Root and Plant Pills cure many complaints which it would not be supposed they could reach, such as Headache, Pain in the Side, Numbness of the Hands and Feet, Dullness, Chilliness, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Loss of Appetite, Bilious Dysentery, Kidney Affections, Constipation, Debility, Fevers of all kinds, Dyspepsia, Jaundice, and other kindred complaints arising from a low state of the body, or obstruction of its functions.

Being free from mercury and other poisons, they can be taken at all times and under all circumstances, without regard to diet, business or pleasure.

They stimulate the weakened and distempered parts into healthy action, giving them strength to disburden themselves and throw off the obstructions which are the first cause of disease, without producing either nausea or griping.

All heavy and drowsy sensations, which are the forerunners of direful diseases, such as Apoplexy, Paralytic Strokes, etc., are effectually warded off by a few doses of these searching Pills.

Full directions around each box, in English, German, French and Spanish. Price, 25 Cents a box.

Prepared by the GRIFFIN MEDICINE CO., St. Louis, Mo. Sold by druggists and dealers in medicine everywhere. Jy25 1yeow

AGENTS WANTED FOR

SECRETS OF THE CONVENT AND CONFESSIONAL.

BY JULIA MCNAIR WRIGHT.

The most thrilling and powerful book ever written on this subject. It presents a startling array of facts, and contains revelations never before made public.

Send for circulars and terms to
NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO.,
274 and 276 Second street,
au4 6m Memphis, Tenn.

BREWER & HILTON,
MANUFACTURERS OF
Thomas Worsley's Celebrated Fancy, Shaving and Toilet Soaps,
Also J. D. SMITH & CO.'S world-renowned Pearl Powders, Lily Whites, Rouges, etc.,
NO. 114 ARCH STREET, PHILADELPHIA.
All goods warranted. au18 3m

A GRADUATE OF SOME EXPERIENCE, who can teach all the branches usually taught in Female Colleges, desires a situation. Prefers a select school in some village or good neighborhood. For information address REV. S. P. RICHARDSON, je6 3m Summerfield, Alabama.

STEAMSHIPS.

New Liverpool Line of Steamers,

Built expressly for the New Orleans trade, to cross the Bar at all times without detention.

Liverpool and Mississippi Steamship Company.

First-class Powerful Screw Steamers,

ST. LOUIS, Capt. Roberts	1,827 tons.
MEMPHIS, Capt. Weeks	2,500 "
MISSISSIPPI, Capt. Lebouche	2,500 "
VICKSBURG, Capt. Pierson	2,500 "
BELGIAN, — —	2,150 "
TEXAS, — —	2,500 "
MISSOURI, (building)	2,500 "

Are intended to sail from Liverpool as follows:

Steamship ST. LOUIS, August 10, 1872.
Steamship BELGIAN, August 31, 1872.

FOR LIVERPOOL DIRECT—
The steamship
ST. LOUIS,
Roberts, commander,
Sails SEPTEMBER —, 1872, at 8 A. M. from her wharf, foot of St. Mary street, Fourth District. Will receive and sign through bills of lading to Havre, Bremen, Hamburg, Antwerp, Rotterdam and all Continental ports.

Parties desirous of sending for their friends can purchase prepaid emigration tickets here. A reduction allowed when applied for in groups.

For freight or passage, having superior accommodations, apply to MEEKER, KNOX & CO.,
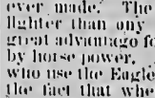
49 Carondelet street.

Managing owners—FLINN, MAIN & MONTGOMERY, 12 Launcelot Hay, Chapel street, Liverpool. an15 3m

FOR NEW YORK.

The Cromwell New York and New Orleans Steamship Line.



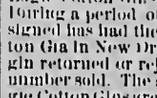
Steamers of this Line leave New Orleans for New York EVERY SATURDAY at 5 P. M.

Cabin passage $50 00
Steerage passage 25 00

Through bills of lading to foreign and coastwise ports issued.

ALFRED MOULTON,
mh21 1y 41 Carondelet street.

FOR NEW YORK.



MERCHANTS' STEAMSHIP LINE.

Sailing from New York and New Orleans EVERY SATURDAY.

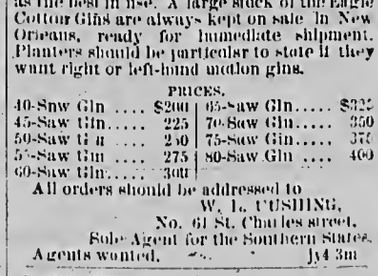
Cabin passage $50 00
Steerage passage 25 00

Through tickets to Liverpool and the Continent.

New Orleans wharf, foot of Jefferson street.
New York wharf, Pier No 4, North river.
JOHN H. LUDWIGSEN, Agent.
feb8 1y No. 190 Common street.

MISCELLANEOUS.

IMPROVED



EAGLE COTTON GINS.

THE GREAT POPULARITY of the EAGLE COTTON GINS is established from the well known fact that they are the most reliable, strongest and best built Cotton Gin ever made. The Eagle Cotton Gin is lighter than any other gin, thus having a great advantage for planters who wish to run by horse power. All the numerous planters who use the Eagle Cotton Gin will certify to the fact that when their cotton is sent to market it always brings the highest market price, as no other gin can produce a finer or a better sample of cotton than the Eagle Cotton Gins. Over seventeen thousand of the Eagle Cotton Gins have been made and sold. During a period of twenty years the undersigned has had the agency of the Eagle Cotton Gin in New Orleans. He has never had a gin returned or rejected out of the immense number sold. The saw cylinders of all the Eagle Cotton Gins are twelve inches in diameter, which is two inches larger than most other kinds of gins, thus giving our forty-saw gin more teeth, and they are more than equal to the fifty-saw gins of other makers, who use only a ten-inch cylinder, and the same great advantage of the twelve inch cylinder in larger sized gins can be easily estimated. Planters who wish a reliable cotton gin, with an established reputation, can purchase an Eagle Cotton Gin with a certainty that they are not making an untried experiment, but will obtain a cotton gin which is indorsed by the oldest and largest planters in the country as the best in use. A large stock of the Eagle Cotton Gins are always kept on sale in New Orleans, ready for immediate shipment. Planters should be particular to state if they want right or left-hand motion gins.

	PRICES.
40-Saw Gin	$200	65-Saw Gin	$325
45-Saw Gin	225	70-Saw Gin	350
50-Saw Gin	250	75-Saw Gin	375
55-Saw Gin	275	80-Saw Gin	400
60-Saw Gin	300

All orders should be addressed to W.

The Christian Advocate.

PUBLISHED BY ROBT. J. HARP, FOR THE ALABAMA, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES, METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH SOUTH.

VOL. XVIII. NEW ORLEANS, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 1872. NO. 37.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

DOMESTIC.

Little Rock, Sept. 7.—Governor Hadley has issued an order declaring that the enforcement of civil and criminal laws is obstructed to such an extent in Pope county as to make it dangerous, if not impossible, for the sheriff to enforce the laws. Major General Upham, of the State militia, is directed to proceed to Pope county with such aid as he may deem necessary to enforce the laws. The expense of subsisting the militia called out is to be assessed against Pope county. Parties from that county report that General Upham has about one hundred and fifty men under his control. The main body of this force was encamped last night six miles south of Russellville, under command of Sheriff Dodson. All the people are reported peaceable, and Painter, who killed the county clerk on Saturday, is in the hands of the civil authorities.

Memphis, Sept. 8.—The most destructive fire which has occurred here in ten years broke out this morning, at half-past two o'clock, at Shemaker's shop, No. 42 Second street. The total loss will not fall short of $210,000, about one-half of which is covered by insurance, nearly all in local companies, of which the Hernando and Merchants' are the heaviest losers.

Galveston, Sept. 9.—The International railroad is completed to Neches, ten miles above Palestine, or one hundred and five miles from Hearne. The first train ran through to-day.

Portland, Me., Sept. 10, 1.30 A. M. Two hundred and ten towns and cities give Perham 48,387, Kimball 36,328—a Republican majority of 12,059. Last year the same towns gave Perham 39,498, Kimball 31,545—a Republican net gain from 1871 of 3,657.

Augusta, Sept. 10, 2 A. M.—The five congressional districts were all carried by the Republicans.

FOREIGN.

Nagasaki, Japan, Aug. 31.—The Pacific mail steamship America arrived here on the morning of the twenty-fourth. At eleven o'clock the same night the freight deck took fire, and immediately the steamship was enveloped in flames, defying all efforts to extinguish them. The vessel burned all night and was totally destroyed, together with the Hong Kong mails, freight, and passengers' and officers' luggage.

Liverpool, Sept. 3.—The number of emigrants from this port for America during the month of August was nineteen thousand.

London, Sept. 4.—A dispatch from Melbourne reports that the entire crew of the ship Lavinea were massacred recently by South Sea Islanders.

Pere Hyacinthe was married to one of his Paris converts.

The lady to whom Pere Hyacinthe was married is the widow of Edward Ruthven Merriman.

Berlin, Sept. 5.—On the arrival of the Czar at the Russian legation he was visited there by the Empress Augusta and the Princess Victoria, the wife of the Crown Prince of Prussia.

Later in the day the Czar proceeded to the imperial palace, where he was received and entertained by the Emperor William and his court.

After making quite a long visit the Czar returned to the Russian embassy.

The Emperor of Austria meets with a most enthusiastic reception from the people in his progress through Germany. He arrived at Dresden to-day, and is the guest of the King of Saxony.

The entire party will leave Dresden at two P. M. to-morrow for Berlin, and will enter that city in the evening.

It is again denied that the meeting of the Emperors will be in any way of a political character.

London, Sept. 5.—The steamship Minnesota, which sailed from Liverpool for New York yesterday, took out six hundred Mormon emigrants for Utah. A majority of them were Scandinavians.

Dublin, Sept. 5.—Many of the Jesuits expelled from Germany will come to Ireland, where they are promised a hearty welcome.

Berlin, Sept. 6.—Bismarck had a long interview with the Emperor Alexander yesterday. Gortschakoff was present. The Czar attended the opera last night with the Emperor William and all the members of the royal family. This morning he drove alone in their garden, and on he return to the Russian embassy received Generals Moltke and Wrangel, and other distinguished officers. During the day the Czar again visited the Emperor William, and also called on the Crown Prince and other members of the royal family. The Emperor of Austria arrived this evening from Dresden, and was received at the railway station by the Emperor William with precisely the same ceremonies and attentions which were accorded to the Czar. As the two German Emperors rode side by side through the streets the cheering was incessant, and the popular enthusiasm was even greater than that displayed yesterday.

London, Sept. 7.—Advices show that the striking mania is pervading all England. The chairmakers of Wycombe, the coal men of Lowertopt, the silk weavers of Sudbury, the stone-masons of Preston, the bakers of Dublin, the engineers of Birkenhead, the China and earthenware manufacturers of Staffordshire are all on a strike.

Berlin, Sept. 7.—To-day, after the review, Bismarck had a long private interview with the Czar. He was afterward closeted two hours with Gortschakoff.

Naples, Sept. 8.—Two craters of Vesuvius are still smoking, and slight shocks are felt at the foot of the mountain.

Geneva, Sept. 9.—It is rumored that the Board of Arbitration has awarded the United States three and a half millions sterling.

Having had its run in Great Britain and Europe, the question about the genuineness of the Livingstone letters and trustworthiness of Mr. Stanley has crossed the ocean, and some in a fair way to receive its quietus at American hands. The New York Sun discovered a former companion of Stanley's, and this person wrote a letter denouncing the latter as a villain of deepest dye. With this letter there were published fac similes of Livingstone's letter to Mr. Bennett, and of letters written in former years by Stanley, the design being to prove that Stanley had forged the Livingstone letters, and had in all probability manufactured the story of the interview in central Africa. Upon this Mr. William F. Stearns, a son of President Stearns, of Amherst, comes forward and gives in his testimony, which, it must be admitted, seems to settle the authenticity of the letters, which indeed was already settled to the satisfaction of all who are not constitutionally incredulous. Mr. Stearns produces evidence of his personal intimacy with Dr. Livingstone, shows letters which he has received from him, and finally identifies Stanley's portrait of the great explorer, down to the "navy cap with a faded gold band," which he describes as having been worn by the doctor at Ujiji.

Close on the heels of the Metis tragedy comes the news of the burning at sea of the Pacific mail steamship Bienville. The fire was discovered on the morning of August 15. After a few hours of unsuccessful effort to subdue it the ship's company took to the boats, fearing the explosion of a quantity of powder on board, which actually took place after all had left. Great discipline and coolness prevailed; the one fatal defect was that the steam pumps would not work. All on board were got off in the six boats, Captain Maury being the last man to leave the ship. One boat capsized, and before it was righted seven or ten of the inmates were drowned. Another boat parted company from the rest, and has not yet been heard from. The remaining five reached Eleuthera Island, one hundred and fifty miles distant; but one was upset in landing, and nine persons drowned. The others reached Nassau in safety. It is supposed that about thirty-six persons were in the missing boat, and, as the weather was calm and the disaster occurred in a much-traveled part of the ocean, there are great hopes that these will be saved.

Germany has set an example which other nations seem inclined to follow. The English government has already declared it to be a matter for serious consideration whether an old law against the Jesuits should not be revived and enforced, and it is now reported that the Italian government has agreed to a bill for suppressing the Jesuits in that country. The only question is whether all religious orders shall not be suppressed.

At the Convention held in Louisville, last week, by the straight-out Democrats, Charles O'Conor, of New York, was nominated for President, and John Q. Adams, of Massachusetts, for Vice President.

FROM THE WORK.

Caddo Circuit, Louisiana Conference.

Mr. Editor: The Lord is wonderfully blessing our labors in the bounds of this charge.

Our highly-esteemed presiding elder, Rev. John Pipes, held our third Quarterly Conference on Saturday, the seventeenth instant, and remained with us at Friendship church three days, preaching, exhorting and praying as no one but a man "full of faith and the Holy Ghost" could do. On Monday Rev. John Wilkinson, of Shreveport, and Rev. R. H. Adair, of Keachie, came to our assistance, and remained several days, each working in the spirit of true evangelists. The church was much revived, and eighteen persons joined the church.

On Saturday, the twenty-fourth instant, we began a meeting at Pleasant Hill, near Mooringsport, which continued five days, during which time the Holy Ghost was poured out upon the people, greatly reviving the membership and subduing sinners. Quite a number of penitents lingered at the altar till the meeting closed. Could we have had ministerial help we believe grand results would have followed. My own physical strength having failed, we were forced to close. So soon as I can recuperate I hope to have the pleasure of making other reports. While unable to preach, we earnestly pray for our glorious Zion. Your brother in Christ,

Amicus W. Williams.

Greenwood, La., Aug. 31, 1872.

Montgomery District, Alabama Conference.

Mr. Editor: Upon my arrival at Tallassee I found the church quite cold and languid, and the attendance upon divine services very small. This state of affairs continued for some months; but during the spring there were evident signs of an awakening, both in the church and among sinners, and in May we held a series of meetings which continued about a week, during which time we had efficient help from our good brethren, McCarty, Richardson and Dowdell, and it was truly a season of refreshing from the presence of the Lord, the church being revived and strengthened, and sinners converted and added to the church.

Again, during the week appointed for prayer in August, we held services every night, continuing until Tuesday following, the glorious results of which were eleven conversions and thirteen additions to the church. Again we were assisted by our presiding elder and Bro. Rogers.

Upon the whole, the church here is on rising ground, there having been during the year twenty-two conversions and forty-seven additions to the church, with a more attentive and much larger attendance on the various services, which, under God's blessing, I hope, may still increase and prove still more beneficial to this people, and tend to the firmer establishment of the cause of Christ in the community.

We have a good Sabbath school and weekly prayer meetings.

Yours in Christ,

M. C. Turrentine.

Tallassee, Ala., Sept. 5, 1872.

St. Paul's Station, Mobile, Alabama.

Mr. Editor: We have just closed a meeting at the St. Paul's charge, Mobile, which began with the week of prayer. During that week the interest was such that it was thought best to continue another week, at the end of which the interest was still on the increase, so that the services were continued the third week. In the progress of this meeting the church was much strengthened, and many of the irreligious became deeply concerned about their souls. About fifteen persons professed faith in Christ, seven of whom have connected themselves with the church. Others are considering the matter, and will, we hope, cast in their lot with us.

A very remarkable conversion took place during this meeting. An old gentleman in his seventy-fourth year came forward, leaning upon his staff, and bowed at the altar for prayer. The church at once became deeply interested for him, and ceased not their prayers, day or night, till he was converted. On last Sabbath he was baptized and received into the church; immediately afterward he received the communion for the first time in his life. The efficient agent in this conversion was a daughter, who had been earnestly praying for the conversion of her father more than a year. The scenes of last Sabbath will not soon be forgotten by us. The presence of God was sensibly felt during the communion service; in which nearly the whole congregation participated, some of whom were members of the Baptist and Episcopal churches.

J. E. Foust.

Mobile, Ala., Sept. 3, 1872.

Pensacola Station, Alabama Conference.

Mr. Editor: The third Quarterly Conference for this charge was held by Bro. Urquhart, presiding elder, on Saturday and Sunday, August 24 and 25. On Sunday night Bro. Rush, of Franklin Street Church, Mobile, who happened to be at this place, occupied the pulpit. At the close of the sermon penitents were invited to the altar. Many responded, and as we knelt in prayer, and pointed them to the "Lamb of God which taketh away the sins of the world," our own soul felt it was "good to be there." There had been a decided spiritual improvement in the church for some time previous to the Quarterly Conference, and we thought at that meeting it would be well to protract. Eight persons have been converted, and two joined the church yesterday. Last night Bro. Ewing, local elder, and a member of my charge, preached an able, interesting and blessed sermon, which was carried by the Spirit to the hearts of many in the congregation, and the silent tear, the quivering lip, the heaving breast, bore testimony to the fact that the word had reached and touched some hearts which had long been strangers to such soft and sweet influences.

Blessed be God, the Lord is with us, the Spirit of the Lord is upon us, and the church is being greatly refreshed, as is proven by brethren praying and testifying for Jesus in the midst of the congregations which assemble from time to time at these meetings, who have never done such things before, though members of the church.

We shall continue this week. Pray for us, that what has already been done—and for which we give "praise and glory to God"—may be but a commencement of such a revival, the power of which may be felt not only in this place, but may extend far and wide in its convicting, converting and sanctifying influence. More anon. Yours in Christ,

T. C. M. Golland, Pastor.

Pensacola, Fla., Sept. 2, 1872.

Camden Dist.—Ministerial Education.

Mr. Editor: I arrived home yesterday evening from the Camden District Conference, which was altogether the best I ever attended. No doubt Bro. Butt, our secretary, and others will give you a full account. There is, however, one thing to which I would like to have the minds of our preachers and members directed. We organized a Ministerial Educational Society, with officers, board of managers, and a constitution and by-laws to govern the same, for the Camden district, Alabama Conference. It is intended to be a permanent institution for this district. The payment of $1 annually secures membership in this society. This enterprise started off well; all the members of the Conference and all present responded to the call of their names, paid their dollar and became members, with but few exceptions. We earnestly pray that the same cheerful liberality will be manifested throughout the district, and that with a membership of over two thousand, we will get at least one thousand who will be willing to pay their dollar annually, and become members of this society; so that we will have at least one thousand members and $1,000 to report by the meeting of the Annual Conference. $1,000, a permanent annual fund, will pay the expenses of five young men, looking forward to the ministry, either at Greensboro or Summerfield, with mess-board, and the entire expense of four. Now we ask, Where can we find a Methodist who, with a good conscience, can withhold his dollar and his name to help move forward this enterprise? We have only to anticipate the great good to the church and the world of five young men turned loose upon society every year—well educated, themselves consecrated to God, and that education sanctified by religion.

Brethren and sisters of the Methodist Church, by paying this small sum annually you will invest in the stock of the best bank ever chartered, and you and your children and children's children will receive dividends of a thousand per cent. for generations to come.

Let us have your name and dollar. You cannot plead poverty. We ask but one mite—one dollar. The poor widow gave two. If you have to make a sacrifice of some habit or pleasure, the good Lord will see to it that you are indemnified manyfold. It will all come back in some way. The Lord loveth a cheerful giver. All the preachers in charge of stations and circuits will readily serve you as agents of the society, and give a proper direction to all moneys paid to them.

Joseph M. Scott, P. C.

Bragg's, Ala., Aug. 30, 1872.

EDUCATIONAL REPORT.

Report of Committee on Education, District Conference, Montgomery District, Alabama Conference.

The success of our institutions of learning is sadly damaged by several causes. The first we name is "local and personal prejudice." It is painful to believe that so ugly a thing is allowed by a religious people to blind their vision and pervert their judgment; but we are satisfied that much support and sympathy are withdrawn from our own educational enterprises for no better reason than unfounded and unjust prejudice.

In the second place, we mention as a source of weakness and a cause of failure, "a want of proper exertion on the part of school officers and our preachers." Our schools and school facilities, in their claims and advantages equal to the best in the land, are not properly advertised and advocated by our personal efforts, so as to attract the attention of parents and patrons.

Another and serious difficulty is the failure of visiting committees, the preachers of the Conference, and the friends of education to attend the public exercises of our schools and colleges. Many and cogent reasons urge us to come up on such occasions, in thronging multitudes, and with such a glowing zeal as will kindle itself into moving enthusiasm.

The three points indicated appear to your committee to spring from another evil in the land—a parent evil of prolific nature—an evil pervading all ranks of society and all departments of the church: "Lack of devotedness to Methodism." Far be it from us to quench the fires of charity, or to set metes and bounds to gospel catholicity. But we would press, with all the force of sound logic, and animate with all the warmth of fervent entreaty, the Methodists of this district to cultivate a deeper, truer love for the church, and aspire to a more vital and unselfish consecration of everything to her prosperity and glory. Has the Methodist Church a work to do? Has she a place to fill in the earth? Is there any sacred trust committed to her keeping? Has her existence a meaning, and is she responsible for the recovery of souls from sin and death? Is her creed according to the gospel, and is her polity sanctioned and sealed by the great Head of the church? These inquiries startle us; and yet a glance shows that we need to consider them, and to have them peal through our borders as notes of warning loud as thunder. If we give adhesion to Methodist theology, let us be loyal to all the parts of its visible organism.

A few plain principles may help to get us over the obstacles that stand so ruinously in our pathway. The manifold and manifest advantages connected with the education of our children in sympathy with ourselves, and in association with those who are to be their companions and friends of life, are of too high a value to be thoughtlessly ignored or universally surrendered. Without elaboration, it is worth many times the cost of education to be educated under home influences and with home alliances.

Another consideration is, that any education other than Christian education would be a bootless gift; and Christian education can be and will be provided only by the church. To educate the children of her membership is a legitimate function of the church. No secular organization can meet the demand of God upon the church for the religious culture of the young, nor can the church transfer the responsibility.

We are thus led to a third position; and without dogmatizing would most pointedly submit that the relationship of the church to her educational institutions is one of closest character. It is a union sacred and indissoluble. In fact, the school is a part of the church. It is ordained of the church with a view to spiritual results.

The men and women who labor in this field are in the Lord's vineyard, and are under solemn obligation to keep an eye single to conversion and salvation. "Feed my lambs" is as distinct and authoritative as "feed my sheep." God, in his wisdom, has appointed "some pastors and some teachers." There are diversities of gifts, but the same spirit. Let the church send her godly Elishas to cast the saving salt into these fountains, and their streams will no more bear death upon their bosoms, but spread over the earth with light and life and blessing.

The following resolutions are submitted:

Resolved, That the presiding elder and pastors of this conference district be requested to call special attention to the cause of education, and to advocate and stress the claims of our denominational schools and colleges upon the support of our church members, as a part of the miscellaneous business of the quarterly and church conferences.

Resolved, That the ministers, both local and traveling, be requested to preach at least once a year, to each congregation served by them, on the subject of religious education; and in their social intercourse to bring our schools prominently before the minds of our people.

Resolved, That the Friday included in the week of prayer appointed by the Bishops, now near at hand, be set apart for a solemn consideration of our Christian obligation in the matter of education, and of earnest prayer for the conversion of the children, and the blessings of God upon our educational institutions.

Resolved, That we covenant and commit ourselves to increased and earnest efforts to build up the Southern University and the Tuskegee Female College by securing for these institutions whatever patronage may be under our influence and control.

COLPORTEUR, SELMA, ALABAMA.

Mr. Editor: Will you please publish the following for the information of the many dear brethren who are interested in the circulation of the word of God?

I have been engaged in the work of colporteur for the Selma Bible Society three months. The following will show what I have done during this period of time:

Formed one new auxiliary society; fourteen sermons and addresses delivered for the Bible cause; seven official letters sent, eight official documents distributed, and traveled eleven hundred and thirty-nine miles on official duty. Received as donations for the society $8.45, and from personal sales of books $244.40. Incidental expenses for traveling, postage, etc., $17.75. Visited four hundred and twelve families and business places; found four destitute families, and supplied four. Sold four hundred and forty books (all Scriptures,) and donated forty-five.

I consider this the most pleasant period of my life. May the Lord put it into the hearts of our people to assist those who are trying to send the word of God to the many disconsolate hearts in our land.

W. P. McBryde,
Colporteur Selma Bible Society.

PERIODICALS.

The Essentials of Good Health and Mental Bliss is a very handsome monthly, edited and published by Thomas Nicholson, M. D., New Orleans. We have received the September number.

Philips' Southern Farmer is one of our best agricultural periodicals. Published at Memphis, Tennessee, at $2 per annum. The September number has been received.

Appleton's Journal of September 7 is profusely illustrated, and abounds in choice literary and scientific matter.

A Clergyman in a church at Lawrence, on a recent occasion, discovered, after commencing the service, that he had forgotten his notes. As it was too late to send for them, he said to his audience, by way of apology, that this morning he should have to depend upon the Lord for what he might say, but that in the afternoon he would come better prepared.

Baptist College.—The Baptists of Louisiana, Mississippi and Arkansas are to unite in building up the Mississippi College at Clinton. The number of white Baptists in Louisiana was reported at their State Convention, July 12-15, as twelve to fifteen thousand. The number of colored Baptists in the State is estimated at fifty thousand.

The San Francisco News Letter critically says: "If poetry was potatoes, Joaquin Miller would own a patch, Bret Harte would be peeling them for the pot, and John Hay would be pelting at the hogs."

The world and the next resemble the east and the west: you cannot draw near to one without turning your back on the other.

The Christian Advocate.

THURSDAY, SEP. 12, 1872.

A MISSIONARY HYMN.

OVER THE SEA.

BY MARGARET MASON.

The sails are set, the anchor weighed,
Our ship goes sailing, sailing;
Come, west wind, from your cloudy cares,
In breezes never failing.

'Tis break of day, and far astern
I watch the seaweed drifting;
The coming dawn from off the sea
The shades of night are lifting.

O rays of light! from out the east
Ye bring the voice of waiting;
Come, Holy Spirit, breathe on me
Thy comfort never failing.

To lands far off, for thee, O Christ,
I go to tell the story;
Shine thou upon that sea of souls,
And flood it with thy glory.

The joys I leave are but to me
As seaweed idly drifting,
For on that sea of human souls
I watch the shadows lifting.

Ye west winds blow, thou ship speed on,
My hopes with thee are sailing;
O, Holy Spirit, breathe on me
In comfort never failing.

So shall my heart, for work so great,
Be strong in its endeavor,
Until my soul above its fears
Is lifted up forever.

For the Advocate.

PREPARATION FOR THE PULPIT.

NUMBER TWO.

How to prepare for the pulpit, or what is the best mode of preparation, is a most important question, and, I must confess, it is very difficult to answer. I would fain escape it if I could conscientiously, and leave it, just where I find it, for some older, wiser and better one to answer. But no! the burden is laid upon me, for God requires me to do all the good I possibly can, and I must bear it, or attempt so to do. It is not Methodist preacher-like to shun responsibility!

Not long ago I was conversing with some ladies in the presence of our honored senior Bishop—who is over seventy years of age and has been preaching over fifty years—and I remarked to one of the ladies that I had for seventeen years been trying to learn how to preach. The Bishop, who was conversing with another person, overheard me. He turned upon me, and with sharpness inquired: "Have you not learned how yet?" I replied firmly: "No, sir." He then very calmly remarked: "Well, I have not either!" So I thought of Paul, near the close of his life, wanting his books brought unto him, and concluded that no man on earth knows all about how to preach! In my remarks upon this subject I shall endeavor to avoid that which the books teach, and merely give you some of those thoughts and suggestions which I have learned in my own experience and observation.

First of all, I would observe, as there is such a vast diversity of gifts, and such a variety of peculiarities and circumstances which pertain to and attend them in their great office and work, that it is altogether impracticable and utterly impossible to prescribe any great universal plan, or system of rules, for ministers of the gospel to adopt and execute in preparing for the pulpit. This proposition is so perfectly self-evident that I need not stop to prove it by argument or to enforce it by illustration. I may say, however, that there has been, perhaps, among ministers, from time almost immemorial, too much endeavor to conform to a general system of laws, and hence we find a great and unendurable similarity or family likeness stamped upon most of the sermons of this age. This is, perhaps, in some instances, the result of what we commonly term accident, or of similar talents and peculiarities which exist in the minds and circumstances of the holy men; but I am compelled to believe it most generally grows out of a slavish and very foolish adherence and devotion to the rules that have been set and established by the teaching and examples of great men, which bend, twist and force good and holy ministers (who are capable of great development and usefulness in their natural and proper spheres) out into some strange course, where they are uneasy and cramped all their lives, and in the end they are compelled to look back and see, when it is too late to correct the great error, that their ministry has been a failure! It is not strange that men of the professions of the world should imitate great leading lights; but we do, and we have the right to expect the men of this high calling—men of God, ministers of the gospel—to walk not in the footsteps of each other, but every one in that way of duty which God designed him to pursue. Every minister should be content, yea, he should claim and he should aspire to be himself, and not another, in his preparation for the pulpit, as well as in other things.

It has been thought almost a pity that Blair, Whately and other rhetoricians have ever prescribed a set of laws to be strictly observed in the preparation of sermons for the pulpit. It may yet be demonstrated that they have exerted a pernicious influence, that has unwisely and unnecessarily restrained and hindered the ministry in their great work. But, if those rules be evil in any degree, who in this age of form and ceremony, of scholastic tight-lacing and conventional tyranny and oppression, have the courage to cry out against them and lead a grand revolution? The pulpit and the church are evidently in bondage; but there is some disposition in a few of the ministry, and some of the wiser and more pious portion of the laity, to arise in one body and strike for freedom. The pulpit has been in the bondage of bloody and heathen Egypt long enough! Instead of being the exalted oracle of heaven to speak forth the gospel of truth and life, and to command the respect, reverence and obedience of the nations of the earth, the pulpit has been degraded to the place of a slave, to work in mud, without straw, and make the brick that shall tell to the generations yet unborn the praise of men, and the ignominy of the church of God! O when will the God of heaven send a Moses to lead us forth unto a large and wealthy place? The promises of God are our comfort and our trust. When, O when will the day of perfect pulpit freedom dawn? It seems that this is the darkest hour; and therefore we lift our hopeful eyes unto the eastern hills. Meanwhile we must toil on, as best we may, in the great pulpit work.

A PASTOR.

For the Advocate.

The Northern General Conference upon Intoxicating Liquors, Games of Chance and Worldly Amusements.

MR. EDITOR: In a former article I endeavored to show that it was necessary and becoming both in Church and State, when certain evils became especially prevalent and attained to an alarming magnitude, to forbid them by specific statute, and thus to bring to bear against them all the moral and legal authority of the government. I also endeavored to show that the use of intoxicating liquors, playing games of chance and indulging in popular amusements were evils with all the characteristics aforenamed, and demanded of the church prompt and efficient treatment. Our brethren of the Church North seem to entertain this view, and in their late General Conference, by a large majority, they met the question with a rule, pointed, cogent and comprehensive.

The rule relating to "improprieties and imprudences," which now forbids "neglect of duties of any kind imprudent conduct, indulging sinful tempers or words, or disobedience to the order and discipline of the church," in their Book of Discipline will hereafter forbid "neglect of duties of any kind, imprudent conduct, indulging sinful tempers or words, the buying or selling or using intoxicating liquors as a beverage, dancing, playing at games of chance, attending theaters, horse-races, circuses, dancing parties or patronizing dancing schools, or taking such other amusements as are obviously of misleading or questionable moral tendency, or disobedience to the order and discipline of the church." I desire to call attention to the additions which have been made to the rule, that their propriety and wisdom may be fully seen and appreciated.

The first addition forbids "the buying or selling or using intoxicating liquors as a beverage." The use of intoxicating liquors as a beverage is thus expressly and emphatically condemned and interdicted; the terms are sufficiently strong, indeed, to constitute the pledge of a temperance association. No one can now remain a loyal and consistent member of that branch of the church and yet take from his own board two or three glasses a day, or visit resorts where alcoholic liquids are stored and dispensed, to slake his thirst, or have upon his table the wine bottle which he uses himself and offers to his guests, or on festal occasions, in the midst of the young and the gay, quaff that which tends to dethrone reason and despoil character, and to convert social gatherings often into scenes of brawl and buffoonery. The man who now joins the Methodist Episcopal Church to all intents and purposes joins a total abstinence society; and any use of intoxicating liquids as a beverage is an evident and undisguised violation of a solemn and recognized obligation. Those who have labored in the temperance movement well know that in their endeavors to secure the co-operation of professing Christians they are too often met with the response—given, no doubt, sometimes in sincerity, but not unfrequently, we fear, with the design of rebuff and evasion: "We are already members of a total abstinence society, for the church is such." Theoretically the church is a total abstinence society; the body of Christ, in its true idea and theory, cannot tolerate even moderate drinking, especially after the light thrown upon the matter by the learning and science of the nineteenth century. Theoretically and essentially the church may have been a total abstinence society; practically it has been far otherwise. Thousands of men and women in its different branches have felt themselves at liberty to conform in this regard to the deceptive and dangerous usages of society, and have not seemed to have any fixed idea that they were acting in a manner inconsistent with their profession, or calculated to do discredit or damage to the great cause with which they were associated. A few months since I was present at an interesting festal gathering in the heart of Virginia. The company was a large one, and composed of the very best people of a refined community, including more than twenty-five members belonging to five different denominations. Of that number there were not more than four who had the moral courage to refuse, upon principle, the wine-cup offered by the elegant host and hostess, themselves prominent members of our church. The church has not spoken with sufficient distinctness and power, nor has she acted with sufficient promptitude and decision. I pray that this reproach may be speedily removed from her.

The buying or selling of intoxicating liquors as a beverage is also distinctly prohibited by the amended rule. There are, no doubt, good men engaged in the liquor traffic—men in every denomination. I know such in my own and in other churches. They seem to be attentive to their religious duties, and ready to assist with their means in the enterprises of Christianity; they are good citizens, and in some respects useful men. They claim that the traffic in which they are engaged is permitted by the laws of the land, and that without it they could not succeed in the mercantile profession, and have wherewith to support their families or contribute to benevolent purposes. They do not, it is true, keep a bar and deal out the poison by the drink, and have around them the inebriate and the disorderly; they sell only by the bottle or the gallon, or, it may be, by the barrel, and they affirm that their establishments are none other than well regulated, though it be true that in the course of a year they give away to their customers and have drank upon their premises more than a thousand drinks. They proceed upon the extraordinary hypothesis that, while it is ungenteel and unchristian to sell a pernicious article in the small way, it is yet all right and proper to give it away to be drank in their presence, or to sell it in quantity to be drank elsewhere, or to be retailed by others. It is hardly necessary to say that their excuse is untenable and their reasoning false. I do not believe that the sale of intoxicating liquors is required to secure real and substantial success to the enterprising and fair-dealing merchant in most communities. I have before me now abundant experimental proof to the contrary. If, however, there is in any community such a state of society prevailing, I think it incumbent upon a Christian man either to change his place of residence, and seek a new home with a different style of people, or relinquish altogether an employment which necessitates such a demoralizing traffic. And surely there is no canon of reason or of morals which will justify the position that, while it is unbecoming a Christian to sell alcoholic liquids by the gill, it is entirely consistent with his character to give it away by the drink to secure custom, and to sell it by the quantity for the sake of gain. Those members of the church thus engaged are in serious error, and it is the duty of the church as a kind mother, if possible, to open their eyes and reveal to them the true nature and effects of the work they are performing. This the amended rule is calculated to do.

It may be asked what effect the enforcement of the rule relating to the buying or selling or using intoxicating liquors as a beverage will have upon those to whom it applies, and what effect upon the general fortunes of the church. I believe that under a mild and determined administration of the law all the intelligent and worthy will yield a cheerful obedience to its behests, and greatly to their own good. They love the church and its institutions, and will not allow themselves to be severed therefrom by adhering to a custom and a traffic which have been pronounced unbecoming and immoral. They will make the sacrifice, if sacrifice it may be called, and they will find in the end that their course has resulted alike in their spiritual and material prosperity, has been especially beneficial to those immediately intrusted to their guidance, and also eminently promotive of the best interests of their fellow-men. Doubtless there are others—not many, I would fain hope—who are so wedded to the habit, and so value the traffic, that in spite of the admonition of the church, rather than abandon them they will suffer the extreme ecclesiastical penalty, and be expelled from the body of Christ. Their loss to the church will be merely numerical; in other respects their retirement will be for gain. Men whose taste is so perverted, and whose love of greed is so great that against the authority of the church, even to the extremity of expulsion, they will persist in the use and sale of a beverage unnecessary, and destructive, known in its every quaff to convey ignorance, woe and death, certainly would never adorn Christianity by their piety or promote it by their zeal.

The result of a prudent enforcement of the amended rule upon the fortunes of the church will be most abiding and propitious. It will save itself from all risk of nourishing within its own bosom, by allowing "the use of intoxicating liquors as a beverage" to its members, a race of drunkards, who would bring infinite disgrace upon itself and do infinite harm to humanity. It will relieve itself from the opprobrium of taking part, through its members, in dispensing for gain that which has been shown by science and experience to be unnecessary to health and happiness, and corrupting and destroying to almost all who "touch, taste or handle" it. It will throw a powerful safeguard around the young who attend upon its ministrations by imparting to them just views upon a great question, and dissuading them from engaging in a pernicious traffic, or from forming habits of indulgence which, though at first light and pleasant, would at last bind and press like "chains of adamant and fetters of steel." It will promote in its members an enlarged spirituality and purity, and enable them to realize in their own lives a higher religious enjoyment, and to be far richer in works of beneficence and love to their fellowmen. It will give the whole weight of its influence, its countenance and active support in behalf of one of the most benign movements of our age—that which contemplates the entire suppression of the liquor traffic, the deliverance of men from the base thralldom of strong drink, and the confinement of alcohol, in its various forms, to its legitimate uses in medicine and the mechanic arts. In this noble work the church has been hitherto laggard. Thank God, it is awaking to its high duty. The Methodist Episcopal Church has taken a noble step; and if it executes its law with moderation and firmness, in respect to which I have no doubt, it will place itself in the van of the Christian army, and will lead in a movement which must ultimately embrace all sects and denominations, and attain to results at once beneficent and glorious. In another article I will pursue the subject.

S.

MANSFIELD, Louisiana.

For the Advocate.

Our Schools at Summerfield, Alabama.

MR. EDITOR: The educational activity manifested within the limits of the Alabama Conference keeps pace with our Sabbath school awakening, and together are destined to elevate Methodism to a still higher standard of usefulness. He who fails to discern in them powerful auxiliaries to gospel expansion has yet to learn much of the nature of the gospel itself. Our pulpit, press and pew are beginning to harmonize in their educational views, and have but to persevere and enlarge their efforts, and soon the seed of their sowing will yield an increasing harvest in the spread of a more intelligent Christianity within and beyond our borders. What can more effectually supplement pulpit ministrations than the steady cultivation of the heart and head to a just appreciation of its saving truths? The preparation of the soil is essential to the seeding down of the crop, and so the moral agencies now invoked in support of pulpit effort are preparations to give it increased efficiency. If we will but sustain the policy, now so happily inaugurated, by steady, persistent activity, the present, now so replete with encouragement, will soon give place to a future full of success.

Reflections like these have been awakened by a recent visit to Summerfield to attend the commencement exercises of the schools located there. It had not been the privilege of the writer to enjoy an intimacy with the faculty of either of these schools, nor with the citizens of the village, and hence he can speak without the bias which friendship enlists or familiarity strengthens. Nor will we detail the exercises of the occasion or individualize its actors. True merit needs nothing to give it prominence, nor do refined natures seek or accept popular applause. We content ourselves with testifying to the church and its friends that the "old Centenary," around which cluster the attachments of so many that claim her with pride as their alma mater, is still successfully moving forward in the career assigned her by her founders; while the male school is modestly but effectually doing a good work indeed for the church.

Other institutions have sprung into life, some of which, from local influence, facility of approach, and perchance spasmodic effort, have enlisted popular commendation and distracted public attention. The clamor, however, thus developed should only serve as monitory signals to the true spirit of religious conservatism, and suggest to us a closer adherence to the institutions of the church. What folly greater than the practice, now so fashionable, of sending our children to a colder climate during winter, to encounter climatic diseases they are unprepared to meet, and then in midsummer return to risk health in miasmatic regions without thorough acclimation! How strikingly in contrast this practice with that of those who seek health and pleasure northward during summer and then return to enjoy the winter at home! Friends of the church, how long are we to continue to exemplify a consciousness of inferiority in the work of educating our children? How long before our practice shall accord with the interests of our children, ourselves and our church? Review the tendency of the policy so many pursue, and we will find cause to deplore its prevalence, and to inaugurate measures looking to reform.

Ministers of the Alabama Conference, are you altogether void of reprehension in this matter? Our schools, both male and female, are open to you—not grudgingly, but freely—and many of you are sharing their advantages without charge. What compensating influence are you contributing in their behalf? How soon, under our itinerant system, may many of you become beneficiaries of their liberality who have not so far shared their offers; and in view of this, if no higher considerations suggest themselves, should you not make some effort to enlarge their usefulness, inspire confidence and secure patronage?

Brethren, one and all, let us be diligent in the work before us; let no apathetic feeling intervene between duty and effort, but let us associate our energies with our interests, and strive to advance all the literary enterprises within our limits.

LAYMAN.

AUTAUGA CO., ALA., August 21, 1872.

MULLER.—Rev. Dr. Cuyler, in his letters to the Evangelist, from England, thus sketches an interview with the celebrated and pious George Muller:

"As I reached the door the service was just over. But I learned that Mr. Muller had just been delivering a delightful discourse on the third chapter of John. I went in, and introduced myself to the great philanthropist. He looks just as I expected. A tall, benign German, with thin gray hair, and a countenance that reminded me strikingly of the late Theodore Frelinghuysen, and a most simple, cordial manner—that is George Muller. His German brogue is very pleasant. He told me that there are between one thousand nine hundred and two thousand now in his orphan houses! The buildings are closed except on Wednesdays, and so I was unable to inspect them. But it was quite enough to have met and talked with the loving, sagacious Christian, who, without begging for one penny, has received and invested over two millions of dollars in his institutions of charity! When some weak-minded people have tried to imitate his experiment and have failed, his ready answer is: 'The Lord did not call them to do it.' His common sense is equal to his faith. I was not surprised to learn that no photograph of this blessed man could be obtained. 'Why don't they take him when asleep, or off his guard?' I asked of a photograph-seller. 'They did do it once,' he replied, 'and Muller bought up the plate and the pictures, and suppressed them.' Just like him."

THAT noble man of God, the Rev. A. Bonar, of Scotland, discourses thus: "The religion of the day is an easy-minded religion, without conflict or self-denial or sacrifice; without the pangs of the new birth at its commencement, and the desperate daily struggle which makes one long for resurrection deliverance and for the Lord's return. It is a second-rate religion, in which there is no power, no self-devotion, no all-constraining love. It is a hollow religion, marked by a fair exterior, by excitement and activity, or by respectable dullness; but betraying an aching, unsatisfied heart, a conscience not at peace with God, and a soul not at rest. It is a feeble religion, without bones and sinews, without the much-enduring, heroic elements of other days. It is an uncertain religion; not being the overflowing of a soul assured of pardon, and rejoicing in the filial relationship with God, it is not, cannot be rooted on certainty. The question of personal acceptance with God being still an unsettled thing, there is working for life, not from life. There is no liberty of service. There is speaking for God, but with a faltering tongue; there is laboring for God, but with fettered hands; there is obedience to his commands, but it is with a drag on the limbs; there is a going to church, but it is to quiet the conscience and for duty's sake. Such a religion cannot tell upon others, for it is little influential upon one's self; so falls short of the mark, for the arm that draweth the bow is paralyzed."

Obituaries.

DIED, August 31, at ten minutes past eight P. M., SALLIE CHAMBERLIN, infant daughter of William B. Murphy and Hattie B. Crawford, aged four months and seventeen days.

MATTHEW S., son of D. S. and Eliza Travis, was born December 8, 1867, and died August 25, after a short illness.

The sweet little bud has been rudely torn from the parent stem by the pitiless ice-wind of death. Though breathless as the grave, yet he seemed but in a gentle sleep, so natural, so beautiful he lay on his little cold pillow.

J. E. B.

DELHI, LA., August 28, 1872.

DIED, near Clinton, Mississippi, of congestion, on the evening of August 22, after an illness of three weeks, SAMUEL HARRY DOWNER, son of Rev. Robert B. and Anne H. Downer, aged four years and eleven months.

"Hope looks beyond the bounds of time,
When what we now deplore
Shall rise in full, immortal prime,
And bloom to fade no more."

R. B. DOWNER.

Nashville Advocate please copy.

ROSE CLARK ARMITAGE, youngest daughter of Charles and Lucy Armitage, was born in Terrebonne parish, Louisiana, March 1, 1863, and died July 23, 1872, of congestion, near Cayuga, Hinds county, Mississippi. She was sick but a few hours. Just before she was taken sick she sang very earnestly:

"I want to be an angel."

Little did her loving mother or any one else imagine she would be an angel so soon—that she was so soon to be plucked from the thorny wilderness of this world to be

"Transplanted from this mortal sphere
Up to that pure and genial clime,
Where eternal beauty reigns,
Unchanged by sickness, death and time."

IRA B. ROBERTSON.

MRS. MALINDA SELLERS, wife of Rev. B. D. Sellers, died July 16, 1872. She was married in Barbour county, Alabama, October 4, 1832. About the same time she joined the Methodist Church, and a short time after was converted. Her husband being a local preacher, she did all in her power to aid him in his sacred calling. She was very fond of camp meetings, and always assisted in maintaining those within her reach. At the time of her death she resided in Copiah county, Mississippi. In her last illness, which was of about a month's duration, she seemed to be impressed that it would prove fatal, and at first entertained some doubts about being reconciled to God. But two weeks previous to her death these doubts gave way to a bright prospect of a blissful immortality. She often exclaimed, "I am going to rest," giving glory to God for the hope of heaven. She was the mother of five children. One died a very triumphant death in the Confederate army. The others are in the church, and we trust are on their way to heaven.

W. WADSWORTH.

SISTER CLARA L., daughter of Thomas and Louisa Gilbert, and wife of Colonel Nelson L. Hower, was born in Concordia parish, Louisiana, April 9, A. D. 1835, and died, at her residence in Franklin parish, Louisiana, July 12, 1872.

She was principally educated in Natchez, Mississippi, and was married to Colonel Hower November 18, 1851. She was converted in early life, and connected herself with the Methodist Church, in which she ever remained till death dissolved that connection, that she might be admitted into the church triumphant. Her illness was peculiar, protracted for months and of the most excruciating type to which human flesh is heir. It was truly gratifying to see her Job-like patience, which had its perfect work, and her heroic faith, which bore her upon its strong, eagle-like pinions above clouds of doubt, and enabled her to say, as did the Lord: "Thy will be done." After she knew that she must die she seemed to have no one dread upon her mind—she was sure that through such suffering she might lose her mind before the spirit could be freed of its load. The reverse, in a most striking manner, was the result. For some six hours prior to her death she was entirely free from pain, made all arrangements, and then just at the close of day, without a struggle, she closed her earthly pilgrimage, while attendant angels shouted her welcome to the skies. Sister Hower possessed a gifted mind, was the life of the social circle, and the pride and glory of her husband.

T. H. MCLENDON.

DIED, at his mother's residence in Washington, Louisiana, July 12, 1872, BENJAMIN MAYO, aged twenty-five years, six months and five days.

The subject of this obituary was the son of a devotedly pious mother, who trained him in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. When quite a boy he professed religion and joined our church, in which he lived for a time an acceptable member. For a few years preceding his death he had been careless and lukewarm; still, however, a very devoted son, regarding his mother and venerable grandparents with the greatest affection. Although called suddenly away, he renewed his covenant with the church and with God, giving us comfortable assurance of his entire trust in Jesus to save from sin and its consequences.

E. F. WHITE.

His Sabbath school unanimously passed the following resolutions:

WHEREAS, Our loved friend and companion, Benjamin Mayo, secretary of the Waxia Sabbath school, has, by one of the inscrutable providences of him who doeth all things well, been suddenly called from our midst:

Resolved, That we tender our heartfelt sympathy to the devoted, mourning mother, and the other members of his afflicted family, and may our Father grant that their suffering may be sanctified unto them, and that when life's pilgrimage is over, that they may reunite with their dear one gone before, and be an unbroken family band in Jerusalem, the golden.

C. LEE GOODRICH,
Superintendent Waxia Sabbath School.

DIED, at her residence in Walnut Grove, Leake county, Mississippi, July 12, 1872, Sister SARAH BURKS, aged sixty-seven years, ten months and nineteen days.

She was born in Oglethorpe county, Georgia. Her maiden name was Lesly. She was married to James Hamil July 11, 1824; was left a widow in 1836; married again to Elijah Horne, in 1850; was again left a widow, and again married, to James L. Burks, and again left a widow. I was present at the death-bed of her last husband. He died in the triumphs of redeeming grace.

She embraced religion and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church in 1837, under the preaching of Bro. Mathews, and remained a faithful, devoted Christian to the day of her death. The writer of this has known her well for the past ten years. A more devoted Christian I never knew. Often have I heard her shout the high praises of her Redeemer. She was devoted to the church of her choice, but was void of prejudice, and loved all Christians. Her seat was seldom found vacant in the house of God. She was also found at and loved the class meeting and the prayer meeting; and when God's convicting power was felt in the church, and penitents were at the altar weeping, she was found upon her knees by their side, pointing them to the Lamb of God.

She was a faithful wife, a kind and loving mother, a kind neighbor, and a faithful visitor of the sick. With sorrow we bid her farewell. Her house was always open to the preachers, for she loved their society, and delighted in talking to them of Jesus and her prospects of heaven.

She was suddenly called away, being taken violently sick on Tuesday night, and died on Friday night following. She was deprived of reason almost from the time she was taken; hence we were deprived of hearing her tell, in her last moments, of her prospects of heaven. But oh! the life she had lived was evidence enough of her peaceful end. A short time before her death she seemed to become rational for an instant, and said to a relative: "John, I am going home." "Therefore be ye also ready, for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of Man cometh."

IRVIN MILLER.

The Christian Advocate.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 1872.

THE BIRTH RECORD.

BY A. G. MAXX.

Sitting to-night in my old arm-chair,
With my little one on my knee,
I read from its record-page of births
The names of children three;
And written beneath, in the same strong hand,
While the heart was breaking with pain,
"The Lord hath given and taken away,"
But "blessed be his name."

With two the record of life was short,
Like a summer's day of joy;
I can see them now, with these dim old eyes,
My little girl and boy;
And I think of them when I read the words
In an old, old book, which saith:
"They were lovely and pleasant in their lives,
And divided not in death."

For the other—"my baby" I call him still—
Though he grew to manhood tall,
When they told me that God had taken him,
I felt he had taken my all;
And long I cherished rebellious thoughts,
Before I could learn to say:
"Blessed be the Lord. 'Twas he that gave,
And 'tis he that hath taken away."

We sometimes strain our poor, short sight,
Blinded by flowing tears,
And murmur in our sinful hearts,
So clouded by doubts and fears;
But, though we cannot pierce the vail,
Let us patiently wait its will,
Who, though he "spare not," "though he slay,"
Is the same kind Father still.

So when I take this sacred book,
Where God hath writ his will;
I can read in peace my children's names,
While I say: "My heart, be still."
And the dear, dear hand that wrote those names
Grasps mine in trust and love.
"Dear wife, their names are also writ
In the Book of Life above!"

THREE CHORISTERS.

The recent death of Dr. Lowell Mason takes from us the last of that remarkable trio of church musicians who, beyond all others, have given voice to the praises of American Christians. The names of Lowell Mason, Thomas Hastings and William B. Bradbury are more widely known by the musicians of country choirs and by the great body of psalm singers than those of any other three musicians, past or present. These fulfilled, in their departure, the Scripture which declares that "the last shall be first." Mr. Bradbury, who was born in 1816, died in 1868; Dr. Hastings, who was born in 1784, died a few months since; and Dr. Mason, who was born in 1792, died on Sunday, August 11

Mr. Bradbury was best known during the last years of his life as a composer of Sunday school songs. In this department of music his success was quite unrivaled. No other composer has succeeded half so well in catching the spirit and speaking the language of the singing children. Mr. Bradbury was a master of melody; his airs are generally characteristic, graceful and vivacious; and it was this fact which gave him his popularity as a composer with young and old. It has been quite the fashion among those musicians who affect the "classical" style of music to sneer at "the Bradbury school;" but we suspect that the time will come when these simple melodies of his will be celebrated for their gracefulness and spirit, and when the fact will be recognized that while his musical scholarship was limited, he did possess in an uncommon measure the gift of song.

The contributions of Mr. Bradbury to the list of popular hymn-tunes was also very large. "Zephyr," "Rest," "Woodworth," "Rolland," "Fulton," "Mendelssohn," "Meroe," "Brown," "Repose," and many others will be sung in the churches long after many of the elaborate compositions of the florid school are forever forgotten.

Dr. Thomas Hastings, who is the oldest of this trio, was in some respects the sweetest of the singers. His tunes, like those of Mr. Bradbury, are remarkable for the smooth and easy flow of their melodies. He wrote much less than Mr. Bradbury, and his music exhibited more originality and more delicacy, if not more culture. Dr. Hastings was a poet as well as a musician; and several of his tunes are sung to words of his own composition. He was, moreover, a man of rare beauty of character, and a most devoted and consistent Christian. The church preserves a precious memorial of him in such tunes as "Ortonville," "Zion," "Retreat," "Rock of Ages," "Sheffield," "Byefield," "Zadoc," and "Return," which will continue to be sung in the Sabbath congregations and in the prayer meetings as long as there are worshipers.

Dr. Lowell Mason, whose death has so recently occurred, was the most distinguished of these three musicians. His place of birth was Medfield, Massachusetts; but his musical career was begun in Savannah, Georgia, where he lived fifteen years, devoting himself, with characteristic ardor, to his favorite pursuit. It was during his residence in Savannah that he published the famous "Boston Handel and Haydn Collection of Church Music"—a volume which produced almost as much of a revolution in the musical world of America as was produced in the philosophical world by Bacon's "Novum Organon." Dr. Mason has studied the great masters. Handel and Haydn, Beethoven and Mozart had opened to him a new world of musical expression; and what he found in the great works of the European musicians he brought to his own countrymen. A great part of his work was, therefore, that of compilation or transcription; and his talent was shown in selecting from the involved and difficult music of the great composers such strains as could be brought within the appreciation and the execution of American musicians. A good teacher never gives his pupils truth any faster than they can digest and comprehend it; and it was greatly to Dr. Mason's credit that he succeeded in setting before the uncultivated musicians of his own country an ideal of expression which was high enough to stimulate them and not too high for them to reach.

On his return from Savannah, in 1827, he devoted himself at first to the musical instruction of children and the introduction of vocal music into the public schools. The fact that Boston is the musical metropolis of America—that there is a larger proportion of thoroughly educated musicians in its population than in any other city of the land—is owing in great measure to the excellent musical instruction which the children receive in the public schools; and the foundations of this system of instruction were well laid by Dr. Lowell Mason.

In company with Mr. James G. Webb he established the Boston Academy of Music, and "teachers' institutes" for training teachers of music and choir leaders were widely held. Under his skillful and enthusiastic leadership vocal music made remarkable advancement in New England; and the old tunes then in vogue—like "Russia," "Ocean," and "Invitation"—many of which were crazy and ear-splitting fugues, gave place to music which was at once simpler, more correct, and better adapted to the purposes of devotion.

We have spoken of Dr. Mason as a transcriber of other men's music. It must not, therefore, be inferred that he was not an original composer. He frequently took his themes from other musicians; but a large part of the tunes which bear his name are his own compositions. The service which he has rendered to the musical part of American psalmody is beyond all computation. The man who gave to the churches "Hebron," "Hamburg," "Ariel," "Lahan," "Naomi," "Uxbridge," "Rockingham," "Ward," "Olmutz," "Olivet," "Bethany," "Antioch," "Boylston," "Migdol," "Watchman, tell us of the Night," "The Missionary Hymn," and numbers more of such familiar tunes, has a clear title to long remembrance.

These singers were, all of them, men of earnest Christian character. Their institutes and conventions were, in no subordinate sense, religious meetings. The standards of art were not wholly neglected by them; but the great question was how best to train the vocal powers for the fitting expression of praise to God. Not art, but worship, was the chief end they placed before them.

Doubtless we are in the habit of hearing performed in many of our churches at the present time music of a much higher character, artistically considered, than any which they furnished us. The difficult progressions and the close harmonies and the sky-scraping vocal gymnastics of our quartette choirs would have been an abomination to these simple singers; but there is much reason to fear that the element of worship in our church music has decreased in about the same proportion that the artistic perfection of our choirs has increased; and even those who are fond of high art in the opera and the concert-room often long, when in church, for the good old days of Mason, Bradbury and Hastings.—Independent.

The Losings Bank and the Savings Bank.

As Mr. Reed, the builder, came into his yard one Monday morning he met George Joyce, one of his skillful workmen.

"Good morning, sir," said Joyce.

"Good morning," replied Mr. Reed. "I wanted to see you this morning particularly, Joyce, to speak to you about a mistake you made on Saturday."

"I'm sorry to hear it, sir—I was not aware. I hope no harm is done."

"I wish I could say none, Joyce. But I fear there is serious harm to me, and, what I care for still more, to your wife, your children and yourself, and, I might add, to your country."

"I don't take your meaning, sir," said Joyce, looking puzzled.

"And in this you rob God, for he has said: 'All souls are mine.'"

"It looks a black list rather," said Joyce. "I did not think there was so much in it, and that last deposit is the worst of all. And yet, sir, I can't think the Almighty will look so hard as that upon a man just taking a drop too much once on a time."

"Let him speak," said Mr. Reed, drawing out of his pocket a small Bible; "and make you willing to hear his voice."

He turned over the leaves and read: "'Be not deceived; neither fornicators, nor idolators, nor adulterers, nor effeminate, nor abusers of themselves with mankind, nor thieves, nor covetous, nor drunkards, nor revilers, nor extortioners, shall inherit the kingdom of God.' You see drunkenness is placed on a level with some sins of which you would not like to be thought guilty."

"Well, it is; but it seems hard to me to think of it as quite so bad as that."

Mr. Reed reads again:

"Lest there should be among you man or woman, or family, or tribe, whose heart turneth away this day from the Lord our God; * * * * lest there should be among you a root that beareth gall and wormwood; and it come to pass, when he heareth the words of this curse, that he bless himself in his heart, saying, I shall have peace, though I walk in the imagination of mine heart, to add drunkenness to thirst The Lord will not spare him, but then the anger of the Lord and his jealousy shall smoke against that man, and all the curses that are written in this book shall lie upon him, and the Lord shall blot out his name from under heaven."

"These words make me tremble, Joyce. I don't know a passage in the Bible so terrible as that. And, mind you, the sin spoken of is, as you would say, only drunkenness!"

"Indeed, sir, it looks worse, a great deal, than I thought."

"You know, Joyce, that I desire to be the friend of my men, as well as their master. As a friend, listen to me. As I was returning home last Saturday evening a number of workingmen and their wives were going into the Savings Bank there to deposit a part of their week's earnings, and it made my heart glad to see among them many of my own men. But I passed on, and as I came by Cattle's corner I saw you and several others turn into the Losings Bank, there to deposit your wages. It is always a pleasure to me to pay my men the money they have so well earned, but I own, Joyce, I grudged you yours. I would sooner have thrown it in the gutter—some needy hand might have picked it up—than to have put it into yours, to be deposited in that bank."

"Losings Bank, sir? I suppose it's the tavern you are talking of. But I don't quite see why you call it that."

"Joyce, you are a thinking man. I know that by the way you do my work. Have you ever thought about this matter?"

"Well, not very particularly, that I know of. But it's hard if a man mustn't enjoy himself a little without being taken to for it almost as bad as if he'd been stealing."

"Have you ever reckoned up what you deposit there each time you turn in?"

"Well, a shilling, it may be, or two," said Joyce.

Mr. Reed, taking a pencil and piece of paper from his pocket-book, handed them to Joyce, and said: "Let us look at it fully and make a fair calculation. You deposit

Your money.....and lose it.
Your time.....and lose it.
Your character.....and lose it.
Your health of body.....and lose it.
Your power of mind.....and lose it.
Your manly independence.....and lose it.
Your self-respect.....and lose it.
Your sense of right and wrong..and lose it.
Your self-control.....and lose it.
Your wife's happiness.....and lose it.
Your children's good.....and lose it.
Your home comfort.....and lose it.
Your country's honor.....and lose it.
Your own soul.....and lose it."

"Well, sir, I'd like to say I'd never taste a drop more, but I'm afraid I might go back. The want for it comes strongly over a man sometimes."

"Joyce, if you bring your sin to the Lord Jesus Christ, and get the guilt of it taken away by his blood, you will find that has broken the power of it too. You may not now understand how, but try it, and you will find it is true."

"I did once talk of signing the pledge."

"I wish you would now," said Mr. Reed; "while your whole trust must be on the Lord Jesus to save you from this sin, you must keep that trust at work by using every possible means to get the mastery of it; and the first and chief of these is to break off entirely from so much as tasting intoxicating liquor. And I am quite sure you will find, as multitudes have done, that signing the pledge will be a great help to you in this."

"I believe your advice is good, sir—I'll think it over."

"If good, then delay not the good. Begin the week well. Step into my office and sign it at once, and exchange now and forever the Losings Bank for the Savings Bank." Friendly Visitor.

It is not in the most exact and rigid discipline, nor in outward forms, ceremonies and appliances (though these are good and useful as accompaniments) that success is achieved, but rather in the forcible utterances of eternal truth, and in the inspirations of burning, impassioned eloquence of heart-love.

The Need of Fellowship with God.

In all men's deepest feelings they do acknowledge—it is an instinct irrepressible—that the one thing needful for them is a loving intercourse with God. All other things we need only qualifiedly, as wealth, or friends, or learning, or the arts of life; but this one thing we do need absolutely. It were by itself essential bliss; yea, even in the loss of all wordly good. That an assured fellowship with God must exercise and satisfy the exact selfhood of a man is a very intuition with all men. Whereas all worldly good, without God, does but leave us restless and aching still. All the things thou canst desire, the passions gratified, the appetite regaled, the inebriation of power, the ministry of art, the wonders of science, the glow of thought, sentiment and sensibility, enterprise, friendship, the family, the State—all these things, if without God, are only "a triumph of the pulse, a dance of the spirits, a froth of joy, leaving the soul more vapid than before."

Serious-minded men know it to be so. Nor is it any mere thinking of God that will satisfy us; neither the searching out and admiring of his wonderful works, but only the personal meeting with God. A man will give his lifetime to the study of a butterfly, or a rock, or a star, and fondly claim that he is conversing with God; but vainly thus will he whisper Peace, peace! to his soul, when there is no peace. That butterfly was but a beaming forth from God, not God himself. A light from yonder mansion is shining into the outer darkness, and a poor, houseless stranger on the street thinks it beautiful, looks at it wistfully, and all the more wraps his tatters about him in the shivering blast of a winter's night. But see! another wanderer is in the street. The long-lost son of the house has returned, his step is at the door, he enters, the shout of welcome greets him, loving arms are all around him, and a father's heart is beating next his own. What a difference between the two because of that one element of filial fellowship! Even so the religious consciousness, if shut off from a personal embrace with God, is a vagabond in rags and darkness, although in the midst of the marvelous works of God; and the sense of responsibility to God goes shivering along his life. Besides, if now we stand aloof from God, he will hereafter say to us: "Depart, ye cursed!" while if he and we do come together now, he will say to us: "Come, ye blessed." Oh! surely a present fellowship with God is the very chiefest of our blessings; and how should we bound forward to it, seeing that we can have it by simply drawing nigh to him by faith in Jesus Christ.—The Witness.

HABITS OF LITERARY MEN.

John Calvin commenced his daily studies at five or six in the morning, reading and writing in bed for hours together. If business required him to go out, he would rise and dress, but, on his return, again went to bed. As he advanced in years he wrote little with his own hand, but dictated to secretaries, rarely having occasion to make any corrections. Sometimes his faculty of composition would fail; then he would quit his bed, attend to his out-door duties for days, weeks and even months together, and not think of writing until he felt the power had returned. Then he would go to bed, send for his secretary, and resume his labors. The great Cardinal Richelieu, who was a dramatist as well as prime minister of France, usually went to bed at eleven, slept three hours, would rise and write till eight in the morning, now and then amusing himself by playing with his cats, of which he was very fond. Buffon, the naturalist, rose early, and worked perpetually. His great "Studies of Nature" cost him fifty years of labor, and he recopied it eighteen times before he sent it to the printers. He composed in a singular manner, writing on large-sized paper, on which, as in a ledger, five distinct columns were ruled. In the first column he wrote down the first thought; in the second he corrected, enlarged and pruned it; and so on, until he had reached the fifth column, within which he finally wrote the result of his labor. But even after this he would recompose a sentence twenty times, and once devoted fourteen hours to find the proper word with which to round off a period. Cuvier, who raised comparative anatomy to a science, never had occasion to copy his manuscript. He composed very rapidly, the proper words falling into the proper place, and everything being arranged in his mind in a very orderly manner. Bossuet, the French divine, who left fifty volumes of his own manuscripts, rose at four, wrapped himself up in a loose dress of boar-skin, and wrote until, from sheer fatigue, his hand refused to hold the pen. Then he would return to bed, take the sleep of exhaustion, and, on awaking, go through the same process again.—Appletons' Journal.

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

Some wealthy Hebrews propose to start a daily paper in New York, and have raised $500,000 for the purpose.

Forty clergymen there are of the Protestant Episcopal Church in New York city who have no parochial charge.

The Methodist Episcopal Church baptized 65,770 adults and 54,517 children in 1871. The Presbyterian Church in 1871 baptized 8,585 adults and 17,420 children.

The Protestant population of France is 572,749, including 86,041 inscribed electors. Of these 32,602, but little more than one-third, voted for the members of the synod of the Reformed Church of France.

Seven hundred and six books and pamphlets have been written against Methodism, a catalogue of which may be seen at the Astor Library. Our readers will be astonished to learn that the sect is still in existence.

Better than at Home.—The increase of the members at the mission stations occupied by the Wesleyan missionaries in South Africa, within the last six years, has been fifty per cent., while in England it has been but five per cent.

The Maharajah Dhuleep Singh was married in June, 1864, to one of the girls of the United Presbyterian mission school in Cairo, Egypt. He has celebrated the anniversary of his marriage this year, as heretofore, by sending his check for $5,000 to the mission. It is safe to infer that that was a happy marriage.

Encouraging Success. — Recent statistics prepared by Baboo Mitter, of Hoegly, show that there are 13,980 native Christian communicants in Northern India, with a Christian community of not less than 48 591 souls. The number of native Protestant Christians in India, Burmah and Ceylon is estimated at 300,000.

In 1729 the Baptists in North Carolina constituted one out of every five hundred and twelve of the inhabitants, the large majority being Quakers, or adherents to the Church of England. In 1790 the Baptists numbered 7,000; in 1812, 13,000; in 1845, nearly 79,000; and last year, over 100,000, or one to every twelve of the population of the State.

The ninth annual meeting of German Dunkards decided that instrumental music was of the world, and not of the true church of God, and that "it is not advisable for brethren to engage in the banking business," and further that "a brother who suffers himself to be elected to the Legislative Assembly as a representative of the people cannot be retained as a member of the church."

A gentleman in New York city has offered to give $5,000 to the Foreign Missionary Committee of the Southern Presbyterian Church, toward the endowment of the college at Campinas College, Brazil, which has been started under the auspices of the mission at that place. The only condition made is that the Southern Presbyterian churches shall raise an equal amount, which they are earnestly called upon to do

The Roman Catholics are not slow to improve all opportunities and to have wedges ready for every crack. Four sisters of the Order of the Infant Jesus have arrived in Yokohama and taken up their quarters near the American orphanage conducted by Mrs. Pruyn. While wishing good to flow to Japan from all quarters, a lover of Japan's welfare cannot look upon any advance of Romanism in Japan with feelings unmixed with apprehension.

A New Department.—At the last meeting of the trustees of Boston University, it was decided to open, on the sixteenth of September, a College of Music, adapted to the wants of graduates of musical conservatories and academies, and provided with higher and more varied facilities for musical education than have hitherto been obtainable in this country. Dr. E. Tourjee was elected dean of the faculty. Only Yale has any similar department, here being a school of fine arts.

Strange News from Africa.—It is announced that Prof. Blyden, who is an accomplished Arabic scholar, and an African at that, has discovered a well-appointed Mohammedan university in the interior of Africa, about eighty miles from Freetown, in which one thousand persons of both sexes are receiving an education. The Arabic Bible, published in this country, is used as a text book, and a number of dusky feminines are diligently studying the Arabic language.

The Esperance, Father Hyacinthe's paper, which is not dead yet, though the Catholic Telegraph persists in ignoring the fact, charges that the persecutions of the Jews in Roumania were instigated by infidels and atheists. If this is a fact, as seems to be proved, it is a fact well worth noting. No reader of infidel publications needs to be told that there is no intolerance more bitter than that of the men whose lives are spent in denouncing priestcraft. A community in which atheists were in the majority would be a community in which liberty would be reduced to its lowest terms.

Baptist Missions among the Chickasaw and Choctaw Indians meet with success. According to the official report the Choctaws number 17,000, and have forty-eight public schools, with an annual school fund of $26,500. Two-thirds read and write the Choctaw language, and one-third speak English in addition. They cultivate about 30,000 acres of land. The Chickasaws number about 5,000, and have eleven public schools, with an annual school fund of $50,000.

A New Trouble.—Infallibility has not brought quiet to the distracted papacy. By using the decrees of politicians, a packed convention elected an infallibilist as patriarch of the Armenian Catholics in Turkey. The Sultan refuses to approve the election, and allowed the Armenians to elect their patriarch in the usual way, and an anti-infallibilist archbishop was elected. There were thus two factions of Catholics in Turkey; but the Pope has settled the trouble by excommunicating those who dared to resist him.

Wealth of Religious Denominations.—According to the census for 1870 the Methodists of the United States are the richest of the religious denominations, and hold property worth nearly $70,000,000. The Roman Catholics are $10,000,000 behind the Methodists in worldly possessions. The Presbyterians own churches worth about $48,500,000; the Baptists scarcely claim more than $41,500,000; the Episcopalians, supposed to be in cities among the richest of the sects, own in church property but little more than $36,500,000, although they are considerably richer than the Congregationalists, and have more than two dollars for one of the Lutherans.

A "Union of German Catholics" has been formed at Mayence, for the purpose of supporting the church in its conflict with the German empire. An appeal has been addressed by this organization to all good Catholics, in which it is stated that a "systematic persecution of the church" has been begun in Germany, and in which it is asserted that the German government means to destroy not Jesuitism alone, but the Roman Catholic Church. Of course the fact that the government keeps on paying its funds for the support of this church will go for nothing with people who think they are "persecuted" if they are not permitted to have the exclusive control of all sublunary affairs.

Abominations of the Confessional. At the Assize Court of Versailles the Abbé Hue, the Cure of Limes, a parish in the Seine and Oise, was tried on the prosecution of the relatives of four young ladies who had been sent to him to obtain certificates for their first communion, for unpriestly conduct toward them in the confessional box. This conduct was of such a nature that the president turned the public out of court while the evidence was being given. The cure was found guilty and sentenced to the crushing punishment of ten years' imprisonment with hard labor. It should be stated that he justified his proceedings, which will not bear description, by the precepts of a book, sanctioned by the Roman Catholic Church, called the Science of Confession.

At a meeting of the Society of the "Friends of Religious Education," in St. Petersburg, the subject of a possible union of the Old Catholics with the Orthodox Greek Church was carefully considered. The question was raised by a report or address from a foreign Old Catholic committee, and a number of letters were read on the subject. A leader of the Old Catholics wrote that he regarded the union as possible and probable so soon as it becomes known in the West that the Greek Church is nearer to the original character of Christianity than the Latin Church; a conviction which the writer said was more and more being forced upon himself by the study of the early centuries of church history. It seems likely that a serious movement in favor of union will soon be in operation.

An article in the London Athenæum on the "Russian Clergy" gives the number of parishes in Russia as thirty-six thousand, and the aggregate of the incomes of their clergy as about $23,500,000, of which the government contributes $3,000,000, "houses and property belonging to parishes" yield about $500,000, and the rest arises from the contributions of the parishioners. The disestablishment of this church would not, therefore, be a matter of great difficulty, in a financial point of view, inasmuch as less than a quarter of the revenue of the church comes from State aid and endowments. The average income of the clergy of each parish amounts, according to this statement, to about $850, of which the priest gets half, the deacons a quarter, and the "two clerics discharging the duties of sacristan, beadle, ringer, lector," etc., the rest.

The Christian Advocate.

Organ of the Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 1872.

REV. LINUS PARKER, D. D., Editor.

ROBT. J. HARP, PUBLISHER.

OFFICE--No. 112 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

Address, on all matters of business, Rev. R. J. HARP, 112 Camp street, New Orleans.

Address all communications designed for publication to Rev. LINUS PARKER, 112 Camp street, New Orleans.

AGENTS—All the members of the patronizing Conferences.

CONFERENCE PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

FOR ALABAMA CONFERENCE:
REV. W. A. McCARTY.
REV. EDWARD WADSWORTH, D. D.
A. W. LAMPKIN, ESQ.

FOR MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE:
REV. W. H. WATKINS, D. D.
REV. JAMES A. GODFREY.
REV. J. G. JONES.

FOR LOUISIANA CONFERENCE:
REV. WILLIAM V. TUDOR, D. D.
REV. JOHN MATHEWS.
REV. LINUS PARKER, D. D.

REDUCTION.

The New Orleans Christian Advocate will be furnished to subscribers hereafter at the following rates:

For One Year	$2 00
For Six Months	1 25
For Three Months	75

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR

to all ministers of the gospel, traveling or local, and widows of deceased traveling preachers.

FREE ONE YEAR

to any person forwarding to us four new yearly subscribers with EIGHT DOLLARS.

POLITICAL RESPONSIBILITY.

In a country where the votes of the people determine the policy of the government and the character of its rulers, every citizen must share in the grave responsibility. The interests which depend upon a wise exercise of the ballot are so vital that none can be conscientiously inactive or indifferent. The intelligence and piety of the land should come to the front, and make themselves felt in results which are to tell most seriously upon the material and moral welfare of the people. To leave the political affairs of the country to the manipulation and control of the ignorant, the corrupt and the irresponsible, is scarcely less than criminal. From the primary meetings up to the conventions in which the final nomination of candidates is made, the good and solid men of the community should be actively present, and their influence should be felt in deciding upon the tickets which are to be submitted to the suffrages of the people.

These matters are too often left to the unprincipled and professional demagogues, to partisan intriguers, and to the veriest scum and riffraff of society. Intelligence and uprightness are required in the first steps as well as in the final election. It is here that many of our citizens fail in their duty, and as a consequence, if they vote at all, they are compelled to vote for unworthy and incapable men. Patronage is the bane of our politics, and the fruitful source of dishonesty and all manner of villainy. But the people at large have more at stake than the mere politicians, and it is their business to shape affairs for the greatest good to the industry, property, labor and moral interests of the country. Good laws, and good and competent men to administer them, are what the honest and intelligent people want; but these they cannot have unless they do their duty as citizens, and stand in their places at the polls. It is a puerile and foolish thing for men to stand idly lamenting over the political degeneracy of the times, and the ruinous effects of bad legislation upon the morals, trade and general prosperity, while they keep aloof from all personal participation in political matters.

The Christian should have a conscience in reference to his citizenship, and should throw his influence and vote on the side of good morals and the welfare of the whole country. It is a duty which he cannot evade without incurring condemnation. While he is called to pray for those that are in authority, and to contribute religiously to the purity and elevation of public sentiment, it is his bounden duty to aid in shaping political opinion, and to cast his vote in accordance with an enlightened judgment, and a thorough conviction of right. As a religious journal we have nothing to say concerning the men and measures which distingnish the rival parties. The Christian citizen will free himself from partisan prejudice, from sectional narrowness and passion, and from those asperities of spirit which so generally prevail in a great political conflict, and he will be intent upon securing such an administration for the State and nation as will be likely to conduce to their peace and prosperity.

In choosing our legislators we should have an eye not to political traditions and the watchwords of party, but to intelligence, honesty and capacity. Under the accumulated evils of ignorance, incompetency and venality many of our Southern States have been brought to the verge of ruin. All the virtue and integrity left in the country will scarcely suffice for its deliverance. So widespread and deep-rooted is this dishonesty, and the general loosening of moral obligation, that it will take what honor, decency and conscience there is to stem the torrent of corruption. Whatever may be the result, every good man should have the consolation of feeling that he has done what he could. Let him vote as he pleases, but let him vote, and that not for wrath, but for conscience sake. The present political contest may well stir the country to its profoundest depths, and, to guard against the evils to which it is liable, all the true character and virtuous talent should be enlisted.

THE FALL OF THE LEAVES.

The season has come again when the loaves are dropping into their autumnal graves. It seems but yesterday that they opened out of the spring buds, and spread their soft green palms to the sunshine. But it is months ago that they were born—a lifetime in the vegetable world has nearly passed, and, having served their generation, they are now about to fall on sleep. Many have fallen prematurely; and herein they are a type of human mortality—fallen, while yet green and unwithered, by the hand of violence, or torn by some rude blast. Thus perish the young and the strong—dying without fading, and preserved in memory, as in a herbarium, ever young and beautiful.

The prelude of death in the leaves is wonderfully gorgeous and impressive. All the brilliant tints are lavished upon them. All the splendors of coloring are displayed in the forests as they are about to be unclothed. The death-robes, woven of purple and gold, far surpass the liveries of spring and summer. They seem to be clad for a glorious translation rather than for a bed in the dust. They are arrayed in royal apparel, as if enjoying a triumph, and as if marching in the pomp and grandeur of conscious victory. Fading "as a leaf" brings with it other thoughts than those of mere frailty and decay. The revelation of life and immortality invests old age with a peculiar glory, and the spiritual life in its maturity glows with a light of supernal radiance. The frosts of age, like those of autumn upon the foliage, beautify while they destroy, and life winds up in a blaze of manifold colorings which neither spring nor summer could produce. The fall of the leaf is often tranquil. Its hold is released by the gentlest zephyr, and no torn and bleeding fibers indicate that nature has sustained a violent shock. It is death in its gentler aspects, coming when expected, and in harmony with all the moods and aspects of the world around. The breeze that severs, like unseen angels' wings, bears it softly and slowly to its resting place.

The fate of the leaves, however and whenever they fall, is the type of a universal mortality. They all go sooner or later, and the evergreens differ from others only in this: that they are ever dying, just as the human race is ever wasting and renewing its life. Some autumn leaves, though withered and sere, hold most tenaciously to the bough, resisting the storms which have scattered all their companions; but they yield at length to the inexorable law. The hour comes when not one of these myriads which came forth with the spring buds is left. It is even so with man. The living leaves are rehearsing in his ears the lesson of his mortality, and, in their quiet way, are telling him what he likes not to hear or heed. Archetype, type or parable, their language is plain. With no clamorous voice, and with no vociferous cries, like the stars, only with another mission, "there is no speech nor language where their voice is not heard." The fall comes to us with this among its other annual sermons. It speaks in the pomp of its unapproachable hues, the serenely-ebbing life of all the wealth of foliage with which the trees of the grove and wood are adorned, and in the sure but beautiful death which is overtaking every leaf.

There is a moral leaf that does not wither, a spiritual tree that is planted by the river of waters. But as to our material life, in this world "we all do fade as a leaf;" the marks of decay are upon us, and the touch of autumn's breath tinges every face. It may not have been so with the trees of Paradise, and it will not be so with those trees which grow upon the banks of the river of life. There is a land where the falling leaves and their lessons have passed into history, and where there shall be no more death. It is to our world of sin and death that the fading leaf is confined, where the symbol is realized, and where the warning is needed. And thus, while it preaches death, it leads our thoughts farther, to a blessedness and life altogether in contrast with the brevity and vanity of the present. The peroration glides unconsciously and inevitably into the realms of life eternal.

There happier bowers than Eden's bloom,
Nor sin nor sorrow know;
Blest'd seats! through rude and stormy scenes
I onward press to you.

DR. LOVICK PIERCE.

The Southern Christian Advocate of September 4 contains the following letter from Dr. Pierce. We have not a reader or subscriber who will not be glad to hear from the venerable preacher.

I hardly know what to do, whether to write my own story, or let my anxious friends glean from various reports my present state and future prospects, but conclude my own report will be most satisfactory. I am evidently, in many respects, much better. But my asthmatic cough continues to arrest and control my vocal powers. I dare not attempt to preach—can pray by being very slow and careful—think I could talk ten or fifteen minutes without damage, but do not feel disposed to experiment at present. I am, compared with my former days, a wreck, but with very little personal evidence of it; therefore I have some hope I may recuperate enough to go out and preach again. I have always prayed that if I lived to be an old man, I might have mind and memory and strength enough to be a man still. My prayer in these respects has been wonderfully answered. But I loved to preach, and it may be that with my love of it, which made all orders welcome, it has become needful, in order to know what was in my heart, and whether I would do all God's word or not, that I should be ordered into silence. And, blessed be the Lord, I am trying to be as much resigned to silence as I was to service.

I am deeply affected at the evidences of high regard for me and my long life of labor. These, in their most touching forms, come to me in private letters. I am honored in these things above my merit. Oh that I did deserve these honors! I have always desired to deserve them, but always felt I did not. It is too late to win them now. I have this day (August 27) bid farewell to my grandson, Rev. Thomas R. Pierce, son of Rev. James L. Pierce, who volunteers for the Western Conference, and whose face I of course will never see again. But he feels he is divinely called not merely to preach, but to preach the gospel in the regions beyond. He leaves the dead to bury their dead.

While I feel it an honor to have a grandson in Colorado—doing as I did: planting the church not in the city full, but in the forest wild—I must still say, old and feeble, and shaking hands for the last time, it was overwhelming. I was too weak to shed tears, and I said: "Good-by, Tom; do your best." I have no more to say. Continue to pray for me. My postoffice is still at Sparta. I am trying to get well.

WE ALL HAVE a direct personal relation toward God, and cannot in any way avoid its responsibility.

MINISTERIAL SUPPLY.

The Richmond Christian Advocate furnishes the following suggestive statements:

The whole number of preachers admitted on trial in our church last year was 245. The whole number of members given in the General Minutes is 608,750. By making the calculation any one can see that for about every 2,500 members we had one preacher sent up to the Annual Conferences.

We have in all our Annual Conferences 240 presiding elders' districts, and we therefore received on trial a little over one preacher for every district in our work. We also give the average number of members required in the Northern Church to furnish one preacher. There being in that church 1,421,323 members, and the number of preachers received last year on trial being 793, the proportion is about one preacher to every 1,800 members.

These are startling facts. Preachers and people should ponder them. We have looked into the Conference reports for the Methodist churches, North and South, and here set down a few facts. In this (the Virginia) Conference we have 41,755 members; at our last session we received six young men on trial—that is, out of nearly 7,000 members of the church only one man was found who felt called to enter the itinerant field. In the Holston Conference there are 30,920 members; 10 men were received on trial, every 3,000 members giving a preacher to the work. North Carolina Conference, with a membership of 46,867, sent up eight to be received on trial—one for every 5,858 members. North Georgia Conference did better; with a membership of 44,274, she sent up 17 men—about one for every 2,600. South Georgia has 24,452 members; she gave six young men to the work—one for every 4,000 members. Alabama Conference reported 24,200 members, and sent up 4 preachers—one for every 6,000. North Alabama did better; with a membership of 24,174, she gave 12 preachers to the work. Missouri did better still; from her 21,880 members she gave the work 17 additional preachers. Tennessee, out of a membership of 36,459, sent 15 young men into the vineyard.

Let us now turn over the General Minutes of the Northern Methodist Church. We take the older Conferences, where there are no such causes in operation to increase the number of applicants as exist in the Southern work, and in our estimate we make no distinction between members and probationers, but include all. Newark Conference, with 29,589 members, furnished 7 preachers—one for about every 4,000 members. New York Conference reports 41,889 members, and gave to the work last year 5 preachers—one for every 8,000 members. Think of this! Cincinnati Conference, out of a membership of 34,548, gave 8 men to the cause; it required more than 4,000 members to furnish one preacher. Illinois Conference reported 37,419 members, and furnished 14 recruits; this was doing better than her sisters. In Indiana it required more than 4,000 members to furnish 1 preacher—31,007 members, 7 received on trial. Vermont Conference, out of 11,663 members, found 3 to give to the itinerancy. Her neighbor, Maine, did a little better; out of 12,954, she sent 9 to the work. Pittsburg, their largest Conference, out of 54,090 members, gave 20 men to the work.

BISHOP PIERCE AND DR. MCFERRIN.—The St. Louis Christian Advocate says: Bishop Pierce reached our city on Thursday afternoon of last week, taking his departure on Friday evening for Atchison, where he dedicated a new house of worship on Sabbath. He will preside at the Western Conference, to convene at Nebraska City on the fourth instant. His nephew, Thomas Pierce, accompanied him to join that Conference, on transfer from the North Georgia Conference. We are pleased to have received reports from excellent sources of the talents and piety of this young brother, and from himself to have heard of a sense of special obligation felt by him to enter that broad and needy field of labor. He will be welcomed by the Conference, and we wish for him a prosperous ministerial career. Dr. McFerrin accompanied the Bishop, to attend the Western and the Missouri Conferences; thence to return to Nashville to accompany Bishop Wightman in visitation of the Indian Mission Conference and the Conferences in Arkansas.

REV. A. L. SMITH, of the South Carolina Conference, died at Spartanburg, August 25. He had been on the itinerant work for twenty years.

REV. GEORGE SMITH, of the Missouri Conference, died on Sunday, September 1. He was a preacher of fifty years' standing.

BISHOP MARVIN.

Bishop Marvin, says the St. Louis Christian Advocate, reached the city on Thursday, on his return from an episcopal visitation of our churches in Montana. He has traveled and preached much, but has not, he says, felt fatigue, which he attributes to the invigorating climate. He has promised for our columns a report of the condition and prospects of our cause there. We shall not anticipate it, except to announce a very great achievement and a happy result in the raising a collection of over $3,000 to discharge the indebtedness upon the house of worship at Helena. Only one of the preachers, Bro. Stateler, will attend the Annual Conference, in consequence of the great distance and expense of travel. The Bishop assembled the preachers at Helena for an informal Conference, which was greatly useful and a delightful reunion. He spent a Sabbath at Denver City, and gives us very agreeable accounts of Brother and Sister Morrison, both of their personal welfare and the prosperity of their labors. On Monday he left for Nashville to preside at the Illinois Conference, commencing its session on the fourth instant.

A CONTRIBUTOR to the Western Christian Advocate gives the following statements of religious matters in the Island of Jamaica:

Church of England, twenty-eight churches, sixty-one chapels. These are capable of seating thirty thousand five hundred persons. The ordinary attendance is fifteen thousand. Including a provisional bishop and two archdeacons, there are sixty-two of the clergy. The Church of England, in Jamaica, has been recently disestablished. The stipends of the present incumbents are paid by the government only while they continue in the island, or during life. Aside from this, all State aid ceases. The communicants are about fourteen thousand.

The Wesleyans have twenty-nine ministers and sixteen thousand members. They have eighty-three chapels, with sitting capacity for thirty-eight thousand persons, and an average attendance of thirty-five thousand. Their church property is worth $500,000, upon the whole of which the indebtedness will not exceed $15,000. The contributions for religious and educational purposes average $2.50 per year per member.

The Presbyterians have twenty-nine churches; ordinary attendance, seven thousand five hundred. They have twenty-two ministers.

The Baptists have ninety-eight chapels, with capacity for fifty-four thousand persons. Forty-three thousand usually attend. Thirty-seven ministers, mostly natives.

There are various other religious bodies, less numerous than those named. All these churches sustain schools as a regular part of their church work. These schools are supported in part by the government, in part by fees, and in part by church collections and appropriations.

In the Church of England, the Wesleyan, Presbyterian and Baptist churches, and in some of the others, the ministers preach in gowns! In the Wesleyan churches, Wesley's abridged Church of England service is read. At first this seemed rather offensive to me, but now I am very fond of it. I could wish that the custom prevailed in the United States. All the hymns are lined out by the officiating minister. Though there are organs and choirs in many of the churches, all the congregations sing. The singing is very hearty and full of harmony. The tunes are the old English tunes, such as American Methodists were accustomed to sing fifty years ago. The Sunday morning service usually lasts from eleven o'clock until one. There is much of simplicity and fervor among the Wesleyans. They evidently enjoy religion in its life and power.

FUNERAL OF DR. BOND.—The Baltimore Sun says: "The funeral of Dr. Thomas E. Bond, who died on Monday, at his country seat, 'Kalmia,' Harford county, took place yesterday afternoon, from his late city residence, No. 82 Read street. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Drs. Duncan, Munsey, Holland and Backus, in the presence of a large number of those who had formerly known Dr. Bond during his life. The following gentlemen acted as pall-bearers: Drs. F. Donaldson, James Stewart, Lindley Ellicott, E. Hall Richardson, F. Murdock, S. Gittings, and Messrs. Henry M. Warfield, James Keech and John Gill. The remains were interred in the family lot in Greenmount Cemetery."

ENVY, if surrounded on all sides by the brightness of another's prosperity, like the scorpion confined within a circle of fire, will sting itself to death.—Colton.

IT IS A great mistake to set up our own standard of right and wrong, and judge people accordingly.

Central Texas Correspondence.

MR. EDITOR: Texas is at present in a state of most rapid development. The current year will, as we suppose, do more for her in this direction than any two of the past. Railroads are traversing the State almost as if by magic. This is rapidly bringing the finest uplands on the earth into immediate connection with the markets of the world, and hence enhancing their value immensely—their real far more rapidly than their commercial value. But other interests of the State are progressing with an equal pace. The people are waking up to the importance of schools. Many are longing for schools of the highest order to be fully established among us, where our children may find such advantages that they need not leave the State to seek them elsewhere. Wonderful strides have been made in this direction within five years past; yet we lack much of reaching the goal. Oh! that the spirit of Drew and other such wealthy men of the North might be caught by some of the Lord's stewards in the South, who are hoarding his goods by the thousand, some of them by the million. For "hoarding!" My pen trembled as I restrained it from writing "embezzling." Would it have been the wrong word, or in the wrong place?

Another mark of rapid advancement is the fact that nomadic pursuits are rapidly giving place to agricultural. Twenty years ago Texas was only a great pasture, and the fences were only for stock pens. Now fences inclose farms, and stock is rapidly backing out, like the buffalo and Indian, to the freer prairies of the farther West. Indeed, in some places the neighbors have adopted a law that no hogs shall be permitted to run loose, so that they need not fence against them. There is no doubt that in a few years the State will pass a general stock law for all the counties where the majority prefer it; so that fences will be built not to keep stock out, but to keep it in. It will be adopted by many counties—perhaps all between the Trinity and the Colorado. Then a new impetus will be given to farming, and lands will suddenly and greatly rise in market value.

Another cause of our great prospective development this year is in the fact that there is a vast surplus of corn in the State, and it is unprecedentedly cheap. This cheapness is owing to the fact that the cotton crop is so near a failure. There will not be gathered, on an average, a half bale to the acre, perhaps not much over a third, and to the further fact that an immense crop of wheat has been grown. I see that the crop of the State has been estimated at a million of bushels. The unusual abundance and low price of breadstuffs, and the very low price of beef and cattle is, we hear, inducing an immense immigration.

What appears to us the most favorable feature is the certainty that our State government will in a few months be in the hands of white men. Then we shall be the freest and, if we will be, the happiest people in the South, with a future so vast, so full of promise that we fail to comprehend its import.

If this communication were not already too long, I would point out the greatest of all—our improvement in the religion of Jesus.

S. D. AKIN.

SEPTEMBER 2, 1872.

WHITWORTH FEMALE COLLEGE.

NOTE FROM PRESIDENT JOHNSON.

MR. EDITOR: I desire to say to my friends and brethren, through your columns, that protracted sickness of over six weeks has kept me from attending several appointments which I had made.

I am now at Brown's Wells, and am rapidly gaining my strength, and will be ready for school duties on the twenty-fifth instant.

Yours fraternally,

H. F. JOHNSON.

BROWN'S WELLS, MISS., Sept. 3, 1872.

THE LORD takes up none but the forsaken, makes none healthy but the sick, gives sight to none but the blind, makes none alive but the dead, sanctifies none but sinners, and gives wisdom to none but the foolish.

WASHINGTON'S ELECTION.

On a Tuesday morning, the fourteenth of April, 1789, a venerable old gentleman with fine eyes, an amiable countensnce, and long white locks, rode into the lawn of Mount Vernon, coming from Alexandria. Two gentlemen of the latter town accompanied him. It was between ten and eleven o'clock. A negro man sallied out to take the nags, and the old gentleman, entering the mansion, was received by Mrs. Washington.

"Why, Mr. Thompson," said the good lady, "where are you from, and how are your people?"

"From New York, madam," answered the old man. "I come to Mount Vernon upon a good errand—for the country at least. The general has been elected President of the United States under the new constitution, and I am the bearer of the happy tidings in a letter from John Langdon, president of the Senate."

The general was out visiting his farm, however, and the guests were entertained for two or three hours, as we take care of our visitors in the country now-a-days. A glass of the general's favorite Madeira, imported in the cases, was probably not the worst provision made for them, and the cheerful gossip of Mrs. Washington, who had known Mr. Thompson, and visited his house in Philadelphia, helped to enliven the time. This grave and respected old man was the link between the new government at New York, and the new magistrate at Mount Vernon. Charles Thompson had been the secretary, through all its eventful career, of the Continental Congress, which had directed the cause of the colonies from desultory revolt to independence and union, and now he had ridden over the long and difficult roads to apprise the first President of the republic of the wishes of his countrymen.

At one o'clock General Washington rode into the lawn of Mount Vernon, in appearance what Custis, his adopted son, has described: An old gentleman, riding alone, in plain drab clothes, broad-brimmed white hat, a hickory switch in his hand, and carrying an umbrella with a long staff, which is attached to the saddle bow. The umbrella was used to shelter him from the sun, for his skin was tender and easily affected by its rays. Washington greeted Mr. Thompson with grave cordiality, as was his wont, inquiring for his family, and, divining already the object of his visit, broke the seal of John Langdon's official letter. Dinner followed, and, while the visitors retired to converse or stroll about the grounds, the President elect wrote a letter to the president of the Senate, and sent it forthwith to the postoffice at Alexandria by a servant.

"MOUNT VERNON, 14th April, 1789."

"SIR: I had the honor to receive your official communication by the hand of Mr. Secretary Thompson about one o'clock this day. Having concluded to obey the important and flattering call of my country, and having been impressed with the idea of the expediency of my being with Congress at as early a period as possible, I propose to commence my journey on Thursday morning, which will be the day after to-morrow."

This done, the rest of the day passed in conferences between Washington and his wife, in the preparation of his baggage for the not unexpected journey, while, meantime, the distinguished guest was amused by the young official household in the library and grounds. There was another female dear to the newly-elected President, and he kept her in filial remembrance at the very moment of his greatest promotion.

It was growing late in the evening of the day on which our chapter opens, when Washington mounted his horse, and, followed by his man Billy, rode off into the woods of Virginia with speed. His destination was Fredericksburg, nearly forty miles away, with two ferries between—one at the Occoquan, the other at the Rappahannock. His purpose was to see his old mother, now about eighty years of age, and drawing near the grave. It had been long since he had visited her, but he could not feel equal to the responsibilities of his great office until he should receive her blessing. Few candidates for the presidency in our day would leave a warm mansion, filled with congratulating friends, to ride all night through the chilly April mists to say adieu to a very old woman.

But thus piously the administration of Washington began. He passed old Ponick Church, of which he was a vestryman—soon to tumble to ruins—crossed the roaring Occoquan, and by its deep and picturesque gorge were passed the waters of the future bloody Bull Run, and by night he saw the old churches of Aquia and Potomac rise against the sky; he saw the decaying seaport of Dumfries. In the morning he was at Fredericksburg, and his mother was in his arms. Marches, perils, victories, honors, power surrendered in that look of helpless love, too deep for pride to show through its tears, and the President of the new States was to be a new-born babe again, no dearer, no greater.

He was just in time, for she had but the short season of summer to live, and, like many a dying mother, life seemed upheld, at fourscore and five, by waiting in love until he should come. History is ceremonious as to what passed between them, but the parting was solemn and touching, like the event. "You will see me no more," she said; "my great age and disease warn me that I shall not be long in this world. But go, George, to fulfill the destiny which heaven appears to assign you. Go, my son, and may heaven's and your mother's blessing be with you always."

Passing from that dear pathetic presence the President elect, perhaps, did not hear the plandits of the people in the streets of Fredericksburg. He rode all the day by the road he had come, and reached Mount Vernon before evening, having exhibited his power of endurance at the age of fifty-seven by riding eighty miles in twenty-four hours. His good wife had made all ready; the equipage and baggage were at the door next morning, and, leaving Mrs. Washington and most of the household behind, he set out for New York at ten o'clock on Thursday, the sixteenth of April, accompanied by Thompson and Humphreys. The new State was waiting anxiously for its magistrate. George Alfred Townsend, in Chicago Tribune.

HYDROPHOBIA.—ITS CURE.

For the information of the public in general, and the medical profession in particular, I take the liberty of transmitting for publication in your paper the subjoined private letter on the cure of hydrophobia, just received from a physician residing in the State of Michigan.

The frequent occurrence of the disease in this community, together with the settled conviction, in the minds of medical men and others, that it is totally incurable when thoroughly developed, induces me thus to make public that which was only intended for private perusal. The doctor and the public will readily pardon this breach of etiquette when they are assured that the motive is purely philanthropic.

Respectfully,

R. C. RICHARDSON, M. D.

"FLINT, MICH., May 15, 1872.

"DR. R. C. RICHARDSON—Dear Sir: In reply to your letter of inquiry in regard to my cases of hydrophobia, I would say that I have had the genuine cases of the disease, both resulting from the bites of rabid dogs and both manifesting all the symptoms of that terrible malady, and both recovered and are now well.

"The treatment was morphia and castor in large doses, injecting with the hypodermic syringe one grain of morphine every three hours, and giving half-drachm doses of pulverized castor.

"I have had conflicting theories about the cure. I have thought that castor, being an animal production, we may have in that an antidote; but again, I am more inclined, like yourself, to think the disease culminates in the system, and if you can keep the patient up for a certain time by proper doses of these remedies, he escapes, as you say, with his life.

"In the last case that I had the wound made by the bite of the dog became very irritable, and broke out anew a few days before the symptoms, or rather the convulsions, came on; and all the symptoms of hydrophobia—such as frothing at the mouth, convulsions on seeing water, etc.—were developed. The patient would often get away from five strong men, whom it took to handle him. The other young man was kept in straitjackets until the convulsions were overcome.

"I am positive, doctor, that I have cured the genuine cases of hydrophobia, and believe that I can cure any case with the remedies named; for there is not a particle of doubt that the cases were hydrophobia. In regard to the administration of chloroform, it was only used in the last case, and then no longer than my arrival. The friends had given up all hopes of his recovery, and were giving it with the object of alleviating his sufferings while he lived. But I think the action of chloroform in the system would retard the good effect of the other remedies, and therefore would not advise their conjoint use.

"Immediately after my arrival (having to go twenty miles to visit the patient) I injected a full grain of sulphate of morphia, and in ten minutes he was as quiet as you would wish and took the castor without hesitation.

Respectfully yours,

SAMUEL M. AXFORM, M. D."

Picayune.

A CHICAGO congregation pricked up its ears when the minister said, "I have land to sell," but dropped off to sleep again when he added, "the beautiful land on high."

JEWISH MORTALITY.—According to Dr. Stallard's work on "London Pauperism," the mortality of Jewish children under five years of age is much less than among other children. There is no hereditary syphilis, and scarcely any scrofula. The mother engages in no employment that takes her away from her children. From one year to five the Jews lose only ten per cent., while the Christians lose fourteen. The average life of the Christian is thirty-seven years—of the Jew, forty-nine years. Beyond sixty years only a quarter of a Christian population will be alive, but a quarter of a Jewish population will exceed seventy-one years. In Prussia the Christian population requires fifty-one years to double itself, but the Jewish population will double itself in forty-one years.—Medical Record.

Agt's & Publisher's Department

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS OF LETTERS and Funds, Received by Mail, for the week ending Sept. 7, 1872:

A—Edward Ahlen, American S S Union, Wm T Ashford, J E Adams $8, C G Andrews, S D Aiken, D Appleton & Co.

B—D P Bradford $2, J M Best, M G Brown, W W Bingham, H P Bowen $9, Mrs E O Burgoyne, Cecele Burgeois 60 cts, Saml Brown, E H Butler & Co, T G Brucking, Milton Bradley & Co, M L Banks 25 cts.

C—J E Cobb 2 lots, Robt F Clement, A F Clark $8.35, Claxton, Remsen & Haffelfinger, Clarke & Russell, Henry Conner, George W Carleton & Co, W W Calder $35, Croft & Phillips, R H Crawford $5.40.

D—P H Dieffenwierth $29.25, Dodd & Mead, H A L Douglass.

E—W F Easterling, F E Evans 50 cts, T P Edgerton.

F—E N Freshman, J W Finley, A J Frantz.

G—J Gillott & Son $15, Jas Graves $5, W Grafton & Co, Goold & Lincoln 2 lots, Geo W Graves.

H—M Helott, P Howard $10, E J Hale & Son, H D Hostler, R H Harris $2, W B Harper, J J Haynie.

I—R S Isbell.

J—Horace Jewell $47.63, H F Johnston, C W Jones.

L—A C Littlejohn 2 lots, Wm H Leith, H P Lewis, W E M Llafield, Lee, Shepherd & Dillingham 2 lots, J B Lippincott, W B Lewis $6.

M—T H McClendon, Albert Menet, Mrs M J Montleth, Manly & Co $4.85, J S McCarver $63.63.

N—Robt D Norsworthy.

P—U B Phillips $16.50, Pott, Young & Co.

R—E E F Ross 2 lots, A H Redford 3 lots, J K Randall, Mrs M W Read $10, Jas Robinson, J C Randle, Geo P Rowell & Co, A D F Randolph & Co.

S—H F Shaller $20, J W Scherinerhorn & Co, J H Stevens, J H Simmons, Wm Shepard $5, E E Smiley, Wm Shepherd 2 lots, James Shanks, T Stearns $2, J Stearn, Samuel H Schroeder, Scribner, Armstrong & Co, Scott & Kancler.

T—C F Threadgill, M S Thrall.

U—U S Advising Agency.

W—W S Winters, J Woodbridge $13.53, T Ward White, John F Wynn, J W Walford, Francis Walker $2, F C Wilkes.

MR. E. E. F. ROSS, our resident advertising agent, is now on a brief tour through the West and North, and we commend him to the attention of our patrons, and shall be thankful for courtesies extended to him. They are assured that Mr. Ross has no other business, but devotes his entire time to the paper, and is entitled to all the consideration of one of its business corps. Mr. Ross may be found at the Bingham House, corner of Eleventh and Market streets, Philadelphia.

CONFERENCE REGISTER.

Conference.	Place.	Time.	Bishop.
Pacific	Gilroy	Sep. 18.	McTyeire.
W. Virginia	Parkersb'g	Sep. 18	Kavanaugh
W. St. Louis	Nevada C'y	Oct. 2.	Pierce.
Louisville	Lebanon	Oct. 2.	Marvin.
Indian Miss.	Ocunigee	Oct. 2.	Wightman.
Holston	Chattano'a	Oct. 2.	Doggett.
St Louis	Arcadia	Oct. 16	Pierce.
Arkansas	Bentonville	Oct. 16.	Wightman.
Tennessee	Nashville	Oct. 16	Doggett.
Los Angeles	Los Nietos	Oct. 16	McTyeire.
N. W. Texas	Belton	Oct. 23.	Keener.
White River	Augusta	Oct. 30.	Wightman.
Trinity	Sul. Springs	Nov. 6.	Keener.
Memphis	Somerville	Nov. 20.	Wightman.
N. Alabama	Tuskaloosa	Nov 20.	Doggett.
East Texas	Tyler	Nov 20.	Keener.
Virginia	Petersburg	Nov. 20.	Paine.
N. Georgia	Atlanta	Nov. 27.	Marvin.
N. Missis'ppi	Corinth	Nov. 27.	Kavanaugh
Little Rock	Pine Bluff	Dec. 4	Wightman.
Texas	Bryan	Dec. 4.	Keener.
N. Carolina	Raleigh	Dec. 4.	Paine.
S. Georgia	Thomasv'le	Dec. 11.	Marvin.
Mississippi	Brandon	Dec. 11	Kavanaugh
Alabama	Eufaula	Dec. 11.	Doggett.
West Texas	Victoria	Dec. 18	Keener.
S. Carolina	Anderson	Dec. 18	Paine.
Louisiana	N. Orleans	Jan. 8	Pierce.
Florida	Fernandina	Jan. 8.	Marvin.
Baltimore	Baltimore	Mar. 6.	Paine.

Married.

At the residence of the bride's father, near Bryan, Brazos county, Texas, on the twenty-eighth of August, Mr. J. W. FINDLEY, late of Georgia, to Miss MAGGIE P. GRAVES, late of Louisiana.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

The "Dog Days" and their Danger.—At this season of the year the blood is apt to become impure, the appetite poor, the skin sallow, the body enfeebled, the system relaxed, making it susceptible to attacks of chills and fevers, rheumatism, eruptions of the skin, and the development of the effects of the injudicious use of calomel. All this trouble may be avoided by the use of a few bottles of Dr. Tutt's Sarsaparilla. It is harmless in its effects, but a powerful enemy to diseases. Try it, and you will find it a friend in need. se12 tt

Dr. Tutt's Hair Dye Acts Instantaneously.

The Equitable Life Assurance Society, New York.

Assets, $18,000,000. Incorp'd, $8,000,000.

Branch office—33 CAMP STREET.

A. P. CLEVELAND,
General Agent.

fe8 1y

Caution!—Every genuine box of DR. MCLANE'S LIVER PILLS bears the signature of Fleming Brothers, Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, and their private United States stamp. ☞ Take no other; the market is full of imitations.

It is the popular verdict that people who have been accustomed to the use of Bitters or Cordials are obliged eventually to resort to McLane's Liver Pills for permanent relief. ap25 6m

Price's Celebrated Stomach Bitters.—The Great Vegetable Restorative and Life-Giving Principle. These Bitters are a genuine restorative, since it has been before the public as a Tonic (October, 1869,) the quantity sold has been some 150,000 dozen, and in every instance given the greatest satisfaction. For dyspepsia, general debility, chills and fever, nervous affections, torpor of the liver, constipation of the bowels, fever and ague, and all choleraic maladies, these Bitters will be found invaluable to all who desire a stimulating Tonic, and are particularly recommended to all persons traveling, by land or sea. Wherever introduced it has become a standard article. It is the best and purest Tonic offered. As a Tonic and Cordial it has no equal among stomachics.

It is also a great blood purifier, a life-giving principle, and a perfect renovator of the system. No one can take these Bitters long and remain unwell. A single trial will convince any one of the merits claimed for them. Sold by grocers, druggists and dealers throughout the South.

Address JAMES W. PRICE & Co., sole manufacturers and proprietors, Lock Box 166, New Orleans, Louisiana. se5 2m

Mrs. Whitcomb's Syrup.—The great soothing remedy. Price only 25 cents. Gives rest to the mother and health to the child. Sold by druggists. jy18 1y

Have your Printing and Binding Done at

THE PELICAN JOB OFFICE,

113 and 114 Poydras St., New Orleans. ja18 1y

Use Dr. Henry's World's Tonic and BLOOD PURIFIER.—It is the great household remedy, pleasant to take, yet potent for the prevention and cure of diseases. It is better than Bitters, Cordials, Buchu or Sarsaparilla. Sold by druggists. jy18 1y

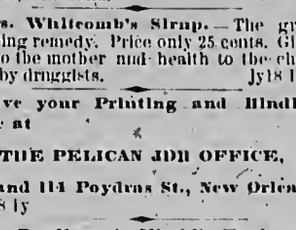
Dr. Henry's Root and Plant Pills.—Mild yet thorough; no nausea or griping; entirely vegetable; great Liver remedy. Price, 25 cents. Sold by druggists. jy18 1y

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

BIG GEST COMMISSIONS on Standard Works for all Prominent Benevolent Organizations. 100,000 sold. Masonic, Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias Red Men, Mechanics, Temperance, etc. Sale unrivaled by anything heretofore offered. Agents with no experience are selling 20 Pictures and upward a day. One of our agents has cleared over $1,200 in three months. The Brethren welcome these works. Our inducements are UNPRECEDENTED. Our commissions are positively one-fourth larger than any other house does or CAN offer. Send for circular of Order to which you belong, giving No. of your Lodge, and state where you saw this advertisement. You will certainly engage with us.

J. HALE POWERS & CO.,
Fraternity Publishers,
my9 7m Cincinnati, Ohio.

Relief for the Sick and Afflicted.



SOUTHERN HEPATIC PILLS.

Unsurpassed for the cure of Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint and all other Bilious diseases. Call on MRS. GEO. W. DEEMS, No 28 South Calhoun street, Baltimore, Maryland. Explanatory circulars sent on application. For sale by E. J. HART & CO., se12 3m 73 Tchoupitoulas st., New Orleans.

ESTABLISHED IN 1843.
GUNS! GUNS! GUNS!

Breech and Muzzle-loading Guns, Rifles, Pistols, Sportsmen's Apparatus, Ammunition and Material for Gunmakers, etc., wholesale and retail. Guns made to order or repaired in the best manner.

ALEXANDER McCOMAS,
se12 2m 51 South Calvert st., Baltimore, Md.

$5 TO $20 PER DAY.—Agents Wanted. All classes of working people, of either sex, young or old, make more money at work for us in their spare moments, or all the time, than at anything else. Particulars free. Address G. STINSON & Co., se12 1y Portland, Maine.

Huntsville Female College,
HUNTSVILLE, ALABAMA.

NINETEENTH SESSION BEGINS SEPTEMBER 4, 1872. Eight Departments; four male, eleven lady teachers and officers; splendid parlor outfit; new furniture; gas, water, heating, bathing fixtures; grounds and scenery charming; climate delightful; health unrivaled; course liberal; Music (piano, organ, zithern, guitar, violin) by eminent professors and teachers; native French teacher; calisthenics free; art cheap. Board and English tuition per annum, $250.

REV. GEO. W. F. PRICE, President.
Late President Tuskegee Female College.
se5 1m

IMMIGRANTS FURNISHED.

I WILL LEAVE, ON THE NEXT TRIP out of the Steamer St. Louis, for ENGLAND, and will furnish to those who will forward their orders to me. For particulars I refer all persons to Messrs. Meeker, Knox & Co., 49 Carondelet street, New Orleans.

English Farm Laborers and Servants

se5 1m GEORGE TORREY.

ARMSTRONG, CATOR & CO.,

IMPORTERS AND MANUFACTURERS OF

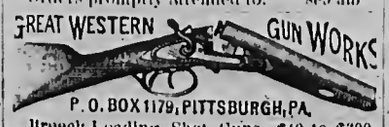
Ribbons, Millinery and Straw Goods,

WHITE GOODS, LINEN LACE AND EMBROIDERY,

Nos. 217 and 219 Baltimore Street,

BALTIMORE, MARYLAND.

Orders promptly attended to. se5 3m



P. O. BOX 1179, PITTSBURGH, PA.

Breech-Loading Shot Guns, $40 to $300. Double Shot Guns, $8 to $150. Single Guns, $3 to $20. Rifles, $8 to $75. Revolvers, $6 to $25. Send stamp for Price List. Army Guns, Revolvers, etc., etc., bought or traded for. au15 1yeow

FALL WORK FOR AGENTS!

"UP THE HEIGHTS OF

FAME AND FORTUNE.

And the Routes Taken by the Climbers to Become Men of Mark."

This is the title of our splendid new octavo, 700 pages of most instructive reading, bristling with facts and alive with fresh interest, to be ready shortly. Exclusive territory given; name district you desire, and state experience in business. Send $1 for prospectus book. Write at once for descriptive circular to WM. H. MOORE & CO., se5 6t Publishers, Cincinnati.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

ST CLAIR HOTEL,
BALTIMORE, MARYLAND.

This new and beautiful Hotel is now open to the public. It is located on MONUMENT SQUARE, convenient alike to the business man and the tourist. It is the only hotel in Baltimore embracing elevator, suits of rooms with baths, and all other conveniences.

To accommodate Merchants, Commercial Travelers and others, the rates will be $2 per day for rooms on the fourth and fifth floors, making the difference on account of the elevation. Ordinary transient rates for lower rooms, $3 per day.

Guests desiring to take advantage of the above rates will please notify the clerk before rooms are assigned. An improved elevator for the use of the guests is constantly running from six A. M. until eleven P. M.

se5 2m HARRY H. FOGLE, Manager.

WIRE RAILING AND ORNAMENTAL WIRE WORKS.

DUFUR & CO.,

No. 36 North Howard St., Baltimore,

manufacture Wire Railing for Cemeteries, Balconies, etc.; Sieves, Fenders, Cages, Sand and Coal Screens, Woven Wire, etc. Also Iron Bedsteads, Chairs, etc. se5 1y

MUSICAL BOXES,

PLAYING FROM ONE TO ONE HUNDRED Airs, and costing from $2.50 to $3,000. All sizes, styles and prices. Send stamp for catalogue.

MAGIC LANTERNS,

specially for Sunday schools, lectures, etc. A priced and illustrated catalogue sent on receipt of stamp.

W. MITCHELL McALLISTER,
an29 3m 728 Chestnut st., Phila.

LANDRETH'S SEEDS

Have spoken their own praise for upward of three-quarters of a century.

Landreth's Rural Register and Almanac will be mailed to all who apply.

DAVID LANDRETH & SON,
an29 1y Philadelphia.

BARLOW'S INDIGO BLUE is the cheapest and best article in the market for BLUEING CLOTHES.

The genuine has both Barlow and Wiltberger's names on the label, and is put up at Wiltberger's Drug Store, No 233 North Second street, Philadelphia. For sale by grocers and druggists.

D. S. WILTBERGER,
an29 3m Proprietor.

GARDEN SEEDS,

FIELD SEEDS,

FLOWER SEEDS.

Grown largely by ourselves, on our own grounds, near Haddonfield, New Jersey.

COLLINS, DOWNS & CO.,
Warehouse, 1113 Market street,
Philadelphia, Pa.

Catalogue and Price-List furnished on application. The trade supplied on liberal terms. an22 3m

HOMER COLLEGE.

THE SCHOLASTIC EXERCISES OF THE Thirteenth Annual Term of Homer College begin on the First Tuesday of SEPTEMBER next, 1872.

Tuition at the rate of $5 per month. Board from $12 to $15 per month.

Students received in regular classes only, and to the end of a session.

A Preparatory Department, under competent management, is attached to the college. Tuition, $4 to $5 per month.

For further particulars address
REV. J. E. COBB,
President Homer College, La.

By order of the Board.
W. F. MOREGAND,
Prest. Board of Trustees. au22 3m

IMPORTANT TO PLANTERS.

IRON COTTON TIES.

THE ARROW TIE

AND ALL OPEN SLOT TIES.

All approved popular Patents:

ARROW,
ANCHOR,
WALLIS,
ALLIGATOR
AND DUNN.

For sale by all dealers in New Orleans, Mobile and Memphis, and by country merchants generally throughout the Cotton States.

HARTLETT & RAYNE,
General Agents,
48 Carondelet street, cor. Union,
my30 6m New Orleans.

The Records of Tests
AT LOWELL, MASS., PROVE
N. F. BURNHAM'S
New Turbine
superior to all others. It gave a higher percentage than any other wheel of common finish. Pamphlet and Price List by N. F. BURNHAM, York, Pa. ap25 6m

THE FAMILY PAPER.

The Illustrated Christian Weekly,

NOW IN ITS SECOND YEAR, IS THE

ONLY ILLUSTRATED

Religious Weekly published in the country. It is unsectarian in its character, and has been warmly welcomed by Christian people everywhere. Its illustrations are not excelled by any secular publication, while the reading matter is carefully prepared by eminent writers of various denominations.

Send for Specimen Copy.—Two Dollars a Year.

Agents wanted in every community. Liberal terms to Sabbath schools.

AMERICAN TRACT SOCIETY,
Publishers,
je27 7teow5p 150 Nassau st., New York.

NEW BOOK FOR SINGING SCHOOLS, ETC.

THE SINGING SCHOOL ECHO.

This new book, for the use of Singing and High Schools, Conventions, Classes, etc., will be found one of the best and most valuable collections of vocal music ever published.

The reputation of the authors is sufficient guarantee that the "Singing School Echo" will be a most attractive book.

☞ Price, 75 cents, or $7.50 per dozen. Copies mailed on receipt of retail price.

S. BRAINARD'S SONS,
au29 1yeow Publishers, Cleveland, O.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

STONEWALL INSTITUTE,
AT PLANTERSVILLE, ALABAMA,
TWENTY MILES SOUTH OF SELMA.

THIS SCHOOL FOR BOYS WILL BEGIN its Eighth Annual Session on

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 1, 1872.

Its reputation is based upon its merits.

The discipline is both parental and military, the latter only going far enough to promote physical development, promptness and application to books.

The elementary branches of education—spelling, reading, writing, the art of composing and arithmetic—receive special attention.

Small boys, ten years old, will be received. Economy in money and time will be gained by intrusting the education of such to the undersigned.

School session for day, seven hours; at night, two and a half. All boys board with the principal. Debating Societies on Saturday. Sunday school every Sunday.

Two hundred and thirty dollars, one-half payable in October, in cash, or a thirty days' ACCEPTED draft; the other, February 1, 1873—will pay for a boy's board and tuition for one year.

It is confidently believed, by both students and patrons of this school, that no other does the whole work of education more thoroughly and satisfactorily than the Stonewall.

It is our set purpose to make the course of study equal to the demands of the age, whether in thoroughly preparing boys for college, or qualifying them for business or practical life. We are willing to have our work examined and compared with any done in academies or quasi colleges.

D. C. H. CONNERLY,
an29 4t Plantersville, Ala.

Centenary Female College,
SUMMERFIELD, ALA.

THE THIRTIETH SESSION OPENS SEPTEMBER 23, 1872.

The Literary, Music and Art Departments are well organized and under a competent faculty.

The peculiar advantages are health, cheapness and thorough instruction.

Board and tuition, $230; if all paid in advance, $220. Club rates, $210.

For catalogue and further information address
A. D. McVOY,
au22 1m President.

Readville Seminary for Young Ladies,
BATON ROUGE, LOUISIANA.

ESTABLISHED IN 1843. Incorporated in 1859. New buildings. Full corps of teachers. All the appliances of a first-class institution. For catalogues address
MRS. MARY W. READ, Principal,
au29 3m Baton Rouge, La.

WILLIAM HOGAN,
Manufacturer of and Dealer in
BOOTS, SHOES, TRUNKS, VALISES AND BAGS,
FRENCH AND AMERICAN.
Also Agent for the EMPIRE SEWING MACHINE,
99 AND 101 CANAL STREET,
au1 3m New Orleans.

S. COLLINS & CO.,
MANUFACTURERS OF
PRINTING INK,
Office and Depot—26 Frankfort Street,
jy25 6m NEW YORK.

JOSEPH GILLOTT'S
STEEL PENS,
OF THE OLD STANDARD QUALITY.
TRADE MARK: JOSEPH GILLOTT, Name and Design. Warranted. Or Descriptive Number.

The well-known Original and Popular Nos., 303 . . . 404 . . . 170 . . . 351,
having been assumed by other Makers, we desire to caution the public in respect to said imitations. ☞ ASK FOR GILLOTT'S.

JOS. GILLOTT & SONS,
91 John street, N. Y.
jy25 1y

Reaching the North Pole.—It is claimed that the North Pole will certainly be reached by one of the expeditions now in search of it. Suppose it should be, and the American flag should be hoisted there, to revolve with the axis of earth once in twenty-four hours? What then? Would the discovery be one-tenth as valuable to the world in general as is to the sick and suffering? Is not an agreeable preparation, that will cure indigestion, constipation, nervousness, bilious complaints and all manner of internal disturbances arising from debility, of more importance to mankind than the location of the Pole? Rather! The true article is procurable at all good drug stores. se5 2t

Tarrant's Effervescent Seltzer Aperient

AGENTS WANTED FOR

SECRETS OF THE CONVENT AND CONFESSIONAL.

BY JULIA M'NAIR WRIGHT.

The most thrilling and powerful book ever written on this subject. It presents a startling array of facts, and contains revelations never before made public.

Send for circulars and terms to
NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO.,
271 and 276 Second street,
au1 6m Memphis, Tenn.

HAVE YOU READ MARK TWAIN'S NEW BOOK?

The whole world is anxious for it, and every person who has read it is known by his cheerful look. 75,000 just sold in 90 days, and eight presses running night and day on it to supply the demand. Nothing like it ever known before.

AGENTS WANTED.—Send for circulars, terms, &c. Address NETTLETON & CO., 180 WEST FOURTH STREET, Cincinnati, Ohio.

se5 1y

BREWER & HILTON,
MANUFACTURERS OF
Thomas Worsley's Celebrated Fancy, Shaving and Toilet Soaps,
Also J. D. SMITH & CO.'S world-renowned Pearl Powders, Lily Whites, Rouges, etc.,
NO. 114 ARCH STREET, PHILADELPHIA.
All goods warranted. au8 3m

OCEAN SPRINGS.

Summer Resort.—Board at the Seaside.

THE SUBSCRIBER has taken the MORRIS HOUSE, at Ocean Springs, which has just undergone a thorough repair, and will be open to boarders who wish to enjoy a pleasant home, good bathing, fresh sea air, and luxuriate on fish and oysters during the heat of summer.

Terms for board: $10 per month, $10 per week, and $2 per day. Apply to the subscriber by mail, at Ocean Springs.

Refer to Bishop Keener, Rev. Robert J. Harp, J. L. Dunnica & Co., and Samuel Russ, Esq., New Orleans.

WM. C. CHAMBERLIN.
APRIL 20, 1872. ap25 tf

The Child's Corner.

A PUZZLE.

Do tell me the reason, grandmamma, dear,
For truly I want to know,
Why some of the weeks in the long, long years
So slowly and wearily go;

While some run so fast, it seems that they fly,
And soon they are far, far away,
For they won't stop a minute in hurrying by,
Though I beg and hoseech them to stay?

The days in a week and the hours in a day
I learned in my lesson at school;
But they change all about in the maniest way,
And I don't half believe in the rule.

Oh! do you remember, last year at Aunt Sue's,
What a splendid vacation we had?
Oh, dear! if papa ever would let us choose
Where to go, Dick and I would be glad!

Such dear downy chickens the yellow hen hatched
The very day after we came,
And then there were two yellow kittens that matched,—
So we two could have just the same.

What lots of blueberries grew on the hill-side—
More than dozens of people could pick!,
And one day I went off on a long, long ride
With just Uncle Henry and Dick.

Our house in the rocks was the finest affair,
With such cozy hollows to sit;
And Dick was so good all the time we were there—
I don't think he teased me one bit!

But then it was so little while we could stay,
We hadn't a minute to waste;
I do think, if vacations so long must delay,
They needn't be gone in such haste!

I'm sure the weeks now are at least twice as long—
For nothing but studying, too—
I don't know whether grown-up folks think it's all wrong,
But I say it's real mean—that I do!

But you can tell anything, grandma, I know,
So I thought I'd just ask you to-day,
For I've puzzled my head thinking over it so,
And I can't make it out any way.

A. I. M., in Christian Union.

The Bird Summer.

BY MRS. MARY ESTHER MILLER.

THE CUCKOO.

It was while we were in the midst of the excitement about the warblers that our wrens came, or at least one of them, a plain brown creature, smaller than the chipping sparrow, but very active, hopping about alertly, whisking his tail and flying to the top of the locust, where he sung for dear life. Anon he would come down and peer into the bird-house in the honeysuckle, then by turns sing and go in and examine it again. Finally he began to carry in sticks in the intervals of his music, but singing was his main business. He was warbling to attract a mate. At last one came; his rapture knew no bounds when she went in to inspect the house. But he was doomed to disappointment. Perhaps she didn't like the box; perhaps she didn't like him, though how she could help being pleased with both we could not see. Yet she went off, and wrenny had to advertise again for a wife. Three separate times did he bring a mate there. The third one stayed, and, to our great joy, the building process went on. Mrs. Wren must have been a particular body, for she took out every twig already in the house and brought new ones of her own, while Mr. Wren helped; but it was easy to see he was aware the house-furnishing was now in competent hands. Many of the twigs were too long for the opening, but she, with judgment and patience, moved them along her bill till one end was short enough, and that she would push in endwise. We had in those days plenty of song; for Mr. Wren was at it all the while; so the west porch, with its honeysuckle bower, was a favorite gathering place. Here we spent the summer afternoons, reading aloud or sewing. Henry and Hervey meanwhile made various excursions to the river or pasture or wood-lot, and brought back interesting reports.

There was a great flight of cuckoos that year. The first one came with swift wings to our corner evergreen, and sat there making a plaintive "coo" like the note of a wild pigeon. I at first thought it was some kind of a wild dove. This bird appeared larger than a robin, with a brownish drab back, and all the under parts very light and soft. It was clothed in purely Quaker colors, and had a remarkably sweet and innocent look. Examining one more closely afterward, I found a bronze luster on its back feathers, unlike any other bird. A day or two after we saw a pair in our maples, and soon we heard them many times in the course of the day. Their most common note, something like this, tuc, tuc, tuc, tuc, commencing fast and terminating with two slow notes, is mistaken by some for tapping of woodpeckers.

We had great curiosity to know what could bring them in such numbers; when Henry shot and brought in one for Annie to try to stuff, we opened its crop and found it filled with hairs and remains of a particular kind of caterpillar, with a yellow head, that was just at this time infesting our trees.

"Well, Annie," I exclaimed, "let us not say anything is made in vain. Every bird has its particular work. Let us give a great welcome to the cuckoos, as well as to every other kind that does its appointed part so well." I was reading an article, the other day, that related the experience of Dr. Kirtland, of Ohio, with the blue-jays. His entire neighborhood was much infested with the tent caterpillar, that threatened complete destruction to the fruit trees. In laying out his grounds he had planted young evergreens in clumps. These grew uncommonly well, and soon made close thickets. A colony of blue-jays, having been disturbed in their old haunts, came and took up their abode in these thickets. Presently he found them tearing open the bags of the tent caterpillar and carrying the worms to their young. This he saw them doing many times; the result was that after a while not a tent caterpillar could be found within miles of his colony. Yet Massachusetts law condemns the blue jay and gives it up to the tender mercies of the gunners, till now it has become very shy, and farmers are thus deprived of one of their best helps.

But this is not the story I was about to tell. I will try and relate it as I did to my husband when he came for his next visit.

We were all sitting as quietly as possible, one Sunday afternoon, in the west front room—Annie's room—most of us with books. Hervey, I know, lay flat on the floor, looking at the pictures in Pilgrim's Progress. Letty was just falling asleep in my arms, and a spell of silence had fallen over us all. One would hardly imagine that noise could ever be. Henry sat by the open west window apparently reading, but really dozing. Suddenly there came a rush and whirr of wings close by the window where he sat. The change was marvelous. Before I could speak he had leaped out, but not quite soon enough. He said he saw a robin furiously pursuing another bird, quite as large as itself; and coming close upon it, the other had dashed hard against the cellar wall. We all went out and looked about for some clue to the cause of this fight. The robin had flown completely away, and the other bird, which we now recognized as a cuckoo, was seated, perfectly still, on the low bough of a pear tree. Henry stole in a roundabout way to get nearer to him. But presently, seeing that he was disabled in some manner, he walked directly up and took him in his hand. Poor thing! About half an inch of the upper mandible of his bill was broken off, and drops of blood fell from it.

Henry said he could not live, for he had noticed in his shooting that a wound in the bill was fatal. Poor bird! If his offense had been the stealing of robin's eggs he was sorely punished. Nevertheless, we made an effort to help him. We had an empty bird cage brought out, and, having washed the bill of the cuckoo in cool water, we placed him carefully in it. We were mistaken in thinking him so soft and mild a creature. From that moment all gentleness was gone. Never was a fiercer little savage. He tossed from one side to the other of the cage, beat furiously against the bars, and crumpled and ruffled his smooth bronzed plumage in every conceivable way. He would not be soothed or coaxed or pacified by anything we could do for him, and we were obliged to let him out to save him from destroying himself. I should think that ever after he would forego birds' eggs in his diet—if he lived. It seemed very doubtful how a bird with a broken bill could obtain its food.

Hervey suggested, "perhaps the other birds would be good and feed him." We all assented to the benevolent wish, and I remarked that Audubon mentioned the case of a water-fowl whose injured bill grew again. So, while we were wishing him well, the little fellow flew off, and was soon lost in the leafy bowers of the neighborhood.

A little more about the cuckoo; there are two kinds, the yellow-billed and the black-billed. Sometimes one and sometimes the other is more abundant. The yellow-billed was the more numerous with us on this summer. They build in a low bough or on a shrub. The poet Lowell has a pair that frequent his garden and breed there. Each species of ours is entirely different from the European cuckoo, which makes no nest of its own, but lays its egg in some other bird's nest, to be hatched and brought up without any further care on its part. Wordsworth's lines to the cuckoo apply well to our American bird.

TO THE CUCKOO.

O blithe new-comer! I have heard,
I hear thee and rejoice;
O cuckoo! shall I call thee bird,
Or but a wandering voice?

While I am lying on the grass
Thy two fold shout I hear,
That seems to fill the whole air's space,
As loud far off as near.

* * * * * * * * *

Thrice welcome, darling of the spring!
Even yet thou art to me
No bird; but an invisible thing,
A voice, a mystery.

The same whom in my school-boy days
I listened to; that cry
Which made me look a thousand ways,
In bush and tree and sky.

To seek thee did I often rove
Through woods and on the green;
And thou wert still a hope, a love;
Still longed for, never seen.

And I can listen to thee yet;
Can lie upon the plain
And listen, till I do beget
That golden time again.

O blessed bird! the earth we pace
Again appears to be
An unsubstantial, fairy place,
That is fit home for thee.

Christian Union.

Truth and Falsehood.

"Willie, why were you gone so long for the water?" asked the teacher of a little boy.

"We spilled it, and had to go back and fill the bucket again," was the prompt reply; but the bright, noble face was a shade less bright, less noble than usual, and the eyes dropped beneath the teacher's gaze.

The teacher crossed the room and stood by another who had been Willie's companion.

"Freddy, were you not gone for the water longer than was necessary?"

For an instant Freddy's eyes were fixed on the floor, and his face wore a troubled look. But it was only for an instant—he looked frankly up to his teacher's face.

"Yes, ma'am," he bravely answered; "we met little Harry Braden and stopped to play with him, and then we spilled the water and had to go back."

Little friends, what was the difference in the answers of the two boys? Neither of them told anything that was not strictly true. Which one of them do you think the teacher trusted more fully after that? And which was the happier of the two?

GOD'S HEADQUARTERS.—"Why do we say in the Lord's Prayer, 'Who art in heaven,' since God is everywhere?" asked a clergyman of some children.

For a while no one answered; at last, seeing a little drummer boy, who looked as if he could give an answer, the clergyman said:

"Well, little soldier, what say you?"

"Because its headquarters," replied the drummer.

The Farm and Garden.

Sound Wind in Horses.

A horse whose wind is actually broken can hardly be mistaken, the short, vibrating cough that accompanies it being quite peculiar. The breathing is generally hurried by exertion, and is made up of three separate motions. In the first the breath is drawn naturally, the flanks distending as usual. In the next the flanks rise with a sudden, momentary, spasmodic effort. In the third the abdominal muscles are slowly and forcibly drawn up, as if to expel the air remaining in the lungs. Broken-winded horses are very eager for water. The malady may be temporarily concealed, but it is believed to be incurable. Thick or otherwise defective wind cannot always be detected without spending some time with the horse. He must be watched in reference to breathing high after moderate exercise, or a change of position or temperature, and after drinking. Note whether he coughs when drinking. Rearing may be detected by forcing the horse to a brisk gallop, the ear being placed on the windpipe as soon as he is pulled up, to make assurance doubly sure.—Christian Union.

Camomile.

Camomile is not very generally cultivated, but we think a few roots of this plant should have a place in every garden. Not only does it possess very valuable medical qualities, but its presence among other vegetables is supposed to be a sure protection against many diseases to which they are liable. Camomile may be started in a hot-bed, and transplanted into warm and rich soil early in the spring, and assisted, during its early growth, by copious manuring and careful culture. When plants, late in the season, exhibit symptoms of decay or general debility, the planting of a small root of camomile in their vicinage is frequently the most speedy and efficacious remedy that can be applied. The odor or aroma diffused by this plant is also known to be highly repellent to many kinds of insects, and its presence among those species of plants and vegetables infested by such enemies will protect them more effectually than almost any other agent known, and at comparatively small expense.

Hogs Want Sulphur.

Whether hogs require sulphur as an essential to their health, or whether it is sought by them as a condiment, may not be known for certainty. But one thing is sure, they devour it with greed whenever it is to be found. It is for this purpose, probably, that they eat large quantities of soft coal, which contains a large amount of sulphur. Perhaps this is the most economical method of supplying hogs with sulphur during the winter, when they require a good deal of carbon. But in the summer it is better to feed it to them in substances which contain less carbon, on account of their producing less heat. Mustard is one of the best things for this purpose, and some of it should be sown in every pasture into which hogs are turned. If hogs are kept in, or are in small yards, it is well to supply them with the wild mustard that grows in the fields or highways, or to cultivate some of the better varieties for them. They will eat its leaves, flowers, seeds and stalks.

The Partridge or Quail.

At a meeting of horticulturists in Illinois, strong ground was taken against the destruction of these birds. To show how useful this bird is, it was stated that a flock of partridges were seen running along the rows of corn just sprouting, and seeing them engaged in something which was believed to be pulling up the young plants, one of them was killed and its "crop" examined, which was found to contain one cutworm, twenty-one striped bugs, and over one hundred chinch bugs. Another member related that he had adopted measures to protect the bird, and that they had become so numerous and so tame that hundreds of them, after snow falls, could be seen in his barnyard with the fowls, where they were fed. As a result of their presence upon his premises, his wheat crops were unusually abundant, while in many other places, not far off, the chinch bug and other insects had destroyed half the crop.

HOUSEKEEPERS' DEPARTMENT.

PRESERVING FRUIT.—As the season for preserving fruit is at hand, we give the following recipes, which we find in our exchanges, for the benefit of our lady friends:

Grape Jelly.—Bruise and boil the fruit; then strain; add half a pound of sugar to each pint of juice, then boil from ten to twenty minutes.

Fig Jelly.—Wash, and add water sufficient to cover the fruit; boil twenty minutes; strain, then add sugar and boil as above.

Wild Crab Apple.—Cover the fruit with water and boil until soft, then strain; add one pound of sugar to each pint of juice; boil from fifteen to twenty minutes.

Peach Jelly.—Wash, without removing skins or pits; cover with water; boil until soft, strain, add half a pound of sugar to each pint of juice; boil twenty minutes.

Canned Fruits.—Make syrup with sugar and water, averaging a quarter of a pound of sugar to each pint of juice; boil the fruit until done, fill the jars boiling hot, seal up immediately. Keep jars warm before filling with the fruit.

Sweet Pickle.—Twelve pounds of fruit, six pounds of sugar and a quart of cider vinegar, cloves and cinnamon. Let the fruit boil in above until soft; take out, put carefully on a dish, let the syrup boil down, then put on fruit again and boil a few minutes; fill jars, and seal with tissue paper dipped in white of egg.

HARDWARE, STOVES, ETC.

KURSHEEDT & BIENVENU,
IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN
Plantation and Builders' Hardware,
MARBLE, MARBLEIZED SLATE
AND IRON MANTLES,
Grates, Hearths and Fire Bricks,
NO. 114 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
ap2 1y

THE UNRIVALED

BUCK'S BRILLIANT STOVE.
Every Brilliant Is Fully Guaranteed.

H. HALLER,
No. 49 Camp street, New Orleans,
Sole Agent for Louisiana.

Sole Agent for the
CELEBRATED RINGEN WASHER,
In the States of Louisiana, Texas and Mississippi: oc19 1y

GROCERIES—GLASSWARE.

PURE LOUISIANA
SUGAR, MOLASSES AND SIRUPS.

REFINED SUGAR.—Cut Loaf, Crushed and Powdered.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

GOLDEN SIRUP.—A superior article of pure Louisiana, from the Crescent City Refinery. A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

REFINED SIRUP AND MOLASSES.—Crescent City Refinery, Orleans, Louisiana, Chalmette and Pelican brands.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

LOUISIANA MOLASSES.—Various grades of Plantation, in barrels, half barrels and kegs. A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

CLARIFIED SUGAR.—Various grades of White and Yellow, in hogsheads and barrels.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

LOUISIANA SUGAR.—Various grades of Plantation, in hogsheads and barrels.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

FOREIGN SUGAR.—Cuba, Demerara and Porto Rico, in hogsheads and boxes.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
my9 6m 48 Tchoupitoulas street.

W. C. SHEPARD & CO.,
—IMPORTERS OF—
CHINA, CROCKERY AND GLASS,
55.....CAMP STREET.....55
New Orleans.

Country dealers supplied with ASSORTED CRATES or from SHELF upon the most favorable terms.

Contents of our English Iron Stone China Dinner Set, No. 1:

12 Dinner Plates,	1 Round Soup Tureen,
12 Breakfast Plates,	1 Sauce Boat,
12 Tea Plates,	1 Salad,
12 Soup Plates,	1 Pair Covered Dishes,
12 Preserve Plates,	2 Vegetable Dishes,
12 Butter Plates,	2 Pickle Dishes,
12 Tea cups and saucers	4 Meat Dishes.

112 pieces best English Ware..... $15

Our Stone China Dinner and Tea Set, No. 2, contains
158 pieces..... $25

Our French China Dinner Set, No. 1, contains

12 Dinner Plates,	4 Meat Dishes,
12 Breakfast Plates,	1 Soup Tureen, round,
12 Tea Plates,	2 Covered Dishes, oval
12 Soup Plates,	1 Sauce Boat,
12 Preserve Plates,	1 Salad,
12 Tea cups and saucers	2 Pickles,
12 Butter Plates,	2 Vegetable Dishes.

112 pieces best French Ware..... $30

Our French China Dinner Set, No. 2, contains
168 pieces..... $45

Our French China Dinner Set, No. 3, contains
255 pieces..... $65

A large variety of the best SELF-SEALING FRUIT JARS always on hand.
Sole agents for the celebrated BLANCHARD CHURN. The best churn made.
The most complete stock of HOUSE-FURNISHING GOODS in the South.
W. C. SHEPARD & CO.,
np1 6m No. 55 Camp st., New Orleans.

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY.

THE NEXT SESSION OF THIS INSTITUTION will commence on
The First Wednesday in October.

It is one of the cheapest and most thorough colleges in this country. The instruction is of the highest character in all the schools of its Collegiate, Medical and Law Departments.
Board is from $10 to $16 per month.
For particulars and catalogue address Dr. A. S. Andrews or Prof. O. P. Casey.
A. S. ANDREWS, President.
GREENSBORO, ALA., July 14, 1872. au22 6t

MANSFIELD FEMALE COLLEGE,
Mansfield, DeSoto Parish, La.

THIS INSTITUTION, ENTERING UPON its Eighteenth Year, well supplied with Apparatus and other educational aids, and employing the most approved methods of instruction and government, will commence its Fall Session for 1872 on WEDNESDAY, the Twenty-fifth day of September, with a full corps of accomplished Teachers. For catalogues, with all particulars, address
CHARLES B. STUART,
au8 2m President.

TUSKEGEE FEMALE COLLEGE,
TUSKEGEE, ALA.

THE SEVENTEENTH ANNUAL SESSION begins SEPTEMBER 16, 1872. The entire expense per annum of a boarding pupil, who takes no extra study, is $250, exclusive of books. No extra charge for vocal music, calisthenics or elementary drawing. For circulars, containing full information, apply to the President.
REV. HENRY D. MOORE,
au22 1m Tuskegee, Alabama.

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

CENTENARY COLLEGE,
JACKSON, LOUISIANA.

THE NEXT TERM OF THIS VENERABLE INSTITUTION OPENS ON THE FIRST MONDAY IN OCTOBER, 1872.

FACULTY.

Rev. C. G. ANDREWS, A. M., President, and Professor of Mental and Moral Science, Political Economy and International Law.
Rev. A. R. HOLCOMBE, A. M., Professor of Mathematics and Adjunct Professor of Natural Science.
G. H. WILEY, A. M., Professor of Ancient and Modern Languages.
T. S. JONES, M. D., Professor of Natural Science.
———, Principal of the Preparatory Department.

CHARGES.

Tuition, per session of forty weeks, in College..... $60 00
Tuition, per session of forty weeks, in Preparatory Department..... 40 00
Contingent expenses..... 5 00

A matriculation fee of $5 must be paid on entering any regular college class. One-half the charges must be paid when the student enters; the other half on the beginning of the second term, March 1.

BOARD.

Board, including lodging, washing, lights and fuel, can be had in the best of families for $20 per month. Day-boarding with the same families, $13 per month. Rooms provided in the dormitories free of rent. Board to be paid in advance at least one month.

LOCATION.

This institution is located in the lovely village of Jackson, about twelve miles from Bayou Sara, in a grove of pine, magnolia, oak and beech. The location is remarkable for its beautiful woodlands, its bland and delightful atmosphere, its pure water, its unrivaled healthfulness, and its cultivated and refined society.

WHEN FOUNDED.

The college was established by the State of Louisiana in 1825, and ceded to the Methodist Episcopal Church South in 1845.

ALUMNI.

Its Alumni numbers 203, and they are to be found in the most honorable and responsible positions in the land.

APPARATUS AND CABINET.

The college possesses a valuable set of Philosophical, Astronomical and Chemical Apparatus, and also a well-selected Mineralogical and Geological Cabinet. The apparatus includes a Theodolite, Sextant, Compass, Chronometer, Atwood's Machine, Whirling Table, Electrical Machine, Air Pump, various combinations of the Mechanical Powers, Batteries, Chemical Tests, etc., sufficient for a thorough and extended course of observations and experiments. Steps have been taken by the Board of Trustees to put these in thorough repair.

LITERARY SOCIETIES.

There are two regular Literary Societies connected with the institution. These are of great utility to young men acquiring a liberal education—improving them in the art of public speaking, making them in some degree familiar with the proceedings of deliberative bodies, and in cultivating systematic business habits. Each Society has a convenient hall and a well selected library—about 1,600 volumes each, which, added to the College Library of 2,000 volumes, makes over 5,000 volumes in the college.

BUILDINGS.

The Trustees are determined to continue the repairs on the buildings till completed. The grand Center Building is a noble specimen of architectural beauty and adaptation to the purposes of its erection. The wings, built of solid brick, present each a front of two hundred feet, with upper and lower galleries the entire length, supported by Tuscan columns, and with the center making in the perspective a continuous front of 700 feet.

PREPARATORY DEPARTMENT.

In the Preparatory Department students are fitted for regular college classes, or can obtain a thorough English or commercial education.
ITS FACULTY are men of experience and success in teaching.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES.

Rev. Bishop J. C. KEENER, D. D., President, New Orleans.

Rev. J. A. Godfrey, Clinton.	Hon. A. K. Farrar, Adams county, Miss.
Hon. John McVea, Clinton.	Hon. Edward J. Gay, parish of Iberville.
Hon. and Rev. Jas. H. Muse, St. Helena par.	Samuel J. Norwood, Esq., Shreveport, La.
Hon. Edward McGehee, Woodville, Miss.	C. G. McGehee, Esq., Wilkinson co., Miss.
Hon. E. T. Merrick, New Orleans.	Rev. W. H. Watkins, D. D., Nat. Iberville, Miss.
Prof. W. H. N. Magruder, Baton Rouge.	Rev. W. G. Millsaps, Jefferson county, Miss.
Rev. John C. Miller, Jackson.	Rev. J. A. H. Jones, Port Gibson, Miss.
Rev. R. J. Harp, New Orleans.	Rev. John A. Ellis, Meridian, Miss.
Hon. J. O. Fuqua, Baton Rouge.	B. H. Moss, M. D., New Orleans.
T. F. Collins, Esq., East Feliciana.	Joshua D. Nettles, Esq., E. Baton Rouge, La.
Rev. J. L. Forsythe, Jackson.	Wilmot H. Goodale, Esq., Baton Rouge, La.
Rev. L. Parker, D. D., New Orleans.	Rev. C. G. Andrews, Jackson, La.
D. C. Hardee, Esq., Clinton.	Rev. A. E. Goodwyn, Baton Rouge, La.

THE BEST ROUTE to the college is to leave the Mississippi river at Port Hudson, take the Clinton and Port Hudson railroad to Midway station, report to Captain F. J. Hanna, a student for Centenary, and he will convey you to the college, a distance of seven miles, for one dollar and a half for single passengers, or one dollar each where several go together. Address
C. G. ANDREWS, President, Jackson, La.
aul 6m

Whitworth Female College,
AT BROOKHAVEN, MISS.

THE CONTINUED SUCCESS OF THIS INSTITUTION is one of the best evidences of its merit. During the past term there were in attendance two hundred and twenty-nine pupils.
The members of the Faculty eleven in number—are selected on account of their ability to teach.
Prof. ECKHARDT, Music Director, has few equals.
Madame JULIUS, a Parisian lady of eighteen years' successful experience as a teacher, has been engaged to take charge of the French and Ornamental Department.
The very best care is taken of our pupils, both as to health and manners. Firm are provided for all.
No extravagance in dress is allowed.
The good health of Brookhaven is proverbial. Pupils from the miasmatic regions of Louisiana and Mississippi find this as healthful a school as can be found anywhere.
The charges are believed to be lower than in any school in the Southwest where similar advantages are afforded. Only from $230 to $265 for all expenses, excepting music, French and the ornamental branches.
No expense is spared in purchasing the most approved apparatus, maps, charts, etc., and all necessary school furniture.
Brookhaven is located on the New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern Railroad, 128 miles from the city.
Catalogues sent free on application to
au1 6m REV. H. F. JOHNSON, Prest.

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE,
AT BATON ROUGE, LOUISIANA.

THE EXERCISES OF THIS SCHOOL will be resumed on Wednesday, the Second of October next.

For circulars, with all necessary information, apply to Rev. R. J. Harp, 112 Camp street, New Orleans, or to myself, at Baton Rouge, Louisiana.
au1 6m W. H. N. MAGRUDER.

MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE,
ABINGDON, VA.,
ON THE VIRGINIA AND TENNESSEE RAILROAD.

$105 IN ADVANCE will pay Board and Tuition for five months in this institution, beautifully situated amid the mountains. For healthfulness, high grade and extent of instruction, and excellence of facilities, no institution in the land surpasses this.
Session begins SEPTEMBER 19.
For catalogue or particulars apply to
REV. W. G. E. CUNNYNGHAM, D. D.,
Or R. W. JONES, M. A., President.
jy25 2m

Wesleyan Female College,
MACON, GEORGIA.

THE THIRTY-FIFTH ANNUAL SESSION will begin OCTOBER 7, 1872.
For catalogues, containing full information, address
REV. E. H. MYERS, D. D., President, or
C. W. SMITH, Secretary of Faculty.
au15 2m

RANDOLPH MACON COLLEGE,
Ashland, Hanover Co., Va.,

OFFERS, ON VERY LOW TERMS, THE advantages of thorough instruction, high grade of scholarship, best religious influences in a refined community, and at a location remarkable for healthfulness—just sixteen miles north of Richmond, on the R., F. and P. Railroad. Only $110 will pay all necessary for the half session! For catalogue address
REV. JAS. A. DUNCAN, D. D., President, or
REV. ALEX. G. BROWN, Sec.,
jy26 2m P. O., Ashland, Va.

EMORY AND HENRY COLLEGE,
VIRGINIA.

THE FALL SESSION of this Institution begins on the FIFTEENTH OF AUGUST next. One Hundred and Fifteen Dollars will pay all the necessary expenses of a five month session, including board, tuition, fire-room-rent, washing and contingent fees. Payments are required in advance, except for board, which is $13 per month, and payable monthly in advance. If you will consult the Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and her ministers generally, our alumni and students, or the professors in the University of Virginia, who have authorized this reference, you will be assured that we are offering excellent opportunities for thorough collegiate training, surrounded by healthful, moral, religious influences. If you desire a catalogue, or any additional information, address
E. E. WILEY, President,
je20 4m Emory P. O., Virginia.

TUSKALOOSA FEMALE COLLEGE,
TUSKALOOSA, ALABAMA.

THE NEXT SESSION OPENS SEPTEMBER 23, 1872.
The beautiful and healthy city of Tuskaloosa, Alabama, is unsurpassed as a location.
The Faculty will consist of three Professors and eight or ten Lady Assistants.
Course of study thorough. Domestic arrangements complete. Young ladies' sleeping apartments elegantly furnished and carpeted. Health department includes a fine, well conducted Gymnasium. This College is believed to be equal to the best in the United States, and the cheapest in the South. Special advantages for orphan children whose guardians wish to furnish them a home and school in one. For particulars and catalogue address the proprietor,
REV. B. F. LARRABEE,
jy18 3m Tuskaloosa, Alabama.

TENNESSEE FEMALE COLLEGE,
FRANKLIN, TENNESSEE.
Rev. R. K. Hargrove, A. M., President.

FALL SESSION FOR 1872 opens on Thursday, SEPTEMBER 5.
Its organization and equipment are complete, and its facilities of the highest order.
It will not substitute graduation for education.
Not one of its hundreds of pupils, for sixteen years past, has ever died in attendance on it.
Board and Collegiate Tuition, including French and Latin, one year, $220. To Itinerant Ministers, literary tuition free, and board on special terms.
Circulars sent on application. au1 2m

Kentucky Wesleyan University,
MILLERSBURG, KENTUCKY.

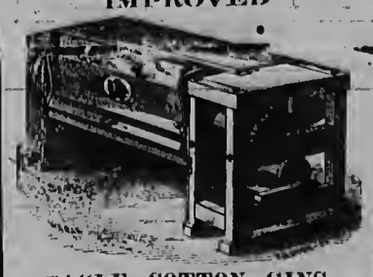
SESSION FOR 1872-73 OPENS SEPTEMBER 16, 1872, and closes June 4, 1873.
The expense of the entire session can be brought within $240 by those who pay tuition, and $40 less by those who come on scholarships. All bills due the University are payable strictly in advance. Board bills are payable monthly.
This University is situated in the heart of the Blue Grass region of Kentucky. Climate invigorating and healthful. The Faculty of Instructors is now full. Persons seeking a good school for their sons are invited to correspond with the President, or A. G. Sutton, Financial Secretary, or to send for catalogue.
jy18 10t H. ARBOGAST, President.

ATHENS FEMALE INSTITUTE,
AT ATHENS, ALABAMA,
IS UNDER THE PATRONAGE OF THE North Alabama Conference. The next session will open on
The First Monday in September.

Our arrangements are all complete. A corps of able Teachers, a full course of study, thorough drilling and strict discipline that secures us gratifying success.
Board and tuition in Literary Department, one year, $210.
au8 2m REV. J. M. WRIGHT, President.

MISCELLANEOUS.

IMPROVED



EAGLE COTTON GINS.

THE GREAT POPULARITY of the EAGLE COTTON GINS is established from the well-known fact that they are the most reliable, strongest and best built Cotton Gins ever made. The Eagle Cotton Gin runs lighter than any other gin, thus having a great advantage for planters who wish to run by horse power. All the numerous planters who use the Eagle Cotton Gin will certify to the fact that when their cotton is sent to market it always brings the highest market price, as no other gin can produce a finer or a better sample of cotton than the Eagle Cotton Gins. Over seventeen thousand of the Eagle Cotton Gins have been made and sold. During a period of twenty years the undersigned has had the agency of the Eagle Cotton Gin in New Orleans. He has never had a gin returned or rejected out of the immense number sold. The saw cylinders of all the Eagle Cotton Gins are twelve inches in diameter, which is two inches larger than most other kinds of gins, thus giving our forty-saw gin more teeth, and they are more than equal to the fifty-saw gins of other makers, who use only a ten-inch cylinder, and the same great advantage of the twelve inch cylinder in larger sized gins can be easily estimated. Planters who wish a reliable cotton gin, with an established reputation, can purchase an Eagle Cotton Gin with a certainty that they are not making an unfried experiment, but will obtain a cotton gin which is indorsed by the oldest and largest planters in the country as the best in use. A large stock of the Eagle Cotton Gins are always kept on sale in New Orleans, ready for immediate shipment. Planters should be particular to state if they want right or left-hand motion gins.

PRICES.

40-Saw Gin	$200	65-Saw Gin.....	$325
45-Saw Gin.....	225	70-Saw Gin.....	350
50-Saw Gin.....	250	75-Saw Gin.....	375
55-Saw Gin.....	275	80-Saw Gin	400
60-Saw Gin.....	300

All orders should be addressed to
W. L. CUSHING,
No. 61 St. Charles street,
Sole Agent for the Southern States.
Agents wanted. jy4 3m

ARE YOU GOING EAST OR NORTH?

Take the Iron Mountain, and Chicago and Alton Railroads,

THE ONLY ALL-RAIL ROUTE FROM all points South to CHICAGO.

The only line running the Pullman Palace Cars from all points South to St. Louis and Chicago.

Passengers by this line arrive in Chicago an hour in advance of all competing lines, and avoid 25 miles of steamboat transfer, and the annoying changes of cars incident to other lines. For all points in the Northwest, St. Paul, Milwaukee, or all points in the Canadas, New York, Boston and all Eastern cities, this is the pleasantest and most direct route. Parties going East via this line can lay over in Chicago and visit the Burnt District and resume their trip at their leisure. Fare as low as by all other routes. Tickets can be had at all ticket offices in the South.

W. R. ALLEN,
General Ticket and Passenger Agent,
Iron Mountain Line, St. Louis.
JAMES CHARLTON,
General Ticket and Passenger Agent,
Chicago and Alton Line, Chicago.
D. A. FREER,
Southern Traveling Agent.
ap26 3m

HOMEOPATHIC DOMESTIC MEDICINE.

BY TARRE & McCLATCHEY.—FIRST American from the Twenty-first English edition. 1,037 Pages Octavo. Price, $5.

This is the most complete work on Domestic Practice in the English language. Twenty-one thousand copies of it are in circulation in England and in this country. Two full editions sold within less than twelve months. A full set of Remedies (103 vials,) in a solid Mahogany case, will be furnished for $12. Book and case will be sent, carefully packed, any address, on receipt of $17.

Address HOERICKE & TAFEL,
Homeopathic Pharmaceutist and Medical Publishing House,
145 Grand st., New York.
Established in 1835. jy14 3m

JOHN GIBSON,

ENGRAVER AND

Steam Power Lithographic Printer,

82 BEEKMAN ST., NEW YORK.

Checks, Notes, Drafts, Receipts, Bonds, Certificates of Stock and Deposit, Bill, Letter and Note Headings, Business Cards, Envelopes Druggists' Fancy and Perfumery Labels, etc. Druggists wishing Labels, send for Catalogue. je27 1y

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY

Established in 1837.

Superior Bells for Churches, Schools, etc., of Pure Copper and Tin, fully warranted, and mounted with our Latest Improved Rotary Hangings, the best in use.

Illustrated Catalogue sent free.

VANDUZEN & TIFT,
102 & 104 E. Second St., Cincinnati
je22 1y

WM. PHILLIPS, UNION STABLES, 180 Calliope, near St. Charles street, has every accommodation in the line of Pleasure and Family Carriages, such as hacks, brettes, phætons, buggies, etc., for the use of the public, and at rates to correspond with the stringency of the times. All hacking done below tariff rates. Orders for weddings, balls, picnics, races, etc., will be attended to so as to guarantee satisfaction. I am also prepared to hire vehicles (alone) to parties having their own horses. de14 1y

SHERMAN HOUSE, NO. 1 WEST TWENTY-Sixth street, New York.—MR. EGKINS, Proprietor. Strangers visiting New York, desiring the comforts and retirement of a home and attendance of a hotel, in a first-class central location, can find the same at from $25 to $10 per week for a gentleman and wife; transient, $3 per day; American plan; lodgings, $1. je27 3m

PENNSYLVANIA HOUSE, PHILADELPHIA,

Corner of Eleventh and Market Sts.

CARLIS DAVIS, PROPRIETOR.

This popular Hotel being centrally located and accessible by street cars from all depots, makes it a desirable stopping place for travelers. It will be conducted in the same liberal manner as heretofore, it being the intention of the proprietor to maintain the reputation it has always enjoyed, of being in all respects a first-class hotel.

Terms, $3 a day. au8 1y

SMITH, ENGLISH & CO.,
BOOKSELLERS AND IMPORTERS,
(ESPECIALLY OF THEOLOGICAL BOOKS,)
No. 710 Arch street, Philadelphia.

S., E. & Co. have on hand the best and most complete assortment of THEOLOGICAL BOOKS for sale in the country. Send for Complete Classified Catalogue, 25 cents, or with Alphabetical Index 50 cents—the best guide to purchasers in this department ever published. un15 2m

COMMISSION MERCHANTS.

PRICE, HINE & TUPPER,

General Commission Merchants,

FACTORS, AND

Agents of Attakapas Mail Transportation Co.,

NO. 26 CARONDELET STREET,

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Advances made on consignments to T. Tupper & Sons, Charleston, S. C.; Williams, Birnie & Co., and Leverich & Co., New York. no1 1y

W. H. SUTTON. J. R. POWELL.

SUTTON & POWELL,

COTTON FACTORS

AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

186..... COMMON STREET 186

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

se21-1y

H. F. GIVEN. LUCIEN J. NOIZE.

H. F. GIVEN & CO.,

COTTON, TOBACCO AND SUGAR FACTORS,

—AND—

GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

No. 64 Baronne street, New Orleans.

oc5 1y

ANDREW J. AIKEN. JOHN W. WATT.

AIKEN & WATT,

Cotton Factors and Commission Merchants,

60.....CARONDELET STREET..... 60

NEW ORLEANS.

Special attention given to orders for the purchase of all descriptions of Produce, Agricultural Implements and Plantation Supplies. no2 1y

J. L. DUNNICA, New Orleans. T. A. HAMILTON, Memphis.
G. P. HARRISON, New Orleans.

J. L. DUNNICA & CO.,

FLOUR, PRODUCE AND PROVISION

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

50.....TCHOUPITOULAS ST.....50

NEW ORLEANS, LOUISIANA.

oc22 1y

J. U. PAYNE. W. H. DAMERON. H. M. PAYNE

PAYNE, DAMERON & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS,

64 & 66....BARONNE STREET....64 & 66

Between Union and Gravier streets,

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

je19 1y

C. L. WALMSLEY & CO.,

Cotton Factors and General Commission Merchants,

31.....PERDIDO STREET.....31

oc3 1y NEW ORLEANS.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

G. W. RACE. W. H. FOSTER. E. T. MERRICK, Former Ch. Jus. La.

RACE, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK,

Attorneys, Counselors and Solicitors.

Cor. of Camp street and Commercial Place,

se25 NEW ORLEANS.

W. W. EDWARDS,

COUNSELOR AT LAW

AND

COMMISSIONER OF DEEDS,

No. 88 Common street,

se14 1y New Orleans.

DR. JOHN G. ANGELL,

DENTAL SURGEON,

152 .....JULIA STREET.....152

All operations in Operative, Mechanical and Surgical Dentistry carefully performed. Nitrous Oxide and other Anæsthetics administered. no30 1y

DR. C. J. BICKHAM,

Office—680 Magazine Street,

Between Philip and First sts., New Orleans.

Will call daily at College building, corner Common and Baronne streets, between eleven and twelve o'clock. je29 1y

TO METHODISTS.

SUNDAY HALF-HOURS WITH

THE GREAT PREACHERS

Is the best book of Sermons ever published.

Dr. Kynett says: "It should be welcomed to every Christian family."

Dr. Payne says: "Of inestimable value. * * * Rich, rare and priceless."

Dr. Warren says: "I cordially commend it."

Sold only by subscription.

AGENTS WANTED.

Liberal terms; money made rapidly, and a valuable and handsome book circulated.

Circulars sent free on application.

PORTER & COATES, Publishers,
au29 1m Philadelphia, Pa.

READY-PREPARED PLASTIC SLATE ROOFING.

Thoroughly Fire-Proof and Durable.

Adapted to any style of roof steep or flat. Can be applied by any one. Its cost on the roof is less than shingles in nearly every section of the country, and the water from it is of the best quality. Sample sent on application to

EDWARD THOMPSON, Manufacturer,
je27 6m 184 Peters street, New Orleans.

AGENTS WANTED TO SELL PARTON'S LIFE OF

HORACE GREELEY,

The Patriot, Statesman and Philanthropist.

Every citizen who is interested in the remarkable career of our next President should read the truthful story of his life, as told by the greatest American Biographer. A work of rare interest, and full of instruction. For circulars and terms address

NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO.,
jy25 2m Memphis, Tenn.

JOHN DOUGLAS, DEALER IN

Fancy and Staple Dry Goods,

NOS. 102 AND 101 DAUPHIN STREET,

MOBILE, ALABAMA.

Agent for the Florence Sewing Machine.

All goods warranted as represented, and sold at the lowest rates for Cash, our object being large sales and small profits. ja4 1y

FREE TO BOOK AGENTS.—AN ELEgantly bound Canvassing Book for the best and cheapest Family Bible ever published will be sent free of charge to any Book Agent. It contains nearly 500 fine Scripture illustrations, and agents are meeting with unprecedented success. Address, stating experience, etc., and we will show you what our agents are doing,

NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO.,
se5 4m Memphis, Tenn.

BUSINESS CARDS.

E. HEATH. M. LARA. J. P. HEATH.

HEATH, LARA & HEATH,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

UPHOLSTERERS' MATERIALS,

WALL PAPER, WINDOW SHADES,

CORNICES AND CURTAIN GOODS,

Pictures, Frames, Moldings, Looking Glasses and Clocks,

NO. 99 CAMP STREET,

no16 1y NEW ORLEANS.

THE MITCHELL & RAMMELSBERG

FURNITURE COMPANY,

Manufacturers and dealers in all kinds of

Furniture, Mattresses, Looking Glasses,

ETC., ETC.,

103 and 105 Camp street, cor. Poydras,

Moresque Building, New Orleans,

have the largest and best assortment of FURNITURE of any house in the city.

Please give us a call before purchasing elsewhere. my23 1y

A. B. GRISWOLD & CO.,

CANAL ST., COR. ROYAL, NEW ORLEANS,

IMPORTERS OF

WATCHES, JEWELRY, CLOCKS,

PLATED WARE, HOUSEKEEPING GOODS,

Cutlery, Guns Pistols, Bronzes, Porcelain and Fancy Goods.

MANUFACTURERS OF

PURE COIN SILVERWARE.

Watches and Jewelry carefully repaired. Every article sold fully guaranteed.

no23 1y

J. THOMSON. G. THOMSON. W. B. THOMSON.

J. THOMSON & BROS.,

Manufacturers of

Carriages, Barouches, Buggies, Phaetons,

SPRING WAGONS, ETC.

68 and 70 Rampart Street,

Bet. Common and Gravier, New Orleans, La.

Repairing done in all its branches. no30 1y

LOUISIANA STEAM

SASH, BLIND AND DOOR FACTORY,

ROBERTS & CO., PROPRIETORS,

301, 303, 305 and 307 Gravier Street,

NEW ORLEANS. my30 1y

JAMES M'TRACKEN. GEO. E. BREWSTER.

McTRACKEN & BREWSTER,

DEALERS IN FURNITURE,

Nos. 37, 39 and 41 Royal street.

Manufactory, corner Derbigny and Customhouse streets, New Orleans. my9 6m

JOHN A. ADAMS & CO., (JOHN I. ADAMS, JAY L. ADAMS, GEO. W. WEST, WM. H. RENAUD,)

WHOLESALE GROCERS,

AND DEALERS IN

PROVISIONS, LARD, OILS, ETC., ETC.,

43, 45 and 47 Peters street,

(Formerly New Levee,)

mh21 1y NEW ORLEANS.

ELON G. SMITH. J. L. CHEATHAM, J. W. BRAUGHON.

SMITH, CHEATHAM & CO.,

(SUCCESSORS TO ELON G. SMITH & CO.)

PORK PACKERS,

Provision and Commission Merchants,

CORNER THIRD AND SPRUCE STREETS,

SAINT LOUIS.

We solicit orders from the trade for goods in our line. oc26 1y

C. SAMPSON. F. G. SAMPSON.

SAMPSON BROTHERS,

(Late C. C. Sampson,)

FURNITURE,

33 & 35..... ROYAL STREET.....33 & 35

NEW ORLEANS.

Established in 1833. ja11 1y

Carpet Warehouse—17 Chartres Street.

A. BROUSSEAU & CO.,

Importers and dealers, at Wholesale and Retail, in

English and American Carpetings.

Floor Oil Cloths, Table and Enameled Oil Cloths,

Window Shades, Table and Piano Covers.

Crumb Cloths, in squares or pieces.

Curtain and Furniture Materials.

Brocatelles, Cotelenes, Terries, Reps, Lace and Nottingham Lace Curtains, Haircloth Ticking, Springs, Burlaps, Step Covers, etc.

no23 1y A. BROUSSEAU & CO.

JOHN LAZARUS,

PRACTICAL OPTICIAN,

6.....ST. CHARLES ST.....6

Near Canal, New Orleans,

Sole Agent for the celebrated Pantascopic Star Spectacles and Eye Glasses. m21 6m

T. H. McMAHAN & CO.,

BANKERS,

And Dealers in Foreign and Domestic Exchange,

GALVESTON, TEXAS.

We have prompt and reliable correspondents at all the principal points throughout this State, and upon all collections payable in this city or Houston make no charge for collecting, and only actual charge upon interior collections.

Immediate and prompt attention given to all business intrusted to us. feb1 1y

RICHARD BRODERICK,

CISTERN MAKER,

132.....Julia street 132

Bet. Camp and Magazine, New Orleans.

Second hand Cisterns always on hand. All work guaranteed.

All orders left at Box 30, Mechanics' and Dealers' Exchange, will meet with prompt attention. my2 1y

E. VEAZIE,

74.....Camp street.....74

NEW ORLEANS, LA.,

LAMPS AND OILS, CHANDELIERS,

Globes, Chimneys, Shades, Trimmers, Wicks, Cans, Fillers, etc.

PRATTS' ASTRAL OIL, non-explosive and non-fulminating. ja18 1y

R. H. NOBLE. J. H. WOODS.

NOBLE & WOODS,

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL GROCERS,

Nos. 9 and 11 Delta street, and 10 and 12 Front street,

ja18 1y NEW ORLEANS, LA.

JOHN D. MACLIN, (Late R. D. Maclin.) L. C. MACLIN,

COAL! WOOD! COAL!

Pittsburg, Anthracite and Cannel Coal, Oak, Ash and Pine Wood, at the lowest market rates, delivered to any part of the city.

Offices—26 Carondelet street, and corner of Third and Tchoupitoulas. mh7 1y

MENEELY'S BELLS.

THE genuine Troy Church Bells known to the public since 1826, which have acquired a reputation unequaled by any, and a sale exceeding that of all others—including more than seventy chimes and peals. One thousand testimonials received during the last six years. Every Bell made of best Copper and Tin, and formally warranted. New Patent Rotary Fixtures. Catalogues free. No agencies.

Post-office address, either TROY or WEST TROY, New York.

je13 1y E. A. & G. R. MENEELY.

"Southern Books for Southern Schools."

School-Books which are Unsectional, Unpartisan, and Unpolitical.

PREPARED BY THE MOST EMINENT SOUTHERN SCHOLARS, AND

ENTIRELY ACCEPTABLE TO SOUTHERN TEACHERS AND PARENTS.

The University Publishing Co.,

An Association composed of many of the most eminent citizens of the several Southern States, feeling the necessity for a series of thoroughly School Books which should be entirely unsectional, unpartisan, and unpolitical, and in their teaching should not be offensive to the thought and feeling of the Southern people—which should present only the facts of history and science—are now issuing a complete series of School and College Text-books and educators named below, which are now published. The "University Series" embraces

Cheapest, Best, and Most Beautiful School-Books

Now published. The "University Series" embraces

MAURY'S GEOGRAPHICAL SERIES,

By Commodore M. F. Maury, of the Virginia Military Institute. A series of books which mark an era in the study of this science, and which, in the words of a well known and accomplished Southern teacher, "are characterized by a felicity of arrangement and simple freshness of style which must ever render them attractive to the young, and which will be used by all who wish to teach Geography as a science, as something to make pupils think, and not merely as an enumeration of dry facts."

Holmes' Readers and Spellers,

By George F. Holmes, A.M., Professor of History and General Literature in the University of Virginia. A series of Readers unequalled in cheapness, excellence, and typographical beauty. They are steadily progressive in character, bright and fresh in their selections of prose and verse, and illustrative of Southern scenes, incidents, and history.

Venable's Arithmetical Series,

By Charles S. Venable, LL.D., Professor of Mathematics in the University of Virginia. These books are received everywhere by intelligent teachers with the highest satisfaction, as being most admirably adapted for mental drill, as well as for business education. Their methods, rules, and reasonings are clear, distinct, logical, and comprehensive, and the series is carefully graded throughout.

Holmes' History of the United States,

By George F. Holmes, LL.D., of the University of Virginia. It is enough to say of this admirable work, interesting, impartial, and truthful, as well as pure and graceful in style, that it is the only History of the United States which is acceptable to Southern teachers and parents. It comes down to the present date.

THE "UNIVERSITY SERIES" OF SCHOOL-BOOKS

COMPRISES, ALSO,

De Vere's French Grammar, Readers, etc.,

By M. Schele DeVere, LL.D., Professor of Modern Languages in the University of Va.

Gildersleeve's Latin Series,

By B. L. Gildersleeve, Ph.D., LL.D., of the University of Virginia.

Carter's Elements of General History,

By Rev. J. P. Carter, A.M., of Baltimore, Maryland.

Holmes' English Grammars,

By George F. Holmes, LL.D., of the University of Virginia.

LeConte's Scientific Series,

By the Professors LeConte, late of the University of South Carolina.

Johnston's English Classics,

By R. M. Johnston, A.M., late Professor of Rhetoric and Belles-Lettres in the University of Georgia.

To which list other books in other departments will be added.

Send for our full ILLUSTRATED DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE, which will be mailed free to any teacher or school officer. Liberal terms for introduction.

Address

UNIVERSITY PUBLISHING COMPANY,

155 and 157 Crosby Street, New York.

A full supply of "The University Series" always on hand, and teachers and schools supplied by R. J. HARP, Bookseller, 112 Camp St., New Orleans.

And by all prominent booksellers throughout the South.

W. IRVING CLARKE, the General Agent, will furnish any information, and afford every facility to teachers for examining the series. Office—103 CAMP ST., New Orleans. jy11 1y

WOMAN'S FRIEND WASHING MACHINE.

THE UNDERSIGNED OFFERS THIS Machine to the public as the Simplest and Best Washing Machine of the age, while the cost is the lowest. It is the invention of a Kentuckian, and is operated by rocking, and washes the clothes by beating, instead of rubbing. It will wash sixteen shirts or twenty-five ordinary pieces of clothing or two single blankets at a time, and it will thoroughly wash, rinse and blue one hundred pieces ordinary clothing in forty-five minutes, without the least wear of the clothing, the breaking of a button or the pulling of a thread.

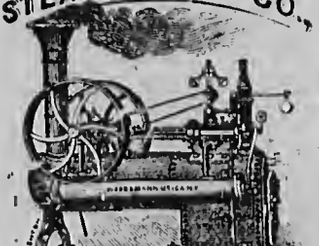
The most delicate fabrics can be washed with it without the least injury. It gives a grass-bleached whiteness to the clothes. To blankets and woolen clothes it gives a new appearance and feeling. Its construction is so simple that it will last for years with care, and costs less than wash-tubs in the aggregate. Any one can repair it, as there are no cog-wheels or cranks to replace.

The directions for its use are very simple, and every Machine will do as represented if the directions are followed. It is a most excellent Wool-washer likewise. Send for circular and certificates of its merits.

PRICE, $12. WITH WRINGER, $18.

EDWARD THOMPSON, Manufacturer and Proprietor,
je27 6m 184 Peters street, near Julia, New Orleans.

THE UTICA STEAM ENGINE CO.,



H. DUDLEY COLEMAN, Agent, NO. 9 UNION STREET, New Orleans.

Formerly WOOD & MANN.

These Engines are so well and favorably known that a description of them here is not deemed necessary.

They are EQUALLED by FEW, SURPASSED by NONE, perfect in workmanship, complete in appointments, safe, simple and substantial. Every boiler is practically tested before leaving the factory. By the use of a CIRCULATING WATER BOTTOM around and underneath the furnace, which lessens the

RISK FROM FIRE,

they are particularly adapted for GINNING COTTON. Engines of all sizes, at prices which challenge comparison for equal size of steam cylinder and measurements of boiler. A full stock of these Engines will be kept constantly on hand by the undersigned, who has been appointed general agent.

H. DUDLEY COLEMAN,
No. 9 Union street,
mh21 6m New Orleans, La.

Carpet and Oil Cloth Warehouse.

J. M. ELKIN. E. STRINGER.

ELKIN & CO.,

168.....CANAL STREET.....168

Near Baronne, New Orleans,

IMPORTERS OF ALL VARIETIES OF ENGLISH CARPETINGS, RUGS, Etc.

—ALSO—

Oil Cloths, Mattings, Lace and Damask Curtains, Window Shades, etc.,

—AND A—

Complete Assortment of Upholstery Goods.

fe8 1y

SAVE $20.

THE NEW WILSON UNDER-FEED.

The Best and Cheapest First-Class Shuttle SEWING MACHINE In the World.

WM. GREGG & Co., General Southern Agents, No. 182 Canal street, New Orleans, La.

Agents Wanted. je27 6m

fe11 1y

AGENTS WANTED TO SELL THE

ILLUSTRATED

HISTORY OF THE BIBLE

By Wm. SMITH, LL.D.

AUTHOR OF SMITH'S BIBLE DICTIONARY.

It contains 213 fine Scripture Illustrations, and over 1,100 pages, and is the most comprehensive and valuable History of the Bible ever published. The labor and learning of centuries are gathered in this one volume to throw a strong, clear light upon every page of the Inspired Word.

Send for circulars, and see our terms and a full description of the work. Address

NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO.,
274 and 276 Second street,
au1 6m Memphis, Tenn.

EXCHANGE HOTEL,

JOHN SUMMERS, PROPRIETOR.

GALVESTON, TEXAS.

This is the only Hotel in the city which has FREE OMNIBUSES to and from the cars and boats for the use of guests. Ask for Exchange Hotel Omnibus. feb1 1y

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

MILLER'S GREAT BIBLE,

WITH OVER TWO HUNDRED ENGRAVINGS.

LARGE PRINT.—BEAUTIFUL BINDINGS.

THE CHRISTIAN HARMONY,

SEVEN-SHAPED NOTES.

The system of Music on which this work is based is remarkable for its simplicity, and the facility with which any one can learn to sing, requiring far less time and labor than the ordinary four-note system. It contains the choicest collection of Music, both original and selected, from the best sources; particularly designed for Choirs, Singing Schools and Private Societies. The great and unprecedented success of the Southern Harmony, by the same author, is a guarantee of the high musical merit of this work. Agents wanted.

Miller's Bible and Publishing House,
1102 and 1104 Sansom street,
je27 6m Philadelphia, Penn'a.

VALUABLE BOOKS.

THE ENCYCLOPEDIA OF RELIGIOUS Knowledge. New revised edition. Designed as a complete book of reference on all religious subjects. Illustrated by wood-cuts, maps and engravings on copper and steel. Royal 8vo., sheep, extra, $6.

THE COMPREHENSIVE COMMENTARY on the Holy Bible. Six volumes, including Supplement, sheep, library style, $20.

FULLEMAN'S HISTORICAL TEXT BOOK and Atlas of Biblical Geography. By Rev. Lyman Coleman, D. D. Imperial 8vo., new edition. Cloth, $2.

LABBERTON'S HISTORICAL SERIES.

LABBERTON'S OUTLINES OF HISTORY, with Original Tables, Chronological, Genealogical and Literary. By Prof. Robert H. Labberton, LL. D. Oblong 4to., cloth, $2.

LABBERTON'S HISTORICAL QUESTIONS, logically arranged and divided. Oblong quarto, cloth, $1.75.

LABBERTON'S HISTORICAL ATLAS, containing One Hundred Colored Maps, illustrating successive periods, from the Dawn of History to the Present Day. One volume, oblong quarto, cloth, $3.50.

For sale by booksellers generally.

CLAXTON, REMSEN & HAFFELFINGER,
my22 3m Publishers, Philadelphia.

A POPULAR MUSIC BOOK!

AT A POPULAR PRICE!

"THE SCEPTER,"

By Dr. A. Brooks Everett,

ONLY $1.00.—BY THE DOZEN, $10.50.

"THE SCEPTER" contains a large variety of most valuable material, embracing Hymn-tunes, Anthems, Glees, the "Everett System of Teaching Vocal Music," etc., by the well-known professor of music, Dr. A. Brooks Everett, recognized throughout the Southern States as a most successful and popular teacher of the art of singing, as well as the author of many of the most popular tunes contained in the Tabor or Richmond Collection.

"THE SCEPTER"

also contains contributions by Profs. R. M. McIntosh, B. H. Everett and other well-known composers, as well as a large number of old standard tunes.

Every Choir Leader and Teacher of Music should examine "THE SCEPTER."

Sent, post paid, on receipt of $1.

PUBLISHED BY

BIGLOW & MAIN, NEW YORK,

SUCCESSORS TO WM. B. BRADBURY,

Publishers of the most popular series of SUNDAY SCHOOL SONG BOOKS (Golden Chain, Shower and Censer, Fresh Laurels, Bright Jewels, Pure Gold, etc. For sale by booksellers generally.

All publications of Biglow & Main are for sale by ROBT. J. HARP, Agent, 112 Camp street, New Orleans. jy18 3m

SWINTON'S CONDENSED

SCHOOL HISTORY.

(From the Virginia Educational Journal.)

Mr. Swinton's reputation led us to examine this book. What is of most importance in the work is its extreme fairness. It is vastly superior, in this respect, to any history issued at the North that we have seen. Where accuracy seems almost impossible, he comes nearer to the truth than the others.

NEW SCHOOL BOOKS.

SWINTON'S WORD ANALYSIS.

CATHCART'S YOUTH'S SPEAKER.

ARITHMETICAL EXAMPLES (Mental and Written.

KERL'S SHORTER COURSE IN GRAMMAR.

A descriptive Catalogue of the American Educational Series, and our Educational Reporter, mailed free to any address upon application.

Ivison, Blakeman, Taylor & Co.,
Dr T. McBROOMEY, General Agent,
mh28 1y 92 Camp street, New Orleans.

Uniform Lessons for 1872.

FOR TEACHERS. The Sunday School World contains the explanations and studies prepared by Rev. John Hall, D. D., for teachers.

SCHOLARS' PAPER.—With the text of the lesson, and suggestive helps for the study of it; and questions at the foot of each page, to be answered in writing by the scholar.

INTERMEDIATE LESSON PAPER.—Adapted to the use of less advanced scholars, with questions and explanations.

Price of each Lesson Paper of four pages, at the rate of 75 cents per 100 copies for one month, or $9 per 100 copies yearly.

Catalogues of the Society's publications and sample copies of its periodicals furnished gratuitously on application at the Depository of the

AMERICAN SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION,
au1 3m 1122 Chestnut st., Philadelphia.

AGENTS WANTED—for the Lives of

Grant Greeley

and

WILSON BROWN

the leading men of all parties. Over 40 Steel Portraits, worth twice the cost of the book. Wanted everywhere. Agents have wonderful success. Send for circular. Address

ZIEGLER & McCURDY,
au15 2m 503 N. Sixth st., St. Louis, Mo.

MINERAL SPERM OIL.

GUARANTEED AS SAFE AS SPERM OR LARD OIL.

It Will Not Take Fire in Case of Breakage of the Lamp.

THE OIL WILL EXTINGUISH the FLAME.

The Oil itself has no odor while burning. It gives a Light of TEN-CANDLE POWER at a cost not exceeding ONE-HALF CENT PER HOUR, and for lighting railroad cars, steamers, factories and dwelling houses it is invaluable and cannot be too highly recommended.

The Oil is patented, and made by a process which insures its uniformity.

It burns with great brilliancy in the

DIAL BURNER,

requires but little attention and no trimming. The Oil never gums in the lamp, as it absorbs no oxygen from the atmosphere. It does not deteriorate by age. This Burner fits all ordinary coal oil lamps.

BOSTICK & SEYMOUR,
Sole Agents for Louisiana, Alabama, Mississippi and Texas,
45 and 47 Front st., and 46 and 48 Fulton st.,
mh28 6m New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS MARKETS.

(From the New Orleans Price Current.)

The weather has been clear and warm, with a light shower on Monday. Our accounts from the country have been as gloomy as last week. We occasionally receive a good report from plantations which have thus far escaped the worms and have not suffered seriously from the dronth, but as a general thing the complaints of both are general, and point to the previous reduction from earlier estimates.

The river is 13 feet 2 inches below high water mark.

COTTON.—The following are the arrivals since the sixth instant:

Louisiana and Mississippi.....bales..	4,559
Lake.....	21
Arkansas.....	1
Mobile.....	417
Total.....	4,998

On Saturday, with a better supply, buyers came forward with increased spirit, and took nearly all the new crop offered, the sales reaching 1,000 bales, at fuller prices, a large portion of the business showing an advance of ⅛c., at which the market closed firm. On Monday the receipts, which were liberal, not having been sampled, the supply was limited, and, New York having given way ⅛c., buyers withdrew to await further developments and the better supply expected on the ensuing day. The demand was consequently limited, and, although factors gave way about ⅛c., it failed to stimulate the movement, and the sales were confined to barely 300 bales, while at the close quotations were reduced ⅛c. On Tuesday, with an ample supply on sale, the demand became more active, but in the face of a further decline of ¼c. at New York factors were compelled to make some concessions, and nearly 1,650 bales changed hands, partly at previous rates, but mostly at a falling off of ⅛c. Low middling sold at 20½, 20⅝, 20.11-16@20¾c., and strict low middling at 20¾, 20⅞@21c. Late in the day there was still some inquiry for low middling at 20½c., which factors refused. The market closed with a considerable portion of the late receipts remaining unsold.

The receipts proper since Friday evening embrace 4,581 bales, against 2,335 during the corresponding period last week, 649 the week before, and 1,040 last year.

We quote:

Good ordinary.....	19¼ @ 19¾
Low middling.....	20¼ @ 20⅞
Middling.....	21 @ 21¼
Strict middling.....	— @ 21¼
Good middling.....	— @ 21⅞

COTTON STATEMENT.

Stock on hand Sept. 1, 1872, bales.		6,259
Arrived past three days..	4,998
Arrived previously.....	4,253—	9,251
		15,510
Exported past three days.
Exported previously.....	2,106—	2,106
Stock on hand and on shipboard..		13,404

SUGAR.—On Tuesday the market was firm, with a good demand for open kettle, which is becoming very scarce, the stock remaining on hand being mostly clarified. The sales embraced 75 hhds., in job lots from dealers. City refinery is selling at 11⅛@11¾c. for yellow clarified, 12¼@12½c. for white clarified, 13¼@13½c. for crushed, and 14½c. for cut loaf.

MOLASSES.—City refinery is selling at 30c. for inferior, 40c. for common, 50c. for fair, 55c. for prime, 60c. for choice, and 80c.@$1 ₩ gallon for golden sirup.

CORN.—On Tuesday the greater part of the supply was white and white mixed. White mixed was scarce and more inquired for. 3,000 sacks were sold, in lots, at 56c. for red mixed in burlaps, 57c. for white mixed in do., 58c. for white mixed in gunnies, and 59c. for choice white.

OATS—Are in moderate supply on the landing, with a further advance in the better grades on account of light receipts. On Tuesday the sales were confined to 550 sacks, in lots, at 40c. for prime and 42c. for choice St. Louis, and 45c. for choice Galena.

BRAN—Has been in good demand, and with pretty fair supplies prices have advanced fully 2½c. ₩ 100 lbs. On Tuesday 650 sacks were sold at 97½c.@$1 ₩ 100 lbs.

PORK.—On Tuesday, although a lot of 50 bbls. choice over-weight mess sold at $14 75 ₩ bbl., the market was very dull, with round lots of mess offering at $14.25 ₩ bbl. It is retailing at $14.37½@$14.75 ₩ bbl.

BACON.—On Tuesday the market was extremely dull, and there was little movement at wholesale. 8 casks shoulders sold at 8c.; 5 casks clear sides, in store, and 20 do. on the landing, at 11c. ₩ lb. Shoulders are now quoted at 8c., clear rib sides 10½c., clear sides 11c. ₩ lb.

HAMS.—Choice sugar-cured are selling at 18@19c. ₩ lb.

BREAKFAST BACON.—Western continues in light supply, though more liberal receipts are expected. It is in demand, and commands as received 15½c. ₩ lb. On Saturday 60 boxes Western sold, to arrive, on private terms, and 25 boxes, on the spot, at 15½c. ₩ lb. Northern is selling at 11½@12c. ₩ lb.

CORN MEAL.—The market has continued well supplied and very dull, with a downward tendency in prices. On Tuesday 450 bbls. sold, in four lots, at $2 50, and 180 bbls., in two lots, at $2.60 ₩ bbl. It is retailing at $2.75@$2.90 ₩ bbl.

BEEF.—The demand is confined to a small local trade. Texas is in good supply, but Western and Northern is scarce. We quote Texas mess at $11@$12, extra mess $12.50 ₩ bbl., and $7@$7 50 for half bbls. Tierces are quoted at $17@$17.50 for mess, and $18@$18.50 for prime mess. Western $14@$15 for bbls., and Northern $15@$17.50 for bbls., and $9.50 for half bbls.

MONETARY.

Gold opened on Tuesday at 112⅞@113¼ (against 113¼ at New York,) and closed at 112⅞@113⅛ (against 113¼ at New York.)

Nothing has been reported in silver, except some small sales on Saturday, the particulars of which were withheld, and $900 on Tuesday at 107¼ and 108½.

New Orleans Wholesale Prices.

REVISED AND CORRECTED WEEKLY.

Made up from Actual Sales as they Transpire.

ARTICLES.	FROM	TO
Agricultural Implements:
Cotton scrapers	4 50	6 00
Cotton sweeps	4 50	6 00
Cultivators, Diam. & shovel-tooth	7 75	10 50
Cultivators, riding	45 00	60 00
Cultivators, walking	30 00	35 00
Shovels	7 50	14 50
Spades	7 50	16 50
Axes	10 00	15 00
Potato diggers	13 50	— —
Shovel plows	6 00	7 00
Half do., with cutters	8 00	9 00
Manly's D. S plow	6 00	9 75
Corn mills, Coleman's	120 00	425 00
Bread, ₩ 100 lbs:
Pilot	5 00	6 00
Loaf	— —	— —
Crackers	5 00	12 00
Navy	— —	4 00
Cream crackers	11 00	12 00
Bricks, ₩ M:
Lake	13 00	16 00
English fire	— —	50 00
American fire	40 00	— —
Candles, ₩ lb:
Sperm, New Bedford	33	36
Tallow	16	18
Chocolate, ₩ lb:
Cocoa	38	60
No. 1	50	52
Sweet and spiced	25	— —
Cider, ₩ bbl:
Western	— —	— —
Coal, ₩ ton:
Anthracite	12 00	13 00
Western, ₩ bbl	— —	55
Corks, ₩ 1000:
Regular	— —	— —
Pointed	— —	— —
Coffee, ₩ lb:
Havana (currency)	25	28
Java	25	27
Cordova	— —	— —
Copper, ₩ lb:
Braziers'	48	— —
Copper bolts	48	— —
Yellow metal	30	32
Cordage, ₩ lb:
Manilla	19	20
Tarred, American	— —	16
Russian	16	— —
Cotton seed:
Rough, ₩ ton	— —	13 00
In sacks	17 00	17 50
Dyes, ₩ lb:
Logwood, Camp'y	4	4½
Logwood, St. Domingo	4½	4¾
Fustic, Tampico	5	6
Indigo, ₩ lb	1 40	1 60
Madder	15	18
Eggs, ₩ dozen:
Western	14	16
Feathers, ₩ lb	65	— —
Fish, ₩ box:
Cod	1 40	— —
Herrings	35	— —
Mackerel, No. 1, ₩ bbl	13 00	— —
Mackerel, No. 2	10 50	— —
Mackerel, No. 3	8 00	— —
Flaxseed, ₩ lb	6	— —
Flour, ₩ bbl:
Double extra	6 25	6 50
Superfine	5 50	— —
Fine	4 50	4 75
Fruit, ₩ lb:
Prunes	10	13½
Currants, new	9	10
Almonds, soft shell	16½	18
Almonds, shelled	28	30
Glass, ₩ box of 50 feet:
French, 8 by 10	3 50	4 00
French, 10 by 12	3 75	4 25
French, 12 by 18	4 00	4 50
Gunny bags, ₩ bag	18	— —
Hay, ₩ ton:
Prime	27 50	28 00
Choice	— —	29 00
Iron, ₩ ton:
Pig	54 00	55 00
Country bar, ₩ lb	— —	— —
English	5½	7¼
Swedes, assorted	6½	8¼
Hoop	7	10¼
Sheet	7½	8¼
Boiler	7½	8¼
Nail rods	— —	11
Castings, American	— —	6
Lead, ₩ 100 lbs:
Pig	— —	9 50
Bar, ₩ lb	8½	8¾
Sheet	12	— —
Pipe	12	— —
Leather, ₩ lb:
Sole, hemlock	33	34
Sole, oak	37	43
Harness	33	45
Calf skins, ₩ dozen	42 00	70 00
Texas, rough, ₩ lb	24	26
Lime, ₩ bbl:
Western	1 25	1 50
Cement	2 50	3 00
Plaster Paris	4 00	— —
Lumber, ₩ M feet:
Boards, yellow pine	13 00	15 00
Boards, cypress	25 00	30 00
Flooring, dressed	25 00	30 00
Flooring, rough	15 00	18 00
Ceiling, dressed	20 00	25 00
Weatherboards, dressed	19 00	20 00
Weatherboards, rough	13 00	15 00
Scantling	13 00	15 00
Shingles, ₩ M	3 50	4 25
Laths	2 50	3 00
Moss, ₩ lb:
Country picked	4½	6
Clean picked	6½	7
Nails, ₩ keg:
American, 4@6d	— —	6 00
Wrought, German, ₩ lb	14	16
Wrought, English	14	16
Oils:
Lard, ₩ gallon	70	85
Coal oil, in barrels	26	28
Coal oil, in cases	32	35
Linseed, raw	90	92
Sperm	— —	2 00
Whale, refined	95	1 00
Cotton seed, crude	— —	46
Cotton seed, refined	60	65
Castor	1 65	1 85
Olive, 72@24-oz	6 00	6 50
Olive, 11@12 oz	7 25	— —
Tanner's, ₩ gallon	75	85
Soap, ₩ lb:
Western	5½	7
Northern	5½	7
Southern	4½	6½
Castile, genuine	12	— —
Castile, imitation	11	— —
Sardines:
Half boxes	34	35½
Quarter boxes	— —	23
Spices, ₩ lb:
Cassia	36	38
Cloves	— —	23
Nutmegs	1 20	1 25
Pepper	21	21½
Pimento	12	12½
Sugar, ₩ lb:
Havana, white	13	— —
Havana, yellow	10½	11½
Havana, brown	10½	11
Crushed	13½	13½
Pulverized	13½	13½
Teas, ₩ lb:
Imperial	45	1 10
Gunpowder	75	1 50
Hyson	75	1 25
Young Hyson	75	1 10
Oolong	45	1 10
Ponchong	30	50
Tin, ₩ box:
Block	— —	— —
In plates, I. X	19 00	19 25
In plates, I. C	16 50	16 75
Leaded plates, I. X	17 25	17 50
Leaded plates, I. C	15 00	15 25

CATTLE MARKET.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 10, 1872.

Texas beeves, choice, ₩ head	$—	@	50 00
Texas beeves, 1st qual, ₩ head	35 00	@	45 00
Texas cattle, 2d qual, ₩ head	20 00	@	28 00
Texas cattle, 3d qual, ₩ head	12 00	@	15 00
Western beeves, ₩ lb. net	— —	@	— —
Hogs, ₩ lb. gross	6	@	7¼
Sheep, first quality, ₩ head	5 00	@	6 00
Sheep, second qual., ₩ head	3 00	@	4 00
Sheep, third quality, ₩ head	2 00	@	2 50
Milch cows, choice, ₩ head	80 00	@	100 00
Milch cows, ₩ head	50 00	@	80 00
Texas cows, with calves	— —	@	— —
Calves, ₩ head	7 00	@	10 00
Yearlings, ₩ head	8 00	@	12 00

Special Notices.

Camp Meeting.—Change of Time.

There will be a camp meeting on the Paulding circuit, Meridian district, Mississippi Conference, twelve miles west of Enterprise, near the Enterprise and Mount Rose road, commencing on Thursday before and embracing the third Sabbath in October. The meeting will be conducted on the primitive style. Provision will be made for all ministers and persons living at a distance. Persons living within fifteen or twenty miles of the camp ground must not expect accommodations from the citizens or tent-holders. All ministers are respectfully invited and urged to attend. There will be conveyance for ministers at Enterprise on Thursday morning. J. H. HOLLAND, P. C.

Camp Meeting.

There will be a camp meeting at Old Salem camp ground, East Pascagoula circuit, Mississippi Conference, commencing on Thursday before the second Sabbath in October. The tenters propose furnishing visitors. However, there will be a public table for the benefit of those who prefer furnishing themselves. Charges moderate. Preachers are invited. C. F. GILLASPIE, P. E.
U. B. PHILIPS, P. C.

Camp Meeting.

There will be a camp meeting at the New Hope and Pleasant Ridge camp ground, on the DeKalb circuit, beginning on the Friday night before the first Sabbath in October. Ministers are most cordially invited to attend. Those coming by railroad will be met on Friday morning, at Lauderdale station, with vehicles to convey them to the camp ground. D. G. W. ELLIS, P. C.

Camp Meeting.

We have appointed our camp meeting at Gilead, eight miles east of Clinton, Louisiana, to commence on Thursday night before the second Sunday in October. Ministers and friends of camp meetings are invited from a distance, and will be accommodated on the grounds free.

WILL. H. LETH, Pastor.

Camp Meeting.

There will be a camp meeting at Sardis church, Greene county, Alabama, fifteen miles west of Eutaw, Alabama, on the Warsaw road, near the Bigbee river, commencing on Thursday night before the first Sabbath in October, 1872. Preachers are respectfully invited. J. W. MCCANN.

Camp Meeting.

There will be a camp meeting twelve miles east of Pleasant Hill, Natchitoches parish—known as Beulah camp ground—commencing on the eleventh of October, instead of the eleventh of September. R. PARVIN.

Camp Meeting.

There will be a camp meeting at Hill's chapel, commencing on Friday before the fourth Sabbath in September, and continuing until the following Wednesday. Hill's chapel is in Montgomery county, Alabama, twenty-eight miles southeast of the city of Montgomery, seven miles east of Athens, five miles southwest of Pine Level, and twenty miles northwest of Troy. It is designed to make this camp ground self-supporting, and therefore, while everybody is invited, we request that all who can will come in their wagons, prepared to care for themselves. A public lot will be adjacent to the camp ground. Preachers, traveling and local, are invited.

WILLIAM A. SAMPEY, Pastor.

Camp Meeting.

There will be a camp meeting held at Indian Village, Castor circuit, Louisiana Conference, to commence on Wednesday before the first Sabbath in October, on the self-sustaining plan. Persons living at a distance, and desiring to tent, can have a tent built to order by addressing Rev. J. B. Landers, Forksville, Louisiana. A general invitation to ministers is hereby given.

J. W. HEARN, P. C.

Debate.

Rev. D. M. Hudson, of the Alabama Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and Elder J. M. Pickens, of the Christian Church, will discuss the Subjects, Design and Mode of Christian Baptism, and probably also the question of Denominational Names and Written Creeds, in the Baptist church at Pineapple, Wilcox county, Alabama, at the southern terminus of the Selma and Gulf railroad. The debate will commence on Tuesday, September 24, 1872, at ten o'clock A. M., and continue some eight or ten days

Camp Meeting.

A camp meeting will be held on Clear creek, Rapides parish, twelve miles north of Alexandria, on the old telegraph road to Harrisonburg, beginning on Thursday, September 19, 1872. The Alexandria District Conference will be held at the same time. All ministers, all members of the Quarterly Conferences and all friends are earnestly requested to attend and assist in the meeting.

JOHN F. WINN, P. C.
FRED. WHITE, P. E.

Camp Meeting.

A camp meeting will be held on Spring creek, thirty miles southwest of Alexandria, near Burr's ferry, on the road from mouth of Red river to the Sabine, and on the Opelousas and Natchitoches road, beginning on Friday, October 11. All ministers and all friends are earnestly requested to give us their attendance and assistance.

FRED. WHITE,
S. H. COOPER,
C. KEENER.

Camp Meeting.

There will be a camp meeting on the Gaston circuit, Demopolis district, Alabama Conference, three miles west of DeSotoville, in the northern portion of Choctaw county, Alabama, commencing on Friday before the first Sabbath in October. Provision will be made for all visitors. Ministers of the gospel are cordially invited.

C. B. DEBOSE, P. C.

Appointments for Quarterly Meetings.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

MERIDIAN DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Spring Hill ct., at Linwood (camp meeting)	Sept. 21, 22
Shubuta, at Shubuta	28, 29
DeKalb ct., at New Hope (camp meeting)	Oct. 5, 6
Wayne circuit, at Frost's Bridge (camp meeting)	12, 13
Paulding circuit	19, 20
Enterprise station	26, 27
Clarke circuit	Nov. 2, 3
Enterprise ct., at Pleasant Valley	9, 10
Marion circuit	16, 17
Meridian station	30, Dec. 1

WM. B. HINES, P. E.

WOODVILLE DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Woodville	Oct. 5, 6
East Feliciana	12, 13
Clinton	19, 20
Buffalo	26, 27
Bayou Sara	Nov. 2, 3
Wilkinson	9, 10
Meadville	16, 17
Amite	23, 24
East Baton Rouge	30, Dec. 1
Jackson	Dec. 8, 9

For four long weeks I have been confined to the room of my afflicted wife, so that I have missed three of my appointments; but my dear brother, President Andrews, has and will supply my lack of service.

J. L. FORSYTH, P. E.

BROOKHAVEN DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Providence circuit, at Providence	Sept. 21, 22
Brandywine circuit	28, 29
Scotland circuit, at Cascyville	Oct. 5, 6
Pleasant Valley ct., at Rehoboth	12, 13
Bethesda circuit, at Wesley	19, 20
Beauregard	26, 27
Georgetown ct., at Picas't Grove	Nov. 2, 3
Jackson circuit, at Spring Ridge	9, 10
Crystal Springs and Crystal Springs mission	16, 17
Bogue Chitto circuit, at Johnson's Station	23, 24
Brookhaven station and Brookhaven mission	30
Hazlehurst station	Dec. 7, 8

Secretaries of the respective Boards of Stewards will prepare a financial statement for the use of the Joint Board, as required by the Discipline. Trustees will report the condition and character of titles of all property they hold for the church.

W. E. M. LINFIELD, P. E.

BRANDON DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Brandon station	Sept. 28, 29
Hillsboro circuit	Oct. 5, 6
Philadelphia circuit	12, 13
Decatur mission	19, 20
Lake circuit	26, 27
Trenton circuit	Nov. 2, 3
Raleigh and Morton circuit	9, 10
Forest circuit	16, 17
Taylorville mission	23, 24
Garlandsville circuit	30, Dec. 1
Brandon circuit	Dec. 7, 8

F. M. WILLIAMS, P. E.

SUMMIT DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Summit and Magnolia, at Bethany	Sept. 21, 22
District Conference, at Tangipahoa, Louisiana	27, 28, 29
Sacramental meeting, at Port Vincent	Oct. 12, 13
Holmesville circuit, at Holmesville	19, 20
Covington circuit, at Spring Hill	26, 27
Amite City circuit, at Amite City	Nov. 2, 3
Franklinton circuit, at Warner's	9, 10
Big Creek miss., at Shilling church	16, 17
St. Helena ct., at Center church	23, 24
Pontchatoula mission, at Joyner's church	30, Dec. 1
Greenburg ct., at Pipkin chapel	Dec. 7, 8

J. NICHOLSON, P. E.

SEASHORE DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Pearlington, at Jordan river	Sept. 7, 8
Ocean Springs, at Biloxi	14, 15
White Plains, at Poplar Head	21, 22
W. Pascagoula, at Mulberry Grove	28, 29
Green mission	Oct. 5, 6
East Pascagoula, at Salem camp ground	12, 13
Enon, at Enon	19, 20
Rankin	Nov. 30, Dec. 1

C. F. GILLASPIE, P. E.

JACKSON DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Jackson station	Sept. 14, 15
Canton station	21, 22
Madison ct., at Madison station	28, 29
Sharon circuit, at Sharon	Oct. 5, 6
Yazoo circuit, at Locust Grove	12, 13
Yazoo City and Silver Creek, at Yazoo City	19, 20
Mount Olivet circuit and Yazoo mission, at Mount Olivet	26, 27
Carthage circuit	Nov. 2, 3
Sulphur Springs circuit	9, 10
Raymond circuit, at Raymond	16, 17
Brownsville ct., at Queen's Hill	23, 24
Camden and Thomastown circuits	30, Dec. 1

The secretaries of Church Conferences will please present the report of statistics, as required by the Discipline, pages 55 and 56. The trustees of our church property will please make their report, as required by the Discipline, pages 55 and 102.

H. H. MONTGOMERY, P. E.

ALABAMA CONFERENCE.

MOBILE DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Eastern Shore	Sept. 7, 8
Whistler	14, 15
St. Paul's	21, 22
Mt. Pleasant ct., at Hollow Creek	28, 29
Grand Bay mission, at Pleasant Valley	Oct. 5, 6
Citronelle circuit, at Citronelle	19, 20
St. Stephen's ct., at Pine Grove	26, 27
Franklin street	Nov. 2, 3
Pollard circuit, at Hendrick's	9, 10
Milton	16, 17
Pensacola	23, 24
St. Francis street	Dec. 1

The stewards, trustees and preachers will be ready with their reports, as the Discipline requires. They will please read and refresh their memories. H. URQUHART, P. E.

EUFAULA DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Eufaula	Oct. 5, 6
Villula	12, 13
Glennville	19, 20
Beulah	26, 27
Enon and Midway	Nov. 2, 3
Perote	9, 10
Clayton and Louisville	16, 17
Choctawhachie	23, 24
Lawrenceville	30, Dec. 1
Chanahachie	Dec. 7, 8

JAS. L. COTTEN, P. E.

SELMA DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

East Selma station	Sept. 21, 22
Uniontown station	28, 29
Selma station	Oct. 5, 6
Rembert Hills circuit, at Shiloh	12, 13
Peachtree ct., at Mount Andrew	19, 20
Summerfield station	26, 27
Choctaw Corner circuit, at Hashi	Nov. 2, 3
Dayton and Spring Hill circuit, at Dayton	9, 10
Linden and Flatwoods mission	— —
Orrville circuit, at Center chapel	16, 17
Jackson circuit, at Grove Hill	23, 24
Suggsville circuit, at Gainstown	30, Dec. 1

We hope for a full attendance, and complete reports, as required by the Discipline. Those who have subscribed to the district parsonage will please bring or send up their contributions to the quarterly meetings.

A. J. BRIGGS, P. E.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

OPELOUSAS DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Pattersonville	Sept. 14, 15
Opelousas	21, 22
Grand Chenier	28, 29
Lake Charles	Oct. 5, 6
Calcasieu	12, 13
Sugartown	19, 20
Bayou Boeuf	26, 27
Klugball chapel	Nov. 2, 3
Vermillionville	9, 10
Abbeville	16, 17
New Iberia	23, 24

B. F. WHITE, P. E.
Postoffice—Opelousas, La.

SHREVEPORT DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Pleasant Hill circuit, at Bethel	Sept. 7, 8
Springville circuit, at Coushatta Academy	21, 22
Manny circuit, at Bayou Lee	Oct. 5, 6
Anacoco circuit, at Kasatchie	12, 13
Shreveport	19, 20

The District Conference will be held at Keachie, commencing on Thursday, September 26, at ten A. M. The Bethel camp meeting will commence on the sixth of September, and the Beulah camp meeting will commence September 11.

JOHN PIPES, P. E.

LAKE PROVIDENCE DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Oak Grove, at Oak Grove	Sept. 7, 8
Lind Grove, at Lind Grove	14, 15
Sicily Island, at Bœuff Prairie	22, 23
Winnsboro, at Oakley	28, 29
Rayville, at Little Creek	Oct. 6, 7

J. T. DAVES, P. E.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

YAZOO DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

French Camps circuit, at Liberty	Sept. 14, 15
Richland circuit, at Goodman	21, 22
Valden circuit, at Enon	28, 29
Attala circuit, at Pleasant Hill	Oct. 5, 6
Winona circuit, at Bethesda	12, 13
Greenwood and McNutt, at Greenwood	19, 20
Lexington	26, 27
Durant, at West's station	Nov. 2, 3
Kosciusko and Bethel, at Kosciusko	9, 10
Black Hawk, at Sweetwater	16, 17

W. B. BARTON, P. E.

N. B.—Camp meetings at Liberty and Durant quarterly meetings.

DRY GOODS—CLOTHING.

D. H. HOLMES,

135.....CANAL STREET.....135

—AND—

15.....BOURBON STREET.....15

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALER

—IN—

ALL DESCRIPTIONS

—OF—

DRY GOODS,

—SUCH AS—

SILKS, TISSUES, EMBROIDERIES, LACES, SHAWLS, CLOAKS, MADE SUITS, ETC.

The attention of the public is respectfully called to our stock, which will be found most complete, embracing every kind of Fancy and Staple Goods.

ap25 6m

W. H. PIERSON. E. L. HEWS.

PIERSON & HEWS,

DEALERS IN

Fine Clothing & Furnishing Goods,

NOS. 13 AND 15 CAMP STREET,

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

feb15 1y

STEAMSHIPS.

FOR NEW YORK.

The Cromwell New York and New Orleans Steamship Line.

Steamers of this Line leave New Orleans for New York EVERY SATURDAY at 5 P. M.

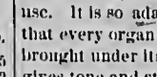
Cabin passage..... $50 00
Steerage passage..... 25 00

Through bills of lading to foreign and coastwise ports issued.

ALFRED MOULTON,
41 Carondelet street.

mh21 1y

FOR NEW YORK.



MERCHANTS' STEAMSHIP LINE.

Sailing from New York and New Orleans EVERY SATURDAY.

Cabin passage..... $50 00
Steerage passage..... 25 00

Through tickets to Liverpool and the Continent.

New Orleans wharf, foot of Jefferson street.
New York wharf, Pier No 4, North river.

JOHN H. LUDWIGSEN, Agent,
feb8 1y No. 190 Common street.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE GREAT

HOUSEHOLD REMEDY.

As an Invigorator, Liver Corrector and Blood Renovator is superior to all the Bitters, Elixirs, Cordials and Sarsaparillas in use. It is so adapted to the whole system that every organ and function in the body is brought under its exhilarating influence. It gives tone and strength to the digestive apparatus, dispels langnor and debility, invigorates the Liver, regulates the Kidneys and Bowels, removes the effect of excess or overtaxation of any kind, and gives vitality and richness to the blood.

Its curative powers alter and completely reorganize the entire mass of fluids, and even the solids of the human system, thereby preventing and curing Dyspeptic and Consumptive symptoms, Fever and Ague, Bilious diseases, Fevers of all kinds, Nervous Debility, Affections of the Stomach and Bowels, etc. As a mild and delightful Invigorant for delicate females it has no superior.

By its use new life and vigor is given to both body and mind, sending a glow of vitality through every part, which is permanent and lasting.

It is the most effectual remedy for the relief of human suffering ever discovered, and is pleasant to the taste.

X X WE CHALLENGE X X
X X THE X X
X X WORLD X X

to produce a more delicious medicine to take, yet so potent for the prevention and cure of diseases, than DR. HENRY'S

WORLD'S TONIC AND BLOOD PURIFIER.

Price, $1, or Six Bottles for $5.

Prepared by the GRAFTON MEDICINE Co., St. Louis, Mo. Sold by druggists and dealers in medicines everywhere. jy18 1yeow

WAVERLY STABLES.
HAYDEN & MEENAN, Proprietors.

LIVERY AND SALE STABLES,

No. 30 North Royal Street, Mobile.

Carriages and Buggies of the latest styles, and superior Horses, furnished at all hours. Calls of every description will receive prompt attention. ja4 1y.

MEDICAL.

DR. D. JAYNE'S ALTERATIVE

WILL

BUILD UP THE SYSTEM,

PURIFY THE BLOOD,

AND

EXCITE THE ABSORBENTS TO

HEALTHY ACTION.

DR. D. JAYNE'S ALTERATIVE

IS A STANDARD MEDICINE:

a compound of those articles which long experience has proven to possess the most safe and efficient alterative and deobstruent properties, and containing no concealed poisons, no mercurial or other metallic preparations. Having before us the testimonials of thousands of persons who have been restored to sound health from its use, it is recommended to the afflicted with entire confidence as to its ability to effectually eradicate from the human system the diseases for whose cure it is designed.

For Purifying the Blood

the Alterative will be found to be a most effective medicine. Acting directly on the circulation, it purifies the blood, and passes with it into every tissue and fiber of the body, removing every particle of disease from the system.

FOR SCROFULA IN ALL ITS FORMS,

whether Ulcerations of the Flesh or Bones, Enlargement of the Joints, Glands, Swellings, Eruptions, Tumors, etc., the Alterative has been found pre-eminently successful. By its action on the blood it destroys the virus or poisonous principle from which these diseases originate.

FOR SKIN DISEASES,

the immediate cause of which will always be found to be an obstructed state of the pores, JAYNE'S ALTERATIVE is a certain remedy. It not only removes the obstinate state of the pores, but it frees the blood and perspiration from all impurities and gross particles, which are so liable to obstruct the small perspiratory organs.

All Dr. D. Jayne & Son's Family Medicines are sold by our Agents in New Orleans.

E. J. HART & Co., 73 Tchoupitoulas St.,

and by Druggists and Dealers everywhere.

se5 2in

MRS. M. G. BROWN'S

CELEBRATED

POOR RICHARD'S

EYE-WATER

derives its name from Benjamin Franklin's Almanac, which is immortal for its philosophical sayings, one of which is: "An ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure."

Giving the Eyes a drink, morning and night, of

POOR RICHARD'S EYE-WATER

would prevent every disease which attacks the human body, thus lengthening life to an indefinite period.

The Body is of the Earth, and the Eye is a Plant, which requires moisture

The dust received into the eyes daily works itself into mortar, which clogs the machinery of the head, and closes up the eight thousand tubes and glands around the eyes; the balls contract and sink; they grow to the socket, and consequently the revolving power is impeded. This is what causes the blood-streaks, the dark greenish color of the balls, and scum.

When the eyes are neglected the entire machinery of the face becomes distorted; even the countenance is changed. How true: "The light of the body is the eye." It is as necessary to give the eye moisture as any plant of the field.

Language fails to make known the salutary effects upon the entire mental and physical machinery arising from giving the eyes a drink of POOR RICHARD'S EYE-WATER, morning and night; also the fearful consequence of neglecting so to do from the cradle to the grave.

POOR RICHARD'S EYE-WATER
Prevents Catarrh.

POOR RICHARD'S EYE-WATER
Cures Catarrh,
Opens the 8,000 tubes and glands in the head.
Prevents tightness and pains in the head,
Opens and keeps open the mucous membrane,
Removes phlegm from throat and chest.

POOR RICHARD'S EYE-WATER
Removes Wrinkles and Blotches,
Gives large, sparkling eyes,
Gives a clear, smooth complexion,
Lifts sunken eyes,
Strengthens weak eyes.

POOR RICHARD'S EYE-WATER
Removes tan freckles,
Gives blooming cheeks,
Removes all inflammation,
Cures all kinds of headache,
It penetrates through the eyes into the gums
And preserves the teeth,
Gives the sweetest breath,
Opens the gates for rivers
To pass from the head into the system.

POOR RICHARD'S EYE-WATER
Cures tan, freckles and grubs,
Is clear and beautiful,
Same taste as the tear.

POOR RICHARD'S EYE-WATER
Restores the memory, brightens the intellect.

Price, Twenty-five cents per bottle. Sold by druggists. E. J. HART & Co., Wholesale Agents, 73, 75, 77 and 79 Tchoupitoulas street, New Orleans.

☞ Inclose ten cents to the METAPHYSICAL UNIVERSITY, 51 Bond street, New York, for Mrs. M. G. Brown's pamphlet of sixty-eight pages, giving a synopsis of the Cause, Cure and Prevention of Disease; worth mines of gold to both sick and well. au15 1y

The Christian Advocate.

PUBLISHED BY ROBT. J. HARP, FOR THE ALABAMA, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES, METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH SOUTH.

VOL. XVIII. NEW ORLEANS, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 19, 1872. NO. 38.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

DOMESTIC.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 11.—The city is crowded with strangers attending the peace reunion. The trains last night and this morning brought in hundreds, among them Hon. L. D. Campbell, of Ohio, Ex-Governor Vance, of North Carolina, and many other prominent persons from all sections of the country. A committee of prominent Kentuckians welcome all visitors as the guests of Kentucky.

Thirty bullocks, one hundred and fifty sheep and fifty hogs were barbecued to-day. Fifty cooks are employed in preparing food, and hundreds of waiters attend to the crowd. The grounds and stands are profusely decorated.

New York, Sept. 12.—Manton Eastburn, bishop of the diocese of Massachusetts, died at Boston this morning.

San Francisco, Sept. 12.—By the arrival of the Olympia information is received that the volcano of Manna Loa, on the island of Hawaii, is again in active eruption.

San Francisco, Sept. 15.—The Chinese ladies of rank who came here to be educated, and the boy students, are received with much attention. As the last students, while in America, became contaminated by Christianity, all the forms of the religion of Confucius will be rigidly enforced, and four books of the Five Kings and the sacred edict of Emperor Kangshi will be portions of their regular lessons.

Washington, Sept. 16.—Miss Slidell, the youngest daughter of the late John Slidell, was married on Saturday, the seventh instant, to Baron Pfeiffer, of Lucerne, Switzerland, at the house of her brother-in-law, Baron Erlanger, Boulogne-Sur-Seine. The witnesses were Messrs. Drouyn De L'Huye and Francis P. Corbin. Among the guests at the dejeuner were the Papal Nuncio, Mr. Washburne, Prince De Polignac, etc.

Washington, Sept. 17.—The September report of the statistician of the Department of Agriculture indicates a decline in the cotton crop prospects during the past month, in consequence of the presence of the cotton caterpillar in portions of Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana, and of drouth of moderate severity in Texas, Arkansas and Tennessee. The condition of the crop, as shown by the average of returns received, is as follows: Virginia 97, North Carolina 101, South Carolina 95, Georgia 96, Florida 92, Alabama 88, Mississippi 90, Louisiana 86, Texas 94, Arkansas 78, Tennessee 92.

Thus the prospect throughout the entire cotton area, which favored a yield of five per cent. larger than the average product, promises at the present time about ten per cent. less than an average. The increase of acreage over last year, and the unfavorable character of the season of 1871, still point to a material increase in the total crop of 1872, while the possible extension of insect ravages or the early occurrence of frost may modify the present expectation.

Baltimore, Sept. 17.—At the Grand Lodge of the Odd Fellows, to-day, R. W. D. G. Sire C. A. Logan, of Kansas, was elected Most Worthy Grand Sire; and Representative M. J. Dunham, of Kentucky, Right Worthy Deputy Grand Sire. James L. Ridgely, of Maryland, was re-elected R. W. Grand Corresponding and Recording Secretary; and Joshua Vanzandt, of Maryland, was re-elected R. W. Grand Treasurer. The other officers of the Grand Lodge will be appointed by the M. W. Grand Sire.

After the election of officers the lodge proceeded with the regular routine business. Various resolutions pertaining to discipline and amendments to by-laws were introduced and referred. Among the resolutions was one relating to the establishing of a system of dues and benefits, so that subordinate lodges may not be allowed to fix dues too low in proportion to benefits guaranteed, which was referred to a committee, to be reported on at the next session.

Reports show the flourishing condition of Odd Fellows throughout the world. During the session of the Grand Lodge degrees were conferred upon Hugh Wilhelm, District Deputy Grand Sire for Prussia.

FOREIGN.

London, Sept. 13.—A special dispatch to the Daily News, from Rome, says: The Emperors of Germany, Austria and Russia, at their conference in Berlin, resolved to advise the Pope to abandon the Jesuits, and agreed to use their good offices with the Italian government for the protection of foreign religious corporations in Italy.

Geneva, Sept. 14.—The Court of Arbitration met at half-past twelve o'clock this afternoon, the delay in the arrival of Sir Alexander Cockburn and Lord Tenterden having prevented its assembling at twelve o'clock, the usual hour.

The five arbitrators, the agents of the respective governments, several of their counsel, twelve ladies and ten journalists were present.

Count Schlopis, the president of the court, read the argument of the arbitrators concurring in the decision of the tribunal, and announced that the sum of $15,500,000 gold was awarded to the United States.

Sir Alexander Cockburn refused to sign the decision of the tribunal.

Count Schlopis was applauded after he concluded.

After the adjournment of the court twenty-two guns were fired in honor of the closing of its labors.

The English representatives leave Geneva on Monday. The Americans will leave on Tuesday.

Madrid, Sept. 16.—The King opened the session of the new Cortes to-day. In his speech he stated that his efforts to re-establish diplomatic relations with the Papal See had so far proved unavailing. The proposed reforms in Cuba would be carried into effect as soon as the rebellion was over.

AGE OF MEN.

Prof. Faraday adopts Flourins' physiological theory that the age of man is one hundred years. The duration of life he believes to be measured by the time of growth. When once the bones and epiphyses are united, the body grows no more, and it is at twenty years this union is effected in a man. In the camel it takes place at eight; in the horse at five; in the lion at four; in the dog at two; in the rabbit at one.

The natural termination of life is five removes from those several points. Man being twenty years in growing, lives five times twenty years—that is to say, one hundred years; the camel is eight years in growing, lives five times eight years—that is to say, forty years; the horse is five years in growing, and lives twenty-five years, and so with other animals. The man who does not die with sickness, lives everywhere from eighty to a hundred years. Providence has given man a century of life, but he does not attain it, because he inherits disease, eats unwholesome food, gives license to passions, and permits vexation to disturb his healthy equipoise; he does not die, he kills himself. The professor divides life into two equal halves, growth and decline, and these two halves into infancy, youth, virility and age. Infancy extends to the twentieth year, youth to the fiftieth, because it is during this period that the tissues become firm; virility, from fifty to seventy-five, during which the organism remains complete; and at seventy-five old age commences, to last a long or short time, as the diminution of reserve forces is hastened or retarded.

The following letter, together with a magnificent snuff box set with brilliants, has been received by Mr. Stanley:

"Foreign Office, August 27, 1872.

"Sir: I have great satisfaction in conveying to you, by command of the Queen, her majesty's high appreciation of the prudence and zeal which you have displayed in opening communication with Dr. Livingstone, and relieving her majesty from the anxiety which, in common with her subjects, she had felt in regard to the fate of the distinguished traveler. The Queen desires me to express her thanks for the service you have thus rendered, together with her majesty's congratulations for your having so successfully carried out the mission you so fearlessly undertook. Her majesty also desires me to request your acceptance of the memorial which accompanies this letter. I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

"Granville.

"H. M. Stanley, Esq."

No man can be in a proper frame of mind for the discovery and reception of truth who is not utterly regardless of the question whether he being in a majority or a minority will be the result of his investigations.

As the sword of the best tempered metal is most flexible, so the truly generous are most pliant and courteous in their behavior to their inferiors.—Fuller.

FROM THE WORK.

Haynesville Circuit, Louisiana Conference.—Mr. Editor: Our camp meeting at Mount Zion, on the Haynesville circuit, came off at the appointed time in August. The weather was very hot and oppressive. The large framed arbor, covered with boards, built by the labor and money of the citizens of the surrounding country, was completed in good time. It is commodious, and very comfortable for a large congregation, and for preaching under in hot weather. The congregations were large. The preaching was all good, and full of the Holy Ghost. The result was a great baptism of the Holy Ghost on the church. There was not a large number of conversions or accessions to the church, yet there was precious gospel seed sown that must yield abundant fruit in the day of eternity.

I commenced a meeting at Colquitt the next Saturday after the camp meeting closed—five miles from the latter place. It lasted six days, and resulted in forty-nine conversions and thirty-seven accessions to the church.

I had a meeting at Haynesville the week before the camp meeting. It was very profitable to the church. There have been about seventy conversions and about fifty-five accessions to the church on the Haynesville circuit this year up to this date. The Lord be praised.

Your brother in Christ,

John A. Miller, P. C.

Rural Retreat, La., Sept. 9, 1872.

Chickasaha Mission, Mississippi Conference.—Mr. Editor: This work formerly belonged to the Protestant connection, and has not been supplied regularly since the war, but was once an organized work, and occupied by them up to the close of the war. Since the union of the two churches it has again been brought into notice and supplied. When I first entered upon this work it was so disorganized and wrecked that I became much discouraged. Demoralization was the result of wanted pastoral care. But after much earnest labor and toil the harbinger of peace has again returned. The Lord is again reviving his work, and sinners have been brought to the light of the gospel as it is in Christ Jesus. Old churches are being repaired and new ones built. One is completed, at which place we organized a society, received ten applicants for membership, baptized two adults and twelve children all in one day.

Chickasaha mission is in a healthy condition and on the advance. We have had thirty-seven accessions to the church, and forty-one have been received by baptism. We have seven organized churches, giving an aggregate in members of one hundred and sixteen, and three appointments yet unorganized, while the Macedonian cry is coming up from various quarters: "Come over and help us." O brethren, pray for us!

Yours most respectfully,

G. M. Gilmore, P. C.

September, 1872.

Abbeville Circuit, Louisiana Conference.—Mr. Editor: At a meeting of the Quarterly Conference for the Abbeville circuit, convened at the Prairie Gregg Methodist church on the seventh instant, the following preamble and resolutions were presented to the conference and unanimously adopted. As secretary of that body, and by resolution adopted at the same time, I am required to forward the same for publication in the Advocate.

Whereas, The members of the Quarterly Conference of the Abbeville circuit are led to conclude that some of the members of our church, and also many young persons, children of Protestant parents, have become more or less contaminated by the unhallowed influences of the ungodly world surrounding them, so that they see not the evils that are in and resulting from a participation in parties of pleasure, where the sexes mingle in dancing, playing, etc.; therefore, be it

Resolved, By the Quarterly Conference of Abbeville circuit, convened at Prairie Gregg, September 7, 1872, that we stand fully upon the principles set forth in our Discipline as a true exponent of the word of God upon that point; that no diversions are innocent that cannot be taken in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ; that the commingling of the sexes in dances, modern plays, and all amusements of a kindred nature, are plain violations of this principle, alike repugnant to the word of God and the rules of our church.

Resolved, That we recommend that hereafter the preacher in charge of this circuit shall be informed by the recording steward of this our action; and that he notify the members and people that hereafter any member of our church participating in such amusements shall be considered as having violated the rules of our church, and shall be dealt with as the Discipline in such case provides.

Robt. S. Isbell, Secretary.

Abbeville, La., Sept. 9, 1872.

Lake Providence Circuit, Louisiana Conference.—Mr. Editor: Our third quarterly meeting, held at Pecan Grove church, embracing the third Sunday in August, was truly a season of encouragement and blessing to our church there.

The congregations were good, and the people attentive to the preached word. The love-feast was not dispensed with, but was one of the happiest meetings of the kind it has been my privilege to enjoy. Some unused to love-feasts, in these later and changed times, stood up and told of the dealings of the Lord with them in other and in recent days. At the close of that hour of sweet Christian communion nine persons united with the church. The meeting closed on Sunday evening, the membership much revived, and fifteen additions to the church. These recruits are heads of families, young men, young women and Sunday school scholars.

The brethren and friends have built here, this year, a neat and commodious house of worship, which, under the skillful management of Bro. Isham B. Beard, to whose energy we are in a large degree indebted for the building of the church, was opened for the service of God, unencumbered with debt. We have also secured a house for worship at Lake Providence, which we hope to pay for by the end of the year.

Our people love to work in the Sabbath schools and prayer meetings, and we hope and pray for the continued increasing blessings of God on the work of his servants this year in this long-neglected part of his vineyard.

Wm. F. Alexander.

September 4, 1872.

Marianna District, Alabama Conference.—Mr. Editor: Having just finished my third round; I propose to give you some of the results of the preaching of the gospel by the preachers of the several charges within the bounds of this district. When I say the preachers, I mean the traveling and local. I have not all the facts which ought to be reported, as some good meetings have been held of which I have no report as to results. However, taking the facts as I have them, I proceed with this report.

Ozark circuit—A. S. Dickinson, pastor, has had one most excellent meeting at Pleasant Hill, of four days' continuance, at his third Quarterly Conference. On the whole circuit during the last quarter eighteen have joined the church.

Geneva circuit—J. M. Brown, pastor, has had several good meetings, but especially at Daleville, where several were happily converted and ten joined the church. From all points on his work he reports that twenty-three have joined our church.

Sylvan Grove circuit—H. M. Gillis, pastor, has been in the midst of an overwhelming revival for the last month and a half. At Newton, during his third Quarterly Conference, there were many conversions and fourteen accessions. Asbury Chapel, thirty-three accessions; Center, twenty; at Mount Carmel, seventy-seven accessions, all of whom were converted, and more besides, and the churches in a flame of living power.

Gordon circuit—W. P. H. Connerly, pastor, has organized one new church, into which he received six members, besides those transferred. At Rocky Creek a most gracious revival meeting was held, at which many were converted and thirteen were added to the church. Also, near Andrew Chapel, two ministers and fifty-one members withdrew from the African Methodist Episcopal Church, and came over and joined us until they can be properly transferred to the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church in America.

Big Creek circuit—D. C. Standley, pastor, has been greatly blessed with three most successful meetings. At Pleasant Grove fifteen joined; at Big Creek, Alabama, thirty; at Wesley Chapel fifteen, and at Big Creek, Florida, 8.

Greenwood circuit—J. J. Cassady, pastor, has had some interesting meetings, and during his third Quarterly Conference, at Andrew Chapel, fifteen very promising members joined the church.

Marianna station—A. S. Douglas, pastor, has been preaching faithfully when able; but, owing to the delicacy of his health, he has not been able to do as much as he desired.

Calhoun mission—W. R. Tally, pastor, has been moving forward, up and down the plains, building up the work. At Shiloh, during his third Quarterly Conference, seven were added to the church. At the conference before, at Cool Spring, nine were added to the church.

Holmes Valley circuit—J. A. Spear, pastor, has had some good meetings, and at his third Quarterly Conference three joined the church, and on other parts of the work nine had been added before, making twelve in all.

Cerro Gordo mission—A. Vaughan, pastor, has been earnestly engaged in preaching the gospel, with some encouraging signs of coming success. During the last quarter, embracing the conference, eleven have come into the church.

Adding these results together will give three hundred and twenty-eight as the fruits of the last quarter; but, adding the two preachers and fifty-one members from the African Methodist Episcopal Church, the grand total is swelled to three hundred and eighty-one members within the bounds of the Marianna district.

Furthermore, I may state that the finances of the church are far in advance of last year, excepting one work.

While we all are delighted and grateful for the success already mentioned, yet we are marching on to conquest and victory at other points and in other fields.

By the way, our camp meeting at China Grove will commence three days hence, at which time and place we are expecting displays of power and love, as heretofore. You shall hear from us in due time.

A. Dowling.

Ozark, Ala., Sept. 3, 1872.

THE INTELLECT OF OLD AGE.

The London Spectator very comfortingly says: "If the memory keeps perfect, a point which appears to depend entirely upon physical conditions—the memory, for instance, growing bright as to the incidents of childhood when it grows dull as to what happened yesterday—there is no reason why, as regards anything but new abstract ideas, the mind in old age should be less strong than the mind in maturity, though it may have more difficulty in using the media through which it works, and we find this constantly to be the case. Very old generals, like Radetzky, have commanded victorious armies; very old statesmen, like Palmerston, have guided parties successfully; and very old orators, like M. Thiers, are often strangely eloquent. It would be almost impossible to show that for oratorical purposes the mind has aged at all, that he has lost any one of those powers which go to create oratorical success, unless it be, and we should doubt that, the acuteness of his sensibility to the mental atmosphere around him. We are accustomed to speak of Lyndhurst's later efforts as wonders, and so they were as physical efforts; but there is nothing in old age to make a man less capable of reviewing the facts of the year by his old lights with all the eloquence and bitterness and epigrammatic terseness that he ever possessed. The Duke of Wellington in extreme age became impervious to the ideas of his day, and showed a strong indisposition toward new men even in the army; but there is no proof whatever that if England had been invaded by the kind of army he was accustomed to defeat, he would not have displayed all his ancient generalship. He would have received all the new facts about numbers, equipment, and the like, as M. Thiers receives the new facts about revenue and expenditure, and would have applied the old principle as successfully as ever. Nothing would have gone from him except strength of will to compel the mind to perform an unusual and therefore disagreeable task. Von Moltke is as great a general as ever he was, is able even to develop his old knowledge by the addition of a system of railway strategy; it is only when asked to consider a new scheme of discipline that his mind closes, and he shows himself unable to believe or even to follow any idea except that of severe punishment."

Differences of opinion give me but little concern; but it is a real pleasure to be brought into communication with any one who is in earnest and who really looks to God's will as his standard of right and wrong, and judges of actions according to their greater or less conformity.—Dr. Arnold.

THE WORSHIP OF IMAGES.

It was not without design that the Lord left no image or picture of his holy person behind him. He put the question of worshiping an image of himself out of sight by leaving no image. There is not even the shadow of authenticity upon any reputed relic. We are not even sure of the site of Calvary or Gethsemane, his crucifixion or his burial. Even the mount of his ascension is not known or named. The "fragments of the true cross," the "holy coats," etc., are all impostures. Nobody but the most superstitious and ignorant Romanists believe that there is on earth one genuine relic of the Lord, or of his mother, or indeed of any early saint.

There was a design in this. Considering all things—the reverence and love of the apostles, for instance—it is very strange that there is no word for ages of any relic of our Lord's early life, and that "the discovery of the true cross," in the fourth century, by Helena, should have been so suspiciously a cooked-up thing.

No picture and no relic, whose genuineness is even probable, exists of our Lord, or of his apostles, or indeed of any early Christian worthy. One cannot help connecting the strange fact with that second commandment which our Roman Catholic brethren are in the habit of omitting from their list, and with the petition in the Lord's Prayer.

The pictures, so called, of the Virgin—there are scores of them, in all positions, and they are highly reverenced by our Romish friends, and dilettantoized and sentimentalized over by many of our Protestant friends—are, we all know, when we think, only portraits of women by no means always reputable, the mistress of the artist, painted as the Madonna in one picture and as Venus in another.

The pictures, so called, of our blessed Lord are more shocking still. An Italian beggerman or thief, with a picturesque beard and hair, is painted, and the painting labeled with the holiest name!

The pictures of the apostles are conventional. A monk with a lion is St. Mark, a monk with an eagle is St. John, a monk with a sword is St. Paul, and one with a big key is St. Peter. They are merely pictures of the most picturesque old loafers the painter could find for his model.

Here, then, is where the Romish argument fails to reach us. We have heard it a score of times, and expect to a score or two more. We admit, in one way, its force. We do venerate the pictures of great men. We do love and might perhaps "salute" the picture of a very dear friend. We are free to acknowledge we should deeply venerate the picture of our Lord, or of one of his apostles. But when our Romish friend puts us in front of a dime lithograph, manufactured in Ann street, and tells us that is our Lord's picture, we beg leave to retire before our disgust gets the better of us. Or, when he soars a step higher, and shows us the picture of a picturesque Italian bandit, and says that is Christ's, and we should salute it and kneel before it, we respectfully decline so stultifying ourselves and insulting our Master. Or, again, when he presents us to the portrait of a young woman of questionable life, with an infant in her lap, and demands that we shall reverence this picture as that of the Virgin Mother and her Child, we might beg that he will please to go no further. The thing is getting unbearable. His anxiety to reverence "sacred pictures" is rapidly carrying him beyond Christian decency.—Dr. Hugh Miller Thompson's "Copy."

The Nantucket Inquirer and Mirror, commenting upon the disaster to the Arctic whaling fleet, thus comforts its island readers: "We have no need to search the list for names of Nantucket ships. We can enjoy a melancholy satisfaction like that of the man who heard a certain bank had failed, and ran home in great perturbation of mind to see how many bills he had on it. His relief may be imagined on finding that he had no money on that bank—nor any other! And we are almost able to say now that we have no whalers in the Arctic—nor anywhere else."

We are gravely informed by the Journal de Paris that the goddess of fashion has decreed that henceforward—until further notice, of course—ladies are to wear blue hair. What precise tint has been selected for this extraordinary freak of fashion is not stated, but the die is cast, and blue of some shade is to be the hair dye of the immediate future.

The Christian Advocate.

NEW ORLEANS, SEPTEMBER 19, 1872.

DAYBREAK.

BY SARAH O. JEWETT.

Where out beyond the eastern hills
Was faintest light, there, scorning
Shadows which warned us back, we turned
Our faces toward the morning.

And soon by daylight we could see
The road we thought so weary;
Where we were frightened in the night
Was anything but dreary.

On either side grew grass and flowers,
We saw each other's faces;
The light shone deep into our hearts,
The rocks were resting places.

When first upon that morning cold
We saw the golden glory,
And found the light was meant for us,
And learned anew its story,

We were so glad. With hearts at rest,
In peace the sunshine found us,
We sang a psalm, and smiling watched
The pleasant land around us.

For, though the clouds grow dark o'erhead,
And storms may bring us sorrow,
It's not for always, and the sun
Still shines—will shine to-morrow.

We lose the path, our feet soon tire;
We seek new ways, lamenting;
And back like truant children come,
Unsatisfied, repenting.

Though we may fall and fall again,
We fear to walk no longer;
And even through mistakes and pain
Can hourly grow the stronger.

Dear Lord of Light! forever lead
Our wandering hearts. Oh! guide us,
Nor let us once in storm or sun
Forget the Friend beside us.

For the Advocate.

PREPARATION FOR THE PULPIT.

NUMBER THREE.

While the former proposition is true, yet every minister, in his all-important work of preparing for the pulpit, should be careful to cast about and see what plan or system of laws he should use in the performance of his work, for every one must have his plan.

The successful planter, whose fields flourish, and whose barns will by and by be filled with the golden grain and the snowy flakes of king cotton, operates upon a plan, though he may not have seen it in the beginning, nor be able to tell his neighbors of it in the end.

The skillful artist, whose beautiful painting delights thousands of appreciative men and women, had his plan in his mind when he stood before the untouched canvas with his pencil in hand.

The commander of the army grand, who fights and wins the gory field, ere he began the dreadful strife, conceived and understood all about his plan.

And, to rise higher, God, the great Creator, who

"Well this beauteous frame hath planned," by his infinite wisdom, goodness and power, shows to us, in the perfect symmetry, harmony and beauty of the earth, and all the other parts of his vast universe around us, that we, his servants, who are sent forth upon a grand mission, not to create worlds, but to be the honored instruments of the new creation of immortal souls, should conceive and arrange, as well as we can, our plans for the all-important work of preparing for the pulpit. "Well, then," I hear you say, "what should be my plan?" I cannot say, for I do not know. If I should be long and intimately associated with you in the good work, so as to become acquainted with the characteristics and capabilities of your mind, and everything else that pertains to you, I might then, if I thought you would take it, venture to give you an occasional piece of advice; but I would not venture very far, unless you were to insist upon it; for, while I believe ministers generally are as ready and willing to take advice as any class of persons with whom I am acquainted, I am rather disposed to let them rest in peace and quiet, for the reason that everybody else is always advising them. You will ere long, if you have not already had it, have enough, and perhaps some to spare, of that very common and very cheap commodity which we call advice.

A stranger once visited a church in Europe with a friend who lived in the vicinity. The minister who officiated did not please the stranger, for he remarked to his friend, after the sermon was ended: "I think that minister ought to read and study Blair's Lectures on Rhetoric." "O," said his friend, "that was Mr. Blair himself!" "Well," said the stranger, "he ought to read and study his own lectures."

So, my dear brother minister, I am ready to practice the golden rule in all my dealings with you; and I shall be more than glad to have you always in candor and brotherly affection do the same toward me.

Having seen that no great universal plan can be prescribed for all ministers in the work of preparing for the pulpit, and that every minister should have his own peculiar plan, made out according to no other man's, but according to what he conscientiously believes, before God, to be the best for him, let us next show that he should earnestly labor to execute that plan of preparing for the pulpit. As the man of God stands at the threshold of this service he should by all means apprehend fully, and keep ever before him this great fact: the duty or work of preparing for the pulpit is one which will require the exertion of all his powers, and the constant use of all his means and resources.

Once in a while there may be a sort of prodigy in the ministry, who can get ready for the pulpit without much work; but such men are very rare. Indeed, the question in regard to such has often occurred to my mind: "If they can do so well without labor, what might they not accomplish if they were to toil in the preparation?" Ah! they may have to give a most fearful account when they shall be required to render their five talents! But most ministers have one or two talents, and, in order to have any sermon at all, they must work, and oftentimes work very hard. They ought to work—all ought to work! The great law of God, which is, "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread," applies to ministers as well as to other people. They should never regard their holy and exalted office as anything else but a place, a good place to work! The work done there is surely the best and the most important work that is done upon the earth. "The preaching of the cross," while it is said in the Bible, to be "foolishness" to some, is to others "the power of God."

Preparing to preach is an absolutely essential part of preaching. To the true minister of God, who does his whole duty, this will ever be head-work, heart-work, knee-work, hand-work, eye-work, and every other kind of good work. O that you and I, my brethren of the ministry, may believe it, and then go forth unto the great and glorious work! He that will not work shall not eat! Perhaps some of us would live better at home, and enjoy more religion, if we would work more. May God help us to work in preparing for the pulpit! This work is one great demand of the church, and an important want of the age. In my early ministry I felt that my labors were exceedingly irksome; so much so that I began to shrink from and to have a distaste toward them. Yes, I actually began to think seriously of fleeing, Jonah-like, from the ministry. But, fortunately for me, my quarterly meeting was at hand. My presiding elder, an able and good man—now in heaven—came. He saw that I was depressed, and he began to question me so closely that I unbosomed myself to him. I candidly told him that the labors of the ministry were so arduous I could not perform them; my whole nature shrank from them, and I felt that I had much rather engage in any other kind of laborious toil! He listened prayerfully and tearfully till I had finished, and then he asked me: "Did you ever pray that you might love the labors of the ministry." I replied: "No, sir." "Well," said he, "prayer is the only means of relief from your present troubles!" Blessed words were they to me! I began to pray as he had directed me, and very soon I began to love my work, and I have loved it ever since. It is my meat and drink; yea, it is my highest and sweetest pleasure! Now I feel that I would not be anything else but a minister of the gospel—an humble preacher of Jesus and him crucified! In my full and overflowing joy I sing Charles Wesley's precious lines:

"O that the world might taste and see
The riches of his grace!
The arms of love that compass me
Would all mankind embrace!

"His only righteousness I show,
His saving truth proclaim;
'Tis all my business here below
To cry: 'Behold the Lamb!'

"Happy, if with my latest breath
I may but gasp his name;
Preach him to all, and cry in death:
'Behold, behold the Lamb!'"

A-PASTOR.

For the Advocate.

SPIRITUAL DEATH.

MR. EDITOR: Notwithstanding your opposition to controversial articles, you will please allow me to write one somewhat after that order.

I see in the ADVOCATE of August 1 an article on the above-named subject, in which, it seems to me, the writer ("Prince") sets forth views not exactly according to the teachings of the Bible, which is the only standard of truth. He denies that man died spiritually in the day he ate of the forbidden fruit, and contends that spiritual death is synonymous with eternal death. As I understand it, eternal death is spiritual death perpetuated, or eternized. The unbeliever is now in a state of spiritual death, and if he continues therein it will end in eternal death. "Prince" says that man, when driven from Paradise, "was not spiritually dead, for his sighs, his sorrows, his tears, as he passed the gate, entered heaven as a prayer, and hope of yet regaining his lost estate still lingered in his soul." Now there is not a word in the Bible about Adam's "sorrows, sighs and tears as he passed the gate," nor about his prayers and hopes. We hope he did pray and weep, not only as he passed the gate, but both before and after; but there is no account of it. The writer seems to entertain the idea that man repented before the promise of a Savior was given; whereas there is no intimation of such fact at all in the book. The plan of salvation originated in the infinite depths of God's love, without being prompted or called forth by man's repentance.

But let us look into this matter a little more closely. God said to man: "In the day thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die." Now, it seems to me that, in order that God's word should come true, there must be, in case of disobedience, actual death of some kind. We know that man did not die naturally. It is true that, being denied access to the tree of life, he began to die a natural death, and after a while did die. But he did not actually die this sort of death that day. Again, it may be said that, in the purpose of God, he did die in Christ, his substitute, who was as a lamb slain from the foundation of the world. Still there was no actual natural death on that day. Yet there was a death of some kind, or God's word had failed. That death must have been spiritual death; it could have been no other.

In confirmation of this view, I would refer "Prince" to several passages of Scripture. "Let the dead bury their dead."—Matt. viii, 22.—Let the spiritually dead bury those who were naturally dead. "The hour is coming, and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God; and they that hear shall live."—John v, 25. "Except ye eat the flesh of the Son of man, and drink his blood, ye have no life in you."—John vi, 53. "Yield yourselves unto God, as those that are alive from the dead."—Rom. vi, 13. "To be carnally-minded is death."—Rom. viii, 6. "If one died for all, then were all dead."—Second Cor. v, 14. "And you hath he quickened, who were dead in trespasses and sins."—Eph. ii, 1. "But God, * * * even when we were dead in sins, hath quickened us together with Christ."—Eph. ii, 4, 5. "Awake, thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead."—Eph. v, 14. "And you, being dead in your sins, * * * hath he quickened," etc.—Col. ii, 13. "We know that we have passed from death unto life."—First John iii, 14 And thus passage might be added to passage setting forth the same truth. Man is certainly represented in these passages as being, in his unrenewed state, dead in some sense. If not in a spiritual sense, what kind of death is meant?

But what are we to understand by spiritual death? It is not the actual death of the spirit. It does not lose its vitality. It still possesses as much vital force as before. But this living essence has become alienated from God. There is no longer any moral purity about it. In itself, apart from the atonement, and that preventing grace which is given to every human being in consequence of the atonement, there is nothing good in it. It is intrinsically and essentially evil. Sin has fastened itself upon every fiber of the moral nature—pervaded the entire system, tainting and corrupting the whole. The moral vision has been blurred and blinded. The optic nerve of the soul, so to speak, has been paralyzed, yea, destroyed, so that it cannot perceive the things which are spiritually discerned. And if it could perceive them, it has no power to act in accordance with such perceptions. But, let it be borne in mind, this is the condition of the soul only apart from the plan of salvation—apart from preventing grace. Actually no human being is born outside of this plan. The hand of divine mercy and compassion reaches forth through the atonement of Christ and takes hold of every child of man coming into the world, and holds on to him until he, in the exercise of his free agency, breaks away from the loving hand that would draw him toward heaven, and, yielding to his innate depravity, begins his downward career. Owing to the fact that man is placed upon the platform of salvation at his very entrance into being, we have probably never seen a full exhibition of depravity in all its naked deformity. So that, although we speak of man as being totally depraved and spiritually dead, we do not mean that he is actually so as he stands upon the platform of salvation, but only as he is, or would be, in himself, apart from this grace which flows through Christ. Apart from the atonement man is dead—utterly destitute of spiritual life; but preventing grace quickens his dead powers into at least partial life. This is a distinction which we should never lose sight of when discussing this subject. M.

NO MAN is so poor that he has not friends whose happiness is linked with his fate, and whose hearts will be wrung with anguish at his punishment or his suffering.

MYSTERY magnifies danger, as a fog the sun. The hand that warned Belshazzar derived its horrifying influence from the want of a body.—Colton.

IF THAT BE FALSE which God threatens (eternal punishment,) then that which he promises (eternal life) is false also.

LETTER FROM TEXAS.

MR. EDITOR: Thinking a word from the land where the light of the Lone Star sheds its silvery rays might be interesting to you and your readers, I send this communication.

I have just closed a meeting at Big Creek, in the southern part of San Jacinto county. At this point there had once been a flourishing church, but removals, deaths and backslidings had well-nigh broken it up. Owing to the scarcity of preachers in our Conference, this with other places in our country had to be abandoned, and about the only gospel the people had heard for a long time was the watery one proclaimed by certain brethren, and they not of the brightest order of talent. I had been visiting them occasionally—on the fifth Sabbath during the year—until the third Sabbath in August. I appointed a meeting, to be continued as long as indications warranted. We continued six days, meeting only at night, however, the last three days. We had a glorious time. The old church book was overhauled; and out of about forty-five names, sixteen were retained as still living and in the vicinity, who were trying to "work out their salvation with fear and trembling." We had four very satisfactory conversions during the time; five names were added to the church, and when, on the last night of the meeting, the proposition was made that those who felt that the meeting had been a blessing to them religiously, should rise to their feet, with but about three exceptions the whole audience stood up. That last night was a gracious time, and will not likely ever be forgotten by the participants. Many of the citizens in ante bellum times were well-to-do in the world; now all have to work for their daily bread. The meeting was just in the commencement of the cotton-picking season, in which labor fathers and sons, yea, and daughters too, took part.

Perhaps it will interest readers in your cities to hear something of the manner these people attended church. Well, the day was spent in gathering the snowy lint; then stop in time to get supper and get to the meeting house before quite dark All hands attended every service. If there were not horses enough for all to ride (the nature of roads was not favorable to locomotion on wheels,) some of the men and boys would walk, and mother and the girls and little ones would ride, not unfrequently doubling, tripling, nay, quadrupling on one animal. Pillows and quilts were carried, so that when the little ones got sleepy a pallet was spread in the corner, and the little sleepers gently and comfortably slept till meeting broke. I have seen six or eight little fellows lying soundly sleeping amid the preaching, singing, exhorting and shouting. At first we had moonlight to go home by, but at last the moon had not risen when we broke up for the night; but the ride through the deep dark woods was provided for. Some of the men had their "hunting lamps" made of tin, with a reflector attached, and worn on the head. These had generally three large wicks in them, and contained oil, giving a bright light; others had provided long pieces of fat pine split into proper dimensions, which burned with a brilliant light. The scene presented at the "upping block," as they are mounting their horses, preparing to go home, is picturesque. Father holds his torch so as to throw its light at the right place. One of the "boys"—often grown men—leads up "Old Dolly," and mother gets into the side saddle, with baby in her lap. Tommy springs up behind her, and often Johnny behind him. This animal, loaded, is turned off to one side, to wait till each one who intends to travel the same road is in turn made ready. Then a mother and another company in like manner get ready; and when the last one is announced as "fixed off," away they move homeward, each, as they arrive at the turn-off road, filing into it with many kind good nights to the others. The whole scene is exciting and enlivening, and in some of its aspects grandly beautiful. The deep dark foliage overhead, the white sandy road under foot, the bright flashing of lamps and torches falling, as they sometimes do, on the shimmering waters of the creek running parallel with the road, or crossing it at right angles, makes a picture that is grand and beautiful to behold.

There are fine lands of the sandy variety waiting for emigrants from the old, worn-out lands of Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, etc., to come and occupy them. The country affords many inducements, and some not common even in Texas. Timber of every valuable kind is in great abundance; free stone water, pure as crystal, runs in two fine creeks, and springs break out ad libitum; good health, and the moral status of the community above the average. What more is needed?

E. A. STOCKING.

COLD SPRINGS, TEXAS, Aug. 24, 1872.

A GOOD EXAMPLE is one of the loudest bells to call people to church.

Obituaries.

WILLIE, son of the late Rev. William G. McGaugher of the Louisiana Conference, was born in [illegible], Miss., Dec. 17, 1851; joined the Methodist Episcopal Church South at Delhi, August, 1870, and died on the tenth instant, at his home in Carroll parish, after a short and painful illness.

At our church conference, held last Sabbath at half-past four P. M., the following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted by a rising vote, viz.:

WHEREAS, It hath pleased our Heavenly Father to remove from us Bro. Willie McGaughey to his own mansions of sweet repose; therefore,

Resolved, That in the death of Bro. Willie, as we usually addressed him, we have all sustained a serious loss—a loss to the church, where his seat was seldom vacant; a loss to the Sabbath school, which he loved so well; a loss to our whole community.

Resolved, That we feel that he was a bright example of early Christian piety, worthy of imitation by all the youth of our vicinity.

Resolved, That we deeply sympathize with his afflicted mother and sisters in their great sorrow.

Resolved, That a copy of the preamble and resolutions be furnished the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for publication.

JAMES E. BRADLEY,
THOMAS S. MABIN.

FLOYD, LA., August 23, 1872.

MRS. FANNIE M. NYE, relict of the late W. H. H. Nye, and daughter of Mr. Joseph A. and Mary A. Thomas was born near Brownsville, Hinds county, Mississippi, and died near Yazoo City, August 15, 1872, in the twenty-seventh year of her age.

She was the child of devout Christian parents. Her father was for years an efficient steward, class-leader and exhorter in the Methodist Church at Brownsville, where doubtless to day the effects of his life and labors are seen and felt. But a heavy affliction was laid on little Fannie when only five years old. Father and mother both died within three days of each other, leaving her young heart desolate of parental love and care. She found, however, a happy home with her uncle, Dr. J. P. Thomas, in Madison county, by whom she was raised, carefully and religiously.

She was happily married in October, 1867, to Mr. W. H. H. Nye, who preceded her just seven weeks to the cold and silent tomb. In the family of her adoption she at once became a favored member. Her sweet, gentle, amiable character endeared her to all hearts. To her husband's parents she became tenderly attached, and loved them as dearly as she could have done her own, who were torn from her in childhood by the ruthless hand of death. After the death of her husband her great desire was to make them cheerful and happy.

In May last she connected herself formally with the Methodist Episcopal Church South, into which she had been baptized in infancy. For years, however, she had lived a consistent Christian life, following her religious instructions and emulating the blessed principles bequeathed by her now glorified parents.

She suffered much and long, but amid her affliction as she was calm and patient, saying ever: "Father, thy will be done." Her death was one of the most peaceful and triumphant ever witnessed. For two days she was in a dying condition—her eager soul laying in quarantine without the "pearly gates"—yet during this time her mind was clear and active. Not a cloud of doubt seemed to obscure her heavenly prospects, while hour after hour she repeated: "O, I am almost gone—almost in heaven." To every friend who bade her good-by she said: "Meet me in heaven. I am almost home."

While her relatives were weeping around her bedside she would say: "Don't weep for me—you ought to rejoice." And feeling death drawing near, she turned to her mother and asked, in tones sweet as an angel whisper: "Mother, what message shall I take your son in heaven?"—referring to her husband who died but a few weeks before, after a long and painful illness. And thus she continued to talk, exhorting all to meet her in heaven, until the happy spirit, guarded by "helmed seraphim and sworded cherubim," was borne on triumphant wing to the home of the blessed.

CHARLES B. GALLOWAY.

MRS. CLARISSA LEE was the daughter of Thomas and Elizabeth Parks, and was born in Claiborne county, Mississippi, July 2, 1805. On the fourteenth of December, 1828, she was married to Mr. Francis B. Lee, a merchant in Port Gibson, who, on the day of their marriage, brought her to the residence he had prepared for her reception, and where she lived until the day of her death, which occurred on the twenty-fourth of July, 1872. Our dear Sister Lee sought the Lord early in life, having become a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, as near as can now be recollected, about the year 1832, at which period an unusually large number of young men and women, who moved in what the world calls the first circles of society, also united with the church, most of whom made as good a class of members as we ever had in this country. For several years after Sister Lee's marriage she continued her membership near her former country home, which was only a few miles from Port Gibson, in order to be with other members of the family who belonged to the church, but finally moved it to this place. As a Christian she was remarkable for her modest and retiring habits. Her constant aim seemed to be "to lead a quiet and peaceable life in all godliness and honesty." She was, in a scriptural sense, "a keeper-at-home;" but at that home her kindred and fellow Christians and especially her pastors, always received a most cordial welcome, and enjoyed the most ample hospitality. During her fifty years' connect on with the church she saw the rise and fall of many in Israel, but her adherence to the people of her choice was unbroken to the last. Her descent to the grave was gradual but well marked. For several months she was satisfied that a disease had developed itself which could only terminate in death at no distant day. With this conviction fully fixed in her mind she was the same meek, quiet, retiring Christian she had been for half a century; and while she appreciated our visits and prayers at her bedside very much, and said she enjoyed our Christian conversation more than she could express, she said but little about herself, except that she felt ready to greet the Master's call, and enjoyed, through grace, a sweet hope of heaven. I have never seen any one more calm and confident at the near approach of death than she was. Her husband had long since gone to the grave; her children had either died or grown up and got homes of their own, and she said she felt that her work on earth was done, and she was just waiting the Lord's will to go to her home above. As we had known each other from our youth, and I was frequently with her in her last long and painful illness, it was natural for me to be called on to preach her funeral, which I did to a large audience in her capacious residence, where she had lived forty-four years. May her children follow her as she followed Christ.

J. B. JONES.

PORT GIBSON, Miss., August 1, 1872.

ARTHUR CREWS, ESQ., was born in Wilkes county, Georgia, January 28, 1792. He was brought up on the frontier of his native State, without parental care or training, and never enjoyed any of the advantages of an education. Being thus thrown out upon the world alone, dependent on his own exertions at such an early age, he soon acquired habits of industry and self-reliance. He served in the war of 1812-14 as substitute and volunteer, and proved himself a soldier and patriot. In 1815 he was married to Miss Mary M. King, of Georgia, who bore him seven children—four sons and three daughters. In 1822 he moved to Harbour (then Pike) county, Alabama. Again settling on the borders of the Indian nation, he was still cut off from the advantages of cultivated society. About the year 1825 he joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, and never did he in after life doubt for a moment the time and place when and where Jesus was revealed to him. He served his church as steward, and held other offices of his church. His membership was kept at the same church for nearly half a century; where his walk was so orderly that not the first charge was ever brought against him. In 1829 he [illegible] perance society, and never was known to drink a drop of intoxicating liquor afterward, unless advised to do so by his physician, always advocating total abstinence as the only safe rule. He greatly loved his church, its usages and doctrines, believing it to be the best ever organized. Though a man of few words, he was noted for decision of character, was an independent and clear thinker, a deep, cool calculator, and a safe adviser in his sphere. He was a man of inflexible will, perseverance and industry, always going when and where duty called him, never neglecting his business for wind or rain, sunshine or cold. His economy and promptness in business procured for him a liberal fortune of this world's goods; but, sharing the fate of many others, the late war swept away much of his hard earnings; yet he halted not to pine over misfortune, uttered not a murmur; and, though oppressed with the weight of many years, he applied himself with renewed energy to business to repair his shattered fortune, and well did he succeed. He said he always felt thankful for every success in business, and acknowledged the beneficence of his Creator for every success in life. He was liberal and prompt in the support of his church; and although seemingly stern, he was a man of great sympathy, easily moved by the infirmities or sufferings of others, never failing to minister to objects of charity when opportunity offered. He was very strict in all his dealings with his fellow-men, always acted upon the principle: "Owe no man."

In May, 1863, he was married to Miss Marsey C. Walker, who bore him three children, two of whom still survive him. Though suffering for years before his death with a disease of the heart, which periodically caused him much excruciating pain, he was never heard to murmur because of his afflictions. He was in the fullest sense of the term a strictly high-toned Christian gentleman. In the last conversation had with him relative to his future prospects for the spirit world, he said all was clear, and that he did not fear the grave, but hoped and prayed that he might not die hard. All who witnessed his last moments can fully testify that his wishes relative to his passing away quietly were fully realized, for on the thirty-first of January, 1872, his spirit so quietly left the body that not a sigh or moan was seen or heard.

J. E. C.

REV. ROBERT E. CARY, son of Dr. W. A. and Mrs. M. Cary, was born in La Grange, Franklin county, Alabama, February 5, 1838, and died in the city of Montgomery, April 14, 1872.

His life, though brief, was eventful. Possessed of rare decision and intrepidity of character, when the summons came for soldiers to defend Southern homes and liberties the patriotic zeal of the boy could not be restrained. Enlisting in the service of the Confederate States, though scarcely sixteen years of age, he was elected third lieutenant by his company, which was attached to the Forty-fourth Regiment Alabama Volunteers. No act of this young officer ever brought dishonor upon the cause which he had earnestly espoused; but his conduct in camp and on the battle-plain fully sustained the reputation for gallantry which the true soldiers of the South had nobly won on more than fifty fields. He was severely wounded at the battle of Chickamauga, September 13, 1863. At this time the bone of his arm, between the shoulder and elbow, was resected. Being thus disabled for active service, he was assigned to post duty during the remainder of the war.

He professed religion and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church South in July, 1864. Soon after his conversion he was made steward. The energy and efficiency with which he discharged the unpleasant duties of this office are worthy the imitation of many older brethren, who suffer their pastor to leave his work without receiving the amount of his short allowance. Though useful in this sphere, the Master had a higher work for his servant to perform. He hears the call, and, conferring not with flesh and blood, cheerfully obeyed.

Being deprived during the most auspicious season of life for mental culture of all scholastic or collegiate advantages, he greatly desired, after the surrender, to retrieve this misfortune. Could the chaplain that period have afforded the privileges of her halls of learning to her aspiring son, how gladly would he have been numbered among those who sought knowledge in the "schools of the prophets." However, the financial embarrassment which at that time palsied every enterprise of both Church and State, forbade the gratification of this commendable desire. He endeavored, by private means, to compensate in some degree for these disadvantages. During the year 1866, in connection with Revs. E. West and W. Vest, formed a class, under the guidance of the writer, striving to qualify themselves for the responsible work of the ministry.

He joined the Montgomery Conference, held at Lowndesboro, Alabama, November 21, 1865. From that time until his death he filled various appointments, within the Alabama and North Alabama Conferences, with active zeal and efficiency, yearly adding many new recruits to the ranks of Southern Methodism. He was sent to Harpersville circuit, Alabama, in 1866, Ashville in 1867, East Selma in 1868, Gadsden in 1869, Cedar Bluff circuit in 1870; March 10, of this year, he was married to Miss S. C. Alexander, of Lowndesboro. He was transferred from the North Alabama to the Alabama Conference in December, 1870, and appointed to Notasulga circuit in 1871. He was moved to Rocky Mount circuit in 1872. Here he made only one round, when he was taken sick January 18. Feeling that the hour of his departure was at hand, he evinced great anxiety to be taken home. Fondly devoted to his mother, he hoped once again to look into the depths of her loving eyes, hear yet once more the soft tones of that gentle voice, and recline for the last time upon that faithful bosom, which had ever been the refuge of his boyhood. Arriving at Montgomery, he was unable to travel any farther. Though denied the privilege of reaching his mother's earthly home, it was his inestimable joy to be carried to our Father's house in heaven. Throughout his illness he realized his situation, and manifested the readiness and resignation of the Christian to depart. His only concern was for the young wife he was leaving to battle the storms of life alone. But even here grace gloriously triumphed. Receiving promises from kindred that she should be tenderly cared for, and commending her to the Judge of the widow, he was enabled to view their approaching separation with the calmness which faith alone could bestow. His dying utterances were the exultant notes of a victor, whose echoes, like the trumpet's stirring tones, fell upon the hearts of loved ones left behind to struggle in the Christian conflict, encouraging them to press forward until "They too the prize shall gain,

They too shall win the day."

When asked by Dr. Wadsworth if Christ was with him, he exclaimed with radiant countenance: "He has his arms all around me." He then repeated:

"'Tis religion that can give Sweetest pleasure while we live;
'Tis religion must supply
Solid comfort when we die."

To his brethren in the ministry he sent the message: "Tell them I died right; to meet me in heaven." Among his last words was the consoling assurance sent to the mother he so much longed to see: "Tell ma I am safe, I am safe." Resting his faith upon that Jesus whom he had preached, he calmly passed from earth on Sabbath eve to mingle in the worship of the unending Sabbath of heaven.

Thus, ere manhood's early prime, with a wide career of usefulness before him, our brother has been called from the field of action to the mansions of repose. In his death the world, the church and his stricken family are all bereaved. But while our tears must fall in sorrow over his life, so brief, yet in view of his departure, so triumphant, we joyously exclaim: "Thanks be to God, who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."

The Christian Advocate.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 19, 1872.

THE RETURN HOME.

A hymn of the Greek Church in the tenth century, translated by John Neal, D. D.

Safe home, safe home, in port!
Rent cordage, shattered deck,
Torn sails, provisions short,
And only not a wreck;
But oh! the joy upon the shore
To know our voyage peril o'er.

The prize, the prize secure,
The athlete nearly fell;
Bore all he could endure,
And bore not always well;
But he may smile at conflicts gone
Who sets the victor's garland on.

No more the foe can harm,
No more of leaguered camp
Nor cry of night alarm,
No need of ready lamp;
And yet how nearly he had failed,
How nearly had that foe prevailed.

The lamb is in the fold,
In perfect safety penned,
The lion once had hold,
And thought to make an end;
But close came by with wounded side,
And for the sheep the Shepherd died.

The exile is at home,
Oh, nights and days of tears!
Oh, longings not to roam!
Oh, sins and doubts and fears,
What matter now—when men so say
The King has wiped those tears away.

Oh! happy, happy bride!
The widowed homes are past,
The bridegroom at thy side,
Thou all his own at last!
The sorrows of thy former cup
In full fruition swallowed up.

OUR YOUNG MINISTERS.

BY HENRY BANNISTER, D. D.

The recurrence of Conference sessions brings up every year a grave yet tender interest in a class of men in regard to whom more consideration or thought should be exercised than has usually been given. I refer to our young ministers. Some seven or eight hundred of these are annually admitted to Conference in the Methodist Episcopal Church, and this is but one-fourth of the number who in each successive four years are launched into full orders in the Christian ministry. Through urgent calls and necessities of our itinerant work a considerable number—probably a majority—of this class are pressed into the ministry with small preparatory education. The most of these are supposed to be bright men, giving promise of diligence in mental improvement, as well as of immediate ministerial usefulness, or they probably would not be so soon urged to join Conference. They are pressed at once to the top of their speed in activities of pulpit and pastoral work, and in a four years' course of thorough theological reading, which is exacted of them as a condition of complete investiture of ministerial office.

With this class I have the deepest sympathies. They are, many of them, judging from their predecessors of like status, to rise into respectability and prominence in the ministry; but at this age their labor must be comparatively herculean. Of the happiness and the usefulness of the family life they are not to be denied; but what with family cares, with thorough pulpit preparation now exacted of ministers, with pastoral attentions thrice increased over former days, with unrelaxed stringency of Conference examinations—what with all these they have now to shoulder, the burdens they lift, the furrows they plow, the races they run, the nerves they tire, the pains and aches they endure, are beyond computation what our fathers were subjected to, if indeed they fill the whole bill, and prove true to all that is required.

The number of our young ministers that do this (and will continue to do it) is highly respectable. Will they think me out of my place if I offer a few suggestions?

Enterprising, studious young ministers become early anxious in some way to obtain knowledge of the Bible in its original languages. This is very commendable, and there are pleasant helps to the study of these, which I will shortly mention. But the first, best and easiest way of getting knowledge of the blessed Bible is through the English language. Alas, how few of our young men now in the ministry and studying for the ministry know much of the English Bible! The devotional parts, the New Testament, the Psalms, and fugitive sections, are studied often, and perhaps well; but the Bible as a whole—the relations and significance of parts to one and another, and to consecutive stages of revelation till the completion is reached, are too little studied, and richest treasures of theological truth lie buried and quite unknown.

To attain these, the people of the Bible are to be studied in individual, tribal and national aspects. The exact features of their civilization at different periods must be scientifically examined. The elements thereof as the products of whatsoever agencies, whether of the hills, the plains, the climate, the original inhabitants, the surrounding nations, the moral antagonisms of conflicting religions, and a hundred other agencies playing a silent but efficient part, at one time in one way, at another time in another way, toward the result of a somewhat varying civilization—these are to receive a most careful attention to arrive at facilities for a correct interpretation of the Bible.

But this is one side only—the historical side—of Bible investigation. The book useful for much study in close connection with and in ever-recurring reference to English biblical readings, are Milman's History of the Jews, Vol. I; Lenormant's Ancient History of the East, and Smith's Dictionary of the Bible. From the same books much help may be had also in studying the sacerdotal and prophetic systems of the Old Testament. If one seeks to know the profound sacred philosophy that underlies these systems, let him consult Fairbairn and the Bampton Lectures of Payne Smith. Milman's volumes second and third, and Pressense's full work on the Life and Times of Jesus Christ will aid in working up the closing periods of the Old, and opening period of the New Testament.

Many are the books now issued on the person and work of Christ. This is the greatest theological subject of the age. All tendencies of thought are centering in it. It seems forced on men, by a great exigency providentially arranged, to ask at every corner: "What think ye of Christ?" The question cannot be evaded by friend or foe of our blessed Lord. And so engrossing is the subject that the age teems with books in relation to it. Read them all. And to see how all religions or religious systems—how comparative theology, as it has come to be called, shows the common direction of universal mind toward the man Christ Jesus, read "The God-Man" of Prof. Townsend, Hardwicke's "Christ and Other Masters," and works of similar character now coming before the public. These generally are popular works; but they embody the results of the most recent scientific activity in this direction, and they assist one to stand in the pulpit quite well posted on these current and thrillingly interesting questions.

Add to these readings, Schaff, Pressense and others on the apostolic men and times, in the light of a thorough examination of the English New Testament, then may the young minister take to Greek and Hebrew, if he chooses, and has the talent and perseverance to pursue them single-handed and alone. In Greek, the "Manual of New Testament Greek Grammar," issued by the Religious Tract Society of London, and in Hebrew, "The Student's Hebrew Manual," published by Bagster, will be serviceable. I mention these because they are prepared expressly for self-learners, and they are probably the best for this purpose that can be obtained.

For a successful and useful life the young minister must make his plans to enter upon unremitting toil, with never a thought about fatigue, discouragement, or doubt in respect to the attainment of his object. Cheerfully, contentedly, and with heart glowing with love for God and men, he must purpose to see no lions in the way which he cannot throttle, no hardships or difficulties which he will not set aside. This is rugged discipline, but it is just that which develops and makes the true man—the kind of man which he of the highest calling of earth must resolve he will become. Consecrated to the grandest duties conceivable, he may have Christ with him as a felt presence and power to sustain him in his toils; he may bask in the Christly fellowship, which is intellectual as well as spiritual—if we will have it so; and what if that blessed Companion, who attends so constantly along the way, shall now and then bring him up to a great shadow, then shall step just behind it for the while, to see with what resolution he plunges through. He is truly as near as ever, though unseen, and will every time give seasonable strength to faltering purpose, till a firm and rock-like character is fully secured.—Western Christian Advocate.

NEWS FROM THE STARS.

At the last meeting of the Royal Astronomical Society, Dr. Huggins, the eminent spectroscopist, made an extraordinary statement respecting the motions taking place among the stars. The results he announces are so wonderful that it will be well briefly to explain how they had been obtained, as well as their relation to what had formerly been known upon the subject.

Our readers are doubtless aware that the stars are not really fixed, but are known to be traveling swiftly through space. To ordinary observation the stars seem unmoving; nor indeed can the astronomer recognize any signs of motion save by prolonged observation. But if the exact place of a star be carefully determined at any time, and again many years later, a measurable displacement can be recognized; year after year, and century after century, the motion thus determined proceeds, until at length the star may be removed by a considerable arc (or what is so regarded by astronomers accustomed to deal with the minutest displacements) from the position it had formerly occupied.

But in general these movements afford no means of estimating the real rate at which the stars [illegible] traveling through space. In the first place, a star might be moving with enormous rapidity toward or from the earth, and yet seem to be quite fixed on the star-vault—just as the light of a rapidly-approaching or receding train seems to occupy an unchanging position if the train's course is at the moment in the direction of the line of sight. It is only what may be called the thwart-motion of the star that the astronomer can recognize by noting stellar displacements. But even this motion he cannot estimate—in miles per second, say—unless he knows how far off the sun is; and astronomers know in truth very little about stellar distances.

Now it seems, at first sight, altogether hopeless to attempt to measure the rate at which a star is approaching or receding. No change or brightness could be looked for, nor indeed could any observed change be trusted as an evidence of changed distance, since stars are liable to real changes of brilliancy, much as our own sun is liable to be more or less spot-marked. But the distances of the stars are so enormous that no conceivable rate of approach or recession could affect their brilliancy discernibly. Only the most rapid thwart-motions yet recognized would carry a star over a space equal to the moon's seeming diameter in five hundred years, so that a corresponding motion of recess or approach would only change a star's distance to about the same relative extent, and it is obvious that such a change could not make a star, even in that long period, change appreciably in brightness.

It will seem, then, utterly incredible that astronomers have learned not merely whether certain stars are receding or approaching, but have actually been enabled to determine respecting this kind of motion what they cannot determine respecting the more obvious thwart-motion, viz.: the rate at which the motion takes place.

This is rendered possible by what is known of the nature of light. Light travels through space in waves, not as a direct emanation. Now let us compare a star's action in emitting such waves with some known kind of wave-action, and we shall at once recognize the effects of very rapid motion on the star's part. Conceive a fixed paddle-wheel turning at a uniform rate in water, and that every blade, as it reaches the water, raises one wave, that wave being transmitted in a given direction. Then there would be a succession of waves separated from each other by a constant distance. But suppose the paddle-wheel itself to be carried in the given direction. It is clear that after one blade has raised its wave, the next blade, descending in the same time as before, will reach the water closer to the preceding wave than if the paddle-wheel had been at rest; for the moving wheel will have carried the blade closer, so that now a succession of waves will result as before, but they will have their crests closer together. And obviously, if the wheel were carried in the contrary direction, the wave-crests would be farther apart than if the wheel had been at rest.

Thus, reverting to the stars, we infer that if a star is approaching, the light which comes to us from it will have its waves closer together than if the star were at rest, and vice versa. Now the distance between the wave-crests of light signifies a difference of color, the longer waves producing red and orange light; waves of medium length, yellow and green light; and the shorter waves producing blue, indigo and violet light. So that if a star were shining with pure red light, it might by approaching very rapidly be caused to appear yellow, or even blue or indigo, according to the rate of approach; while if a star were shining with pure indigo light, it might by receding very rapidly be caused to appear green or yellow, or even orange or red.

But stars do not shine with pure-colored light, but with a mixture of all the colors of the rainbow; so that the attempt to estimate a star's rate of approach or recession by its color would fail, even though we know the star's real color, and even though stars moved fast enough to produce color-changes. The spectroscopist has, however, a much more delicate means of dealing with the matter. The rainbow-tinted streak forming a star's spectrum is crossed by known dark lines, and these serve as veritable milemarks for the spectroscopist. If one of these lines in the spectrum of any star is seen to be shifted toward the red end, the observer knows that the star is receding, and that swiftly; if the shift is toward the violet end, he knows that the star is swiftly approaching.

Now Dr. Huggins had been able, nearly four years ago, to apply this method to the case of the bright star Sirius, though his instrumental means were not then sufficient to render him quite certain as to the result. Still he was able to announce with some degree of confidence that Sirius is receding at a rate exceeding twenty miles per second.

In order that he might extend the method to other stars, the Royal Society placed at his disposal a fine telescope, fifteen inches in aperture, and specially adapted to gather as much light as possible with that aperture. Suitable spectroscopic appliances were also provided for the delicate work Dr. Huggins was to undertake. It was but last winter that the instrument was ready for work; but already Dr. Huggins has obtained the most wonderful news from the stars with its aid. He finds that many of the stars are traveling far more swiftly than had been supposed. Arcturus, for example, is traveling toward us at the rate of some fifty miles per second, and as his thwart-motion is fully as great (for this star's distance has been estimated,) the actual velocity with which he is speeding through space cannot be less than seventy miles per second. Other stars are moving with corresponding velocities.

But amidst the motions thus detected Dr. Huggins has traced the signs of law. First he can trace a tendency among the stars in one part of the heavens to approach the earth, while the stars in the opposite part of the heavens are receding from us; and the stars which are approaching lie on that side of the heavens toward which Herschel long since taught us that the sun is traveling. But there are stars not obeying this simple law; and among these Dr. Huggins recognizes instances of that community of motion to which a modern student of the stars has given the name of star-drift. It happens, indeed, that one of the most remarkable of these instances relates to five well-known stars, which had been particularly pointed to as forming a drifting set. It had been asserted more than two years ago that certain five stars of the Plow or Charles Wain—the stars known to astronomers as Beta, Gamma, Delta, Epsilon and Zeta, or the Great Bear—are drifting bodily through space. The announcement seemed to many very daring, yet its author (trusting in the mathematical analysis of the evidence) expressed unquestioning confidence; he asserted, moreover, that whenever Dr. Huggins applied the new method of research he would find that those five stars are either all approaching or all receding, and at the same rate, from the earth. The result has justified his confidence as well in his theory as in Dr. Huggins' mastery of the new method. Those five stars are found to be all receding from the earth at the rate of about thirty miles per second.

This result at once illustrates the interesting nature of Dr. Huggins' discoveries, and affords promise of future revelations even more interesting. The theories hitherto accepted respecting the constitution of the stellar universe have been tried against the views recently propounded, with a result decidedly in favor of the latter. We may feel assured that the matter will not rest here. A simple and decisive piece of evidence, such as that we have described, will invite many to examine afresh the theories respecting the stellar heavens, which have so long been received unquestioningly. The theory of star-drift is associated with others equally novel, and which admit equally well of being put to the test. We venture to predict that before many years have passed there will be recognized in the star depths a variety of constitution and a complexity of arrangement startlingly contrasted with the general uniformity of structure recognized in the teachings at present accepted.—London Spectator.

A Frenchman said to an American: "T'ere is von vord in your language I do not comprehend, and all ze time I hear it. Tattletoo, tattletoo—vat you means by tattletoo?" The American insisted that no such word exists in English. While he was saying so, his servant came to put coal on the fire, when he said: "There, John, that'll do." The Frenchman jumped up, exclaiming: "T'ere, tattletoo—you say him yourself, sare; vat means tattletoo?"

A finished life, a life which has made the best of all the materials granted to it, and through which, be its web dark or bright, its pattern clear or clouded can now be traced plainly the hand of the great Designer—surely this is worth living for! It has fulfilled its appointed course, and returns to the Giver of all breath pure as he gave it. Nor will he forget it when he counteth up his jewels.—Miss Maloch.

The Dunkard Baptist Church in Germantown, Pennsylvania, organized in 1723, which has heretofore opposed a paid ministry, has called a pastor at $1 200 a year. This is an important innovation for a church of a denomination which still practices the rite of feet-washing.

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

The Jordan, Not the Delaware. A Baptist home missionary in Delaware complains to a Baptist paper: "The Pedobaptists of Delaware have substituted the bowl for the Jordan." And this excellent brother has substituted the Delaware for the Jordan. What business has he to substitute Delaware Bay for the Jordan—salt water for fresh—and then complain of others for making substitutions? According to the Baptists, the inconveniences of immersion are no valid arguments against practicing this mode. The inconvenience of baptizing the converts in the River Jordan, then, or, at best, in fresh water, is no reason against the necessity of Jordanuic baptism.—Richmond Observer.

The Presidency of Syracuse University.—The question of the selection of a president for Syracuse University, New York, was settled recently by the election of Rev. Alexander Winchell, LL. D., now the popular professor of geology, zoology and botany in the University of Michigan. This choice of the trustees was by a unanimous vote. It is expected Dr. Winchell will accept, and that he will enter upon the duties of the new post at an early date. The prospects for the complete success of the University were never more encouraging than now. The various classes will be considerably larger than was expected, the freshman class numbering at least fifty. The election of Dr. Winchell to the presidency of the institution will be very gratifying to its many friends.

The expulsion of the Jesuits from Germany gives rise to some uneasiness in England, lest they may settle in that country. There is a law on the British statute book, enacted forty-three years ago, prohibiting the members of the Order of Jesus, and also the monastic orders, from settling in Great Britain. Sir Robert Peel inquired of Mr. Gladstone, the other day, in Parliament, whether that law was to be applied or repealed. Mr. Gladstone answered that the law had so long been a dead letter that he need be in no great hurry to answer the question. Still, he admitted that the subject was "of a grave and serious character." Inasmuch as many of the religious brotherhoods and sisterhoods of the Ritualists differ but slightly from the monastic orders of the Roman Catholics, it is not likely that Parliament will undertake the enforcement of the law against the latter.

The memorial circulated by the Earl of Shaftesbury, praying that ministers may have liberty to discontinue the use of the Athanasian Creed in worship, has called forth a joint reply from the Archbishops of Canterbury and York. The archbishops say: "Under all the circumstances, we are prepared to assent to the course now recommended to us, though it may have some inconveniences; and we beg leave to assure the memorialists, through your lordship, that our endeavors will not be wanting to bring this difficult question to a satisfactory solution. While we think it right to pay due attention to the legitimate scruples of those who, through their zeal to maintain the truth as it has ever been taught by the church of Christ, feel great anxiety respecting any change, we fully anticipate that, in conjunction with our brethren, we shall be able to devise some plan which will meet the wishes of that other large body of persons who object to the solemn use of words which they regard as unauthorized, in their most obvious sense, either by the letter or the spirit of the Holy Scripture."

Progress in India.—The Lucknow Witness gives the following interesting view of the progress of Christianity in India: "From statistics recently collected and published by Baboo T. C. Mitter, of Hoogly, it appears that the number of native Christian communicants in North India has more than doubled since the publication of Dr. Mullens' statistics in 1861. We had expected a large increase, but must confess that this gratifying exhibit is a surprise to us. The total number of communicants reported is 13,980, with a Christian community of no less than 48,591 souls. The number of Protestant native Christians in India, Burmah and Ceylon is estimated at 300,000. Thus the work goes forward. We firmly believe that the next decade will witness a more vigorous growth of the native church than even the most sanguine anticipate. The conversion of India is no longer a dark problem. Let us have unswerving faith, work patiently, pray earnestly, and expect success, and a great work will assuredly be done."

The Council of the Evangelical Alliance in London has addressed a note of grateful acknowledgment to the Emperor of Russia for his interposition on behalf of the Protestant Lutheran inhabitants of the Baltic provinces—Courland, Esthland and Livonia. To this it adds a petition that similar measures of relief may be extended to the adjacent provinces of Pskow, Vitepsk, Wilna and Kowno, in which Letts, Esthonians and Germans are still treated with great intolerance, especially in relation to marriage, to baptism and registration of children, to the teaching of schools, and by various methods employed to induce young people to desert the Lutheran and accept the Greek profession. It suggests that such infringements of the rights of conscience and religious liberty are unknown to his majesty, and proceed from the mistaken zeal of persons acting in opposition to his wishes; and entertains the hope that he will, therefore, interfere, with kindness and authority, to cause such persecutions to cease. "In conclusion," it adds a great request, "the council takes occasion humbly to submit to your imperial majesty the unspeakable importance of securing by law the liberty of religious profession which your majesty has now granted by the expression of your personal will, and of extending it to all parts of the Russian empire."

Southern General Assembly.—We have received a copy of the Minutes of the General Assembly of the (Southern) Presbyterian Church in the United States, from which we copy the following statistics for the year ending April 1, 1872: Synods in connection with the General Assembly, 69; presbyteries, 11; ministers and licentiates, 512; candidates, 205; churches, 1,545; licensures, 35; ordinations, 30; installations, 63; pastoral relations dissolved, 37; churches organized, 49; churches dissolved, 27; ministers received from other denominations, 3; churches received from other denominations, 4; members added on examination, 5,561; members added on certificate, 3,201; whole number of communicants, 91,208; churches not reporting number of communicants, 87; adults baptized, 1,685; infants baptized, 3,799; children in Sabbath schools and Bible classes, 55,943. Moneys contributed: To sustentation and presbyterial domestic missions, $51,899; to foreign missions, $41,004; to education, $47,532.; to publication, $10,479; to invalid fund, $8,518; to pastors' salaries, $432,050; to congregational purposes, $415,955; to miscellaneous, $76,362.

A writer in the Cumberland Presbyterian corrects several statements recently made concerning the denomination to which he belongs. The men who formed it were not seceders from the Presbyterian Church. The Cumberland Presbytery was engaged in a great revival about 1805 or 1806; and, the supply of ministers proving insufficient, laymen were ordained and sent into the work. This irregular proceeding was objected to by the Synod of Kentucky, and the offending presbytery was finally cut off. "The disaffection," says the writer, "was in the Presbyterian Church toward the men engaged in the revival, and not in those connected with the revival toward the Presbyterian Church. These men waited for more than four years before they organized an independent presbytery, hoping this disaffection would pass away." He goes on to show that, though an independent presbytery was organized, out of which what is now known as the Cumberland Presbyterian Church has grown, the body never assumed any distinctive denominational name—the name by which it is known having "grown upon them." The Westminster Confession of Faith, with Calvinism left out, is the doctrinal standard of the church.

The Prussian authorities are proceeding immediately to the execution of the law expelling the Jesuits. On August 1 the society established in Posen was dissolved. The day before had been a high day with the fathers—a celebration with great pomp of the birthday of St. Ignatius, the founder of the order. The official proceedings by which the existence of the society was terminated are thus described: "On the morning of the first the landrath, assisted by his secretary, went to the Jesuits' convent, and, after having assembled all the members, declared to them that from that day the community would cease to exist, and that consequently the fathers would have to abstain henceforward from all ecclesiastical functions; that they were specially forbidden to say mass, preach, instruct, confess or visit the sick. The church of the convent was closed, and the keys deposited at the prefecture. At the end of a period rigorously fixed, the fathers will have to inform the authorities whether they wish to remain in Prussia or emigrate to a foreign country. Up to that time they may continue to inhabit their present quarters. The news of this administrative act spread rapidly in the town of Posen, causing a certain emotion among the Catholic population, and provoking a considerable gathering of curious people before the convent; but order and tranquility were not for a moment disturbed."

Adam broke the first link of the chain, and thereafter all mankind fell from God.

The Christian Advocate.

Organ of the Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 19, 1872.

REV. LINUS PARKER, D. D., Editor.
ROBT. J. HARP, PUBLISHER.

OFFICE--No. 112 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

Address, on all matters of business, Rev. R. J. HARP, 112 Camp street, New Orleans.

Address all communications designed for publication to Rev. LINUS PARKER, 112 Camp street, New Orleans.

AGENTS—All the members of the patronizing Conferences.

CONFERENCE PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

FOR ALABAMA CONFERENCE:
REV. W. A. McCARTY.
REV. EDWARD WADSWORTH, D. D.
A. W. LAMPKIN, ESQ.

FOR MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE:
REV. W. H. WATKINS, D. D.
REV. JAMES A. GODFREY.
REV. J. G. JONES.

FOR LOUISIANA CONFERENCE:
REV. WILLIAM V. TUDOR, D. D.
REV. JOHN MATHEWS.
REV. LINUS PARKER, D. D.

REDUCTION.

The New Orleans Christian Advocate will be furnished to subscribers hereafter at the following rates:

For One Year..... $2 00
For Six Months..... 1 25
For Three Months..... 75

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR

to all ministers of the gospel, traveling or local, and widows of deceased traveling preachers.

FREE ONE YEAR

to any person forwarding to us four new yearly subscribers with EIGHT DOLLARS.

THE GRACE OF GENTLENESS.

To be gentle is to be God-like. In nature the rough and violent processes are exceptional. The storms that sweep the ocean, and the tornadoes which devastate the land are fitful and unfrequent as compared with the general tranquillity and more quiet movements of the elements. The shocks of the earthquake are alarming because seldom repeated. For the most part, the mighty forces of the material universe work quietly, and even slowly. The continents and islands are rising and sinking without perceptible and startling convulsions. The wonderful contrivance for watering the earth, the falling showers, the refreshing dew, the growth of vegetation, the movement of the stars, the revolution of the earth, are all illustrations of gentleness in the work of God. The world was made and is preserved with but little violent demonstration. Everything goes on with wonderful stillness and smoothness, as if all the ministers of nature were shod with wool. The worlds roll on with no clatter of wheels, the seasons continue their noiseless procession, the birth and decay of the oak, and the blossoming and withering of the rose proceed in silence. The Omnipotent hand, guided by wisdom and love, touches the vast and the minute, and forms and wields all with an infinite delicacy. It is a gentleness without feebleness, and a quietude united with the most untiring activity.

This is largely true in the dealings of God with his accountable creatures. Severity in the order of Providence, like that of nature, is exceptional. There is gentleness even with the unthankful and the impenitent. Long suffering and forbearance usually attend their course. The ministries of love and persuasion are more than those of wrath. After the fire is "the still small voice," and before it also; and this is the constant and lifelong appeal. David says once, if not twice: "Thy gentleness hath made me great." What would he have been without this gentleness of mercy in his hour of guilt and crime? And what would any of us have been, and such greater and better as Abraham and Moses, without this same tenderness to the weak and erring? The operations of the Spirit are often mighty in their gentleness—like the dew upon Hermon, and as the early and the latter rain. In all the wide ministrations of the Spirit, moving on millions of hearts, hovering and warming dead consciences into life, inspiring faith and love, and peace and joy, there is much of this quiet march of power. All the visible instrumentalities, all the thousands of vocal tongues, all the stir and uproar of earnest declamation, are as nothing compared with the unseen and often unconscious work of the Holy Ghost. This great power of life and light is abroad, ever acting in the world, awakening, converting, comforting and sanctifying. It lies at the bottom of the events in the moral and spiritual movements of every age, molding, preparing and consummating the great revolutions in character and history. In the sweep of centuries the effects are manifest, and in the individual experience the results are known and felt; but the divine Agent himself is moving with an awful stillness, and in methods which defy analysis.

When we come to him "who is in the bosom of the Father," the prophetical portraiture is fully realized in his character and ministry. "He shall not strive nor cry, neither shall any man hear his voice in the streets." On occasion he could launch the withering anathema, and hurl the bolts of wrath, but Christ was pre-eminently tender. He was considerate of the bruised reed and the smoking flax. He gives his own highest and most attractive qualification as a teacher: "Learn of me, for I am meek and lowly in heart." His was a great spirit, always calm, and marked by the gentleness of a temper ever under the sweetest spell of love and compassion. Paul, when he appeals to the Corinthians, beseeches them "by the meekness and gentleness of Christ." Of his own conduct to the Thessalonians he declares that "we were gentle among you, even as a nurse cherisheth her children." This grace he especially enjoins upon the ministry: "The servant of the Lord must not strive; but be gentle unto all men, apt to teach, patient: in meekness instructing those that oppose themselves." Christians are exhorted "to be no brawlers, but gentle, showing all meekness unto all men." Gentleness is enumerated among the fruits of the Spirit in such company as this: "Love, joy, peace, long suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance." James, in describing the attributes of the wisdom that is from above, places this in the resplendent train: "But the wisdom that is from above is first pure, then peaceable, gentle, and easy to be entreated, full of mercy and good fruits, without partiality, and without hypocrisy." Paul's celebrated monograph on charity sets gentleness as a conspicuous gem in the crown of the queen of the graces. Unseemly behavior, self-vaunting, all roughness and harshness of demeanor are opposed to the love which towers above faith and hope.

Conventional usage has borrowed the word and given it an indiscriminate application. Gentleman and gentlewoman is a character of the most exalted religious excellence. How often it is a misnomer in worldly society it is needless to indicate. But among religious people gentleness has not always the prominence to which it is entitled. There is flurry and bluster where quietness would be more seemly and far more effective. A hard, overbearing and intolerant spirit mars and deforms the character which abounds in strength and energy. Firmness and uprightness are destitute, perhaps, of tenderness and compassion, and the most invincible and admirable courage is utterly without delicacy or refinement of feeling. There is a supposed incompatibility between strength and gentleness, and that it is rather in the way of vigorous action. The push and snap of vigorous enterprise and aggression would be rendered impotent by the quiet temper and the patient spirit. Gentleness is thought to neutralize power, and to stand for all that is merely negative in character. But it is not so in God; the meekness and gentleness of Christ did not weaken his ministry, and Moses and Paul were the gentlest of men. It is the work of the Holy Spirit, and no subordinate part of it, to make men gentle. It is one of the brightest features of charity that it polishes the inward and outward man, and softens the harsh and dictatorial disposition. It is often the one blemish of the otherwise good and great that they are not gentle.—Christians though they be, they are neither *gentle*men nor *gentle*women. Whatever other graces they have, they have not this. Other and admirable qualities shine with a somewhat compensating light, but gentleness is something foreign to their composition.

JOSHUA.

BY J. B. WALKER, D. D.

Joshua, the great captain and colonist, was born in Egypt about the time Moses fled from the wrath of Pharaoh, some forty years before the exodus. These first forty years of his life were spent in bitter bondage in the brick-yards of Egypt. Joshua is one of the first of that long line of illustrious names who rose from obscurity to renown; who, in despite of seemingly unpropitious circumstances, made themselves illustrious and immortal. It may be true, as the poet sings:

"Full many a flower is born to blush unseen,
And waste its fragrance on the desert air;"

but we incline to think that the high-born majesty of mind will assert itself, and, like the sun, dispel the clouds and fogs that overshadow its rising, and from a meridian height pour its splendors abroad. These unpropitious surroundings often contain in them conditions that contribute, that indeed are almost essential to greatness. They necessitate self-denial, self-control, patience, and habits of persistent labor. These are just the traits that are necessary to the man who acts a great part in the affairs of the world. If the elements of greatness are in the man, poverty and toil are not so unfriendly as the world is wont to think.

On the call of Moses, at the "burning bush," to take the leadership of Israel from Egypt, Joshua was some forty years old. He was therefore a competent and intelligent witness of that series of supernatural wonders by which Jehovah asserted his immeasurable superiority over all the gods of Egypt. Joshua saw the luminous cloud that canopied and guided the march of Israel. He was one of the millions whose hearts beat high with grateful joy because the Lord had remembered his covenant to Abraham, their father. In common with his oppressed countrymen, he rejoiced in deliverance from bondage, cruel and bitter, and felt the swell of patriotic hope as his faith drew the bright picture of Israel's oncoming glories.

Bible readers are familiar with Joshua's great services as the appointed captain of the armies of Israel, and the long series of victories that crowned his arms with triumph. For some twenty-five years, as the divinely-appointed successor of Moses, he ruled and guided the armies and the State of Israel. Joshua is one of the few eminent men, whose biographies were written by the pen of inspiration, who were not charged with some shortcoming or some grievous blunder. He seems to have been one of those well-balanced and symmetrical characters lacking nothing essential, yet having nothing in excess—the same characteristics that have made Washington almost peerless among the public men of the world.

In Joshua's old age, fearing his countrymen would fall into the ways of the idolatrous nations around them, he gathered together all the "elders of Israel, and their heads, and their judges, and their officers," and delivered to them his valedictory address, recounting the mercies and providences of the past, to awake their gratitude, to strengthen their faith, to warn them against departing from the Lord their God, and to inspire their hopes by recounting the great and precious promises made to their fathers, to them and to their children. Joshua, in this solemn address, incidentally lifts the veil from his own personal and domestic character as a servant of God. Said he to the assembled thousands: "If it seem evil to you to serve the Lord, choose you this day whom you will serve; but as for me and my house, we will serve the Lord." His religion did not consist in a mere general recognition of the truth and importance of religion—a mere acquiescence in the public sentiment of his time and country—but it was personal and domestic. Its holy duties and blessed exercises occupied his thoughts and his time. General-in-chief as he was, occupied with the command of armies and the conduct of numerous campaigns, with a crowd of public cares, he found time for the duties of personal and household piety. He never put off his conscience with the miserable excuse that he "had no time to be religious, or to maintain God's worship in his family." Oh! think of it a moment. A sane man, a believer in immortality, saying he has "no time" to attend to the first and grandest interest of his deathless soul! What a rebuke is the life of this grand historic character to those little, time-serving politicians who will not acknowledge Christ, nor connect themselves with God's church lest it should mar their mighty hopes of renown and power! Alas, alas!

This great and good man felt the nearness of eternity, and lived in constant view of its tremendous realities. Said he to his countrymen: "Behold, this day I am going the way of all the earth." Like the great and brave man he was, he did not disguise from himself his solemn fate. It is cowardly to fly from a serious contemplation of death. We must at last meet it. To be forewarned is to be forearmed. Death was not a terror to this moral hero. It was merely to lay his armor by, and be mustered out of laborious and perilous service. It was a release from toil, and to enter into rest. Death was to him the gate to endless joys—to "behold the King in his beauty;" to pass through the pearl-white gates; to see the fadeless verdure of Zion's bright mountains, and look upon the dazzling sheen of the jasper walls and golden streets; to join the immortal and countless company of the good, and strike his harp to strains of endless praise and love.

Joshua left to his country and to the world the priceless legacy of a spotless and virtuous name, the memory of a bright example, worthy of the emulation of all. Let us follow this good man as he followed his Lord and Master, walking in the path of obedience and love, until it leads us to the home of the good—the paradise of God.

BISHOP PAINE.

Our venerable senior Bishop is a pattern to all in devoted and arduous labor. Writing to the Nashville Christian Advocate, September 4, Bishop Paine says:

Having just completed a series of appointments extending from the middle of April to September, with scarcely a day of rest, I have returned home to recruit health and strength. These meetings were principally District Conferences, and were in the North Alabama, Memphis and North Mississippi Conferences. Two attacks of rheumatism, occurring shortly after my return from the Baltimore Conference, discouraged me from attempting to carry out my purpose of visiting and spending several weeks in each of the Annual Conferences which I attended last fall and winter. Apprehending a return of this complaint, it was deemed prudent not to venture so far from home, especially as I had reason to hope that those of my colleagues who reside near or within those Conferences would, as far as they could spare the time, supply my lack of service there, inasmuch as I would be doing similar service for them. This I presume they have done.

It gives me great pleasure to report the general state of the church within the range of my labors to be healthy and improving. Many new church edifices have been erected, others repaired, and some parsonages have been built during the last twelve months; while a larger number are in process of erection, or are likely to be built next year. It is a significant fact that these buildings indicate an improved taste in church architecture.

While some of the districts are still sadly deficient in meeting their financial obligations—owing mainly to the want of system—yet there is an evident improvement in this department. The missionary contributions are larger than last year. There is almost a universal advance in the Sunday school cause, greatly promoted by our excellent publications at Nashville.

The presiding elders and preachers have had unusual good health, and have been prompt and faithful. At nearly every District Conference there were decided evidences of the divine presence, resulting in the conversion of souls. It is evident the District Conference is increasingly popular.

In several instances the plan of establishing district high schools was zealously adopted, and will doubtless result in great good to our church.

I thank the presiding elders, preachers and brethren for their hospitality and kindness; and I devoutly thank God that I have been enabled to endure the fatigue of meeting all my engagements and trying to do what I can for my Master and my fellow-men.

ENGLISH WESLEYAN.

—At a district meeting which meets some two or three months before the opening of the Conference, permission is given to a certain number of ministers to attend Conference, only a portion receiving such permission; and no circuit or station is ever left without one or more of the regular preachers to take charge of affairs.

—Many of the ministers in middle life have never attended a session of the Conference, and of those that go, not one in twenty is accompanied by his wife.

—The number of ministers usually attending the Conference is eight hundred; but no voting, except of the legal hundred, is anything more than advisory, or as indicating the general sentiment of the body.

—With many of the Wesleyan preachers there is a lingering attachment for the Established Church, which causes the Wesleyan Church of Great Britain to be less independent than some other of the dissenting churches.

—The old circuit system still prevails, and each circuit has from one to four or five regular ministers, with a corps of local preachers, often numbering twenty or thirty. The regular ministers, who alternate regularly, confine themselves mostly to the larger chapels, occasionally visiting the smaller places, while the local preachers keep up the regular supply for the small congregations. There are often from ten to twenty preaching-places where small chapels have been erected, and it is not uncommon for a preacher to walk twelve or fifteen miles in the morning, preach during the day, and return on foot at night.

—Admission to the sacrament and other privileges are accorded to others, but those only who attend the class meeting are reported in the minutes. This attendance on class, however, is far from regular or constant, and it is becoming quite common to visit the class only often enough to retain standing. There is the same complaint as with us in this country, that leaders are inefficient, that members tell a stereotyped story. A large number, especially among the laymen, are advocating the course to make class attendance advisory, but voluntary on the part of the people.

—Most of the preachers are formally invited to the circuits, and, if satisfied with the call, return a formal acceptance. These calls and appointments, with those made by the Stationing Committee, are printed and freely circulated before the session of the Conference, thus giving preachers and people the privilege of raising objections. These appointments are all reviewed at Conference, and it sometimes becomes exceedingly difficult to place men who are wanted nowhere.

—The total income of the chapel fund for the year ending in July has been £8,616 11s., an increase upon the income of the former year of £536 17s. This income was derived from subscriptions and public collections. The total amount expended on Wesleyan trust property, including the reduction of debts, has been during the year £287,346. Loans and grants to the amount of £28,000 have evoked local contributions for new erections, etc., to the amount of £219,236, and there have been two hundred and seventy erections completed, which have involved an outlay of £215,363. For the next year three hundred and eighty-six new erections have been sanctioned, involving a cost of £306,727.

—The Metropolitan Chapel Building Committee, of which Rev. Gervase Smith has acted as secretary, has done nobly through the year. The provinces have responded to the munificence of Sir Francis Lycett by contributions already promised to the extent of £57,000. With sorrowful but loving eagerness Methodism is looking for the lost in London, and is finding them in large numbers; some covered with dust, some with a dimness on them that has touched the metal, and others deeply tainted; but, nevertheless, she is finding and saving them.

—In the last eighteen years the total amount of chapel debts paid off, with the aid of grants, has been £231,933, and with the aid of loans £399,036, which, together with £261,469 paid off by local efforts exclusively, would amount to £892,438. The total sum advanced in loans since 1854 has been £173,034. The loan capital has never been diminished by loss, nor is any charge brought upon it for working expenses. Including small bank balances which have accrued, it now slightly exceeds £42,000.

—Chapels are generally built without architectural taste, being plain, square brick structures, without ornament or spire. Within a gallery, high and broad, extends around three sides; a lofty pulpit, just large enough for the preacher, stands against the wall opposite the principal entrance, and the preacher above the audience. The pews are most irregular, some being large, square boxes, with seats on all sides, and capable of seating fifteen or twenty persons. Others are mere slips, and in every house a portion of the space is set apart for the poor, where benches or inferior seats are placed. Sometimes the poor are under the gallery, sometimes in the gallery, and sometimes the body of the church is assigned to them. In some chapels those who are called respectable, and can pay for seats, occupy the galleries, and leave the free sittings below, and sometimes the order is reversed. Favorite spots for the more prominent families are in the four corners of the chapel, where a large square pew is surrounded by curtains, and the inmates are shut in from the view of all but the preacher.

—Church services are much longer than the average in the United States, long prayers, and long, full chapters being a part of the service. But recently the Methodists have ceased to line the hymns in couplets, breaking the tune into two or three parts, and now it is universally the practice for the preacher to read one verse, after the singing of which another is read, and so on to the close. It is very frequently the case that in this way a hymn of six or eight double stanzas is sung, which makes the service tedious, especially if the singing is poor. There is seldom introduced a new tune, the whole congregation joining for the thousandth time in singing the familiar tune which was sung by their ancestors generations back.

—Extra services are held in all the churches several times in each year, when attractive preachers are invited, and collections taken for missions, Sunday schools, education, trust fund, chapel, anniversary, etc., and the people give as if it were truly a part of their religion. There is, however, but little elasticity to the system, and everything runs in the same groove year after year, a variation being looked upon as an innovation to be repressed.—Western Christian Advocate.

He Travels Safest Who Travels Lightest.

When Cortez entered Mexico he believed the conquest of the city easy. But on the night of July 7, 1620, he found it much too hot for him. A forced escape, sword in hand, through a narrow path, beset on either side by great numbers of infuriated natives, was the only one possible. Immense treasures, for which he had ventured into his perilous position, lay about him. Notwithstanding the midnight trial of nimble feet and skillful sword arms, some of his followers began to load themselves with gold and silver. "He travels safest who travels lightest!" exclaimed the commander. But the Spaniards, being willing, as the majority of men of every age have been, to run great risks for gold, went forth to the conflict with the fatal encumbrance. About half of them perished by the way. Those who reached in safety the open country had at last been obliged to strip themselves for the fight.

So, not only in the special fights, but in the daily conflicts which attend our pilgrimage heavenward, he travels safest who travels lightest.

Gold, beyond what secures the food and raiment with which we are commanded to be content, is an occasion of fatal stumbling.

Christian brother, inquire whether better spiritual progress could not be made by you if you parted, for Christ's sake, with more of your worldly substance. Lighten your load by feeding the hungry, clothing the naked, giving wings to the Bible, and a voice to the gospel in heathen lands. It may be you have too much set apart for home expenditures—too much for worldly gratification—to insure good progress heavenward.

Christian women, do you travel as safely in the path of life as you would if traveling lighter? Dress, made specially attractive in the eyes of the world, is a favoring mark to him who ever seeks through it to wound the soul. Costly apparel entangles the feet in the narrow way. Jewels weigh down the soul which would rise into "the higher life."—Christian Banner.

THE DYING SEAMAN.—A seaman on his dying bed, being asked by a fellow-sailor, "What cheer?" said: "Heaven heaves in sight; I see the headland."

The next day the question was repeated: "What cheer?"

"Rounding the cape—almost in."

The third day the question was repeated: "What cheer?"

"In port," his quivering lips replied; and the next moment: "Let go the anchor."

GREAT WICKEDNESS and great self-righteousness are often found united in the same persons and communities.

INTEMPERANCE NOT A DISEASE.

A contributor to the New York Observer writes as follows on this subject:

The idea that inebriety is a disease has prevented many a drunkard from making as strong an effort at reformation as he would if he thought it only a habit. I could mention many instances in my own experience. I know a young man who goes home nightly to his widowed mother, and when she pleads with him for reformation, he tells her "he cannot reform; that the doctors at the asylum told him when he was there that his was a disease entirely beyond his control."

The fact is, that in our inebriate asylums, which are established on the assumption that inebriety is a disease, there has been no uniformity in the medical treatment. All the medical preparations in the pharmacopia have been tried and abandoned. The old plan of moral suasion, or treatment addressed to the mind, is now the only one adopted.

At the Washington Home, Boston, this is the plan adopted. W. C. Lawrence, the superintendent, says: "When we have restored health in the body of our patients, our work, at best, is only begun. To successfully administer to a diseased mind requires years of moral effort." Thomas M. Van Court, superintendent of the Chicago Washington Home, says: "The means of reformation chiefly relied upon is the law of kindness; the inebriate is regarded as a man, sympathy is extended to him, hope and confidence are excited in him."

But the question whether inebriety be a disease or habit, is one in which the public have not so much interest in as they have in the question whether inebriate asylums reclaim drunkards who could not be otherwise reclaimed.

Any one who will take the trouble to examine the statistics published in their reports will see that they do not claim much. I have before me the report of "the Chicago Washington Home," for the seven and three-quarter years of its existence, from which I quote:

Number admitted	681
Number readmitted	416
Positively or probably benefited and reformed	165
Hopeful of permanent good results, and temporarily benefited	176
Utterly hopeless, or very doubtful	343

These statistics are not very flattering for the cure of "the disease." It will be observed that not one case is claimed as positive. A small percentage were either positively or probably benefited or reformed, we are not told which. But the fact is, that the cases are not observed for a sufficient length of time after they have left the asylum. This is shown from the number of readmissions. A better way to learn the number reclaimed would be to get the experience of the medical men of the country, who have sent inebriates to the asylums and have observed them for some years after their return home. Now the writer of this letter desires to give his experience on this point.

For sixteen years he was in the active duties of his profession, in a city of twenty thousand inhabitants, not five hours' ride on the railroad to the inebriate asylum at Binghamton.

As would naturally be supposed, the citizens of this place gladly availed themselves of this institution.

The city being so small, the writer was able to know all the cases of inebriety sent there; and also often to observe the effect produced after their return home. Of the six cases which he is now able to recall, no benefit at all was produced. Three fell on their way home—all in less than a year after their return.

Being anxious to learn whether the experience of other physicians was like my own, I have made numerous inquiries, extending over many cities, and have found but one case where the physician believed that a reformation had been produced at an inebriate asylum.

I have inquired at Oswego, at Syracuse, at Elmira and at Binghamton, and find that nearly all the physicians of whom I have inquired are of the same opinion as myself in regard to the number reclaimed by the so-called treatment given at the inebriate asylums.

Inebriate asylums have been thoroughly tried in Great Britain, and abandoned as a means of reformation. The Hon. Donald Dalrymple, member of Parliament, England, in a communication to the "American Association for the Cure of Inebriates," at their meeting held in New York, November 14 and 15, 1871, says:

"The actual position of inebriate asylums or reformatories in Great Britain may be best described as non-existent. Not one of the several attempts made to establish such institutions can be quoted as doing or having done any good or effectual service."

I believe that this will also be the experience of inebriate asylums in this country. If these institutions cannot be proved to have been more successful in reclaiming the drunkard than other means before tried, it seems to me that the system should be abandoned.

It should not be understood to say that the poor, hopeless inebriate should not be cared for, but it should be in an asylum, properly so called, not in a hospital. The place need not be expensive or very attractive. The young moderate drinker should know, by observing the course of those in advance of him, that his course, persisted in, will lead to disgrace and bodily discomfort. He should learn that "the way of the transgressor is hard;" "that if he will sow the wind, he must reap the whirlwind" I believe the idea that inebriety is a disease, per se, is an error, and one productive of much harm; and the erection of costly inebriate asylums a misdirection of public charity.

CAN'T AFFORD TO MARRY.

BY HOWARD CROSBY, D. D.

It is a common and startling remark now-a-days that young men cannot afford to marry. If only the rich can take to themselves wives, not only will the race dwindle, but it will dwindle through vicious channels. I am inclined to think that the aphorism is Satanic, and therefore a lie. I do not believe young men cannot afford to marry, any more than that they could not afford to marry fifty or a hundred years ago. I believe that society, with all its ingenuity in the Devil's service, cannot so order things as to prevent the honest union of young man and maiden and a happy married life God has not constituted marriage as the normal condition of humanity, and then rendered the condition an impossibility to the mass of mankind. The order to Noah's posterity, "Be fruitful and multiply," was no special appointment of the rich as the inheritors of the earth. God has no respect for persons, and if it were possible to conceive of partiality in God, we should say that he leaned to the side of the poor. The Scriptures take it for granted that every man has a wife and every woman has a husband, exceptis excipiendis. Any idea that resists this sexual symmetry is perverse and pestiferous.

I have seen very many cases of the supposed can't-afford-to-marry disease, and examined many, and always found the symptoms to prove another complaint altogether. The diagnosis had been utterly false. It was a don't-want-to-marry trouble that was afflicting the patient. This was the story: Formosa has dwelt in marble halls, and clothed herself in acres of purple and fine linen. Marriage with her means twenty thousand a year. So I look at my two thousand, and can't afford to marry. Or the story was this: Pulchra wishes to dwell in marble halls, and clothe herself in acres of purple and fine linen. Married with her, therefore, means twenty thousand a year. So I look at my two thousand, and can't afford to marry. Formula-wise and truth-wise, it is this: Foolish girls wish to live idle, pampered and fashionable lives, and foolish young men are seeking after the foolish girls. In such a complication marriage loses its meaning; and it is very natural for a young man to say: "I can't afford to marry." The truth is, he cannot afford to marry after the style aforesaid.

Do not say any more: "I can't afford to marry." Go, find the true woman, and you can. Throw away that cigar, burn up that switch cane, be sensible yourself, and seek your wife in a sensible way.—Association Monthly.

To PARENTS.—"I owe it to my mother, and I mention it with filial piety, for imbuing my young mind with principles of religion which have never, never forsaken me."—Bishop White.

CONFERENCE REGISTER.

Conference.	Place.	Time.	Bishop.
W. St. Louis.	Nevada C'y	Oct. 2.	Pierce.
Louisville	Lebanon	Oct. 2.	Marvin.
Indian Miss.	Ocmulgee	Oct. 2.	Wightman.
Holston	Chattano'a	Oct. 2.	Doggett.
N.W. Texas	Belton	Oct. 23.	Keener.
White River	Augusta	Oct. 30.	Wightman.
Trinity	Sal. Springs	Nov. 6.	Keener.
Memphis	Somerville	Nov. 20.	Wightman.
N. Alabama	Tuskaloosa	Nov 20.	Doggett.
East Texas	Tyler	Nov 20.	Keener.
Virginia	Petersburg	Nov 20.	Paine.
N. Georgia	Athens	Nov 27.	Marvin.
N. Missis'ppi	Corinth	Nov. 27.	Kavanaugh
Little Rock	Pine Bluff	Dec. 4	Wightman.
Texas	Bryan	Dec. 4	Keener.
N. Carolina	Raleigh	Dec. 4.	Paine.
S. Georgia	Thomasville	Dec. 11.	Marvin.
Mississippi	Brandon	Dec. 11.	Kavanaugh
Alabama	Eufaula	Dec. 11.	Doggett.
West Texas	Victoria	Dec. 18.	Keener.
S. Carolina	Anderson	Dec. 18.	Paine.
Louisiana	N. Orleans	Jan. 8.	Pierce.
Florida	Fernandina	Jan. 8.	Marvin.
Baltimore	Baltimore	Mar. 6.	Paine.

COAL AND WOOD.—Now that cool weather is approaching, it behooves our readers to look out for winter supplies of fuel while it can be had at reasonable rates. Among the many dealers in that article, we know of none we can more cheerfully recommend than our old friends, R. D. Maclin & Sons, whose advertisement appears in another column. Having dealt with them for some time past, we speak from experience in saying they give good measure, at low rates, and their promptness in filling orders is assured. Give them a call.

Agt's & Publisher's Department

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS OF LETTERS and Funds, Received by Mail, for the week ending Sept. 14, 1872:

A—Philip Allen 2 lets, D Appleton & Co 3 lets, T A S Adams, Advocate Publishing Co, S Alden.

B—Higlow & Main, Geo H Barrey $1.93, J C Bryan, Barnes & Wilkinson, A M Barrington $1.90, C J Brown, Brightside Co, Robert W Burton $2, Jas H Bell.

C—W L Clifton, C W Carter, C W Carleton & Co, Claxton, Remsen & Haffelfinger, Clark & Russel, W J Carnes, J H Clark, C D N Campbell, S C Collins.

D—J P Drake $11 45, R A Davis, B W DeFranc, A M L Doughass, John W DeVilbiss $25, Robt Downer 50 cts, W B Dennis.

E—J F Evans $3.00, C F Evans, Eldridge & Co, S R Ellis.

G—Jos Gillott & Sons, H M Glass $1.

H—H G Horton 60 cts, E J Henderson, W C Halslip 2 lets, John A Harris, Hurd & Houghton, T B Harding, H H Hipes, J J Haynie.

I—Ivison, Blakeman, Taylor & Co 2 lets, V H Iley $1.

J—A W Jones, Miss Lela Johnson.

K—M Kriegle $13.59, M A C Kelsh $13.96, H A King.

L—J B Lippincott & Co 2 lets, A C Little, John 2 lets, H P Lewis.

M—J M Mason, Geo W Magill, Geo A McGehee, Fannie E Morrison $2, H H Montgomery, Manly & Co, W P Meiklejohn, John P Morton & Co, T Moody, Mrs E A Morris, John A Miller 2 lets, A H Moss.

N—J D Newsom.

O—J Osgood.

P—R M Powers $2.90, Powers Paper Co 3 lets, J S Penn, J R Palmer & Co.

R—J K Randle $47.63, A H Redford 2 lets, A Riser, C H Richardson, E E F Ross 4 lets, W H Ronie $17.15.

S—Stacey & Poland $25.95, J N Stearns, W R Smart, Scribner, Welford & Armstrong, J D Saint, E R Strickland 20 cts.

T—E J Taylor, W W Taylor.

V—M V Vaughn $5 50.

W—J Woodbridge, J M Wright $5, Wilson, Hinkle & Co, C L Warner.

Y—J H Young, N B Young, R L Young.

Z—J H Zellin & Co.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

Fathers and Mothers—If you occupy these relations now, or are about to do so, study well your constitution. If you have acquired or inherited scrofula, or any disease which may be transmitted to your offspring it is your solemn duty to eradicate it. Thousands of children are now suffering from the effects of poisonous disease transmitted to them from their parents. The thought is terrible. You can save yourselves much sadness and solicitude, and your dear little ones much pain and unhappiness, by the timely use of Dr. Tutt's Sarsaparilla. It will surely eradicate the taint from your system; or if it has already been entailed upon your child, give it at once this valuable preparation, and its system will be renovated and restored to soundness.

MONTGOMERY Co., N. C., Sept. 11, 1869.

DR. WILLIAM H. TUTT—Sir: Please accept the heartfelt thanks of a mother who was well-nigh driven to despair by the sad condition of an only child. My little boy has been afflicted with scrofula ever since his birth, and, after trying every remedy that was recommended, and several physicians had pronounced him past all hope, I accidentally heard of your Sarsaparilla and Queen's Delight. It was so highly recommended that I concluded to try it, but I must confess with very little faith. He has taken nine of the bottles you sent me, and I am happy to say he is almost well; and I believe by the time he takes the dozen he will be perfectly restored to health. He has gained flesh, has a fine appetite, and now walks two miles to school. I shall always remember you with gratitude.

se19 1t ANN MURRAY.

Dr. Tutt's Hair Dye is Easily Applied.

Symptoms.—Slight pain in the side, the skin and eye assume a thick yellow coat, digestion is impaired, an unpleasant sinking sensation at the pit of the stomach is experienced, the bowels are irregular, the mind fretful, the memory weakened, sometimes a slight cough, coldness of the hands and feet, sometimes loss of appetite and at others unnatural craving for food, dizziness of the head, depressed spirits, feeling of uncertainty, or having left something undone, but can't tell what it is. Take Simmons' Liver Regulator to remove all unpleasant feelings and make you well. se19 1t

Price's Celebrated Stomach Bitters.—The Great Vegetable Restorative and Life-Giving Principle.—This wonderful vegetable restorative, since it has been before the public as a Tonic (October, 1869,) the quantity sold has been some 150,000 dozen, and in every instance given the greatest satisfaction. For dyspepsia, general debility, chills and fever, nervous affections, torpor of the liver, constipation of the bowels fever and ague, and all choleraic maladies, these Bitters will be found invaluable to all who desire a stimulating Tonic, and are particularly recommended to all persons travelling, by land or sea. Wherever introduced it has become a standard article. It is the best and purest Tonic offered. As a Tonic and Cordial it has no equal among stomachics.

It is also a great blood purifier, a life-giving principle, and a perfect renovator of the system. No one can take these Bitters long and remain unwell. A single trial will convince any one of the merits claimed for them. Sold by grocers, druggists and dealers throughout the South.

Address JAMES W. PRICE & Co., sole manufacturers and proprietors, Lock Box 166, New Orleans, Louisiana. se5 2m

Use Dr. Henry's World's Tonic and BLOOD PURIFIER.—It is the great household remedy, pleasant to take, yet potent for the prevention and cure of diseases. It is better than Bitters, Cordials, Bucku, or Sarsaparilla. Sold by druggists. jy18 1y

Mrs. Whitcomb's Syrup.—The great soothing remedy. Price only 25 cents. Gives rest to the mother and health to the child. Sold by druggists. jy18 1y

Have your Printing and Binding Done at

THE PELICAN JOB OFFICE,

113 and 115 Poydras St., New Orleans.

ja18 1y

The Equitable Life Assurance Society, New York.

Assets, $18,000,000. Incor., $8,000,000.

Branch office—33 CAMP STREET.

A. P. CLEVELAND,
fe8 1y General Agent.

Caution!—Every genuine box of DR. MCLANE'S LIVER PILLS bears the signature of Fleming Brothers, Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, and their private United States stamp. ☞ Take no other; the market is full of imitations.

It is the popular verdict that people who have been accustomed to the use of Bitters or Cordials are obliged eventually to resort to McLane's Liver Pills for permanent relief. ap25 6m

Best and Oldest Family Medicine.—Sanford's Liver Invigorator.—A purely Vegetable Cathartic and Tonic, for Dyspepsia, Constipation, Debility, Sick-headache, Bilious attacks, and all derangements of Liver, Stomach and Bowels. Ask your druggist for it. Beware of imitations. jy11 1y cow

Dr. Henry's Real and Pleasant Pills.—Mild yet thorough; no nausea or griping; entirely vegetable; great Liver remedy. Price, 25 cents. Sold by druggists. jy18 1y

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

NEW AND POPULAR BOOKS.

LABERTON'S HISTORICAL ATLAS, containing a Chronological Series of One Hundred Colored Maps, illustrating successive periods, from the Dawn of History to the Present Day. By Prof. Robert H. Labberton, PH. D., author of "Outlines of History," etc. Oblong quarto, cloth, $3.50.

"These maps abound in excellencies which exhibit the thorough scholarship, and the ingenuity and appreciation of the needs of students which distinguish all Labberton's works."—The Nation.

Fifth Thousand, Revised and Corrected.

TRAUTWINE'S CIVIL ENGINEER'S POCKETBOOK. By John C. Trautwine, Civil Engineer. Illustrated with 600 engravings from original designs. 16mo. 648 pages, morocco. Tucks (pocketbook form.) Gilt edges, $5.

"We do not hesitate to say, from a large experience in the use of works of this class, that it is the best pocketbook for the civil engineer that has ever appeared."—American Railway Times, Boston.

THE DICTIONARY OF PHRASE AND FABLE. Giving the Derivation, Source or Origin of Common Phrases, Allusions and Words that have a Tale to Tell. By the Rev. E. Cobham Brewer, LL. D., of Trinity Hall, Cambridge. Crown 8vo, 1,014 pages. $3.50.

"The book is a wise old grandfather, who knows almost anything."—Every Saturday.

For sale by booksellers generally, or sent by mail on receipt of the price

CLAXTON, REMSEN & HAFFELFINGER,
an22 3m Philadelphia.

"In this charming book the author has practically unfolded the plans whereby every one at trifling expense, may have a flower garden of their own, indoors and out."

GARDENING BY MYSELF.

BY ANNA WARNER.

12mo. With Illustrations. $1 25.

"Instruction for the various months of the year is given, and all that one wants to know is stated, without dry technicalities, and in a clear and simple style. There is not a home which even the children, with this little book in hand, might not make more attractive, while educating the heart in a love for the beautiful."

ANSON D. F. RANDOLPH & CO.,
770 Broadway, cor. of Ninth st., N. Y.
Sent by mail, prepaid, on receipt of the price. se 9 1m

YOUR CUSTOM SOLICITED BY

R. F. W. BACHMAN,

DEALER IN BOOTS AND SHOES,
No. 18 Camp Street,
Under City Hotel, New Orleans.
Made expressly for the first-class retail Family and Plantation trade. se19 6m

Effervescing Citrate of Magnesia,

IN SIX OUNCE BOTTLES, IN POWDER. This Magnesia is a mild purgative and aperient, very acceptable to the stomach for Sick Headache, Sour or Sick Stomach, and all febrile cases. Good for all seasons of the year. For sale by most druggists. Prepared by ARTHUR ROGERS, se19 6meow5p 193 Spring st., N. Y.

This universal medicine is warranted not to contain a single particle of Mercury, or any injurious mineral substance, but is

PURELY VEGETABLE.

For FORTY YEARS it has proved its great value in all diseases of the LIVER, BOWELS and KIDNEYS. Thousands of the good and great in all parts of the country vouch for its wonderful and peculiar power in purifying the Blood, stimulating the torpid Liver and Bowels, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system. SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR is acknowledged to have no equal as a

LIVER MEDICINE.

It contains four medical elements never united in the same happy proportion in any other preparation, viz.: a gentle Cathartic, a wonderful Tonic, an unexceptionable Alterative, and a certain Corrective of all impurities of the body. Such signal success has attended its use that it is now regarded as the

GREAT UNFAILING SPECIFIC

for LIVER COMPLAINT and the painful offspring thereof, to wit: Dyspepsia, Constipation, Jaundice, Bilious attacks, Sick Headache, Colic, Depression of Spirits, Sour Stomach, Heart Burn, etc. Regulate the Liver and prevent

CHILLS AND FEVER.

SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR is manufactured only by

J. H. ZEILIN & CO.,
Macon, Georgia, and Philadelphia.

Price, $1 per package; sent by mail, postage paid, $1.25. Prepared ready for use in bottles, $1.50. Sold by all druggists.

☞ Beware of all Counterfeits and Imitations. se19 1y

Medicinal Torpedoes, in the shape of fierce cathartics, are falling into disrepute.

Tarrant's Effervescent Seltzer Aperient

is driving them out of use. It is the mildest and most genial of all laxatives. Instead of weakening the stomach and bowels, it gives them tone and vigor. Other purgatives leave the excretory passages in an unnatural condition, and new concretions gather there, often more difficult to remove than those that have been violently expelled. The Seltzer Aperient, on the contrary, establishes a regular habit of body. As an appetizer and exhilarant it is far superior to any "Bitters," and its purifying influence on the vitiated animal fluids excels that of any blood depurient in the Materia Medica. And then, how delicious! Sold by all druggists se19 2t

ESTABLISHED IN 1843.

DUNSE GUNSE DUNSE

Breech and Muzzle-loading Guns, Rifles, Pistols, Sportsmen's Apparatus, Ammunition and Material for Gunmakers, etc., wholesale and retail. Guns made to order or repaired in the best manner.

ALEXANDER McCOMAS,
se12 2m 51 South Calvert st., Baltimore, Md.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

ST. CLAIR HOTEL,
BALTIMORE, MARYLAND.

This new and beautiful Hotel is now open to the public. It is located on MONUMENT SQUARE, convenient alike to the business man and the tourist. It is the only hotel in Baltimore embracing elevator, suits of rooms with baths, and all other conveniences.

To accommodate Merchants, Commercial Travelers and others, the rates will be $2 per day for rooms on the fourth and fifth floors, making the difference on account of the elevation. Ordinary transient rates for lower rooms, $3 per day.

Guests desiring to take advantage of the above rates will please notify the clerk before rooms are assigned. An improved elevator for the use of the guests is constantly running from six A. M. until eleven P. M.

se5 2m HARRY H. FOGLE, Manager.

WIRE RAILING AND ORNAMENTAL WIRE WORKS.

DUFUR & CO.,
No. 30 North Howard St., Baltimore,

manufacture Wire Railing for Cemeteries, Balconies, etc.; Sieves, Fenders, Cages, Sand and Coal Screens, Woven Wire, etc. Also Iron Bedsteads, Chairs, etc. se5 1y

MUSICAL BOXES,

PLAYING FROM ONE TO ONE HUNDRED Airs, and costing from $2.50 to $3,000. All sizes, styles and prices. Send stamp for catalogue.

MAGIC LANTERNS,

specially for Sunday schools, lectures, etc. A priced and illustrated catalogue sent on receipt of stamp.

W. MITCHELL McALLISTER,
an29 3m 728 Chestnut st., Phila.

LANDRETH'S SEEDS

Have spoken their own praise for upward of three-quarters of a century.

Landreth's Rural Register and Almanac will be mailed to all who apply.

DAVID LANDRETH & SON,
an29 1y Philadelphia.

BARLOW'S INDIGO BLUE is the cheapest and best article in the market for BLUEING CLOTHES.

The genuine has both Barlow and Wilberger's names on the label, and is put up at Wilberger's Drug Store, No 233 North Second street, Philadelphia. For sale by grocers and druggists.

D. S. WILTBERGER,
mn29 3m Proprietor.

GARDEN SEEDS,

FIELD SEEDS,

FLOWER SEEDS.

Grown largely by ourselves, on our own grounds, near Haddonfield, New Jersey.

COLLINS, DOWNS & CO.,
Warehouse, 1113 Market street,
Philadelphia, Pa.

Catalogue and Price-List furnished on application. The trade supplied on liberal terms. mn22 3m

HOMER COLLEGE.

THE SCHOLASTIC EXERCISES OF THE Thirteenth Annual Term of Homer College begin on the First Tuesday of SEPTEMBER next, 1872.

Tuition at the rate of $5 per month. Board from $12 to $15 per month.

Students received in regular classes only, and to the end of a session.

A Preparatory Department, under competent management, is attached to the college. Tuition, $4 to $5 per month.

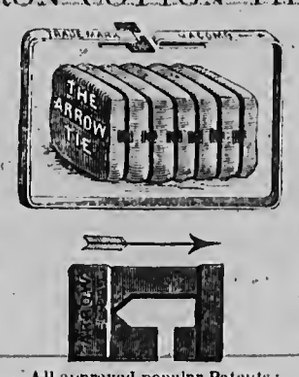
For further particulars address

REV. J. E. COBB,
President Homer College, La.

By order of the Board,
W. F. MODELAND,
Pres't. Board of Trustees. an22 3m

IMPORTANT TO PLANTERS.

IRON COTTON TIES.



All approved popular Patents:

ARROW,
ANCHOR,
WALLIS,
ALLIGATOR
AND DUNN.

For sale by all dealers in New Orleans, Mobile and Memphis, and by country merchants generally throughout the Cotton States.

BARLETT & RAYNE,
General Agents,
48 Carondelet street, cor. Union,
my30 6m New Orleans.

WATER. The Records of Tests AT LOWELL, MASS., PROVE N. F. BURNHAM'S New Turbine superior to all others. It gave a higher percentage than any other wheel of common finish. Pamphlet and Price List by N. F. BURNHAM, York, Pa. ap25 6m

FALL WORK FOR AGENTS!

"UP THE HEIGHTS OF

FAME AND FORTUNE.

And the Roads Taken by the Climbers to Become Men of Mark."

This is the title of our splendid new octavo 700 pages of most instructive reading, brimming with facts and alive with fresh interest, to be ready shortly. Exclusive territory given; name district you desire, and state experience in business. Send $1 for prospectus book. Write at once for descriptive circular to WM. H. MOORE & CO.,
se5 6t Publishers, Cincinnati

THE GREAT CHURCH MUSIC BOOK.

THE ADVANCE,

BY H. S. PERKINS.

This valuable collection of new Music for choirs, conventions, singing schools, etc., is now ready, and promises to be

THE SUCCESS OF THE SEASON.

Everything new, fresh and attractive. All wishing the best should examine THE ADVANCE before deciding on a new book.

☞ Price, $1.25, or $12 per dozen. A single copy sent for examination on receipt of $1. Specimen pages free.

S. BRAINARD'S SONS,
an22 1y cow Music Publishers, Cleveland O.

WAVERLY STABLES.
HAYDEN & MEENAN, Proprietors.
LIVERY AND SALE STABLES,
No. 39 North Royal Street, Mobile.

Carriages and Buggies of the latest styles, and superior Horses, furnished at all hours.

Calls of every description will receive prompt attention. ja4 1y

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

STONEWALL INSTITUTE,
AT PLANTERSVILLE, ALABAMA,

THIS SCHOOL FOR BOYS WILL BEGIN its Eighth Annual Session on

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 1, 1872.

Its reputation is based upon its merits.

The discipline is both parental and military, the latter only going far enough to promote physical development, promptness and application to books.

The elementary branches of education—spelling, reading, writing, the art of composing and arithmetic—receive special attention.

Small boys, ten years old, will be received. Economy in money and time will be gained by intrusting the education of such to the undersigned.

School session for day, seven hours; at night, two and a half. All boys board with the principal. Debating Societies on Saturday. Sunday school every Sunday.

Two hundred and thirty dollars—one-half payable in October, in cash, or a thirty days' ACCEPTED draft; the other, February 1, 1873—will pay for a boy's board and tuition for one year.

It is confidently believed, by both students and patrons of this school, that no other does the whole work of education more thoroughly and satisfactorily than the Stonewall.

It is our set purpose, to make the course of study equal to the demands of the age, whether in thoroughly preparing boys for college, or qualifying them for business in practical life. We are willing to have our work examined and compared with any done in academies or quasi colleges.

D. C. H. CONNERLY,
an29 4t Plantersville, Ala.

Centenary Female College,
SUMMERFIELD, ALA.

THE THIRTIETH SESSION OPENS SEPTEMBER 23, 1872.

The Literary, Music and Art Departments are well organized and under a competent faculty.

The peculiar advantages are health, cheapness and thorough instruction.

Board and tuition, $230; if all paid in advance, $220. Children, $210.

For catalogue and further information address

A. D. McVOY,
an22 1m President.

Readville Seminary for Young Ladies,
BATON ROUGE, LOUISIANA.

ESTABLISHED IN 1843. Incorporated in 1859. New buildings. Full corps of teachers. All the appliances of a first-class institution. For catalogues address

MRS. MARY W. READ, Principal, an29 3m Baton Rouge, La.

Huntsville Female College,
HUNTSVILLE, ALABAMA.

NINETEENTH SESSION BEGINS SEPTEMBER 4, 1872. Eight Departments; four male, eleven lady teachers and officers; splendid parlor organ; new furniture; gas, water, heating, bathing fixtures; grounds and scenery charming; climate delightful; health unrivaled; course liberal; Music (piano, organ, zither, guitar, violin) by eminent professors and teachers; native French teacher; calisthenics free; art cheap. Board and English tuition per annum, $250.

REV. GEO. W. F. PRICE, President.
Late President Tuskegee Female College.
se5 1m

IMMIGRANTS FURNISHED.

I WILL LEAVE, ON THE NEXT TRIP out of the Steamer St. Louis, for ENGLAND, and will furnish

English Farm Laborers and Servants

to those who will intrust their orders to me. For particulars I refer all persons to Messrs. Meeker, Knox & Co., 49 Carondelet street, New Orleans.

se5 1m GEORGE TORREY.

ARMSTRONG, CATOR & CO.,

IMPORTERS AND MANUFACTURERS OF

Ribbons, Millinery and Straw Goods,

WHITE GOODS, LINEN LACE AND EMBROIDERY,

Nos. 237 and 239 Baltimore Street,

BALTIMORE, MARYLAND.

Orders promptly attended to se5 3m

BIGGEST COMMISSIONS on Standard Works for all Prominent Benevolent Organizations. 100,000 sold. Masonic, Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias Red Men, Mechanics, Temperance, etc. Sale unrivaled by anything heretofore offered. Agents with no experience are selling 20 Pictures and upward a day. One of our agents has cleared over $1,200 in three months. The Brethren welcome these works. Our inducements are UNPRECEDENTED. Our commissions are positively one-fourth larger than any other house does or CAN offer. Send for circular of Order to which you belong, giving No. of your Lodge, and state where you saw this advertisement. You will certainly engage with us.

J. HALE POWERS & CO.,
Fraternity Publishers,
my9 7m Cincinnati, Ohio.

For Churches, Schools, Fire Alarms, Farms, etc. FINE-TONED, WARRANTED, LOW-PRICED. Descriptive circular sent free.

BLYMER, NORTON & CO.,
661-691 W. Eighth st., Cincinnati, O.
Jn25 26t cow

WILLIAM HOGAN,
Manufacturer of and Dealer in
BOOTS, SHOES, TRUNKS, VALISES AND BAGS,
FRENCH AND AMERICAN,
Also Agent for the EMPIRE SEWING MACHINE,
99 AND 101 CANAL STREET,
an1 3m New Orleans.

S. COLLINS & CO.,

MANUFACTURERS OF

PRINTING INK,

Office and Depot—20 Frankfort Street,

Jy25 6m NEW YORK.

JOSEPH GILLOTT'S

STEEL PENS,

OF THE OLD STANDARD QUALITY.

TRADE MARK: JOSEPH GILLOTT. Or Descriptive Name and Design Warranted. mailing Number.

The well known Original and Popular Nos.,

303 404 170 351,

having been assumed by other Makers, we desire to caution the public in respect to said imitations. ☞ ASK FOR GILLOTT'S.

JOS. GILLOTT & SONS,
Jy25 1y 91 John street, N. Y.

BREWER & HILTON,
MANUFACTURERS OF
Thomas Wordley's Celebrated Fancy, Shaving and Toilet Soaps,

Also J. D. SMITH & CO.'S world-renowned Pearl Powders, Lily White, Rouges, etc.,

NO. 114 ARCH STREET, PHILADELPHIA.

All goods warranted, aug 3m

The Child's Corner.

THE GREAT GOD.

Little boy, with laughing eye,
Bright and blue as yonder sky,
Come, and [illegible] for me;
Who it is that lives above.

It is God who made the earth,
God who gave my darling birth,
God who sees each sparrow fall,
God who reigns great King of all.

God who sends the pleasant breeze,
Blowing sweet through flowers and trees,
God who gives you every joy,
God who loves you, little boy.

He is beautiful and bright,
Living in eternal light;
Would you not, my little love,
Like to live with him above?

Ask him, then, my child, to show
How to please him here below;
Ask him grace and help to send;
Pray to him, your kindest Friend.

You must learn to read and look
Often in his holy book;
There, my darling, you will find
God is very good and kind.

The Maple Tree's Children.

BY MRS. A. M. DIAZ.

A maple tree awoke at spring-time, shivering in the east winds. "Oh, Mother Nature," she said, "I tremble with cold. Behold my limbs ugly and bare. The birds are all coming back from the south, and I would look my best. They will soon be building their nests. Oh, a bird's nest does make a tree so pleasant. But, alas, they will not come to me, because I have no leaves to hide them!"

And kind Mother Nature smiled, and presented her daughter Maple with such a multitude of leaves! More than you could count! These gave beauty to the tree, besides keeping the rain out of the bird's nest. For birds had quickly come to build there, and there was reason to expect a lively summer. A right happy maple tree now was she, and well pleased with her pretty green leaves. They were so beautiful in the sunlight; and the winds whispered such sweet things to them as to make them dance for joy! A pair of golden robins had a home there, and thrushes came often. Sunshine and song all day long! Or if the little leaves became hot and thirsty in the summer's heat, good Mother Nature gave them cooling rain-drops to drink. A happier maple tree could nowhere be found.

"Thanks! thanks, Mother Nature," she said, "for all your care and your loving kindness to me!"

But when autumn came, with its gloomy skies and its chilling winds, the Maple Tree grew sad, for she heard her little leaves saying to each other: "We are going to die! We are going to die!"

People living near said: "Hark! Do you hear the wind? It sounds like fall." Nobody told them it was the leaves, all over the forest, moaning to each other: "We are going to die! We are going to die!"

"My dear little leaves!" sighed the Maple Tree. "Poor things, they must go! Ah, how sad to see them droop and fade away!"

"I will make their death beautiful," said kind Mother Nature. And she changed their color to a scarlet, which glowed in the sunlight like fire.

And every one said: "How beautiful!" But the poor Maple Tree sighed, knowing it was the beauty of death.

And one cold October morning she stood with her limbs all bare, looking very desolate. The bright leaves lay heaped about her.

"Dear, pretty things!" she said. "How I shall miss them! They were such a comfort! And how ugly I am! Nobody will care for me now!"

But presently a flock of school girls came along, chatting away, all so cheerily, of ferns, red berries and autumn leaves.

"And I think," said one, "that there's a great deal of beauty in a tree without any leaves at all."

"So do I," said another. "Just look up through this elm. Its branches and boughs and twigs make a perfectly lovely picture against the sky!"

"When my uncle came home," said a third, "he told us that some of the people in the torrid zone perfectly longed to see a forest without leaves."

And thus chatting, the lively school girls passed on.

"Ah," sighed the Maple Tree, "this will at least be pleasant to dream about!"

For she already felt her winter's nap coming on. If she could but have stayed awake and heard what her little leaves said to each other afterward, down there on the ground!

"Dear old tree! She has taken care of us all our lives, and fed us, and held us up to the sun, and been to us a kind mother, and now we will do something for her. We will get under ground and turn ourselves into food to feed her with, for she'll be sure to wake up hungry after her long nap!"

Good little things! The rains helped them, and the winds—in this way: the rains beat them into the ground, and the winds blew sand over them, and there they turned themselves into something very nice for the old Maple Tree—something good to take. And now, as she wakes up again in the spring and takes a full meal of it, she is once more lively and happy, and thousands of fresh young leaves unfold to clothe her naked limbs.—Our Young Folks.

The "Little Widow."

"Well," said the good old doctor, with a sigh of satisfaction, "we have disposed of the roast chicken without a single interruption. Now for the baked custards!"

But as he spoke the office bell rang, and he rose instantly, the yet untasted custard in his hand.

"Now, father," exclaimed the young girl opposite him, his only companion at the dinner table, "why need you go? Eat your custard. Whoever it is can wait a few minutes."

"No, dear," he said. "Pain finds it hard to wait. Whoever it is may be suffering. The custard can wait. I'll just take it with me, and eat it at the first spare moment." So he passed from the dining room into the office, and looked around for his visitor. He had time to set the custard-cup on the mantel-shelf and lay the spoon across it before he discovered any one in the room, so completely did the great leather-covered [illegible] hide the little form behind it. It was a small boy, very poorly clothed, but with neat patches on knees and elbows, which spoke of motherly care. His face was pale with pain, but there was a resolute look in his brave eyes, which showed a soul stronger than the pain.

"Ah, there he is!" cried the doctor. "Well, my little man, what can I do for you?" And he seated himself in the large chair, to bring himself more on a level with the little pale face.

"Please, sir, my hand," he replied, coming in front of the doctor, and holding out his right hand, crushed and bleeding.

"Why, why! that's bad! How did you do that, my boy?"

"I was trying to help at the express office, sir, and a box slipped and hurt me."

The doctor went to work at once, with utmost gentleness, to bind up the poor little hand, but muttering: "Pshaw! what does the express office want of such a child? You ought to be at school."

"But I must be earning something, sir; I'm a poor—"

"Pshaw!" muttered the doctor again, "what should such a child earn? You ought to be at school, I say. Who brought you here?"

"Nobody, sir. I saw your sign out, and I came over here myself. But sir," he continued in a piteous tone, "I cannot pay you. I have no money. I'm a poor—"

"Ah well, no matter! We'll see to that," interrupted the doctor in a cheery voice. But the child continued: "I haven't any money; I'm a poor widow, sir—" but here the doctor, who had just put on the last slip of plaster, leaned back in his great chair and burst into a hearty laugh, to the surprise of the little boy, who raised his large, sad eyes to the doctor's face wonderingly. Just then a young girl's face peeped in at the open door, attracted by the unusual sound of mirth in the office. "See here, daughter! My boy, tell the lady what you are."

"I'm a poor widow, ma'am," repeated the child innocently, and the doctor laughed again right merrily.

"Poor child!" said the girl. "I suppose he has heard his mother say that, and thought he shared her lot in all things. A good, manly little fellow," she added, pushing the hair back from his forehead with kindly touch, and she helped to bind up his poor hand with soft, clean linen.

Then the "little widow" was set in the large arm-chair and treated to the doctor's nice custard. When it was finished the doctor said: "Now, my boy, the buggy is at the door; I am going your way, and I will take you home to your mother."

His mother was indeed "a poor widow," and this was her only child. Under the doctor's care the boy soon recovered the use of his hand. Further prescriptions followed as to schooling; for the doctor had a way of administering to people's misfortunes as well as to their bodily ailments; and, as time went on, the "little widow," as the good old man used to call the child between himself and his daughter, became the doctor's office boy, with good prospects of becoming his assistant at last.—Congregationalist.

The Cold Water Boy.

Behold a table with boiled turkey and ham, with vegetables nicely cooked, and gravies rich and juicy. There sits a father at its head and the mother opposite, and guests are seated on either side; there is no lack of good humor and merry jest to give spice to conversation.

There are children, too—a boy of ten and a little girl of eight. They listen intelligently and attentively to the remarks of parents and guests, look up into the faces of one another with interest. Behold! decanters are brought in; glasses are filled, and one and another sip the sparkling wine.

"Excellent!" exclaimed one, smacking his lips. "Fine!" echoed another, with glass refilled.

"Shall I drink wine with you, my lad?" asked one of the gentlemen, bowing to the boy.

"Is not your glass filled, William?" asked the father. "John, fill William's glass," turning to the servant. Slowly did William turn up his glass to receive the rosy liquor.

"Drink with the gentleman, my dear," whispered the mother encouragingly. The boy blushed and cast down his eyes, but he obeyed not. Was he frightened? Was he diffident?

"My son, did you not hear Mr. Black address you?" said the father quickly and sternly. "Drink wine with him, William."

Accustomed to obey his father's slightest wish, the boy's lips quivered, but he obeyed not.

In a moment, raising his eyes and looking his father full in the face, he said manfully:

"Father, I am a soldier in the Cold Water Army, and I can't drink wine."

"Brave boy!" exclaimed one of the gentlemen, setting down his glass.

"The Cold Water Army must conquer if every soldier stands his ground as well," said another, regarding William with great respect.

"We will excuse you, my son," said the father in a softened voice, and, though they sat long at the table, his glass was not again raised to his lips. There it stood, untasted and full. Yes, the cold water ranks can boast of other soldiers as brave as William.

Stand firm, my boys; let no one beat you from your ground. Be up and doing! Intemperance is stealing about, seeking whom it may devour. Break his weapons, destroy his engines, give him no quarter.

"COLD WATER! COLD WATER!"

Let this sloan of triumph be heard all over the land, from city and hamlet, from mountain and glen:

"Cold water! cold water and victory!"—Young Pilgrim.

The Farm and Garden.

Potatoes in Ireland.

The Pacific Rural Press, noticing the way the potato was introduced into the different parts of Europe, says: The soil and climate of Ireland proved so favorable that the culture of the potato extended rapidly, until it became the most important crop in the country, being among large numbers of people almost the only article of food. There were causes for their popularity, among the chief of which were their great productiveness, and their safety from destruction by an enemy making a raid through the country. During the religious wars, which raged so long in Ireland, this last consideration was a very important one; for while a field of grain could be destroyed in a few hours by turning cattle or horses into it, or, if dry, by simply setting fire to it, potatoes in the ground could be reached only by the slow process of digging. When first introduced into Scotland, it is said that the Puritans objected to it, because not mentioned in the Bible, and that it was not cultivated as a field crop there before 1732. In 1736 Essex county alone raised one thousand seven hundred acres of potatoes for the London market.

Game Hens and Ducks.

A writer in the Canadian Poultry Chronicle gives the following as his experience with the laying qualities of game hens and ducks: "There are few fowls more prolific than game, and where there is a good wide range of any kind, no fowls will prove more profitable, the black-breasted red variety being the best. They eat little in proportion to larger fowls, and are very good layers; but they cannot be kept in close confinement on account of their fighting propensities. No fancier that can find a suitable place in his poultry-yard but should have a few ducks. Their appetite is such that almost any kind of food will supply them; they pick up the waste food left by other fowls and grow fat on it. In the barn-yard, in gardens and in pasture land they are alike useful and beneficial. There are three kinds which now stand high among breeders, namely: the Aylesbury, which is pure white; the Rouen, which in color resembles the wild Mallard; and the Cayuga, which are pure black, except occasional white spots on the breast."

Deep Planting of Fruit Trees.

A friend has given us some particulars concerning a large apple orchard of some two thousand three hundred trees, belonging to a Mr. Scott, of Lafayette county, Wisconsin. Contrary to the common theory and practice, he believes in and practices deep planting of fruit trees. The location of his orchard is not considered good, nor is the soil—a compact red clay. He dug the holes for the trees two feet deep, filling in partly before setting, but having the roots at least fifteen inches below the surface. Each spring he digs about each tree, throwing out the earth down nearly to the original roots, and trims off all fibrous roots above these. In the fall the earth is put back, and so left through the winter, serving the purpose, he claims, of mounding fruit trees set near the surface. The orchard is said to have done remarkably well, the trees making good growth and being in fine condition, entirely free from bark-bursting.

Handling Hogs.

A practical breeder gives the following advice, which in the main we think sound, for those whose herds are not too large, and who are engaged in mixed husbandry: To handle hogs to the best advantage, a pasture is needed of mixed grasses, clover, blue grass and timothy, and it is best if there is no running water or stock ponds in the lot. Hogs do better where there are no branches or stock ponds to wallow in. In place thereof, have good well-water pumped for them. Have troughs made, and nail strips across, eight inches apart, to keep the hogs from lying down in the water, and let those hogs be put on floors, to keep them from digging up or wallowing holes. If any feed be given, it should be soaked in swill barrels for twelve hours before feeding—no longer—and fed to them as drink.—Germantown Telegraph.

Where to Use Potash.

Prof. Voleker says that he has found by the experiments of several years that, contrary to his earlier expectations, the application of salts of potash on heavy clay land, whether to roots or clover, has, as a rule, proved decidedly unremunerative, the soil evidently containing a good supply of this element. He has not met with a single instance in which potash-produced good effect on arable land, but they have been used with advantage on light, sandy soil. The information is valuable, and further hint on the application of wood-ashes, potash being one of the most important elements which make up that most excellent fertilizer for sandy lands.

How to Raise a Shepherd Dog.

In the course of some conversation in relation to dogs, Governor Anderson, of Ohio, related a Texas practice in training dogs with sheep. A pup is taken from its mother before its eyes are opened, and put with an ewe to suckle. After a few times the ewe becomes reconciled to the pup, which follows her like a lamb, grows up among and remains with the flock, and no wolf, man or strange dog can come near the sheep, and the dog will bring the flock to the fold regularly at half-past seven o'clock in the evening, if you habitually feed him at that hour.—Canada Farmer.

TOMATOES.—This valuable fruit is supposed to be a native of South America, a country where so many of our choice fruits and vegetables are indigenous.

HARDWARE, STOVES, ETC.

KURSHEEDT & BIENVENU,
IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN
Plantation and Builders' Hardware,
MARBLE, MARBLEIZED SLATE
AND IRON MANTLES,
Grates, Hearths and Fire Bricks,
NO. 114 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
my2 1y

THE UNRIVALED

BUCK'S BRILLIANT STOVE.

Every Brilliant is Fully Guaranteed.

H. HALLER,
No. 49 Camp street, New Orleans,
Sole Agent for Louisiana.

Sole Agent for the
CELEBRATED RINGEN WASHER,
In the States of Louisiana, Texas and Mississippi. oc19 1y

GROCERIES—GLASSWARE.

PURE LOUISIANA
SUGAR, MOLASSES AND SIRUPS.

REFINED SUGAR.—Cut Loaf, Crushed and Powdered.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

GOLDEN SIRUP.—A superior article of pure Louisiana, from the Crescent City Refinery. A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

REFINED SIRUP AND MOLASSES.—Crescent City Refinery, Orleans, Louisiana, Chalmette and Pelican brands.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

LOUISIANA MOLASSES.—Various grades of Plantation, in barrels, half barrels and kegs. A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

CLARIFIED SUGAR.—Various grades of White and Yellow, in hogsheads and barrels.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

LOUISIANA SUGAR.—Various grades of Plantation, in hogsheads and barrels.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

FOREIGN SUGAR.—Cuba, Demerara and Porto Rico, in hogsheads and boxes.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
my9 6m 48 Tchoupitoulas street.

W. C. SHEPARD & CO.,
—IMPORTERS OF—
CHINA, CROCKERY AND GLASS,
55.....CAMP STREET.....55
New Orleans.

Country dealers supplied with ASSORTED CRATES or from SHELF upon the most favorable terms.

Contents of our English Iron Stone China Dinner Set, No. 1:

12 Dinner Plates,	1 Round Soup Tureen.
12 Breakfast Plates,	1 Sauce Boat,
12 Tea Plates.	1 Salad,
12 Soup Plates,	1 Pair Covered Dishes,
12 Preserve Plates,	2 Vegetable Dishes,
12 Butter Plates,	3 Pickle Dishes,
12 Tea cups and saucers	4 Meat Dishes.

112 pieces best English Ware..... $18

Our Stone China Dinner and Tea Set, No. 2, contains

158 pieces..... $25

Our French China Dinner Set, No. 1, contains

12 Dinner Plates,	4 Meat Dishes,
12 Breakfast Plates,	1 Soup Tureen, round,
12 Tea Plates,	2 Covered Dishes, oval
12 Soup Plates,	1 Sauce Boat,
12 Preserve Plates,	1 Salad,
12 Tea cups and saucers	2 Pickles,
12 Butter Plates,	2 Vegetable Dishes.

112 pieces best French Ware..... $30

Our French China Dinner Set, No. 2, contains

166 pieces..... $45

Our French China Dinner Set, No. 3, contains

255 pieces..... $65

A large variety of the best SELF-SEALING FRUIT JARS always on hand.
Sole agents for the celebrated BLANCHARD CHURN. The best churn made.
The most complete stock of HOUSE-FURNISHING GOODS in the south.
W. C. SHEPARD & CO.,
ap1 6m No. 55 Camp st., New Orleans.

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY.

THE NEXT SESSION OF THIS INSTITUTION will commence on

The First Wednesday in October.

It is one of the cheapest and most thorough colleges in this country. The instruction is of the highest character in all the schools of its Collegiate, Medical and Law Departments.

Board is from $10 to $16 per month.

For particulars and catalogue address Dr. A. S. Andrews or Prof. O. P. Casey.
A. S. ANDREWS, President.
GREENSBORO, ALA., July 14, 1872. au22 6t

MANSFIELD FEMALE COLLEGE,
Mansfield, DeSoto Parish, La.

THIS INSTITUTION, ENTERING UPON Its Eighteenth Year, well supplied with Apparatus and other educational aids, and employing the most approved methods of instruction and government, will commence its Fall Session for 1872 on WEDNESDAY, the Twenty-fifth day of September, with a full corps of accomplished Teachers. For catalogues, with all particulars, address
CHARLES B. STUART,
au8 2m President.

TUSKEGEE FEMALE COLLEGE,
TUSKEGEE, ALA.

THE SEVENTEENTH ANNUAL SESSION begins SEPTEMBER 16, 1872. The entire expense per annum of a boarding pupil, who takes no extra study, is $250, exclusive of books. No extra charge for vocal music, calisthenics or elementary drawing. For circulars, containing full information, apply to the President.
REV. HENRY D. MOORE,
au22 1m Tuskegee, Alabama.

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

CENTENARY COLLEGE,
JACKSON, LOUISIANA.

THE NEXT TERM OF THIS VENERABLE INSTITUTION OPENS ON THE FIRST MONDAY IN OCTOBER, 1872.

FACULTY.

Rev. C. G. ANDREWS, A. M., President, and Professor of Mental and Moral Science, Political Economy and International Law.
Rev. A. R. HOLCOMBE, A. M., Professor of Mathematics and Adjunct Professor of Natural Science.
G. H. WILEY, A. M., Professor of Ancient and Modern Languages.
T. S. JONES, M. D., Professor of Natural Science.
——, Principal of the Preparatory Department.

CHARGES.

Tuition, per session of forty weeks, in College	$100 00
Tuition, per session of forty weeks, in Preparatory Department	40 00
Contingent expenses	5 00

A matriculation fee of $5 must be paid on entering any regular college class. One-half the charges must be paid when the student enters; the other half on the beginning of the second term, March 1.

BOARD.

Board, including lodging, washing, lights and fuel, can be had in the best of families for $20 per month. Day-boarding with the same families, $13 per month. Rooms provided in the dormitories free of rent. Board to be paid in advance at least one month.

LOCATION.

This institution is located in the lovely village of Jackson, about twelve miles from Bayou Sara, in a grove of pine, magnolia, oak and beech. The location is remarkable for its beautiful woodlands, its bland and delightful atmosphere, its pure water, its unrivaled healthfulness, and its cultivated and refined society.

WHEN FOUNDED.

The college was established by the State of Louisiana in 1825, and ceded to the Methodist Episcopal Church South in 1845.

ALUMNI.

Its Alumni numbers 203, and they are to be found in the most honorable and useful stations in the land.

APPARATUS AND CABINET.

The college possesses a valuable set of Philosophical, Astronomical and Chemical Apparatus, and also a well-selected Mineralogical and Geological Cabinet. The apparatus includes a Theodolite, Sextant, Compass, Chronometer, Atwood's Machine, Whirling Tables, Electrical Machine, Air Pump, various combinations of the Mechanical Powers, Batteries, Chemical Tests, etc., sufficient for a thorough and extended course of observations and experiments. Steps have been taken by the Board of Trustees to put these in thorough repair.

LITERARY SOCIETIES.

There are two regular Literary Societies connected with the institution. These are of great utility to young men acquiring a liberal education—improving them in the art of public speaking, making them in some degree familiar with the proceedings of deliberative bodies, and in cultivating systematic business habits. Each Society has a convenient hall and a well selected library—about 1,600 volumes each, which, added to the College Library of 2,000 volumes, makes over 5,000 volumes in the college.

BUILDINGS.

The Trustees are determined to continue the repairs on the buildings till completed. The grand Center Building is a noble specimen of architectural beauty and adaptation to the purposes of its erection. The wings, built of solid brick, present each a front of two hundred feet, with upper and lower galleries the entire length, supported by Tuscan columns, and with the center making in the perspective a continuous front of 700 feet.

PREPARATORY DEPARTMENT.

In the Preparatory Department students are fitted for regular college classes, or may obtain a thorough English or commercial education.
ITS FACULTY are men of experience and success in teaching.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES.

Rev. Bishop J. C. KEENER, D. D., President, New Orleans.

Rev. J. A. Godfrey, Clinton.	Hon. A. K. Farrar, Adams county, Miss.
Hon. John McVea, Clinton.	Hon. Edward J. Gay, jurist of Iberville.
Hon. and Rev. Jas. H. Muse, St. Helena par.	Samuel J. Norwood, Esq., Simmsport La.
Hon. Edward McGehee, Woodville, Miss.	C. G. McGehee, Esq., Wilkinson co., Miss.
Hon. E. T. Merrick, New Orleans	Rev. W. H. Watkins, D. D., Natchez, Miss.
Prof. W. H. N. Magruder, Baton Rouge.	Rev. W. B. Millsaps, Jefferson county, Miss.
Rev. John C. Miller, Jackson.	Rev. J. A. H. Jones, Port Gibson, Miss.
Rev. R. J. Harp, New Orleans.	Rev. John A. Ellis, Meridian, Miss.
Hon. J. O. Fuqua, Baton Rouge.	R. H. Moss, M. D., New Orleans.
T. F. Collins, Esq., East Feliciana.	Josiah H. Nettles, Esq., E. Baton Rouge, La.
Rev. J. L. Forsythe, Jackson.	Wilmot H. Goodale, Esq. Baton Rouge.
Rev. L. Parker, D. D., New Orleans.	Rev. C. G. Andrews, Jackson, La.
D. C. Hardee, Esq., Clinton.	Rev. A. E. Goodwyn, Baton Rouge, La.

THE BEST ROUTE to the college is to leave the Mississippi river at Port Hudson, take the Clinton and Port Hudson railroad to Midway station, report to Captain F. J. Barnes as a student for Centenary, and he will convey you to the college, a distance of seven miles, for one dollar and a half for single passengers, or one dollar each where several are together. Address
au1 6m C. G. ANDREWS, President, Jackson, La.

Whitworth Female College,
AT BROOKHAVEN, MISS.

THE CONTINUED SUCCESS OF THIS INstitution is one of the best evidences of its merit. During the past term there were in attendance two hundred and twenty-nine pupils.

The members of the Faculty—eleven in number—are selected on account of their ability to teach.

Prof. ECKHARDT, Music Director, has few equals.

Madame JULIUS, a Parisian lady of eighteen years' successful experience as a teacher, has been engaged to take charge of the French and Ornamental Department.

The very best care is taken of our pupils, both as to health and manners. Fires are provided for all.

No extravagance in dress is allowed.

The good health of Brookhaven is proverbial. Pupils from the miasmatic regions of Louisiana and Mississippi find this as healthful a school as can be found anywhere.

The charges are believed to be lower than in any school in the Southwest where similar advantages are afforded. Only from $230 to $265 for all expenses, excepting music, French and the ornamental branches.

No expense is spared in purchasing the most approved apparatus (maps, charts, etc., and all necessary school furniture.

Brookhaven is located on the New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern Railroad, 128 miles from the city.

Catalogues sent free on application to au1 6m REV. H. F. JOHNSON, Pres't.

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE,
AT BATON ROUGE, LOUISIANA.

THE EXERCISES OF THIS SCHOOL will be resumed on Wednesday, the Second of October next.

For circulars, with all necessary information, apply to Rev. R. J. Harp, 112 Camp street, New Orleans, or to myself, at Baton Rouge, Louisiana.
au1 6m W. H. N. MAGRUDER.

MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE,
ABINGDON, VA.,
ON THE VIRGINIA AND TENNESSEE RAILROAD.

$105 IN ADVANCE will pay Board and Tuition for five months in this institution, beautifully situated amid the mountains. For healthfulness, high grade and extent of instruction, and excellence of facilities, no institution in the land surpasses this.
Session begins SEPTEMBER 19.
For catalogue or particulars apply to
REV. W. G. E. CUNNYNGHAM, D. D.,
Or R. W. JONES, M. A., President.
jy25 3m

Wesleyan Female College,
MACON, GEORGIA.

THE THIRTY-FIFTH ANNUAL SESSION will begin OCTOBER 7, 1872.
For catalogues, containing full information, address
REV. E. H. MYERS, D. D.,
President, or
C. W. SMITH,
au15 2m Secretary of Faculty.

RANDOLPH MACON COLLEGE,
Ashland, Hanover Co., Va.,

OFFERS, ON VERY LOW TERMS, THE advantages of thorough instruction, high grade of scholarship, best religious influences in a retired community, and at a location remarkable for healthfulness—just sixteen miles north of Richmond, on the R. F. and P. Railroad. Only $110 will pay all necessary for the half session! For catalogue address
REV. JAS. A. DUNCAN, D. D.,
President, or
REV. ALEX. G. BROWN, Sec.,
jy26 2m P. O., Ashland, Va.

EMORY AND HENRY COLLEGE,
VIRGINIA.

THE FALL SESSION of this institution begins on the FIFTEENTH OF AUGUST next. One Hundred and Fifteen Dollars will pay all the necessary expenses of a five month session, including board, tuition, fuel, room-rent, washing and contingent fees. Payments are required in advance, except for board which is $13 per month, and payable monthly in advance. If you will consult the Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and her ministers generally, or a synod and students, or the professors of the University of Virginia, who have authorized this reference, you will be assured that we are offering excellent opportunities for a thorough collegiate training, surrounded by healthful, moral, religious influences. If you desire a catalogue, or any additional information, address
E. E. WILEY, President,
je20 4m Emory P. O., Virginia.

TUSKALOOSA FEMALE COLLEGE,
TUSKALOOSA, ALABAMA.

THE NEXT SESSION OPENS SEPTEMBER 23, 1872.
The beautiful and healthy city of Tuskaloosa, Alabama, is unsurpassed as a location.
The Faculty will consist of three Professors and eight or ten Lady Assistants.
Course of study thorough. Domestic arrangements complete. Young ladies' sleeping apartments elegantly furnished and carpeted. Health department includes a finely-conducted Gymnasium. This College is believed to be equal to the best in the United States, and the cheapest in the South. Special advantages for orphan children whose guardians wish to furnish them a home and school in one. For particulars and catalogue address the proprietor,
REV. R. P. LARRABEE,
jy18 3m Tuskaloosa, Alabama.

TENNESSEE FEMALE COLLEGE,
FRANKLIN, TENNESSEE.

Rev. R. K. Hargrove, A. M., President.

FALL SESSION FOR 1872 opens on Thursday, SEPTEMBER 5.
Its organization and equipment are complete, and its facilities of the highest order.
It will not substitute graduation for education.
Not one of its hundreds of pupils, for sixteen years past, has ever died in attendance on it.
Board and Collegiate Tuition, including French and Latin, one year, $220. To itinerant Ministers, literary tuition free, and board on special terms.
Circulars sent on application. au1 2m

Kentucky Wesleyan University,
MILLERSBURG, KENTUCKY.

SESSION FOR 1872-73 OPENS SEPTEMBER 16, 1872, and closes June 4, 1873.
The expense of the entire session can be brought within $240 by those who pay tuition, and $50 less by those who come on scholarships. All bills due the University are payable strictly in advance. Board bills are payable monthly.
This University is situated in the heart of the Blue Grass region of Kentucky. Climate invigorating and healthful. The Faculty of Instructors is now full. Persons seeking a good school for their sons are invited to correspond with the President, or A. G. Hill, Financial Secretary, or to send for catalogue.
jy18 10t R. ARBOGAST, President.

ATHENS FEMALE INSTITUTE,
AT ATHENS, ALABAMA,

IS UNDER THE PATRONAGE OF THE North Alabama Conference. The next session will open on

The First Monday in September.

Our arrangements are all complete. A corps of able Teachers, a full course of study, thorough drilling and strict discipline have secured us gratifying success.
Board and tuition in Literary Department, one year, $210.
REV. J. M. WRIGHT,
au8 2m President.

MISCELLANEOUS.

IMPROVED

EAGLE COTTON GINS.

THE GREAT POPULARITY of the EAGLE COTTON GINS is established from the well-known fact that they are the most reliable, strongest and best built Cotton Gins ever made. The Eagle Cotton Gin runs lighter than any other gin, thus having a great advantage for planters who wish to run by horse power. All the numerous planters who use the Eagle Cotton Gin will certify to the fact that when their cotton is sent to market it always brings the highest market price, as no other gin can produce a finer or a better sample of cotton than the Eagle Cotton Gins. Over seventeen thousand of the Eagle Cotton Gins have been made and sold. During a period of twenty years the undersigned has had the agency of the Eagle Cotton Gin in New Orleans. He has never had a gin returned or rejected out of the immense number sold. The saw cylinders of all the Eagle Cotton Gins are twelve inches in diameter, which is two inches larger than most other kinds of gins, thus giving our forty-saw gin more teeth, and they are more than equal to the fifty-saw gins of other makers, who use only a ten-inch cylinder, and the same great advantage of the twelve inch cylinder in larger sized gins can be easily estimated. Planters who wish a reliable cotton gin, with an established reputation, can purchase an Eagle Cotton Gin with a certainty that they are not making an untried experiment, but will obtain a cotton gin which is indorsed by the oldest and largest planters in the country as the best in use. A large stock of the Eagle Cotton Gins are always kept on sale in New Orleans, ready for immediate shipment. Planters should be particular to state if they want right or left-hand motion gins.

PRICES.
40-Saw Gin.....	$200	65-Saw Gin.....	$325
45-Saw Gin.....	225	70-Saw Gin.....	350
50-Saw Gin.....	250	75-Saw Gin.....	375
55-Saw Gin.....	275	80-Saw Gin.....	400
60-Saw Gin.....	300

All orders should be addressed to
W. L. CUSHING,
No. 61 St. Charles street,
Sole Agent for the Southern States.
Agents wanted. jy4 3m

ARE YOU GOING EAST OR NORTH?

Take the Iron Mountain, and Chicago and Alton Railroads,

THE ONLY ALL-RAIL ROUTE FROM all points South to CHICAGO.

The only line running the Pullman Palace Cars from all points South to St. Louis and Chicago.

Passengers by this line arrive in Chicago one hour in advance of all competing lines, and avoid 25 miles of steamboat transfer, and the annoying changes of cars incident to other lines. For all points in the Northwest, St. Paul, Milwaukee, or all points in the Canadas, New York, Boston and all Eastern cities, this is the pleasantest and most direct route. Parties going East via this line can lay over in Chicago and visit the Burnt District, and resume their trip at their leisure. Fare as low as by all other routes. Tickets to be had at all ticket offices in the South.

W. R. ALLEN,
General Ticket and Passenger Agent,
Iron Mountain Line, St. Louis.
JAMES CHARLTON,
General Ticket and Passenger Agent,
Chicago and Alton Line, Chicago.
D. A. FREER,
my30 4m Southern Traveling Agent.

HOMEOPATHIC DOMESTIC MEDICINE.

BY LAURIE & McCLATCHEY.—FIRST American from the Twenty-first English edition. 1,037 Pages Octavo. Price, $5.

This is the most complete work on Domestic Practice in the English language. Twenty-one thousand copies of it are in circulation in England and in this country. Two full editions sold within less than twelve months.

A full set of Remedies (103 vials,) in a solid Mahogany case, will be furnished for $12. Book and case will be sent, carefully packed, to any address, on receipt of $17.

Address HOEHICKE & TAFEL,
Homeopathic Pharmaceutist and
Medical Publishing House,
145 Grand st., New York.
☞ Established in 1835. jy11 3m

JOHN GIBSON,

ENGRAVER
AND
Steam Power Lithographic Printer,
83 BEEKMAN ST., NEW YORK.

Checks, Notes, Drafts, Receipts, Bonds, Certificates of Stock and Deposit, Bill, Letter and Note Headings, Business Cards, Envelopes, Druggists' Fancy and Perfumery Labels, etc. Druggists wishing Labels, send for Catalogue. je7 1y

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY

Established in 1837.

Superior Bells for Churches, Schools, etc., of Pure Copper and Tin, fully warranted, and mounted with our Latest Improved Rotary Hangings, the best in use.

Illustrated Catalogue sent free

VANDUZEN & TIFT,
102 & 104 E. Second St., Cincinnati
fe22 1y

WM. PHILLIPS, UNION STABLES, 180 Calliope, near St. Charles street, has every accommodation in the line of Pleasure and Family Carriages, such as hacks, broughams, phaetons, buggies, etc., for the use of the public, and at rates to correspond with the stringency of the times. All hacking done below tariff rates. Orders for weddings, balls, picnics, races, etc., will be attended to so as to guarantee satisfaction. I am also prepared to hire vehicles (alone) to parties having their own horses. de14 1y

SHERMAN HOUSE, NO. 1 WEST TWENTY-Sixth street, New York.—M. ELKINS, Proprietor. Strangers visiting New York, desiring the comforts and retirement of a home and attendance of a hotel, in a first-class central location, can find the same at from $25 to $40 per week for a gentleman and wife; transient, $3 per day; American plan; lodgings, $1. le27 3m

BINGHAM HOUSE, PHILADELPHIA,
Corner of Eleventh and Market Sts.
CARLIS DAVIS, PROPRIETOR.

This popular Hotel being centrally located and so easible by street cars from all depots, makes it a desirable stopping place for travelers. It will be conducted in the same liberal manner as heretofore, it being the intention of the proprietor to maintain the reputation it has always enjoyed, of being in all respects a first-class hotel.

Terms, $3 a day. au8 1y

SMITH, ENGLISH & CO.,
BOOKSELLERS AND IMPORTERS,
(ESPECIALLY OF THEOLOGICAL BOOKS,)
No. 710 Arch street, Philadelphia.

☞ S., E. & Co. have on hand the best and most complete assortment of THEOLOGICAL BOOKS for sale in the country. Send for Complete Classified Catalogue, 25 cents, or with Alphabetical Index 50 cents—the best guide to purchasers in this department ever published. au15 2m

COMMISSION MERCHANTS.

PRICE, HINE & TUPPER,
General Commission Merchants,
FACTORS, AND
Agents of Attakapas Mail Transportation Co.,
NO. 26 CARONDELET STREET,
NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Advances made on consignments to T. Tupper & Sons, Charleston, S. C.; Williams, Birnie & Co., and Leverich & Co., New York. no21y

W. H. SUTTON. J. R. POWELL.
SUTTON & POWELL,
COTTON FACTORS
AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
186..... COMMON STREET 186
NEW ORLEANS, LA.
se21 1y

H. F. GIVEN. LUCIEN J. DOIZE.
H. F. GIVEN & CO.,
COTTON, TOBACCO AND SUGAR FACTORS,
—AND—
GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
No. 64 Baronne street, New Orleans.
oc5 1y

ANDREW J. AIKEN. JOHN W. WATT.
AIKEN & WATT,
Cotton Factors and Commission Merchants,
60.....CARONDELET STREET.....60
NEW ORLEANS.

Special attention given to orders for the purchase of all descriptions of Produce, Agricultural Implements and Plantation Supplies. no2 1y

J. L. DUNNICA, New Orleans. T. A. HAMILTON, Memphis.
G. P. HARRISON, New Orleans.
J. L. DUNNICA & CO.,
FLOUR, PRODUCE AND PROVISION
COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
50.....TCHOUPITOULAS ST.....50
NEW ORLEANS, LOUISIANA.
oc22 1y

J. C. PAYNE. W. H. DAMERON. H. M. PAYNE
PAYNE, DAMERON & CO.,
COTTON FACTORS,
64 & 66....BARONNE STREET....64 & 66
Between Union and Gravier streets,
NEW ORLEANS, LA.
le19 1y

C. L. WALMSLEY & CO.,
Cotton Factors and General Commission Merchants,
31.....PERDIDO STREET.....31
oc3 1y NEW ORLEANS.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

G. W. RACE. W. H. FOSTER. E. T. MERRICK, Former Ch. Just. La.
RACE, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK,
Attorneys, Counselors and Solicitors.
Cor. of Camp street and Commercial Place,
se25 NEW ORLEANS.

W. W. EDWARDS,
COUNSELOR AT LAW
AND
COMMISSIONER OF DEEDS,
No. 88 Common street,
se14 1y New Orleans.

DR. JOHN G. ANGELL,
DENTAL SURGEON,
152 .....JULIA STREET.....152
All operations in Operative, Mechanical and Surgical Dentistry carefully performed. Nitrous Oxide and other Anæsthetics administered. no30 1y

DR. C. J. BICKHAM,
Office—680 Magazine Street,
Between Philip and First sts., New Orleans.
Will call daily at College building, corner Common and Baronne streets, between eleven and twelve o'clock. je29 1y

Relief for the Sick and Afflicted.

SOUTHERN HEPATIC PILLS.

Unsurpassed for the cure of Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint and all other Billious diseases. Call on MRS. GEO. W. DEEMS, No. 28 South Calhoun street, Baltimore, Maryland. Explanatory circulars sent on application. For sale by E. J. HART & CO., se12 3m 73 Tchoupitoulas st., New Orleans.

OCEAN SPRINGS.
Summer Resort.—Board at the Seaside.

THE SUBSCRIBER has taken the MORRIS HOUSE, at Ocean Springs, which has just undergone a thorough repair, and will be open to boarders who wish to enjoy a pleasant home, good bathing, fresh sea air, and luxuriate on fish and oysters during the heat of summer.

Terms for board: $40 per month, $10 per week, and $2 per day. Apply to the subscriber by mail, at Ocean Springs.

Refer to Bishop Keenor, Rev. Robert J. Harp, J. L. Dunnica & Co., and Samuel Russ, Esq., New Orleans.

WM. C. CHAMBERLIN.
APRIL 20, 1872. ap25 1f

AGENTS WANTED TO SELL PARTON'S LIFE OF
HORACE GREELEY,
The Patriot, Statesman and Philanthropist.

Every citizen who is interested in the remarkable career of our next President should read the truthful story of his life, as told by the greatest American Biographer. A work of rare interest, and full of instruction. For circulars and terms address
NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO.,
Jy25 2m Memphis, Tenn.

Carpet and Oil Cloth Warehouse.

J. M. ELKIN. F. STRINGER.
ELKIN & CO.,
168.....CANAL STREET.....168
Near Baronne, New Orleans,
IMPORTERS OF ALL VARIETIES OF ENGLISH CARPETINGS, RUGS, Etc.
—ALSO—
Oil Cloths, Mattings,
Lace and Damask Curtains,
Window Shades, etc.,
—AND A—
Complete Assortment of Upholstery Goods.
fe8 1y

EXCHANGE HOTEL,
JOHN SUMMERS, PROPRIETOR,
GALVESTON, TEXAS.

☞ This is the only Hotel in the city which has FREE OMNIBUSES to and from the cars and boats for the use of guests. Ask for Exchange Hotel Omnibus. fe5 1y

BUSINESS CARDS.

E. HEATH. M. LARA. J. P. HEATH.
HEATH, LARA & HEATH,
IMPORTERS AND JOBBERS IN
UPHOLSTERERS' MATERIALS,
WALL PAPER, WINDOW SHADES,
CORNICES AND CURTAIN GOODS,
Pictures, Frames, Mouldings, Looking Glasses and Clocks,
NO. 99 CAMP STREET,
no16 1y NEW ORLEANS.

THE MITCHELL & RAMMELSBERG
FURNITURE COMPANY.
Manufacturers and dealers in all kinds of
Furniture, Mattresses, Looking Glasses,
ETC., ETC.,
103 and 105 Camp street, cor. Poydras,
Moresque Building, New Orleans,
have the largest and best assortment of FURNITURE of any house in the city.
Please give us a call before purchasing elsewhere. my23 1y

A. B. GRISWOLD & CO.,
CANAL ST., COR. ROYAL, NEW ORLEANS,
IMPORTERS OF
WATCHES, JEWELRY, CLOCKS,
PLATED WARE, HOUSEKEEPING GOODS,
Cutlery, Guns Pistols, Bronzes, Porcelain and Fancy Goods.
MANUFACTURERS OF
PURE COIN SILVERWARE.
Watches and Jewelry carefully repaired. Every article sold fully guaranteed.
no3 1y

J. THOMSON. G. THOMSON. W. R. THOMSON.
J. THOMSON & BROS.,

Manufacturers of
Carriages, Barouches, Buggies, Phaetons,
SPRING WAGONS, Etc.
68 and 70 Rampart Street,
Bet. Common and Gravier, New Orleans, La.
Repairing done in all its branches. no30 1y

LOUISIANA STEAM
SASH, BLIND AND DOOR FACTORY,
ROBERTS & CO., PROPRIETORS,
301, 303, 305 and 307 Gravier Street,
NEW ORLEANS. my30 1y

JAMES M'CRACKEN. GEO. K. BREWSTER.
McCRACKEN & BREWSTER,
DEALERS IN FURNITURE,
Nos. 37, 39 and 41 Royal street.
Manufactory, corner Derbigny and Customhouse streets, New Orleans. my9 6m

JOHN I. ADAMS & CO., (JOHN I. ADAMS, JAY L. ADAMS, GEO. W. WEST, WM. H. RENAUD.)
WHOLESALE GROCERS,
AND DEALERS IN
PROVISIONS, LARD, OILS, ETC., ETC.,
43, 45 and 47 Peters street,
(Formerly New Levee,)
mh21 1y NEW ORLEANS.

ELON G. SMITH, J. L. CHEATHAM, J. W. DRAUGHON.
SMITH, CHEATHAM & CO.,
(SUCCESSORS TO ELON G. SMITH & CO.)
PORK PACKERS,
Provision and Commission Merchants,
CORNER THIRD AND SPRUCE STREETS,
SAINT LOUIS.
We solicit orders from the trade for goods in our line. oc26 1y

C. SAMPSON. T. G. SAMPSON.
SAMPSON BROTHERS,
(Late C. C. Sampson.)
FURNITURE.
33 & 35..... ROYAL STREET.....33 & 35
NEW ORLEANS.
Established in 1833. ja11 1y

Carpet Warehouse—17 Chartres Street.
A. BROUSSEAU & CO.,
Importers and dealers, at Wholesale and Retail, in English and American Carpetings,
Floor Oil Cloths, Table and Enameled Oil Cloths,
Window Shades, Tulle and Piano Covers,
Crumb Cloths, in squares or pieces,
Curtain and Furniture Materials,
Brocatelles, Cotelenes, Terries, Reps, Lace and Nottingham Lace Curtains, Haircloth Ticking, Springs, Burlaps, Stop Covers, etc.
no28 1y A. BROUSSEAU & CO.

JOHN LAZARUS,
PRACTICAL OPTICIAN,
6.....ST. CHARLES ST.....6
Near Canal, New Orleans.
Sole Agent for the celebrated Pantascopic Star Spectacles and Eye Glasses. jn1.21 6m

T. H. McMAHAN & CO.,
BANKERS,
And Dealers in Foreign and Domestic Exchange,
GALVESTON, TEXAS.

We have prompt and reliable correspondents at all the principal points throughout this State, and upon all collections payable in this city or Houston make no charge for collecting, and only actual charge upon interior collections.

Immediate and prompt attention given to all business intrusted to us. feb1 1y

RICHARD BRODERICK,
CISTERN MAKER,
134.....Julia street 134
Bet. Camp and Magazine, New Orleans.
Second hand Cisterns always on hand. All work guaranteed.
All orders left at Box 30, Mechanics' and Dealers' Exchange, will meet with prompt attention. my2 1y

E. VEAZIE,
74.....Camp street 74
NEW ORLEANS, LA.,
LAMPS AND OILS, CHANDELIERS,
Globes, Chimneys, Shades, Trimmers, Wicks, Cans, Fillers, etc.
PRATTS' ASTRAL OIL, non-explosive and non-inflammable. ja18 1y

R. H. NOBLE. J. R. WOODS.
NOBLE & WOODS,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL GROCERS,
Nos. 9 and 11 Delta Street, and 10 and 12 Front street,
ja18 1y NEW ORLEANS, LA.

JOHN B. MACLIN, (Late R. D. Maclin.) L. C. MACLIN,
COAL! WOOD! COAL!
Pittsburg, Anthracite and Cannel Coal. Oak, Ash and Pine Wood, at the lowest market rates, delivered to any part of the city.
Offices 26 Carondelet street, and corner of Third and Tchoupitoulas. mh7 1y

MENEELY'S BELLS.

THE genuine Troy Church Bells known to the public since 1826, which have acquired a reputation unequaled by any, and a sale exceeding that of all others—including more than seventy chimes and peals. One thousand testimonials received during the last six years. Every Bell made of best Copper and Tin, and formally warranted. New Patent Rotary Fixtures. Catalogues free. No agencies.

Post office address, either TROY or WEST TROY, New York.

je13 1y E. A. & G. R. MENEELY.

THE BECKWITH SEWING MACHINE.

PATENTED APRIL 10, 1871.

PRICE, $10, including Hemmer, Guide, four Needles, Bottle of Oil and Case.

The First and Only Successful Low-Priced Machine Made.

PRACTICAL, DURABLE, SIMPLE and beautiful. Capable of making by hand upward of 800 Stitches per Minute and there is very little Family Sewing that this machine will not do as well as a $75 machine, and some work it will do better.

It is well and strongly made of the best material, but compact and light, and takes up but little room. Nickel-plated throughout.

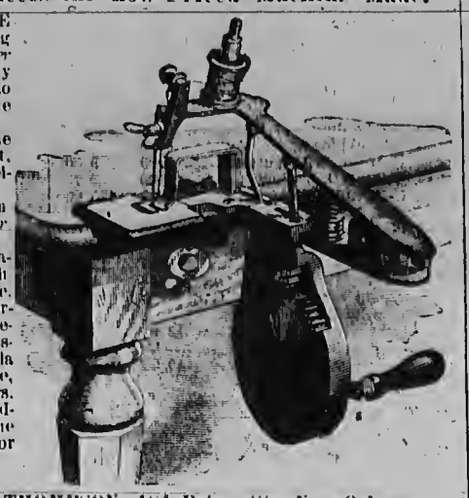
Its SIMPLICITY adapts it to all capabilities. Every machine is fully warranted for Two Years.

Full directions for running the machine, hemming, tucking, hem stitching, etc., accompany every machine.

Parties in the city wishing to purchase a machine can see one in operation at Mrs. Robertson's, dressmaker, corner of Camp and Julia streets, up stairs, over the cigar store, and where they can leave their orders.

Single machines sent to any address, carefully boxed, with all the appliances, on receipt of $10. For full particulars send for circular.

Address



EDWARD THOMPSON, 184 Peters St., New Orleans.
☞ Energetic Agents Wanted. (je27 6m) Agent of the Manufacturer.

"Southern Books for Southern Schools."

School-Books which are Unsectional, Unpartisan, and Unpolitical.

PREPARED BY THE MOST EMINENT SOUTHERN SCHOLARS, AND

ENTIRELY ACCEPTABLE TO SOUTHERN TEACHERS AND PARENTS.

The University Publishing Co.,

An Association composed of many of the most eminent citizens of the several Southern States, feeling the necessity for a series of School Books which should be entirely unsectional, unpartisan, and in their teaching thought and feeling of the Southern should not be offensive to the people—which should present only the facts of history and science—are now issuing a complete series of School and College Text-books by the eminent Southern scholars and educators named below, which are the

Cheapest, Best, and Most Beautiful School-Books

Now published. The "University Series" embraces

MAURY'S GEOGRAPHICAL SERIES,

By Commodore M. F. MAURY, of the Virginia Military Institute. A series of books which mark an era in the study of this science, and which, in the words of a well known and accomplished Southern teacher, "are characterized by a felicity of arrangement and simple freshness of style which must ever render them attractive to the young, and which will be used by all who wish to teach Geography as a science, as something to make pupils think, and not merely as an enumeration of dry facts."

Holmes' Readers and Spellers,

By GEORGE F. HOLMES, LL.D., Professor of History and General Literature in the University of Virginia. A series of Readers unequalled in cheapness, excellence, and typographical beauty. They are steadily progressive in character, bright and fresh in their selections of prose and verse, and illustrative of Southern scenes, incidents, and history.

Venable's Arithmetical Series,

By CHARLES S. VENABLE, LL.D., Professor of Mathematics in the University of Virginia. These books are received everywhere by intelligent teachers with the highest satisfaction, as being most admirably adapted for mental drill, as well as for business education. Their methods, rules, and reasonings are clear, distinct, logical, and comprehensive, and the series is carefully graded throughout.

Holmes' History of the United States,

By GEORGE F. HOLMES, LL.D., of the University of Virginia. It is enough to say of this admirable work, interesting, [illegible] as well as pure and graceful in style, that it is the only History of the United States which is acceptable to Southern teachers and parents. It [illegible]

THE "UNIVERSITY SERIES" OF SCHOOL-BOOKS

CONTINUES ALSO

De Vere's French Grammar, Readers, etc.,

By M. SCHELE DE VERE, LL.D., Professor of Modern Languages in the University of Va.

Gildersleeve's Latin Series,

By B. L. GILDERSLEEVE, PH.D., LL.D., of the University of Virginia.

Carter's Elements of General History,

By Rev. J. P. CARTER, A.M., of Baltimore, Maryland.

Holmes' English Grammars,

By GEORGE F. HOLMES, LL.D., of the University of Virginia.

LeConte's Scientific Series,

By the Professors LECONTE, late of the University of South Carolina.

Johnston's English Classics,

By R. M. JOHNSTON, A.M., late Professor of Rhetoric and Belles-Lettres in the University of Georgia.

To which list other books in other departments will early be added.

Send for our full ILLUSTRATED DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE, which will be mailed free to any teacher or school officer. Liberal terms given for introduction.

Address

UNIVERSITY PUBLISHING COMPANY,
155 and 157 Crosby Street, New York.

☞ A full supply of "The University Series" always on hand, and teachers and schools supplied by R. J. HARP, Bookseller, 112 Camp St., New Orleans.
And by all prominent booksellers throughout the South.
W. IRVING CLARKE, the General Agent, will furnish any information, and afford every facility to teachers for examining the series. Office—92 CAMP ST., New Orleans. mh7 1y

THE UTICA STEAM ENGINE CO.

H. DUDLEY COLEMAN, Agent, NO. 9 UNION STREET, New Orleans.

Formerly WOOD & MANN.

These Engines are so well and favorably known that a description of them here is not deemed necessary.

They are EQUALLED by FEW, SURPASSED by NONE, perfect in workmanship, complete in appointments, safe, simple and substantial. Every boiler is practically tested before leaving the factory. By the use of a CIRCULATING WATER BOTTOM around and underneath the furnace, which lessens the

RISK FROM FIRE,

they are particularly adapted for GINNING COTTON. Engines of all sizes, at prices which challenge comparison for equal size of steam cylinder and measurements of boiler. A full stock of these Engines will be kept constantly on hand by the undersigned, who has been appointed general agent.

H. DUDLEY COLEMAN,
No. 9 Union street,
mh21 6m New Orleans, La.

JOHN DOUGLAS, DEALER IN
Fancy and Staple Dry Goods,
NOS. 102 AND 104 DAUPHIN STREET,
MOBILE, ALABAMA.

Agent for the Florence Sewing Machine.

All goods warranted as represented, and sold at the lowest rates for Cash, our object being large sales and small profits. ja4 1y

SAVE $20.

THE NEW WILSON
UNDER-FEED.
The Best and Cheapest First-class Shuttle
SEWING MACHINE
In the World.

Agents Wanted. Wm GREGG & Co. General Southern Agents, No. 189 Canal street, New Orleans, La. je27 6m

AGENTS WANTED TO SELL THE ILLUSTRATED
HISTORY OF THE BIBLE
By Wm. SMITH, LL.D.
AUTHOR OF SMITH'S BIBLE DICTIONARY.

It contains 211 fine Scripture Illustrations and over 1,100 pages, and is the most comprehensive and valuable History of the Bible ever published. The labor and learning of centuries are gathered in this one volume to throw a strong, clear light upon every page of the inspired Word.

Send for circulars, and see our terms and a full description of the work. Address
NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO.,
274 and 276 Second street,
au1 6m Memphis, Tenn.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

TO METHODISTS.

SUNDAY HALF HOURS WITH THE GREAT PREACHERS

is the best book of Sermons ever published.

Dr. Kynett says: "It should be welcomed to every Christian family."

Dr. Payne says: "Of inestimable value. . . . Rich, rare and priceless."

Dr. Warren says: "I cordially commend it."

☞ Sold only by subscription.

AGENTS WANTED.

Liberal terms; money made rapidly, and a valuable and handsome book circulated.

Circulars sent free on application.

PORTER & COATES, Publishers,
au29 1m Philadelphia, Pa.

MILLER'S GREAT BIBLE,
WITH OVER TWO HUNDRED ENGRAVINGS.
LARGE PRINT.—BEAUTIFUL BINDINGS.

THE CHRISTIAN HARMONY,
SEVEN-SHAPED NOTES.

The system of Music on which this work is based is remarkable for its simplicity, and the facility with which any one can learn to sing, requiring far less time and labor than the ordinary four note system. It contains the choicest collection of Music, both original and selected, from the best sources; particularly designed for Choirs, Singing Schools and Private Societies. The great and unprecedented success of the Southern Harmony, by the same author, is a guarantee of the high musical merit of this work. Agents wanted.

Miller's Bible and Publishing House,
1102 and 1104 Sansom street,
je27 6m Philadelphia, Penn'a.

A POPULAR MUSIC BOOK!
AT A POPULAR PRICE!
"THE SCEPTER,"
By Dr. A. BROOKS EVERETT,
ONLY $1.00.—BY THE DOZEN, $10.50.

"THE SCEPTER" contains a large variety of most valuable material, embracing Hymn-tunes, Anthems, Glees, the "Everett System of Teaching Vocal Music," etc., by the well-known professor of music, Dr. A. BROOKS EVERETT, recognized throughout the Southern States as a most successful and popular teacher of the art of singing, as well as the author of many of the most popular tunes contained in the Tabor or Richmond Collection.

"THE SCEPTER"

also contains contributions by Profs. R. M. McIntosh, B. H. Everett and other well-known composers, as well as a large number of old standard tunes.

☞ Every Choir Leader and Teacher of Music should examine "THE SCEPTER."

Sent, post paid, on receipt of $1.

PUBLISHED BY
BIGLOW & MAIN, NEW YORK,
SUCCESSORS TO WM. B. BRADBURY,

Publishers of the most popular series of SUNDAY SCHOOL SONG BOOKS—Golden Chain, Shower and Censer, Fresh Laurels, Bright Jewels, Pure Gold, etc. For sale by Booksellers generally.

All publications of Biglow & Main are for sale by ROBT. J. HARP, Agent, 112 Camp street, New Orleans. jy18 3m

SWINTON'S CONDENSED
SCHOOL HISTORY.

(From the Virginia Educational Journal.)

Mr. Swinton's reputation led us to examine this book. What is of most importance in the work is its extreme fairness. It is vastly superior, in this respect, to any history issued at the North that we have seen. Where accuracy seems almost impossible, he comes nearer to the truth than the others.

NEW SCHOOL BOOKS.

SWINTON'S WORD ANALYSIS.
CATHCART'S YOUTH'S SPEAKER.
ARITHMETICAL EXAMPLES (Mental and Written.)
KERL'S SHORTER COURSE IN GRAMMAR.

☞ A Descriptive Catalogue of the American Educational Series, and our Educational Reporter, mailed free to any address upon application.

Ivison, Blakeman, Taylor & Co.,
Or T. MORONEY, General Agent,
au18 1y 92 Camp street, New Orleans.

Uniform Lessons for 1872.

FOR TEACHERS.—The Sunday School World contains the explanations and studies prepared by Rev. John Hall, D. D., for teachers.

SCHOLARS' PAPER. With the text of the lesson, and suggestive helps for the study of it; and questions at the foot of each page, to be answered in writing by the scholar.

INTERMEDIATE LESSON PAPER.—Adapted to the use of less advanced scholars, with questions and explanations.

Price of each Lesson Paper of four pages, at the rate of 75 cents per 100 copies for one month, or $9 per 100 copies yearly.

☞ Catalogues of the Society's publications and sample copies of its periodicals furnished gratuitously on application at the Depository of the
AMERICAN SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION,
au1 3m 1122 Chestnut st., Philadelphia.

FREE TO BOOK AGENTS

AN ELEGANTLY BOUND CANVASSING Book for the best and cheapest Family Bible ever published will be sent free of charge to any Book Agent. It contains nearly 500 fine Scripture illustrations, and agents are meeting with unprecedented success. Address, stating experience, etc., and we will show you what our agents are doing,
NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO.,
se5 1m Memphis, Tenn.

AGENTS WANTED—for the Lives of
Grant Greeley
WILSON BROWN and the leading men of all parties. Over 40 Steel Portraits, worth twice the cost of the book. Wanted everywhere. Agents have wonderful success. Send for circular. Address
ZEIGLER & McCURDY,
au15 2m 503 N. Sixth st., St. Louis, Mo.

MINERAL SPERM OIL.
GUARANTEED AS SAFE AS SPERM OR LARD OIL.

It Will Not Take Fire in Case of Breakage of the Lamp.

THE OIL WILL EXTINGUISH the FLAME.

The Oil itself has no odor while burning. It gives a Light of TEN CANDLE POWER at a cost not exceeding ONE-HALF CENT PER HOUR, and for lighting railroad cars, steamers, factories and dwelling houses it is invaluable and cannot be too highly recommended.

The Oil is patented, and made by a process which insures its uniformity.

It burns with great brilliancy in the

DUAL BURNER,

requires but little attention and no trimming. The Oil never gums in the lamp, as it absorbs no oxygen from the atmosphere. It does not deteriorate by age. This Burner fits all ordinary coal oil lamps.

BOSTICK & SEYMOUR,
Sole Agents for Louisiana, Alabama, Mississippi and Texas,
45 and 47 Front st., and 46 and 48 Fulton st.,
mh28 6m New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS MARKETS.

(From the New Orleans Price Current.)

The weather has been clear and pleasant, without even a shower to lay the dust. Our accounts from the country present no new feature; even more damage appears to have been suffered from the drouth than from the worms. We occasionally receive a good report from plantations which have thus far escaped both, but as a general thing the complaints point to the previous reduction from earlier estimates, the popular figures being 3,250,000 bales, but many contending for 3,100,000 down to 3,000,000.

The river is 13 feet 2 inches below high water mark.

COTTON.—The following are the arrivals since the thirteenth instant:

Louisiana and Mississippi.....bales..	6,901
Lake	39
Mobile	416
Florida	1,163
Total	8,513

On Saturday the demand continued fair, but prices showed increased irregularity. During the morning sales of strict good ordinary were made at 18⅛c., and of low middling at 18⅝@18¾@19c. Later in the day, partly owing to a telegram from Galveston reporting a decline materially below the parity of the market, factors evinced less confidence, and 18½c. was accepted for strict low middling, while previous sales had been made at 18¾c. At the close good ordinary was quoted at 18@18¾c., low middling at 18½@18⅞c., middling at 19¼c., and strict middling at 19½c., low middling showing a net decline of ¾c. The sales, however, were to a fair extent, summing up 1,100 bales. On Monday, with more copious supplies, buyers came forward with increased spirit, and notwithstanding a decline of 1-16d. at Liverpool and, up to twelve M., of ⅛c. at New York, followed by the remarkable and unexplained reduction subsequently of ⅛c. in low middling, ⅜c. in middling, and ⅞c. in good middling, making the entire decline in that market ⅜, ½, and 1c. respectively, yet, under active competition among buyers, twelve brokers participating in the business, prices rallied, and factors were enabled to recover ⅛c. of the previous falling off in low middling, while other grades presented no quotable variation. The sales embraced 2,600 bales. On Tuesday the demand was still more active, fifteen brokerage houses participating in the business, and, although the movement was checked by insufficient supplies, only a part of the previous receipts having been sampled, yet the sales summed up 2,700 bales, which is the heaviest business thus far this season. Under the competition among buyers, factors were enabled to realize a further improvement of ⅛c. in low middling, and full prices for middling, the former selling at 18¾, 18⅝@19c. for average lists, and 18⅞, 19@19¼c. for strict, and the latter at 19⅜@19⅝c. The sales were mostly of low middling and strict low middling, but there was also some demand for strict good ordinary.

We quote:

Good ordinary	18 @ 18⅛
Low middling	18⅜ @ 19
Mid tag	19¼ @ 19⅝
Strict middling	19½ @ —

COTTON STATEMENT.

Stock on hand Sept. 1, 1872, bales,		6,259
Arrived past three days..	8,513
Arrived previously	14,677—	23,190
		29,449
Exported past three days.
Exported previously	5,002—	5,002
Stock on hand and on shipboard..		24,447

SUGAR.—On Tuesday 150 hhds. Louisiana sold, in lots, to grocers, at 11⅛@11¼c. for fully fair to prime, not refilled, 11⅛@11⅝c. for yellow clarified, 12⅛@12½c. for white clarified; 20 hhds. Demarara and 65 hhds. Porto Rico sold on private terms, and 70 hhds. Porto Rico at 10½@11½c. ₱ lb. City refinery is selling at 11⅜@12c. for yellow clarified, 12½@13c. for white clarified, 13½c. for crushed, and 14½c. for cut loaf.

MOLASSES.—There is little or none coming in from plantation. The last received sold at 52½c. for fair. City refinery is selling at 40c. for common, 52c. for fair, 57c. for prime, 62c. for choice, and 80c. ₱ gallon for golden syrup.

CORN.—On Tuesday there was a fair supply and moderate demand, and the sales were confined to 2,300 sacks, in lots, at 58c. for white mixed, and 60c. ₱ bushel for white and yellow.

OATS.—On Tuesday there was a good demand and firm market. The sales embraced 2,200 sacks at 42@43c. for choice St. Louis and Cairo, and 46c. ₱ bushel for choice Galena. We also hear of large sales of oats in warehouse.

PORK.—On Tuesday 700 bbls. mess sold, in several lots, at $14.25@$14.40 ₱ bbl. At the close the stock was held strongly at $14.50 ₱ bbl. Round lots of mess are quoted at $14.25@$14.50 ₱ bbl. It is retailing at $14.75 ₱ bbl.

BACON.—On Tuesday the market was quiet but firm, and holders were asking 8½c. for shoulders, 11½c. for clear rib sides, and 12c. ₱ lb. for clear sides. The sales embraced 177 casks, in several lots, at 8½c. for shoulders, 11¾c. for clear sides, to arrive, and 11¾@12c. ₱ lb. on the spot, the market closing at the outside figures.

HAMS.—Have been less in demand, and prices have declined. Choice sugar-cured are now quoted at 17¾@18½c., and ordinary brands at 16@17c. ₱ lb. On Monday 10 tierces choice sold at 17¾c. ₱ lb., and on Tuesday 5 tierces at 18½c.

LARD.—On Tuesday 25 tierces choice refined sold at 10¾c. ₱ lb.

DRY SALT MEAT.—There is no stock on hand. Shoulders are coming in, in small lots, and selling at 8½@8¼c. ₱ lb. Dealers are retailing shoulders at 8½c., clear rib sides 10c., clear sides 10½c. ₱ lb.

MONETARY.

Gold opened on Tuesday at 113⅞@114⅛ (against 113¾ at New York,) and closed at 114@114¼ (against 114 at New York.)

In silver we notice sales of about $1,000 in American half dollars on Saturday and Monday at 108¾.

New Orleans Wholesale Prices.

REVISED AND CORRECTED WEEKLY.

Made up from Actual Sales as they Transpire.

	FROM	TO
Agricultural Implements:
Cotton scrapers	4 50	6 00
Cotton sweeps	4 50	6 00
Cultivators, Diam. & shovel-tooth	7 75	10 50
Cultivators, riding	45 00	60 00
Cultivators, walking	30 00	35 00
Shovels	7 50	14 50
Spades	7 56	16 50
Axes	10 00	15 00
Potato diggers	13 50	— —
Shovel plows	6 00	7 00
Half do., with cutters	8 00	9 00
Manly's D. S plow	6 00	9 75
Corn mills, Coleman's	120 00	425 00
Bread, ₱ 100 lbs:
Pilot	5 00	6 00
Loaf	— —	— —
Crackers	5 00	12 00
Navy	— —	4 00
Cream crackers	11 00	12 00
Bricks, ₱ M:
Lake	13 00	16 00
English fire	— —	50 00
American fire	40 00	— —
Candles, ₱ lb:
Sperm, New Bedford	33	36
Tallow	16	18
Chocolate, ₱ lb:
Cocoa	38	60
No. 1	50	52
Sweet and spiced	25	— —
Cider, ₱ bbl:
Western	— —	— —
Coal, ₱ ton:
Anthracite	12 00	13 00
Western, ₱ bbl	— —	55
Corks, ₱ 1000:
Regular	— —	— —
Pointed	— —	— —
Coffee, ₱ lb:
Havana (currency)	25	28
Java	25	27
Cordova	— —	— —
Copper, ₱ lb:
Braziers'	48	— —
Copper bolts	48	— —
Yellow metal	30	32
Cordage, ₱ lb:
Manilla	19	20
Tarred, American	— —	16
Russian	16	— —
Cotton seed:
Rough, ₱ ton	— —	13 00
In sacks	— —	— —
Dyes, ₱ lb:
Logwood, Camp'y	4	4½
Logwood, St. Domingo	4½	4¾
Fustic, Tampico	5	6
Indigo, ₱ lb	1 40	1 60
Madder	15	18
Eggs, ₱ dozen:
Western	12	27
Feathers, ₱ lb	65	— —
Fish, ₱ box:
Cod	1 40	— —
Herrings	35	— —
Mackerel, No. 1, ₱ bbl	13 00	— —
Mackerel, No. 2	10 50	— —
Mackerel, No. 3	8 00	— —
Flaxseed, ₱ lb	6	— —
Flour, ₱ bbl:
Double extra	6 37½	— —
Superfine	4 90	5 00
Fine	4 50	4 75
Fruit, ₱ lb:
Prunes	10	13½
Currants, new	9	10
Almonds, soft shell	19	20
Almonds, shelled	28	30
Glass, ₱ box of 50 feet:
French, 8 by 10	3 50	4 00
French, 10 by 12	3 75	4 25
French, 12 by 18	4 00	4 50
Gunny bags, ₱ bag	18	— —
Hay, ₱ ton:
Prime	25 00	26 00
Choice	— —	27 00
Iron, ₱ ton:
Pig	54 00	55 00
Country bar, ₱ lb	— —	— —
English	5½	7½
Swedes, assorted	6½	8½
Hoop	7	10½
Sheet	7½	8½
Boiler	7½	8½
Nail rods	— —	11
Castings, American	— —	6
Lead, ₱ 100 lbs:
Pig	— —	9 50
Bar, ₱ lb	8½	8¾
Sheet	12	— —
Pipe	12	— —
Leather, ₱ lb:
Sole, hemlock	33	34
Sole, oak	37	43
Harness	38	45
Calf skins, ₱ dozen	42 00	70 00
Texas, rough, ₱ lb	24	28
Lime, ₱ bbl:
Western	1 25	1 50
Cement	2 50	3 00
Plaster Paris	4 00	— —
Lumber, ₱ M feet:
Boards, yellow pine	13 00	15 00
Boards, cypress	25 00	30 00
Flooring, dressed	25 00	30 00
Flooring, rough	15 00	18 00
Ceiling, dressed	20 00	25 00
Weatherboards, dressed	19 00	20 00
Weatherboards, rough	13 00	15 00
Scantling	13 00	15 00
Shingles, ₱ M	3 50	4 25
Laths	2 50	3 00
Moss, ₱ lb:
Country picked	4½	6
Clean picked	6½	7
Nails, ₱ keg:
American, 4@8d	— —	6 00
Wrought, German, ₱ lb	14	16
Wrought, English	14	16
Oils:
Lard, ₱ gallon	70	85
Coal oil, in barrels	27	29
Coal oil, in cases	32	35
Linseed, raw	90	92
Sperm	— —	2 00
Whale, refined	95	1 00
Cotton seed, crude	— —	46
Cotton seed, refined	60	65
Castor	1 65	1 85
Olive, 22@24 oz	6 00	6 50
Olive, 11@12 oz	7 25	— —
Tanner's, ₱ gallon	75	85
Soap, ₱ lb:
Western	5½	7
Northern	5½	7
Southern	4½	6½
Castile, genuine	12	— —
Castile, imitation	11	— —
Sardines:
Half boxes	24	35½
Quarter boxes	— —	23
Spices, ₱ lb:
Cassia	36	38
Cloves	— —	23
Nutmegs	1 20	1 25
Pepper	21	21½
Pimento	12	12½
Sugar, ₱ lb:
Havana, white	13	— —
Havana, yellow	11	11¾
Havana, brown	10½	11¼
Crushed	— —	13½
Pulverized	— —	13½
Teas, ₱ lb:
Imperial	45	1 10
Gunpowder	75	1 40
Hyson	75	1 25
Young Hyson	75	1 10
Oolong	45	1 10
Pouchong	30	56
Tin, ₱ box:
Block	— —	— —
In plates, I. X	12 00	19 25
In plates, I. C	14 50	16 75
Leaded plates, I. X	17 25	17 50
Leaded plates, I. C	15 00	15 25

CATTLE MARKET.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 17, 1872.

Texas beeves, choice, ₱ head	$— —	@	50 00
Texas beeves, 1st qual, ₱ head	35 00	@	45 00
Texas cattle, 2d qual, ₱ head	20 00	@	28 00
Texas cattle, 3d qual, ₱ head	12 00	@	15 00
Western beeves, ₱ lb. net	— —	@	— —
Hogs, ₱ lb. gross	6	@	7½
Sheep, first quality, ₱ head	5 00	@	6 00
Sheep, second qual., ₱ head	3 00	@	4 00
Sheep, third quality, ₱ head	2 00	@	2 50
Milch cows, choice, ₱ head	80 00	@	100 00
Milch cows, ₱ head	50 00	@	80 00
Texas cows, with calves	— —	@	— —
Calves, ₱ head	7 00	@	10 00
Yearlings, ₱ head	8 00	@	12 00

Special Notices.

Camp Meeting.—Change of Time.

There will be a camp meeting on the Paulding circuit, Meridian district, Mississippi Conference, twelve miles west of Enterprise, near the Enterprise and Mount Hope road, commencing on Thursday before and embracing the third Sabbath in October. The meeting will be conducted on the primitive style. Provision will be made for all ministers and persons living at a distance. Persons living within fifteen or twenty miles of the camp ground must not expect accommodations from the citizens or tent-holders. All ministers are respectfully invited and urged to attend. There will be conveyance for ministers at Enterprise on Thursday morning. J. H. HOLLAND, P. C.

Camp Meeting.

There will be a camp meeting at Old Salem camp ground, East Pascagoula circuit, Mississippi Conference, commencing on Thursday before the second Sabbath in October. The tenters propose furnishing visitors. However, there will be a public table for the benefit of those who prefer furnishing themselves. Charges moderate. Preachers are invited. C. F. GILLASPIE, P. E.
U. B PHILIPS, P. C.

Camp Meeting.

There will be a camp meeting at the New Hope and Pleasant Ridge camp ground, on the DeKalb circuit, beginning on the Friday night before the first Sabbath in October. Ministers are most cordially invited to attend. Those coming by railroad will be met on Friday morning, at Lauderdale station, with vehicles to convey them to the camp ground. D. G. W. ELLIS, P. C.

Camp Meeting.

We have appointed our camp meeting at Gilead, eight miles east of Clinton, Louisiana, to commence on Thursday night before the second Sunday in October. Ministers and friends of camp meetings are invited from a distance, and will be accommodated on the grounds free.

WILL. H. LEITH, Pastor.

Camp Meeting.

There will be a camp meeting at Sardis church, Greene county, Alabama, fifteen miles west of Eutaw, Alabama, on the Warsaw road, near the Bigbee river, commencing on Thursday night before the first Sabbath in October, 1872. Preachers are respectfully invited. J. W. MCCANN.

Camp Meeting.

There will be a camp meeting, twelve miles east of Pleasant Hill, Natchitoches parish—known as Beulah camp ground—commencing on the eleventh of October, instead of the eleventh of September. R. PARVIN.

Camp Meeting.

There will be a camp meeting held at Indian Village, Castor circuit, Louisiana Conference, to commence on Wednesday before the first Sabbath in October, on the self-sustaining plan. Persons living at a distance, and desiring to tent, can have a tent built to order by addressing Rev. J. B. Landers, Forksville, Louisiana. A general invitation to ministers is hereby given.

J. W. HEARN, P. C.

Debate.

Rev. D. M. Hudson, of the Alabama Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and Elder J. M. Pickens, of the Christian Church, will discuss the Subjects, Design and Mode of Christian Baptism, and probably also the question of Denominational Names and Written Creeds, in the Baptist church at Pineapple, Wilcox county, Alabama, at the southern terminus of the Selma and Gulf railroad. The debate will commence on Tuesday, September 24, 1872, at ten o'clock A. M., and continue some eight or ten days

Camp Meeting.

A camp meeting will be held on Spring creek, thirty miles southwest of Alexandria, near Rurr's ferry, on the road from mouth of Red river to the Sabine, and on the Opelousas and Natchitoches road, beginning on Friday, October 11. All ministers and all friends are earnestly requested to give us their attendance and assistance.

FRED. WHITE.
S. H. COOPER.
C. KEENER.

Camp Meeting.

There will be a camp meeting on the Gaston circuit, Demopolis district, Alabama Conference, three miles west of DeSotoville, in the northern portion of Choctaw county, Alabama, commencing on Friday before the first Sabbath in October Provision will be made for all visitors. Ministers of the gospel are cordially invited.

C. B. DEBOSE, P. C.

Appointments for Quarterly Meetings.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

MERIDIAN DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Spring Hill et., at Linwood (camp meeting)	Sept. 21, 22
Shubuta, at Shubuta	28, 29
DeKalb et., at New Hope (camp meeting)	Oct. 5, 6
Wayne circuit, at Frost's Bridge (camp meeting)	12, 13
Paulding circuit	19, 20
Enterprise station	26, 27
Clarke circuit	Nov. 2, 3
Enterprise et., at Pleasant Valley	9, 10
Marion circuit	16, 17
Meridian station	30, Dec. 1

WM. B. HINES, P. E.

BROOKHAVEN DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Providence circuit, at Providence	Sept. 21, 22
Brandywine circuit	28, 29
Scotland circuit, at Caseyville	Oct. 5, 6
Pleasant Valley et., at Rehoboth	12, 13
Bartonton circuit, at Pisgah	19, 20
Beauregard	26, 27
Georgetown et., at Pleas't Grove	Nov. 2, 3
Jackson circuit, at Spring Ridge	9, 10
Crystal Springs and Crystal Spr'gs mission	16, 17
Bogue Chitto circuit, at Johnson's Station	23, 24
Brookhaven station and Brookhaven mission	30
Hazlehurst station	Dec. 7, 8

Secretaries of the respective Boards of Stewards will prepare a financial statement for the use of the Joint Board, as required by the Discipline. Trustees will report the condition and character of titles of all property they hold for the church.

W. E. M. LINSFIELD, P. E.

BRANDON DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Brandon station	Sept. 28, 29
Hillsboro circuit	Oct. 5, 6
Philadelphia circuit	12, 13
Decatur mission	19, 20
Lake circuit	26, 27
Trenton circuit	Nov. 2, 3
Raleigh and Morton circuit	9, 10
Forest circuit	16, 17
Taylorville mission	23, 24
Garlandsville circuit	30, Dec. 1
Brandon circuit	Dec. 7, 8

F. M. WILLIAMS, P. E.

WOODVILLE DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Woodville	Oct. 5, 6
East Feliciana	12, 13
Clinton	19, 20
Buffalo	26, 27
Bayou Sara	Nov. 2, 3
Wilkinson	9, 10
Meadville	16, 17
Amite	23, 24
East Baton Rouge	30, Dec. 1
Jackson	Dec. 8, 9

For four long weeks I have been confined to the room of my afflicted wife, so that I have missed three of my appointments; but my dear brother, President Andrews, has and will supply my lack of service.

J. L. FORSYTH, P. E.

SUMMIT DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Summit and Magnolia, at Bethany	Sept. 21, 22
District Conference, at Tangipahoa, Louisiana	27, 28, 29
Sacramental meeting, at Port Vilien	Oct. 12, 13
Holmesville circuit, at Holmesville	19, 20
Covington circuit, at Spring Hill	26, 27
Amite City circuit, at Amite City	Nov. 2, 3
Franklinton circuit, at Warner's	9, 10
Big Creek miss., at Shilling church	18, 17
St. Helena ct., at Center church	23, 24
Pontchatonla mission, at Joyner's church	30, Dec. 1
Greenburg ct., at Pipkin chapel	Dec. 7, 8

J. NICHOLSON, P. E.

SEASHORE DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Pearlington, at Jordan river	Sept. 7, 8
Ocean Springs, at Biloxi	14, 15
White Plains, at Poplar Head	21, 22
W. Pascagoula, at Mulberry Grove	28, 29
Green mission	Oct. 5, 6
East Pascagoula, at Salem camp ground	12, 13
Enon, at Enon	19, 20
Rankin	Nov. 30, Dec. 1

C. F. GILLASPIE, P. E.

JACKSON DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Jackson station	Sept. 14, 15
Canton station	21, 22
Madison ct., at Madison station	28, 29
Sharon circuit, at Sharon	Oct. 5, 6
Yazoo circuit, at Locust Grove	12, 13
Yazoo City and Silver Creek, at Yazoo City	19, 20
Mount Olivet circuit and Yazoo mission, at Mount Olivet	26, 27
Carthage circuit	Nov. 2, 3
Sulphur Springs circuit	9, 10
Raymond circuit, at Raymond	16, 17
Brownsville ct., at Queen's Hill	23, 24
Camden and Thomastown circuits	30, Dec. 1

The secretaries of Church Conferences will please present the report of statistics, as required by the Discipline, pages 55 and 56. The trustees of our church property will please make their report, as required by the Discipline, pages 55 and 102.

H. H. MONTGOMERY, P. E.

ALABAMA CONFERENCE.

MOBILE DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Eastern Shore	Sept. 7, 8
Whistler	14, 15
St. Paul's	21, 22
Mt. Pleasant ct., at Hollow Creek	28, 29
Grand Bay mission, at Pleasant Valley	Oct. 5, 6
Citronelle circuit, at Citronelle	19, 20
St Stephen's ct., at Pine Grove	26, 27
Franklin street	Nov. 2, 3
Pollard circuit, at Hendrick's	9, 10
Milton	16, 17
Pensacola	23, 24
St. Francis street	Dec. 1

The stewards, trustees and preachers will be ready with their reports, as the Discipline requires. They will please read and refresh their memories. H. URQUHART, P. E.

EUFAULA DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Eufaula	Oct. 5, 6
Villula	12, 13
Glennville	19, 20
Beulah	26, 27
Enon and Midway	Nov. 2, 3
Perote	9, 10
Clinton and Lonisville	16, 17
Choctawhatchie	23, 24
Lawrenceville	30, Dec. 1
Chanahatchie	Dec. 7, 8

JAS. L. COTTEN, P. E.

SELMA DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

East Selma station	Sept. 21, 22
Uniontown station	28, 29
Selma station	Oct. 5, 6
Rembert Hills circuit, at Shiloh	12, 13
Peachtree ct., at Mount Andrew	19, 20
Summerfield station	26, 27
Choctaw Corner circuit, at Bashi	Nov. 2, 3
Dayton and Spring Hill circuit, at Dayton	9, 10
Linden and Flatwoods mission	—,
Orrville circuit, at Center chapel	16, 17
Jackson circuit, at Grove Hill	23, 24
Suggsville circuit, at Galinstown	30, Dec. 1

We hope for a full attendance, and complete reports, as required by the Discipline. Those who have subscribed to the district parsonage will please bring or send up their contributions to the quarterly meetings.

A. J. BIGGS, P. E.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

OPELOUSAS DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Pattersonville	Sept. 14, 15
Opelousas	21, 22
Grand Chenier	28, 29
Lake Charles	Oct. 5, 6
Calcasieu	12, 13
Sugartown	19, 20
Bayou Boeuf	26, 27
Klimball chapel	Nov. 2, 3
Vermillionville	9, 10
Abbeville	16, 17
New Iberia	23, 24

B. F. WHITE, P. E.
Postoffice—Opelousas, La.

SHREVEPORT DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Pleasant Hill circuit, at Bethel	Sept. 7, 8
Springville circuit, at Coushatta Academy	21, 22
Manny circuit, at Bayou Lee	Oct. 5, 6
Anacoco circuit, at Kasatchie	12, 13
Shreveport	19, 20

The District Conference will be held at Keachie, commencing on Thursday, September 26, at ten A. M. The Bethel camp meeting will commence on the sixth of September, and the Beulah camp meeting will commence September 11.

JOHN PIPES, P. E.

LAKE PROVIDENCE DIST.—THIRD ROUND

Oak Grove, at Oak Grove	Sept. 7, 8
Lind Grove, at Lind Grove	14, 15
Shelly Island, at Bœuff Prairie	22, 23
Winnsboro, at Oakley	28, 29
Rayville, at Little Creek	Oct. 6, 7

J. T. DAVES, P. E.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

YAZOO DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

French Camps circuit, at Liberty	Sept. 14, 15
Richland circuit, at Goodman	21, 22
Vaiden circuit, at Enon	28, 29
Attala circuit, at Pleasant Hill	Oct. 5, 6
Winona circuit, at Bethesda	12, 13
Greenwood and McNutt, at Greenwood	19, 20
Lexington	26, 27
Durant, at West's station	Nov. 2, 3
Koschusko and Bethel, at Koseh'ko	9, 10
Black Hawk, at Sweetwater	16, 17

W. P. BARTON, P. E.

N. B.—Camp meetings at Liberty and Durant quarterly meetings.

HAVE YOU READ

MARK TWAIN'S

NEW BOOK?

The whole world is anxious for it, and every person who has read it is known by his cheerful look. 75,000 copies sold in 30 days, and eight presses running night and day on it to supply the demand. Nothing like her known before.

AGENTS WANTED—Send for circulars, terms, &c. Address NETTLETON & CO., 180 WEST FOURTH STREET, Cincinnati, Ohio.

se5 1y

AGENTS WANTED FOR

SECRETS OF THE CONVENT AND CONFESSIONAL.

BY JULIA M'NAIR WRIGHT.

The most thrilling and powerful book ever written on this subject. It presents a startling array of facts, and contains revelations never before made public.

Send for circulars and terms to

NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO.,
274 and 276 Second street,
Memphis, Tenn.

au1 6m

DRY GOODS—CLOTHING.

D. H. HOLMES,

155.....CANAL STREET.....155

—AND—

15.....BOURBON STREET.....15

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALER

—IN—

ALL DESCRIPTIONS

—OF—

DRY GOODS,

—SUCH AS—

SILKS, TISSUES, EMBROIDERIES, LACES, SHAWLS, CLOAKS, MADE SUITS, ETC.

The attention of the public is respectfully called to our stock, which will be found most complete, embracing every kind of Fancy and Staple Goods.

np25 6m

W. H. PIERSON. E. L. HEWS.

PIERSON & HEWS,

DEALERS IN

Fine Clothing & Furnishing Goods,

NOS. 13 AND 15 CAMP STREET,

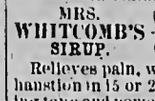
NEW ORLEANS, LA.

feb15 1y

STEAMSHIPS.

FOR NEW YORK.

The Cromwell New York and New Orleans Steamship Line.



Steamers of this Line leave New Orleans for New York EVERY SATURDAY at 5 P. M.

Cabin passage.....$50 00
Steerage passage.....25 00

Through bills of lading to foreign and coastwise ports issued.

ALFRED MOULTON,
mh21 1y 41 Carondelet street.

FOR NEW YORK.

MERCHANTS' STEAMSHIP LINE.

Sailing from New York and New Orleans EVERY SATURDAY.

Cabin passage.....$50 00
Steerage passage.....25 00

Through tickets to Liverpool and the Continent.

New Orleans wharf, foot of Jefferson street. New York wharf, Pier No. 4, North river.

JOHN H. LUDWIGSEN, Agent,
feb8 1y No. 190 Common street.

MISCELLANEOUS.

LOOK TO YOUR CHILDREN.

The Great Soothing Remedy!

MRS. WHITCOMB'S SIRUP, Cures Colic and Griping in the Bowels, and facilitates the process of Teething. PRICE, 25 CENTS.

Subdues Convulsions and overcomes all diseases incident to Infants and Children.

MRS. WHITCOMB'S SIRUP, Cures Diarrhea, Dysentery and Summer Complaint in Children of all ages. PRICE, 25 CENTS.

Relieves pain, weakness or exhaustion in 15 or 20 minutes, giving tone and power to the system.

It is the Infants' and Children's great Soothing Remedy in all disorders brought on by teething or any other cause

Be particular to call for MRS. WHITCOMB'S SIRUP, and take no other

Prepared by the GRAFTON MEDICINE CO., St. Louis, Mo. Sold by druggists and dealers in medicine everywhere. jy25 1yeow

BUY ME AND I'LL DO YOU GOOD

DR. HENRY'S ROOT & PLANT PILLS.

By cleansing the blood and arousing the liver and secretive organs to a healthy action, Dr. Henry's Root and Plant Pills cure many complaints which, would not be supposed they could reach, such as Headache, Pain in the Side, Numbness of the Hands and Feet, Dullness, Chilliness, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Loss of Appetite, Bilious Dysentery, Kidney Affections, Constipation, Debility, Fevers of all kinds, Dyspepsia, Jaundice, and other kindred complaints arising from a low state of the body, or obstruction of its functions.

Being free from mercury and other poisons, they can be taken at all times and under all circumstances, without regard to diet, business or pleasure.

They stimulate the weakened and distempered parts into healthy action, giving them strength to disburden themselves and throw off the obstructions which are the first cause of disease, without producing either nausea or griping.

All heavy and drowsy sensations, which are the forerunners of direful diseases, such as Apoplexy, Paralytic Strokes, etc., are effectually warded off by a few doses of these searching Pills.

Full directions around each box, in English, German, French and Spanish. Price, 25 Cents a Box.

Prepared by the GRAFTON MEDICINE CO., St. Louis, Mo. Sold by druggists and dealers in medicine everywhere. jy25 1yeow

$5 TO $20 per Day.—Agents Wanted. All classes of working people, of either sex, young or old, make more money at work for us in their spare moments, or all the time, than at anything else. Particulars free. Address G. STINSON & CO., Portland, Maine. se12 1y

MEDICAL.

DR. D. JAYNE'S ALTERATIVE

WILL

BUILD UP THE SYSTEM,

PURIFY THE BLOOD,

AND

EXCITE THE ABSORBENTS TO

HEALTHY ACTION.

DR. D. JAYNE'S ALTERATIVE

IS A STANDARD MEDICINE:

a compound of those articles which long experience has proven to possess the most safe and efficient alterative and deobstruent properties, and containing no concealed poisons, no mercurial or other metallic preparations. Having before us the testimonials of thousands of persons who have been restored to sound health from its use, it is recommended to the afflicted with entire confidence as to its ability to effectually eradicate from the human system the diseases for whose cure it is designed.

For Purifying the Blood

the Alterative will be found to be a most effective medicine. Acting directly on the circulation, it purifies the blood, and passes with it into every tissue and fiber of the body, removing every particle of disease from the system.

FOR SCROFULA IN ALL ITS FORMS,

whether Ulcerations of the Flesh or Bones, Enlargement of the Joints, Glands, Swellings, Eruptions, Tumors, etc., the Alterative has been found pre-eminently successful. By its action on the blood it destroys the virus or poisonous principle from which these diseases originate.

FOR SKIN DISEASES,

the immediate cause of which will always be found to be an obstructed state of the pores, JAYNE'S ALTERATIVE is a certain remedy. It not only removes the obstinate state of the pores, but it frees the blood and perspiration from all impurities and gross particles, which are so liable to obstruct the small perspiratory organs.

All Dr. D. Jayne & Son's Family Medicines are sold by our Agents in New Orleans.

E. J. HART & Co., 73 Tchoupitoulas St.,

and by Druggists and Dealers everywhere.

se5 2m

MRS. M. G. BROWN'S

CELEBRATED

POOR RICHARD'S

EYE-WATER

derives its name from Benjamin Franklin's Almanac, which is immortal for its philosophical sayings, one of which is: "An ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure."

Giving the Eyes a drink, morning and night, of

POOR RICHARD'S EYE-WATER

would prevent every disease which attacks the human body, thus lengthening life to an indefinite period.

The Body is of the Earth, and the Eye is a Plant, which requires moisture.

The dust received into the eyes daily works itself into mortar, which clogs the machinery of the head, and closes up the eight thousand tubes and glands around the eyes; the balls contract and sink; they grow to the socket, and consequently the revolving power is impeded. This is what causes the bloodstreaks, the dark greenish color of the balls, and scum.

When the eyes are neglected the entire machinery of the face becomes distorted; even the countenance is changed. How true: "The light of the body is the eye." It is as necessary to give the eye moisture as any plant of the field.

Language fails to make known the salutary effects upon the entire mental and physical machinery arising from giving the eyes a drink of POOR RICHARD'S EYE-WATER, morning and night; also the fearful consequence of neglecting so to do from the cradle to the grave.

POOR RICHARD'S EYE-WATER
Prevents Catarrh.

POOR RICHARD'S EYE-WATER
Cures Catarrh.
Opens the 8,000 tubes and glands in the head,
Prevents tightness and pains in the head,
Opens and keeps open the mucous membrane,
Removes phlegm from throat and chest.

POOR RICHARD'S EYE-WATER
Removes Wrinkles and Blotches,
Gives large, sparkling eyes,
Gives a clear, smooth complexion,
Lifts sunken eyes,
Strengthens weak eyes.

POOR RICHARD'S EYE-WATER
Removes tan freckles,
Gives blooming cheeks,
Removes all inflammation,
Cures all kinds of headache,
It penetrates through the eyes into the gums
And preserves the teeth,
Gives the sweetest breath,
Opens the gates for rivers
To pass from the head into the system.

POOR RICHARD'S EYE-WATER
Cures tan, freckles and grubs,
Is clear and beautiful,
Same taste as the tear.

POOR RICHARD'S EYE-WATER
Restores the memory, brightens the intellect.

Price, Twenty-five cents per bottle. Sold by druggists. E. J. HART & Co., Wholesale Agents, 73, 75, 77 and 79 Tchoupitoulas street

The Christian Advocate.

PUBLISHED BY ROBT. J. HARP, FOR THE ALABAMA, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES, METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH SOUTH.

VOL. XVIII. NEW ORLEANS, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 26, 1872. NO. 39.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

DOMESTIC.

Waco, Sept. 19.—The last spike on the Waco Tap railroad was driven yesterday by George Barnard, the oldest citizen.

Conductor Marshall brought the first passenger train over the road last evening. The Picayune's representative and William Campbell, of the firm of Schmidt & Ziegler, wore the first New Orleans gentleman who passed over the road on the through train.

Lexington, Ky., Sept. 22.—Hon. Garrett Davis, United States Senator from Kentucky, died here this morning, at half-past six; age, seventy-two.

FOREIGN.

Bombay, Sept. 17, 4.30 P. M., via London, Sept. 18.—Letters from Dr. Livingstone, dated July 3, 1872, have been received at Zanzibar. Livingstone was still at Unyanyembe; was well, and was waiting the arrival of Stanley's second expedition.

London, Sept. 18.—A dispatch from Teheran rsports that the cholera is raging with great violence in Barkara. It is estimated that thonsands are dying daily.

Berlin, Sept. 18.—Tho correspondence betwsen the Emperor William, Bismarck and the Bishop of Ermeland, on the snbject of excommunication, is published. The bishop takes decided ground against the interference of secnlar authority in matters of religion. The tone of the communications on both sides is sharp and uncompromising.

Srockholm, September 19.—King Charles, of Sweden, is lying seriously ill at Malins.

Later.—King Charles is dead.

Berlin, Sept. 20.—During the recent meeting of the Emperors here the snbject of inviolahility of private property at sea, in time of war, was conoidered hy Prince Gortschakoff, Count Androssy and Prince Bismarck. It was regarded a good omen for the final establishment of the principle that the governments of the United States, Austria, Germany, Italy, Russia and Holland were united in its support.

A congress of Old Catholics was in session at Cologne yesterday. Much enthusiasm was manifested hy the delegates, who numbered three hundred.

Paris, Sept 20.—Diplomatic notes have heen exchanged between France and Germany concerning the arrest of Edmund About.

The charges on which the French author is to be tried by a court-martial consist of two counts. One accnses him of publishing hostile articles in German territory, in October, 1871, and the other with circulating the same in the province of Lorraine.

Alfred Mayer, barrister, of Strashurg, will defend the prisoner hefore the court.

M. About has sont word to President Thiers entreating him to he calm, and take no steps in his case which would imperil France.

London, Sept. 20.—The Bishops of Lincoln, Ely and Westminster, of the Church of England, and the Episcopal Biehop of Maryland, United States, were present at the opening of the Old Catholic congress at Cologne to-day. Among the speakers was Dr. Rohr, of New York.

Stockholm, Sept. 21.—Prince Oscar, brother of the deceased King, Charles the Fifth, has succeeded to the throne of Sweden and Norway. All the dignitaries of State yesterday took the oath of allegiance to the new monarch.

London, Sept. 21.—At a meeting of the members of the League of St. Sebastian at Dublin, yesterday, steps were taken for the formation of an organization to afford national help toward restoring the temporal power of the Pope.

Berlin, Sept. 21.—Count Von Arnim, German embassador to France, has been gazetted privy council, or with title of excellency.

At the session of the congress of Old Catholics at Cologne, yesterday, Dr. Soult was elected president, and Drs. Petric and Kornelius vice-presidents. The congress adjourned to-day. A committee, consisting of Drs. Dollinger, Frederic and others, was appointed to secure the union of all Christians in the Old Catholic movement.

Rome, Sept. 21.—The anniversary of the occupation of Rome by the Italians was celebrated with much enthusiasm. The city was profusely decorated. The Pope received visits of condolence from his adherents, and addressed his visitors, lamenting the misfortunes of the Catholic Church and the injustice done it hy the Italian government.

Munich, Sept. 22.—The attendance at the third days' sitting of the congress of Old Catholics was large. Many ladies occupied seats reserved for spectators. Motions were made and adopted favering dotation of the clergy hy State compulsion, civil marriage, and restoration of the Old Catholic priesthood.

A committee was appointed to promote united action on the part of Christians in the reform movement, and was instructed to hold its sittings alternately at Colegne and Munich.

Paris, Sept. 23.—At a reception given by M. Thiers in the Palace Elysee, to-day, Count Orloff, Russian minister to France, said that the Czar would not have gone to any meeting the object of which was hostile to France.

Count Orloff further said that the Czar had ordered him to formally state this fact to M. Thiers.

The French government to-day paid to Germany fifty-seven million francs, completing the fifth half milliard of war indemnity.

THE VIENNA EXPOSITION.

The work of construction for the World's Fair of 1873, at Vienna, is now sufficiently advanced to enable us to form an idea of the extent and capacity of the proposed structures. A large portion of the principal gallery, together with the forty transverse galleries of the Palace of Industry and the Hall for Machinery, are already under cover. The grand iron rotunda is rapidly approaching completion, and in a few weeks the immense iron ring of the rotunda will be raised to its position, at the height of two hundred and eighty feet.

The last day fixed for the reception of applications from Austro-Hungarian exhibitors was the thirty-first of August. The number received exceeds that of the applications made by the citizens of any country in which there has as yet heen an exposition. At the first exhibition in London (1851) there were 7,381 English exhibitors; at the second (1862) there were 9,387. At the first exhibition in Paris (1855) there were about 10,000 French exhibitors; at the second (1867) about 13,000; while at the Vienna Exposition there will he probably more than 15,000 Austro-Hungarian exhibitors. The number of applications from foreign countries hids fair to he quite as satisfactory. The German empire will he represented by about 8,000 exhibitors, while the representation from Belgium, Italy and Switzerland will probably be as large in proportion to the number of their respective populations.

The United States, Brazil, China, Japan and other distant countries will send their most remarkable products. In order that the Orient may have every facility for being advantageously represented, the Sultan of Turkey and the Viceroy of Egypt are having extensive structures erected on the exposition grounds, where the different phases of Oriental life, as well as Oriental products, will be represented.

We have, therefore, every reason to believe that the Vienna Exhibition will not only be remarkable for the extent and beauty of its structures and the number of its exhibitors, but also for many novel features, which will distinguish it from all preceding exhibitions of a similar character.—Appleton's Journal.

Three Milliards.—The Paris Univers makes a very interesting calculation on the metallic importance of the three milliard francs that France has just borrowed to pay to Prussia.

"Three milliards," the Univers says, "would weigh, in gold, eleven hundred tons. To coin this sum, at the rate of twenty francs a second, would take five years. It would require ten long freight trains to transport it to Prussia, and a man walking round the world—twenty-five thousand miles—might drop two louis-d'or (forty francs) at each step, and he would have many left on his return."

These calculations give the mind only a vague idea of this immense sum, and we naturally ask where it can be found—what portion it is of the coined gold in the possession of capitalists? Humboldt calculated that, during the three hundred and eighty years that elapsed between the discovery of the Island of Hispaniola and the Mexican revolution, the gold exported from the New World to the Old amounted to seven and a half milliard francs, something less than the late European war cost the French.

FROM THE WORK.

Trenton Circuit, Mississippi Conference.—Mr. Editor: We have held four protracted meetings on this work up to this time. The church has been much revived. There have hesn fifty or sixty accessions this year, and a number of conversions. We have four protracted meetings yet to come off. We had seven appointments, with organizations on the work, when we came to it. We have organized another church, numbering thirty members. We are still looking for better times. We are trying to work all the machinery of the church—i. e., class and prayer meetings, Sunday schools, church conferences, etc. We were assisted at these meetings hy several brethren, who did efficient service, for which they have our heartfelt thanks.

R. A. Sibley, Pastor.

Trenton, Miss., Sept. 11, 1872.

Ouachita District Conference, Louisiana.—Mr. Editor: The District Conference was held at Downsville. Bro. Scott, the presiding elder, arrived in time for the evening session of the first day (September 12) The spiritual condition of the district, judging from all the reports, seems to be good, very good, Hayneville and Castor circuits taking the lead. Two hundred accessions and one hundred and twenty baptisms were reported. The social meetings of the church have been better attended. Number of Sunday schools reported, fourteen; number of scholars, five hundred and forty-five. Our uniform lessons have proved to be decidedly useful in this district. The report concerning missions was meager, hut with the promise of hetter things. The subject of finance received proper attention. The salaries of all the preachers are sadly in arrears. The following resolntions were adopted upon that subject:

Resolved, That we regard it to be the duty of the circuit stewards to collect and pay to the preacher in charge, hy the meeting of the first Quarterly Conference, either in money or snpplies, at least the fourth part of his probable allowance for the entire Conference year.

Resolved, That it is the duty of each circuit steward, immediately after the apportionment of the preacher's salary to his particular society is determined, to proceed without delay to make provision for the collection of the entire amount in quarterly installments, hy securing, as subscriptions to this fund, the personal obligations of individuals of the congregation.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be placed in the hands of the presiding elder, to bo read to each Quarterly Conference of this district.

It was recommended that the Bishop and his cabinet should constitute a new circuit and also a mission in the district. The following are the delegates elect to the Annual Conference: A. L. Slack, Jethro Moore, Rev. C. W. Hodge and W. F. Moreland.

The congregations were large from the beginning, but increased in numbers as well as in interest Looking from the pulpit, there was a sea of heads. The doors, windows, aisles, altar and steps of the pulpit were crammed, while more than a hundred could not get in, although at least five hundred were inside Sixty penitents approached the altar on Sunday night, of whom nine were converted. I left yesterday (Monday) morning, but the meeting still goes on, and I trust that Bro. Parrish will send an account of the final result to the Advocate.

J. Lane Borden, Sec.

Karl Maria v. Weber owed the success of his operas, especially of the "Freischutz," principally to the popular character of his melodies. By popular we do not mean that which appeals to the uneducated masses, that which is purely claptrap, but that which springs from and belongs to the heart of the people. He based his melody upon the German "Volkslied." The Suabian and Tyrolese cut of many of his themes is unmistakable.—Atlantic Monthly.

Mere intellectual acuteness, divested, as it is in too many cases, of all that is comprehensive and great and good, is to me more revolting than the most helpless imbecility, seeming to be almost like the spirit of Mephistophiles.—Dr. Arnold.

Truth being founded upon a rock, you must boldly dig to see its foundations, without fear of destroying the edifice; but falsehood being laid on the sand, if you examine its foundations you cause it to fall.

HYACINTHE'S MARRIAGE.

Pere Hyacinthe has recently married. The object of his choice was an American widow, and very likely worthy of his affections. The good father has a letter in the Independent, very long and very readable, "Concerning my Marriage." We quote only in part:

No, my marriage has no connection with any religious convictions nor with any act of the twentieth of September, 1869—or rather, let me say, it is most intimately connected with them, but in that large and general sense which binds together all the steps achieved by a soul in progress toward light and liberty. I will express my meaning with entire openness. I owe to the rule of religious celibacy some of the most exquisite joys, some of the most profound and decisive experiences of my existence. From the age of eighteen, when I chose it, I have observed it with a fidelity for which I give glory to God. If now, at the age of forty-five—in the calmness, as well as in the maturity of my judgment, of my heart, of my conscience, in a word, of my whole being—I believe myself bound to renounce it, it is that marriage comes home to me as one of those laws of the moral government of the world which cannot he set aside without overturning the fabric of life and without running counter to the will of God. I did not say that this law comes home to all. I believe that celibacy may be a holy and glorious exception. I only say that this law presents itself unmistakably to me. When a man has received in his heart, as another exception no less rare, holy and glorious, that pure and lofty love in which the world does not believe because it is not worthy of it, such a man, be he priest or he he monk, has the most absolute proof that he is not of the number of those self-dedicated victims of whom the gospel speaks. Such a man am I; and here once more I give glory to God for what he has wrought in me Such workings of his spirit may appear contradictory; but their true harmony is known to him. At the very moment when I seemed to he abandoned, renounced by my friends and by my kinsmen, exiled hy blow upon blow from my church, from my country, from my family, he sent on my solitary and desolate path a noble and holy affection, a sublime devotion, poor in this world's goods, rich in the gifts of intellect and of heart; and, when all had crumbled away, alone, or almost alone, this support remained to me. Surely this support would not be what it ought to be, I should not recognize the blessing which God has given me, were I to hesitate in seeking for it the consecration of marriage.

And why should it be otherwise? I see no reasons which make marriage unlawful to me; for I cannot admit as such the law of any ecclesiastical system, and still less the prejudices of my fellow-countrymen.

I will ever submit myself to the laws of the church when I am not called upon to recognize as such what Jesus Christ, speaking to the Pharisees of the ancient people, already designated as "the commandments of men which made of no effect the commandments of God."—Matt. xv, 6-9. It is fully admitted that celibacy is not an article of faith; it ought to be acknowledged that it is not even a matter of Catholic discipline, but merely of the discipline of the Latin Church. Even at this hour, in the East, the Catholic clergy are married, with the full approbation of the Holy See. It is true that such marriages must precede and not follow ordination; but this restriction, besides being full of objections, is without meaning in the eyes of sound judgment, and does not the less establish in all its strength the principle that, in the mind of the church, there exists no real incompatibility between the two great sacraments of ordination and marriage.

The countervailing prejudice belongs to a perversion of moral ideas, which one has a right to marvel at finding among Christian nations. How have they come to degrade marriage to this base and unworthy conception of it, which is as repugnant to the delicate and generous instincts of the heart as to the teachings of revelation? Truly, if marriage is but a concession to the infirmity or even to the passions of our nature, I admit that it is for the priest a degradation and defilement. But I am then equally at a loss to see how it can be reconciled with the dignity conferred by Christian baptism, with the holiness which our Christian profession demands; and, to be logical, it would he necessary, with Tertullian, to forbid it to true Christians everywhere. Christian marriage—the only marriage of which I speak—is not a concession to our weakness, it is not even a mere means for perpetuating our race; it is, if I may be allowed to quote myself, "the most complete, the most intimate and the most holy union that can exist between two human beings." It is thus that I defined it only five years ago, in the pulpit of Notre Dame; and I added, with St. Paul and the whole Catholic tradition, that it has been since the gospel the mysterious and the radiant likeness of the union of the divine word with human flesh—of the union of Christ with the church—"Sacramentum hoc magnum est, ego autem dico in Christo et in Ecclesia."—Eph. v, 32. It is because we no longer understand the doctrine of the apostles, nor the examples of the first Christians, that we have ceased to see in the union of husband and wife "the estate of marriage honorable in all" (Hebrews xiii, 4;) that we have come to regard it as incompatible with the condition of the perfect life; and that we shudder to think of the proximity of the altar of God to the family hearth, which also ought to be a sanctuary, and in one sense the first of all sanctuaries!

I have just named public opinion. As much as I respect this in its legitimate expressions and requirements, in that same proportion do I despise it when it rests only on prejudice. To recoil before a prejudice is to recoil before that which has no real existence; and is even to give by that means a body and a force to this empty phantom. Is not this, however, what is done every day, through a mixture of puerile fear and hypocritical subserviency by the minds most capable of counteracting the errors of their time? Fatal power of falsehood, which has ruined and which still ruins our unfortunate country! It is this which obliges me at this moment to seek on a foreign soil the consecration which the law, or at least the legal authorities of France, would refuse to my marriage, because I have at the same time the honor and the misfortune to be a priest. But I will make no further concession to this false spirit. I shall return, keeping my head erect and my heart calm, without fear, as without anger; and nothing shall hinder me from inhabiting that country and breathing that air which are mine, and which shall remain dear to me in spite of the iniquities by which they have been profaned. Nothing shall hinder me from claiming for each one of my brethren in the priesthood the legal right of marriage, the violation of which, not only in a whole class of citizens, but even in the person of a single man, should suffice to place the legislation of a people under the ban of truly civilized nations.

Yes, I am convinced France, no less than the church, needs the example which I give, and of which the fruits shall be reaped by the future, even should they fail in the present. I know well the true state of my country; and, while it was still willing to hear my voice, I never failed to preach to it that its regeneration must come through the life of the family. I tore aside without mercy the vail of its sumptuous and deceptive prosperity; and I laid bare the two sores which waste it and which mutually envenom one another—"marriage without love and love without marriage—that is to say, marriage and love without Christianity."—"Conferences sur la Famille," 1866. I know well also the true state of our clergy, and know all the devotion and virtue that is to be found in its ranks; but I am not ignorant of how much it needs in a vast proportion of its members to be reconciled with the interest, the affections and the duties of human nature and of civil society. It is only by breaking with the traditions of a blind asceticism, and of a theocracy which is, in fact, more political than religious, that the priest, become once more a man and a citizen, should at the same time find himself more truly a priest. "That he rule well his own house," says St. Paul, "having his children in a subjection with all gravity; for, if a man know not how to rule his own house, how shall he take care of the church of God?"—First Timothy iii, 4, 5.

A little girl asked her sister what was chaos that her papa read about? The elder replied: "It was a great pile of nothing, and no place to put it in."

ILLINOIS CONFERENCE.

Bishop Marvin, writing to the St. Louis Christian Advocate, September 10, says:

I closed the sixth session of the Illinois Conference yesterday. It was held at Rushville, where the people entertained it with abundant hospitality. The session was altogether harmonious and pleasant.

The past year has been one of a good degree of prosperity. The net increase of members is not great, but shows a decided advance. The Sunday school statistics show prosperity in that department. A fine year's work has been done in church building. They have the same three parsonages they had last year, but I noted that the reported value of them was a shade below last year's figures. I suppose they are getting older. This illustrates my theory that a mere conservative policy can never maintain itself. He who, amid the active forces of the world, attempts just merely to hold his own, will soon find himself drifting to ruin.

The missionary collections were very small—deplorably so—and the preachers are to blame. They will do better next year.

A few of the preachers have been well supported, but many of them report heavy deficiencies. The Conference collection amounted to only one hundred and three dollars and some cents.

There were received on trial, at this Conference, Alexander W. Smith, William A. Cross, Thomas M. Prickett, James A. Greening, George Knispel, Abel P. Drake, Melancthon Crews and John F. Robb.

Those admitted into full connection were Richard Gillispie, Andrew D. Hocker and Randolph P. Jones.

R. P. Jones was ordained a deacon, and Richard Gillispie, William D. Ward and William B. Lewellin elders.

Claiborne M. Whitson, Edward R. West and Joel T. Kendall were discontinued at their own request, and John T. Crandall and A. B. Dowell were located. Hiram G. Holcomb and John H. Threlkeld were received hy transfer from other Conferences.

THE SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY.

President Andrews, says the Nashville Christian Advocate, writes us, Greensboro, September 8, that the next session of the Southern University opens October 2. The prospects are better than they have ever been before since the war. He has raised the money needed for the repairs of the University buildings. Mrs. Daniel Pratt, of Prattville, contributed $1,000 for that purpose. We understand that a number of candidates for the ministry expect to be in attendance the coming session; there were a good many last session.

The arrangements for the mess-hall are such that the students can board comfortably at very little expense; and preachers and preachers' sons are not charged any tuition fees. Additions have been made to the apparatus, which is perhaps the best in the Southern States.

Let the patronizing Conferences stir themselves. Let the preachers bring the claims of the University before the people—look up young men who ought to be there, and send them—and let not the great facilities which Greensboro affords be overlooked. Students will find there a refined community, a healthful location, noble buildings, admirable apparatus, a capital faculty, and everything else needed for a thorough Christian training.

Randolph Macon College.—The Richmond Christian Advocate says: The prospects are very encouraging for a large number of students at Randolph Macon next session. Last year we had one hundred and sixty-seven; this year the number will probably reach two hundred. The labors of the president, Dr. Duncan, and of the secretary, Bro. Brown, have been eminently successful in bringing the college to the attention of our people and to the public generally, in both the patronizing Conferences. Send forward the young men; they are the hope of the church and the country.

Our Veteran Fathers Who Are Gone.—N. Tibbals & Son will have ready for agents, in a few days, "The Autobiography of Rev. Heman Bangs"—over four hundred pages, 12mo, with steel engraving; made in the most beautiful style of book-making; edited in the most careful manner by his daughters. His friends may look for a rich treat and a most useful book to Methodism.

The Christian Advocate.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 26, 1872.

RISING.

Souls in Jesus, rest in peace!
Let your weary longings cease;
Hope in that unmeasured love
Which no time nor change can move.
Never doubting,
Never grieving,
Ever on his word believing;
Ever rising toward the light
Of the Savior's image bright.

Summer roses blush and die,
Summer sunsets tint the sky,
Summer glories fade away,
But the soul blooms on for aye.
Ever ripening,
Ever growing,
Ever loftier pleasures knowing;
Ever rising toward the light
Of the Savior's image bright.

In your joys and in your pains,
In your losses and your gains,
In temptation's fearful hour,
Think of Jesus and his power.
Ever trusting,
Ever fearing,
Ever heaven's sweet mansions nearing;
Ever rising toward the light
Of the Savior's image bright.

For the Advocate.

PREPARATION FOR THE PULPIT.

NUMBER FOUR.

The minister should be careful to procure the proper material to work upon, and work up, in preparing for the pulpit. Need I tell you where to go that you may find that material? I trust you already know. Go to the Bible, of course. The truth is that material—"the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth." The Bible is the treasury that is full of truth, which is purer than the gold that has been tried in the fire, and far more valuable. Occasionally you may find a grain of the truth in a novel; but I would never go there to search for it, because too much spade-work would be required to get the sand and stones away so I could find it. I had much rather go directly to the treasury, where I can get as much of it as I want with comparatively little work; and when I find it there I know it is unadulterated—it is the genuine truth. Besides this, the great Master has commanded us upon the subject: "Search the Scriptures." By one of his servants he says: "Preach the word!"

When the minister is sure that he has procured the proper material, and a sufficient quantity of it—neither too much nor too little—he should then prepare it well in every respect, and put it into his sermon, or rather let it be his sermon. He should never make a sermon out of something else, and then put some truth of God's holy word into it, but he should make the sermon entirely out of the truth. It is the truth of a sermon that makes it valuable, and not the philosophy, the poetry, the rhetoric and the logic. There is no life in the latter, but there is divinity in the former. It is the truth that shall make the ministry, the church and the world free.

Gold is seldom used just as it is taken from the mine. It is carried to the mint first, and there it is melted and put into another form. So with the truth. The minister must first take it to his study—which is his mint; and then put it into his mind and heart—which are his crucible; and then, when his sermon comes forth, its thoughts will be like the bright and beautiful new-made coin! O, I tell you, they will pass anywhere at a good premium. David killed Goliath not with a piece of rough stone from the quarry, but with a smooth stone "from the brook." Had we not better smooth the stones ere we go out to fight? If they have rough edges and sharp corners they may hang in some part of the sling, or the atmosphere may turn them so they will miss the mark. The numerous stones and all the timbers of the temple at Jerusalem were prepared ere they were brought to Mount Moriah, so there was no sound of ax or hammer in the building of the Lord's house. Should not you and I learn a good lesson from these facts? Have your sermon well prepared before you go to the pulpit. Know what you intend to say. Then you will not speak unadvisedly with your lips. I would not say to every brother minister, "Write all your sermons in extenso," for that might not be the best for every one; but I will say and I do say to all: "Write, write, write! Write some, yea write much!" Paul wrote a great deal. Mr. Wesley wrote extensively. Indeed almost every great and useful minister of the past, of whom we have any account, wrote more or less. "Writing makes a correct man," and it is exceedingly important that you be correct in the pulpit. If you solemnly and conscientiously, before God, believe you should write in full every sermon you preach, I at least will not quarrel with you about it, for I tell you it is a very dangerous piece of business—it is foolish, it is wicked, and God will punish such wickedness most bitterly and awfully—for me to interfere with the convictions of your enlightened conscience.

Then, if it be the decision of your best judgment and of your Christian conscience that it will be best for you, in your peculiar sphere, you may have my permission, if it is worth anything to you, to commit your sermon to memory and preach it, or to take your manuscript with you into the pulpit and read it, provided you are a tolerable reader.

Brethren, I do long to see the day come in which all of the ministry will prepare well for the pulpit. I will be candid and honest with you, and say here before your faces what some persons would and perhaps do, say behind your backs: I do not wish to hear you preach a poorly-prepared sermon! At least I would have you do the very best you can in the preparation of it.

O let us not take the same, the poor, the sick and the half dead lambs or kids of our flocks into the pulpit to offer unto the Lord! for if we can possibly do better, he certainly will not accept them.

O let us not feed our people on stale, half-baked, burnt, dry, hard, indigestible bread! No wonder that some of them are half starving and others are dying. We are to blame for this. O what a fearful account we will have to render in the final reckoning! "Feed the flock of God," and feed them well on the very best that your skill, your energy and your most laborious toil can provide for them.

One more thought. Prepare yourself to bear that well-prepared sermon into the pulpit! You have labored hard upon it. It has been the burden of your thoughts, your prayers and your faith, day and night, for most of the week. Perhaps you have toiled over portions of it for weeks, months or years. But now, thank God, the work of its preparation is completed. God has given it to you that you may bear it as his messenger into the pulpit, to dispense its blessings to his children and to sinners, all of whom he loves. You are to do good with it. You have labored hard in the work of preparing it, but your work is not yet done. Much, very much depends upon the way in which you preach it. That sermon, insignificant as it may appear in your eyes as the product of your toil, is exceedingly important, for it has heaven or hell in it—life or death is there! It will be all life to all if they will believe and treasure it in their hearts; but, if they refuse to believe it, that sermon will be all death to them! O keep the thought before you, that it will, as certainly as God's holy book is true, be to all that hear it from your pulpit a savor of life unto life, or a savor of death unto death! Then, is not that sermon a fearful thing? God is there in that sermon! Dare you touch it? Dare you take it to the pulpit, that holy place? Dare you go there to preach it? "Who is sufficient for these things?" But you are called of God unto all these things. Woe unto you if you do them not! O what shall you do? What can you do? Oh, my brother—thou man of God—I will tell thee what to do. Fall upon thy knees. Lift thy heart in mighty prayer. Seek, O seek, and never leave thy study, nor the holy throne of grace, until thou dost receive "the baptism of the Holy Ghost and of fire!" When this is given, thy preparation will be complete for thy pulpit. Then, blessed be God, ascend and stand in the holy place, for God is thy sufficiency! Thou art clothed with authority and with power from on high. Thou art in the stead of Christ to do his work—to speak his truth. Thou art the embassador of heaven, the messenger of the skies, in whose hands and tongue are the issues of life or of death. Thou hast life for all who will believe thee; and thou hast death, eternal death, for all who turn away in damning unbelief. Wonderful, majestic, glorious, "great, humble man!" speak to us!

We wait before thee, man of God,
With prayerful hearts and list'ning ears.
For thee to smite us with the rod,
Or calm and soothe our waking fears!

Fear not to speak the truth; for we
Would know of thee the will of heaven.
That we, as in a glass, may see
Our sins, and be of God forgiven!

Speak not to praise in empty strains,
And thus deceive our evil hearts,
And so pollute us more with stains
Of pride and Satan's damning arts!

O speak! Thou hast the words of life!
Why keep them back from us? We wait
With anxious hearts, all full of strife
And pain, to hear and know our fate!

Thy words, O great and holy one,
Can lift to heaven or sink to hell!
Then speak, as God's anointed Son;
Our faith shall make thy words all well!

Then, when those words in us have wrought
The work of life and joy and love,
Thy crown shall shine—by Jesus bought—
With many golden stars above!

A PASTOR.

For the Advocate.

COMMON LAW.

ITS USES AND AUTHORITY.

Wherever Christian civilization prevails, all just and wholesome laws—both statutory and common, written and unwritten—are founded on the principles of the divine law as recorded in the Holy Bible, and the final appeal of all expounders of law, whether civil or ecclesiastical, is to the inspired Scriptures as the highest authority. Every well-balanced government, whether civil or ecclesiastical, has its constitutional, statutory and common law. Constitutional law is highest in authority, statutory law is next when made to conform to the fundamental law, and common law is equally binding when interpreted in accordance with the fundamental and statutory law. I shall now speak only of what eminent jurists define as common law; for I apprehend that some of the ecclesiastical law in our church have never had their attention fully directed to what is and what is not common law; hence, when called on for a legal opinion on some disciplinary matter—in the absence of express statutory law—they will quote the ipse dixit of Bro. So and So, or some new-born usage, as authority for their decision, and, perhaps, for their illegal acts. The expounders and administrators of law in our pastoral charges and districts sometimes not only inflict great wrongs on the church, but disparage themselves greatly in the estimation of all intelligent lawyers who may happen to notice their illegal decisions and doings. Common law is called "the unwritten law," because it does not originate in legislative enactments, and is never codified like constitutional and statutory law; though most, if not all, of it is perhaps written somewhere, either in the records of courts or the published reports of legal decisions. But what is common law? The code of common law is made up of certain customs or usages; but many customs and usages have none, or only a part, of the essential attributes of common law, and hence they are of no authoritative or binding force whatever.

A usage, to have the authority of common law, must have the following essential requisites:

1. It must have originated in the common consent of those who are governed by it.

2. It must have been in existence "time out of mind." It must be an immemorial usage.

3. It must have continued, without ever being repealed, from its origin, though its operation may have been suspended for years.

4. It must be peaceable in its operation, and acquiesced in by those who are subject to it.

5. It must be reasonable and just; never partly absurd and unjust.

6. It must be certain and uniform in its operation.

7. Though established by common consent, it must be compulsory.

8. It must not conflict with other authoritative usages, or with the statutory or fundamental laws.

These few hints, derived from the highest authority on the science of jurisprudence, will enable us to determine what is and what is not common law. By way of illustration, I ask leave to state two or three cases which have lately come under my observation, in which, I think, the rules of common law have been overlooked and disregarded.

1. Because Bishop McTyeire, in his Manual of the Discipline, says the president of an Annual or Quarterly Conference "has the right to adjourn the Conference over which he presides, when in his judgment all the business prescribed by the Discipline to such Conference shall have been transacted," some of our officials have come to the conclusion that it is no longer necessary to adjourn any of our deliberative bodies, called Conferences, by formal motion made and carried. It may be well enough, to prevent the introduction of irrelevant matters and unpleasant debates, for the president to declare the Conference adjourned when all its legitimate business has been finished; but to adopt this practice as a rule would be in open violation of the common law of the church; for, "from time out of mind," it has been a universal usage—supported by all the requisites of authoritative common law—to adjourn all our deliberative bodies, called Conferences, from the Quarterly to the General Conference, by formal motion made, put, carried and recorded.

2. During the last session of the Alabama Conference, which met in Mobile, November 29, 1871, Bishop Pierce decided that a superannuated preacher "is not a member of any Quarterly Conference." I presume that he was led to make this decision solely by the fact that there is no express statutory law making a superannuate a member of a Quarterly Conference. Had the Bishop reasoned from analogy, or been governed by the rules of common law, I think he would have decided differently. As superannuated preachers are members of Church, District and Annual Conferences by express statutory provision, and are eligible to membership in a General Conference when elected by their Annual Conference, analogy would decide, in the absence of all prohibitory laws, that they are also members of the Quarterly Conference where they live, and where their families hold their church membership; and I believe, as a general rule, they would make as safe and useful members as any other class of officials composing that body. As there is no express statutory law against admitting a superannuate to membership in a Quarterly Conference, our next resort is to the common law. What has been the established and uniform usage in regard to this matter heretofore? Since the Bishop's decision at the Alabama Conference I have heard of one locality where they exclude superannuates from membership in their Quarterly Conferences, but, with this exception, I have never known or heard of its being done. During my connection of nearly fifty years with the Mississippi Conference I have never known an instance. We have had superannuated preachers of from one to thirty years' standing among us, and I have always seen them taking an active and useful part in the Quarterly Conferences of the pastoral charge where they lived. The usage of admitting them to membership has all the attributes and authority of common law.

3. There is a usage in relation to supernumerary preachers of comparatively recent origin among us, which I have already heard quoted as of high authority, both by young and old preachers. It is that a superannuate, if he is merely tacked on to a pastoral charge to keep him in the Conference, without his being required or expected to do any regular work or receive any pecuniary support from the church. I respectfully submit that this new-born usage is not only violative of the express statutory laws of the church, but it has none of the essential elements of common law to give it the least authority. It only exists by connivance and an evasion of the statutory laws intended to govern our supernumeraries. Our statutory law defines not what a supernumerary is in military codes and elsewhere, but what a supernumerary is in the Methodist Episcopal Church South; then it requires the Bishop to assign him such work as he may be able to perform; and in case he refuses to do the work assigned him, unless in case of sickness or other unavoidable causes, he exposes himself to the severest penalties known in ecclesiastical law. But this usage is not only at war with the statutory laws of the church, but it is without the most essential requisites of authoritative common law. It is of recent origin, and does not date back to "time out of mind;" it is violative of express legislative enactments; its tendency is to accumulate men in our Annual Conferences who do not expect to do any regular work in the ministry, and this sometimes results in heavy families being left on our hands for long years to come. My personal afflictions at several points in my somewhat long career in the itinerancy, which placed me for short intervals on the ineffective roll, has taught me true sympathy for all my brethren in affliction; but I do love to see things done according to law. If the law is defective, let it be amended; if it is absurd and oppressive, let it be repealed; but we should not connive at the violation of law.

J. G. JONES.

PRESIDING ELDERS AND PASTORS.

MR. EDITOR: Some time since I read in the ADVOCATE the great and sore trials of presiding elders, and their necessary qualifications, etc. Would it be showing too much ignorance and presumption to ask the question: Can the office of presiding elder be dispensed with without injury to the church? I only ask for information, because the writer gave us so many and grievous trials incident to the office that it seemed to me too great a burden to put upon any one. But if it was restricted to "one who had been an active, industrious, conscientious pastor," would there not be very few presiding elders?

In my own recollection—reaching back about twenty-five years—I have only known two pastors in the Methodist Episcopal Church South. One of them (now dead) was a pastor indeed, who did not think that preaching was all that was required; but he visited every member of his flock, whether rich or poor, once or twice every two months, and followed up that old-fashioned idea of praying in every family. But now our pastor says that the man has to be called from the field, and the lady of the house from the kitchen, and it seems too great a task, and has to be given up.

The other pastor of my acquaintance was truly an active, conscientious pastor while single; but he soon married, and was a pastor no longer, but only a preacher.

The writer referred to talks about the trials of presiding elders. Are not the trials of a preacher and pastor as great? So far as my observation extends, the presiding elder is not expected to preach more than two sermons at any quarterly meeting; and these meetings being held on different circuits, a few big sermons will do for the whole district. And then the presiding elder is not expected to stop during the meeting with anybody less in diguity than a judge or a colonel, while the preacher too often is required to board around the circuit with the poor, as well as the rich. If the meeting is protracted, custom does not require that the presiding elder should stay and help; while the preacher in charge often has to preach once or twice a day for two weeks or more. Custom requires that a pastor should visit the most ignorant and poorest member of his flock, but this same custom puts the presiding elder above these things. I must stop contrasting the trials of a pastor and presiding elder, for fear some one might think I intended to be personal.

In conclusion, I ask in the spirit of sober inquiry: Cannot the office of presiding elder be dispensed with, not only without injury, but with benefit to the church?

Could not the Annual Conferences select the Bishop's council? Could not the preacher in charge do everything now done by the presiding elder? And if all these would not supply the place of the presiding elder, could not the number of Bishops be increased, and in that way supply the place, and cause the whole machinery to move along with accelerated speed?

INQUIRER.

For the Advocate.

WHERE IS HEAVEN?

MR. EDITOR: In the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE of August 22 I find an article over the signature of James Shanks, in reply to an article on Heaven's Locality, which appeared in the ADVOCATE of the twentieth of June, in which the question was asked: "May we not conclude that the glorious luminary, the center of our system of worlds, the bulk of which is estimated to be thirteen hundred thousand times larger than the earth, and so brilliant in luster that the human eye is not permitted to gaze upon his refulgence, is the locality of heaven?" Mr. Shanks answers emphatically, "No, no; it cannot be so," and denounces it as a dangerous doctrine, and enters his protest against it.

Well, Mr. Editor, I sincerely hope that the question above referred to will neither injure Mr Shanks or any one of the readers of the ADVOCATE, as the object of that article was simply to excite some thought in that direction. I did not say that the material sun is heaven; but did say that I believed that heaven is a material structure, with limits and boundaries, and perfectly adapted to the enjoyment of the human family after the soul and body shall be reunited at the resurrection. It cannot be that Mr. Shanks opposes the doctrine of heaven being a local material place, with bounds and limits, from the fact that he undertakes to give us a full description of what he calls the third heaven, as found in the twenty-first chapter of Revelations, where St. John describes the holy city, New Jerusalem, descending out of heaven from God. Now, if this holy city came out of heaven, how, then, can it be heaven? We believe that the description of the holy city given by St. John comes no nearer a full description of the third heaven than a description of the city of New Orleans would be a description of North America or the whole world. Mr. Shanks claims to be an old Bible fogy. I presume he means by that appellation that he is a close adherent to Bible doctrine. Please read the second verse of the fourteenth chapter of the Gospel by St. John, where Christ says: "In my Father's house are many mansions. If it were not so I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you," etc. Now, in my humble opinion the holy city exhibited to St. John is the place prepared, as above promised, and not the heaven of heavens, as contended by Mr. Shanks. We believe it to be only one of the many mansions which our Savior says are in his Father's house. The revelator informs us that the city measured twelve thousand furlongs, its length, breadth and height being equal. Mr. Webster says a furlong is one eighth of a mile. Now, by making a calculation Mr. Shanks will find that the material sun, of which he thinks it dangerous to write, is sufficiently large to contain on its surface over two million cities equal in dimensions to the one above described; so that cannot be the heaven of heavens described in his lengthy quotation from the twenty-first chapter of the Book of Revelations, but only a small apartment prepared especially for those who are represented by the names that were written upon the twelve gates, and those names which were placed in the twelve foundations of the walls of the city. We believe the glorious city—the holy Jerusalem—to be a new accession to the many bright mansions in heaven; and as, in the construction of our new Publishing House, the names of our Bishops, editors and others who are closely identified in interest with that edifice were placed in the corner-stone, so may we conclude that the holy city above described was built in reference to those represented by the twelve tribes of the children of Israel and the twelve apostles of the Lamb.

Mr. Shanks says all we know about heaven is what we learn from the Bible. He says: "The second heaven, where the planets are located, is visible; but the third heaven, where St. Paul was when he heard those things unlawful for him to utter, where God's throne is, and where Jesus and all the saints and angels are, is invisible to mortal eye." Now, according to my concordance, the word invisible does not occur in the Old Testament, and only occurs five times in the New Testament, and in no case applies to the third heaven; so I am at a loss to know where Mr. Shanks got the fact that the third heaven is invisible to mortal eye, as he says he knows nothing of heaven only as he learns it from the Bible.

J. W. HESTER.

CITRONELLE, September 1, 1872.

Obituaries.

DIED, at Midway, Louisiana, August 20, 1872, in the early May-morn of his existence, JAMES EGBERT, son of Parke W. and Laura L. DeFrance, aged two years and one month.

Our dear little flower has been transplanted to a nobler parterre, and is now blooming in the garden of the Lord.

Whom Providence in wisdom willed
To blight in life's young morning hour;
To blight? O no! to gather, house,
To shelter from each stormy blast. D.

MRS. ELIZABETH STEWARD, the beloved wife of Mr. Nimrod Steward, died at her home in Butler county, Alabama, August 22, 1872, after an illness of twenty-two days. She was the daughter of William and Jane Steward, and was born in Mecklenburg, South Carolina, December 25, 1793, and was married to her now bereaved and afflicted husband in 1820. She was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church South in 1828.

Sister Steward was truly a Christian. Her life was one of quietude, though mingled with care and pain. She moved in the sphere of a Christian, familiar with the religion of the gospel in all its enjoyments, privileges and duties, loving the church and the communion of saints above all earthly joys.

As wife and mother she was all that devoted affection could make her, and was reverenced and beloved by all her household as their true friend and safe counselor. As daughter and sister, as relative and neighbor, she was universally esteemed and cherished by all around her, and loved as only the good deserve to be. And her children, who are left to share the grief of the weeping sire, will rise up and call her blessed, because she taught them early to lisp: "Our Father, which art in heaven;" and who, with the writer, at the judgment day can cast their glittering crown at the feet of our Master, and cry with thunder tones: Thank God for a praying mother. C. B. PILLEY.

DIED, August 17, 1872, near Hamburg, Franklin county, Mississippi, Mrs. SUSANNA KINNISON, in the ninetieth year of her age.

She was born in middle Tennessee, and was the daughter of Jonathan Grice, who removed with his family to the Natchez country about the year 1792, and settled on the head waters of Sandy creek, in Franklin county, where he reared a family of thirteen children, and died at the age of eighty-two. Susanna was the oldest of his family, and was married on the fourth day of July, 1802, to her first cousin, Mr. John Kinnison, who was two years her senior, and whose lamp has not gone out. The year after their marriage they settled at the place where they have since lived, and, by their industry and economy, plentifully and independently, and raised eleven out of twelve children born to them. There was never a more harmonious household, or a more obedient or industrious set of children. The family literally lived "by the sweat of their faces," and were hearty, cheerful and happy. For five or six years the dear old mother and father have been ill, but they continued, as well as they could, their industrious habits, and were still cheerful, and their only discomfort seemed to be their inability to continue their usual labor. For several years they have passed much of their time in their room, counting the seconds and marking the hours as they were tolled off by the old family clock, and frequently talking cheerfully of the anticipated event when the old time-piece should tell to those around their last moment of time. The deceased was a member of the Baptist Church, and a constant, faithful and zealous Christian, with a whole heart for friendship and affection—a noble woman, who was marked by and retained the sterling qualities and virtues of the olden times. The fourth of July just passed was the seventieth anniversary of her marriage, and the sixty-ninth year of her residence where she ceased to breathe. In the morning she was up, but, feeling a slight nausea, she laid down with her usual faculties, and as the day wore on she gradually grew weaker until evening; and when it was nearing that hour she asked: "Is it ten o'clock?" and the lamp flickered and was out. S. L. G.

DIED, in Livingston, Alabama, on Sunday morning, September 1, 1872, WILLIAM KING USTICK, aged sixty-five years, eight months and four days.

Bro. Ustick was born in Abingdon, Virginia, December 27, 1806. He joined the Methodist Episcopal Church in Wytheville, Virginia, in February, 1826. On the eighth of September, 1829, he was married to Miss Lydia F. Lloyd, of Pulaski county, Virginia, with whom he lived happily for forty-three years, lacking a few days, and who survives him.

In 1836 Bro. Ustick removed from Virginia to Alabama, and located at Livingston, where the remainder of his life was spent. Bro. Ustick was one of the founders of Methodism in Livingston, and for thirty-six years was one of its most zealous advocates and brightest ornaments. He aided in the building of the first house of worship erected here—the present Methodist church; was one of the original board of trust, which position he held until his death; and for a period nearly as long he was a member of the board of stewards.

When we come to speak of his personal character too much cannot be said. A good man and a true Christian has gone to his reward. He was a Christian of marked and positive character, strong convictions, deep and genuine piety, kind and sympathetic heart. He loved God and all the people of God, and was always solicitous for the prosperity of Zion. His Christian life, extending through a period of forty-five years, was ever "onward and upward, and true to the pole," and to it the church can point as unanswerable testimony for Christ. He was pre-eminently a man of prayer. In early life he erected his altar, and built an altar in his house, on which the fires of devotion never expired. He loved the word of God and the place of private prayer, and spent much time in secret devotion. He was a regular attendant on the preaching of the word and the prayer and class meetings, and loved both to hear and to tell of the grace of God.

As a steward no man took more interest in the affairs of the church and the welfare of his pastor than William K. Ustick. He seemed to care for the preacher's family as he did for his own. He anticipated their wants, visited them in sickness and affliction; and by unremitted acts of kindness showed that their welfare was dear to him. Many will be the sad hearts among the former pastors of this station when they read that William K. Ustick is gone, for in him they have lost a friend. He was keenly alive to all the interests of the church, and held all that he had subject to its demands.

As a citizen Bro. Ustick was respected and esteemed by all. He was unambitious of worldly distinction, and was content to be the humble advocate of every good institution. He was for a number of years a magistrate, and also for several years before his death a member of the town council, in both of which positions he gained the esteem and praise of his fellow-citizens.

His last illness was short, and his suffering so intense that he could tell but little of his feelings on the approach of death; but his life is before us, and in the light of the promises of God, and his life-long devotion to his service, we know that for him death was robbed of its sting, and that from the bed of anguish the soul of the faithful Christian passed into the presence of the Master and the possession of the promised reward.

J. M. MASON, His Pastor.

The Christian Advocate.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 26, 1872.

THRICE HAPPY he whose heart, each new-born night,
When the worn day hath vanished o'er earth's brim,
And he hath laid him down in chamber dim,
Straightway begins to tremble and grow bright,
And loose faint flashes toward the vaulted height
Of the great peace that overshadows him,
Till tongues of fiery hope awake and swim
Through his soul and touch each point with light;
Then the great earth a hollow altar is,
Upon whose top a sacrifice lies,
Burning in love's response up to the skies
Whose fire descended first and kindled his;
When slow the flickering flames at length expire,
Sleep's ashes only hide the glowing fire.

George Macdonald.

TIME.

Time speeds away, away, away!
Another hour, another day,
Another month, another year,
Drop from us like the leaflets sere—
Drop like the life-blood from our hearts.
The rose bloom from the cheek departs,
The tresses from the temple fall,
The eye grows dim and strange to all.

THE JESUITS AND THE FREEDMEN

BY REV. J. H. SHEDD.

The foes upon us are the Jesuits and their allies. Expelled from Europe, they confront us on this side the water like an invading army. Perfectly organized and disciplined, and under the command of a single head (the Black Pope,) whose visit to this country this present month of August is announced, they advance to the attempted conquest of our land. Now a powerful column is turning its point upon the freedmen, and it is time the watchmen, through the religious press and the pulpit, should give the alarm. In some of the secular papers were published, some time since, such facts as should be known by all friends of the freedmen. The facts are as follows:

The Jesuits have for a long time entertained the idea of a mission to the negroes of North America, and after various delays the Pope, through the propaganda at Rome, has confided the work to the English Catholics. Archbishop Manning is the prime mover. He and the Jesuits, not satisfied with what they are doing to Romanize England, have in charge a special foreign missionary society called the St. Joseph Society. For the purpose of raising up the missionaries, a foreign missionary college is in full operation near London. The principal of this college is Dr. Vaughan, the editor also of the London Tablet, the organ of the Roman Church in England. Dr. Vaughan, in the Tablet, sets forth the project as follows:

"It is well known that for many years the Holy See has been anxious to provide for the colored population of America. The zeal of the American bishops to co-operate with the designs of the Holy See has been restrained only by the paucity of priests, the prior claims of the white population and difficulties of various sorts. The number of negroes in North America, according to the last census, is nearly five million. Nothing can be imagined more deplorable than their religious and moral condition. Speaking of the great mass of them—though a nucleus of good Catholics is to be found among them and some thousands of nominal Catholics, though without instruction—it is literally a mission to the unbaptized and to the heathen that we are undertaking. It is a mission full of hope, for they are possessed of good qualities, and will respond to the affection of those who, they will learn, have bound themselves by vow to their service and interest. Bearing upon this work, and in connection with St. Joseph's Society for foreign missions, I may mention, for ladies who feel called to devote themselves to the apostolic life, that a community of sisters is established. These sisters are under the care of our society, and will take part in the missions assigned to it by the Holy See."

Letters from American bishops are quoted, showing their warm co-operation in the work. The Archbishop of Baltimore says:

"As Baltimore is the natural and most appropriate point for the mother house of any institution for the benefit of the colored people, whence it may form branches for the entire South, you should, I think, begin here. In these counties of Maryland there are no less than sixteen thousand Catholic negroes, but half as many who are not yet Catholics, but well disposed. You have a field of action already ripe and prepared for the harvest."

He proposes to donate sixty acres of good land and buildings for the beginning. Another bishop writes:

"Great numbers of negroes in various parts of Maryland are in various stages of proximity to the work. Some are already fervent Catholics; some well disposed, though not converted, and immense numbers whose future will depend on the exertions that will be made in their favor. The present state of things has more or less of a transition character, as they have been hitherto in a state of slavery, and consequently the more urgent the need for immediate action."

Finally, the Roman Catholics, just as all Protestant churches, look to the remote results upon Africa. The Bishop says:

"While we are sent to evangelize the negroes in America, we cannot forget the continent from which they have been brought. May not a portion of the race which was forcibly transplanted, but which has never amalgamated and will always remain distinct, after having imbibed civilization and Christianity, be destined to return and convert their own country? The conversion of Africa by Africans is perhaps a more hopeful scheme than its conversion by Europeans. Our chief care will be humbly, and according to the means at our disposal, to form houses for the education of negro youth, as well as labor for those whose youth is passed."

These extracts give us the object and aim of the Jesuit campaign. A special blessing from the Pope has been bestowed. The English Catholics are devoted, wealthy, and are to furnish the funds, to be supplemented by all that can be raised in this country. The college near London is to raise up the leaders, while in this country a large institution is to be established at Baltimore, with branches throughout the South, to raise up a host of native laborers. To co-operate in various ways a sisterhood is to cast the net still more skillfully among the negroes. The effort is made to grasp control of the education of the youth, and thus gain the control of the situation, and eventually wield the political and religious power of these millions of freedmen to suit the Church of Rome.

The first missionaries, four in number, arrived last November, and have begun their work. The ceremony on their departure was presided over by Archbishop Manning. The missionaries, kneeling in front of the altar, severally took a vow to undertake no other work than the conversion of negroes and the salvation of their souls. These four priests form but the vanguard. Forty more are to follow as soon as ground can be broken.

Present papal efforts are in progress where there exists a nucleus of Catholics, largely in Maryland and Louisiana, with considerable activity and success in Florida. An appeal recently to the thronged Catholic churches in New York, by one of the Southern priests, brought overflowing contributions. They are already planting their strategical points. They are spending already with lavish hand that puts to shame the efforts of other societies. There is no doubt a compact and powerful outset will be made.

What will be their success? In reply, some would scout the effort as entirely chimerical, and opposed to the whole genius of the negro; but such must reflect that great success has attended the Jesuit efforts in some negro communities both in Africa and parts of America, and success is attending their efforts to-day at several points among the freedmen. They strive to win by every affection of love. No prejudice of color finds place in their system. The sisters will find thousands of the homes of the needy poor open to them. The negro taste for gaudy finery and show, for music, and for wild excitement, they will gratify. Visions and special revelations, such as Africans delight in, will be supplied. A broad basis of ignorance exists, and there are aptitudes and opportunities such as render it to the Jesuits "a mission full of hope." There is danger, real danger. Without counteracting effort, the freedmen will fall by thousands into the net that is spread by Rome. The truth seems to be just this: If neglected by the Christians, the Romanists will step in. As one of the bishops above says: "There are immense numbers, whose future depends on the exertions that will be made in their favor." Many of them are prepared for a religion that gratifies their tastes in worship, and gratifies their lusts in practice. A religion without morality suits them.—Interior.

THEY who once engage in iniquitous designs miserably deceive themselves when they think that they will go so far and no farther; one fault begets another, one crime renders another necessary; and thus they are impelled downward into a depth of guilt which, at the commencement of their career, they would have died rather than have incurred.—Southey.

MACMILLAN'S MAGAZINE says: St. Jerome, in his retreat at Bethlehem, endeavored to cure his mind of its hankering after classical literature by submitting his body to repeated flagellations, the very method which in our public schools is applied, quite as ineffectually, for the opposite purpose.

A PROTESTANT gentleman being triumphantly asked by a Roman Catholic, "Where was your church before Luther?" replied: "Did you wash your face this morning?" "Yes." "Well, then, where was your face before it was washed?"

VOICES FROM A PRISON.

BY B. H. CARL.

There is a book in circulation known as "State Prison Life, by One Who Has Been There," which presents some startling facts. These facts are not new, but so important that it is well to keep them before the people all the time. To satisfy my own curiosity, and that of some of my friends, I visited the prison referred to (Indiana State Prison, at Jeffersonville,) and made inquiries concerning the genuineness and authenticity of the book in question, and found that it was reliable authority. This information I received from the officers of the penitentiary. Being thus satisfied with the source of my information, a few extracts are given for the consideration of all.

"Here, in our own prison, there has been a careful canvass taken of each prisoner, and the facts revealed are astonishing.

"Nineteen-twentieths of the inmates here tell us that their imprisonment is the effect of intemperance. Think of that! Had it not been for strong drink, instead of four hundred there would have been only twenty prisoners here. These figures are astonishing but true. Is it not time that something was done to free our country of this terrible scourge?"

"There are at this date, March 27, 1871, twenty-seven life-time prisoners here. All but four attribute their unfortunate condition to the effects of intemperance. Young men of our land, beware!"

The writer then gives the particulars concerning each life-time man. The following is an epitome of the account in part:

"Abram Quarrels, sentenced from Posey county. While intoxicated became involved in bar-room quarrel, and there committed the crime that brought him here.

"Johnny Wetts, aged nineteen, only a boy, became dissipated at an early age. He shot his best friend while drunk. Wouldn't injure a fly when sober.

"Peter Ditman was a good soldier during the war. He was addicted to drink. Returning to his boarding house one day while drunk, shot his wife; is here now.

"Zach Wade is a victim of strong drink. He is only twenty-one years of age.

"John Garris, who was a soldier, killed his friend in a fit of drunkenness.

"Michael Wiley once delivered a temperance address before his fellow-prisoners, in which he said: 'If it had not been for whisky I should not have been here; but here I am, and here I expect to remain the rest of my life.'"

This speech tells the tale of nearly every man in the life-time range.

"Come to our prison and look at the men in the life-time range, and you will find very few that meet your idea of a murderer. There is a fine-looking man with a noble head, a frank, open countenance, and an eye that looks you square in the face. You say you cannot believe him a murderer. He is not. He never killed any one. It was rum that did the dark deed that ruined him."

Other extracts might be given, but enough have been cited to furnish additional proof of the damnable nature of the liquor traffic. That wise men, Christian men, can license the sale of it is passing strange, and yet they do. In this same prison, once when the convicts were assembled in their chapel, some one proposed that all present who desired total prohibition laws should raise their hands; in an instant every one present held their hand aloft. If convicts thus vote, ought it not put to shame the professed follower of Christ who would cast a ballot to extend or protect this inhuman traffic?—Central Christian Advocate.

THE DANGERS OF COVETOUSNESS.—When covetousness gains a complete ascendancy, engrossing the whole man, it forms that compound of all that is mean and despicable, that monster of moral deformity, usually called a miser. In our day the tribe is not very numerous, which is a matter of gratitude, for should they multiply they would certainly create a desert around them. I know of no passion which so deeply agitates and degrades, so effectually enslaves and destroys the soul, as covetousness. The man who sets his heart upon riches must necessarily be a stranger to peace and enjoyment. Fear, care, anxiety, suspicion and jealousy place him on a constant rack. To the toil of getting is added the trouble of keeping his pelf. Avarice is insatiable as the grave, or rather as a gulf without bottom. The more this passion is supplied with fresh fuel the more vehement is the flame.—Rusticus.

A LADY recently asked a distinguished member of the French Academy of Sciences: "What is the use of being an academician if you can't tell what comets are made of?" To which the learned man replied: "Madam, that I may be able to say I don't know."

The People of Italy and Their Pope.

Later and fuller dispatches from Italy show that the defeat of the clerical or papal party, at the polls, has been decisive. After abstaining from the general elections for years, by order of the Vatican, the party supposed the time had come for a contrary policy. It made thorough preparations in the canvass. It deliberately entered the arena, and threw down the gauntlet. The eyes of all Europe and America looked on; for the papal organs, in both hemispheres, had persisted in declaring that the people are at heart with the Pope, and would show the fact, sooner or later, at the polls.

There has evidently been some apprehension of a contrary result in the Vatican, for Catholics in Italy know, much better than their foreign brethren, the relaxation of the old superstitions among the peasantry and working classes generally. It is an undeniable fact that there is infinitely more loyalty to the Pope in Ireland and America than in Italy or Spain, or even Austria. It is probable that the Vatican counselors yielded to foreign urgency in permitting the test of the late election. But whatever their reason, they began the contest coolly, and have failed disastrously. Not only the population generally, but Rome pre-eminently has declared against the clericals.

The verdict is too emphatic to leave any hope to the papacy. It will have profound effect on other papal countries. M. Thiers himself, it seems, has become convinced by it. He acknowledges himself utterly surprised at the advance of popular opinion in Italy; at the preparation which the people evince for self-government; and he pronounces Victor Emanuel the best statesman among the royal heads of Europe, because he has proved himself capable of carrying out Cavour's policy without Cavour.

One thing is now clear to all impartial statesmen of Europe—namely, that the unity of Italy and the government of Emanuel are established, permanent facts. The policy of the Catholic States must accord with these facts. All this means simply that the papacy, as a State power, is done with. It has had a great history, but it has exhausted itself. It can no longer harmonize with the civilization of Europe. It is paralyzed at the heart, at its own center, Rome itself, and must die.

The clerical party, however, will not be able to perceive this fact, so obvious to statesmen and the world at large. They are blinded by their old traditions and ecclesiastical imbecilities. They even look for miracles to save what God's own manifest providence is sweeping away. They will go on with their clamorous and ludicrous protestations and pretensions. These will only tend to augment the general European reaction against them. Governments will probably have to take some of them in hand, as Bismarck has the German Jesuits. They will fall lower and lower, till they sink entirely out of the policy and diplomacy of Europe. We may even hope, from significant indications, that the "voluntary principle" shall supersede State churches generally—a result not altogether improbable within the present century.—Methodist.

ALL HANDS BELOW.

A good story is told of a parrot who had always lived on board a ship, but who escaped at one of the southern ports and took refuge in a church. Soon afterward the congregation assembled, and the minister began preaching to them in his earnest fashion, saying there was no virtue in them, that every one of them would go to hell unless they speedily repented. Just as he spoke the sentence, up spoke the parrot from his hiding place:

"All hands below!"

To say that "all hands" were startled would be a mild way of putting it. The peculiar voice and unknown source had much more effect on them than the parson's voice ever had. He waited a moment, and then, a shade or two paler, he repeated the warning.

"All hands below!" again rang out from somewhere.

The preacher started from his pulpit, and looked anxiously around, inquiring if anybody had spoken.

"All hands below!" was the only reply, at which the entire panic-stricken congregation got up, and a moment after they all bolted for the doors, the preacher trying his best to be the first, and during the time the mischievous bird kept up his yelling:

"All hands below!"

There was one old woman there who was lame, and could not get out so fast as the rest, and in a short time she was left entirely alone. Just as she was about to hobble out the parrot flew down, and, alighting on her shoulder, again yelled in her ear:

"All hands below!"

"No, no, Mister Devil!" shrieked the old woman, "you can't mean me. I don't belong here. I go to the other church across the way."

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

THE General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, which met at Detroit, on the motion of James Ross Snowden, unanimously adopted the following paper: Whereas, The Presbyterian Church, wherever it has been established, has been the firm and devoted friend of civil and religious liberty; and in our own land has supported the principles upon which our free institutions have been so happily established and maintained; And whereas, Measures have already been taken, and others are in progress and in contemplation, to celebrate at Philadelphia the centennial anniversary of the independence of the United States; And whereas, It may be expedient and appropriate that the Presbyterians of the United States of America should take some part in celebrating that great national epoch; therefore, Resolved, That a committee of thirteen be appointed to take this subject under consideration, and make a report thereon to the next General Assembly for its consideration, and for such action thereon as may be deemed proper.

"THE Free Church of England" is an organization recently formed in that country of those Evangelicals who are too much opposed to Ritualism and its works to have any fellowship with a body like the Church of England, which recognizes and protects it. The Magazine of the Free Church of England states that the body consists mainly of Episcopalians who, "while recognizing the value of an episcopal organization, regard it not as a divine ordinance of God, but as a convenient custom of the primitive age, in harmony with apostolic sanction." The Free Church does not, of course, recognize the doctrine of apostolic succession; but contends that a bishop should be "elected by the suffrages of his fellow-presbyters and their Christian congregations." It has also a convocation, which is purely a deliberative representative assembly, composed partly of the clergy and partly of the laity, the latter largely preponderating. More than $75,000 has already been expended in establishing Protestant services in parishes where Ritualism prevails, and to which the Free Church "can go with a revised Prayer Book, from which the priestly element, with its deadly heresies, is cast out, conduct Protestant services, and preach the glorious gospel of the grace of God."

THE Episcopal Board has a flourishing mission six hundred miles up the River Yang-tse, at its junction with the River Han, where three cities—Hankow, Wuchang and Hanyang—are situated, very much as New York, Brooklyn and Jersey City are placed in relation to each other. In these three Chinese cities over a million inhabitants are living, for whom Rev. Messrs. Hoyt, Hobing and Boone, from this country, and two native pastor, Rev. Yung Kiung Ngan, are laboring. Notwithstanding the disturbed state of affairs in China within the past few years, they have never been molested in their work, and now their efforts are more than ever before receiving God's blessing. At the April meeting of the foreign committee about $3,500 were appropriated for the purchase of land and the erection of a chapel at Wuchang, and $4,000 were granted for similar purposes at Hankow; so that at length the missionaries who have labored so long, and waited so patiently for buildings suitable for their work, have thus been relieved from a great drawback. The two boarding schools at these places are the most efficient branches of the missionary effort there, reaching, as they do, a wide circle of native families by their influence. In these fully twenty scholarships, at the cost of $40 each per annum, are sustained by churches in this country; and as many more are wanted without delay.

WESTERN TURKEY.—The Rev. Mr. Spaulding writes to the Missionary Herald, under date of May 15, that an interesting work of grace was in progress at Nicomedia. He says: "The work of grace in Nicomedia still continues. The truth is taking effect where least we expected—among the old Armenians. Several are suffering severe persecution in their families, but will not yield and go back to the old corrupt religion. There are two or three Jews who are somewhat awakened. Our chapel is crowded to overflowing, both upon the Sabbath and week days. The work is very encouraging also in the villages. Mr. Hitchcock and myself made another tour in April. At Chengeler there are tokens of good. Koordheleng is especially hopeful. The congregation has increased from fifteen or twenty to one hundred within the space of three months; the school has doubled, and now numbers thirty; and three new brethren have been added. Adahazar is in a flourishing condition. The church there is laying hold upon missionary work in the surrounding villages with cheerful alacrity and much success. But the work is brightest of all in the two villages of Armanli (?) and Haskal. In the first-mentioned place, five new families, and in the second, four new families have embraced the faith. Every week we learn some hopeful facts in relation to the progress of the work in these adjacent villages. I sent the Bible woman to Armanli to labor there for a short time. She reports a work of extraordinary promise among the women."

IN AN ACCOUNT of the New Zealand mission the Church Missionary Record speaks of a noticeable incident which occurred during the past year in the capture and execution of Kereopa, for instigating the murder of the faithful Volkner, who was killed in March, 1865, and who died praying for his murderers. Rev. T. S. Grace, the companion of Volkner when he was seized by the natives, appealed to the Governor to spare Kereopa's life, urging that others had already suffered for the crime, and that leniency might have a good effect. But the colonial authorities deemed it wiser to allow the law to take its course. And, strange to say, this savage persecutor of Christians as foreigners, and of native Christian people because they would not join his cause, at last professed faith in the Christian Savior as his ground of pardon and hope. The Bishop of Waiapu writes: "I conclude with a notice of the wretched man, Kereopa, who was executed a fortnight ago, for the murder of Mr. Volkner. I found that he had a considerable amount of knowledge. He could state clearly the ground of the Christian hope; but he was unwilling for a long time to make a clear confession, such as might indicate sincerity of repentance. On the last morning Mr. Samuel Williams was in attendance. He said to him: 'Kereopa, perhaps you may not regard yourself as a principal in this murder, nor think yourself so guilty as other people believe you to be.' He interrupted, with great warmth of expression: 'Oh! do not say that. It was I who did it; it was I who caused the death of Mr. Volkner.' And now he seemed to be better able to realize—what he had many times before repeated—that he looked to Christ for the pardon of his sin. If we are right in hoping that Kereopa died in the faith which was possessed by the thief upon the cross, shall it be said that the attempt to Christianize the Maori is a failure?"

THE great opportunity which has been lately opened for Christian work at Rome has been embraced by American Christians living or sojourning there with commendable wisdom and courage. The beginning was made, immediately after the proclamation of religious liberty, by Mrs. E. B. Gould, the wife of an American physician resident in Rome, who gathered a school of destitute children and began to give them Christian instruction. Her work has rapidly progressed, and two flourishing schools are now in operation. In April last an "American church" was called together; representatives from the Baptist, Congregational, Episcopal, Methodist, Presbyterian and Unitarian churches uniting in the formation of a society, to which the Rev. Henry R. Waite was called to minister. The purpose is, as set forth in the circular before us, to organize a church "based upon the simple principles of the gospel, catholic in its character, embracing all who acknowledge themselves as God's children, and in sincerity and truth love our Lord Jesus Christ." The first floor of a palace, the rent of which is $2,400 in gold, has been secured, containing apartments which will serve as audience room for the church, as quarters for the Young Men's Christian Association organized in connection with this church, and as a residence for the pastor. The Christians who are in Rome will bear their full share of this expense; but it is not too much to expect that they will be assisted in this and in their missionary work by Christians in this country. The first quarter's rent will be due on the first of October. A church of this character—simply Christian, wholly free from sectarianism—is needed in Rome more than anywhere else. In that city and neighborhood the strifes and divisions among Protestants have been exceptionally bitter and indecent; and there is need of a standing illustration of the real unity of spirit which prevails and is steadily increasing among the Protestant denominations.

"GROW IN GRACE; because this is the only way you can be certain that you have any grace at all. If we aim not at growth in grace, we have never been converted to godliness. He that is satisfied with his attainments, has attained nothing. He that sees so little of the promises of the inward, transforming, elevating influences of grace as to think that he has attained all he can desire, has never understood the first elements of the Christian life which aspires after perfection; we have desires awakened which nothing but complete holiness will satisfy. He who says he is content with his progress has never set out to heaven."—Robert Hall.

The Christian Advocate.

Organ of the Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 26, 1872.

REV. LINUS PARKER, D. D., Editor.
ROBT. J. HARP, PUBLISHER.

OFFICE--No. 112 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

Address, on all matters of business, Rev. R. J. HARP, 112 Camp street, New Orleans.

Address all communications designed for publication to Rev. LINUS PARKER, 112 Camp street, New Orleans.

AGENTS—All the members of the patronizing Conferences.

CONFERENCE PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

FOR ALABAMA CONFERENCE:
REV. W. A. McCARTY.
REV. EDWARD WADSWORTH, D. D.
A. W. LAMPKIN, ESQ.

FOR MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE:
REV. W. H. WATKINS, D. D.
REV. JAMES A. GODFREY.
REV. J. G. JONES.

FOR LOUISIANA CONFERENCE:
REV. WILLIAM V. TUDOR, D. D.
REV. JOHN MATHEWS.
REV. LINUS PARKER, D. D.

REDUCTION.

The New Orleans Christian Advocate will be furnished to subscribers hereafter at the following rates:

For One Year	$2 00
For Six Months	1 25
For Three Months	75

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR

to all ministers of the gospel; traveling or local, and widows of deceased traveling preachers.

FREE ONE YEAR

to any person forwarding to us four new yearly subscribers with EIGHT DOLLARS.

PRAYER AND THE HOLY SPIRIT.

The Holy Spirit is one of the objects of prayer. "How much more shall your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to them that ask him?" Thus the Savior pute the matter, making prayer the condition upon which this most comprehensive gift is hestowed. The Spirit is to he asked for directly, and all the promisss of his bestowal, ae the Sanctifier and Comforter, are douhtless subject to this qnalification. David, in his penitential psalm, deprecates the departure of the Spirit of God, and praye with alarming earnestness: "Take not thy Holy Spirit from me;" and again, in conscious guilt and weakness: "Uphold me with thy free Spirit." The very character of the Holy Ghost as a gift, as promised, and to be sent, implies this condition of prayer. There are certain operations of the Spirit in awakening and conviction which take place in the nnconverted before prayer is poesible; but for the penitent and the converted, for all sincere and humble ssekere, the Spirit is certainly to be asked for. The gnilty but penitent backslider hy prayer may arrest his departure from the soul, and experience hie restoring and healing power. The faithful Christian may ohtain larger manifestations of the Spirit in hie work in the heart by devoutly seeking for them.

So dependent are we upon the Spirit for every grace, and so manifold are his offices and operations in the work of salvation, it is not strange that he is eet before us as an object of prayer. It is possible, however, that believers do not ask for him as directly and as importunately as they shonld. It may often happen that the Spirit is grieved hy the careless and comparatively indifferent way in which he is mentioned or thought of in their praying. A thonsand things are in the mind, and many of them asked for before him, while the gift of the Spirit should be the burden of desire and snpplication. This is above all the richest heritage of the lovng heart—the boon which Paul had in his mind when he declared the import of Isaiah's wonderful etrain:

"Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him. But God hath revealed them nnto us by his Spirit." To obtain a spiritual apprehension and experience of the deep things of God, the Holy Spirit must be made the habitnal desire and hnrden of prayer. All sincere and honest sonls have reason to ponder this enhject. They cannot afford to ignore the promised gift and its condition: Snch a test of prayer as this God has made himself. Let the seeker, tronbled with donhts and pressed by the conflicts of inward temptation and conviction, try it. It is precisely what the dark and tronhled sonl needs, and God has promised as a Father to give the Holy Spirit to them that ask him.

The Holy Spirit is intimately connected with prayer in another sense as the qualification essential to its exercise. Hsnce we have these eng-gestive scriptures: "Praying always with all nrayer and supplication in the Spirit," and "praying in the Holy Ghost." Besides the letter of revelation and the objects for which we are warrantsd to pray, there is a gracious preparation which the Spirit snpplies. When we consider the coldness and formality, and the dullness and inconstancy to which even secret prayer is liable, we can comprehend how much the Spirit is needed to quicken desire and to strengthen faith: Praying in the Holy Ghost is something different from praying for him, and impliss that the heart is filled and guided hy him. It is prayer unitsd with communion, and with love shed ahroad, and with euch hungsring and thirsting after righteousness as only the epiritual nature feele. It is not the prayer of a siuner seeking pardon, but rather of a eaint of matnreet experiences struggling after higher and grander bleseinge. Prayer ie often earthly and selfish—it is on a level with the sensnal and sordid eonl which ntters it. There may be a willfulness in it, or a narrowness, a quernlous and dictatorial epirit. Praying in the Holy Ghost is eminently spiritnal, submissive and humble. Especially in interceesion this is the essential quality, because it secures holiness, charity and faith. There ie a nearness to God which moves the arm of Omnipotence, and it is in anewer to euch prayer that God ie delighted to eend down his richest hlessings. Praying in the Spirit thne distinguishes the true prayer of helievere from all that is merely formal, and from all that is actuated by low and nnworthy motives.

Still another relation of the Holy Spirit to prayer is that of helpfulness in the Christian'e trials and conflicts. "Likewise the Spirit also hslpeth our infirmitiee; for we know not what we ehonld pray for as we ought: but the Spirit itself maketh intercession for ns with groanings which cannot be uttered." Here the office of the Spirit ie to help our infirmities, our ignorance of what is bsst. our impatience and distrust in affliction, and to inspire snhmiesion and confidsnce. In the perplexing dispeneations of Providence it is natural to fret under the yoke of trial, and to choose for ourselves the path of dsliverance. The intorcession which the Spirit makse is within the troubled eonl, and its end is to bring about a right epirit—a snhmission which Job framed into such words as these: "Though he slay me, yet will I trust in him;" and which onr great Exemplar exhibitod in the pathos of Gethsemane: "O, my Father, if thie cup may not pass away from me, except I drink it, thy will be done." The Spirit'e help is to work in ue this patience and enbjection to the will of God, to raiss and pnrify the affections, and so to inspire desires which accord with our higheet good.

None hut those who have passed through the severeet ordeale of affliction, and have wrestled euccessfully with their own infirmities of ignorance and pride, can altogether comprehend theee nnutterahle groanings. It ie with an enlarged application, however, that we may dwell npon the assurance that the Spirit helps our infirmities in prayer. If given np to his guidance, and humbly eeeking his aid, the Christian will he strengthened and directed. His heart will go out after right objects, he will rise above everything groveliug and sensual, and he will thiret for the living God. His understanding will he enlightened, his faith will he purified and strengthened, and he will walk with God. With theee relatione of the Holy Spirit to prayer, it is evident that there is no other dnty or privilege which hrings ns into so intimate contact with the moet awful and most myeterions workings of God. It is something so spiritual, so entirely interpenetrated, and surrounded by the Holy Spirit, that its nature and efficacy belong alone to the domain of Christian consciousness. It is the profoundest proof and expression of the supernatural and spiritual in religion.

LAST DAYS OF DR. BOND.

The St. Louis Advocate of September 18 contains an elaborate and interesting memoir of Dr. Bond, written hy Rev. Samnel Rodgers, of the Baltimore Conference. We snbjoin what relates to the last days of the eminent and lamented dead:

He felt, as had his father before him, that no other preparations than those relating to earthly affairs remained to be mads. He could lis down in perfect confidence, resting in the love of his Redeemsr, and awaiting the summons home. "I die," said he, "in the faith of Christ." He communicated his wishes in rsgard to the persons who should conduct the services at his funeral, and even as to the general character of the obsequies. Nothing was more touching than his appreciation of the kindness of his friends and the affectionate attention of his relatives.

During the last week of his life he said: "If I recover I shall consider that I have bought very cheaply the knowledge which I have gained, through all this pain and sickness, of the consolations of religion, the affection of my family, and the interest of friends; and perhaps," he added, after a pause, "it may still he cheaply gained if I do not recover."

He conld talk but little during the last two weeks of hie life, though the vigor of his mind was unimpaired to the last. He enjoyed sacred song, especially the old hymns to the tunes mads familiar in his boyhood. In particular he loved to hear: "When I in thy likeness, O Lord, shall awake," etc.

Through the long hours of enforced idleness of the earlier part of his illness he seemed to spend much time in reviewing his life, and often said: "I can now see that my steps have been guided, and circumstances, which at the time seemed adverse, have been made to work for my good." Ons fact deeply impressed him. Thie is sufficiently explained in hie own words: "I see now more clearly than ever that my Father'e hand prevented my entrance upon the political career which a short time before the war seemed opening to me, and which was not without attractions. Bnt," he added, "from the time I decided never to enter political life, I fixed my miud and heart more fully on spiritnal things; and I thank God that he saved ms from a course of life which ie so full of danger, and called me to be a co-worker with himself."

His last editorial appeared in the St. Louis Christian Advocate July 31. Althongh extrsmely weak, and suffering much pain, he wrote with the ease, rapidity and correctness that characterized him in health. It was, indeed, remarkahle that whils he was so rapid in execution, no revision of his articlee was necessary before sending to the press. When he had written the final line he handed the paper to one of ths family, saying: "There, mail that for me; it is the last I shall ever write." A moment afterward he continued: "I have found in my desk an artielo on David, written some time ago. Take that and divide it into numbers. It will make four editorials, and these will last until after I have gone." With the same calmness and care he arranged all hie affairs, eaying: "I have nothing to do bnt to think, and I desire to give the family as little trouble as poesible after I have gone." Several times he spoke of ths article, "For the Father's Sake," as his last, and seemed to draw from it comfort in regard to hie own children.

One day, when arranging for his departure (which he did as if going on a journey, and leaving directions to be observed in his absence,) he said: "I would like to write my dying testimony to the truth of the Christian religion. I wish to proclaim as widely as I can that I believe profoundly in the religion of Christ as a philosophical system." It might do eome good. There are many men who have doubts on this subject; and there might hs among ths readers of onr paper, or those who have known me, some who would be influenced by my convictions. I have had opportunities more favorable to the investigation of the subject than most men, and have for many years devoted most of my time to an honest search for the truth. Truth must be in the world somewhere, and I have carefully considered all the intellectual, philosophical and moral systems which have appeared, and am convinced that it is not in them. They will not hear the tests; they are inadequate to man's wants. Christianity is the only system that fully meets those wants. Considered merely in ite philoeophical or intellectual aspects, it only, of all, has not lost power and influence, as time has given opportunity for thorough examination. After every conflict Christianity has shone with a clearer, brighter light; and I want to have it known that the resnlt of all my investigations and thought has been an ever-increasing conviction that Christianity contains all the truth there is in the world—that what it reveals is sufficient for man's needs. I am fnlly satisfied that the writings of the Old and New Testaments are God'a revelation for the guidance of man."

The church will deeply regret his inability to fulfill his wish; hut when reminded of the desire he had expressed he said: "I shall not be able to do it." All, therefore, that can he done is to pnt on record his dying declaration, and, as nearly as can be recalled, in the words he used.

In speaking with some of his near friends of those who had gone hsfore, and the certainty of communion with them in heaven, he said: "The Bible does not positively assert that we shall in another world recognize the friends we have known in this, bnt the inferences all lead to this conclusion. All the noble and pure attributes of man's nature are prophetic of a higher devslopment, and are beyond doubt imperishable. The love for family and friends is one of the best and nohlest of these. It is one which, instead of diminishing in force ae the powers of life wane, rather grows in intensity. A man's love for hie family when on his death-hed is stronger than at any other period of his life. Hence the presnmption risee almost to certainty that this love shall be exercised, strsngthened and deepened throughout eternity. We may confidently expect to be snrronnded in another world hy those we have loved most dearly here"

While all these memorabilia of his dying hours are necessarily imperfect, wanting as they must he in the exact phraseology which never failed him, they may nevertheless serve to indicate the tenor of his thoughts as he drew near to ths Invisible. The last may remove pain from some loving hearts, and is the more valuable because it does not answer the question, Shall we know each other? hy an appeal to the feelings merely.

At another time he asked of one who etood near, "What is the victory over death?" and to the answer given he in a moment added his own, speaking slowly, and with an intense gaze, which gave peculiar emphasis to his words: "Is it not the victory over tho dread of death? Is it not the victory of patience nndsr the sufferinge which precede death? Is it not the victory of resignation in the prospect of death? Is it not the victory of faith, which looks beyond death and truets all to Christ? Is it not also tho victory over the anxieties and caree of the world, and the life which is left behind? This victory is won now in Christ Jesus, who is able to make ns conquerors, and more than conquerors, through his love. I have no cares." He added with emphasis: "I have no caree and anxieties now. I have laid all upon him. The fear of the physical pain of death ie all that remains to be conquered. That fear still exists, hnt I think very little about it."

For many days before his death he was nnable to lie down or to enjoy the refreshment of natural sleep. Only a few moments before death he endeavored to feel hie pulse, that he might determine with what rapidity the sands of life were running out. This action, which had marked two gensrations of his ancestors, evinced the continned control of hie mental powere; and so, with all he loved most dearly gathered at his bedside, he quietly passed away, adding one more to the innumerahle company saved through ths riches of grace in Christ Jeens.

SARTOR RESARTUS.

Under thie head Church and State administere as follows to Ritualism. Why do not the Low Church people quit this ecclesiastical millinsry establishment, and preach and pray in the garb of men and citizens?

The "clothes" question is indeed an old one—as old and as unsettled as any of the problems of philosophy. And there is a philosophy of clothes, as every reader of Carlyle is well aware. Even Shakespeare seldom spoke more truly than when he said that "often the apparel proclaims the man." For if, according to the still older proverb, "a man is known by the company he keeps," he is scarcely less so hy the clothes he wears, provided always he has money in hie purse to purchase them according to hie taste. There are none so dull as not to receive an impression of a etranger, favorable or nnfavorahle, from the material and style of hie dress, and equally from the manner in which it ie put on. The character of Bean Nash wae visible in his necktie, and his success in thie made him enviable in the eyes of his imitatore. Then there ie a etyle of dress that suits and indicates a robnst and manly character, juet as the opposite evincee a feminine disposition.—Hence a love of dress is pardonable, and may he praiseworthy in woman, if properly regnlated. Bntin men it is not commendable, women themselves heing onr judges. And this is the significance of Ritualism in its relations to the dress question, which receives from Ritualists a disproportionate share of attention. They give too much time to it, are too much engrossed by it, and hence allow it to acquire a degree of importance in their eyes wholly disproportionate to the dignity of the subject. While making little of preaching, and other aspects of their calling, they are ever ready to expatiate on "the clothes qnestion," and even hold faire for the exhibition of fancy dresses, ornamental altar-cloths, hook-marks, and other varieties of ecclesiastical millinsry. And in London these fairs often attract crowds of Ritnalistic elergy and their feminine followers.

What does this prove? Why clearly that the religion inculcated in their churches is, and ever must be, of the same superficial and nnsatisfactory sort. Elss there is no truth in the maxim similia similibus. How was it in the dark ages, when the churches were converted into mussums, the services into "sacred concerts," and the clergy into popnlar performers, arrayed "in purple and fine linen?" It is notorious that the church lost her power, her salt ite savor, and hsr candlestick was removed or ceased to shed gospel light, and the firee of her altars kindled no divine life. Thns we sse that thie is no untried experiment, hnt an old devico to make religion attractive to the thonghtlesa and the worldly. Bnt the world is not won to Christ thereby, nor the careless converted. Ae Bishop Coxe said of these modern maes houses, they who appland the loudest at the ballet during the week, bow lowest before the altar on Sunday. Away, then, with the whole scheme, for it savors not of the things of God, but of the things of men, the cunning craftiness of ths children of this world.

RAILROADS AND RELIGION.

On this subject the Galveston Christian Advocate contains a well-considered and suggestive article. We quote the concluding paragraphs, as follows:

The railroad trains men to habits of punctuality. Bringing men to time hae a happy influence upon character. Laxity in mseting husinese engagements will engender slackness respecting higher and holier obligations. When the vast operatious of Christianity are moving on time, and every organization and overy member is expected to come to ths hour promptly, a vast difference will he manifeeted in the aggregate result of Chrietian effort.

Railroads are enlarging man's conceptions of his own capacity. The wealth of Egypt wae taxed to hnild the pyramide; bnt private enterprise is covering continents with a network of roads, and ie projecting new enterprisee that will involve an expenditure which would have impoverished the valley of the Nile in its palmiest days. The Christiau world sharee thie spirit, and ie projecting schemes for the relief of human sorrow and spread of the gospel on the same gigantic ecale. At no period of the world'e history have private fortunes grown eo rapidly and to such vast proportione ae at the present day; and at no period have private charities and contributions to religious movements been marked hy ench princely munificence. The railroads are hringing natione into closer contact, and eetablishing the honds of mutual interest betwesn rival empires, which will hasten the day when men will he willing to beat their "swords into plow-sharee." They are penetrating the lands of darkness, and planting civilization and the cross in nations hitherto inaccessihle. They are fast hreaking up the inertia of Oriental nations, and clearing the highway for the Prince of Peaco.

They ars the carriers of the gospsl to the nations. Had St. Paul possessed our facilitiee for travel, he would have "testified the gospel of the grace of God" in the four quarters of the globe. When the church in its movemente compasses the full measure of the agencies science and enterprise are providing, the gospel will he horne along every track, and find speedy access to every people.

REV. H. F. JOHNSON, president of Whitworth Female College, Brookhaven, Mississippi, gave us a call last week. Bro. Johnson, after a protracted and eerious illness, ie about well, and quite ready for his work. Whitworth opened on Wednesday, the twenty-fifth instant. It ie one of onr best, and for many the most convenient of our schools.

REV. DR. WATKINS, of Natchez, ie spending a week or two in New Orleane, much to the gratification of hie many friends. He preached on Sunday morning at the Carondelet Street church. All will he glad to hear him again.

COLUMBIA CONFERENCE.

A writer in the Pacific Methodist gives the following acconnt of the late Conference:

While results have not heen all we conld desire, we have much to encourage na. The people have heen kind, congregations larger, and some, we trust, heen brought to the "knowsdge of salvation hy remission of sins." Four camp meetings were held in the bounde of Willamette district, three of which I attended, and on similar occasions I never saw as good order anywhere.

Our Conference session was very pleasant. None of the brethrsn disd during the year, and none had heen seriously affected in person or family, which is canse of devout gratitude to onr Father in heaven. The presence of Dr. Sargent addsd much to the interest of the occasion; and by his courteous, Christian spirit won the hearts of all. His visit will long he remembered by us, and he, as a pleasant, cheerful Christian minister, will ever share a place in our affections and prayers, that the "peace of God which passeth understanding may keep his mind and heart, through Jesus Christ," unto eternal life.

Of Bishop McTyeire it does not become me to write. He must allow me to say, however, we all love him as a Christian minister, and for the deep interest he manifested toward us as the outside row in the great and growing field of Southern Methodism. As a presiding Bishop we commend him to you as chief among the brethren. Although a stranger to nearly all the members of the Pacific Conference, I want to say to you privately, brethren, have your statistical reports ready to read each for himself in open Conferences.

The members of our Conference have all received their appointments for another year, and have gone or will go to their work in the spirit of true itinerant Methodist preachers. Rev. E. J. Dawne, M. D., a transfer from Arkansas Conference, was with us, and met a cordial reception from all the brethren, who rejoice to welcome him to their midst as a fellow-laborer in the vineyard of the Lord. President B. L. Arnold, successor to Dr. Finley in Corvallis College, was with us. He ie a layman, of much experience ae an educator, and a courteous gentleman.

NICHOLAS SNETHEN.

We find the following in the Western Christian Advocate in reference to this eminent preacher, whose fame was national a generation ago:

The name of Nicholas Snethen is familiar to all Methodists. His ability was ench as to commend him to those who conld not agree with his course in the famous "Mutual Rights" controversy of a generation ago. Many of our readers may not be aware of tho fact that in old age he wandered away to the West, and died in a locality where there ie not a single eharer of his particular views of church polity. His grave is in the csmetery of Princeton, Indiana. His monument stands on a rise surrounded with evergreens. It is of marble, in striking imitation of many modern pulpits, about twenty-eix inches sqnare and eix and a half feet high, with an open Bible on top. On the west side is the following legend:

THE REV. NICHOLAS SNETHEN,
Of the Methodist Protestant Church,
Died May 30, 1845,
In the seventy-sixth year of his age.
"I have fully preached the gospel of Christ." Rom. xv, 19.

"Servant of God, well done,
Rest from thy loved employ:
The battle fought, the victory won,
Enter thy Master's joy."

The same stone commemorates hie wife, Snsan Hood Worthington, and several of their children.

MARVIN COLLEGE, TEXAS.—We are in receipt of a good report respecting the opening of Marvin College, Waxahachie, on the ninth instant, under the presidency of Rev. J. M. Pngh. It will he seen hy the advertisement that Bro. Pngh has organized a faculty which will at once command confidence and insure patronage. The school opensd with one hundred and nineteen on ths roll, with accessione every day. Among the students are eix young men who are licensed preachers, and ars preparing themselves for enlarged usefulness. We invoke in their behalf the assistance of the church. Some will need it. We commend their cases to our brethren who have heen prospered in business as presenting an opportunity of doing a good deed, and which may yield large results. A prayer meeting hae been organized hy the etudents, and the young preachers have formed an association for improvement in eciptnral knowledge. We rejoice at these tokens of prosperity in this institution, and doubt not that the sanguine hopes of its friends will be realized.—Galveston Christian Advocate.

REV. WILLIAM K. WILSON, one of the oldeet members of the Trinity Conference, died on the eighteenth of August.

GERMAN WORK IN VIRGINIA.

The Baltimore Episcopal Methodist supplies the following gratifying information. This work is growing healthfully and encouragingly throughout the South and Southwest. The Episcopal Methodist says:

The work is going forward under the able management of our excellent missionary, the Rev. E. N. S. Blogg. It is a standing marvel that he has been able to accomplish so much with the very inadequate means of support upon which he has to depend. His indomitable energy and uncomplaining disposition, under many discouragements, should commend the largest sympathy and secure for him and his family a more generous and prompt support. The fields are already "white to the harvest."

On Tuesday, the third instant, the corner-stone was laid for the First German church in Petersburg, Virginia. Rev. Drs. Granberry and Bennett, of Richmond, and Bro. Blogg made appropriate addresses, and the occasion was one of great interest, the clergymen of the city generally participating. More than a thousand people were present to witness the ceremonies. The Rev. Herman Ebers, a promising young minister, is stationed there, and is doing his work among his countrymen nobly.

Rev. Christian Evers is stationed at Norfolk and Portsmouth. He preached his first sermon at Granby Street church last Sunday a week. The day will long be remembered by the German community of that section.

The Rev. Godlove Myers preached his first sermon in Baltimore about three weeks ago. He is a young man of talents, and promises much usefulness among the Germans in this city and at Hookstown.

KENTUCKY CONFERENCE ITEMS.

The Kentucky Conference, Bishop Kavanaugh presiding, was held in Harrodsburg, September 4–10. A communication was presented from the Rev. J. B. McFerrin, D. D, missionary secretary, showing the receipts for the year ending June 1, 1872, to be $96,105 88, which exceeds the collections for any year since 1865 by several thousand dollars. He stated that there were calls for missionary aid from China, Mexico, South America, Indian Missions, and our own domestic fields, and urged the Conference to increase its contributions. A communication was also presented from the Rev. A. H. Redford, D. D., agent Southern Methodist Publishing House, Nashville, Tennessee, showing the assets of the House to be $278,938.09, liabilities $49,201.31, and profits for the year, $33,189.23; diminished by the loss in the fire of February 15 to $13,189.23. The Joint Board of Finance reported the following: Preachers' claims in Kentucky Conference, $61,300; preachers' receipts in Kentucky Conference, $50,854.48; presiding elders' claims in Kentucky Conference, $8,149; presiding elders' receipts in Kentucky Conference, $6,839.67; Conference collection receipts in Kentucky Conference, $1,516 16; Bishops' fund in Kentucky Conference, $915.81. The Rev. T. B. Cook, treasurer of the Conference Board of Missions, presented his report, showing that $2,710.87 had been collected in the Conference during the past year for the support of missions. The Committee on Missions presented a report appropriating $5,000 to the cause of missions for the ensuing year.

WESTERN CONFERENCE.

The Western Conference held its session at Nebraska City, September 4–8—Bishop Pierce, president; A. V. Bayley, secretary. We are greatly obliged to the Bishop for prompt returns, and will thank the secretary to forward the memoir of George O. Hilton, and the statistics, as soon as convenient. The session was pleasant and profitable. The Bishop writes us that the Conference is growing, being much helped by transfers, but it needs more. Yes, and if the old Methodist principle were carried out it would have them. The Bishop thinks there must be a Conference in Colorado and one in Montana, organized in 1874. It will be seen that the appointments sagaciously look to that arrangement. We are glad to see that an increase of six hundred and twenty-two is reported in the membership. S. W. De Busk and W. Carothers admitted on trial. Seven remain on trial and five were discontinued. There were baptisms reported—infants, 91; adults, 160. Sunday schools, 43; teachers, 248; scholars, 1,835. Collected for Conference claimants, $66.60; for missions, $168.45. The next session is to be at Atchison.—Nashville Christian Advocate.

CHURCH DEDICATION.—We are glad to announce that the new church at Cloverdale, Sonoma county, is almost finished. It will be dedicated on next Sunday. Dr. Fitzgerald will preach the dedicatory sermon. Pacific Methodist.

Agt's & Publisher's Department

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS OF LETTERS and Funds, Received by Mail, for the week ending Sept. 21, 1872:

A—E & H T Anthony & Co, Edwin Allen 2 lots, American News Co, Wm T Anderson $35.35.

B—D P Bradford, J M Best, L M Betz & Co, N R Bowman, Thomas W Brown, Wiley Brown $2, B F Baker, Mrs E O Burgoyne.

C—L Carley $7, Connecticut Publishing Co, H B Cromwell & Co 2 lots, R F Clement, W J Cheshire 85 cts, Claxton, Remsen & Haffelfinger, Clark & Russel, E Case, S H Cox.

D—P W DeFranc 50 cents, DeGolyer & Richen, E S Drake, A M & L Douglass, Dodd & Mead, J H Durant, W B Dennis, C L Dobbs $2.50, Lewis F Dowdell, B D Dashiel.

E—W C Enochs $2, I R Ellis $2.40. W A Edwards.

F—C A Filler.

G—T G Gilmore $2.50.

H—J B Higgenbotham, N L Hardy, J D Hays, T W Hines $10.25, J Hamilton, Haney & Sharman, J W Hearn.

J—F Joacs, Miss Lela Johnson 20 cts.

K—S R Koehler, John C Kittrell.

L—J B Lippincott & Co 3 lots, W B Lewis, Angus C Littlejohn.

M—David Merchant, J M McKee.

N—J W Newman, C R Norman, Jos Nicholson $21, R D Norsworthy, National Temperance Society.

P—Pierce & Terry, L Praag & Co, John E Potter & Co, J S Parker, J M Pugh $10.

R—W B Roane, J F Richardson, George Routledge & Sons, W C Rowland $5, G H Robert, E E F Ross 2 lots, J C Richardson, W W Richards, A Riser.

S—J W Schermerhorn & Co, Geo S Scofield, John D Salat, R A Sibley $1.85, S H Schroeder, J L Skipper, Sheldon & Co, Jas Shanks $4, A T Shepherd.

T—D E Thurman $2.

U—U S Publishing Co, H Urquhart.

W—M J Wicks $5, A R Winfield $19.25, J M Weems, Wilson, Hinkle & Co, J Woodbridge $25, Geo H Wells, W Watson, T Ward White $1.75, Thos B White, Horace Waters, D P Willie, B F White.

EXTENT OF CIRCULATION.—The New Orleans Daily Times claims that its circulation is "OVER DOUBLE that of any other journal in the South." If the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE be regarded as one of the "journals in the South," the Times is misinformed. Our opportunities for obtaining accurate information are equal to those of the publishers of the Times. Their circulation cannot be more than their issue. Their regular issue falls to between two and three thousand below the circulation of the ADVOCATE, according to our information.

PERSONAL.—The friends of Robert Babington, Esq., who has represented the interests of the ADVOCATE in Europe during the summer, will be pleased to learn that he has returned, much improved in health, having had a pleasant visit to the United Kingdom and the Continent.

BOOTS AND SHOES.—We call attention to the advertisement of R. F. W. Bachman, No. 18 Camp street, who keeps on hand a full and well-assorted stock of boots and shoes, and other articles in his line, in quantities to suit wholesale or retail purchasers. We advise our friends to call at his establishment. We think those who buy from him once are very apt to continue his customers.

RHEUMATISM.—Mr. N. Jenkins, who in another column advertises his Annihilator as a specific for rheumatism, etc., has been long known to us as a worthy, good citizen and neighbor, and his medicine has relieved more sufferers than any other of the kind that has ever fallen under our observation. To our own knowledge he could add many respectable names to his list of references who have seen and felt its effects.

STOVES, TINWARE, ETC.—The attention of the many friends of G. W. W. Goodwyn and Rev. P. M. Goodwyn is called to their advertisement, in another column, of stoves, heaters, tinware and tinwork. We are satisfied that orders sent to this house will be faithfully and promptly attended to. We advise purchasers of stoves and tinware to call at 52 Gravier street, near Tchoupitoulas, and examine their stock.

BANKERS.—Messrs. J. A. Norsworthy & Co., of Jefferson, Texas, whose card appears in our columns to-day, are worthy, reliable, prompt, energetic and capable business men. Most of our business with northeastern Texas, in their line, has been done through them for several years, and we can say that more courteous and obliging gentlemen we have not found. We heartily recommend them to our bankers who may have business in Jefferson or beyond.

BECKWITH SEWING MACHINE.—The attention of our readers is again directed to this cheap and meritorious sewing machine. The general agent in this city has received a number of letters from parties to whom he has sold this machine, expressing their appreciation of it, and in some instances accompanied with an order for another machine. Of the many he has sold, he has yet to learn of one that has given dissatisfaction. The working of the machine is so simple that the weakest intellect can readily comprehend it; in fact the low price of this machine, and its real merit, makes it a judicious purchase for all, rich and poor.

LIFE INSURANCE.—The Louisiana Equitable Life Insurance Company, the advertisement of which appears to-day, could not have selected a more suitable board of directors and officers, or men more thoroughly identified with the business interests and prosperity of New Orleans. It is a matter of vast importance to our city and country that these reservoirs of capital, into which flow so many streams, should not have an unseen conduit to conduct it to some distant city. Let those who insure consider well the claims of the companies which keep the funds at home to augment the deposits in our banks, reduce the rates of interest, and assist merchant and planter in developing the resources of our country. The Louisiana Equitable is a home institution, and, as we understand, its means are to be invested at home and for home interests.

CONFERENCE REGISTER.

Conference.	Place.	Time.	Bishop.
W. St. Louis.	Nevada C'y.	Oct. 2.	Pierce.
Louisville	Lebanon	Oct. 2.	Marvin.
Indian Miss.	Ocmulgee	Oct. 2.	Wightman.
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	Doggett.
St Louis	Arcadia	Oct. 16	Pierce.
Arkansas	Bentonville.	Oct. 16.	Wightman.
Tennessee	Nashville	Oct. 16.	Doggett.
Los Angeles.	Los Nietos.	Oct. 16	McTyeire.
N. W. Texas.	Belton	Oct. 23.	Keener.
White River.	Augusta	Oct. 30.	Wightman.
Trinity	Sul. Springs.	Nov. 6.	Keener.
Memphis	Somerville.	Nov. 20.	Wightman.
N. Alabama.	Tuskaloosa.	Nov. 20.	Doggett.
East Texas.	Tyler	Nov 20.	Keener.
Virginia	Petersburg	Nov. 20.	Paine.
N. Georgia.	Atlanta	Nov. 27.	Marvin.
N. Missis'ppi.	Corinth	Nov. 27.	Kavanaugh
Little Rock.	Pine Bluff	Dec. 4	Wightman.
Texas	Bryan	Dec. 4.	Keener.
N. Carolina	Raleigh	Dec. 4.	Paine.
S. Georgia.	Thomasv'le.	Dec. 11.	Marvin.
Mississippi	Brandon	Dec. 11	Kavanaugh
Alabama	Eufaula	Dec. 11.	Doggett.
West Texas.	Victoria	Dec. 18	Keener.
S. Carolina.	Anderson	Dec. 18	Paine.
Louisiana	N. Orleans.	Jan. 8	Pierce.
Florida	Fernandina.	Jan. 8.	Marvin.
Baltimore.	Baltimore	Mar. 6.	Paine.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

Twelve Samples (Postage Free) for fifty cents. Sells for $10. R. L. WOLCOTT, 181 Chatham square, N. Y. se26 1y

Do Not Despair.—Hundreds of cases of Scrofula, in its worst stages, that have defied the skill of eminent physicians, rheumatics who have been suffering for years, and the victims of the injudicious use of mercury, have been radically cured by Dr. Tutt's Sarsaparilla. It is the most powerful alterative and blood purifier known. It is prescribed by many physicians in their practice.

If you have Chills, whether every other day, every tenth day, or every two or three weeks, take Dr. Tutt's Liver Pills and you will check them; otherwise they will stick to you all winter se26 1t

Dr. Tutt's Hair Dye does not Stain the Linen.

Beware.—The public in general are cautioned to look out for the spurious articles put up in imitation of and as substitutes for Simmons' Liver Regulator. Buy only from respectable druggists, and see that it is put up in square packages and has the signatures of J. Q. Simmons and J. H. Zeilin & Co. on its side; all others are frauds upon the public. Beware! se26 1t

Price's Celebrated Stomach Bitters.—The Great Vegetable Restorative and Life-Giving Principle.—This wonderful vegetable restorative, since it has been before the public as a Tonic (October, 1869,) the quantity sold has been some 15,000 dozen, and in every instance given the greatest satisfaction. For dyspepsia, general debility, chills and fever, nervous affections, torpor of the liver constipation of the bowels fever and ague, and all choleraic maladies, these Bitters will be found invaluable to all who desire a stimulating Tonic, and are particularly recommended to all persons traveling, by land or sea. Wherever introduced it has become a standard article. It is the best and purest Tonic offered. As a Tonic and Cordial it has no equal among stomachics.

It is also a great blood purifier, a life-giving principle, and a perfect renovator of the system. No one can take these Bitters long and remain unwell. A single trial will convince any one of the merits claimed for them. Sold by grocers, druggists and dealers throughout the South.

Address JAMES W PRICE & Co., sole manufacturers and proprietors, Lock Box 166, New Orleans, Louisiana. se5 2m

Use Dr. Henry's World's Tonic and BLOOD PURIFIER.—It is the great household remedy, pleasant to take, yet potent for the prevention and cure of diseases. It is better than Bitters, Cordials, Buchu or Sarsaparilla. Sold by druggists. jy18 1y

Mrs. Whitcomb's Syrup.—The great soothing remedy. Price only 25 cents. Gives rest to the mother and health to the child. Sold by druggists. jy18 1y

Have your Printing and Binding Done at

THE PELICAN JOB OFFICE,

112 and 114 Poydras St., New Orleans. ja18 1y

The Equitable Life Assurance Society, New York.

Assets, $18,000,000. Incorp'd, $8,000,000.
Branch office—33 CAMP STREET.
A. P. CLEVELAND,
fe8 1y General Agent.

Caution!—Every genuine box of Dr. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS bears the signature of Fleming Brothers, Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, and their private United States stamp. ☞ Take no other; the market is full of imitations.

It is the popular verdict that people who have been accustomed to the use of Bitters or Cordials are obliged eventually to resort to McLane's Liver Pills for permanent relief. ap25 6m

Dr. Henry's Root and Plant Pills.—Mild yet thorough; no nausea or griping; entirely vegetable; great Liver remedy. Price, 25 cents. Sold by Druggists. jy18 1y

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

RHEUMATISM,
GOUT AND NEURALGIA PERMANENTLY CURED BY
N. JENKINS'
ANNIHILATOR.

A PURELY VEGETABLE COMPOUND, whose extraordinary virtues, in these painful diseases, are attested by certificates from many prominent citizens of every section of the country.

No medicine of the century has attracted as much attention.

Of the many to whom the proprietor is authorized to refer, may be mentioned the following well-known gentlemen:

Rev. Fisher P. Rawson, Delhi, Louisiana.
Rev. James E. Bradley, Floyd, Louisiana.
Rev. P. M. Goodwyn, New Orleans, La.
Rev. J. B. Walker, Galveston, Texas.

For circulars and for further information address N. JENKINS, Proprietor, se26 3m 100 Baronne st., New Orleans.

INSURANCE.....INSURANCE.
LOUISIANA
Equitable Life Insurance Company,
CHARTERED BY THE STATE OF LOUISIANA,
Office—Cor. Carondelet and Gravier Sts.

Parties desiring life insurance are informed that this company issues policies of insurance on all approved plans as low as any other company. All policies are non-forfeitable. Losses adjusted and settled with promptness and liberality. JAMES H. LOW, se26 1m President.

J. A. NORSWORTHY & CO.,
BANKERS,
24 Walnut street, Jefferson, Texas.

CORRESPONDENTS.—Ober, Edwards & Co., New Orleans; Northrup & Chick, New York; Bartholow, Lewis & Co., St. Louis. se26 1y

40 DROPS OF CONSTITUTION WATER, three times a day, cure inflammation of the Kidneys, Stone in the Bladder, Catarrh of the Bladder, Diabetes, Gravel, Gleet, Brick-Dust Deposit, Female Complaints, Dyspepsia and Torpid Liver. It is not a spring water. For sale by E. J. HART & CO., se26 6meow 73, 75 and 77 Tchoupitoulas st.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

G. W. W. GOODWYN,
52 Gravier St., near Tchoupitoulas,
DEALER IN
STOVES AND TINWARE.

Among his assortment of Cooking Stoves he invites special attention to the COTTAGE and THE BEST, as being unsurpassed by any Cooking Stoves in this market. They have all the modern improvements, are perfect bakers, and, without extra charge, are adapted for burning wood, coke or coal, and guaranteed to give satisfaction.

HEATING STOVES.—He has various styles of these on sale. Is agent also for the NEW BALTIMORE FIRE-PLACE HEATER, the most perfect, cheerful and economical Heater in use; will heat from one to a half dozen or more rooms at a cost, for coal, of twenty-five cents per day.

TINWARE.—In this line he keeps constantly on hand a full assortment of plain Tin and Japanned Ware.

(With the above, Rev. P. M. Goodwyn, a superannuate of the Louisiana Conference.) se26 0m

IMPORTANT RELIGIOUS BOOKS
LATELY PUBLISHED BY
LEE & SHEPARD, BOSTON.

Prof. L. T. Townsend's New Book.

GOD-MAN. SEARCH AND MANIFESTATIONS. By Prof. L. T. Townsend, author of "Credo," etc. 12mo. cloth. $1.50.

"It is written in a clear, earnest and vivacious style, from an evangelical standpoint, and will take a high place in the class of similar works."—Christian Intelligencer.

Also new editions of Prof. Townsend's

CREDO. 12mo, cloth, $1. 0.

THE SWORD AND GARMENT, OR MINISterial Culture. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

Pres. Hickok's New Works.

CREATOR AND CREATION, OR THE Knowledge in the Reason of God and its Work. By Laureas P. Hickok, D. D., LL. D. 1 vol., 8vo. $2.75.

"The distinguished author of this octavo volume aims by it to quicken and extend a deeper interest in speculative philosophy in an unphilosophical, skeptical age. Of the successful achievement of this purpose his eminent reputation is a full guarantee."—Christian Mirror.

HUMANITY IMMORTAL, OR MAN TRIED, Fallen and Redeemed. By Laureas P. Hickok, D. D., LL. D. Uniform with "Creator and Creation." 1 vol., 8vo, $2.75.

"Dr. Hickok is a thorough theological scholar, and a student as well of physical science. In his work on 'Creator and Creation' he felt that 'the full ideas of humanity could be comprehended only in a history of man through his trial, fall, redemption and resurrection to eternal life,' and his design of giving such a history is now accomplished. It is written with clearness and force and is in its way a remarkable work."—Worcester Palladium.

Dr. Manning's New Book.

HALF TRUTHS AND THE TRUTH. By Rev. J. M. Manning, D. D. Cloth, $2.

"These lectures represent the open-eyed, undisturbed and courageous faith of the live orthodoxy of the day."—Christian Union.

A Model Story Book by Mrs. Caroline Gilman and Mrs. Caroline H. Jervey.

STORIES AND POEMS. By Mother and Daughter. With numerous full-page illustrations. 4to, cloth, $1.75.

The authors of this beautiful volume are well known as writers for the young. It comprises a selection of their best articles for younger as well as older children, is elegantly illustrated and handsomely bound. Its high moral tone, pleasant style and great variety will commend it to all.

Sold by all booksellers and newsdealers.
LEE & SHEPARD, Publishers, Boston.
LEE, SHEPARD & DILLINGHAM,
se26 2t New York.

THE BEST SUNDAY SCHOOL MUSIC Book will be ready October 1, 1872.

PURE DIAMONDS.
BY JAMES R. MURRAY.

A new Sunday School Music Book, which we predict will become the most popular work of the kind ever published in America. Specimen pages are now ready, and will be sent free to any address.

PURE DIAMONDS will be issued in elegant style, printed on fine white paper, and substantially bound in boards. It will be ready promptly on the first of October, when orders will be filled in rotation. As the demand will be very large, all wishing specimen copies, or an early supply, should send in their orders at once.

PRICE.—Bound in boards, 35 cents; $3.60 per dozen; $30 per hundred. A copy in paper covers, for examination, mailed on receipt of 25 cents. Published by
S. BRAINARD'S SONS,
an22 1y Cleveland, Ohio.

AGENTS WANTED IN EVERY TOWNship of the United States to sell my
New County United States Map,
STATE MAPS, RELIGIOUS CHARTS,
LITHOGRAPHIC PRINTS, ETC.

Greater inducements are offered to Agents this season than ever before. Our new plan for the sale of the County United States Map guarantees success.

Catalogues sent free of charge. Address
GAYLORD WATSON, Publisher,
16 Beekman st., New York, or
D. NEEDHAM,
Watson's Chicago Branch.
se26 1m 669 Wabash ave., Chicago, Ill.

MUSICAL BOXES,

PLAYING FROM ONE TO ONE HUNDred Airs, and costing from $2.50 to $3,000. All sizes, styles and prices. Send stamp for catalogue.

MAGIC LANTERNS,

specially for Sunday schools, lectures, etc. A priced and illustrated catalogue sent on receipt of stamp.

W. MITCHELL McALLISTER.
an29 3m 728 Chestnut st., Phila.

TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT.

Medicinal Torpedoes. In the shape of dense cathartics, are falling into disrepute.

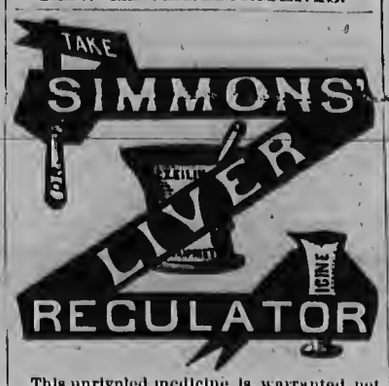
Tarrant's Effervescent Seltzer Aperient is driving them out of use. It is the mildest and most genial of all laxatives. Instead of weakening the stomach and bowels, it gives them tone and vigor. Other purgatives leave the excretory passages in an unnatural condition, and new concretions gather there, often more difficult to remove than those that have been violently expelled. The Seltzer Aperient, on the contrary, establishes a regular habit of body. As an appetizer and exhilarant it is far superior to any "Bitters," and its purifying influence on the vitiated animal fluids excels that of any blood depurient in the Materia Medica. And then, how delicious! Sold by all druggists. se19 2t

ESTABLISHED IN 1843.
GUNS! GUNS! GUNS!

Breech and Muzzle-loading Guns, Rifles, Pistols, Sportsmen's Apparatus, Ammunition and Material for Gunmakers, etc., wholesale and retail. Guns made to order or repaired in the best manner.

ALEXANDER McCOMAS,
se12 2m 51 South Calvert st., Baltimore, Md.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.



This unrivaled medicine is warranted not to contain a single particle of Mercury, or any injurious mineral substance, but is

PURELY VEGETABLE.

For FORTY YEARS it has proved its great value in all diseases of the LIVER, BOWELS and KIDNEYS. Thousands of the good and great in all parts of the country vouch for its wonderful and peculiar power in purifying the Blood, stimulating the torpid Liver and Bowels, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system. SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR is acknowledged to have no equal as a

LIVER MEDICINE.

It contains four medical elements never united in the same happy proportion in any other preparation, viz.: a gentle Cathartic, a wonderful Tonic, an unexceptionable Alterative, and a certain Corrective of all impurities of the body. Such signal success has attended its use that it is now regarded as the

GREAT UNFAILING SPECIFIC

for LIVER COMPLAINT and the painful offspring thereof, to wit: Dyspepsia, Constipation, Jaundice, Bilious attacks, Sick Headache, Colic, Depression of Spirits, Sour Stomach, Heart Burn, etc. Regulate the Liver and prevent

CHILLS AND FEVER.

SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR is manufactured only by
J. H. ZEILIN & CO.,
Macon, Georgia, and Philadelphia.

Price, $1 per package; sent by mail, postage paid, $1.25. Prepared ready for use in bottles, $1.50. Sold by all druggists.

☞ Beware of all Counterfeits and Imitations. se19 1y

"In this charming book the author has practically unfolded the plans whereby every one, at trifling expense, may have a flower garden of their own, indoors and out."

GARDENING BY MYSELF.
BY ANNA WARNER.

12mo. With Illustrations. $1 25.

"Instruction for the various months of the year is given, and all that one wants to know is stated, without dry technicalities, and in a clear and simple style. There is not a home which even the children, with this little book in hand, might not make more attractive, while educating the heart in a love for the beautiful."

ANSON D. F. RANDOLPH & CO.,
770 Broadway, cor. of Ninth st., N. Y.
Sent by mail, prepaid, on receipt of the price. se19 1m

LANDRETH'S SEEDS

Have spoken their praise for upward of three-quarters of a century.

Landreth's Rural Register and Almanac will be mailed to all who apply.

DAVID LANDRETH & SON,
an29 1y Philadelphia.

BARLOW'S INDIGO BLUE is the cheapest and best article in the market for BLUEING CLOTHES.

The genuine has both Barlow and Wiltberger's names on the label, and is put up at Wiltberger's Drug Store, No. 233 North Second street, Philadelphia. For sale by grocers and druggists.

D. S. WILTBERGER,
an29 3m Proprietor.

GARDEN SEEDS,
FIELD SEEDS,
FLOWER SEEDS.

Grown largely by ourselves, on our own grounds, near Haddonfield, New Jersey.

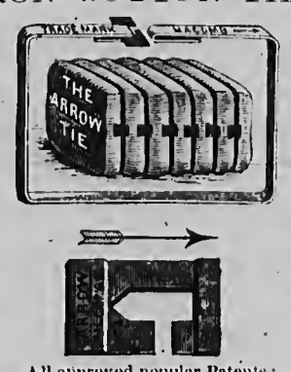
COLLINS, DOWNS & CO.,
Warehouse, 1110 Market street,
Philadelphia, Pa.

Catalogue and Price-List furnished on application. The trade supplied on liberal terms. au22 3m

IMPORTANT TO PLANTERS.

IRON COTTON TIES.

THE ARROW TIE



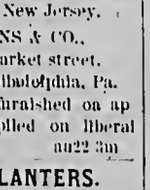
AND ALL OPEN-SLOT TIES.

All approved popular Patents:
ARROW,
ANCHOR,
WALLIS,
ALLIGATOR
AND DUNN.

For sale by all dealers in New Orleans, Mobile and Memphis, and by country merchants generally throughout the Cotton States.

BARTLETT & RAYNE,
General Agents,
48 Carondelet street, cor. Union,
my30 6m New Orleans.

WATER
The Records of Tests
AT LOWELL, MASS., PROVE
N. F. BURNHAM'S
New Turbine



superior to all others. It gave a higher percentage than any other wheel of common finish. Pamphlet and Price List by N. F. BURNHAM, York, Pa. ap25 6m

FALL WORK FOR AGENTS!

"UP THE HEIGHTS OF
FAME AND FORTUNE.
And the Routes Taken by the Climbers to Become Men of Mark."

This is the title of our splendid new octavo, 700 pages of most instructive reading, bristling with facts and alive with fresh interest, to be ready shortly. Exclusive territory given; name district you desire, and state experience in business. Send $1 for prospectus book. Write at once for descriptive circular to WM. H. MOORE & CO.,
se5 6t Publishers, Cincinnati.

WAVERLY STABLES.
HAYDEN & MEENAN, Proprietors.
LIVERY AND SALE STABLES,
No. 39 North Royal Street, Mobile.

Carriages and Buggies of the latest styles, and superior Horses, furnished at all hours. Calls of every description will receive prompt attention. jn4 1y

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

IMMIGRANTS FURNISHED.

I WILL LEAVE, ON THE NEXT TRIP out of the Steamer St. Louis, for ENGLISH Farm Laborers and Servants to those who will intrust their orders to me. For particulars I refer all persons to Messrs. Meeker, Knox & Co., 49 Carondelet street, New Orleans.

se5 1m GEORGE TOUREY.

ST. CLAIR HOTEL,
BALTIMORE, MARYLAND.

This new and beautiful Hotel is now open to the public. It is located on MONUMENT SQUARE, convenient alike to the business man and the tourist. It is the only hotel in Baltimore embracing elevator, suits of rooms with baths, and all other conveniences.

To accommodate Merchants, Commercial Travelers and others, the rates will be $2 per day for rooms on the fourth and fifth floors, making the difference on account of the elevation. Ordinary transient rates for lower rooms, $3 per day.

Guests desiring to take advantage of the above rates will please notify the clerk before rooms are assigned. An improved elevator for the use of the guests is constantly running from six A. M. until eleven P. M.

se5 2m HARRY H. FOGLE, Manager.

WIRE RAILING AND ORNAMENTAL WIRE WORKS.
DUFUR & CO.,
No. 36 North Howard St., Baltimore,

manufacture Wire Railing for Cemeteries, Balconies, etc.; Sieves, Fenders, Cages, Sand and Coal Screens; Woven Wire, etc. Also Iron Bedsteads, Chairs, etc. se5 1y

BIGGEST COMMISSIONS

on Standard Works for all Prominent Benevolent Organizations. 100,000 sold. Masonic, Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias, Red Men, Mechanics, Temperance, etc. Sale unrivaled by anything heretofore offered. Agents with no experience are selling 20 Pictures and upward a day. One of our agents has cleared over $1,200 in three months. The Brethren welcome these works. Our inducements are UNPRECEDENTED. Our commissions are positively one-fourth larger than any other house does or can offer. Send for circular of Order to which you belong, giving No. of your Lodge, and state where you saw this advertisement. You will certainly engage with us.

J. HALE POWERS & CO.,
Fraternity Publishers,
my9 7m Cincinnati, Ohio.

GREAT WESTERN GUN WORKS

P. O. BOX 1179, PITTSBURGH, PA.

Breech-Loading Shot Guns, $10 to $300. Double Shot Guns, $8 to $150. Single Guns, $3 to $20. Rifles, $8 to $75. Revolvers, $6 to $25. Send stamp for Price List. Army Guns, Revolvers, etc., etc., bought or traded for. au15 1yeow

THE FAMILY PAPER.

The Illustrated Christian Weekly,

NOW IN ITS SECOND YEAR, IS THE

ONLY ILLUSTRATED

Religious Weekly published in the country. It is unsectarian in its character, and has been warmly welcomed by Christian people everywhere. Its illustrations are not excelled by any secular publication, while the reading matter is carefully prepared by eminent writers of various denominations.

Send for Specimen Copy.—Two Dollars a Year.

Agents wanted in every community. Liberal terms to Sabbath schools.

AMERICAN TRACT SOCIETY,
Publishers,
je27 7teow5p 150 Nassau st., New York.

AGENTS WANTED FOR
SECRETS OF THE CONVENT AND CONFESSIONAL.
BY JULIA M'NAIR WRIGHT.

The most thrilling and powerful book ever written on this subject. It presents a startling array of facts, and contains revelations never before made public.

Send for circulars and terms to
NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO.,
274 and 276 Second street,
au1 6m Memphis, Tenn.

HAVE YOU READ
MARK TWAIN'S
NEW BOOK?

The whole world is anxious for it, and every person who has read it is known by his cheerful look. 75,000 copies sold in 21 days, and eight presses running night and day on it to supply the demand. Nothing like it ever known before.

AGENTS WANTED—Send for circulars, terms, &c. Address NETTLETON & CO., 150 West Fourth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

se5 1y

WILLIAM HOGAN,
Manufacturer of and Dealer in
BOOTS, SHOES, TRUNKS, VALISES AND BAGS,
FRENCH AND AMERICAN.
Also Agent for the EMPIRE SEWING MACHINE,
89 AND 101 CANAL STREET,
au1 3m New Orleans.

S. COLLINS & CO.,
MANUFACTURERS OF
PRINTING INK,
Office and Depot—26 Frankfort Street,
jy25 6m NEW YORK.

JOSEPH GILLOTT'S
STEEL PENS,
OF THE OLD STANDARD QUALITY.
JOSEPH Or Descriptive
TRADE MARK: GILLOTT. Name and Design.
Warranted. Trade Number.

The well known Original and Popular Nos.:
303 ..... 404 ..... 170 351,

having been assumed by other Makers, we desire to caution the public in respect to said imitations. ☞ ASK FOR GILLOTT'S.

JOS. GILLOTT & SONS,
jy25 1y 91 John street, N. Y.

BREWER & HILTON,
MANUFACTURERS OF
Thomas Worsley's Celebrated Fancy, Shaving and Toilet Soaps,

Also J. B. SMITH & CO.'S world-renowned Pearl Powders, Lily Whites, Rouges, etc.,

NO. 114 ARCH STREET, PHILADELPHIA.
All goods warranted. au8 3m

$5 TO $20 per Day.—Agents Wanted. All classes of working people, of either sex, young or old, make more money at work for us in their spare moments, or all the time, than at anything else. Particulars free. Address G. STINSON & CO.,
se12 1y Portland, Maine

The Child's Corner.

OLD "JOGAFEE."

BY ETHEL L. BEERS.

I wish there was no "Jogafee"
To study summer days,
Nor any captains or towns,
Nor any seas or bays.

I do not care a single bit
Which way the rivers run,
While Sam and Bob and Fred and John
Are having all the fun.

And if I don't be President,
I guess I shouldn't care;
They always tell us boys about
That presidential chair.)

I wish I was a bumble-bee,
And couldn't read a word,
But then the bees all have to work;
I guess I'd be a bird,

And fly away by Alder brook,
And watch for dace and trout,
O dear, this corner is so hot,
I wish I could get out.

I'm glad the teacher looks so warm,
I'm glad she's tired too,
Looking around this way to see
How near the chapter's through.

Maybe she don't like staying in!
How pale and still she looks,
Laying her head down on the desk,
Beside her pile of books.

I guess I'll try this page once more —
"Come here, old "Jogafee."

Hurrah! I know it! Where's my hat?
I'm out at half-past three!

HOW TO LEARN THE PIANO-KEYS.

All the G and A keys
Are between the black threes,
And 'tween the twos are all the Ds.
Then on the right side of the threes
Will be found the Bs and Cs;
But on the left side of the threes
Are all the Fs and all the Es.

The Four Little Words.

The Jews in former times wrote texts of Scriptnre on parchment, and tied them on their foreheads and round their arms. This was done, they said, that they might have the word of God always before them to keep them from trouble and sin. Some Jews do the same thing now.

We wish that children should have four words of Scripture written on their hearts, which, with the blessing of God, will truly preserve them from sin and danger. If you listen to a short story you will learn what they are.

My father lived in a cottage. As he was a poor man, with a large family and but little money, it was but a humble home that he could call his own. In the garden a few roses and pinks were to be seen in their season; the rest of the ground was used for potatoes, cabbages and other useful things for the family.

One day my father's master gave him a few strawberry plants. These were placed in the best part of the garden, and tended with great care. In due time there were signs of fruit. "The plants promise very well," said my father; "I think they will bear this year."

Jane, my eldest sister, had been for a long time in bad health, and my father said that he wished all the strawberries to be kept for her. She could take very little food, and he was glad to get anything to which she took a fancy, if he could find the money to buy it. As the strawberries would cost nothing, and as we all knew they would please my sister, we agreed that we would not taste a single one—all should be saved for her.

As often as I came home from the fields in the evening I went to see how the strawberries were getting on, and looked at them with a longing desire to taste them. At last they were just ripe, and father said that in about two days they would be fit to be gathered, and that he was sure there would be enough to fill a saucer.

Early in the morning of that day, when the fruit was to be picked, I got up before the rest of the family were awake, and the wicked thought came into my mind that I would go slyly into the garden and taste them. "A few will not be missed," said I to myself. Slowly and softly I passed down stairs, and, opening the garden door, I stood by the side of the strawberries. O, how fresh and nice they looked so early in the morning!

There were, I was sure, twenty that were quite ripe. How many could I take without their being missed? Perhaps two, or five. As I gazed upon them my sinful desires grew until I was ready to take at least half of them.

I looked up at the window of the room where my parents slept, and then at the little room where dear Jane lay; there was no one to be seen. So, stooping down, my fingers were in a moment on one of the largest and ripest, when the thought darted into my mind: "Suppose they should be missed, and I am asked if I took them, what could I say?"

I quickly rose up and was about to return into the house, when my evil heart said: "O, your father will not suspect that you were the thief; he will think that some strange boy got over the palings at night and stole the fruit."

This bad thought made me bold, and I went back to the strawberry-bed. Again I fixed my eyes on the window and looked around me. There was no one moving. All was quite silent, except the twitter of the sparrows on the cottage thatch, and the song of the lark as it flew up to the sky. My hand once more touched the fruit, when these four little words darted into my mind: Thou, God, seest me. These words saved me from the sin I was about to commit. It was almost as though I had heard them spoken aloud. "My father does not see me, but God does; his eyes are upon me now." I sprang upon my feet, and got back into my room without any one in the family having seen me.

In about an hour after this time I saw my father go into the garden to gather the strawberries. He took all that were quite ripe, and when poor Jane came down stairs they were placed before her in a pink saucer. When she saw them a sweet smile came over her pale face. My father looked happy; Polly, my younger sister, looked happy; we were all happy as we saw how they pleased her and refreshed her parched lips. Then how glad I was that I had not taken them, and that my hands had been kept from stealing! Yes, it was that thought, "Thou, God, seest me," that held me back from doing wrong in the hour of danger.

"Where are these words to be found?" I said. "Are they the text of a sermon I have heard, or part of a Sunday school lesson I have learned?" I was almost sure they were in the Bible, and I made up my mind to find them.

That day I had to look after Farmer Dobson's sheep, and I asked my sister Jane to lend me her Bible to take with me to the field, so that, while the sheep were feeding, I might sit down and seek for these four little words.

And do you know where I found them? They were in the sixteenth chapter of the Book of Genesis, in an account of Hagar, who fled from her mistress into a desert place. As she sat by the side of a well the angel of the Lord met her and told her to go back to her mistress. Then she called the name of the angel who spoke to her: "Thou, God, seest me." She was out of the path of duty, and these words kept her, as they did me, from going further in the way that was wrong and full of danger.

At night, when we all met at family prayer, my father read a chapter from the New Testament. There was one part of it which was about a good man, Nathaniel, to whom Jesus said that he had seen him under the fig tree. Now the good man, who perhaps had been praying under the shady branches, knew that he had been quite alone, and when he heard what Jesus said he cried out: "Master, thou art the Son of God!"

After my father had read the chapter he said to us: "Do not forget, dear children, that God our Savior sees you always. This is a sad thought to the sinner, but not so to those who love Jesus. If we have gone to him in faith for pardon of our sins, and if the grace of the Holy Spirit has changed our hearts, leading us to repent of sin and to keep his holy law, it is a thought full of comfort. He sees us in all our times of trouble and danger, and we know that he looks upon us in love, and will not forsake those who trust in him. Let the words, 'Thou, God, seest me,' cheer you in duty, encourage you in prayer, and keep you from sin."

Now, it did seem very strange to me that my father should use these words. It however served to fix them more deeply on my mind; and many a time since then the thought of the all-seeing eye of God has kept me from the road that leads to death.

Will you, reader, think of them also? God always sees you. All things—past present, and to come; everything that has been, that now is, and that shall be—are seen by him at once. All that are in heaven, and all that are on earth, are beneath his eye. Some think that if they can get out of the sight of men they may sin as they please, but there is no place where they can hide themselves from God. The broad daylight and the dark night are alike to him. In the deep forests, and in the caves and mines of the earth, God is there. He sees all that can be seen; he knows all that can be known. "Can any hide himself in secret places, that I shall not see him? saith the Lord."—Jer. xxiii. 24. "All things are naked and opened unto the eyes of him with whom we have to do."—Heb. iv. 13.

Would you then resist evil and overcome sin? would you do what is right, and find comfort when you go to the house of God, or kneel down to pray at home? ask of the Holy Spirit to apply these four little words to your heart: "Thou, God, seest me!"—Church and State.

Which Would You Rather Do?

John Adams, father of John Quincy Adams, used to say: "When I was a boy I had to study the Latin grammar; but it was dull, and I hated it. My father was anxious to send me to college, and therefore I studied the grammar till I could bear it no longer; and, going to my father, told him I did not like study, and asked him for other employment. It was opposing his wishes, and he was quick in his answer. 'Well, John,' said he, 'if Latin grammar does not suit you, you may try ditching; perhaps that will. My meadow yonder needs a ditch, and you may put by grammar and dig.'

"This seemed a delightful change; and to the meadow I went, but soon found ditching harder than Latin; and the first forenoon was the longest I ever experienced.

"That day I ate the bread of labor, and glad was I when night came on. That night I made a comparison between Latin grammar and ditching, but said not a word about it.

"I dug the next forenoon, and wanted to return to Latin at dinner-time; but it was humiliating, and I could not do it. At night toil conquered pride, and I told my father—one of the severest lessons of my life—that, if he choose, I would go back to Latin grammar.

"He was glad of it; and if I have since gained any distinction, it has been owing to my two days' labor in that ditch."

Daniel Webster did not like mowing any better than John Adams liked ditching. His father told him to "hang" his scythe to suit himself, and he went and hung it on a tree! However, both Adams and Webster worked harder with their brains than most boys with their muscles.

READ SLOWLY.—I never knew but one or two fast readers, and readers of many books, whose knowledge was worth anything. Mrs. Martineau says of herself that she is the slowest of readers—sometimes a page an hour. But then what she reads she makes her own. Girls read too much and think too little. I will answer for it that there are few girls of eighteen who have not read more books than I have; and as to religious books, I can count upon my fingers in two minutes all I ever read. But they are mine. Again I say, read slowly.—F. W. Robertson.

GOD promises you all you want, and invites you to come and receive it as you want.

The Farm and Garden.

To Develop Cauliflowers.

D. Bury, in the Field, says: "There are one or two simple means of bringing out the best qualities of the cauliflower that may be worth noting here. It is needless to dwell upon the desirability of placing the crop in rich, deep, sweet soil. There are few plants that take more out of the ground in a given time than cauliflower; hence the obvious necessity of storing it well; for a stoppage of growth, arising from a scarcity of food or any other cause, is simply ruin—that is, bitterness, hardness, worthlessness—to this most valuable crop. But it is of surface help that I now write. The first and best is a surface layer of fine farm-yard manure six inches thick over the whole of the ground occupied by the cauliflower; or if this is impracticable, then half a barrow load to every five plants when the hand-lights are lifted or taken off. The effect of such dressings is wonderful; one can almost see the plants grow. The leaves seem to drink in the volatile ammonia, and the roots soon find their way into this new surface larder; the crowns fill in and swell out with amazing rapidity; and this dispatch is the great secret of high quality. There is another way of aiding and quickening growth, especially during dry weather. Lay the mulching of dung on as before, and wash it down with house sewage. This last is also of great service by itself, and for pouring over spent hot bed manure, leaves, or other matters, that have little strength of themselves. These mulchings are useful to keep out the drouth and encourage the roots upward. The sewage will feed this well, and it seems to be absorbed and converted with wonderful rapidity by this crop. No one who values sweet and crisp cauliflowers should waste a drop of sewage; it is one of the most powerful and best of manures for this crop. If sewage is not come at able—although with proper arrangements it is accessible everywhere—any kind of liquid manure will answer the same purpose. None should be dropped on the leaves, and of course no one would allow any sort of manure water to wet the hearts of the plants.

There is one more feature about this crop that deserves a passing notice. As a rule, as soon as cauliflowers are cut the stems are pulled up and thrown away. With early, highly-fed plants this is a great and reckless sacrifice of growing force. Plants treated as I have recommended have roots like trees—huge masses filling the soil in all directions. Why should these not be pressed into the production of a second crop? To this end, simply cut the cauliflower with the usual complement of overlapping leaves; leave all the other leaves on the stem for a week or two. By that time most of the stems will have broken into from three to six shoots. Go over them, and choose from two to four of the best placed and strongest; three to each is a capital average. Remove or bend down any leaves that interfere with these advancing growths, and also any decaying or old worn-out leaves; allow all others to remain. Give the stems several good soakings of manure water, and another layer of dung if thought desirable; and in an amazingly short period of time another crop, perhaps as heavy—or heavier in the gross—as the first, may be cut from the old stalks. After having done this double service, away with them, and see that the ground is immediately deep-trenched or manured for strawberries, or some crop as different as may be from cauliflowers, of which, notwithstanding all our feeding, it will have had enough for a year or two."

Coffee as a Great Deodorizer.

In these days of noxious effluvia, when deodorizers are almost as much in request as hair restorers, any new disinfectant will be gratefully received. It is therefore satisfactory to learn from the Poona Observer that a valuable discovery in this line has lately been made in India, where, if rumor is correct, it must be doubly welcome. After numerous experiments with roasted coffee, the result proves that it is one of the most powerful means not only of rendering animal and vegetable effluvia innocuous, but of actually destroying them. A room in which meat in an advanced degree of decomposition had been kept for some time, was instantly deprived of all smell on an open coffee-roaster being carried through it containing a pound of coffee newly roasted. In another room the effluvium occasioned by the clearing out of a cess-pool, so that sulphureted hydrogen and ammonia could be clearly detected, was completely removed within half a minute on the employment of three ounces of fresh coffee. The best mode of using it as a disinfectant is to dry the raw bean, pound it in a mortar, and then roast the powder on a moderately-heated iron plate until it assumes a dark brown hue, when it is ready for use. It must, however, be remembered that the coffee, to be effectual, should be perfectly pure.

Large Crop from One Rose.

The London Gardener's Magazine thinks that, "as a pecuniary investment, growing a good-sized Marechal Niel rose beats growing grapes, and gives much less trouble," and in support of the opinion describes a rose now growing at Mr. Harrington's nursery at Darlington: "The tree is three years old, budded on both the Manetti stock, but is now growing on both the Manetti and its own roots. It covers eight lights, four feet broad by ten feet long. The house is spanned roof. This spring Mr. Harrington has cut about two thousand roses, and a third crop is now approaching maturity. These blooms find a ready market. In early spring they sell at sixpence each. Two thousand blooms, at threepence each, would produce £25."

STUFFED BUGS.—According to the Prairie Farmer, one part of Paris green to fifteen parts of calcined plaster will exterminate this pest of the melon, cucumber and other crops.

HARDWARE, STOVES, ETC.

KURSHEEDT & BIENVENU,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

Plantation and Builders' Hardware,

MARBLE, MARBLEIZED SLATE AND IRON MANTLES,

Grates, Hearths and Fire Bricks,

NO. 114 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

my2 1y

THE UNRIVALED

BUCK'S BRILLIANT STOVE.

Every Brilliant is Fully Guaranteed.

H. HALLER,

No. 49 Camp street, New Orleans,

Sole Agent for Louisiana.

Sole Agent for the

CELEBRATED RINGEN WASHER,

In the States of Louisiana, Texas and Mississippi. oc19 1y

GROCERIES—GLASSWARE.

PURE LOUISIANA SUGAR, MOLASSES AND SIRUPS.

REFINED SUGAR.—Cut Loaf, Crushed and Powdered.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

GOLDEN SIRUP.—A superior article of pure Louisiana, from the Crescent City Refinery.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

REFINED SIRUP AND MOLASSES.—Crescent City Refinery, Orleans, Louisiana, Chalmette and Pelican brands.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

LOUISIANA MOLASSES.—Various grades of Plantation, in barrels, half barrels and kegs.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

CLARIFIED SUGAR.—Various grades of White and Yellow, in hogsheads and barrels.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

LOUISIANA SUGAR.—Various grades of Plantation, in hogsheads and barrels.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

FOREIGN SUGAR.—Cuba, Demerara and Porto Rico, in hogsheads and boxes.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
my9 6m 48 Tchoupitoulas street.

W. C. SHEPARD & CO.,

—IMPORTERS OF—

CHINA, CROCKERY AND GLASS,

55.....CAMP STREET.....55

New Orleans.

Country dealers supplied with ASSORTED CRATES or from SHELF upon the most favorable terms.

Contents of our English Iron Stone China Dinner Set, No. 1:

12 Dinner Plates,	1 Round Soup Tureen,
12 Breakfast Plates,	1 Sauce Boat,
12 Tea Plates,	1 Salad,
12 Soup Plates,	1 Pair Covered Dishes,
12 Preserve Plates,	2 Vegetable Dishes,
12 Butter Plates,	2 Pickle Dishes,
12 Tea cups and saucers	4 Meat Dishes.

112 pieces best English Ware..... $15

Our Stone China Dinner and Tea Set, No. 2, contains

158 pieces..... $25

Our French China Dinner Set, No. 1, contains

12 Dinner Plates,	4 Meat Dishes,
12 Breakfast Plates,	1 Soup Tureen, round,
12 Tea Plates,	2 Covered Dishes, oval
12 Soup Plates,	1 Sauce Boat,
12 Preserve Plates,	1 Salad,
12 Tea cups and saucers	2 Pickles,
12 Butter Plates,	2 Vegetable Dishes.

112 pieces best French Ware..... $30

Our French China Dinner Set, No. 2, contains

166 pieces..... $45

Our French China Dinner Set, No. 3, contains

255 pieces..... $65

A large variety of the best SELF-SEALING FRUIT JARS always on hand.

Sole agents for the celebrated BLANCHARD CHURN. The best churn made.

The most complete stock of HOUSE-FURNISHING GOODS in the South.

W. C. SHEPARD & CO.,

apt 6m No. 55 Camp st., New Orleans.

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY.

THE NEXT SESSION OF THIS INSTITUTION will commence on

The First Wednesday in October.

It is one of the cheapest and most thorough colleges in this country. The instruction is of the highest character in all the schools of its Collegiate, Medical and Law Departments.

Board is from $10 to $16 per month.

For particulars and catalogue address Dr. A. S. Andrews or Prof. O. F. Casey.

A. S. ANDREWS, President.

GREENSBORO, ALA., July 14, 1872. au22 6t

TENNESSEE FEMALE COLLEGE,

FRANKLIN, TENNESSEE.

Rev. R. K. Hargrove, A. M., President.

FALL SESSION FOR 1872 opens on Thursday, SEPTEMBER 5.

Its organization and equipment are complete, and its facilities of the highest order.

It will not substitute graduation for education.

Not one of its hundreds of pupils, for sixteen years past, has ever died in attendance on it.

Board and Collegiate Tuition, including French and Latin, one year, $220. To Itinerant Ministers, literary tuition free, and board on special terms.

Circulars sent on application. au1 2m

Readyville Seminary for Young Ladies,

BATON ROUGE, LOUISIANA.

ESTABLISHED IN 1843.—Incorporated in 1859. New buildings. Full corps of teachers. All the appliances of a first-class institution. For catalogues address

MRS. MARY W. READ, Principal.

au29 3m Baton Rouge, La.

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

CENTENARY COLLEGE,

JACKSON, LOUISIANA.

THE NEXT TERM OF THIS VENERABLE INSTITUTION OPENS ON THE FIRST MONDAY IN OCTOBER, 1872.

FACULTY.

Rev. C. G. ANDREWS, A. M., President, and Professor of Mental and Moral Science, Political Economy and International Law.

Rev. A. R. HOLCOMBE, A. M., Professor of Mathematics and Adjunct Professor of Natural Science.

G. H. WILEY, A. M., Professor of Ancient and Modern Languages.

T. S. JONES, M. D., Professor of Natural Science.

———, Principal of the Preparatory Department.

CHARGES.

Tuition, per session of forty weeks, in College	$60 00
Tuition, per session of forty weeks, in Preparatory Department	40 00
Contingent expenses	5 00

A matriculation fee of $5 must be paid on entering any regular college class. One-half the charges must be paid when the student enters; the other half on the beginning of the second term, March 1.

BOARD.

Board, including lodging, washing, lights and fuel, can be had in the best of families for $20 per month. Day-boarding with the same families, $13 per month. Rooms provided in the dormitories free of rent. Board to be paid in advance at least one month.

LOCATION.

This institution is located in the lovely village of Jackson, about twelve miles from Bayou Sara, in a grove of pine, magnolia, oak and beech. The location is remarkable for its beautiful woodlands, its bland and delightful atmosphere, its pure water, its unrivaled healthfulness, and its cultivated and refined society.

WHEN FOUNDED.

The college was established by the State of Louisiana in 1825, and ceded to the Methodist Episcopal Church South in 1845.

ALUMNI.

Its Alumni numbers 203, and they are to be found in the most honorable and useful stations in the land.

APPARATUS AND CABINET.

The college possesses a valuable set of Philosophical, Astronomical and Chemical Apparatus, and also a well-selected Mineralogical and Geological Cabinet. The apparatus includes a Theodolite, Sextant, Compass, Chronometer, Atwood's Machine, Whirling Tables, Electrical Machine, Air Pump, various combinations of the Mechanical Powers, Batteries, Chemical Tests, etc., sufficient for a thorough and extended course of observations and experiments. Steps have been taken by the Board of Trustees to put these in thorough repair.

LITERARY SOCIETIES.

There are two regular Literary Societies connected with the institution. These are of great utility to young men acquiring a liberal education—improving them to the art of public speaking, making them in some degree familiar with the proceedings of deliberative bodies, and in cultivating systematic business habits. Each Society has a convenient hall and a well selected library—about 1,600 volumes each, which, added to the College Library of 2,000 volumes, makes over 5,000 volumes in the college.

BUILDINGS.

The Trustees are determined to continue the repairs on the buildings till completed. The grand Center Building is a noble specimen of architectural beauty and adaptation to the purposes of its erection. The wings, built of solid brick, present each a front of two hundred feet, with upper and lower galleries the entire length, supported by Tuscan columns, and with the center making in the perspective a continuous front of 700 feet.

PREPARATORY DEPARTMENT.

In the Preparatory Department students are fitted for regular college classes, or may obtain a thorough English or commercial education.

ITS FACULTY are men of experience and success in teaching.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES.

Rev. Bishop J. C. KEENER, D. D., President, New Orleans.

Rev. J. A. Godfrey, Clinton.	Hon. A. K. Farrar, Adams county, Miss.
Hon. John McVea, Clinton.	Hon. Edward J. Gay, parish of Iberville.
Hon. and Rev. Jas. H. Muse, St. Helena par.	Samuel J. Norwood, Esq., Shumsport, La.
Hon. Edward McGehee, Woodville, Miss.	C. G. McGehee, Esq., Wilkinson co., Miss.
Hon. E. T. Merrick, New Orleans	Rev. W. H. Watkins, D. D., Natchez, Miss.
Prof. W. H. N. Magruder, Baton Rouge.	Rev. W. G. Millsaps, Jefferson county, Miss.
Rev. John C. Miller, Jackson.	Rev. J. A. B. Jones, Port Gibson, Miss.
Rev. R. J. Harp, New Orleans.	Rev. John A. Ellis, Meridian, Miss.
Hon. J. G. Fuqua, Baton Rouge.	B. H. Moss, M. D., New Orleans.
T. F. Collins, Esq., East Feliciana.	Josiah H. Nettles, Esq., E. Baton Rouge, La.
Rev. J. L. Forsythe, Jackson.	Wilmot H. Goodale, Esq., Baton Rouge.
Rev. L. Parker, D. D., New Orleans.	Rev. C. G. Andrews, Jackson, La.
H. C. Hardee, Esq., Clinton.	Rev. A. E. Goodwyn, Baton Rouge, La.

THE BEST ROUTE to the college is to leave the Mississippi river at Port Hudson, take the Clinton and Port Hudson railroad to Midway station, report to Captain F. J. Haynes as a student for Centenary, and he will convey you to the college, a distance of seven miles, for one dollar and a half for single passengers, or one dollar each where several are together. Address nn1 6m C. G. ANDREWS, President, Jackson, La.

Whitworth Female College,

AT BROOKHAVEN, MISS.

THE CONTINUED SUCCESS OF THIS INSTITUTION is one of the best evidences of its merit. During the past term there were in attendance two hundred and twenty-nine pupils.

The members of the Faculty—eleven in number—are selected on account of their ability to teach.

Prof. EICHHORN, Music Director, has few equals.

Madame JULIUS, a Parisian lady, of eighteen years' successful experience as a teacher, has been engaged to take charge of the French and Ornamental Department.

The very best care is taken of our pupils, both as to health and manners. Fires are provided for all.

No extravagance in dress is allowed.

The good health of Brookhaven is proverbial. Pupils from the miasmatic regions of Louisiana and Mississippi find this as healthful a school as can be found anywhere.

The charges are believed to be lower than in any school in the Southwest where similar advantages are afforded. Only from $230 to $265 for all expenses, excepting music, French and the ornamental branches.

No expense is spared in purchasing the most approved apparatus, maps, charts, etc., and all necessary school furniture.

Brookhaven is located on the New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern Railroad, 128 miles from the city.

Catalogues sent free on application to

au1 6m REV. H. F. JOHNSON, Prest.

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE,

AT BATON ROUGE, LOUISIANA.

THE EXERCISES OF THIS SCHOOL will be resumed on Wednesday, the Second of October next.

For circulars, with all necessary information, apply to Rev. R. J. Harp, 112 Camp street, New Orleans, or to myself, at Baton Rouge, Louisiana.

au1 6m W. H. N. MAGRUDER.

MANSFIELD FEMALE COLLEGE,

Mansfield, DeSoto Parish, La.

THIS INSTITUTION, ENTERING UPON its Eighteenth Year, well supplied with Apparatus and other educational aids, and employing the most approved methods of instruction and government, will commence its Fall Session for 1872 on WEDNESDAY, the Twenty-fifth day of September, with a full corps of accomplished Teachers. For catalogues, with all particulars, address au8 2m CHARLES B. STUART, President.

Wesleyan Female College,

MACON, GEORGIA.

THE THIRTY-FIFTH ANNUAL SESSION will begin OCTOBER 7, 1872.

For catalogues, containing full information, address

REV. E. H. MYERS, D. D., President, or au15 2m C. W. SMITH, Secretary of Faculty.

ATHENS FEMALE INSTITUTE,

AT ATHENS, ALABAMA,

IS UNDER THE PATRONAGE OF THE North Alabama Conference. The next session will open on

The First Monday in September.

Our arrangements are all complete. A corps of able Teachers, a full course of study, thorough drilling and strict discipline have secured us gratifying success.

Board and tuition in Literary Department, one year, $210.

au8 2m REV. J. M. WRIGHT, President.

EMORY AND HENRY COLLEGE,

VIRGINIA.

THE FALL SESSION of this institution begins on the FIFTEENTH OF AUGUST next. One Hundred and Fifteen Dollars will pay all the necessary expenses of a five month session, including board, tuition, fuel, room-rent, washing and contingent fees. Payments are required in advance, except for board, which is $13 per month, and payable monthly in advance. If you will consult the Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and her ministers generally, our alumni and students, or the professors of the University of Virginia, who have authorized this reference, you will be assured that we are offering excellent opportunities for a thorough collegiate training, surrounded by healthful, moral, religious influences. If you desire a catalogue, or any additional information, address

E. E. WILEY, President,

je20 4m Emory P. O., Virginia.

TUSKALOOSA FEMALE COLLEGE,

TUSKALOOSA, ALABAMA.

THE NEXT SESSION OPENS SEPTEMBER 23, 1872.

The beautiful and healthy city of Tuskaloosa, Alabama, is unsurpassed as a location.

The Faculty will consist of three Professors and eight or ten Lady Assistants.

Course of study thorough. Domestic arrangements complete. Young ladies' sleeping apartments elegantly furnished and carpeted. Health department includes a thoroughly-conducted Gymnasium. This College is believed to be equal to the best in the United States, and the cheapest in the South. Special advantages for orphan children whose guardians wish to furnish them a home and school in one. For particulars and catalogue address the proprietor,

REV. B. F. LARRABEE,

jy18 3m Tuskaloosa, Alabama.

HOMER COLLEGE.

THE SCHOLASTIC EXERCISES OF THE Thirteenth Annual Term of Homer College begin on the First Tuesday of SEPTEMBER next, 1872.

Tuition at the rate of $5 per month. Board from $12 to $15 per month.

Students received in regular classes only, and to the end of a session.

A Preparatory Department, under competent management, is attached to the college. Tuition, $4 to $5 per month.

For further particulars address

REV. J. E. COBB,

President Homer College, La.

By order of the Board.

W. F. MCLELAND,

Pres. Board of Trustees. au22 3m

Centenary Female College,

SUMMERFIELD, ALA.

THE THIRTIETH SESSION OPENS SEPTEMBER 23, 1872.

The Literary, Music and Art Departments are well organized and under a competent faculty.

The peculiar advantages are health, cheapness and thorough instruction.

Board and tuition, $230; if all paid in advance, $220. Club rates, $210.

For catalogue and further information address

A. D. MCVOY,

au22 1m President.

Huntsville Female College,

HUNTSVILLE, ALABAMA.

NINETEENTH SESSION BEGINS SEPTEMBER 4, 1872. Eight Departments; four male, eleven lady teachers and officers; splendid parlor outfit; new furniture; gas, water, heating, bathing fixtures; grounds and scenery charming; climate delightful; health unrivaled; course liberal; Music (piano, organ, zither, guitar, violin) by eminent professors and teachers; native French teacher; calisthenics free; art cheap. Board and English tuition per annum, $250.

REV. GEO. W. F. PRICE, President.

Late President Tuskegee Female College.

se5 1m

MISCELLANEOUS.

IMPROVED

EAGLE COTTON GINS.

THE GREAT POPULARITY of the EAGLE COTTON GINS is established from the well-known fact that they are the most reliable, strongest and best built Cotton Gins ever made. The Eagle Cotton Gin runs lighter than any other gin, thus having a great advantage for planters who wish to run by horse power. All the numerous planters who use the Eagle Cotton Gin will certify to the fact that when their cotton is sent to market it always brings the highest market price, as no other gin can produce a finer or a better sample of cotton than the Eagle Cotton Gins. Over seventeen thousand of the Eagle Cotton Gins have been made and sold. During a period of twenty years the undersigned has had the agency of the Eagle Cotton Gin in New Orleans. He has never had a gin returned or rejected out of the immense number sold. The saw cylinders of all the Eagle Cotton Gins are twelve inches in diameter, which is two inches larger than most other kinds of gins, thus giving our forty-saw gin more teeth, and they are more than equal to the fifty-saw gins of other makers, who use only a ten-inch cylinder, and the same great advantage of the twelve inch cylinder in larger sized gins can be easily estimated. Planters who wish a reliable cotton gin, with an established reputation, can purchase an Eagle Cotton Gin with a certainty that they are not making an 'untried' experiment, but will obtain a cotton gin which is indorsed by the oldest and largest planters in the country as the best in use. A large stock of the Eagle Cotton Gins are always kept on sale in New Orleans, ready for immediate shipment. Planters should be particular to state if they want right or left-hand motion gins.

PRICES.

40-Saw Gin.....	$200	65-Saw Gin.....	$325
45-Saw Gin.....	225	70-Saw Gin.....	350
50-Saw Gin.....	250	75-Saw Gin.....	375
55-Saw Gin.....	275	80-Saw Gin.....	400
60-Saw Gin.....	300

All orders should be addressed to
W. L. CUSHING,
No. 61 St. Charles street,
Sole Agent for the Southern States.
Agents wanted. jy1 3m

ARE YOU GOING EAST OR NORTH?

Take the Iron Mountain, and Chicago and Alton Railroads.

THE ONLY ALL-RAIL ROUTE FROM all points South to CHICAGO.

The only line running the Pullman Palace Cars from all points South to St. Louis and Chicago.

Passengers by this line arrive in Chicago one hour in advance of all competing lines, and avoid 25 miles of steamboat transfer, and the annoying changes of cars incident to other lines. For all points in the Northwest, St. Paul, Milwaukee, or all points in the Canadas, New York, Boston and all Eastern cities, this is the pleasantest and most direct route. Parties going East via this line can lay over in Chicago and visit the Burnt District, and resume their trip at their leisure. Fare as low as by all other routes. Tickets to be had at all ticket offices in the South.

W. R. ALLEN,
General Ticket and Passenger Agent,
Iron Mountain Line, St. Louis
JAMES CHARLTON,
General Ticket and Passenger Agent,
Chicago and Alton Line, Chicago.
D. A. FREER,
my30 4m Southern Traveling Agent.

HOMEOPATHIC DOMESTIC MEDICINE.

BY LAURIE & McCLATCHEY. FIRST American from the Twenty-first English edition. 1,037 Pages Octavo Price, $5.

This is the most complete work on Domestic Practice in the English language. Twenty-one thousand copies of it are in circulation in England and in this country. Two full editions sold within less than twelve months.

A full set of Remedies (103 vials,) in a solid Mahogany case, will be furnished for $12. Book and case will be sent, carefully packed, to any address, on receipt of $17.

Address BOERICKE & TAFEL,
Homeopathic Pharmaceutist and
Medical Publishing House,
145 Grand st., New York;
Established in 1835. jy11 3m

JOHN GIBSON,

ENGRAVER AND

Steam Power Lithographic Printer,

83 BEEKMAN ST., NEW YORK.

Checks, Notes, Drafts, Receipts, Bonds, Certificates of Stock and Deposit, Bill, Letter and Note Headings, Business Cards, Envelopes, Druggists' Fancy and Perfumery Labels, etc. Druggists wishing Labels, send for Catalogue. je27 1y

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY
Established in 1837.
Superior Bells for Churches, Schools, etc., of Pure Copper and Tin, fully warranted, and mounted with our Latest Improved Rotary Hangings, the best in use.
Illustrated Catalogue sent free.
VANDUZEN & TIFT,
102 & 104 E. Second St., Cincinnati
fe22 1y

WM. PHILLIPS, UNION STABLES, 180 Calliope, near St. Charles street, has every accommodation in the line of Pleasure and Family Carriages, such as hacks, brettes, phætons, buggies, etc., for the use of the public, and at rates to correspond with the stringency of the times. All hacking done below tariff rates. Orders for weddings, balls, picnics, races, etc., will be attended to so as to guarantee satisfaction. I am also prepared to hire vehicles (alone) to parties having their own horses. de14 1y

SHERMAN HOUSE, NO. 1 WEST TWENTY-Sixth street, New York.—MR. ELKINS, Proprietor. Strangers visiting New York, desiring the comforts and refinement of a home and attendance of a hotel, in a first-class central location, can find the same at from $25 to $30 per week for a gentleman and wife; transient, $3 per day; American plan; lodgings, $1. je27 3m

BINGHAM HOUSE, PHILADELPHIA,
Corner of Eleventh and Market Sts.
CARLIS DAVIS, PROPRIETOR.

This popular Hotel being centrally located and accessible by street cars from all depots, makes it a desirable stopping place for travelers. It will be conducted in the same liberal manner as heretofore, it being the intention of the proprietor to maintain the reputation it has always enjoyed, of being in all respects a first-class hotel.
Terms, $3 a day, au8 1y

SMITH, ENGLISH & CO.,
BOOKSELLERS AND IMPORTERS,
(ESPECIALLY OF THEOLOGICAL BOOKS,)
No. 710 Arch street, Philadelphia.

S., E. & Co. have on hand the best and most complete assortment of THEOLOGICAL BOOKS for sale in the country. Send for Complete Classified Catalogue, 25 cents, or with Alphabetical Index 50 cents—the best guide to purchasers in this department ever published. au15 2m

COMMISSION MERCHANTS.

PRICE, HINE & TUPPER,
General Commission Merchants,
FACTORS, AND
Agents of Attakapas Mail Transportation Co.,
NO. 26 CARONDELET STREET,
NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Advances made on consignments to T. Tupper & Sons, Charleston, S. C.; Williams, Hirnle & Co., and Leverich & Co., New York. no2 1y

W. H. SUTTON. J. R. POWELL.
SUTTON & POWELL,
COTTON FACTORS
AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
186..... COMMON STREET 186
NEW ORLEANS, LA.
se21 1y

H. F. GIVEN. LUCIEN J. DOIZE.
H. F. GIVEN & CO.,
COTTON, TOBACCO AND SUGAR FACTORS,
—AND—
GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
No. 04 Baronne street, New Orleans.
oc5 1y

ANDREW J. AIKEN. JOHN W. WATT.
AIKEN & WATT,
Cotton Factors and Commission Merchants,
60.....CARONDELET STREET..... 60
NEW ORLEANS.
Special attention given to orders for the purchase of all descriptions of Produce, Agricultural Implements and Plantation Supplies. no2 1y

J. L. DUNNICA, New Orleans. T. A. HAMILTON, Memphis.
G. P. HARRISON, New Orleans.
J. L. DUNNICA & CO.,
FLOUR, PRODUCE AND PROVISION
COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
50.....TCHOUPITOULAS ST.....50
NEW ORLEANS, LOUISIANA.
oc22 1y

J. C. PAYNE. W. H. DAMERON. H. M. PAYNE
PAYNE, DAMERON & CO.,
COTTON FACTORS,
64 & 66....BARONNE STREET....64 & 66
Between Union and Gravier streets,
NEW ORLEANS, LA.
je19 1y

C. L. WALMSLEY & CO.,
Cotton Factors and General Commission Merchants,
31..... PERDIDO STREET.....31
oc3 1y NEW ORLEANS.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

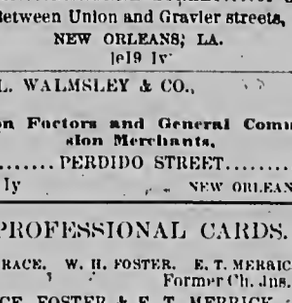
G. W. RACE. W. H. FOSTER. E. T. MERRICK,
Former Ch. Jus. La.
RACE, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK,
Attorneys, Counselors and Solicitors.
Cor. of Camp street and Commercial Place,
se25 NEW ORLEANS.

W. W. EDWARDS,
COUNSELOR AT LAW
AND
COMMISSIONER OF DEEDS,
No. 85 Common street,
se14 1y New Orleans.

DR. JOHN G. ANGELL,
DENTAL SURGEON,
152 .....JULIA STREET..... 152
All operations in Operative, Mechanical and Surgical Dentistry carefully performed. Nitrous Oxide and other Anæsthetics administered. no30 1y

DR. C. J. BICKHAM,
Office—680 Magazine Street,
Between Peace and First sts., New Orleans.
Will call daily at College building, corner Common and Baronne streets, between eleven and twelve o'clock. je29 1y

Relief for the Sick and Afflicted.



SOUTHERN HEPATIC PILLS.

Unsurpassed for the cure of Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint and all other bilious diseases. Call on MRS. GEO. W. DEEMS, No 28 South Calhoun street, Baltimore, Maryland. Explanatory circulars sent on application. For sale by E. J. HART & CO.,
se12 3m 73 Tchoupitoulas st., New Orleans.

OCEAN SPRINGS.
Summer Resort.—Board at the Seaside.

THE SUBSCRIBER has taken the MORRIS HOUSE, at Ocean Springs, which has just undergone a thorough repair, and will be open to boarders who wish to enjoy a pleasant home, good bathing, fresh sea air, and luxuriate on fish and oysters during the heat of summer.

Terms for board: $40 per month, $10 per week, and $2 per day. Apply to the subscriber by mail, at Ocean Springs.

Refer to Bishop Keener, Rev. Robert J. Harp, J. L. Dunnica & Co., and Samuel Russ, Esq., New Orleans.

WM. C. CHAMBERLIN.
APRIL 20, 1872. ap25 1y

AGENTS WANTED TO SELL PARTON'S LIFE OF
HORACE GREELEY,
The Patriot, Statesman and Philanthropist.
Every citizen who is interested in the remarkable career of our next President should read the truthful story of his life, as told by the greatest American Biographer. A work of rare interest, and full of instruction. For circulars and terms address
NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO.,
jy25 2m Memphis, Tenn.

Carpet and Oil Cloth Warehouse.

J. M. ELKIN. F. STRINGER
ELKIN & CO.,
168.....CANAL STREET.....168
Near Baronne, New Orleans,
IMPORTERS OF ALL VARIETIES OF ENGLISH CARPETINGS, RUGS, Etc.
—ALSO—
Oil Cloths, Mattings,
Lace and Damask Curtains,
Window Shades, etc.,
—AND A—
Complete Assortment of Upholstery Goods.
fe8 1y

EXCHANGE HOTEL,
JOHN SUMMERS, PROPRIETOR,
GALVESTON, TEXAS.

This is the only Hotel in the city which has FREE OMNIBUSES to and from the cars and boats for the use of guests. Ask for Exchange Hotel Omnibus. feb1 1y

BUSINESS CARDS.

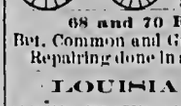
YOUR CUSTOM SOLICITED BY
R. F. W. BACHMAN,
DEALER IN BOOTS AND SHOES,
No. 18 Camp Street,
Under City Hotel, New Orleans.
Made expressly for the first-class retail Family and Plantation trade. se19 6m

E. HEATH. M. LARA. J. P. HEATH.
HEATH, LARA & HEATH,
IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN
UPHOLSTERERS' MATERIALS,
WALL PAPER, WINDOW SHADES,
CORNICES AND CURTAIN GOODS,
Pictures, Frames, Moldings, Looking Glasses and Clocks,
NO. 99 CAMP STREET,
no16 1y NEW ORLEANS.

THE MITCHELL & RAMMELSBERG
FURNITURE COMPANY,
Manufacturers and dealers in all kinds of
Furniture, Mattresses, Looking Glasses,
ETC., ETC.,
103 and 105 Camp street, cor. Poydras,
Morrsque Building, New Orleans,
have the largest and best assortment of FURNITURE of any house in the city.
Please give us a call before purchasing elsewhere. my23 1y

A. B. GRISWOLD & CO.,
CANAL ST., COR. ROYAL, NEW ORLEANS,
IMPORTERS OF
WATCHES, JEWELRY, CLOCKS,
PLATED WARE, HOUSEKEEPING GOODS,
Cutlery, Guns Pistols, Bronzes, Porcelain and Fancy Goods.
MANUFACTURERS OF
PURE COIN SILVERWARE.
Watches and Jewelry carefully repaired. Every article sold fully guaranteed.
no23 1y

J. THOMSON. G. THOMSON. W. B. THOMSON.
J. THOMSON & BROS.,



Manufacturers of
Carriages, Barouches, Buggies, Phaetons,
SPRING WAGONS, Etc.
68 and 70 Rampart Street,
Bet. Common and Gravier, New Orleans, La.
Repairing done in all its branches. no30 1y

LOUISIANA STEAM
SASH, BLIND AND DOOR FACTORY,
ROBERTS & CO., PROPRIETORS,
301, 303, 305 and 307 Gravier Street,
NEW ORLEANS. my30 1y

JAMES M'CRACKEN. GEO. E. BREWSTER.
M'CRACKEN & BREWSTER,
DEALERS IN FURNITURE,
Nos. 37, 39 and 41 Royal street.
Manufactory, corner Derbigny and Customhouse streets, New Orleans. my9 6m

JOHN I. ADAMS & CO., (JOHN I. ADAMS, JAY L. ADAMS, GEO. W. WEST, WM. H. RENAUD,)
WHOLESALE GROCERS,
AND DEALERS IN
PROVISIONS, LARD, OILS, ETC., ETC.,
43, 45 and 47 Peters street,
(Formerly New Levee,)
mh21 1y NEW ORLEANS.

ELON G. SMITH. J. L. CHEATHAM.
J. W. DRAUGHON.
SMITH, CHEATHAM & CO.,
(SUCCESSORS TO ELON G. SMITH & CO.)
PORK PACKERS,
Provision and Commission Merchants,
CORNER THIRD AND SPRUCE STREETS,
SAINT LOUIS.
We solicit orders from the trade for goods in our line. oc2 1y

C. SAMPSON. F. G. SAMPSON.
SAMPSON BROTHERS,
(Late C. C. Sampson.)
FURNITURE.
35 & 37 ROYAL STREET.....33 & 35
NEW ORLEANS.
Established in 1833. ja11 1y

Carpet Warehouse—17 Chartres Street.
A. BROUSSEAU & CO.,
Importers and dealers, at Wholesale and Retail, in English and American Carpetings
Floor Oil Cloths, Table and Enameled Oil Cloths,
Window Shades, Table and Piano Covers,
Crumb Cloths, in squares or pieces,
Curtain and Furniture Materials,
Brocatelles, Coteleines, Terries, Reps, Lace and Nottingham Lace Curtains, Hairclothe Ticking, Springs, Burlaps, Step Covers, etc.
no24 1y A. BROUSSEAU & CO.

T. H. McMAHAN & CO.,
BANKERS,
And Dealers in Foreign and Domestic Exchange,
GALVESTON, TEXAS
We have prompt and reliable correspondents at all the principal points throughout this State, and upon all collections payable in this city or Houston make no charge for collecting, and only actual charge upon interior collections.
Immediate and prompt attention given to all business intrusted to us. feb1 1y

RICHARD BRODERICK,
CISTERN MAKER,
132 .....Julia street 132
Bet. Camp and Magazine, New Orleans.
Second hand Cisterns always on hand. All work guaranteed.
All orders left at Box 30, Mechanics' and Dealers' Exchange, will meet with prompt attention. my2 1y

E. VEAZIE,
74.....Camp street 74
NEW ORLEANS, LA.,
LAMPS AND OILS, CHANDELIERS,
Globes, Chimneys, Shades, Trimmers, Wicks, Cans, Fillers, etc.
PRATTS' ASTRAL OIL, non-explosive and non-inflammable. ja18 1y

R. H. NOBLE. J. H. WOODS.
NOBLE & WOODS,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL GROCERS,
Nos. 9 and 11 Delta street, and 10 and 12 Front street,
ja18 1y NEW ORLEANS, LA.

JOHN D. MACLAN. L. D. MACLIN,
(Late R. D. Maclin.)
COAL! WOOD! COAL!
Pittsburg, Anthracite and Cannel Coal, Oak, Ash and Pine Wood, at the lowest market rates, delivered in any part of the city.
Offices—26 Carondelet street, and corner of Third and Tchoupitoulas. mh7 1y

MENEELY'S BELLS.

THE genuine Troy Church Bells known to the public since 1826, which have acquired a reputation unequaled by any, and a sale exceeding that of all others including more than seventy chimes and peals. One thousand testimonials received during the last six years. Every Bell made of best Copper and Tin, and formally warranted. New Patent Rotary Fixtures. Catalogues free. No agencies.

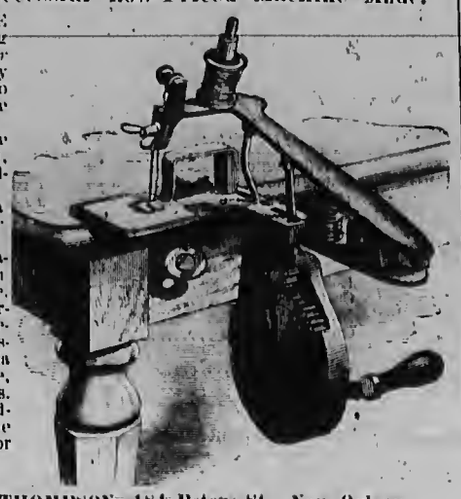
Post office address, either TROY or WEST TROY, New York.
je13 1y E. A. & G. R. MENEELY.

THE BECKWITH SEWING MACHINE.

PATENTED APRIL 10, 1871.

PRICE, $10, including Hemmer, Guide, four Needles, Bottle of Oil and Can.

The First and Only Successful Low-Priced Machine Made.



PRACTICAL, DURABLE, SIMPLE and Beautiful. Capable of making by hand upward of 800 Stitches per Minute and there is very little Family Sewing that this machine will not do as well as a $75 machine, and some work it will do better.

It is well and strongly made of the best material, but compact and light, and takes up but little room. Nickel-plated throughout.

Its SIMPLICITY adapts it to all capabilities. Every machine is fully warranted for Two Years.

Full directions for running the machine, hemming, tucking, hem-stitching, etc., accompany every machine.

Parties in the city wishing to purchase a machine can see one in operation at Mrs. Robertson's, dressmaker, corner of Camp and Julia streets, up stairs, over the cigar store, and where they can leave their orders.

Single machines sent to any address, carefully boxed, with all the equipments, on receipt of $10. For full particulars send for circular.

Address
EDWARD THOMPSON, 184 Peters St., New Orleans,
Energetic Agents Wanted. (je27 6m) Agent of the Manufacturer.

"Southern Books for Southern Schools."

School-Books which are Unsectional, Unpartisan, and Unpolitical.

PREPARED BY THE MOST EMINENT SOUTHERN SCHOLARS, AND

ENTIRELY ACCEPTABLE TO SOUTHERN TEACHERS AND PARENTS.

The University Publishing Co.,

An Association composed of many the several Southern States, Reel-School Books which should be en*tirely unsectional, unpartisan*, and in their teaching thought and feeling of the Southern the facts of history and science—of School and College Text-books and educators named below, which of the most eminent citizens of ing the necessity for a series of unpolitical, and should not be offensive, to the people—which should present only are now issuing a complete series by the eminent Southern scholars are the

Cheapest, Best, and Most Beautiful School-Books

Now published. The "University Series" embraces

MAURY'S GEOGRAPHICAL SERIES,

By Commodore M. F. MAURY, of the Virginia Military Institute. A series of books which mark an era in the study of this science, and which, in the words of a well known and accomplished Southern teacher, "are characterized by a felicity of arrangement and simple freshness of style which must ever render them attractive to the young, and which will be used by all who wish to teach Geography as a science, as something to make pupils think, and not merely as an enumeration of dry facts."

Holmes' Readers and Spellers,

By GEORGE F. HOLMES, LL.D., Professor of History and General Literature in the University of Virginia. A series of Readers unequalled in cheapness, excellence, and typographical beauty. They are steadily progressive in character, bright and fresh in their selections of prose and verse, and illustrative of Southern scenes, incidents, and history.

Venable's Arithmetical Series,

By CHARLES S. VENABLE, LL.D., Professor of Mathematics in the University of Virginia. These books are received everywhere by intelligent teachers with the highest satisfaction, as being most admirably adapted for mental drill, as well as for business education. Their methods, rules, and reasonings are clear, distinct, logical, and comprehensive, and the series is carefully graded throughout.

Holmes' History of the United States,

By GEORGE F. HOLMES, LL.D., of the University of Virginia. It is enough to say of this admirable work, interesting, impartial, and truthful, as well as pure and graceful in style, that it is the only History of the United States which is acceptable to Southern teachers and parents. It comes down to the present date.

THE "UNIVERSITY SERIES" OF SCHOOL-BOOKS

COMPRISES, ALSO,

De Vere's French Grammar, Readers, etc.,

By M. SCHELE DE VERE, LL.D., Professor of Modern Languages in the University of Va

Gildersleeve's Latin Series,

By B. L. GILDERSLEEVE, Ph.D., LL.D., of the University of Virginia.

Carter's Elements of General History,

By Rev. J. P. CARTER, A.M., of Baltimore, Maryland.

Holmes' English Grammars,

By GEORGE F. HOLMES, LL.D., of the University of Virginia

LeConte's Scientific Series,

By the Professors LECONTE, late of the University of South Carolina.

Johnston's English Classics,

By R. M. JOHNSTON, A.M., late Professor of Rhetoric and Belles-Lettres in the University of Georgia.

To which list other books in other departments will early be added.

Send for our full ILLUSTRATED DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE, which will be mailed free to any teacher or school officer. Liberal terms given for introduction.

Address
UNIVERSITY PUBLISHING COMPANY,
155 and 157 Crosby Street, New York.

A full supply of "The University Series" always on hand, and teachers and schools supplied by R. J. HART, Bookseller, 113 Camp St., New Orleans.
And by all prominent booksellers throughout the South.
W. IRVING CLARKE, the General Agent, will furnish any information, and afford every facility to teachers for examining the series. Office—93 CAMP ST., New Orleans. mh17 1y

MINERAL SPERM OIL.
GUARANTEED AS SAFE AS SPERM OR LARD OIL.
It Will Not Take Fire in Case of Breakage of the Lamp.
THE OIL WILL EXTINGUISH the FLAME.

The Oil itself has no odor while burning. It gives a Light of TEN-CANDLE POWER at a cost not exceeding ONE-HALF CENT PER HOUR, and for lighting railroad cars, steamers, factories and dwelling houses it is invaluable and cannot be too highly recommended.

The Oil is patented, and made by a process which insures its uniformity.

It burns with great brilliancy in the
DUAL BURNER,
requires but little attention and no trimming. The Oil never gums in the lamp, as it absorbs no oxygen from the atmosphere. It does not deteriorate by age. This Burner fits all ordinary coal oil lamps
BOSTICK & SEYMOUR,
Sole Agents for Louisiana, Alabama, Mississippi and Texas,
45 and 47 Front st., and 46 and 48 Fulton st.,
mh28 6m New Orleans

ARMSTRONG, CATOR & CO.,
IMPORTERS AND MANUFACTURERS OF
Ribbons, Millinery and Straw Goods,
WHITE GOODS, LINEN LACE AND EMBROIDERY,
Nos. 237 and 239 Baltimore Street,
BALTIMORE, MARYLAND.
Orders promptly attended to se5 3m

AGENTS WANTED—for the Lives of
Grant Greeley
WILSON BROWN and the leading men of all parties. Over 40 Steel Portraits, worth twice the cost of the book. Wanted everywhere. Agents have wonderful success. Send for circular. Address
ZIEGLER & McCURDY,
au15 2m 503 N. Sixth st., St. Louis, Mo.

SAVE $20.

THE NEW WILSON
UNDER-FEED.
The Best and Cheapest First-class Shuttle SEWING MACHINE In the World.
Wm. GREGG & Co.
General Southern Agents, No. 189 Canal street, New Orleans, La.
Agents Wanted. je27 6m

AGENTS WANTED TO SELL THE ILLUSTRATED
HISTORY OF THE BIBLE
By Wm. SMITH, LL.D.
AUTHOR OF SMITH'S BIBLE DICTIONARY.

It contains 214 fine Scripture Illustrations and over 1,100 pages, and is the most comprehensive and valuable History of the Bible ever published. The labor and learning of centuries are gathered in this one volume to throw a strong, clear light upon every page of the inspired Word.

Send for circulars, and see our terms and a full description of the work. Address
NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO.,
274 and 276 Second street,
au1 6m Memphis, Tenn.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

NEW AND POPULAR BOOKS.

LABBERTON'S HISTORICAL ATLAS, containing a Chronological Series of One Hundred Colored Maps, illustrating successive periods, from the Dawn of History to the Present Day. By Prof. Robert H. Labberton, Ph. D., author of "Outlines of History," etc. Oblong quarto, cloth, $3.50.

"These maps abound in excellencies which exhibit the thorough scholarship, and the ingenuity and appreciation of the needs of students which distinguish all Labberton's works." The Nation.

Fifth Thousand, Revised and Corrected,

THAUTWINE'S CIVIL ENGINEER'S POCKET-book. By John C. Trautwine, Civil Engineer. Illustrated with 6a0 engravings from original designs. 16mo, 618 pages, morocco. Tucks (pocketbook form.) Gilt edges, $5.

"We do not hesitate to say, from a large experience in the use of works of this class, that it is the best pocketbook for the civil engineer that has ever appeared." American Railway Times, Boston.

THE DICTIONARY OF PHRASE AND FABLE Giving the Derivation, Source or Origin of Common Phrases, Allusions and Words that have a Tale to Tell. By the Rev. E. Cobham Brewer, LL.D., of Trinity Hall, Cambridge. Crown 8vo, 1,011 pages. $3.50.

"The book is a wise old grandfather, who knows almost anything." Every Saturday.

For sale by booksellers generally, or sent by mail on receipt of the price.

CLAXTON, REMSEN & HAFFELFINGER,
je22 3m Philadelphia.

TO METHODISTS.

SUNDAY HALF HOURS, WITH THE GREAT PREACHERS

is the best book of Sermons ever published.

Dr. Kynett says: "It should be welcomed to every Christian family."

Dr. Payne says: "Of inestimable value. * * * Rich, rare and priceless."

Dr. Warren says: "I cordially commend it."

Sold only by subscription.

AGENTS WANTED.

Liberal terms; money made rapidly, and a valuable and handsome book circulated.

Circulars sent free on application.

PORTER & COATES, Publishers,
au29 1in Philadelphia, Pa.

MILLER'S GREAT BIBLE,
WITH OVER TWO HUNDRED ENGRAVINGS.
LARGE PRINT.—BEAUTIFUL BINDINGS.

THE CHRISTIAN HARMONY,
SEVEN-SHAPED NOTES.

The system of Music on which this work is based is remarkable for its simplicity, and the facility with which any one can learn to sing, requiring far less time and labor than the ordinary four note system. It contains the choicest collection of Music, both original and selected, from the best sources; particularly designed for Choirs, Singing Schools and Private Societies. The great and unprecedented success of the Southern Harmony, by the same author, is a guarantee of the high musical merit of this work. Agents wanted.

Miller's Bible and Publishing House,
1102 and 1104 Sansom street,
je27 6m Philadelphia, Penn'a.

A POPULAR MUSIC BOOK!
AT A POPULAR PRICE!
"THE SCEPTER."
By Dr. A. Brooks Everett,

ONLY $1.00.—BY THE DOZEN, $10.50.

"THE SCEPTER" contains a large variety of most valuable material, embracing Hymn-tunes, Anthems, Glees, the "Everett System of Teaching Vocal Music," etc., by the well known professor of music, Dr. A. Brooks Everett, recognized throughout the Southern States as a most successful and popular teacher of the art of singing, as well as the author of many of the most popular tunes contained in the Tabor or Richmond Collection.

"THE SCEPTER"

also contains contributions by Profs. R. M. McIntosh, H. H. Everett and other well-known composers, as well as a large number of old standard tunes.

Every Choir Leader and Teacher of Music should examine "THE SCEPTER." Sent, post paid, on receipt of $1.

PUBLISHED BY
BIGLOW & MAIN, NEW YORK,
SUCCESSORS TO WM. B. BRADBURY.

Publishers of the most popular series of SUNDAY SCHOOL SONG BOOKS Golden Chain, Shower and Censer, Fresh Laurels, Bright Jewels, Pure Gold, etc. For sale by Booksellers generally.

All publications of Biglow & Main are for sale by ROBT. J. HART, Agent, 112 Camp street, New Orleans. jy18 3m

SWINTON'S CONDENSED
SCHOOL HISTORY.

(From the Virginia Educational Journal.)

Mr. Swinton's reputation led us to examine this book. What is of most importance in the work is its extreme fairness. It is vastly superior, in this respect, to any history issued at the North that we have seen. Where accuracy seems almost impossible, he comes nearer to the truth than the others.

NEW SCHOOL BOOKS.

SWINTON'S WORD ANALYSIS.
CATHCART'S YOUTH'S SPEAKER.
ARITHMETICAL EXAMPLES (Mental and Written.)
KERL'S SHORTER COURSE IN GRAMMAR.

A Descriptive Catalogue of the American Educational Series, and our Educational Reporter, mailed free to any address upon application.

Ivison, Blakeman, Taylor & Co.,
Or T. MORONEY, General Agent,
mh28 1y 92 Camp street, New Orleans.

Uniform Lessons for 1872.

FOR TEACHERS. The Sunday School World contains the explanations and studies prepared by Rev. John Hall, D. D., for teachers.

SCHOLARS' PAPER. With the text of the lesson, and suggestive helps for the study of it; and questions at the foot of each page, to be answered in writing by the scholar.

INTERMEDIATE LESSON PAPER. Adapted to the use of less advanced scholars, with questions and explanations.

Price of each Lesson Paper of four pages, at the rate of 75 cents per 100 copies for one month, or $3 per 100 copies yearly.

Catalogues of the Society's publications and sample copies of its periodicals furnished gratuitously on application at the Depository of the
AMERICAN SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION,
au1 3m 1122 Chestnut st., Philadelphia.

FREE TO BOOK AGENTS

AN ELEGANTLY BOUND CANVASSING Book, for the best and cheapest Family Bible ever published will be sent free of charge to any Book Agent. It contains nearly 500 fine Scripture Illustrations, and agents are meeting with unprecedented success. Address, stating experience, etc., and we will show you what our agents are doing,
NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO.,
se5 4m Memphis, Tenn.

NEW ORLEANS MARKETS.

(From the New Orleans Price Current.)

On Saturday evening we were visited by a rain of two hours duration, which was followed by cloudy weather, with an additional rain on Sunday and quite a heavy shower on Monday, since which it has been clear and pleasant. Our accounts from the country present no new feature. Most of the letters from Mississippi, Arkansas and Louisiana indicate a decrease from the crop of 1870 of one-third to one-half.

The river is 13 feet 10 inches below high water mark.

COTTON.—The following are the arrivals since the twentieth instant:

Louisiana and Mississippi	bales..	7,890
Lake		52
Mobile		1,740
Texas		318
Total		10,000

On Saturday the opening rates showed little or no variation, but under the news prices soon gave way, and the bulk of the business was at a decline of ⅛@¼c., low middling closing at 17¾@18¼c. The sales embraced 1,700 bales. On Monday the tendency was still more in favor of buyers, prices weakening as the day advanced, until at the close good ordinary was quoted at 17⅛@17⅜c., low middling at 17½@17⅝c., and middling at 18@18¼c. The bulk of the business, which was confined to 1,350 bales, was in low middling and strict low middling at 17⅝@17¾c. On Tuesday the market opened with a better feeling, and factors evinced renewed confidence, many of them raising their pretensions ⅛@¼c., but finding that buyers were unwilling to go on at any advance, they subsequently met the demand more freely, and, although prices were steadier and stronger, yet they showed no quotable improvement, except that purchases of low middling could no longer be made at Monday's inside figures. The sales embraced 2,650 bales. Good ordinary sold at 16¾@16⅞c., strict good ordinary at 17⅜c., low middling at 17⅝, 17.11-16@17¾c., strict do. at 17¾@17⅞c., and a high style of middling at 18¼c., while brokers reported that they could buy middling at 18c.

The receipts proper at this port, since the first of September (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida and Texas,) are 33,213 bales, against 11,071 bales to the same date last year, and the increase in the receipts at all the ports, up to the latest dates, as compared with last year, is 54,084 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries, as compared with the same date last year, there is an increase of 3,829 to France, and a decrease of 14,555 to Great Britain, and of 82 to other foreign ports.

We quote:

Good ordinary	17	@ 17⅛
Low middling	17⅛	@ 17⅜
Middling	18	@ 18¼
Strict middling	18¼	@ 18½

COTTON STATEMENT.

Stock on hand Sept. 1, 1872, bales.		6,259
Arrived past three days..	10,000
Arrived previously	30,485—	40,485
		46,744
Exported past three days.	2,537
Exported previously	10,833—	13,370
Stock on hand and on shipboard..		33,374

SUGAR.—On Tuesday the demand was confined to grocers in a job way. Some 30 hhds. were received from plantation, and 15 hhds. yellow clarified sold on the landing at 11¼@11⅜c. ₩ lb., 61 hhds. Porto Rico sold at 10¼@10¾c., and 15 hhds. Demarara at 11¼c. ₩ lb. City refinery is selling at 11½@12c. for yellow clarified, 12¾@13c. for white clarified, 13½c. for crushed, and 14½c. for cut loaf.

MOLASSES.—The market is bare of Louisiana. Last week a lot of 13 bbls. received from plantation sold at 55c. ₩ gallon for reboiled. City refinery is selling at 40c. for common, 52c. for fair, 57c. for prime, and 62c. for choice.

CORN.—On Tuesday the supply was light and the demand moderate, with firmer prices for yellow. The sales comprised 1,800 sacks, in lots, at 59@60c. for white mixed, 62c. for white, and 62@63c. ₩ bushel for yellow.

OATS.—On Tuesday the supply and demand were both limited, and only 300 sacks choice St. Louis sold at 45c. ₩ bushel.

BRAN.—On Tuesday, on account of depleted stock, prices advanced 5c. ₩ 100 lbs., though the sales were confined to 100 bags at $1.05 ₩ 100 lbs.

PORK.—On Tuesday the market was quiet, but the stock was held strongly at $14.75@$15 ₩ bbl. for mess; 25 bbls. sold at $14.75, and 50 bbls. at $15 ₩ bbl. It is retailing at $15.25 ₩ bbl.

BACON.—On Tuesday the stock was held strongly at 8¾c. for shoulders, 12c. for clear rib sides, and 12⅝@12¾c. for clear sides, with a job demand at these prices; 12 casks clear rib sides, a choice lot, sold at 12¼c. ₩ lb., 5 casks clear sides at 12¾c., and 10 casks shoulders at 8¾c. ₩ lb.

HAMS.—The sales on Saturday and Monday embraced 450 tierces, in lots, at 17¾@18½c. ₩ lb., a small lot commanding 18¾c. ₩ lb. Choice sugar-cured are now quoted at 18@18¾c., and ordinary brands at 16½@17½c. ₩ lb.

LARD.—Choice continues scarce and in good demand at full prices. On Tuesday 20 tierces packers' sold at 9¾c. ₩ lb.

CORN MEAL.—On Tuesday the market was dull, with holders asking $2.75 ₩ bbl. 250 bbls. sold, in three lots, on the landing and in store, at $2.55@$2.65 ₩ bbl.

BEEF.—We quote Texas mess at $11@$11.50, extra mess $12.50 ₩ bbl., and $7@$7.50 for half bbls. Tierces are quoted at $17@$17.50 for mess, and $18@$18.50 for prime mess. Western $14@$15 in bbls., and Northern $15@$20 for bbls., and $10.50 for half bbls.

MONETARY.

Gold opened on Tuesday at 113⅝@113¾ (against 114 at New York,) and closed at the opening rates (against 113¾ at New York.)

In silver we noticed only a few trifling sales at previous rates. American half dollars are now quoted at 109@110, and Mexican dollars nominally at 3@5 ₩ cent. premium in gold.

New Orleans Wholesale Prices.

REVISED AND CORRECTED WEEKLY.

Made up from Actual Sales as they Transpire.

ARTICLES.	FROM	TO
Agricultural implements:
Cotton scrapers	4 50	6 00
Cotton sweeps	4 50	6 00
Cultivators, Diam. & shovel-tooth	7 75	10 50
Cultivators, riding	45 00	60 00
Cultivators, walking	30 00	35 00
Shovels	7 50	14 50
Spades	7 50	16 50
Axes	10 00	15 00
Potato diggers	13 50	— —
Shovel plows	6 00	7 00
Half do., with cutters	8 00	9 00
Manly's D. S plow	6 00	9 75
Corn mills, Coleman's	120 00	425 00
Bread, ₩ 100 lbs:
Pilot	6 00	7 00
Loaf	— —	— —
Crackers	6 00	16 00
Navy	— —	4 00
Cream crackers	12 00	13 00
Bricks, ₩ M:
Lake	13 00	16 00
English fire	— —	50 00
American fire	40 00	— —
Candles, ₩ lb:
Sperm, New Bedford	33	36
Tallow	16	18
Chocolate, ₩ lb:
Cocoa	38	60
No. 1	50	52
Sweet and spiced	25	— —
Cider, ₩ bbl:
Western	— —	— —
Coal, ₩ ton:
Anthracite	12 00	13 00
Western, ₩ bbl	— —	55
Corks, ₩ 1000:
Regular	— —	— —
Pointed	— —	— —
Coffee, ₩ lb:
Havana (currency)	30	32
Java	25	27
Cordova	— —	— —
Copper, ₩ lb:
Brazlers'	48	— —
Copper bolts	48	— —
Yellow metal	30	32
Cordage, ₩ lb:
Manilla	19	20
Tarred, American	— —	16
Russian	16	— —
Cotton seed:
Rough, ₩ ton	— —	13 00
In sacks	— —	— —
Dyes, ₩ lb:
Logwood, Camp'y	4	4¼
Logwood, St. Domingo	4¼	4½
Fustic, Tampico	5	6
Indigo, ₩ lb	1 40	1 60
Madder	15	18
Eggs, ₩ dozen:
Western	22	27
Feathers, ₩ lb	65	— —
Fish, ₩ box:
Cod	1 40	— —
Herrings	35	— —
Mackerel, No. 1, ₩ bbl	13 00	— —
Mackerel, No. 2	10 50	— —
Mackerel, No. 3	8 00	— —
Flaxseed, ₩ lb	6	— —
Flour, ₩ bbl:
Double extra	6 75	— —
Superfine	5 25	— —
Fine	4 50	4 75
Fruit, ₩ lb:
Prunes	10	13½
Currants, new	9	10
Almonds, soft shell	19	20
Almonds, shelled	28	30
Glass, ₩ box of 50 feet:
French, 8 by 10	3 50	4 00
French, 10 by 12	3 75	4 25
French, 12 by 18	4 00	4 50
Gunny bags, ₩ bag	18	— —
Hay, ₩ ton:
Prime	24 00	25 00
Choice	26 00	— —
Iron, ₩ ton:
Pig	54 00	55 00
Country bar, ₩ lb	— —	— —
English	5½	7¼
Swedes, assorted	6¾	8¾
Hoop	7	10¾
Sheet	7¼	8¾
Boiler	7¾	8¾
Nail rods	— —	11
Castings, American	— —	6
Lead, ₩ 100 lbs:
Pig	— —	9 50
Bar, ₩ lb	8¼	8¾
Sheet	12	— —
Pipe	12	— —
Leather, ₩ lb:
Sole, hemlock	33	34
Sole, oak	40	43
Harness	38	45
Calf skins, ₩ dozen	42 00	70 00
Texas, rough, ₩ lb	24	26
Lime, ₩ bbl:
Western	1 25	1 50
Cement	2 50	3 00
Plaster Paris	4 00	— —
Lumber, ₩ M feet:
Boards, yellow pine	13 00	15 00
Boards, cypress	25 00	30 00
Flooring, dressed	25 00	30 00
Flooring, rough	15 00	18 00
Ceiling, dressed	20 00	25 00
Weatherboards, dressed	19 00	20 00
Weatherboards, rough	13 00	15 00
Scantling	13 00	15 00
Shingles, ₩ M	3 50	4 25
Laths	2 50	3 00
Moss, ₩ lb:
Country picked	4¼	6
Clean picked	6¼	7
Nails, ₩ keg:
American, 4@6d	5 85	6 00
Wrought, German, ₩ lb	14	16
Wrought, English	14	16
Oils:
Lard, ₩ gallon	70	85
Cod oil, in barrels	27	29
Coal oil, in cases	32	35
Linseed, raw	90	92
Sperm	— —	2 00
Whale, refined	95	1 00
Cotton seed, crude	— —	46
Cotton seed, refined	60	65
Castor	1 65	1 85
Olive, 22@24 oz	6 00	6 50
Olive, 11@12 oz	7 25	— —
Tanner's, ₩ gallon	75	85
Soap, ₩ lb:
Western	5½	7
Northern	5½	7
Southern	4½	6½
Castile, genuine	12	— —
Castile, imitation	11	— —
Sardines:
Half boxes	34	35½
Quarter boxes	— —	23
Spices, ₩ lb:
Cassia	36	38
Cloves	— —	23
Nutmegs	1 20	1 25
Pepper	21	21½
Pimento	12	12½
Sugar, ₩ lb:
Havana, white	12	13
Havana, yellow	10½	11½
Havana, brown	10½	11½
Crushed	— —	13½
Pulverized	— —	13½
Teas, ₩ lb:
Imperial	45	1 10
Gunpowder	75	1 50
Hyson	75	1 25
Young Hyson	75	1 10
Oolong	45	1 10
Pouchong	30	50
Tin, ₩ box:
Block	— —	— —
In plates, I. X	19 00	19 25
In plates, I. C	16 50	16 75
Leaded plates, I. X	17 25	17 50
Leaded plates, I. C	15 00	15 25

CATTLE MARKET.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 24, 1872.

Texas beeves, choice, ₩ head	$— —	@	50 00
Texas beeves, 1st qual, ₩ head	35 00	@	45 00
Texas cattle, 2d qual, ₩ head	20 00	@	28 00
Texas cattle, 3d qual, ₩ head	12 00	@	15 00
Western beeves, ₩ lb. net	— —	@	— —
Hogs, ₩ lb. gross	6	@	7¾
Sheep, first quality, ₩ head	5 00	@	6 00
Sheep, second qual., ₩ head	3 00	@	4 00
Sheep, third quality, ₩ head	2 00	@	2 50
Milch cows, choice, ₩ head	80 00	@	100 00
Milch cows, ₩ head	50 00	@	80 00
Texas cows, with calves	— —	@	— —
Calves, ₩ head	7 00	@	10 00
Yearlings, ₩ head	8 00	@	12 00

Special Notices.

Appointments for Preaching in Selma District, Alabama Conference.

On my last round I will preach as follows: Linden, Oct. 9, 10; Shiloh, Oct. 12, 13; Wesley chapel, Oct. 15; Air Mount, Oct. 16; Mt. Andrew, Oct. 18, 19, 20; Bush, Nov. 1, 2, 3; Dayton, Nov. 7, 8, 9, 10; McKinley, Nov. 12; Center chapel, Nov. 14, 15, 16, 17; Jackson, Nov. 22; Grove Hill, Nov. 23, 24; Unionn, Nov. 26.

Bro. Wade will please meet me at Jackson. Bro. Thames will meet me at Union church, and I will fill any appointments he may make up to his quarterly meeting. The first week in December I propose to spend at Gainestown.

Dear brethren, the Lord has thus far greatly blessed your labors in the conversion of many souls. Let us earnestly pray for his presence at these appointments, and for a greater outpouring of the Spirit upon us and our people; and to him be all the glory.

A. J. BRIGGS, P. E.

Wayne Circuit Camp Meeting.

All the preachers will find conveyance to the Wayne circuit camp meeting (to be held at Frost's Bridge on Thursday before the second Sunday in October,) at Shubuta and Waynesboro. JAMES SHANKS, P. C.

Camp Meeting.—Change of Time.

There will be a camp meeting on the Paulding circuit, Meridian district, Mississippi Conference, twelve miles west of Enterprise, near the Enterprise and Mount Rose road, commencing on Thursday before and embracing the third Sabbath in October. The meeting will be conducted on the primitive style. Provision will be made for all ministers and persons living at a distance. Persons living within fifteen or twenty miles of the camp ground must not expect accommodations from the citizens or tent-holders. All ministers are respectfully invited and urged to attend. There will be conveyance for ministers at Enterprise on Thursday morning. J. H. HOLLAND, P. C.

Camp Meeting.

There will be a camp meeting at Old Salem camp ground, East Pascagoula circuit, Mississippi Conference, commencing on Thursday before the second Sabbath in October. The tenters propose furnishing visitors. However, there will be a public table for the benefit of those who prefer furnishing themselves. Charges moderate. Preachers are invited. C. F. GILLASPIE, P. E.
U. D. PHILIPS, P. C.

Camp Meeting.

There will be a camp meeting at the New Hope and Pleasant Ridge camp ground, on the DeKalb circuit, beginning on the Friday night before the first Sabbath in October. Ministers are most cordially invited to attend. Those coming by railroad will be met on Friday morning, at Lauderdale station, with vehicles to convey them to the camp ground. D. G. W. ELLIS, P. C.

Camp Meeting.

We have appointed our camp meeting at Gilead, eight miles east of Clinton, Louisiana, to commence on Thursday night before the second Sunday in October. Ministers and friends of camp meetings are invited from a distance, and will be accommodated on the grounds free.

WILL. H. LEITH, Pastor.

Camp Meeting.

There will be a camp meeting at Sardis church, Greene county, Alabama, fifteen miles west of Eutaw, Alabama, on the Warsaw road, near the Bigbee river, commencing on Thursday night before the first Sabbath in October, 1872. Preachers are respectfully invited. J. W. MCCANN.

Camp Meeting.

There will be a camp meeting, twelve miles east of Pleasant Hill, Natchitoches parish—known as Beulah camp ground—commencing on the eleventh of October, instead of the eleventh of September. R. PARVIN.

Camp Meeting.

There will be a camp meeting held at Indian Village, Castor circuit, Louisiana Conference, to commence on Wednesday before the first Sabbath in October, on the self-sustaining plan. Persons living at a distance, and desiring to tent, can have a tent built to order by addressing Rev. J. B. Londers, Forksville, Louisiana. A general invitation to ministers is hereby given.

J. W. HEARN, P. C.

Camp Meeting.

A camp meeting will be held on Spring creek, thirty miles southwest of Alexandria, near Burr's ferry, on the road from mouth of Red river to the Sabine, and on the Opelousas and Natchitoches road, beginning on Friday, October 11. All ministers and all friends are earnestly requested to give us their attendance and assistance.

FRED. WHITE,
S. H. COOPER.
C. KEENER.

Camp Meeting.

There will be a camp meeting on the Gaston circuit, Demopolis district, Alabama Conference, three miles west of DeSotoville, in the northern portion of Choctaw county, Alabama, commencing on Friday before the first Sabbath in October. Provision will be made for all visitors. Ministers of the gospel are cordially invited.

C. B. MCROSE, P. C.

Appointments for Quarterly Meetings.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

BROOKHAVEN DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Providence circuit, at Providence	Sept.	21, 22
Brandywine circuit		28, 29
Scotland circuit, at Caseyville	Oct.	5, 6
Pleasant Valley ct., at Rehoboth		12, 13
Burtonton circuit, at Pisgah		19, 20
Beauregard		26, 27
Georgetown ct., at Pleas't Grove	Nov.	2, 3
Jackson circuit, at Spring Ridge		9, 10
Crystal Springs and Crystal Spr'gs mission		16, 17
Bogue Chitto circuit, at Johnson's Station		23, 24
Brookhaven station and Brookhaven mission		30
Hazlehurst station	Dec.	7, 8

Secretaries of the respective Boards of Stewards will prepare a financial statement for the use of the Joint Board, as required by the Discipline. Trustees will report the condition and character of titles of all property they hold for the church.

W. E. M. LINFIELD, P. E.

BRANDON DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Brandon station	Sept.	28, 29
Hillsboro circuit	Oct.	5, 6
Philadelphia circuit		12, 13
Decatur mission		19, 20
Lake circuit		26, 27
Trenton circuit	Nov.	2, 3
Raleigh and Morton circuit		9, 10
Forest circuit		16, 17
Taylorville mission		23, 24
Garlandsville circuit		30, Dec. 1
Brandon circuit	Dec.	7, 8

F. M. WILLIAMS, P. E.

WOODVILLE DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Woodville	Oct.	5, 6
East Feliciana		12, 13
Clinton		19, 20
Buffalo		26, 27
Bayou Sara	Nov.	2, 3
Wilkinson		9, 10
Meadville		16, 17
Amite		23, 24
East Baton Rouge		30, Dec. 1
Jackson	Dec.	8, 9

For four long weeks I have been confined to the room of my afflicted wife, so that I have missed three of my appointments; but my dear brother, President Andrews, has and will supply my lack of service.

J. L. FORSYTH, P. E.

MERIDIAN DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Spring Hill
meeting)	Sept.	21, 22
Shubuta, at Shubuta		28, 29
DeKalb ct., at New Hope (camp meeting)	Oct.	5, 6
Wayne circuit, at Frost's Bridge (camp meeting)		12, 13
Paulding circuit		19, 20
Enterprise station		26, 27
Clarke circuit	Nov.	2, 3
Enterprise ct., at Pleasant Valley		9, 10
Marion circuit		16, 17
Meridian station		30, Dec. 1

WM. B. HINES, P. E.

SUMMIT DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Summit and Magnolia, at Bethany	Sept.	21, 22
District Conference, at Tangipahoa, Louisiana		27, 28, 29
Sacramental meeting, at Port Vilnen	Oct.	12, 13
Holmesville circuit, at Holmesville		19, 20
Covington circuit, at Spring Hill		26, 27
Amite City circuit, at Amite City	Nov.	2, 3
Franklinton circuit, at Warner's		9, 10
Big Creek miss., at Shilling church		16, 17
St. Helena ct., at Center church		23, 24
Pontchatoula mission, at Joyner's church		30, Dec. 1
Greenburg ct., at Pipkin chapel	Dec.	7, 8

J. NICHOLSON, P. E.

SEASHORE DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Pearlington, at Jordan river	Sept.	7, 8
Ocean Springs, at Biloxi		14, 15
White Plains, at Poplar Head		21, 22
W. Pascagoula, at Mulberry Grove		28, 29
Green mission	Oct.	5, 6
East Pascagoula, at Salem camp ground		12, 13
Enon, at Enon		19, 20
Rankin	Nov.	30, Dec. 1

C. F. GILLASPIE, P. E.

JACKSON DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Jackson station	Sept.	14, 15
Canton station		21, 22
Madison ct., at Madison station		28, 29
Sharon circuit, at Sharon	Oct.	5, 6
Yazoo circuit, at Locust Grove		12, 13
Yazoo City and Silver Creek, at Yazoo City		19, 20
Mount Olivet circuit and Yazoo mission, at Mount Olivet		26, 27
Carthage circuit	Nov.	2, 3
Sulphur Springs circuit		9, 10
Raymond circuit, at Raymond		16, 17
Brownsville ct., at Queen's Hill		23, 24
Camden and Thomastown circuits		30, Dec. 1

The secretaries of Church Conferences will please present the report of statistics, as required by the Discipline, pages 55 and 56. The trustees of our church property will please make their report, as required by the Discipline, pages 55 and 102.

H. H. MONTGOMERY, P. E.

ALABAMA CONFERENCE.

DEMOPOLIS DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Cuba, at Cuba	Oct.	12, 13
Gainesville, at Gainesville		19, 20
Forkland, at Forkland		26, 27
Demopolis	Nov.	2, 3
Butler, at Mount Sterling		9, 16
Gaston, at Bethel		16, 17
Bladen Springs, at Bethel		23, 24

Preachers in charge will please have ready full statistical reports; stewards will make faithful efforts to bring up their finances, so as to meet the assessments; and trustees will be ready to give a clear statement of the condition of the property in their charges.

S. H. COX, P. E.

MOBILE DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Eastern Shore	Sept.	7, 8
Whistler		14, 15
St. Paul's		21, 22
Mt. Pleasant ct., at Hollow Creek		28, 29
Grand Bay mission, at Pleasant Valley	Oct.	5, 6
Citronelle circuit, at Citronelle		19, 20
St. Stephen's ct., at Pine Grove		26, 27
Franklin street	Nov.	2, 3
Pollard circuit, at Hendrick's		9, 10
Milton		16, 17
Pensacola		23, 24
St. Francis street	Dec.	1

The stewards, trustees and preachers will be ready with their reports, as the Discipline requires. They will please read and refresh their memories. H. URQUHART, P. E.

EUFAULA DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Eufaula	Oct.	5, 6
Villula		12, 13
Glennville		19, 20
Beulah		26, 27
Enon and Midway	Nov.	2, 3
Perote		9, 10
Clayton and Louisville		16, 17
Choctawhatchie		23, 24
Lawrenceville		30, Dec. 1
Channahatchie	Dec.	7, 8

JAS. L. COTTEN, P. E.

SELMA DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

East Selma station	Sept.	21, 22
Uniontown station		28, 29
Selma station	Oct.	5, 6
Rembert Hills circuit, at Siglob		12, 13
Peachtree ct., at Mount Andrew		19, 20
Summerfield station		26, 27
Choctaw Corner circuit, at Bashi	Nov.	2, 3
Dayton and Spring Hill circuit, at Dayton		9, 10
Linden and Flatwoods mission		—
Orrville circuit, at Center chapel		16, 17
Jackson circuit, at Grove Hill		23, 24
Suggsville circuit, at Gainstown		30, Dec. 1

We hope for a full attendance, and complete reports, as required by the Discipline. Those who have subscribed to the district parsonage will please bring or send up their contributions to the quarterly meetings.

A. J. BRIGGS, P. E.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

LAKE PROVIDENCE DIS.—FOURTH ROUND.

Westley and Jordan, at Westley	Oct.	19, 20
Waterproof, at Waterproof		26, 27
Oak Ridge and Prairie Mer Rouge	Nov.	2, 3
Lake Providence, at Lake Providence		7-10
Oak Grove, at Smith's chapel		16, 17
Floyd and Delhi, at Floyd		23, 24
Lind Grove, at Bartholomew		30, Dec. 1
Sicily Island, at Sicily Island	Dec.	7, 8
Winnsboro, at Magnolia		14, 15
Rayville, at New Salem		21, 22
Bastrop, at Bastrop		28, 29

The brethren will please remember that this is the fourth and last quarter. Boards of stewards will please be prepared for a full settlement of all financial obligations. Boards of trustees will be prepared to make their annual report. Pastors will be prepared with full quarterly and statistical reports.

J. T. DAVES, P. E.

OPELOUSAS DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Pattersonville	Sept.	14, 15
Opelousas		21, 22
Grand Chenier		28, 29
Lake Charles	Oct.	5, 6
Calcasieu		12, 13
Sugartown		19, 20
Bayou Boeuf		20, 27
Kimball chapel	Nov.	2, 3
Vermillionville		9, 10
Abbeville		16, 17
New Iberia		23, 24

B. F. WHITE, P. E.
Postoffice—Opelousas, La.

SHREVEPORT DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Pleasant Hill circuit, at Bethel	Sept.	7, 8
Springvale circuit, at Conshatta Academy		21, 22
Manny circuit, at Bayou Lee	Oct.	5, 6
Anacoco circuit, at Kasatchie		12, 13
Shreveport		19, 20

JOHN PIPES, P. E.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

YAZOO DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

French Camps circuit, at Liberty	Sept.	14, 15
Richland circuit, at Goodman		21, 22
Valden circuit, at Enon		28, 29
Attala circuit, at Pleasant Hill	Oct.	5, 6
Winona circuit, at Bethesda		12, 13
Greenwood and McNutt, at Greenwood		19, 20
Lexington		26, 27
Durant, at West's station	Nov.	2, 3
Kosehisko and Bethel, at Kosci'ko		9, 10
Black Hawk, at Sweetwater		16, 17

W. P. BARTON, P. E.

N. B.—Camp meetings at Liberty and Durant quarterly meetings.

DRY GOODS—CLOTHING.

D. H. HOLMES,

155.....CANAL STREET.....155

—AND—

15.....BOURBON STREET.....15

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALER

—IN—

ALL DESCRIPTIONS

—OF—

DRY GOODS,

—SUCH AS—

SILKS, TISSUES, EMBROIDERIES, LACES, SHAWLS, CLOAKS, MADE SUITS, ETC.

The attention of the public is respectfully called to our stock, which will be found most complete, embracing every kind of Fancy and Staple Goods.

ap25 6m

W. H. PIERSON. E. L. HEWS.

PIERSON & HEWS,

DEALERS IN

Fine Clothing & Furnishing Goods,

NOS. 13 AND 15 CAMP STREET,

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

feb15 1y

STEAMSHIPS.

FOR NEW YORK.

The Cromwell New York and New Orleans Steamship Line.

Steamers of this Line leave New Orleans for New York EVERY SATURDAY at 5 P. M.

Cabin passage $50 00
Steerage passage 25 00

Through bills of lading to foreign and coastwise ports issued.

ALFRED MOULTON,
41 Carondelet street.

mh21 1y

FOR NEW YORK.

MERCHANTS' STEAMSHIP LINE.

Sailing from New York and New Orleans EVERY SATURDAY.

Cabin passage $50 00
Steerage passage 25 00

Through tickets to Liverpool and the Continent.

New Orleans wharf, foot of Jefferson street. New York wharf, Pier No. 4, North river.

JOHN H. LUDWIGSEN, Agent,
No. 190 Common street.

feb8 1y

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE GREAT

HOUSEHOLD REMEDY.

As an Invigorator, Liver Corrector and Blood Renovator is superior to all the Bitters, Elixirs, Cordials and Sarsaparillas in use. It is so adapted to the whole system that every organ and function in the body is brought under its exhilarating influence. It gives tone and strength to the digestive apparatus, dispels langnor and debility, invigorates the Liver, regulates the Kidneys and Bowels, removes the effect of excess or overtaxation of any kind, and gives vitality and richness to the blood.

Its curative powers alter and completely reorganize the entire mass of fluids, and even the solids of the human system, thereby preventing and curing Dyspeptic and Consumptive symptoms, Fever and Ague, Bilious diseases, Fevers of all kinds, Nervous Debility, Affections of the Stomach and Bowels, etc. As a mild and delightful invigorant for delicate females it has no superior.

By its use new life and vigor is given to both body and mind, sending a glow of vitality through every part, which is permanent and lasting.

It is the most effectual remedy for the relief of human suffering ever discovered, and is pleasant to the taste.

X X X WE CHALLENGE X X X
THE WORLD

to produce a more delicious medicine to take, yet so potent for the prevention and cure of diseases, than DR. HENRY'S

WORLD'S TONIC AND BLOOD PURIFIER.

Price, $1, or Six Bottles for $5.

Prepared by the GRAFTON MEDICINE Co., St. Louis, Mo. Sold by druggists and dealers in medicines everywhere. jy18 1yeow

JOHN DOUGLAS, DEALER IN

Fancy and Staple Dry Goods,

NOS. 102 AND 104 DAUPHIN STREET,

MOBILE, ALABAMA.

Agent for the Florence Sewing Machine.

All goods warranted as represented, and sold at the lowest rates for Cash, our object being large sales and small profits. jn4 1y

MEDICAL.

DR. D. JAYNE'S ALTERATIVE

WILL

BUILD UP THE SYSTEM,

PURIFY THE BLOOD,

AND

EXCITE THE ABSORBENTS TO

HEALTHY ACTION.

DR. D. JAYNE'S ALTERATIVE

IS A STANDARD MEDICINE:

a compound of those articles which long experience has proven to possess the most safe and efficient alterative and deobstruent properties, and containing no concealed poisons, no mercurial or other metallic preparations. Having before us the testimonials of thousands of persons who have been restored to sound health from its use, it is recommended to the afflicted with entire confidence as to its ability to effectually eradicate from the human system the diseases for whose cure it is designed.

For Purifying the Blood

the Alterative will be found to be a most effective medicine. Acting directly on the circulation, it purifies the blood, and passes with it into every tissue and fiber of the body, removing every particle of disease from the system.

FOR SCROFULA IN ALL ITS FORMS,

whether Ulcerations of the Flesh or Bones, Enlargement of the Joints, Glands, Swellings, Eruptions, Tumors, etc., the Alterative has been found pre-eminently successful. By its action on the blood it destroys the virus or poisonous principle from which these diseases originate.

FOR SKIN DISEASES,

the immediate cause of which will always be found to be an obstructed state of the pores, JAYNE'S ALTERATIVE is a certain remedy. It not only removes the obstinate state of the pores, but it frees the blood and perspiration from all impurities and gross particles, which are so liable to obstruct the small perspiratory organs.

All Dr. D. Jayne & Son's Family Medicines are sold by our Agents in New Orleans.

E. J. HART & Co., 73 Tchoupitoulas St.,

and by Druggists and Dealers everywhere.

se5 2m

MRS. M. G. BROWN'S

CELEBRATED

POOR RICHARD'S

EYE-WATER

derives its name from Benjamin Franklin's Almanac, which is immortal for its philosophical sayings, one of which is: "An ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure."

Giving the Eyes a drink, morning and night, of

POOR RICHARD'S EYE-WATER

would prevent every disease which attacks the human body, thus lengthening life to an indefinite period.

The Body is of the Earth, and the Eye is a Plant, which requires moisture.

The dust received into the eyes daily works itself into mortar, which clogs the machinery of the head, and closes up the eight thousand tubes and glands around the eyes; the balls contract and stink; they grow to the socket, and consequently the revolving power is impeded. This is what causes the bloodstreaks, the dark greenish color of the balls, and scum.

When the eyes are neglected the entire machinery of the face becomes distorted; even the countenance is changed. How true: "The light of the body is the eye." It is as necessary to give the eye moisture as any plant of the field.

Language fails to make known the salutary effects upon the entire mental and physical machinery arising from giving the eyes a drink of POOR RICHARD'S EYE-WATER, morning and night; also the fearful consequence of neglecting so to do from the c

The Christian Advocate.

PUBLISHED BY ROBT. J. HARP, FOR THE ALABAMA, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES, METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH SOUTH.

VOL. XVIII. NEW ORLEANS, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1872. NO. 40.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

DOMESTIC.

Boston, Sept. 25.—The Harvard College committee have decided to take no action upon the admission of females.

Louisville, Sept. 25.—A heavy storm swept over the city last night, and a great deal of damage was done. The tobacco factory of R. Dunlap was partially destroyed. Loss, $3 000.

The Methodist church on Portland avenue was demolished. A stable on Bank street was lifted from over the horses in the stalls, and carried some distance, leaving the horses unhurt. A number of houses were unroofed at West Point.

New York, Sept. 26.—Letters from Martinique report the loss of twelve vessels during a burricane, on the ninth, at St. Kitts. Three lives were lost. On the tenth the brig Roseway, of New York, with a cargo of flour, and the brig Salamander, were wrecked. The barks Richardson and Rosebud were both dismantled. A schooner was carried out to sea and lost. A sloop was driven on the beach, and an unknown bark foundered to the windward of the island.

The hurricane at Barbadoes greatly injured the crops, and drove ashore the brigs J. Bover, of New Brunswick, George and Grace Kelley, of Halifax, and two sloops. No lives lost.

Chicago, Sept. 26.—Rev. Peter Cartwright, a pioneer Methodist preacher, is dead, aged eighty-seven.

New York, Sept. 28.—Colonel Thomas A. Scott to-day completed contracts for transporting supplies, provisions and laborers, and twenty-five thousand tons of iron, to be used in building the Trans-Continental railway, which begins at the end of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroad.

Memphis, Sept. 29.—A terrible storm swept over the village of Osceola, Arkansas, yesterday, about noon, uprooting trees, sweeping away fences, demolishing houses, and, in fact, clearing everything in its track. In the village three churches were demolished, several residences, and Eddin's mills and cotton gins. Two persons were killed, and the crops were ruined along the line of the tornado, which crossed the river at this point, and then went up the Tennessee shore.

Washington, Sept. 30.—The great storm that swept over the lakes on the twenty-eighth and twenty-ninth of September afforded another proof of the utility of the Signal Bureau. Its approach was announced in the morning probabilities of the twenty-eighth, and in the afternoon of that date the danger became so apparent that cautionary signals were ordered at Buffalo, Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, Grand Haven, Milwaukee, Toledo, Oswego and Rochester, hours before the storm reached either of these places.

Montgomery, Sept. 30.—The first through train on the new railroad from Louisville to Montgomery reached here to-day. Through trains will hereafter run regularly between these cities.

San Francisco, Sept. 30.—After being out nearly sixty hours, the jury in Mrs. Fair's case rendered a verdict, at nine o'clock this morning, of acquittal. Mrs. Fair, who was in court, fainted on the announcement of the verdict. It excites no surprise, on account of the inferior character of the jury, who were selected, under technicalities of the law, from among men who were so ignorant as not to know enough about this notorious case to have formed any opinion favorable or unfavorable to defendant.

Baltimore, Oct. 1.—W. Prescott Smith is dangerously ill with hemorrhage of the bowels.

Later.—W. Proscott Smith is dead. The city and country around is convulsed with sorrow.

Montgomery, Oct. 1.—Yesterday, near Cunningham depot, on the South and North Alabama railroad, about one hundred miles north of this city, the passenger car of the train which left Montgomery at eleven P. M., Sunday, jumped the track and was smashed by the sleeping car.

James M. Smith, of St. Louis, and C. C. McLemore, of Marion, Alabama, were crushed to death. Seven or eight persons were hurt, and it is said that Mr. Smith's father had an arm and leg broken.

There was no break in the road and apparently no cause for the car leaving the track. It was the first train that had left this city for a through trip to Louisville.

The wounded are said to be at Birmingham, but their names are unknown. No further particulars received.

FOREIGN.

Berlin, Sept. 25.—The authorities have stopped the transmission, by telegraph, of a cipher dispatch of four thousand words, signed by Napoleon.

It is given out, on official authority, that as the Bishop of Ermeland persists in withholding acknowledgment of the sovereignty of State, the government intends, at the next session of the Prussian Diet, to provide means for meeting the scruples, reservations and encroachments of the church.

Geneva, Sept. 25.—The government relieved a Catholic priest. The bishop resists, claiming that the power to remove is with the Pope only. The event causes some excitement.

London, Sept 25.—A special dispatch says that Toharness, King of Abyssinia, has applied to the civilized powers for protection against the Egyptians.

London, Sept. 27.—A heavy gale prevailed yesterday on the British coast. Several vessels which left the Mersey for American ports were driven back.

Matamoras, Sept. 27.—Revolutionary General Guerra, who has been operating in the States of Durango and Chihuahua, has reached Parras, in the State of Cohuila, with his forces. He is said to be accompanied by General Diaz. Both of these generals have acknowledged the government of President Tejada, and will lay down their arms. General Rocha has left Monterey for Parras to accept their surrender. General Escobedo has arrived at Monterey, it is supposed, to assume command of the Northern department of Mexico.

Geneva, Sept. 28.—The Roman Catholics of Geneva have protested against the removal of priest Mermilliod by the Swiss government. The Evangelical Conference, at its session to-day, voted to issue an address to the Old Catholics.

Mr. Jean Henri Merle d'Aubigne, professor of church history to the Theological School of Geneva, was instructed to draw up the paper.

Paris, Sept. 30.—Cerefik Bey has arrived here from Constantinople on his way to America. He goes to presids over the commission appointed to receive the rifled guns ordered in the United States for the Turkish army.

Rome, Sept. 30.—The Pope today went out beyond the precincts of the Vatican for the first time since the occupation of Rome by the Italian government. He proceeded to Porta della Zecca and walked in the gardens.

Strasbourg, Oct. 1.—The time granted to the inhabitants of Alsace and Lorraine to choose between German and French citizenship has expired. The exodus during the past few days was immense. Fully twelve thousand left this city on Sunday for French territory. Trains on railroads leading into France were crowded and proved insufficient to carry all who wanted to go.

The French journals to-day appeared in mourning.

London, Oct. 1.—A telegram from Ragusa reports that a fight occurred yesterday, at Lepasa, between Turks and Montenegrins; many killed and wounded on both sides.

A commissioner in the Irish High Court of Chancery has taken a deposition in support of the claims against the United States of America for a quantity of tobacco destroyed during the late war, valued at $60,000, and the property of one Valentine O'Connor.

The Pope has appointed the Rev. Mr. Vaughn, Bishop of Salford, England. Father Vaughn was recently connected with the mission for the spiritual instruction of the colored people of the United States.

Baron Hastings is dead.

Cholera in the Danubian Principalities.—The latest advices report no abatement to the spread of cholera in the Danubian Principalities. Over ten thousand persons had fallen victims to the disease in Roumania, since the appearance of the epidemic. Large numbers of physicians, sisters of charity, and other persons disposed to aid the afflicted, have arrived at Bucharest from neigbboring cities, and had gone to work with a will. The filthy condition of Bucharest and vicinity, of a swampy surrounding, give a great impetus to the disease in that city.

He whose wishes respecting the possessions of this world are the most reasonable and bounded is likely to lead the safest, and for that reason the most desirable life.

FROM THE WORK.

Mount Olivet Circuit, Mississippi Conference.—Mr. Editor: This circuit is enjoying a gracious season of revival, resulting, up to this date, in eighty-seven accessions to the church, forty conversions, many backsliders reclaimed, and the church powerfully revived. Of the number added to the church, thirty are heads of families, and embraces many of the most prominent citizens of the community, four of whom are above sixty years of age.

Yours very truly,

A. M. Campbell, P. C.

Satartia, Miss., Sept. 27, 1872.

Crystal Springs Station.—Mr. Editor: Our camp meeting has proved a glorious success. We began at the new camp ground, near this place, on the eleventh instant, at night, and continued until the morning of the eighteenth. It was a spiritual feast from the beginning.

We adjourned to the Methodist church from the camp ground, and have kept up the meeting ever since with blessed results. Up to this writing forty-two have joined the Methodist Church, and some thirty or thirty-five have been converted, while the church has enjoyed a "season of refreshing from the presence of the Lord." I am now, with the help of God and the membership of my charge, still carrying on the meeting. The several beloved ministering brethren who were with us at the camp meeting, and since, have been compelled to leave; but we are laboring, trusting and praying for a more plenteous outpouring of the Spirit. Pray for us.

Your brother, H. J. Harris.

September 23, 1872.

Mansfield, Louisiana.—Mr. Editor: Our quarterly meeting, recently held at Friendship, Caddo circuit, and which was protracted several days, resulted in eighteen accessions to the church and several conversions. The church in that vicinity was very much revived.

Our camp meeting at Bethel, Pleasant Hill circuit, commenced on the sixth and closed on the eleventh instant. It was well attended and nobly sustained. The preaching was earnest and faithful. We had a gracious revival of religion. There were many happy conversions and seventeen accessions to the church, and a general awakening among the people on the subject of religion.

There seems to be a new interest manifested in favor of camp meetings. Some seventeen families, at the close of the meeting, pledged themselves to have tents on the ground next year. The present tent-holders seemed to feel richly rewarded for their labor and trouble. We hope to be able to report good results from our Beulah camp meeting.

J. P.

September 19, 1872.

Sparta Circuit, Louisiana Conference.—Mr. Editor: On Saturday before the third Sunday in July I commenced a protracted meeting on the Sparta circuit, Holder church, which continued five days, and resulted in four conversions and seventeen accessions to the church. The preacher in charge, on Sunday morning, preached on the support of the ministry, and, in spite of a prophecy to the contrary of one of our much-water brethren, a Baptist preacher, we had a good meeting.

As advertised in the Advocate, my camp meeting commenced on the thirteenth of September, and God abundantly poured out his Spirit upon his people. The church was revived, good men made better, backsliders reclaimed, sinners converted unto God, and many added to the church. I could not ascertain how many conversions there were. There were seventeen that I know of. Fifty persons were added to the church, among them a brother who had been preaching in the Baptist church for twenty or thirty years. One young man feels he is called of God to spread the unsearchable riches of Christ.

Yours in Christ, P. Allen.

Mount Carmel Circuit, Mississippi Conference.—Mr. Editor: We commenced a series of meetings on this circuit, at Mount Zion, August 3, which continued nine days. Large congregations were in attendance every day during its progress, and many presented themselves for prayer as seekers of salvation. The visible results of the meeting were five accessions to the church.

Our fourth Quarterly Conference embraced the seventeenth and eighteenth of August, at Mount Moriah, which we continued two days. The presiding elder, Rev. C. F. Gillaspie, was at his post, and did the most of the preaching—we believe to the satisfaction of all, or nearly so. The meeting closed with one accession and one clear conversion.

By request of Bros. Gillaspie and Moore, we here report the fourth Quarterly Conference for the Williamsburg mission. This was held at Dry Creek church, and embraced the twenty-fourth and twenty-fifth of August, and was continued till Tuesday evening. Thirteen were received into the church and some six conversions, and the church greatly built up.

On the twelfth instant we closed a meeting at Santee, which lasted six days. It was a good meeting from the first service to its close. The church was much revived, and thirteen were added to its numbers.

N. B. Young.

September 17, 1872.

AUSTRIA AND THE JESUITS.

The Vienna correspondent of the Eastern Budget, writing on the twenty-eighth of July, says: "Some newspapers here have given circulation to a totally unfounded report that Count Andrassy proposes to take similar measures against the Jesuits in Austria to those adopted by Prince Bismarck against the society in Germany. Count Andrassy, though a Catholic, has no sympathy for the Jesuits, but his political position in the matter is entirely different from that of the German chancellor. In Austria the adoption of measures of this kind would be a question of internal policy, in which Count Andrassy, as foreign minister for the whole empire, could not properly interfere, the matter being for the consideration of the Austrian and Hungarian ministers of 'Cultus.' In Hungary, where a small minority only of the population are Catholics—the Magyars and Slovaks being mostly Protestants, and the Roumanians, Ruthenians and Servians belonging to the Greek Church—the Jesuits have never possessed any considerable influence. There is, therefore, no necessity for proceeding against them, especially as in Hungary religious questions are comparatively unimportant. In Cisleithania, however, such questions are daily becoming more pressing, and the present ministry is busily engaged in preparing a solution of them which might be compatible both with modern ideas and the enjoyment of equal rights by the members of the different religions. The Concordat, which granted special privileges to the Roman Catholic Church, has been abolished, but it is now necessary to determine by legislation what is to be the extent of the powers of that church, taking into consideration the spread of enlightenment among the people consequent upon the improvement effected of late years in the national schools. Such measures as those taken in Germany against the Jesuits would in Austria be impossible, as they could not be adopted without altering the constitution. So long as the Jesuits do not break the law they cannot be prosecuted by the government, for the constitution does not forbid their existence as a religious society. And indeed the anti Ultramontane movement in Austria is in itself so powerful that no action on the part of the government is required to check the influence of the clergy on the masses. Now that no one is compelled to submit to priestly influence, people's minds are daily becoming more and more emancipated from it."

President Thiers says "that Victor Emanuel is the most adroit, the ablest and the most political prince in Europe. As long as M. Cavour lived he bore all the honors of the Italian policy; yet it is more than probable that the King was a very active and intelligent fellow-workman of M. Cavour, only he kept his counsel, and never bragged about it. He allowed his minister all the honor, and took for himself all the profit. What has happened since? M. Cavour has vanished from the stage; yet, after the death of the great statesman, the Italian policy has remained the same as it was during his lifetime—that is, aiming straight at its goal, and attaining it by great skill. Victor Emanuel is the leader; he sees to everything: he holds the reins of all home and foreign policy, and he looks as if he had no hand in anything, which is the evidence of the most consummate ability. Long-suffering and determined, he watches his opportunity, and seizes it by the back hair of its head. Men are astonished that the King should be successful even in his defeats, but that happens because he was in pursuit of an idea; because he had a visible, tangible national policy at a time when other rulers had none. What was the result? He has eaten the artichoke to the last leaf; not nibbling it leaf by leaf, but swallowing it at two or three gulps. He took his start from Turin; he is at Rome. Men may have different views of the King's installation in the city of the Popes, but those who fancy he may ever be driven from it must be mere children in politics. I must avow," added M. Thiers, "that if I am disappointed about any nation in the world, it is the Italians. I never thought them so wise, so well prepared for the enjoyment of practical freedom. I have been greatly surprised to see, after so many convulsions of the peninsula, the rise of a conservative party sufficiently strong to maintain the balance between conflicting passions and interests. Such a result is certainly what I did not look forward to. It will happen, sometimes, that I am out of my calculations, but whenever that has been the case I have always, at least, had the good grace to confess it."

SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY.

Mr. Editor: We were requested by the District Conference of the Talladega district, North Alabama Conference, to send you the following resolutions, passed by that body September 14, 1872.

Yours truly,

T. H. Deavenport.

Whereas, The Southern University, located at Greensboro, Alabama, is under the control and patronage of the Alabama Conference; And whereas, It is one of its cheapest institutions and its curriculum one of the most thorough in the South; And whereas, It educates free of tuition all preachers' sons and young men preparing for the ministry:

Resolved, That we, the members of this District Conference, do most heartily recommend it to the patronage and confidence of all our people, and will endeavor to give it our earnest support.

Jacksonville, Ala., Sept. 24, 1872.

D. F. TABB.

Mr. Editor: It becomes my unpleasant duty to say to the church and the world, in this public manner, that the above-named person, who was a local preacher, was duly and lawfully expelled from the church by the Quarterly Conference of Gresu circuit, Demopolis district, Alabama Annual Conference, held at Palmetto, October 14, 1871.

I demanded his parchments. He sent me by letter his certificate of ordination to elder's orders. I understand he still holds his certificate of ordination to deacon's orders and a certificate of location.

S. H. Cox, P. E.

The California Advocate calls upon the authorities of San Francisco to afford speedy relief to the inmates of a Roman Catholic prison in that city—a real prison, though yclept an "asylum."

"There are fifty girls in the Romish Magdelen Asylum that are kept there at the expense of the city and county. In the judgment of the men who compose the grand jury of San Francisco, those children should be removed to the Industrial School, where they legitimately belong. They are not properly treated. They are not taught as they should be. And some, who are eighteen years of age and anxious to leave the institution, are restrained of their liberty. The asylum, like convents and nunneries, is a sort of prison to which few persons can have access, and of the treatment of its inmates the public can have no reliable information."

In spite of the tenacity of faith characteristic of the Jews, Christianity does make some progress among them. Of the 30,000 Jews living in London, 2,000 are members of Christian churches. Of the 18,000 living in Berlin, 2,000 are said to be converted. The total number of Jews in Europe is estimated at 3,431,700, and of these 20,000 are reckoned as Christian converts. In the Episcopal Church in England 100 ministers are said to be of Jewish birth.

Her Majesty's commissioners announce that the third of the series of annual International Exhibitions will be opened at South Kensington, London, in April, 1873.

The House of Bishops of the Protestant Episcopal Church meets in New York, October 31, to elect a missionary bishop to Africa.

Supsrannuates and the Quarterly Conferences.

Mr. Editor: My venerable friend and brother, John G. Jones, in his article on "Common Law—Its Uses and Authority"—makes a mistake in his second item of references, when alluding to Bishop Pierce's decision "that a superannuated preacher is not a member of any Quarterly Conference." He says: "I presume that he was led to make this decision solely by the fact that there is no express statutory law making a superannuate a member of a Quarterly Conference. Had the Bishop reasoned from analogy, or been governed by the rules of common law, I think he would have decided differently."

At the session of the Mississippi Annual Conference for 1856 Bishop Early stated—gave it as his decision—to the presiding elders, that he had no authority to announce that a president or professor of or in a college was a member of any Quarterly Conference, or that an agent was, and that a superannuated preacher was not a member of a Quarterly Conference. We, the presiding elders, expressed our surprise at his decision, especially in reference to superannuates. He stated that the language "and none else" was inserted by the General Conference to keep them out of the Quarterly Conferences. He gave us the date of the General Conference when the clause was inserted—1836, I think. So far as my knowledge extended, in the Mississippi Conference presiding elders had allowed them to have seats, take part in discussions and vote on all questions that came up, and it seemed to me like introducing among us a new order of things to keep them out. So at the General Conference of 1858 I offered a resolution to amend that answer so as to make them members of Quarterly Conferences. It was referred to the Committee on Revisals, and they reported against the resolution. I tried it again at the General Conference of 1866, with the same result. Then Bishop Pierce had the action of at least three General Conferences to indicate and sustain his decision. I have a faint recollection that there was a memorial presented at the General Conference of 1870 asking that superannuated preachers be made members of Quarterly Conferences, but the report was against it.

I hope the next General Conference will grant them that privilege.

H. H. Montgomery.

HELP FOR THE WEST.

Mr. Editor: Tides will turn, and so do the cries of the needy. Since my earliest recollection, appeal after appeal has gone forth from the populous cities of the East, throughout the length and breadth of the land, for "help for our church." But now the West calls for help, and who will refuse to send it? We do not ask for thousands. Our request is modest. All we want is a few hundred dollars, and that from thousands of people.

We are trying to "build the house of the Lord, without hope of fee or reward." Our strength is spent. We are few (thirty-two) in number: have raised $1,200. This is our request:

Let each pastor, in the towns and cities particularly, take up a public collection and send draft on New Orleans, Memphis, St. Louis, or Mobile, Alabama, for the amount collected, whether it be much or little.

Brethren, your charities have never been appealed to from the West before. Please grant us the small favor asked above.

References.—Rev. M. S. Andrews, Selma, Alabama; Rev. J. B. Cottrell, Columbus, Mississippi; Rev. A. S. Andrews, D. D., Greensboro, Alabama; Rev. J. Barker, Greenville, Alabama; Rev. John Mathews, New Orleans, Louisiana.

Address Rev. J. A. Parker,
El Dorado, Union Co., Ark

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

To the Secretaries of the District Conferences: Please forward to me, at an early day, the names of the lay delegates from your respective districts.

Chas. F. Evans,
Sec. La. Annual Conference.

Prince Arthur, the third son of Queen Victoria, who is an officer in the English army, will, it is said, shortly appear as an author in a series of contributions, on a military subject, to a London magazine.

A certain minister once took for his morning text, "Ye are of your father, the devil;" and in the afternoon, unconsciously, "Children, obey your parents."

The Christian Advocate.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1872.

THE BURIED SEED.

Two thousand years ago a flower
Bloomed lightly in a far-off land,
Two thousand years ago the seed
Was placed within a dead man's hand.

Before the Savior came to earth
That man had lived and loved and died,
And even in that far-off land
The flower had spread its perfume wide.

Suns rose and set; years came and went;
The dead hand kept its treasure well.
Nations were born and turned to dust,
While life lay hidden in that shell.

The shriveled hand was robbed at last.
The seed was buried in the earth,
When, lo! the life, long hidden there,
Into a glorious flower burst forth.

Just such a plant as that which grew
From such a seed when buried low,
Just such a flower in Egypt bloomed
And died, two thousand years ago.

And will not He who watched the seed,
And kept the life within its shell,
When those He loves are laid to rest,
Watch o'er their buried dust as well?

And will not He from 'neath the sod
Cause something glorious to arise?
Aye though it sleep two thousand years,
Yet all that buried dust shall rise.

Just such a face as greets you now,
Just such a form as here we wear,
Only more glorious far, will rise
To meet the Savior in the air.

Then will I lay me down in peace,
When called to leave this vale of tears;
For in my flesh shall I see God,
E'en though I sleep two thousand years.

CHINA GROVE CAMP MEETING.

MR EDITOR: The fifth camp meeting has just been held at China Grove, Dale county, Alabama, commencing on last Friday night, September 6, and closing on the following Wednesday at sunrise.

This camp ground has been greatly enlarged and improved during the present year by the addition of eleven new plank tents, and one large boarding tent, and also the removal and enlargement of the public lot and stalls for the care of horses.

All things being ready, the tent-holders began to move in on Thursday night. On Friday morning the crowds began to pour in, until in the evening every tent was occupied and well-nigh filled, and scores of cloth tents erected and filled. While thus the people were arriving, ministers of the gospel were also coming in. Bro. Josiah Parker, from Greenville, Alabama, was the first preacher on the ground. And still they came, till thirty-two preachers were on hand, ready "through rock and steel to smite."

At seven P. M. the trumpet sounded, and in a few minutes a vast congregation assembled to hear the words of eternal life which were dispensed by Bro. W. P. H. Connerly. The Holy Ghost attended the word preached, and the beginning was as it should be—good.

During the meeting twenty-four sermons were preached, counting seven to the colored people. The following brethren did the preaching: W. P. H. Connerly, J. W. Glenn, J. W. Shores, P. R. Clements, Lafayette Patterson, F. L. B. Shaver, Josiah Parker, J. J. Cassady, Junius Jordan, H. M. Gillis, A. S. Douglas, W. H. Morris, D. C. Standley, —— Tiller, J. M. Brown and your "unworthy" correspondent, and Allen Friar and Alex. Jeter, colored. The preaching was in earnestness of spirit, and was characterized by simplicity, beauty, pathos, sublimity and power. The congregations were large, well-ordered and attentive from the first to the last sermon. Hundreds came to the altar for prayer and counsel. On Tuesday night about one hundred and thirty were in the altar, and probably about seventy-five were converted. In all, as well as we could estimate, there were not less than one hundred and fifty conversions during the meeting, and sixty-five made application for membership in the Methodist Episcopal Church South. Among these applicants are some of the most intelligent and refined young men and women in the country.

Taking everything into consideration, this was the most successful meeting ever held at this camp ground. To understand this statement, it must be remarked that the ground is very sandy, and, when dry, very dusty; and at the time of our meeting the ground was very dry, and the atmosphere extremely and oppressively hot. The wonder was that the congregation could sit attentively and the preacher could preach successfully in the heat of the day, under our large cloth arbor, as it was not a sufficient protection from the heat of the sun. But, notwithstanding these disadvantages, the preachers preached with amazing power, and hundreds and hundreds of God's people were unspeakably happy in his love; and ever and anon would send up a shout of victory that would smite the heavens and shake the forests around, while the powers of darkness were sullenly receding, and the hosts of the mighty God were advancing, clad in the glittering mail of truth and righteousness. Oh! it was good to be there, and to hear the sweet, exhilarating songs of Zion, which still gently echo in the soul, and to hear the many soul-inspiring, heaven-reaching and blessing-bringing prayers which were so earnestly and eloquently offered by the brothers and sisters. What can be more glorious upon earth?

But delightful and charming as the meeting was, the time had come when we were all to meet at the stand to pray and praise together for the last time. So we met, and then bade each other good-by, probably for all coming days. The camp meeting will be held again next year.

A. DOWLING.

OZARK, ALA., Sept. 12, 1872.

MISSION WORK.

MR. EDITOR: Thus far but little can be said, enlogistic or otherwise, of the Sugartown mission. Four churches have been formed, and in some measure organized for work. Sabbath schools, and prayer and class meetings are assuming more importance in the minds of members. The membership at this time numbers one hundred and thirty on the mission, thirty of which number were received this year. But a deeper work of the Spirit is needed before the cause of Christ shall move onward as it should; and, in view of this spiritual need, may I ask a few questions bearing upon the hinderance to the realization of this spiritual work?

1. Are they Christians who, being in the church, never pray?

2. Construing the vows made on entering the church, and the Discipline, in the searching light of God's word, do the ministry and our ecclesiastical bodies clear their skirts, and in God's fear discharge their ordination vows, by retaining dead and corrupting matter in the church?

3. How long should a minister refrain from ejecting from the membership men and women who knowingly, and after admonition, violate the Sabbath, drink whisky, indulge in improper conversation, and habitually make sinners their companions, overlooking their brethren; in fact, ignoring the fellowship of the saints?

4. This question costs, for the flesh shrinks at the idea of meeting the gaze of many, high in authority and great in experience; but it needs not only to be asked, but answered It is this: By what God-spoken authority can Quarterly and District Conferences sustain themselves when they publish to the world, as fact, things which at home would not come up to the statement? Let us be precise. Throw not stones, etc. A Quarterly Conference reports all things working smooth and the church prosperous. Now, go among the official members thereof, and ask them outside the conference about the matter, and you hear a very different story. There are unkind feelings, loose ways with the members, prayer meetings not attended, family prayers never performed, and thus on, and yet the report made to the public says all is right.

The District Conference meets, and in the interchange of views and facts bearing upon the church and her progress there come to light things which should not be; and yet when the report is made the impression it makes upon the reader's mind is: Well, there is a district nobly doing the Master's work, and, above all, the membership is growing in grace. Amen. Praise the Lord! To one knowing the facts, the reports bring a sting. A tender conscience, perhaps, is an evil under the sun; but far better, at any rate, than a pseudo charity, ministering to the ear peace-songs, and refusing to sound a straight-out blast of the trumpet. Are these things comely and according to godliness, or do they not smack rather of a man-pleasing expediency? This drift of the church will hurl her upon reefs, and cause her to founder in the sea of formalism or infidelity. She now carries too much dead weight, and adding more will not make her more buoyant.

I trust some good brother will favor us with a solution of these queries. As a church we need at all times to walk in the light and truth; and reflection upon points of vital worth and open manly discussion will help us to secure both. How careful should we be to let our light shine, for thus our Lord commands; but it must be the true stuff. If we tolerate unseemly things, and gloss them over, God will surely give us leanness for our heritage. If there be ten righteous ones in a church, and seventy that hardly show any signs of spiritual life, let us make an honest classification, and not rob the ten and make them as poor and naked as the seventy.

INDAMORA.

BULGARIA.—Rev. Dr. I. G. Bliss has written two letters to the Bible Society Record, showing the great revival of religious interest in Bulgaria. The circulation of the Scriptures there has been greatly blessed to the good of the people. The prospect for evangelistic labors in that country was never so cheering. The new Bible House at Constantinople was in successful operation, and was adding great strength to the religious forces of the land.

THE PROSPECTS IN CHINA.

MR. EDITOR: As the fall season has now commenced, and God has been very merciful to our city thus far in not sending his destroying angel in the form of an epidemic, are we not called to express our gratitude in united efforts in the cause of our adorable Redeemer? The Northern cities have been more afflicted than our own; and in what way can we better repay the debt of gratitude than by increasing our activity in works of benevolence? And the one now presented before my mind is that of the Chinese mission. It appears to me, if all the sisters of the Methodist Church would unite in supporting the orphan school conducted by Bro. and Sister Lambuth, who are struggling to sustain it, a great work might be accomplished, and more laborers sent forth to their aid. The Sunday school children of New Orleans have done much, and now is the season for them to commence anew their beautiful and successful labors. If societies could be formed in every city and district of the South, on the same principle as that of the "Heathen Woman's Friend" at the North—which is doing a great work in India—conducted entirely by ladies, by a subscription list, at thirty-six cents each a year (within the power of all,) how soon a large amount would be raised. It is time that we began to feel the importance of this work. The Missionary reports "that there are now eighty million in India and two hundred million of women in China who are depending on the handmaids of Christ to lift them up and out of the horrible pit of idolatry and Mohammedanism, to show them the truth as it is in Jesus." Shall we stand idle when these fields are already whitening for harvest?

Look at this extract from a recent letter of Bro. Lambuth's, in Shanghai, now open before me:

"If China is ever to be Christianized, the mothers must be taught and instructed in the way of salvation. These schools, if sustained, will prove to be a great power for good in this country; for certainly there is no place on earth where children are more familiar with every form of vice than in China, and no land where parents are so indifferent to the education of their daughters. There is nothing kept secret from the child; so that by the time she has arrived at the age of ten she is made acquainted with all kinds of ungodliness and vice in its varied forms.

"We ask the prayers of all Christians for the mothers in China, that they may learn the way to be saved from their sins, and, instead of teaching their children the worship of idols, they might teach them to love the Lord Jesus.

"I will give you an account of a man whom we would call insane, but in the eyes of the Chinese he is looked upon as a most dutiful and loving son, and worthy of all praise. A short time since Lee-Hung-Chang, a high official in the north of China, sent in a memorial to the Emperor, begging him to confer some public favor upon an obscure person in a distant village, which is as follows:

"'Lee-Hung-Chang, Viceroy of Chihili, informs the Emperor that he has received a memorial from Fang, magistrate of Leshchang, saying that in his district there is a man named Long-Sing Kivie, of extraordinary piety, who lives continually by the grave of his mother, under a simple shelter built of reeds. In early youth this man was fond of study, but had not the opportunity of becoming a great scholar; yet the principles of filial piety seemed inherent in his nature. According to maxims laid down in the classics of Filial Piety, written by Confucius, he was always careful of his own person, strictly economical and temperate, of a kind and affable manner, making it his only happiness to study the wants and wishes of his widowed mother, to whom, with the most gentle courtesy, he was entirely devoted. In the third year of the reign of the present Emperor his mother sickened and died. He was overwhelmed with grief; and when his mother was buried he threw himself upon her grave, and refused all the entreaties of his friends to leave it. The villagers seeing him thus exposed to the night dews, the winds and rains of heaven, respected his grief, and made over the grave a shelter of reeds; and under this shelter he has lived eight years, passing every night on the grave of that loved mother. Every day he leaves the sacred spot, and goes to the village to administer medicine and advice to the sick, the poor and solitary ones. He has cut with his own hands blocks for printing the classic of Filial Piety, had it published at his own expense, and distributed it far and near. This he continues to do, earnestly entreating all who receive it to study and practice its excellent precepts. His praise is in the mouth of all who know him as one complete in all the duties of filial piety—the principles which he so carefully teaches to others. * * * Li-Hung-Chang has sent me to examine into the truth of these statements, and their reports correspond with the memorial of the magistrate Fang. Now, therefore, let your sacred majesty, the patron of all virtues, be graciously pleased to award some testimonial of approbation to this dutiful son, that others may be encouraged in the practice of filial piety, and the persuasive beauty of their example, that it may spread throughout the empire.'

"The Emperor replies: 'The Board of Rites shall examine and report to the throne.'

"We might mention similar instances where both men and women have acted in such a way as to call forth the praise of the Celestials, which, in the view of civilized and Christian people, we would look upon as approaching to insanity."

S. B. THOMAS.

WILDSAHAM, MASS., Sept. 6, 1872.

FROM TEXAS.

MR. EDITOR: Knowing that your paper circulates in regions where I formerly lived, and having reason also to know that there are many persons there who would like to hear of a good country to which to emigrate, I am induced in this manner to call their attention to San Jacinto county, Texas. This county was created, two years ago, out of portions of Polk, Liberty and Walker counties. Its eastern boundary is Trinity river. Settlers here of twenty years' residence say they have not known a year in that time but they had a boating season some time in the year. Thomas' Landing, the shipping point for the county, is seventy-five miles from the mouth, and one hundred and twenty-five from Galveston, the seaport of Texas. The Great Northern railroad is west of us. Willis, our shipping point by railroad, is twenty five miles distant. Then we have a good wagon road to Lynchburg, at the head of Galveston bay, sixty miles distant, which point the Galveston and Houston steamers pass daily. All these advantages of transportation we have now, and other railroad facilities are in the near future. Cold Springs—an appropriate name—is the county seat, at which place there are four mercantile houses and one drug store, one academy, two churches—one Methodist and one Baptist—one newspaper, one jail, blacksmith shop, etc. The society is generally good. The health is above the average of river counties. The water, both spring and well, is number one. Timber of every sort is abundant. The soil is rich, and varies from black waxy to light sandy. Fruit is abundant. Garden vegetables of splendid quality are easily reared. The average of corn is thirty to forty bushels; cotton, four to five hundred pounds of lint per acre. Land sells at from $1 to $10 per acre. This having been a large cotton-growing region, there is plenty of open land to rent or for sale.

Steady, industrious white men coming here will be sure of employment in farming, and on money-making terms. There are plenty of men owning large tracts of land who would be glad to secure farm hands to work their lands, and would furnish houses, bread and meat and teams; in fact, a full outfit for the year. I know many places now where a whole family (that is, all big enough to work) could get a fine chance—the men at farming, and the mother and her assistants taking charge of the dairy. But I have trespassed far enough on your space. I would be pleased to answer any letters addressed to me by persons seeking a home in Texas.

E. A. STOCKING.

COLD SPRINGS, San Jacinto Co., Texas.

A Reminiscence of Itinerant Life.

MR EDITOR: In 1850 the writer was sent to what was then known as Crystal Springs circuit. In one neighborhood I found an intelligent man by the name of John Stubblefield, who the year before had professed religion, and was now a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South at Reaves' chapel, Hinds county, Mississippi. When I first visited him he desired me to baptize him. I told him that I had been informed that he was baptized by my predecessor, Rev. D. A. J. Parker; whereupon he gave me the following history of himself: "I was born in Tennessee. My father was a holy man, a Baptist minister, now in heaven, for he was sincere. I was a reckless youth and left home, for I did not like restraint; but I had been instructed in the doctrine of the church. I became wicked, associated with wicked men, speculated largely, made money, was married in Mississippi, and moved to this place. The religious people, I believe, thought me a hopeless case. There were a goodly number around me who were true Christians. The Spirit alarmed me, and I began to read and pray at home. God, for Christ's sake, after almost despair, spoke peace to my troubled soul, and I was compelled to talk about it from house to house; and such was my joy that for some time I did not think of church relation, for I was naturally a Baptist. I never had a thought of being anything else, and I seemed to wake up at last about Baptism. I went to church, near my residence, with the intention of joining. I found a great deal of confusion among the members, and turned off, thinking I would wait till there was a better state of things in the church. But I now began to long for Christian and church fellowship. I visited the Presbyterian church, also near me. There was great unity, intelligence, refinement and piety among them I fell to love them, for they were lovable. They gave me 'the Confession.' It was too strong for my first love, and I turned away in sorrow that I could find no resting place that was congenial with my faith and feelings. I had a neighbor and friend beloved, but he was a Methodist—Beverley Blount. To him I opened my heart. Said he: 'Have you ever been to hear our preachers?' 'No.' 'Have you ever read our Discipline?' 'No; I know enough about them to know that they and I can never agree.' 'But,' said he, 'it is wrong to condemn a person or society until we know them.' To gratify my friend I took the book, and was astonished to find set forth the very doctrines that I had found in the Bible, and I exclaimed to myself that I had been deceived all my life. I then went to Reaves' chapel, still suspicious; but I was more than ever astonished, for Bro. Parker seemed to be truly in earnest, and the doctrines were scriptural. I became pleased and I went again, and finally I joined the church and was immersed, and my wife also. But since that I have been reading the Bible with reference to this subject, and my conclusion is that there are no grounds for such a mode taught in the Bible; hence I want you to baptize me by the apostolic mode of pouring." I replied that it would do as a substitute, for it is not the water nor the mode, but the consecration to the Holy Trinity. "But," said he, "I shall never be satisfied until I have it poured or sprinkled upon me and my babes." I told him I could baptize his children, but I dare not lay hands on him or his wife. His children were baptized. I do not know what became of him I believe he emigrated to Texas soon after this. He was a man of fine common sense and a deep thinker. He became convinced against all his early education and his practice in riper years. I should be glad, if he sees this, if he would write to an old friend at Tangipahoa, Louisiana.

Yours in Christ Jesus,

J. NICHOLSON.

A BODY OF DIVINITY.

A body of divinity schooled in an antiquarian library is just the right thing in the right place. A body of divinity without a soul; a body of divinity all the more complete because there is no soul in it; a body of divinity which we can hardly call dead because it never had a soul; what can be more appropriate than to find such a body, which else had been buried and forgotten, preserved for show in an antiquarian library, on the principle of a mummy in a museum? Why didn't some of those old divines think to write out a soul of divinity, or was it because they were afraid of divinity with any soul? And then to think how those bodies of divinity are cut up into parts and sections and subsections, so that they are not so much complete bodies of divinity as dissected bodies of divinity. It is fearful to think how much truth has been murdered by intellectual scalpels. Especially religious truth, which is the soul of all things—how much martyrdom it has undergone by being tied to those complete bodies of divinity. Suppose some of our aspiring young divines try their hand at a complete soul of divinity. It certainly can't do any worse than die.—Church and State.

SOME great men have been famous for their bad writing. A good story is told of Lord Littleton. When the last reform bill was before the House of Lords, the noble lord offered an amendment that no one should be allowed the franchise who could not write his name in a legible hand. It was the duty of the clerk at the table to read the amendment aloud to the House, but so badly had his lordship written it, that for the life of him the clerk couldn't make it out.

ON THE occasion of a recent Buddhist festival in Siam a curious proclamation was issued. It enjoined upon "people fearful of death not to approach wild elephants, tigers, and other dangerous animals," nor to "climb high trees and swim in deep waters," and that they should "not propel nor sail boats and engage in war."

A BLOCK IN THE MOUNT CENIS TUNNEL.—The tunnel has been blocked by a fall of stone from the mountain; but the traffic is still carried on by transferring passengers from one train to another.

Obituaries.

DIED at his father's residence in Dardanelle, Arkansas, September 2, 1872, of inflammatory croup, ANDREW MCFARRIOR, aged [illegible] years, 2 months and [illegible] days. May God comfort the family. H. R. WITHERS.

THE diphtheria has been making terrible ravages in the southern part of Perry county, Alabama. The following children of Bro. Milton S. Herran died of this disease:

IDA ALICE was born January 20, 1867, and died August 19, 1872.

MATTIE FELTON was born April 13, 1868, and died August 24, 1872.

MILTON FOSTER was born February 18, 1871, and died August 23, 1872.

Thus in one week's time three out of four children of this family have been cut down, and the hearts of the parents bruised and mangled by the sudden and terrible blow. May they find the grace of God sufficient for them in this time of distress.

W. A. MONTGOMERY.

MRS. MARY FRANCES CHEVIS was born August 3, 1844, and died September 4, 1872. Immediately after her marriage, on the eighth of December, 1866, she surprised her friends and elicited their admiration by the promptness with which she laid aside the character of the girl of fashion, and maintained the stability and dignity of character which belong to the true wife. Her good sense quickly discerned the incompatibility of the frothy frivolities of fashionable life with the solemn responsibilities of the married state. In this relation she was accordingly esteemed as a woman of very high character.

Over a year ago she and her husband united with the Methodist Episcopal Church South. Her walk was consistent, though she made no profession of experimental religion. Entertaining, doubtless, some erroneous view of the sacrament of the Lord's Supper, she declined the privilege of celebrating his death and passion until a short time before her death. Eventually regarding it as a means of grace which she was privileged to use, she communed with the people of God and on her return home announced to her husband that she enjoyed a satisfaction and comfort which she had never experienced before.

Her illness was short, yet the evidence she gave of her preparedness to meet God was satisfactory. While she regretted the separation from her husband and three little children, still she affirmed that she was not afraid to die, that she was resigned to the will of God, and that she committed all to Christ with unfaltering trust. The last words that trembled upon her lips, as the spirit was making its final struggle for release, were: "Let me in." Those who knew her best have no doubt that she entered into the rest that remaineth to the people of God.

W. F. EASTERLING.

WILLIAM A. POPE, son of Thirwell and Jane Pope, was born in Alabama, September 27, 1826. When a child his parents moved to Noxubee county, Mississippi. In 1836 he came to Holmes county, Mississippi, and in 1848 he professed religion at Shady Grove, and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church South. Soon after he went to California and remained there nine years, and then returned to Mississippi, January 11, 1866. Bro. Pope married Miss Mary M. Gray, of Holmes county, Mississippi—a pious young lady, trained up in the church, who was a helpmate to him indeed. Last year he was stricken with paralysis, and died July 21, 1872. He bore his affliction with Christian fortitude for twelve months. Bro. Pope was one of the best stewards on Durant circuit. At his death he was a member at Center Grove. He made it a point not to let his church fall short in finances at the end of the year. Center Grove has lost one of its most exemplary members, and Durant circuit one of her best officers. Bro. Pope was of a meek and quiet spirit—made but little outward demonstration in religion, yet his exemplary life told that there was a deep under-current of piety in his soul. He lived right and died in peace. A kind parent has left three little children, an affectionate husband has left a sorrowing wife to meet again on the "shining shore." The whole community mourn his loss. I have lost one of my best friends. Those who knew him best loved him most. With his energy and the judgment he was successful in all his undertakings. His remains rest in the cemetery at Shady Grove, to await the voice of the Master to awake him from the long, dreamless slumber of death in the resurrection morn.

GEORGE W. BROWN.

THE subject of this sketch, RICHARD B. JONES, was born in Henry county, Georgia, in the year 1803; was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church South in 1823; was married, the same year, to Miss Abby Steagall; moved to Louisiana in the year 1847, and settled in Jackson parish, where he lived when death came, which occurred July 11, 1872. For forty-nine years Bro Jones proved his faith sincere by walking in all the commandments of the Lord blameless. He was devoted to the church, a warm friend of the preachers, a kind husband, an indulgent father, and in all the departments of life a worthy citizen. For more than thirty years he was an officer of the church, and as such he magnified his office. No interest of the church suffered in his hands. As a steward, "my plan" was always successful in bringing up the last dollar of his assessment.

The Sabbath before his death he was in his place in the sanctuary. It was a glorious time—a love-feast—in which Bro Jones participated with more than usual interest, and, owing to his feeble health, we all felt that we were listening to the outgushings of his sanctified soul for the last time; and so it proved. I spent the day with him on Monday before his death; found him rejoicing in the prospect before him, and feeling confident of his Master's approval. On the night of his death he ate his supper with his usual cheerfulness, and in twenty minutes thereafter he breathed his last on earth. The last battle was short, and the victory, grand and glorious, has been won, and the Christian soldier is at home. He leaves the wife of his youth and several children, all of whom are settled in life and on the road to heaven. We mourn his loss, but "not as others who have no hope."

J. W. HEARN.

DIOTICIAN W. THOMPSON, son of Alexander Thompson, Esq., deceased, was born in Amite county, Mississippi, January 30, 1833. His father removed to Louisiana in 1838, and settled near Greensburg. The death of his mother in 1849, and of his father in January, 1850, devolved upon Diotician the charge of plantation and servants, and the care and education of six younger brothers and sisters. These duties he discharged with the fidelity and tenderness of a father, with honor to himself and the approbation of all the heirs, relatives and community. Those children are now all honorable members of the community—officers of State and parish. He joined the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and professed to know God in the pardon of his sins in 1850. He continued an acceptable member till death. He had been a steward, trustee and committeeman for church-building, in all of which he was found faithful. In the parish he filled the office of recorder and notary public, for several years, honorably and honestly.

In the death of Bro. Thompson the cause of religion lost a defender, our church a warm member and supporter of her ministry and enterprises, the Masonic fraternity a true spiritual Mason, his wife all that the word husband means, his children a father honored by them and deserving of their honor and affection.

He left home on the twentieth of June, rode to Tangipahoa, ten miles distant, to take the cars for Brookhaven, to witness the examination at Whitworth College, at which his daughter was being prepared for the higher walks of life; but before the train came he took a chill, and returned home. Next day he suffered greatly with his head, which proved to be congestion of the brain. Deprived of rationality, he said nothing of his spiritual condition; but his pious wife, who feared this result from his first return home, interrogated him on this subject when he was comparatively easy. He answered that he had no fear of death.

J. NICHOLSON.

ST. HELENA PARISH, LA., Aug. 30, 1872.

The Christian Advocate.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1872.

GERMS OF THE BEAUTIFUL.

Scatter the germs of the beautiful,
By the wayside let them fall,
That the rose may spring by the cottage gate
And the vine on the garden wall;
Cover the rough and rude of earth
With a vail of leaves and flowers,
And mark with the opening bud and cup
The march of the summer hours.

Scatter the germs of the beautiful
In the holy shrine of home;
Let the pure, and the fair, and the graceful there
In their loveliest luster come.
Leave not a trace of deformity
In the temple of the heart.
But gather about the hearth the gems
Of nature and of art.

Scatter the germs of the beautiful
In the depths of the human soul;
They shall bud and blossom and bear the fruit
While the endless ages roll;
Paint with the flowers of charity
The portals of the tomb,
And the fair and the pure about thy path
In paradise shall bloom.

The Historical Character of Christ.

"What think ye of Christ?" Is he a subject of the highest historical interest? No educated man, at least, whatever be his faith or his life, can deny the reality or the greatness of Christ's place in human history. Nothing is more certain in the annals of mankind than this, that Jesus Christ lived in Palestine, and was put to death eighteen centuries and a half ago. This fact belongs to general human knowledge, just as much as does the life of Julius Cæsar, or of Alexander the Great, or of Socrates, or of Mohammed. Nobody, indeed, does deny the general fact. Strauss, for instance, though he endeavors to distinguish between the residuary historical element in the gospels, and the incrustation of legend, which, in his opinion, has somehow become associated with it, yet fully admits that there is history in the gospels; he admits that Jesus Christ lived and died in the age of Tiberius. And even if this be admitted, the life and death of Jesus Christ must possess for any intelligent man the highest possible degree of interest. He must feel that, in point of social and historical importance, it stands alone. No doubt, at the time, the Cæsar Tiberius was everywhere on the lips and in the minds of men; while the retired religious Teacher, as he seemed to be, in Palestine, was by his teaching, his acts, and the opposition which they aroused, only furnishing a little conversation and excitement to the peasantry and to the officials of a remote province. But if the importance of a life is to be measured by its results in history and to civilization, even although we should put all religious and even moral considerations aside, who would think most of the Emperor? What is the lasting and living influence which Tiberius now exerts upon the world, except it be to furnish a thesis now and then to clever essay writers, who wish indirectly to attack or to defend modern imperialism? But who can deny at this moment, explain how we will, that Jesus Christ, his life, his work, his person, lives in the hearts of multitudes as the object of most cherished and devoted homage; that he governs the ideas, the aspirations, the social and political action of millions of mankind; that the most active and enterprising section of the human family still, in various senses, places itself under the shadow of his name and patronage; and that if he has many opponents, there is no serious probability of his being spiritually or intellectually dethroned? All this is a matter of simple observation. The truth of it is most obvious to those who know most about human affairs and human history. And it at once invests the earthly life of Christ, and all that illustrates and belongs to it, with the highest practical and speculative interest—with the interest which belongs to the great problems of past history, and with the interest which belongs to those great living forces that make themselves felt day by day around us, and contribute powerfully toward determining the current of events.

Not to be interested in the life of Jesus Christ, then, is to be, I do not say irreligious, but unintelligent. It is to be insensible to the nature and claims of the most powerful force that has ever molded the thought and swayed the destinies of civilized man. But to feel this interest, it is almost unnecessary to add, a man need not even profess to be a Christian. He may indeed be earnestly opposed to Christianity; and his opposition can scarcely in any case be formidable, unless he has given his mind to the careful study of that which he opposes. To such men as Celsus, or Lucian, or Porphyry, or the apostate Emperor Julian, or the philosopher of Ferney, Christianity was a matter of the deepest intellectual interest. Men do not write like Celsus, or act like Julian, epigrammatize with the bitterness of Voltaire, about a doctrine in which they feel little concerned. Nay, in order to have such an interest, a man need not be an active opponent of Christianity. Looking upon it with the eye, and only with the eye, of a philosopher; jealously excluding from his estimate every trace of passion, whether it be the passion of hatred or the passion of affection; he may yet understand that it is too great, too powerful, in a word too original a phenomenon to be ignored, or rather not to be investigated with patient perseverance. Such might seem to have been the case with that most accomplished of modern critics, the late M. Saint-Beuve. His history of Port-Royal betrays an intimate acquaintance with the most delicate and beautiful forms of Christian faith and Christian love. None knew better than he the claims of Jesus Christ—of his life in itself, and of his place in history—upon the attention of all earnest students of nature and of man. No pages are more marked than his by a sustained and rigid justice which is incapable of condescending to a phrase that is dictated by any but that which the writer intends and believes to be a severely critical judgment. This lofty impartiality could not but make him write at times like a devoted Christian in virtue of his moral and literary sympathies; and many men have read him without suspecting his real place in the world of thought. Yet, at his last hours, we are told, he purposely declined the ordinary consolations of a Christian deathbed; his interest in Christianity did not imply a bond to any living person with whom, in the most solemn and critical moments of existence, there are histories to be reviewed and accounts to be settled.

That a literary and historical interest in Christianity and Christ has its value, who would deny? It may, in union with faith and love, achieve services of no common order for the kingdom of the truth. It may, under any circumstances, enable Christians to realize the historical settings of their faith, more truly and vividly than would otherwise be possible. Thus, in a very creditable sense, it may hew wood and draw water for the sacred camp, and we must thank it with all our hearts for its services. But it is not of itself a religious interest. It is only an intellectual and scholarly taste dealing with a religious subject-matter. It is one thing to cleanse the glasses of a powerful telescope; it is another to use them as they should be used by an observer and a student of the heavens.
Liddon.

WHAT IS PRAYER?

The subject of prayer, in what may be called its rational aspects, apart from the question of religious duty, is receiving special attention at the present time, owing in part to the absurd proposal of Prof. Tyndall. We wish that the discussion might awaken the Christian world to a deeper sense of its importance as one of the great instrumentalities for advancing the kingdom of Christ.

In a volume of sermons by Canon Liddon, of St. Paul's, London, entitled "Some Elements of Religion," just published by Scribner, Welford & Armstrong, is a discourse on Prayer, from which we make the following extract:

Prayer is emphatically religion in action. It is the soul of man engaging in that particular form of activity which presupposes the existence of a great bond between itself and God. Prayer is, therefore, nothing else or less than the noblest kind of human exertion. It is the one department of action in which man realizes the highest privilege and capacity of his being. And, in doing this, he is himself enriched and ennobled almost indefinitely; now, as of old, when he comes down from the mountain, his face bears tokens of an irradiation which is not of this world.

That this estimate of the value of prayer is not universal among educated people in our day is only too notorious. If many a man were to put into words with perfect honesty and explicitness what he thinks, he would say that prayer was an excellent thing for a clergyman, or for a recluse, or for a sentimentalist, or for women and children generally; that it has its uses as a form of desultory occupation, an outlet for feeling, a means of discipline. For himself, he cannot really think that much prayer would help him much. It implies a life of feeling—perhaps, he would say, of morbid feeling; and he prides himself on being guided only by reflection. It is sustained, he thinks, by imagination rather than by reason; and he deems imagination puerile and feminine. His religion, whatever it is, has nothing to do with imagination, and is hard reason from first to last; and accordingly prayer seems to him to be altogether less worthy of the energies of a thinking man than hard work, whether it be work of the hands or of the brains, whether it be study or business. The dignity of real labor is proverbial; but where, he asks, is the dignity of so sentimental an occupation as prayer? "For his own part, he thinks" (I am quoting words which have actually been used,) "that religion is not worship, but only another name for doing good to our fellow-creatures."

Now, without saying one word to disparage the intimate connection between religion and philanthropy, let us examine the idea of prayer, which is taken for granted in such language as the foregoing. Is it true that prayer is, as is assumed, little less than the half passive play of sentiment which flows languidly on through the minutes or hours of easy reverie? Let those who have really prayed give the answer. They sometimes describe prayer, with the patriarch Jacob, as a wrestling together with an Unseen Power, which may last, not unfrequently in an earnest life, late into the night hours, or even to the break of day. Sometimes they refer to common intercession with St. Paul as a concerted struggle. They have, when praying, their eyes fixed upon the Great Intercessor in Gethsemane, upon the drops of blood which fell to the ground in that agony of resignation and sacrifice. Importunity is of the essence of successful prayer. Our Lord's references to the subject especially imply this. The friend who is at rest with his family will rise at last to give a loaf to the hungry applicant. The Unjust Judge yields in the end to the resistless eagerness of the widow's cry. Our Lord's blessing on the Syro-Phœnician woman is the consecration of importunity with God. And importunity means not dreaminess, but sustained work. It is through prayer especially that "the kingdom of heaven suffereth violence, and the violent take it by force." It was a saying of the late Bishop Hamilton, of Salisbury, that "no man was likely to do much good in prayer who did not begin by looking upon it in the light of a work, to be prepared for and persevered in with all the earnestness which we bring to bear upon subjects which are, in our opinion, at once most interesting and most necessary."

This, indeed, will appear if, looking to an act of real prayer, we take it to pieces. Of what does it consist? It consists always of three separate forms of activity, which, in the case of different persons, coexist in very varying degrees of intensity, but which are found, in some degree, in all who pray, whenever they pray.

To pray is, first of all, to put the understanding in motion, and to direct it upon the highest object to which it can possibly address itself, the Infinite God. In our private prayers, as in our public liturgies, we generally preface the petition itself by naming one or more of his attributes. Almighty and Everlasting God! If the understanding is really at work at all, how overwhelming are the ideas, the truths, which pass thus before it; a boundless power, an existence which knows neither beginning nor end. Then the substance of the petition, the motives which are alleged for urging it, the issues which depend upon its being granted or being refused, present themselves to the eye of the understanding. And if our Lord Jesus Christ is not himself, as being both God and man, the object of prayer, yet his perpetual and prevailing intercession opens upon Christian thought the inmost mysteries before the eternal throne. And thus any common act of real prayer keeps not the imagination, but the understanding, occupied earnestly, absorbingly, under the guidance of faith, from first to last.

Next, to pray is to put the affections in motion; it is to open the heart. The object of prayer is the uncreated love, the eternal beauty; he of whose beauty all that moves love and admiration here is at best a pale reflection. To be in his presence in prayer is to be conscious of an expansion of the heart, and of the pleasure which accompanies it, which we feel, in another sense, when speaking with an intimate and loved friend or relative. And this movement of the affections is sustained throughout the act of prayer. It is invigorated by the spiritual sight of God, but it is also the original impulse which leads us to draw near to him. In true prayer, as in teaching, "out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh."

Once more, to pray is to put the will in motion, just as decidedly as we do when we sit down to read hard, or to walk up a steep hill against time. That sovereign power in the soul, which we name the will, does not merely, in prayer, impel us to make the first necessary mental effort, but enters most penetratingly and vitally into the very action of the prayer itself. It is the will which presses the petition; it is the will which struggles with the reluctance of sloth or with the opposition of passion; it is the will which perseveres; it is the will which exclaims: "I will not let thee go, except thou bless me."

Now, these three ingredients of prayer are also ingredients in all real work, whether of the brains or of the hands. The sustained effort of the intelligence and of the will must be seconded in work, no less than in prayer, by a movement of the affections, if work is to be really successful. A man must love his work to do it well. The difference between prayer and ordinary work is that in prayer the three ingredients are more equally balanced. Study may in time become intellectual habit, which scarcely demands any effort of will; handiwork may in time become so mechanical as to require little or no guidance from thought; each may exist in a considerable, although not in the highest degree of excellence, without any co-operation of the affections. Not so prayer. It is always the joint act of the will and the understanding, impelled by the affections; and when either will or intelligence is wanting, prayer at once ceases to be itself, by degenerating into a barren intellectual exercise, or into a mechanical and unspiritual routine.—New York Observer.

SLEEP THE BEST STIMULANT.

The pulpit, the bench, the bar, the forum have contributed their legions of victims to drunken habits. The beautiful woman, the sweet singer, the conversationalist, the periodical writer, have filled, but too often, the drunkard's grave. Now that the press has become such a great power in the land, when the magazine must come out on a certain day, and the daily newspapers at a fixed hour, nothing waits; everything must give way to the inexorable call for copy, and, sick or well, disposed or indisposed, asleep or awake, the copy must come. The writer must compose his article, whether he feels like it or not, and if he is not in the vein of writing, he must whip himself up to it by the stimulus of drink. Some of the greatest writers of the country have confessed to the practice, on urgent occasions, of taking a sip of brandy at the end of every page, or even oftener. It may have escaped the general reader's notice that more men have died young who have been connected with the New York press within ten years, and that, too, from intemperance, than in all the other educational callings put together—young men whose talents have been of the first order, and gave promise of a life of usefulness, honor and eminence. The best possible thing for a man to do, when he feels too tired to perform a task or too weak to carry it through, is to go to bed and sleep a week, if he can. This is the only true recuperation of brain power, the only actual renewal of brain force. Because, during sleep the brain is in a sense of rest, in a condition to receive and appropriate particles of nutriment from blood, which take the place of those which have been consumed in previous labor, since the very act of thinking consumes, burns up solid particles, as every turn of the wheel or screw of the splendid steamer is the result of the consumption by fire of the fuel in the furnace. That supply of consumed brain substance can only be had from the nutriment particles in the blood which were obtained from the food eaten previously, and the brain is so constituted that it can best receive and appropriate to itself those nutriment particles during the state of rest, of quiet and of stillness in sleep. Mere stimulants supply nothing in themselves—they only goad the brain, force it to a greater consumption of its substance, until that substance has been so fully exhausted that there is not power enough left to receive a supply, just as men are so near death, by thirst or starvation, that there is not power enough left to swallow anything, and all is over. The incapacity of the brain for receiving recuperative particles sometimes comes on with the rapidity of a stroke of lightning, and the man becomes mad in an instant, loses sense, and is an idiot.

It was under circumstances of this very sort, in the very middle of a sentence of great oratorical power one of the most eminent minds of the age forgot his ideas, pressed his hand upon his forehead, and after a moment's silence said: "God, as with a sponge, has blotted out my mind." Be assured, readers, "there is rest for the weary" only in early and abundant sleep, and wise and happy are they who have firmness enough to resolve that "by God's help I will seek it in no other way."
Hall's Journal of Health.

The schools in India are doing a great work for the native youth, and especially for the native females. The Methodist Episcopal Missionary Society has under its training 325 girls; the American Board about 1,000; the London Missionary Society about 3,500; and the Church Missionary Society more than 6,000. The Christian education of the girls of India will have much to do with the Christianization of that land.

Forty Thousand Russians of the religious order called Mennonites are about to settle in Nebraska. Their religious faith is said to be between that of Baptist and Quaker. They have recently been directed to join the Russian military service or leave the country, and they have determined to emigrate. They went from Prussia to Russia in the time of Frederick the Great.

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

A Congregational Church in San Francisco has introduced a cornet as an accompaniment to the organ, and to aid in rendering congregational singing more effective.

Father Dowling, one of the band of Roman Catholic missionaries who came to this country a few months ago to labor with the colored people, died in Baltimore recently of typhoid fever.

The Rhinebeck district Quarterly Conferences have determined to hold a District Conference. It will be held at Hillsdale, and will be the first held within the bounds of the New York Conference.

After the Old Catholic Congress at Cologne, the Archbishop of Utrecht will go to Vienna, to confirm the children of Old Catholics, and will probably install an Old Catholic bishop for Austria.

Rev. J. Wade, D D., died at the house of Dr. Benney, in Rangoon, June 10. He was an eminent Christian scholar and divine, and was senior missionary of the Baptist Missionary Union at Rangoon.

In England and Wales the Baptists have 300 churches of not more than 25 members each; 1,040 of from 25 to 100 members; 846 of from 100 to 250; 140 of from 250 to 500; and 32 of 500 and upward.

The Oak Park Congregational Society in Chicago will have a five-thousand-dollar free library in its basement, and a fund of $3,000, the interest of which will pay for the services of a young lady librarian—all the gift of Mr. J. W. Scoville. May his tribe increase!

There are four Methodist circuits in Glasgow. In Edinburg there is but one Wesleyan Church, and the preacher is obliged to lead all the classes, by reason of the difficulty of finding even suitable leaders. There are but thirty-two preachers of the Wesleyans in all Scotland.

Within the bounds of the Australasian Conference there are 1,700 chapels, 344 ministers and missionaries, 60,000 church members, and 125,000 Sabbath school scholars. Sixteen young ministers were ordained at the last Conference, and nineteen candidates received on trial.

The Council of the Propagation of the Faith has just sent large donations of money to England. During the year 1871 France contributed to the society £140 000; the rest of Christendom, £60,000. The income of the society is within £8,000 of what it was before the war.

The Rev. Mr. Minton continues to preach in Dissenting pulpits in England, and quite a number of other English clergymen have signified their purpose of following his example. It is evident that the legal obstacles in the way of full fellowship between Churchmen and Dissenters will soon be broken down.

Twenty-Sixth Anniversary.—The Catholic Union of New York, in reference to the twenty-sixth anniversary of the accession of Pope Pius the Ninth, forwarded to him a congratulatory address, with an offering of twenty-seven thousand five hundred francs in gold. The Pope gave his benediction in return through Cardinal Barnabo.

The Jesuits will attempt by stratagem that which they cannot secure by force. An assembly of the order has been called to meet at Rome, for the purpose of changing its name and costume. It is thought that outward conformity with the habits of other religious organizations will establish the Society of Jesus in their former security.

The Isles Rejoice.—During this century over 300 islands of eastern and southern Polynesia have renounced heathenism, and are under Christian sway and influence; over 400,000 persons have been brought under the saving power of the gospel, of whom 250,000 are living, and about 50,000 are communicants in Evangelical Christian churches.

Another Missionary for India.—Miss Mary Pratt, a member of the Presbyterian church at Waterloo, Iowa, has recently been appointed by the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions as a missionary to Kolapoor, in western India. Miss Pratt will go thither under the auspices of the Woman's Presbyterian Board of Missions of the Northwest.

The property of the Presbyterian churches in Philadelphia is worth, according to the census, $4,155,000, to which $1,000,000 should be added for the Presbyterian Publication House, the Presbyterian Hospital, the Mission House in Arch street, and other property. The debt on all the churches is estimated at $500,000. They will seat 51,000 worshipers.

There is already a scarcity of Episcopal clergymen in Ireland. A divinity class in Trinity College, which had some years ago a muster-roll of upward of a hundred, now comprises some forty students or less. Many of the most promising of the junior candidates for clerical employment have gone, or are going, over to England. Curacies are vacant in many places, and even incumbencies are, for the first time, advertised as vacant.

The first Wesleyan Conference was held at the Foundry, in London, one hundred and eighty-eight years ago, and was attended by ten preachers, including Messrs. John and Charles Wesley, and four other clergymen. At the thirtieth London Conference, recently held in City Road chapel, eight hundred, or perhaps nearly a thousand, ministers attended.

In Italy the Liberals are agitating for a new system of school inspection. There are now in Rome 122 schools for boys, with 7,941 pupils, and 161 schools for girls, with 11,380 pupils, which are almost entirely under clerical control. They are subsidized, however, by the government at an annual cost of 143,346 lire. The Liberals claim that the instruction received in them at present is imperfect and unpatriotic, and they demand the introduction of improvements.

In 4 provinces in Mesopotamia, during the years 1870 and 1871, there were sold 32 Turkish Bibles, 497 Armenian Bibles, 22 English, and 4,404 parts of Scripture; and during the last fourteen years there were sold 3,638 Bibles, 19,749 portions of the Bible, making 23,387 copies. In the same field, during the same period, 64,836 other books have been sold, making a total of 88,225 copies sold in that dark region in fourteen years.

Well Done.—Within three years Rev. E. M. Shultz, missionary of the Five Points House of Industry, New York city, has, among other interesting labors, induced 110 intemperate persons to sign the temperance pledge, and rescued 53 abandoned women and girls from dens of shame, secured shelter and homes for 1,595 children and adults in the city and country, and found employment for nearly 1,000 persons, who together were enabled to earn at the rate of over $15,000 per month.

The United Brethren's Board of Missions met at Baltimore on August 9. The year had been marked by an increase of funds and an increase of success. The amount of money expended and collected was $98 781.63. Two hundred and ninety-nine missionaries had labored, of whom one hundred and seventy-nine were on the home field, one hundred and fourteen in the frontier, and six in the foreign field. The foreign missions are at Shangay, Africa, and in Germany.

The Moravian says that though it may not be a matter of any particular importance, yet it is a fact that "the Society of the United Brethren for Propagating the Gospel" was organized at Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, in the year 1787, and was incorporated by the Legislature of Pennsylvania in the following year (1788.) It is the oldest foreign mission society in the country. Its special aim was the support of missions among the Indians. The female missionary societies in the congregations at Bethlehem, Nazareth and Litiz are each more than fifty years old.

A Wide Difference.—The "Old Catholics" are radically different from the regular church in the following important points: Each community can choose its priest; compulsory celibacy is abolished; church service must be conducted in the language of the province; the rich and poor must be buried alike without pomp; auricular confession must cease, pilgrimages, processions and beggings are prohibited, and the worship of pictures, statues and images must be discontinued. There is less difference between the "Old Catholics" and Protestants than between them and the Romish Church.

The lady whom Father Hyacinths has married is Mrs. Emilie J. Merriman, an American widow, of high cultivation and of excellent family. She was a member of Mr. Beecher's church, but became a convert to Catholicism, some five years ago, under the preaching of Father Hyacinths, at Paris. The sermon which he preached on the occasion of her joining the Catholic communion is printed in his volume of "Discourses." She has been for a year in Rome, engaged in establishing a school of high grade for girls, and has been an enthusiastic supporter of the Old Catholic movement.

The sorrowful news of the death of the Rev. Mr. McChesney, one of the missionaries of the Presbyterian Church at Canton, China, has just been received. The Presbyterian says: "He was out on a preaching excursion with one of his brethren, and had visited a large village in the evening, where Mr. McChesney had preached. After the service they returned to their boat to pass the night. During the evening a band of robbers attacked a neighboring boat, and a contest ensued, in which a stray shot struck Mr. McChesney, who was sitting in the cabin door, on the head, killing him at once."

If a man loses his breath, he shouldn't run for it—he will catch it quicker by standing still.

The Christian Advocate.

Organ of the Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1872.

REV. LINUS PARKER, D. D., Editor.
ROBT. J. HARP, PUBLISHER.

OFFICE—No. 112 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

Address, on all matters of business, Rev. R. J. HARP, 112 Camp street, New Orleans.

Address all communications designed for publication to Rev. LINUS PARKER, 112 Camp street, New Orleans.

AGENTS—All the members of the patronizing Conferences.

CONFERENCE PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

FOR ALABAMA CONFERENCE:
REV. W. A. McCARTY.
REV. EDWARD WADSWORTH, D. D.
A. W. LAMPKIN, ESQ.

FOR MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE:
REV. W. H. WATKINS, D. D.
REV. JAMES A. GODFREY.
REV. J. G. JONES.

FOR LOUISIANA CONFERENCE:
REV. WILLIAM V. TUDOR, D. D.
REV. JOHN MATHEWS.
REV. LINUS PARKER, D. D.

REDUCTION.

The New Orleans Christian Advocate will be furnished to subscribers hereafter at the following rates:

For One Year	$2 00
For Six Months	1 25
For Three Months	75

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR

to all ministers of the gospel, traveling or local, and widows of deceased traveling preachers.

FREE ONE YEAR

to any person forwarding to us four new yearly subscribers with EIGHT DOLLARS

SEEING THE INVISIBLE.

It is for faith to see what is beyond the reach of the senses. It is therefore the evidence of things not seen. Looking at the things which are not seen is the habit of the devout soul, and it is the secret of the fortitude and consolations which the Christian possesses. Moses was an adept in this singular and blessed art. "He endured as seeing him who is invisible." This power to apprehend the invisible is the main point of difference between faith and unbelief. It is not so much a conception of things invisible which are to be, as it is the vivid realization of the unseen as now existing. Faith is, of course, "the substance of things hoped for," and things to come are chiefly in the thoughts of the believer as objects eventually to be experienced. Still there is this distinction. To apprehend the present invisible, and to dwell upon them as objects of future manifestation, are of the same faith, but not the same operation. Hagar's thought, "Thou, God, seest me," was a conviction of the immediate presence and care of Jehovah. Moses endured not as seeing God as he should be manifested to him in the future life, but as seeing him then, though invisible, guiding, guarding and cheering him in his trials.

Looking at the things which are not seen is this direct and vigorous conception, not so much of a future as of a present invisible world. Our hope and anticipation dwell upon the time when they shall be invisible no longer, and when all shall be disclosed to sight. Faith is that by which we walk now. By it we distinctly conceive of persons, places and objects more substantial and infinitely more glorious than the objects of sense. It is this sense and persuasion of the invisible which affects the Christian's life at every step, and gives him courage and perseverance under trial which nothing else can inspire. The more complete this apprehension of the invisible is, the more steadfast and uniform will be the course of life. It is a matter of habitual consciousness, this sense of the present invisible, which exerts a profound influence upon the whole man. To him God is not a cold and distant abstraction—a being simply reserved for the judgment and the hereafter—but he is in the midst of the experiences of life, seen in every turn of affairs, and felt in the operations of his grace. There is a manifold life and ministry of angels, and a beatitude of saints already in light, which are cotemporaneous with our conflicts in the flesh. Thus in directing the heart to heavenly objects we are exhorted to "seek those things which are above," and to set our affections on them—things that are, rather than things that are to be.

To do this is the most difficult of achievements. The visible, the earthly and the temporal press closely around us. The senses are open to their impressions, and they obscure the spiritual and the eternal. This is the point of perplexity and discouragement with many an earnest soul. There are fickle and vacillating frames of mind, instability of purpose, and a relaxed and weakened grasp of the promises. The needed grace is this sort of seeing the invisible, apprehending it in all its substantial nature as the sum of a present power, life and glory. With this firm grasp of the invisible the world will be powerless to seduce; pleasure, gain and ambition will be neutralized, and crosses and tribulations will not turn us aside from the path of duty. The true happiness and victory of a holy life are never felt until we gain this abiding hold of the unseen. Then the unrest and misery of a divided heart are lost in the completest satisfaction which the sense of the invisible confers. With the affections set upon things above, the interests of the present life are felt, but they have lost their power to distract, and to destroy the peace of the soul. The disappointments and failures of life scarcely disturb the deep calm within, because the objects supremely loved and sought are beyond the touch of adversity. Happy the child of God who habitually sees the invisible, and who, amidst the scenes of the present earthly life, is ever looking at the unseen and the eternal. The path of such an experience will be a perpetual joy, though it may lead through the most rugged passes of danger and trial.

THE CONFERENCES.

The earlier ones are already held, and all are coming on space. Methodism cannot stagnate so long as these annual occasions of examination or of change take place. It looks like a bold and perilous venture for thousands of preachers and congregations to place themselves absolutely in the hands of the Bishops, knowing that many changes are sure to be made, and that all are liable to a dissolution of existing pastoral relations. It is, however, no experiment, but rather a well-tried system, which has worked marvelously well, both for preachers and people. There is no pot luck, nor any other kind of luck, about the itinerancy. Intelligence and piety are at the fountain-head of authority, and experience and wisdom are likely to do what is best.

To the young preacher it looks like a hazardous step to put himself so unqualifiedly at the disposal of the president of a Conference; but he soon learns that merit, capacity and piety are certain to be discovered and appreciated. We believe that in no other system are men more sure to find their true level, and the field for which they are best adapted, than in ours. The people have also found out that, taking the whole work into account, the Bishop can select a pastor for them more suited to their wants than they would choose for themselves. With the necessity of changing every four years, the Methodist pastorates are said to be longer, on the average, than those of other denominations. As the day approaches when some changes must be made, and many others may be, it is natural that there should be more or less of anxiety, and often a degree of rather painful suspense; but all is well that ends well.

Statistical matters are now being set in array, and the preacher is, of course, setting his spiritual house in order, receiving the candidates for membership, and gathering up the fragments, "that nothing be lost." It takes even more grace and tact to leave a work than it does to go to it. Financial matters get a hearty airing as the day approaches. Great searchings of assessment lists, and much solemn canvassing of the assets in the shape of promises, probabilities and doubtful claims. A settlement of some sort must be made before the preacher goes to Conference, and let us hope that it will be a liberal one this year. The allowance is usually meager enough, but where it is not fully met there must be disappointment and suffering.

In our economy the pastor, however unpaid, has no claim when the year expires. In law he has a lien upon nothing, and the Discipline allows of no claim for past services. It ought, therefore, to be a matter of conscience and earnest resolve to see that the last dollar is raised and paid over before Conference. While in church and civil law the preacher is paid, though unpaid, there is a moral obligation from which there is no release. The poor stewards! Theirs is an onerous work, and the hardest of any we know of in the economy of Methodism. This it is if they do their duty; but there are too many who have a very easy time indeed. Faithful stewards! Much depends upon them all through the year, and especially at the winding up. May every preacher have occasion to remember his board of stewards with grateful affection forever!

UNIFORMITY IN PUBLIC WORSHIP

We were asked by a visiting brother in the pulpit, not long ago, if we conformed to the disciplinary directions in the service of the hour? We are sorry that there should ever be occasion to ask such a question. For ourselves we never do, but proceed as the book has directed, and if it is not according to the usage of that particular pastor and congregation, it is their fault and not ours. To our mind it is an exceedingly unfortunate custom for a Methodist congregation to pray immediately after preaching and before the closing hymn. Methodists are supposed to kneel in prayer and to stand in singing. The kneeling posture is more conveniently reached by those who stand, and rising to sing is every way appropriate and restful after the sermon. At any rate, there ought to be a very considerable reason for departing from the authorized order. Where, as in the Presbyterian and Baptist churches, the congregations stand in prayer and sit in singing, the prayer after the sermon is well enough; but it does not harmonize with our forms of worship. We attach but little importance to mere forms, but there should be uniformity. This prevents confusion, and everybody attending a Methodist church knows precisely what to do. On devotional or æsthetical grounds, the order laid down in the Discipline is greatly preferable to any of the innovations or variations with which we have met.

We observe that in the reception of members our prescribed form is sometimes ignored. The preacher improvises something for the occasion, or he simply takes the applicant by the hand, announces the name, and the thing is done. This is a very trifling and unimpressive way of consummating a most solemn and important covenant transaction. The form prescribed by the Discipline is simple and brief enough, and should be used. The nature and obligations of church membership are too sacred to be carelessly presented, and the method of the introduction should never be slurred over. It is not surprising that so many members, thus negligently and informally received, regard the matter as of very slight obligation. Keeping the rules in public worship and in the ordinances is much wiser than these attempts to mend them. They are marred rather than mended by all such efforts at improvement, and the results are anything but edifying to the church. If our polity were congregational these matters might be left to the pastor and congregation; but in a church so essentially connectional as ours, and with a constantly changing pastorate, it is comely and expedient to follow the authorized order.

We give up our young friend, Rev. Thomas W. Dyer, with deep regret. He has been raised in New Orleans, and leaves a host of friends behind him. A graduate of the Southern University, and a preacher of fine promise, we heartily commend him to the preachers and people of Alabama. He leaves us to supply the Glennville station for the balance of the year, and then to enter upon his work as a member of the Alabama Conference. Our best wishes and prayers will follow him.

CRYSTAL SPRINGS CAMP MEETING

Mr. Editor: This meeting is regarded, by those who participated in it, as the great religious occasion of this section of our State. It will doubtless be referred to by this generation as such.

The ground is within the corporate limits of the town of Crystal Springs, located not more than three-fourths of a mile from the railroad depot. The plot does not present its advantages at the first view. It grows on the sense of order and fitness gradually—its suitableness becomes fully demonstrated so soon as you have had time to look around. The public are indebted to Messrs. Isaac Hennington and Fletcher Enochs for the selection, as well as for the general arrangement, which is admirable, and for the location of the large shed, which affords the most advantageous seating of a congregation that any person present had ever seen.

A more imposing spectacle than the Sunday congregation is difficult to conceive. The preacher occupied the central point, on a line level with the lowest tier of seats, in an amphitheater that rose gradually to the highest tier, on a line level with his face. Twenty five hundred pairs of eyes concentrated their eager look upon him, and this imposing presence heard and weighed all the words of his mouth, or they caught up the strain of some old sweet song, and held it under the roof until the melody woke up all the better feelings of the heart and called up those soul-subduing memories that make a moment precious and rapt.

The meeting was religious throughout. The interest grew from the beginning, and did not remit a moment to the close and beyond. The fruits were large and of good quality. The most favorable impression was made. The conversions were numerous, and so also were the accessions to the church. The goodly fellowship of the saints was heightened and strengthened. To meet again was the hope they charged the future with. May time deal gently with the dear friends.

The preachers were mostly from the district—drawn together by the business of the District Conference. Their labors and bearing evidenced the ripeness of their experience and the solidity of their character. Some of them are well worn, advancing steadily to the margin of the river; but they are not afraid.

The president of Centenary College, Bro. Andrews, entered with loving zeal into the work. He served and was blessed, commending himself in fruitful labors to the brethren and to the church of God.

I once thought that my noble friend, Nehemiah A. Cravens, of the Louisiana Conference, was the prince of preachers in an altar. I have not changed my opinion; but he has a worthy peer in H. J. Harris, of the Mississippi Conference. They must have been taught by the same master. May the church retain that skill! I love good preaching. I dearly love good singing. I am not less charmed with the skill of management that develops a work and leads poor perplexed sinners into the way of life. This is a divine art that needs to be studied and more largely practiced in the regular services of the church.

The meeting was ordered and conducted upon the self-sustaining plan. About eight tenters dispensed a generous hospitality, and a large, well managed restaurant accommodated the public. The most extravagant preparations, however, succumbed under the pressure of the Sabbath attendance. Even the large springs betrayed a weakness; but good nature is both bread and meat, and politeness, like charity, covers a crowd of weaknesses. We doubt if Mississippians can be excelled in gentle manners when they set their hearts to do the right thing.

Many plans have already been sketched to meet the necessity, and the greater number of eligible lots have been pre-empted. When the time rolls around for another meeting, and you are still among the living, come and see for yourself, and let thine own eyes behold. Surely the Lord has owned the place, for he greatly blessed the people who pitched their altar there.

W. E. M. Linfield.

THY LOVING KINDNESS.

Every man can perceive the kindness of the Lord—that his disposition "delights in contributing to human happiness." This attribute of the divine nature is shown particularly in the temporal blessings which are bestowed with such a generous hand upon men. It is manifested to all in giving life, in supplying wants, in causing "the sun to rise on the evil and the good," and in sending "rain upon the just and upon the unjust." All men acknowledge that God is the Lord of the sunshine and shower, and that he is the giver of the spring time and the harvest. It is by these temporal blessings which are bestowed upon men that the kindness of the Lord is manifested to them.

The term "loving kindness" expresses something more than this. It is a term which leads the mind to meditate upon the endearing relation and the spontaneous affection which subsists between father and child. The kindness of a parent is the kindness of love. It is love flowing out to the child in acts which show good will. It is in the hand that wards off danger, in the tongue that speaks in affection's soft tones, in the heart that swells with tenderness. It is that disposition which endeavors to make every circumstance and every situation of life contribute to the well-being of the child. So, when this term is used to describe the disposition of the divine mind toward men, it expresses God's concern for their highest welfare. It demonstrates that there is in the divine nature the same sympathy and affection for men that there is in the nature of the parent for his child, only in a much higher degree. It exhibits to humanity a stream of love arising in the mountainous and incomprehensible depths of divinity, and pouring itself out through thousands of channels to water and refresh the deserts and waste places of human life.

The richness, the boundlessness of this loving kindness is shown in the covenant of grace, which was ratified by the blood of the Son of God, and sealed by God's Holy Spirit of promise. Herein is where God's love is manifested in its beauty and power and tenderness! Here is where is exhibited the deep yearnings of the divine compassion over weak and helpless men! Here is the clearest and most attractive manifestation of love the world ever saw! The love that suffers and bleeds and dies for its object is the purest and the deepest! "God so loved the world" is a sentence whose meaning men can never fathom. "Thy loving kindness" is an expression whose tenderness has calmed the uproar in many a troubled heart. "His great love, wherewith he hath loved us," is a thought which has carried peace to many a weary soul. "God is love" is a sentiment which has gone down into the nature of man and satisfied all its cravings, and fulfilled all its hopes and intensified all its joys, and filled all its chambers with peace. Oh, man! learn the nature and the disposition of your Maker. His nature is love. His disposition is loving kindness. Tenderness is a word which means something when applied to the divine nature. Look not, oh, man! upon your Father above as an angry Judge, ready always to hurl thunderbolts of wrath against you; but view him as a tender parent, with head and heart and eye and voice always ready to help you on to good! Look at him controlling the destiny of his great empire, yet "numbering the hairs of your head!" Look at him working to bring all his creatures under the dominion of that law by which his own actions are governed—even the law of love! See him doing good and speaking good, and good only and good all the time, to the children of men! No wonder the Psalmist should exclaim: "Because thy loving kindness is better than life, my lips shall praise thee!" C.

Rev. Julius T. Curtis writes us that his postoffice address is Bozeman, Montana Territory.

LIGHT IN THE EAST.

One of the most gratifying facts in the progress of the present century is that of the opening of Palestine to the establishment of Christian schools. Rev. Robert Patterson furnishes the Sunday School Times with some interesting information in point:

"In Syria, from Antioch to Carmel, there are ninety-five places where Protestant schools are maintained. In some of these places, as in Jerusalem, Damascus, Beyroot, etc., are several of these schools. Besides these there are a number of important establishments of other faiths. In Beyroot alone are eighteen large educational institutions, belonging respectively to Moslems, Greeks, Armenians, Maronites, Jesuits, and so forth. All these are at present peculiarly active, in order, if possible, to save their children from Protestant Christian influences, and as a result there are in Beyroot, a city of 80,000 inhabitants, 56 colleges and schools for boys, with 3,173 pupils, and 1,981 girls—a proportion to the entire population of one-sixteenth. Of this number 2 019 boys and 1,060 girls are in Protestant schools. In Acre there were in 1869 130 pupils; in Tyre, 62; in Sidon, 247. Mr. Salesby's schools in Lebanon have 32 teachers and 800 pupils. Tripoli has 39 schools, of which 26 are Moslem, having altogether 1,322 pupils, of whom 130 are girls, and 50 of these Protestant girls.

"The boys and girls in the higher classes in the mission schools are taught the English language, so as to write and speak it fluently. The range of studies is about the same as in our American schools and colleges, except that French and English are generally substituted for Greek and Latin. The College of Syria and Roberts College, Constantinople—the latter the only first-class college in that vast metropolis—are both institutions of a high order, and are doing much to dispel the moral darkness which broods over that fair and populous part of the globe."

Our Baltimore Churches.—Most of the pastors who have been abroad during the extremely hot season, says the Baltimore Episcopal Methodist of September 21, have returned and are at their posts. There is a decided improvement in the attendance since the agreeable change in the temperature. Dr. Wadsworth is on a tour to the North, for a brief period, with a view to recruit his health. He has been active and laborious in his important charge all the while. The Trinity church is greatly favored in having received the services of this eminent minister of the gospel.

There has been some interest in St. Paul's church since the Wesley Grove camp meeting, especially among the young people of the congregation. Rev. W. G. Eggleston, the pastor, is indefatigable in his efforts to advance the interests of this charge, both spiritually and financially, and with encouraging results. Dr. Tudor, of New Orleans, preached on Sunday last, much to the delight and edification of the congregation.

Our young friend, W. H. Watkins, M. D., son of Rev. W. H. Watkins, D. D., of Natchez, was married on Tuesday, the first of October, to Miss Julia Meyer, daughter of Mr. Henry Meyer, of New Orleans. The ceremony took place at the Felicity Street church, and was performed by Rev. Dr. Watkins, in the presence of a large assembly. We extend our congratulations to the happy couple, only regretting that previous engagements prevented us from witnessing the service.

Bishop Keener returned from his Arkansas trip a few days ago. After a short breathing spell he leaves for his tour of Conferences in Texas, the first of which, the Northwest Texas, meets at Belton, October 23. The Bishop looks vigorous, and keeps himself in tone when at home by preaching every Sabbath.

Rev. J. D. Cameron, of Macon, Mississippi, writing September 24, speaks of a recent and sore bereavement. May God sustain and sanctify. Bro. Cameron says: "God has just taken our little Bessie Beauchamp, aged ten months, to him in heaven. 'The Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord.'"

Vicksburg District.—Rev. John A. B. Jones, presiding elder of the Vicksburg district, Mississippi Conference, writes us: "We are having very refreshing meetings throughout the district; almost every quarterly meeting protracted."

BOOKS AND PERIODICALS.

ENGLISH LITERATURE. A historical sketch of English literature from the earliest times. By Richard Malcolm Johnston and William Hand Browne. University Publishing Company, New York and Baltimore, 1873.

Works of this kind are of great value to those who wish to obtain a general knowledge of English authors and their works, and they are all-important to those who wish to pursue a systematic course of reading. To us this is the most entertaining and instructive department of history. The work before us is well arranged, easy of reference, and written in a spirit of candor and earnest devotion to truth. The only fault we find with it is that it is too limited. For lack of space the authors have not been able to notice many of the most interesting writers and literary works. We are indebted to W. Irving Clarke, 92 Camp street, New Orleans, for a copy.

THE LIVES OF THE NOVELISTS. By Sir Walter Scott. With notes. New York: A. Denham & Co., 1872.

The volume contains sketches of fourteen of the most celebrated writers of fiction who lived before the time of Scott. The lives were written and published about fifty years ago, and are in the best style of the great novelist—discriminating, lively and usually judicious. Among the authors whose history and works are reviewed are Samuel Richardson, Henry Fielding, Tobias Smollett, Oliver Goldsmith, Samuel Johnson and Henry Mackenzie. This new and handsome edition will be welcomed by the reading public. It makes a volume 12mo of over four hundred pages; type, paper and binding all of the best.

FRED BRENNING. A True Story for Boys. By Timothy Trimmer. Edited by Athens G. Haygood, D D. Nashville, Tennessee: Published by A. H Redford, agent, for the Methodist Episcopal Church South, 1872.

A beautiful little volume for the young, and very highly commended by those who have read it. As we have not had time to examine for ourselves, we are willing to indorse it on the authority of the editor and publisher. It is bound to be a good thing, and worth reading by every boy in the church or Sunday school. For sale at the Publishing Houses, Nashville and New Orleans.

MONTEITH'S COMPREHENSIVE GEOGRAPHY, published by A. S Barnes & Co., New York and Chicago, is a complete thing in its line. It is designed as a text book, adapted to every grade, and to furnish a complete course in geography. The maps and illustrations are well executed, and the general arrangement is good. Price, $1.60 sent by mail.

THE GALAXY for October has: Our Consul at Jerusalem; How the Ship Came In; the Fellowship of Music; Foreign Modes of Living; A Revival of the Papacy; Royal Exiles and Imperial Parvenus; Souvenirs of Hackett, the Actor, and other articles.

LITTELL'S LIVING AGE of September 21 contains: The Belief in Immortality; Charles James Lever; the Burgomaster's Family; Suppressed Lives; Blindness and the Blind, and other articles of great interest.

OCTOBER is at hand, and the pleasantest harbingers of the month are our Sunday school publications. The Visitor, Little People, Lesson Papers and Magazine are all up to their usual standard of interest.

WOODS' HOUSEHOLD MAGAZINE for October has a varied table of contents. Gail Hamilton is one of the editors of this periodical, and it is bound to have some good things in it.

BRAINARD'S MUSICAL WORLD for September is filled with fresh music and the latest musical literature, and is accompanied by a separate supplement entitled Pure Diamonds.

THE HOUSEHOLD for October is a complete treasury of useful and entertaining literature, and fortunate are the housewives who receive this always valuable domestic journal.

GRACE AND TRUTH is a monthly magazine devoted to the exposition of the word of God, and published in Philadelphia. We have received the September number.

MORTON'S MONTHLY HOME AND SCHOOL, published at Louisville, Kentucky, is an excellent educational journal. We have received the September number.

THE American Tract Society sends us their "Family Christian Almanac" for 1873. It is splendidly illustrated, and filled with excellent religious reading.

ARTHUR'S LADIES' HOME MAGAZINE and the Children's Hour for October are handsomely illustrated, and contain only the best things.

LE BON TON for October contains a wonderful supply of patterns, fashion plates and literary matter of interest to the ladies.

GOOD WORDS for September has Rambles in Retrospect; Education and Advancement in Life; Serbean Folk Lore; Harvest Song; Brother Adam; the Fall of Ghuknee, and other articles, besides a sermon by the deceased Norman McLeod, D. D.

THE NATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER and the American Educational Monthly for September are both excellent numbers.

THE UNIVERSITY MONTHLY for September contains a large amount of entertaining and useful matter.

APPLETON'S JOURNAL of September 21 is one of the most entertaining numbers of the season.

THE SUNDAY MAGAZINE for September has an excellent table of contents.

THE SOUTHERN METHODIST HOME ALTAR for August has been received.

THE AMERICAN FARMERS' ADVOCATE for September has been received.

ELABORATE WRITING.

"Ganganelli says truly that a man might often find at the nib of his pen what he goes a great way in search of; and I maintain that no man who writes from pure love of writing should be allowed to hold a pen if he require to travel for his illustrations much beyond its nib. I should like to know where originality is to be found, if it be not in a man's first thoughts, or truth, save in the spontaneous testimony of his faculties for discerning it? All later testimony is liable to be bribed, or may incur suspicion of being borrowed. Write with all dispatch, if you wish to be original, and never imagine that your perceptions of truth will be improved by multiplying questions concerning it; the world is already too full of these. But, in fact, men all know what is truth better than they or you are apt to suspect; and when you wish to illustrate it to them in any way, do not perplex your readers by exfoliating the whys, whens and wherefores of your evidence, nor yourself with laborious oratory; the clearest ever is the flowing stream. Some writers are complained of for their too great negligence of critical rules; others are censured for their pedantry in adhering to them. They best defeat criticism who have a way of their own; who follow their pen; in short, who write naturally. And how can any man do this who considers and elaborates?—a bewildering process, through which the lively imagination inebriates in its abundance, and the feeble becomes intimidated through discovered sterility. They inevitably grow into copyists, who are incessantly studying to produce effect. The most of all which writers employ to add to, vary or heighten their conceptions, may be traced to foreign models; and the habit of looking abroad for accessories, of trying to catch the tone, air, gait or periwig of this or that great original, be he the brightest or the biggest who ever wore one, tends but to the production of ill-fitting affections, or the debilitation of native powers. The ready writer, like the bee, may, indeed, have drawn his funded stores from a variety of flower-beds; but that honey is the best whose compound betrays no prevailing flavor of any favorite nectary, unless we may except the incurable Scottish heather-honey, and does not owe its superiority to a flower of the wild!"

To this may be added the words of Southey—one of the masters of English prose—in reference to the acquisition of a good style:

"There may be secrets in painting, but there are none in style. When I have been asked the foolish question, what a young man should do when he wishes to acquire a good style, my answer has been that he never should think about it, but say what he has to say as perspicuously as he can, and as briefly as he can, and the style will take care of itself. As for composition, it has no difficulties for one who will 'read, learn, mark and inwardly digest' the materials upon which he is to work. I do not mean to say that it is easy to write well; but of this I am sure, that most men would write much better if they did not take half the pains they do."—Correspondent of Evangelical Messenger.

THE Dunkers occupied much of their time in a convention in a discussion of the question: "What shall be done with a brother who gets his life insured, insists that there is no wrong in it, and refuses to withdraw his policy?" What, indeed?

CONFERENCE REGISTER.

Conference.	Place.	Time.	Bishop.
St Louis...	Arcadia...	Oct. 16	Pierce.
Arkansas...	Bentonville.	Oct. 16.	Wightman
Tennessee..	Nashville...	Oct. 16.	Doggett.
Los Angeles.	Los Nietos..	Oct. 16	McTyeire.
N. W. Texas	Belton.....	Oct. 23.	Keener.
White River.	Augusta....	Oct. 30.	Wightman.
Trinity.....	Sul Springs.	Nov. 6.	Keener.
Memphis....	Somerville	Nov. 20.	Wightman.
N. Alabama.	Tuskaloosa.	Nov 20.	Doggett.
East Texas..	Tyler.....	Nov 20.	Keener.
Virginia....	Petersburg	Nov. 20.	Paine.
N. Georgia..	Atlanta....	Nov. 27.	Marvin.
N. Missis'ppi.	Corinth....	Nov 27.	Kavanaugh
Little Rock.	Pine Bluff	Dec. 4	Wightman.
Texas.....	Bryan.....	Dec. 4	Keener.
N. Carolina	Raleigh....	Dec. 4.	Paine.
S. Georgia..	Thomasville.	Dec. 11.	Marvin.
Mississippi..	Brandon..	Dec. 11	Kavanaugh
Alabama....	Eufaula....	Dec. 11.	Doggett.
West Texas.	Victoria....	Dec. 18	Keener.
S. Carolina..	Anderson..	Dec 18	Paine.
Louisiana..	N. Orleans..	Jan. 8	Pierce.
Florida.....	Fernandina.	Jan. 8	Marvin.
Baltimore...	Baltimore..	Mar. 6.	Paine.

Agt's & Publisher's Department

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS OF LETTERS and Funds, Received by Mail, for the week ending Sept. 28, 1872:

A—E Alden 2 lets $62.37, N W Ayer & Son, T S Arthur & Son, P W Archer $1, Jas S Armstrong $2.

B—Geo W Brown, Milton Bradley & Co, Mrs M Byrd, Robt Babbington 2 lets. J H Boult, L P Bergis, H P Bowen $5, Boorman & Pees, Levi Brown $2.

C—Wm R Chase, B F Clement $3.60, S C Collins $10, Clarke & Russell, J D Cameron, Connecticut Publishing Co, B E Christenburg.

D—Joel T Daves $40, J W DeVilbiss $25, R G Dun & Co 2 lots, C K Dudley 2 lots $5, R A Davis $8, R B Downer, W B Dennis.

E—W F Easterling 3 lots $2, J F Evans, L B Ellis.

F—R W Faulk, Jos Fox 10 cts, O H Fisher, J W Flournoy, $2.25.

G—Gooch & Gooch, Gould & Lincoln, J W Gray.

H—J A Hicks, Herring, Farrell & Herring, H H Hines, Hicks & Morris, H F Hartel.

J—H F Johnson 3 lots.

L—J B Lippincott & Co, W C Lynne $2, W E M Lindeld, Lexington Miss no name $210.

M—H H Montgomery, W A Montgomery, D L Mitchell $10, A H Moss, Thos Mullet, C McDonald, Jas Malone, Uriah Millsaps, R T Markham.

N—a B Nicholson, P E Nicholson $6, A T Norwood, J A Norsworthy & Co $16.15, R A New, C J Nugent.

P—Powers Paper Co, S M Pettengill & Co, Thos Price, J Hale Powers & Co

R E E F Ross 2 lots, John F Rives, J K Randall, A H Redford, W H Rowe $7.50, A Riser.

S—H A Spangenberg, Smith, English & Co $10.

T—N Tibbals & Son, E J Taylor, J M Tapp, C F Turner

U—University Publishing Co, United States Publishing Co

W John A Wilburn $7.50, J T Watson $37.85, J S White, Mrs C H Wright 20 cts, Geo Woods & Co, John F Wynn, Thomas F Webb.

EXTENT OF CIRCULATION.—The New Orleans Daily Times claims that its circulation is "OVER TEN MILE that of any other journal in the South." If the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE be regarded as one of the "journals in the South," the Times is misinformed. Our opportunities for obtaining accurate information are equal to those of the publishers of the Times. Their circulation cannot be more than their issue. Their regular issue falls to between two and three thousand below the circulation of the ADVOCATE, according to our information.

THE GLORY, by Dr. George F. Root, is the title of the latest music book issued. It is full of new, useful, interesting and attractive features. The music is all fresh, and so arranged as to be peculiarly adapted to singing schools, conventions and church choirs; and now in the fall of the year, the demand for this book will be unprecedented by teachers of singing and convention leaders all over the country. Published by John Church & Co., Cincinnati. Specimen copy sent, postpaid, for $1.25.

Married.

By the Rev. J. L. Skipper, at the residence of the bride's father, on the fifteenth of September, 1872, Mr. GEORGE E. ANYZE to Miss C. L. SKIPPER all of Butler county, Alabama.

By Rev. I. Z. T. Morris, in Montgomery, Alabama, September 10, Mr. DAVID O. BAILY to Mrs. ANN E. FREEMAN, all of Montgomery, Alabama.

By Rev. I Z T Morris, in Montgomery, Alabama, September 18 Mr SAMUEL S. HELSER, of Athens, Alabama, to Miss VICTORIA BARNETT, of Montgomery, Alabama.

By Rev. N. B. Young, at the residence of the bride's uncle, Mr Samuel Perrel, of Covington county, Mississippi, Mr GEORGE G. HOLLOWAY to Miss SUSAN M. TERRELL.

At the residence of the bride's father, near Macville, Mississippi, on the eighteenth of July, by the Rev. H Walter Feathers ton, Mr. J. T. L. BROWN and Miss MATTIE MCMILLAN.

At the residence of the bride's uncle, W. B. M Quillan, near Rolling Fork, Mississippi on the tenth of September, by the Rev. H. Walter Featherston, Mr. JOHN KELLEY and Miss E. BELLE BUTLER, both of Yazoo county, Mississippi.

By Rev Henry P. Bowen, at the residence of the bride's father, in St. Tammany parish, Louisiana, on the fifth of September, 1872, Mr. WILLIAM HARDY TALLEY to Mrs. MARY J BENNETT.

BUSINESS NOTICES

Scrofula is the dread disease which annually sweeps its thousands to the grave. It makes its appearance in many forms: in Consumption, Glandular Swellings, Rheumatism, Cutaneous Diseases, many of the affections which females are troubled, etc. Perhaps no one is wholly free from its taint. The only way it can be successfully treated is through the medium of the circulation. It is a blood disease. Dr. Tutt's Sarsaparilla possesses the qualities to expel it from the system and restore perfect health. Being free from violent minerals it may be taken with safety by old and young. The most delicate female may take it at any time.

If your child has worms, or a bad breath, or sallow complexion, or restless at night, or no appetite, or general bad health, give it Dr. Tutt's Liver Pills. It will soon be restored. oc3 1t

Dr. Tutt's Hair Dye Contains no Sugar of Lead.

Extract from Telegraph and Messenger, Macon, Georgia.—We had tested its virtue personally, and know that for dyspepsia, biliousness, and throbbing headache arising therefrom, it is the best medicine the world ever saw. We had tried forty other remedies before the Simmons' Liver Regulator, but none of them gave us more than temporary relief; but the Regulator not only relieved, but it cured us.—Editor Telegraph. oc3 1t

The Equitable Life Assurance Society, New York.

Assets, $18,000,000. Income, $8,000,000.

Branch office—33 CAMP STREET.

A. P. CLEVELAND,
fe8 1y General Agent.

Best and Oldest Family Medicine.—Sanford's Liver Invigorator.—A purely Vegetable Cathartic and Tonic, for Dyspepsia, Constipation, Debility, Sick-headache, Bilious attacks, and all derangements of Liver, Stomach and Bowels. Ask your druggist for it. Beware of Imitations. jy11 1yeow

Twelve Samples (Postage Free) for fifty cents, 4 Sells for $10. R. L. WOLCOTT, 161 Chatham square, N. Y. se26 1y

Use Dr. Henry's World's Tonic and Blood Purifier.—It is the great household remedy, pleasant to take, yet potent for the prevention and cure of diseases. It is better than Bitters, Cordials, Buchu or Sarsaparilla. Sold by druggists. jy18 1y

BUSINESS NOTICES.

Price's Celebrated Stomach Bitters.—The Great Vegetable Restorative and Life-Giving Principle.—This wonderful vegetable restorative, since it has been before the public as a Tonic (October, 1869,) the quantity sold has been over 150,000 dozen, and in every instance given the greatest satisfaction. For dyspepsia, general debility, chills and fever, nervous affections, torpor of the liver, constipation of the bowels fever and ague, and all choleraic maladies, these Bitters will be found invaluable to all who desire a stimulating Tonic, and are particularly recommended to all persons traveling, by land or sea. Wherever introduced it has become a standard article. It is the best and purest Tonic offered. As a Tonic and Cordial it has no equal among stomachics.

It is also a great blood purifier, a life-giving principle, and a perfect renovator of the system. No one can take these Bitters long and remain unwell. A single trial will convince any one of the merits claimed for them. Sold by grocers, druggists and dealers throughout the South.

Address JAMES W PRICE & Co., sole manufacturers and proprietors, Lock Box 166, New Orleans, Louisiana. se5 2m

Mrs Whitcomb's Syrup.—The great soothing remedy. Price only 25 cents. Gives rest to the mother and health to the child. Sold by druggists. jy18 1y

Have your Printing and Binding Done at

THE PELICAN JOB OFFICE,

113 and 115 Poydras St., New Orleans.
jn18 1y

Caution!—Every genuine box of DR. MCLANE'S LIVER PILLS bears the signature of Fleming Brothers, Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, and their private United States stamp. Take no other; the market is full of imitations.

It is the popular verdict that people who have been accustomed to the use of Bitters or Cordials are obliged eventually to resort to McLane's Liver Pills for permanent relief. ap25 6m

Dr. Henry's Root and Plant Pills.—Mild yet thorough; no nausea or griping; entirely vegetable; great Liver remedy. Price, 25 cents. Sold by druggists jy18 1y

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

IMPORTANT NEW BOOKS

JUST PUBLISHED BY

HURD & HOUGHTON, NEW YORK.

THE RIVERSIDE PRESS, CAMBRIDGE.

I—A Vigorous Polemic.

THE CITY OF GOD AND THE CHURCH Makers. An Examination of Structural Christianity, and Criticism of Christian Sects and Doctors of the Law. By R. Abbey. In one volume, crown 8vo.,

Dr. Abbey's book will make a great stir in the religious community, and set old men and young to thinking.

II—Dr. Campbell's Sermons.

SERMONS BY REV. C. D. N. CAMPBELL, D. D. In one vol., crown 8vo, cloth, $1.50.

Dr Campbell is known as a very acceptable preacher, and he will make many new friends by the publication of this volume.

For sale by all booksellers. When no bookseller is at hand, send the price to the publishers, who will mail the books, postage free. oc3 1m

30,000 COPIES SOLD IN ADVANCE.

IS SO FAR

THE BEST MUSIC BOOK

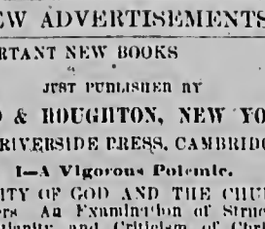
For Churches, Singing Schools and Musical Conventions.

EMPHATICALLY A NEW BOOK.

New in Method, new in Lessons, new in Departments, new in Music.

HAS 400 PAGES

filled with new and fresh music. It includes also an elementary course of the best character, with interesting exercises, tunes and easy pieces for practice. A specimen copy will be sent, post paid, on receipt of $1 25, by the publishers, JOHN CHURCH & CO., oc3 1y Cincinnati, Ohio.



The Great National Park in the Yosemite valley, when finished and fenced in, will be the grandest pleasure-ground in the world. If it had a fine medicinal spring, like the German Seltzer, it would be perfect. Yet this is of no importance, for who goes anywhere in summer without being provided with which is identical in its components and its effects with the famous Prussian Spa? It takes but an instant to evolve from this preparation the most delightful and admirable of all medicinal draughts. As a cure for biliousness, rheumatism, indigestion, constipation, nervousness, etc., and as a renovator of the system, it stands alone. Sold by all druggists. oc3 2t

Tarrant's Effervescent Seltzer Aperient,

FREE TO BOOK AGENTS.

SENT FREE TO AGENTS—A COMPLETE Canvassing Outfit of the PICTORIAL HOME BIBLE, with Bible History, Analysis, Dictionary, Tables and Treatises too numerous to mention; profusely illustrated. The cheapest, excelling all others. Address WM. FLINT & CO., Atlanta, Ga., c3 3m Philadelphia, Pa., or Cincinnati, O.

MILLER'S BIBLE AND PUBLISHING HOUSE.

NEW ILLUSTRATED FAMILY BIBLE.

The cheapest and best Bible published. Large Print, beautiful Bindings, and more than two hundred Engravings

THE CHRISTIAN HARMONY,

A NEW MUSIC BOOK, BY WM. WALKER, AUTHOR OF THE SOUTHERN HARMONY.

This Book is printed with New-Shaped Seven-Character Notes, and is preferable to anything of the kind ever before used. Any one can learn to read music and sing in one-fourth the time required by the old methods. It contains the choicest collection of Music, both original and selected, from the best sources; particularly designed for Choirs, Singing Schools and Private Societies.

Specimen pages, with terms, mailed free.

Miller's Bible and Publishing House,
1102 and 1101 Sansom street,
Je27 6m Philadelphia, Penn'a.

WAVERLY STABLES,
HAYDEN & MEENAN, Proprietors.
LIVERY AND SALE STABLES,
No. 39 North Royal Street, Mobile.

Carriages and Buggies of the latest styles, and superior Horses, furnished at all hours. Calls of every description will receive prompt attention. jn4 1y

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

THIRD EDITION.

GOD WITH US,

Or the Person and Work of Christ; with an Examination of the "Vicarious Sacrifice" of Dr. Bushnell. By Alvah Hovey, D. D., president of Newton Theological Seminary.—12mo, cloth, $1.50.

CONTENTS.—Part I.—The Person of Christ. The Deity of Christ. The Humanity of Christ. The Unity of Christ.

Part II.—The Atonement as Related to God. The Atonement as Related to Man.

Part III.—"The Vicarious Sacrifice" of Dr Bushnell. The Fundamental Principles of the Work. The Interpretation of the Language of Scripture, etc.

A thorough, interesting and very timely work.

Dr. W. R. Williams, of New York, writes to the publishers:

"I have read carefully throughout the work of Dr. Hovey, 'God With Us.' It seems to me a clear, succinct and admirably cogent book; well timed, and not easily answered."

Dr. Caldwell, of Providence, Rhode Island, writes:

"I have just been reading Dr. Hovey's 'God With Us,' and with the greatest interest. The treatment of the subject is very fair, just, clear, and will relieve many minds obscured by speculations on the subject. The style is remarkably vivid and animated for a theological treatise. It is the best of Dr. Hovey's works."

A CHOICE BOOK.—SECOND EDITION.

IN CHRIST,

Or the Believer's Union with His Lord. By Rev. A. J. Gordon, pastor of the Clarendon Street Church, Boston. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

A volume full of the "seeds of things," fresh, vigorous and instructive. To those "looking unto Jesus" this volume will be intensely interesting, and prove refreshing as "water to a thirsty soul."

The Sunday Courier says: "This book comes well up to its divine theme. We do not remember, since Thomas a'Kempis, a book so thoroughly imbued with great personal love of Christ, and such longing desire to bring men into like love of our Lord and Master as this. * * * This book has, beside its spiritual beauty, great literary merit. It is written in that full, rich old style which once was common among good divines, but now is unhappily so rare anywhere."

The Boston Globe says: "It is really a book of 'vital' religion, and, which is at the same time 'sound' in doctrine. We make the distinction, because doctrinal soundness is often accompanied with spiritual dryness. Mr. Gordon is all alive. He is intensely 'orthodox,' but he is also intensely human. As a writer he is both fervid and pointed."

Published by

GOULD & LINCOLN,
59 Washington street, Boston.

For sale by

ROBERT J. HAVIP,
oc3 2meow New Orleans.

This unrivaled medicine is warranted not to contain a single particle of Mercury, or any injurious mineral substance, but is

PURELY VEGETABLE.

For FORTY YEARS it has proved its great value in all diseases of the LIVER, BOWELS and KIDNEYS. Thousands of the good and great in all parts of the country vouch for its wonderful and peculiar power in purifying the blood, stimulating the torpid Liver and Bowels, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system. SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR is acknowledged to have no equal as a

LIVER MEDICINE.

It contains four medical elements never united in the same happy proportion in any other preparation, viz: a gentle Cathartic, a wonderful Tonic, an unexceptionable Alterative, and a certain Corrective of all impurities of the body. Such signal success has attended its use that it is now regarded as the

GREAT UNFAILING SPECIFIC

for LIVER COMPLAINT and the painful offspring thereof, to wit: Dyspepsia, Constipation, Jaundice, Bilious attacks, Sick Headache, Colic, Depression of Spirits, Sour Stomach, Heart Burn, etc. Regulate the Liver and prevent

CHILLS AND FEVER.

SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR is manufactured only by

J. H. ZEILIN & CO.,
Macon, Georgia, and Philadelphia.

Price, $1 per package; sent by mail, postage paid, $1.25. Prepared ready for use in bottles, $1.50. Sold by all druggists.

☞ Beware of all Counterfeits and Imitations. se19 1y

J. A. NORSWORTHY & CO.,

BANKERS,

24 Walnut street, Jefferson, Texas.

CORRESPONDENTS.—Ober, Edwards & Co., New Orleans; Northrop & Chick, New York; Bartholow, Lewis & Co., St. Louis. se26 1y

LANDRETH'S SEEDS

Have spoken their own praise for upward of three-quarters of a century.

Landreth's Rural Register and Almanac will be mailed to all who apply.

DAVID LANDRETH & SON,
an29 1y Philadelphia.

GARDEN SEEDS,

FIELD SEEDS,

FLOWER SEEDS.

Grown largely by ourselves, on our own grounds, near Huddonfield, New Jersey.

COLLINS, DOWNS & CO.,
Warehouse, 1113 Market street,
Philadelphia, Pa.

Catalogue and Price-List furnished on application. The trade supplied on liberal terms. an22 3m

WILLIAM HOGAN,
Manufacturer of and Dealer in
BOOTS, SHOES, THUNKS, VALISES AND BAGS,
FRENCH AND AMERICAN,
Also Agent for the EMPIRE SEWING MACHINE,
99 AND 101 CANAL STREET,
au11 3m New Orleans.

S. COLLINS & CO.,

MANUFACTURERS OF

PRINTING INK,

Office and Depot—36 Frankfort Street,
jy25 6m NEW YORK.

ESTABLISHED IN 1843.
GUNS! GUNS! GUNS!

Breech and Muzzle-loading Guns, Rifles, Pistols, Sportsmen's Apparatus, Ammunition and Material for Gunmakers, etc., wholesale and retail. Guns made to order or repaired in the best manner.

ALEXANDER McCOMAS,
se12 2m 51 South Calvert st., Baltimore, Md.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

IMPORTANT RELIGIOUS BOOKS

LATELY PUBLISHED BY

LEE & SHEPARD, BOSTON.

Prof. L. T. Townsend's New Book.

GOD-MAN. SEARCH AND MANIFESTATIONS. By Prof. L. T. Townsend, author of "Credo," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1 50.

"It is written in a clear, earnest and vivacious style, from an evangelical standpoint, and will take a high place in the class of similar works."—Christian Intelligencer.

Also new editions of Prof. Townsend's

CREED. 12mo, cloth, $1. 0

THE SWORD AND GARMENT, OR MINISterial Culture. 12mo, cloth, $1 50.

Pres. Hickok's New Works.

CREATOR AND CREATION, OR THE Knowledge in the Reason of God and his Work. By Laurens P. Hickok, D. D., LL. D. 1 vol., 8vo, $2.75.

"The distinguished author of this octavo volume aims by it to quicken and extend a deeper interest in speculative philosophy in an unphilosophical, skeptical age. Of the successful achievement of this purpose his eminent reputation is a full guarantee."—Christian Mirror.

HUMANITY IMMORTAL, OR MAN TRIED, Fallen and Redeemed. By Laurens P. Hickok, D D., LL. D. Uniform with "Creator and Creation." 1 vol, 8vo, $2.75.

"Dr. Hickok is a thorough theological scholar, and a student as well of physical science. In his work on 'Creator and Creation' he felt that 'the full bloom of humanity could be comprehended only in a history of man through his trial, fall, redemption and resurrection to eternal life,' and his design of giving such a history is now accomplished. It is written with clearness and force and is in its way a remarkable work."—Worcester Palladium.

Dr. Manning's New Book.

HALF TRUTHS AND THE TRUTH. By Rev. J. M. Manning, D. D. Cloth, $2.

"These lectures represent the open-eyed, undisturbed and courageous faith of the live orthodoxy of the day."—Christian Union.

A Model Story Book by Mrs. Caroline Gilman and Mrs. Caroline H. Jervey.

STORIES AND POEMS. By Mother and Daughter. With numerous full-page illustrations. 4to; cloth, $1.75

The authors of this beautiful volume are well known as writers for the young. It comprises a selection of their best articles for younger as well as older children, is elegantly illustrated and handsomely bound. Its high moral tone, pleasant style and great variety will commend it to all.

Sold by all booksellers and newsdealers.
LEE & SHEPARD, Publishers, Boston.
LEE, SHEPARD & DILLINGHAM,
se26 2t New York.

RHEUMATISM,

GOUT AND NEURALGIA PERMANENTLY CURED BY

N. JENKINS'

ANNIHILATOR.

A PURELY VEGETABLE COMPOUND, whose extraordinary virtues, in these painful diseases, are attested by certificates from many prominent citizens of every section of the country.

No medicine of the century has attracted as much attention.

Of the many to whom the proprietor is authorized to refer, may be mentioned the following well-known gentlemen:

Rev. Fisher P. Rawson, Delhi, Louisiana.
Rev. James E. Bradley, Floyd, Louisiana.
Rev. P. M. Goodwyn, New Orleans, La.
Rev. J. B Walker, Galveston, Texas.

For circulars and for further information address N. JENKINS, Proprietor, se26 3m 140 Baronne st., New Orleans.

INSURANCE.....INSURANCE.

LOUISIANA

Equitable Life Insurance Company,

CHARTERED BY THE STATE OF LOUISIANA,

Office—Cor. Carondelet and Gravier Sts.

Parties desiring life insurance are informed that this company issues policies of insurance on all approved plans as low as any other company. All policies are non-forfeitable. Losses adjusted and settled with promptness and liberality. JAMES B. LOW,
se26 1m President.

IMMIGRANTS FURNISHED.

I WILL LEAVE, ON THE NEXT TRIP out of the Steamer St. Louis, for ENGLAND, and will furnish

English Farm Laborers and Servants

to those who will intrust their orders to me. For particulars I refer all persons to Messrs. Meeker, Knox & Co., 49 Carondelet street, New Orleans.

se5 1m GEORGE TORREY.

JOSEPH GILLOTT'S

STEEL PENS,

OF THE OLD STANDARD QUALITY.

TRADE MARK: JOSEPH GILLOTT. Or Descriptive Name and Designating Number. Warranted.

The well known Original and Popular Nos.,

303.....104.....120.....351,

having been assumed by other Makers, we desire to caution the public in respect to said imitations. ☞ ASK FOR GILLOTT'S.

JOS. GILLOTT & SONS,
Jy25 1y 91 John street, N. Y.

BREWER & HILTON,
MANUFACTURERS OF
Thomas Worsley's Celebrated Fancy, Shaving and Toilet Soaps,

Also J. D. SMITH & CO.'S world renowned Pearl Powders, Lily Whites, Rouges, etc.,

NO. 114 ARCH STREET, PHILADELPHIA.
All goods warranted. au8 3m

JOHN DOUGLAS, DEALER IN

Fancy and Staple Dry Goods,

NOS. 102 AND 104 DAUPHIN STREET,
MOBILE, ALABAMA.

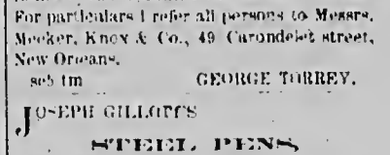
Agent for the Florence Sewing Machine.

All goods warranted as represented, and sold at the lowest rates for Cash, our object being large sales and small profits. jn4 1y

BARLOW'S INDIGO BLUE is the cheapest and best article in the market for BLUEING CLOTHES.

The genuine has both Barlow and Wiltberger's names on the label, and is put up at Wiltberger's Drug Store, No. 243 North Second street, Philadelphia. For sale by grocers and druggists.

D. S. WILTBERGER,
au23 3m Proprietor.



For Churches, Schools, Fire Alarms, Farms, etc. FINE-TONED, WARRANTED, LOW-PRICED. Descriptive circular sent free.

BLYMYER, NORTON & CO.,
661-634 W. Eighth st., Cincinnati, O.
Ja25 26eow

Effervescing Citrate of Magnesia,

IN SIX OUNCE BOTTLES, IN POWDER. This Magnesia is a mild purgative and aperient, very acceptable to the stomach for Sick Headache, Sour or Sick Stomach, and all febrile cases. Good for all seasons of the year. For sale by most druggists. Prepared by ARTHUR ROGERS, se19 6mcow3p 193 Spring st., N. Y.

The Child's Corner.

ENGLISH GRAMMAR.

The "Comic Grammar" says:

Remember, good boys and girls,
In the plural makes boxes,
The plural of ox
Should be oxen, not "oxes."

To which some one adds:

And remember, though fleece
In the plural is fleeces,
That the plural of goose
Isn't "gooses" nor "geeses."

Another:

And remember, though house
In the plural is houses,
The plural of mouse
Should be mice, and not "mouses."

THE FLIGHT OF THE BIRDS.

O wise little birds, how do you know
The way to go
Southward and northward, to and fro?
Far up in the ether piped they:
"We but obey
One who calleth us far away.
He calleth and calleth, year by year,
Now there, now here:
Ever he maketh the way appear."
Dear little birds, he calleth me
Who calleth ye;
Would that I might as trusting be.

Scribner's Monthly.

Little Dora.

BY REV. JOHN TODD, D. D.

Dora had German parents, who could speak only their own tongue; but she had learned to read and speak our language. She had been in the Sabbath school a good while, punctual, diligent and earnest. During the week she had to work in the factory, to aid in the support of the large family. But for weeks she had been absent from her class. She lay on the bed in the room—almost the only room of the family—pale, wasted and fading away. Her hair was light, her eyes large, her forehead high, but hardly could marble be whiter than her face; hardly could the diamond be brighter than her eye. Disease had taken away her strength, so that she could hardly raise the thin, long hand to her head.

One day, as her teacher sat by her bedside, talking with her as she was able, she said: "Dear Dora, I trust you pray every day."

"I am very weak, but I never close my eyes without saying, 'Now I lay me;' and 'Our Father which art in heaven.' I can do that, but I am too weak to make up much of a prayer."

"Do you feel, Dora, that you may not get well again?"

"Oh, I don't expect to. I know I am going to die."

"Are you afraid, Dora?"

"No, not exactly afraid, but somehow—I don't know how it is—I don't seem to know where I am going, how it will seem, what I shall be or do. I know all about being here, but what shall I find there? Why do I dread it all?"

"You won't, dear child, when you come to go. God gives dying grace to those who are dying. You are not dying to-day, and therefore don't need it now."

"I am tired now, but when you come again won't you try to explain it to me?"

"I will try, Dora."

Thus the teacher went to her room sad, sad that Dora must die, sad that she had undertaken to explain to her what nobody can explain. As she kneeled down, she prayed, with tears: "Dear Lord, teach me how to comfort that poor child."

So she thought long and anxiously. She put her thoughts down on paper, and the next time she sat down by Dora she read to her the following little story:

A gardener had some small, hard seed, which he had carefully laid away. One day he went to his garden, dug it up, and planted the little seeds down deep in the ground. They lay there, all near each other. One seed rolled near to a stone, where it lay quiet, as if in a sound sleep. After a while it seemed to wake up.

"Oh," said the little seed, "it's very dark here, but I like it. It's my home. Here are all my sisters lying near me. Perhaps they will wake up soon, and then we can talk together." Presently one and another began to wake up.

"Oh, sisters, what a delightful home we have! Here we have quiet and warmth and moisture. I'm sure we shall be very happy in such a home. We have just what we want. We shall never leave it. But—oh, dear, I feel pains darting through me! Ah me, I begin to swell! What will become of me?"

"This is not your home. You must rise and come up into another world, another life," said a voice that seemed to be far above, overhead.

"Another world, another life!" said the little swelling seed. "Why, I can't conceive of it! To be sure, I feel myself swelling and cracking open, and I feel a desire to push forward! But I am afraid! I can't think how or what I shall be! Must I bring my shell up with me? It seems inclined to stay in the ground."

"No, leave the shell and come up yourself."

So the little seed burst the shell, and pushed herself up; lifting up the ground and shooting up a tall, green stem, on which hung a cluster of beautiful flowers. The dew hung jewels on their leaves; the sunlight gleamed and danced upon them; the soft winds rocked them. And the owner of the garden came out and exclaimed: "Oh, my beautiful flower! How glad I am to see thee! I have waited for thee!" And then the flower shook her head, and bowed it in her joy, and the whole garden was filled with her fragrance. She forgot her cold, dark home in the ground.

"I see, I see," said Dora.

"Such will be your joy, dear Dora, when you rise up to the blessed home of Christ. What the dark home was to the seed, is this world to the soul; the voice calling the flower up, is Jesus calling you; what the flower was in the garden, will you be in that new world above."

"I see, oh, I see! thank you. I shall be afraid no more."—Sunday School Times.

Standing On His Head.

BY OLIVE THORNE.

Standing on the head isn't a very elegant position—is it? Men, and boys too, for that matter, look more interesting on their feet, though I don't suppose there ever was a boy who would care how he looked, provided he could truly stand on his head.

Well, droll as you may think it, I have read in some of the big books that there is a bird—an American bird at that—who delights in standing on his head! Now don't you suppose that innocent and dignified bird would be surprised to hear such a piece of slander about himself?

This feathered personage has a curious way of getting his dinner, I must admit, and he does look as though he used his head for a third leg. This is how it is: he always lives on the bank of a river or pond, and he likes for his dinner the little frogs and worms that live in the soft mud under the water. But he might watch all day, and starve to death, for all the dinner he would get, if he was not pretty sharp in his hunting.

He wades into the water (he belongs to the family of Waders;) then he goes on to stir up the mud with his feet, and frighten the little fellows out of their mud houses. Not having hands, he needs something to catch them when they are out, so he just lays his head down by the side of his feet, top down, and uses his open mouth for a "market basket!"—Isn't that the funniest basket you ever heard of? It would not seem so odd to you if you could see the bill, for it is as big as all the rest of his head, and shaped more like a canoe than anything else. So it does very well for a basket.

He looks very droll in that position, and it is no wonder the first men who saw him standing that way thought he stood on his head.

This bird—did I tell you?—is the Flamingo, and you could see him any day if you lived on any of our Southern lakes or rivers—that is, you could if you were very quiet, for he is extremely shy, and will keep out of your way if he can. They go in flocks, and some of the sharp eyes are sure to spy a hunter. But they are not afraid of cattle, and so men dress themselves in the skin of an animal to hunt for them.

He is well worth seeing, too. He's no dull-coated fellow, hopping about on two dumpy legs; by no means! He wears a whole suit of the most brilliant rose-color, and he stands up gracefully on two long, slender legs. His body is elegant—as I said—and his neck is as long as his legs, and he is four or five feet high.

Mamma Flamingo makes a curious nest. It is a sort of small hill of mud, a little scooped out on top. There she lays her two or three white eggs, and there she sits—like any old hen, only she can't curl her long legs under her, as a hen can, so she lets them hang down outside.

The babies are droll little dull-coated fellows, and do not attain to the dignity of red suits till they are two years old.

In old times Flamingoes were eaten, and thought to be very nice, especially the tongue, and I have read of emperors who kept quite an army of men for nothing but to hunt the unfortunate birds, that they might have their tongues for their tables.

Now-a-days we think Flamingo meat has a marshy taste, and we prefer ducks and turkeys for our tables. So he is hunted only for his beauty, to adorn museums and bird collections.

He is called Flamingo from his bright color, but he is said, in the big books, to belong to the Palmidactyle family. He has this graceful name merely because his three front toes are united by a wide skin—something as a duck's toes are—and his one hind toe is very small or absent entirely.

Skipping the Hard Points.

Boys, I want to ask you how you think a conqueror would make out, who went through a country he was trying to subdue, and whenever he found a fort hard to take, left it alone. Don't you think the enemy would buzz wild there, like bees in a hive, and when he was well into the heart of the country, don't you fancy they would swarm out and harass him terribly?

Just so, I want you to remember, will it be with you. If you skip over the hard places in your lessons, and leave them unlearned, you have left an enemy in the rear that will not fail to harass you, and mortify you times without number.

"There was just a little bit of my Latin I hadn't read," said a vexed student to me, "and it was just there the professor had to call upon me at examination. There were just two or three examples I had passed over, and one of those I was asked to do on the blackboard."

The student who is not thorough is never well at his ease; he cannot forget the skipped problems; and the consciousness of his deficiencies makes him nervous and anxious.

Never laugh at the slow, plodding student; the time will surely come when the laugh will be turned. It takes time to be thorough, but it more than pays. Resolve, when you take up a new study, that you will go through with it like a successful conqueror, taking every strong point.

If the inaccurate scholar's difficulties closed with his school life it might not be so great a matter for his future career. But he has chained to himself a rabbit that will be like an iron ball at his heel all the rest of his life. Whatever he does will be lacking somewhere. He has learned to shirk what is hard, and the habit will grow with years. Now, nothing we get in this life is to be had for nothing. Success is not thrust upon a man. If you want any good you must work for it. The eye that never falters and the nerve that never quails are the true elements of victory in the mental and moral, as well as the physical world. Don't skip the hard points.—School Day Visitor.

The Farm and Garden.

Commercial Value of Peanuts.

On this subject the California Rural Press says:

"The culture of peanuts in California is every year extending, at a large profit over the cost of production, simply as a nut to be eaten in the theaters and rail cars by the boyish element, and by almost everybody else when and where they can get a good chance; and though agreeable and valuable as an article of food in all countries, yet their greatest value lies in the oil they contain. It is easy of extraction, and is equal to the olive or almond oil for every purpose for which these oils are used; and in many parts of the world it is sold for pure olive oil, and is fully equal to it for all alimentary purposes. It is said to keep a longer time without becoming rancid than any other vegetable oil; and as an illuminating oil it gives a superior light. If cold-pressed, under favorable conditions, it yields a large per centage of oil; but if heated before pressure the quantity of oil is increased, but its fine flavor is somewhat impaired as a table oil. The hotter the climate the larger the per cent. of oil. The nuts, after being roasted and ground fine, are also an excellent substitute for chocolate, and large quantities are used in tropical countries for that purpose."

A Florida correspondent of one of our exchanges gives the following as his mode of culture of this valuable but much neglected crop:

"The peanut is very easily cultivated, and is a very profitable crop to grow for feeding purposes; it is the best feed for hogs that I know of, and will fatten them quicker than any other feed. I generally turn my hogs in the peanut field and let them root for themselves. Hogs that are fattened on them, however, have to be put up in a pen and fed on corn about a week or ten days, in order to harden the flesh, as the peanut makes the fat only; but it is the sweetest meat that we have.

"I plant the peanut when I plow my corn the second time, in the corn rows; or, better still, I lay off my corn rows about seven feet apart, and at the second plowing of my corn lay off a row between the rows of corn and plant my peanuts, so that when I plow my corn the third time I plow the peanuts; then, just as they begin to blossom, I give them a good hoeing, and that is all that is required. I plant the peanuts about one and a half feet apart in the drill. It does not require rich soil to grow them; our poorest, thinnest land suits them best, and they improve the land more than anything I know of; for, after I dig what I want for seed, I turn in my hogs, and they root up the ground to find the nuts. Thus the land gets a thorough breaking up and the vines are turned under by the hogs; and the next spring they are rotted, and the ground is in fine condition to plant again. Thus I can improve my land more and more each year, and still cultivate it.

"The vines also make the best of long forage for horses and cattle; for by pulling the vines when the nuts are ripe, and allowing them to cure in the sun one day, and then stack or house them, you have a fine supply of forage—better than hay or fodder, and relished much more by the stock."

Stacking Grain.

Bad stacking is the cause of most of the really damaged grain in the market. To stack well, follow these directions: Lay your stack on as level ground as it is possible to find, say on the top of a little hill, which top is generally flat. Commence in the middle, setting up the bundles as for a "shock;" build all around until you get as large a bottom as is desired. Now commence on the outside layers, having the butts of the bundles even with the bottom, or a little further out if the grain is damp. When this row is formed, lay the second with the butts four to six inches of the bands of the first row, and so on until you get filled up. If you find the middle getting too full, lay them in a little further. Here let me caution all against filling up the middle of the stack with loose or broken bundles. If you have such, bind them up or lay them on the outside, for the middle of the stack must be solid. Don't walk any further toward the outside of the stack than is really necessary. When you come to topping out the stack, be careful to keep the middle well filled up, and the outside as even as you can; but, mind you, don't get as much as one bundle with the heads the lowest. If such places occur, lay some bundles on the inside, filling up the hollow before laying the outside ones, for one bundle pitching the wrong way often lets in a great deal of water. In finishing, when you have no more middle to fill, keep in the center, laying a bundle wherever the butt will be the lowest, until completely topped out. Force a long, nicely-trimmed stake down well into the stack to keep the wind from blowing off the top.—R. S., in Prairie Farmer.

PECANS AND ENGLISH WALNUTS.—We have often urged upon our readers the great profit of a pecan grove; and we now advise, in addition, the planting of the English walnut. It is a native of Persia, and succeeds best in Southern latitudes. It was brought to Europe about three hundred years ago, and thence to the Eastern States of this country, where it flourishes tolerably well. The tree grows large and the timber is valuable. It bears abundantly of the choicest nuts, no kind being of a richer flavor. The tree is said to be a success in California.—Southern Farmer.

TO KEEP IRISH POTATOES.—Dust over the floor of the bin with lime; put in about six or seven inches deep of potatoes, and dust with lime as before. Put in six or seven inches of potatoes, and lime again, and repeat the operation till all are stowed away. One bushel of lime will do for forty bushels of potatoes, though more will not hurt them, the lime rather improving the flavor than otherwise. Put up in this way, they will keep for years.

HARDWARE, STOVES, ETC.

KURSHEEDT & BIENVENU,
IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN
Plantation and Builders' Hardware,
MARBLE, MARBLEIZED SLATE AND IRON MANTLES,
Grates, Hearths and Fire Bricks,
NO. 114 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
my2 1y

THE UNRIVALED

BUCK'S BRILLIANT STOVE.
Every Brilliant is Fully Guaranteed.
H. HALLER,
No. 49 Camp street, New Orleans,
Sole Agent for Louisiana.

Sole Agent for the
CELEBRATED RINGEN WASHER,
In the States of Louisiana, Texas and Mississippi. oc19 1y

GROCERIES—GLASSWARE.

PURE LOUISIANA
SUGAR, MOLASSES AND SIRUPS.

REFINED SUGAR.—Cut Loaf, Crushed and Powdered,
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

GOLDEN SIRUP.—A superior article of pure Louisiana, from the Crescent City Refinery. A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

REFINED SIRUP AND MOLASSES.—Crescent City Refinery, Orleans, Louisiana. Chalmette and Pelican brands.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

LOUISIANA MOLASSES.—Various grades of Plantation, in barrels, half barrels and kegs. A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

CLARIFIED SUGAR.—Various grades of White and Yellow, in hogsheads and barrels.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

LOUISIANA SUGAR.—Various grades of Plantation, in hogsheads and barrels.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

FOREIGN SUGAR.—Cuba, Demerara and Porto Rico, in hogsheads and boxes.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
my9 6m 48 Tchoupitoulas street.

W. C. SHEPARD & CO.,
—IMPORTERS OF—
CHINA, CROCKERY AND GLASS,
55.....CAMP STREET.....55
New Orleans.

Country dealers supplied with ASSORTED CRATES or from SHELF upon the most favorable terms.

Contents of our English Iron Stone China Dinner Set, No. 1:

12 Dinner Plates,	1 Round Soup Tureen,
12 Breakfast Plates,	1 Sauce Boat,
12 Tea Plates,	1 Salad,
12 Soup Plates,	2 Pint Covered Dishes,
12 Preserve Plates,	2 Vegetable Dishes,
12 Butter Plates,	2 Pickle Dishes,
12 Tea cups and saucers,	4 Meat Dishes.

112 pieces best English Ware.....$15

Our Stone China Dinner and Tea Set, No. 2, contains

158 pieces.....$25

Our French China Dinner Set, No. 1, contains

12 Dinner Plates,	4 Meat Dishes,
12 Breakfast Plates,	1 Soup Tureen, round,
12 Tea Plates,	2 Covered Dishes, oval
12 Soup Plates,	1 Sauce Boat,
12 Preserve Plates,	1 Salad,
12 Tea cups and saucers,	2 Pickles,
12 Butter Plates,	2 Vegetable Dishes,

112 pieces best French Ware.....$30

Our French China Dinner Set, No. 2, contains

166 pieces.....$45

Our French China Dinner Set, No. 3, contains

255 pieces.....$65

A large variety of the best SELF-SEALING FRUIT JARS always on hand.
Sole agents for the celebrated BLANCHARD CHURN. The best churn made.
The most complete stock of HOUSE-FURNISHING GOODS in the South.
W. C. SHEPARD & CO.,
ap1 6m No. 55 Camp st., New Orleans.

IMPORTANT TO PLANTERS.

IRON COTTON TIES.

THE ARROW TIE. AND ALL OPEN-SLOT TIES.

All approved popular Patents:
ARROW,
ANCHOR,
WALLIS,
ALLIGATOR
AND DUNN.
For sale by all dealers in New Orleans, Mobile and Memphis, and by country merchants generally throughout the Cotton States.
BARTLETT & RAYNE,
General Agents,
48 Carondelet street, cor. Union,
my30 6m New Orleans.

Readville Seminary for Young Ladies,
BATON ROUGE, LOUISIANA.

ESTABLISHED IN 1843.—Incorporated in 1859. New buildings. Full corps of teachers. All the appliances of a first-class institution. For catalogues address
MRS. MARY W. READ, Principal,
au29 3m Baton Rouge, La.

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

CENTENARY COLLEGE,
JACKSON, LOUISIANA.

THE NEXT TERM OF THIS VENERABLE INSTITUTION OPENS ON THE FIRST MONDAY IN OCTOBER, 1872.

FACULTY.

Rev. C. G. ANDREWS, A. M., President, and Professor of Mental and Moral Science, Political Economy and International Law.
Rev. A. R. HOLCOMBE, A. M., Professor of Mathematics and Adjunct Professor of Natural Science.
G. H. WILEY, A. M., Professor of Ancient and Modern Languages.
T. S. JONES, M. D., Professor of Natural Science.
———, Principal of the Preparatory Department.

CHARGES.

Tuition, per session of forty weeks, in College.....$60 00
Tuition, per session of forty weeks, in Preparatory Department.....40 00
Contingent expenses.....5 00

A matriculation fee of $5 must be paid on entering any regular college class. One-half the charges must be paid when the student enters; the other half on the beginning of the second term, March 1.

BOARD.

Board, including lodging, washing, lights and fuel, can be had in the best of families for $20 per month. Day-boarding with the same families, $14 per month. Rooms provided in the dormitories free of rent. Board to be paid in advance at least one month.

LOCATION.

This institution is located in the lovely village of Jackson, about twelve miles from Bayou Sara, in a grove of pine, magnolia, oak and beech. The location is remarkable for its beautiful woodlands, its bland and delightful atmosphere, its pure water, its unrivaled healthfulness, and its cultivated and refined society.

WHEN FOUNDED.

The college was established by the State of Louisiana in 1825, and ceded to the Methodist Episcopal Church South in 1845.

ALUMNI.

Its Alumni numbers 203, and they are to be found in the most honorable and useful stations in the land.

APPARATUS AND CABINET.

The college possesses a valuable set of Philosophical, Astronomical and Chemical Apparatus, and also a well-selected Mineralogical and Geological Cabinet. The apparatus includes a Theodolite, Sextant, Compass, Chronometer, Atwood's Machine, Whirling Tables, Electrical Machine, Air Pump, various combinations of the Mechanical Powers, Batteries, Chemical Tests, etc., sufficient for a thorough and extended course of observations and experiments. Steps have been taken by the Board of Trustees to put these in thorough repair.

LITERARY SOCIETIES.

There are two regular Literary Societies connected with the institution. These are of great utility to young men acquiring a liberal education—improving them in the art of public speaking, making them in some degree familiar with the proceedings of deliberative bodies, and in cultivating systematic business habits. Each Society has a convenient hall and a well selected library—about 1,600 volumes each, which, added to the College Library of 2,000 volumes, makes over 5,000 volumes in the college.

BUILDINGS.

The Trustees are determined to continue the repairs on the buildings till completed. The grand Center Building is a noble specimen of architectural beauty and adaptation to the purposes of its erection. The wings, built of solid brick, present each a front of two hundred feet, with upper and lower galleries the entire length, supported by Tuscan columns, and with the center making in the perspective a continuous front of 700 feet.

PREPARATORY DEPARTMENT.

In the Preparatory Department students are fitted for regular college classes, or may obtain a thorough English or commercial education.
ITS FACULTY are men of experience and success in teaching.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES.

Rev. Bishop J. C. KEENER, D. D., President, New Orleans.

Rev. J. A. Godfrey, Clinton.	Hon. A. K. Farrar, Adams county, Miss.
Hon. John McVea, Clinton.	Hon. Edward J. Gay, parish of Iberville.
Hon. and Rev. Jas. H. Muse, St. Helena par.	Samuel J. Norwood, Esq., Shreveport La.
Hon. Edward McGehee, Woodville, Miss.	C. G. McGehee, Esq., Wilkinson co., Miss.
Hon. E. T. Merrick, New Orleans.	Rev. W. H. Watkins, D. D., Natchez, Miss.
Prof. W. H. N. Magruder, Baton Rouge.	Rev. W. G. Millsaps, Jefferson county, Miss.
Rev. John C. Miller, Jackson.	Rev. J. A. H. Jones, Port Gibson, Miss.
Rev. R. J. Harp, New Orleans.	Rev. John A. Ellis, Meridian, Miss.
Hon. J. O. Fuqua, Baton Rouge.	B. H. Moss, M. D., New Orleans.
T. F. Collins, Esq., East Feliciana.	Josiah D. Nettles, Esq., E. Baton Rouge, La.
Rev. J. L. Forsythe, Jackson.	Wilmot H. Goodale, Esq., Baton Rouge.
Rev. L. Parker, D. D., New Orleans.	Rev. C. G. Andrews, Jackson, La.
D. C. Hardee, Esq., Clinton.	Rev. A. E. Goodwyn, Baton Rouge, La.

THE BEST ROUTE to the college is to leave the Mississippi river at Port Hudson, take the Clinton and Port Hudson railroad to Midway station, report to Captain F. J. Haynes as a student for Centenary, and he will convey you to the college, a distance of seven miles, for one dollar and a half for single passengers, or one dollar each where several are together. Address
au1 6m C. G. ANDREWS, President, Jackson, La.

Whitworth Female College,
AT BROOKHAVEN, MISS.

THE CONTINUED SUCCESS OF THIS INstitution is one of the best evidences of its merits. During the past term there were in attendance two hundred and twenty-nine pupils.
The members of the Faculty eleven in number are selected on account of their ability to teach.
PROF. LICHTENSTEIN, Music Director, has new rooms.
Madame JULIUS, a Parisian lady of eighteen years' successful experience as a teacher, has been engaged to take charge of the French and Ornamental Department.
The very best care is taken of our pupils, both as to health and manners. Fires are provided for all.
No extravagance in dress is allowed.
The good health of Brookhaven is proverbial. Pupils from the miasmatic regions of Louisiana and Mississippi find this as healthful a school as can be found anywhere.
The charges are believed to be lower than in any school in the Southwest where similar advantages are afforded. Only from $230 to $265 for all expenses, excepting music, French and the ornamental branches.
No expense is spared in purchasing the most approved apparatus, maps, charts, etc., and all necessary school furniture.
Brookhaven is located on the New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern Railroad, 125 miles from the city.
Catalogues sent free on application to au1 6m REV. H. F. JOHNSON Prest.

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE,
AT BATON ROUGE, LOUISIANA

THE EXERCISES OF THIS SCHOOL will be resumed on Wednesday, the Second of October next.
For circulars, with all necessary information, apply to Rev. R. J. Harp, 112 Camp street, New Orleans, or to myself, at Baton Rouge, Louisiana.
au1 6m W. H. N. MAGRUDER.

MANSFIELD FEMALE COLLEGE,
Mansfield, DeSoto Parish, La.

THIS INSTITUTION, ENTERING UPON its Eighteenth Year, well supplied with Apparatus and other educational aids, and employing the most approved methods of instruction and government, will commence its Fall Session for 1872 on WEDNESDAY, the Twenty-fifth day of September, with a full corps of accomplished Teachers. For catalogues, with all particulars, address
CHARLES B. STUART,
au8 2m President.

Wesleyan Female College,
MACON, GEORGIA.

THE THIRTY-FIFTH ANNUAL SESSION will begin OCTOBER 7, 1872.
For catalogues, containing full information, address
REV. E. H. MYERS, D. D., President, or
C. W. SMITH,
au15 2m Secretary of Faculty.

ATHENS FEMALE INSTITUTE,
AT ATHENS, ALABAMA,

IS UNDER THE PATRONAGE OF THE North Alabama Conference. The next session will open on
The First Monday in September.
Our arrangements are all complete. A corps of able Teachers, a full course of study, thorough drilling and strict discipline have secured us gratifying success.
Board and tuition in Literary Department, one year, $210.
REV. J. M. WRIGHT, President.
au8 2m

EMORY AND HENRY COLLEGE,
VIRGINIA.

THE FALL SESSION of this institution begins on the FIFTEENTH OF AUGUST next. One Hundred and Fifteen Dollars will pay all the necessary expenses of a five month session, including board, tuition, fuel, room-rent, washing and contingent fees. Payments are required in advance, except for board, which is $18 per month, and payable monthly in advance. If you will consult the Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and her ministers generally, our alumni and students, or the professors of the University of Virginia, who have authorized this reference, you will be assured that we are offering excellent opportunities for a thorough collegiate training, surrounded by healthful, moral, religious influences. If you desire a catalogue, or any additional information, address
E. E. WILEY, President,
Je20 4m Emory P. O., Virginia.

TUSKALOOSA FEMALE COLLEGE,
TUSKALOOSA, ALABAMA.

THE NEXT SESSION OPENS SEPTEMBER 23, 1872.
The beautiful and healthy city of Tuskaloosa, Alabama, is unsurpassed as a location.
The Faculty will consist of three Professors and eight or ten Lady Assistants.
Course of study thorough. Domestic arrangements complete. Young ladies' sleeping apartments elegantly furnished and carpeted. Health department includes a finely-conducted Gymnasium. This College is believed to be equal to the best in the United States, and the cheapest in the South. Special advantages for orphan children whose guardians wish to furnish them a home and school in one. For particulars and catalogue address the proprietor.
REV. B. F. LARRABEE.
Jy18 3m Tuskaloosa, Alabama.

HOMER COLLEGE.

THE SCHOLASTIC EXERCISES OF THE Thirteenth Annual Term of Homer College begin on the First Tuesday of SEPTEMBER next, 1872.
Tuition at the rate of $5 per month. Board from $12 to $15 per month.
Students received in regular classes only, and to the end of a session.
A Preparatory Department, under competent management, is attached to the college. Tuition, $4 to $5 per month.
For further particulars address
REV. J. E. COBB,
President Homer College, La.
By order of the Board.
W. F. MORELAND,
Pres. Board of Trustees. au22 3m

Huntsville Female College,
HUNTSVILLE, ALABAMA.

NINETEENTH SESSION BEGINS SEPTEMBER 4, 1872. Eight Departments; four male, eleven lady teachers and officers; splendid parlor outfit; new furniture; gas, water, heating, bathing fixtures; grounds and scenery charming; climate delightful; health unrivaled; course liberal; Music (piano, organ, zithern, guitar, violin) by eminent professors and teachers; native French teacher; calisthenics free; art cheap. Board and English tuition per annum, $250.
REV. GEO. W. F. PRICE, President,
Late President Tuskegee Female College
se5 1m

MUSICAL BOXES,

PLAYING FROM ONE TO ONE HUNdred airs, and costing from $2.50 to $3,000. All sizes, styles and prices. Send stamp for catalogue.
MAGIC LANTERNS,
specially for Sunday schools, lectures, etc. A priced and illustrated catalogue sent on receipt of stamp.
W. MITCHELL McALLISTER,
au29 3m 728 Chestnut st., Phila.

MISCELLANEOUS.

IMPROVED

EAGLE COTTON GINS.

THE GREAT POPULARITY of the EAGLE COTTON GINS is established from the well-known fact that they are the most reliable, strongest and best built Cotton Gins ever made. The Eagle Cotton Gin runs lighter than any other gin, thus having a great advantage for planters who wish to run by horse power. All the numerous planters who use the Eagle Cotton Gin will certify to the fact that when their cotton is sent to market it always brings the highest market price, as no other gin can produce a finer or a better sample of cottou than the Eagle Cotton Gins. Over seventeen thousand of the Eagle Cotton Gins have been made and sold. During a period of twenty years, the undersigned has had the agency of the Eagle Cotton Gin in New Orleans. He has never had a gin returned or rejected out of the immense number sold. The saw cylinders of all the Eagle Cotton Gins are twelve inches in diameter, which is two inches larger than most other kinds of gins, thus giving our forty-saw gin more teeth, and they are more than equal to the fifty-saw gins of other makers, who use only a ten-inch cylinder, and the same great advantage of the twelve inch cylinder in larger sized gins can be easily estimated. Planters who wish a reliable cotton gin, with an established reputation, can purchase an Eagle Cotton Gin with a certainty that they are not making an untried experiment, but will obtain a cotton gin which is indorsed by the oldest and largest planters in the country as the best in use. A large stock of the Eagle Cotton Gins are always kept on sale in New Orleans, ready for immediate shipment. Planters should be particular to state if they want right or left-hand motion gins.

PRICES.

40-Saw Gin.....	$200	65-Saw Gin.....	$325
45-Saw Gin.....	225	70-Saw Gin.....	350
50-Saw Gin.....	250	75-Saw Gin.....	375
55-Saw Gin.....	275	80-Saw Gin.....	400
60-Saw Gin.....	300

All orders should be addressed to
W. L. CUSHING,
No. 61 St. Charles street;
Sole Agent for the Southern States.
Agents wanted. jy4 3m

BIGGEST COMMISSIONS

on Standard Works for all Prominent Benevolent Organizations, 10 to 60 per cent. Masonic, Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias Red Men, Mechanics, Temperance etc. Sale unrivaled by anything heretofore offered. Agents with no experience are selling 20 Pictures and upward a day. One of our agents has cleared over $1,200 in three months. The Brethren welcome these works. Our inducements are UNPRECEDENTED Our commissions are positively one-fourth larger than any other house does or CAN offer. Send for circular of Order to which you belong, giving No. of your Lodge, and state where you saw this advertisement. You will certainly engage with us.

J. HALE POWERS & CO.,
Fraternity Publishers,
my9 7m Cincinnati Ohio.

AGENTS WANTED IN EVERY TOWNship of the United States to sell my

New County United States Map,

STATE MAPS, RELIGIOUS CHARTS,

LITHOGRAPHIC PRINTS, ETC.

Greater Inducements are offered to Agents this season than ever before. Our new plan for the sale of the County United States Map guarantees success

Catalogues sent free of charge. Address
GAYLORD WATSON, Publisher,
16 Beekman st., New York, or
D. NEEDHAM,
Watson's Chicago Branch,
se26 1m 659 Wabash ave., Chicago, Ill.

HOMEOPATHIC DOMESTIC MEDICINE.

BY LAURIE & McCLATCHEY.—FIRST American from the Twenty-first English edition. 1,037 Pages Octavo Price, $5.

This is the most complete work on Domestic Practice in the English language. Twenty-one thousand copies are now in circulation in England and in this country. Two full editions sold within less than twelve months.

A full set of Remedies (103 vials.) in a solid Mahogany case, will be furnished for $12. Book and case will be sent, carefully packed, to any address, on receipt of $17

Address BOERICKE & TAFEL,
Homeopathic Pharmaceutical and Medical Publishing House,
145 Grand st., New York.
☞ Established in 1835 jy11 3m

JOHN GIBSON,

ENGRAVER
AND
Steam Power Lithographic Printer,
83 BEEKMAN ST., NEW YORK.

Checks, Notes, Drafts, Receipts, Bonds, Certificates of Stock and Deposit, Bill, Letter and Note Headings Business Cards, Envelopes, Druggists' Fancy and Perfumery Labels, etc. Druggists wishing Labels, send for Catalogue. le 7 1y

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY
Established in 1837.

Superior Bells for Churches Schools, etc., of Pure Copper and Tin, fully warranted, and mounted with our Latest Improved Rotary Hangings, the best in use.
Illustrated Catalogue sent free
VANDUZEN & TIFT,
102 & 104 E. Second St., Cincinnati
le22 1y

WM. PHILLIPS, UNION STABLES, 180 Calliope, near St. Charles street, has every accommodation in the line of Pleasure and Family Carriages, such as hacks, brettes, phaetons, buggies, etc, for the use of the public, and at rates to correspond with the stringency of the times. All hacking done below tariff rates. Orders for weddings, balls, picnics, races, etc, will be attended to so as to guarantee satisfaction. I am also prepared to hire vehicles (alone) to parties having their own horses. de14 1y

BINGHAM HOUSE, PHILADELPHIA,
Corner of Eleventh and Market Sts.
CARLIS DAVIS, PROPRIETOR.

This popular Hotel being centrally located and accessible by street cars from all depots, makes it a desirable stopping place for travelers. It will be conducted in the same liberal manner as heretofore, it being the intention of the proprietor to maintain the reputation it has always enjoyed, of being in all respects a first-class hotel.

Terms, $3 a day. ap8 1y

SMITH, ENGLISH & CO.,
BOOKSELLERS AND IMPORTERS,
(ESPECIALLY OF THEOLOGICAL BOOKS.)
No. 710 Arch street, Philadelphia.
☞ S., E. & Co. have on hand the best and most complete assortment of THEOLOGICAL BOOKS for sale in the country. Send for Complete Classified Catalogue, 25 cents, or with Alphabetical Index 50 cents—the best guide to purchasers in this department ever published. au15 2m

COMMISSION MERCHANTS.

PRICE, HINE & TUPPER,
General Commission Merchants,
FACTORS, AND
Agents of Attakapas Mail Transportation Co.,
NO. 26 CARONDELET STREET,
NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Advances made on consignments to T. Tupper & Sons, Charleston, S. C.; Williams, Hirnle & Co., and Leverich & Co., New York. no1 1y

W. H. SUTTON. J. R. POWELL.
SUTTON & POWELL,
COTTON FACTORS
AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
186..... COMMON STREET 186
NEW ORLEANS, LA.
se21 1y

H. F. GIVEN. LUCIEN J. DOIZE.
H. F. GIVEN & CO.,
COTTON, TOBACCO AND SUGAR FACTORS,
—AND—
GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
No. 64 Baronne street, New Orleans.
oc5 1y

ANDREW J. AIKEN. JOHN W. WATT.
AIKEN & WATT,
Cotton Factors and Commission Merchants.
60.....CARONDELET STREET..... 60
NEW ORLEANS.

Special attention given to orders for the purchase of all descriptions of Produce, Agricultural Implements and Plantation Supplies. no2 1y

J. L. DUNNICA, New Orleans. T. A. HAMILTON, Memphis.
G. P. HANAISON, New Orleans.
J. L. DUNNICA & CO.,
FLOUR, PRODUCE AND PROVISION
COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
50.....TCHOUPITOULAS ST. 50
NEW ORLEANS, LOUISIANA
oc22 1y

J. U. PAYNE. W. H. DAMERON. H. M. PAYNE
PAYNE, DAMERON & CO.,
COTTON FACTORS,
64 & 66...BARONNE STREET...64 & 66
Between Union and Gravier streets,
NEW ORLEANS, LA
le19 1y

C. L. WALMSLEY & CO.,
Cotton Factors and General Commission Merchants,
31..... PERDIDO STREET 31
oc3 1y NEW ORLEANS.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

G. W. RACE. W. H. FOSTER. E. T. MERRICK, Former Pt. Jus. La
RACE, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK,
Attorneys, Counselors and Solicitors
Cor. of Camp street and Commercial Place,
se25 NEW ORLEANS.

W. W. EDWARDS,
COUNSELOR AT LAW
AND
COMMISSIONER OF DEEDS,
No. 88 Common street,
se14 1y New Orleans.

DR. JOHN G. ANGELL,
DENTAL SURGEON,
152.....JULIA STREET.....152
All operations in Operative, Mechanical and Surgical Dentistry carefully performed
Nitrous Oxide and other Anæsthetics administered. no30 1y

DR. C. J. BICKHAM,
Office—680 Magazine Street,
Between Philip and First sts., New Orleans.
Will call daily at College building, corner Common and Baronne streets, between eleven and twelve o'clock. le29 1y

Relief for the Sick and Afflicted.

SOUTHERN HEPATIC PILLS.

Unsurpassed for the cure of Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint and all other Bilious diseases. Call on MRS. GEO. W DEEMS, No 28 South Calhoun street, Baltimore, Maryland. Explanatory circulars sent on application. For sale by E. J. HART & CO., se12 3m 73 Tchoupitoulas st., New Orleans.

OCEAN SPRINGS.
Summer Resort.—Board at the Seaside.

THE SUBSCRIBER has taken the MORRIS HOUSE, at Ocean Springs, which has just undergone a thorough repair, and will be open to boarders who wish to enjoy a pleasant home, good bathing, fresh sea air, and luxuriate on fish and oysters during the heat of summer.

Terms for board: $10 per month, $30 per week, and $2 per day. Apply to the subscriber by mail, at Ocean Springs.

Refer to Bishop Keener, Rev. Robert J Harp, J. L. Dunnica & Co., and Samuel Russ, Esq., New Orleans.

WM. C. CHAMBERLIN.
April 20, 1872. ap25 1f

Carpet and Oil Cloth Warehouse.

J. M. ELKIN. F. STRINGER
ELKIN & CO.,
168.....CANAL STREET.....168
Near Baronne, New Orleans,
IMPORTERS OF ALL VARIETIES OF ENGLISH CARPETINGS, RUGS, Etc.
—ALSO—
Oil Cloths, Mattings,
Lace and Damask Curtains,
Window Shades, etc.,
—AND A—
Complete Assortment of Upholstery Goods.
le8 1y

WATER.
The Records of Tests
AT LOWELL, MASS., PROVE
N. F. BURNHAM'S
New Turbine

superior to all others. It gave a higher percentage than any other wheel of common finish. Pamphlet and Price List by N. F. BURNHAM, York, Pa. ap15 6m

EXCHANGE HOTEL,
JOHN SUMMERS, PROPRIETOR,
GALVESTON, TEXAS.
☞ This is the only Hotel in the city which has FREE OMNIBUSES to and from the cars and boats for the use of guests. Ask for Exchange Hotel Omnibus. feb1 1y

BUSINESS CARDS.

YOUR CUSTOM SOLICITED BY
R. F. W. HACHMAN,
DEALER IN BOOTS AND SHOES,
No. 18 Camp Street,
Under City Hotel, New Orleans.
Made expressly for the first-class retail Family and Plantation trade. se10 6m

E. HEATH. M. LARA. J. P. HEATH.
HEATH, LARA & HEATH,
IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN
UPHOLSTERERS' MATERIALS,
WALL PAPER, WINDOW SHADES,
CORNICES AND CURTAIN GOODS,
Pictures, Frames, Moldings, Looking Glasses and Clocks,
NO. 99 CAMP STREET,
no16 1y NEW ORLEANS.

THE MITCHELL & RAMMELSBERG
FURNITURE COMPANY,
Manufacturers and dealers in all kinds of
Furniture, Mattresses, Looking Glasses,
ETC., ETC.,
103 and 105 Camp street, cor. Poydras.
Moresque Building, New Orleans,
have the largest and best assortment of FURNITURE of any house in the city.
Please give us a call before purchasing elsewhere. my23 1y

A. B. GRISWOLD & CO.,
CANAL ST., COR. ROYAL, NEW ORLEANS.
IMPORTERS OF
WATCHES, JEWELRY, CLOCKS,
PLATED WARE, HOUSEKEEPING GOODS,
Cutlery, Guns, Pistols, Bronzes, Porcelain and Fancy Goods.
MANUFACTURERS OF
PURE COIN SILVERWARE.
Watches and Jewelry carefully repaired. Every article sold fully guaranteed.
no23 1y

J. THOMSON. G. THOMSON. W. B. THOMSON.
J. THOMSON & BROS.,

Manufacturers of
Carriages, Barouches, Buggies, Phaetons,
SPRING WAGONS, Etc.
68 and 70 Rampart Street,
Bet. Common and Gravier, New Orleans, La.
Repairing done in all its branches. no10 1y

LOUISIANA STEAM
SASH, BLIND AND DOOR FACTORY,
ROBERTS & CO., PROPRIETORS,
301, 303, 305 and 307 Gravier Street,
NEW ORLEANS. my30 1y

JAMES McCRACKEN. GEO. E. BREWSTER.
McCRACKEN & BREWSTER,
DEALERS IN FURNITURE,
Nos. 37, 39 and 41 Royal street.
Manufactory, corner Derbigny and Customhouse streets, New Orleans. my9 6m

JOHN L. ADAMS & CO., (JOHN L. ADAMS, JAY L. ADAMS, GEO. W. WEST, WM. H. RENAUD,) WHOLESALE GROCERS,
AND DEALERS IN
PROVISIONS, LARD, OILS, ETC., ETC.,
43, 45 and 47 Peters street,
(Formerly New Levee,)
mh21 1y NEW ORLEANS.

ELON O. SMITH. J. L. CHEATHAM.
J. W. OSAUGHON.
SMITH, CHEATHAM & CO.,
(SUCCESSORS TO ELON O. SMITH & CO.)
PORK PACKERS,
Provision and Commission Merchants,
CORNER THIRD AND SPRUCE STREETS,
SAINT LOUIS.
We solicit orders from the trade for goods in our line. oc26 1y

O. SAMPSON. P. G. SAMPSON.
SAMPSON BROTHERS,
(Late C. C. Sampson,)
FURNITURE,
33 & 35 ROYAL STREET.....33 & 35
NEW ORLEANS.
Established in 1833. ja11 1y

Carpet Warehouse—17 Chartres Street.
A. BROUSSEAU & CO.,
Importers and dealers, at Wholesale and Retail, in English and American Carpetings,
Floor Oil Cloths, Table and Enameled Oil Cloths,
Window Shades, Table and Piano Covers,
Crumb Cloths, in squares or pieces,
Curtain and Furniture Materials,
Brocatelles, Cotelines, Terries, Reps, Lace and Nottingham Lace Curtains, Haircloth Ticking, Springs, Burlaps, Stop Covers, etc.
no21 1y A. BROUSSEAU & CO.

T. H. McMAHAN & CO.,
BANKERS,
And Dealers in Foreign and Domestic Exchange,
GALVESTON, TEXAS.
We have prompt and reliable correspondents at all the principal points throughout this State, and upon all collections payable in this city or Houston make no charge for collecting, and only actual charge upon interior collections.
Immediate and prompt attention given to all business intrusted to us. feb1 1y

RICHARD BRODERICK,
CISTERN MAKER,
134.....Julia street 132
Bet. Camp and Magazine, New Orleans.
Second hand Cisterns always on hand. All work guaranteed.
All orders left at Box 30, Mechanics' and Dealers' Exchange, will meet with prompt attention. my2 1y

E. VEAZIE,
74.....Camp street.....74
NEW ORLEANS, LA.,
LAMPS AND OILS, CHANDELIERS,
Globes, Chimneys, Shades, Trimmers, Wicks, Cans, Fillers, etc.
PRATTS' ASTRAL OIL, non-explosive and non-inflammable. ja18 1y

R. H. NOBLE. J. S. WOODS.
NOBLE & WOODS,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL GROCERS,
Nos. 9 and 11 Delta street, and 10 and 12 Front street,
ja18 1y NEW ORLEANS, LA.

JOHN D. MACLIN, (Late R. D. Maclin.) L. C. MACLIN,
COAL! WOOD! COAL!
Pittsburg, Anthracite and Cannel Coal, Oak, Ash and Pine Wood, at the lowest market rates, delivered to any part of the city.
Offices—26 Carondelet street, and corner of Third and Tchoupitoulas. mh7 1y

MENEELY'S BELLS.

THE genuine Troy Church Bells known to the public since 1826, which have acquired a reputation unequaled by any, and a sale exceeding that of all others—including more than seventy chimes and peals. One thousand testimonials received during the last six years. Every Bell made of best Copper and Tin, and formally warranted. New Patent Rotary Fixtures. Catalogues free. No agencies.

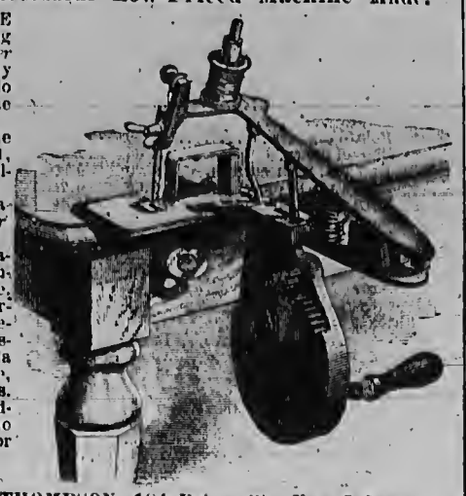
Post office address, either TROY or WEST TROY, New York.
je18 1y E. A. & G. B. MENEELY.

THE BECKWITH SEWING MACHINE.

PATENTED APRIL 10, 1871.

PRICE, $10, including Hemmer, Guide, four Needles, Bottle of Oil and Can

The First and Only Successful Low-Priced Machine Made.



PRACTICAL, DURABLE, SIMPLE and Beautiful. Capable of making by hand upward of 800 Stitches per Minute and there is very little Family Sewing that this machine will not do as well as a $75 machine, and some work it will do better.

It is well and strongly made of the best material, but compact and light, and takes up but little room. Nickel-plated throughout.

Its SIMPLICITY adapts it to all capabilities. Every machine is fully warranted for Two Years.

Full directions for running the machine, hemming, tucking, hem stitching, etc., accompany every machine.

Parties in the city wishing to purchase a machine can see one in operation at Mrs. Robertson's, dressmaker, corner of Camp and Julia streets, up stairs, over the cigar store, and where they can leave their orders.

Single machines sent to any address, carefully boxed, with all the equipments, on receipt of $10. For full particulars send for circular.

Address
EDWARD THOMPSON, 184 Peters St., New Orleans,
☞ Energetic Agents Wanted. (je27 6m) Agent of the Manufacturer.

"Southern Books for Southern Schools."

School-Books which are Unsectional, Unpartisan, and Unpolitical.

PREPARED BY THE MOST EMINENT SOUTHERN SCHOLARS, AND

ENTIRELY ACCEPTABLE TO SOUTHERN TEACHERS AND PARENTS.

The University Publishing Co.,

An Association composed of many of the most eminent citizens of the several Southern States, feeling the necessity for a series of School Books which should be entirely unsectional, unpartisan, and unpolitical, and in their teaching should not be offensive to the thought and feeling of the Southern people—which should present only the facts of history and science—are now issuing a complete series of School and College Text-books and educators named below, which are the

Cheapest, Best, and Most Beautiful School-Books

Now published. The "University Series" embraces

MAURY'S GEOGRAPHICAL SERIES,

By Commodore M. F. Maury, of the Virginia Military Institute. A series of books which mark an era in the study of this science, and which, in the words of a well known and accomplished Southern teacher, "are characterized by a felicity of arrangement and simple freshness of style which must ever render them attractive to the young, and which will be used by all who wish to teach Geography as a science, as something to make pupils think, and not merely as an enumeration of dry facts."

Holmes' Readers and Spellers,

By GEORGE F. HOLMES, M.D., Professor of History and General Literature in the University of Virginia. A series of Readers unequalled in cheapness, excellence, and typographical beauty. They are steadily progressive in character, bright and fresh in their selections of prose and verse, and illustrative of Southern scenes, incidents, and history.

Venable's Arithmetical Series,

By CHARLES S. VENABLE, LL.D., Professor of Mathematics in the University of Virginia. These books are received everywhere by intelligent teachers with the highest satisfaction, as being most admirably adapted for mental drill, as well as for business education. Their methods, rules, and reasonings are clear, distinct, logical, and comprehensive, and the series is carefully graded throughout

Holmes' History of the United States,

By GEORGE F. HOLMES, LL.D., of the University of Virginia. It is enough to say of this admirable work, interesting, impartial, and truthful, as well as pure and graceful in style, that it is the only History of the United States which is acceptable to Southern teachers and parents. It comes down to the present date.

THE "UNIVERSITY SERIES" OF SCHOOL-BOOKS

COMPRISES, ALSO,

De Vere's French Grammar, Readers, etc.,

By M. SCHELE DE VERE, LL.D., Professor of Modern Languages in the University of Va

Gildersleeve's Latin Series,

By B. L. GILDERSLEEVE, Ph.D., LL.D., of the University of Virginia

Carter's Elements of General History,

By Rev. J. P. CARTER, A.M., of Baltimore, Maryland.

Holmes' English Grammars,

By GEORGE F. HOLMES, LL.D., of the University of Virginia

LeConte's Scientific Series,

By the Professors LECONTE, late of the University of South Carolina.

Johnston's English Classics,

By R. M. JOHNSTON, A.M., late Professor of Rhetoric and Belles-Lettres in the University of Georgia.

To which list other books in other departments will early be added.

Send for our full ILLUSTRATED DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE, which will be mailed free to any teacher or school officer. Liberal terms given for introduction.

Address
UNIVERSITY PUBLISHING COMPANY,
155 and 157 Crosby Street, New York.

☞ A full supply of "The University Series" always on hand, and teachers and schools supplied by R. J. HARP, Bookseller, 112 Camp St., New Orleans.
And by all prominent booksellers throughout the South.
W. IRVING CLARKE, the General Agent, will furnish any information, and afford every facility to teachers for examining the series. Office—92 CAMP ST., New Orleans. mh7 1y

ARMSTRONG, CATOR & CO.,
IMPORTERS AND MANUFACTURERS OF
Ribbons, Millinery and Straw Goods,
WHITE GOODS, LINEN LACE AND EMBROIDERY,
Nos. 237 and 239 Baltimore Street,
BALTIMORE, MARYLAND.
Orders promptly attended to se5 3m

ST. CLAIR HOTEL,
BALTIMORE, MARYLAND.
This new and beautiful Hotel is now open to the public. It is located on MONUMENT SQUARE, convenient alike to the business man and the tourist. It is the only hotel in Baltimore embracing elevator, suits of rooms with baths, and all other conveniences
To accommodate Merchants, Commercial Travelers and others, the rates will be $2 per day for rooms on the fourth and fifth floors, making the difference on account of the elevation. Ordinary transient rates for lower rooms, $3 per day.
Guests desiring to take advantage of the above rates will please notify the clerk before rooms are assigned. An improved elevator for the use of the guests is constantly running from six A. M. until eleven P. M. se5 2m HARRY H. FOGGE, Manager.

AGENTS WANTED—for the Lives of
Grant Greeley
WILSON BROWN and the leading men of all parties. Over 40 Steel Portraits, worth twice the cost of the book. Wanted everywhere. Agents have wonderful success. Send for circular. Address
ZIEGLER & McCURDY,
au15 2m 503 N. Sixth st., St. Louis, Mo.

WIRE RAILING AND ORNAMENTAL WIRE WORKS.
DUFUR & CO.,
No. 36 North Howard St., Baltimore, manufacture Wire Railing for Cemeteries, Balconies, etc.; Sieves, Fenders, Cages, Sand and Coal Screens, Woven Wire, etc. Also Iron Bedsteads, Chairs, etc. se5 1y

SAVE $20.

THE NEW WILSON UNDER-FEED.
The Best and Cheapest First-class Shuttle SEWING MACHINE In the World.
Agents Wanted. Wm GREGG & CO. General Southern Agents, No. 183 Canal street, New Orleans, La. je27 6m

AGENTS WANTED TO SELL THE ILLUSTRATED
HISTORY OF THE BIBLE
By Wm. SMITH, LL.D.
AUTHOR OF SMITH'S BIBLE DICTIONARY.

It contains 214 fine Scripture Illustrations and over 1,100 pages, and is the most comprehensive and valuable History of the Bible ever published. The labor and learning of centuries are garnered in this one volume and throw a strong, clear light upon every page of the inspired Word.

Send for circulars, and see our terms and a full description of the work. Address
NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO.,
274 and 276 Second street,
au1 6m Memphis, Tenn.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

THE BEST SUNDAY SCHOOL MUSIC book will be ready October 1, 1872.

PURE DIAMONDS.

BY JAMES R. MURRAY.

A new Sunday School Music Book, which we predict will become the most popular work of the kind ever published in America. Specimen pages are now ready, and will be sent free to any address.

PURE DIAMONDS will be issued in elegant style, printed on fine white paper, and substantially bound in boards. It will be ready promptly on the first of October, when orders will be filled in rotation. As the demand will be very large, all wishing specimen copies, or an early supply, should send in their orders at once.

PRICE.—Bound in boards, 35 cents; $3.60 per dozen; $30 per hundred. A copy in paper covers, for examination, mailed on receipt of 25 cents. Published by
S. BRAINARD'S SONS,
au22 1y Cleveland Ohio.

NEW AND POPULAR BOOKS.

LABBERTON'S HISTORICAL ATLAS, containing a Chronological Series of One Hundred Colored Maps, illustrating successive periods, from the Dawn of History to the Present Day. By Prof. Robert H. Labberton, Ph. D., author of "Outlines of History," etc. Oblong quarto, cloth, $3.50.

"These maps abound in excellencies which exhibit the thorough scholarship, and the ingenuity and appreciation of the needs of students which distinguish all Labberton's works."—The Nation.

50th Thousand, Revised and Corrected.

TRAUTWINE'S CIVIL ENGINEER'S POCKETBOOK.—By John C. Trautwine, Civil Engineer. Illustrated with 6.0 engravings from original designs. 16mo, 648 pages, morocco. Tucks (pocketbook form.) Gilt edges, $5.

"We do not hesitate to say, from a large experience in the use of works of this class, that it is the best pocketbook for the civil engineer that has ever appeared."—American Railway Times, Boston.

THE DICTIONARY OF PHRASE AND FABLE Giving the Derivation, Source or Origin of Common Phrases, Allusions and Words that have a Tale to Tell By the Rev. E. Cobham Brewer, LL. B., of Trinity Hall, Cambridge. Crown 8vo, 1,011 pages. $3.50.

"The book is a wise old grandfather, who knows almost anything."—Every Saturday.

For sale by booksellers generally, or sent by mail on receipt of the price
CLAXTON, REMSEN & HAFFELFINGER,
au22 3m Philadelphia.

A POPULAR MUSIC BOOK!
AT A POPULAR PRICE!
"THE SCEPTER,"
By Dr. A. BROOKS EVERETT,
ONLY $1.00.—BY THE DOZEN, $10.50.

"THE SCEPTER" contains a large variety of most valuable material, embracing Hymn-tunes, Anthems, Glees, etc. "Everett System of Teaching Vocal Music," etc., by the well-known professor of music, Dr. A. BROOKS EVERETT, recognized throughout the Southern States as a most successful and popular teacher of the art of singing, as well as the author of many of the most popular tunes contained in the Tabor or Richmond Collection.

"THE SCEPTER"
also contains contributions by Profs. R. M. McIntosh, B. H. Everett and other well-known composers, as well as a large number of old standard tunes.

☞ Every Choir Leader and Teacher of Music should examine "THE SCEPTER."
Sent, post paid, on receipt of $1.

PUBLISHED BY
BIGLOW & MAIN, NEW YORK,
SUCCESSORS TO WM. B. BRADBURY,

Publishers of the most popular series of SUNDAY SCHOOL SONG BOOKS—Golden Chain, Shower and Censer, Fresh Laurels, Bright Jewels, Pure Gold, etc. For sale by Booksellers generally.

All publications of Biglow & Main are for sale by ROBT J. HARP, Agent, 112 Camp street, New Orleans jy18 3m

Uniform Lessons for 1872.

FOR TEACHERS.—The Sunday School World contains the explanations and studies prepared by Rev. John Hall, D. D., for teachers.

SCHOLARS' PAPER.—With the text of the lesson, and suggestive helps for the study of it; and questions at the foot of each page, to be answered in writing by the scholar.

INTERMEDIATE LESSON PAPER.—Adapted to the use of less advanced scholars, with questions and explanations.

Price of each Lesson Paper of four pages, at the rate of 75 cents per 100 copies for one month, or $9 per 100 copies yearly.

☞ Catalogues of the Society's publications and sample copies of its periodicals furnished gratuitously on application at the Depository of the
AMERICAN SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION,
au4 2m 1122 Chestnut st., Philadelphia.

AGENTS WANTED FOR SECRETS OF THE CONVENT AND CONFESSIONAL.
BY JULIA M'NAIR WRIGHT.

The most thrilling and powerful book ever written on this subject. It presents a startling array of facts, and contains revelations never before made public.

Send for circulars and terms to
NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO.,
274 and 276 Second street,
au1 6m Memphis, Tenn.

HAVE YOU READ
MARK TWAIN'S
NEW BOOK?

The whole world is anxious for it, and every person who has read it is known by the cheerful look. 75,000 pre-sold in 30 days, and eight presses running night and day can't supply the demand. Nothing like her known before.

AGENTS WANTED—Send for circulars, terms, &c. Address NETTLETON & CO., 180 West Fourth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.
se28 1

☞ In this charming book the author has practically unfolded the plans whereby every one of ordinary expense, may have a flower garden of the choicest, indoors and out.

GARDENING BY MYSELF.
BY ANNA WARNER.

12mo. With Illustrations. $1 25.

Instruction for the various months of the year is given, and all that one wants to know is stated, without dry technicalities, and in a clear and simple style. There is not a home which even the children, with this little book in hand, might not make more attractive, while educating the heart to a love for the beautiful.

ANSON D. F. RANDOLPH & CO.,
770 Broadway, cor. of Ninth st., N. Y.
Sent by mail, prepaid, on receipt of the price. se 9 1m

FREE TO BOOK AGENTS

AN ELEGANTLY BOUND CANVASSING Book for the best and cheapest Family Bible ever published will be sent free of charge to any Book Agent. It contains nearly 500 fine Scripture illustrations, and agents are meeting with unprecedented success. Address, stating experience, etc., and we will show you what our agents are doing.
NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO.,
se6 1m Memphis, Tenn.

NEW ORLEANS MARKETS.

(From the New Orleans Price Current.)

The weather was rainy and unsettled on Sunday, since which it has been clear and cool. Our accounts from the country present no new feature, but from some districts they are more encouraging. Many of the letters from Mississippi, Arkansas and Louisiana indicate a decrease from the crop of 1870 of one-third to one-half.

The river is 13 feet 6 inches below high water mark.

COTTON.—The following are the arrivals since the twenty-seventh ultimo:

Louisiana and Mississippi.....bales..	10,755
Lake	53
Mobile	3,042
Texas	276
Total	14,126

On Saturday the demand was fair, with only a moderate supply, and, although the movement was checked by the stringent pretensions of factors, yet the sales were a little over 2,500 bales, the closing rates showing an improvement of ⅛c. in middling and the higher grades, while low middling and good ordinary ruled in favor of factors, without any quotable advance. Prices were strengthened by favorable telegrams from Liverpool. On Monday buyers again came forward with a fair degree of spirit, and factors were enabled to establish a further improvement of ⅛c., good ordinary closing at 17⅝@a. 18⅛c., low middling at 18¼@18⅝c., and middling at 18¾@18⅞c. Middling and the finer qualities were in special request but only limited supply. The sales summed up 2,400 bales. On Tuesday the market opened with a less active demand, and the business during the morning was at rather easier rates for the medium qualities, but full prices for the higher grades, while later in the day the former ruled still more in favor of buyers, while the latter continued steady. In several cases low middling was sold at figures ⅛c. less than would have been accepted on Monday. The movement was languid throughout the day, and the sales, as far as reported, summed up 1,800 bales, but may have amounted to more. Low middling sold at 18⅛, 18¼@18⅜c., strict low middling at 18⅝c., strict low middling to middling at the same, strict middling at 19⅛, 19¼@19⅜c., and good middling at 19½c. Operations were checked by high freights and discouraging dispatches from other American markets.

The receipts proper at this port, since the first of September (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida and Texas,) are 50,900 bales, against 17,509 bales to the same date last year, and the increase in the receipts at all the ports, up to the latest dates, as compared with last year, is 90,698 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries, as compared with the same date last year, there is an increase of 4,162 to France, and a decrease of 9,955 to Great Britain, and of 82 to other foreign ports.

We quote:

Good ordinary	17½ @ 18
Low middling	18 @ 18⅛
Middling	18½ @ 18⅝
Strict middling	18⅞ @ 19
Good middling	19½ @ —

COTTON STATEMENT.

Stock on hand Sept. 1, 1872, bales.		6,259
Arrived past three days..	14,126
Arrived previously	49,938 —	64,064
		70,323
Exported past three days.	10,213
Exported previously	15,402 —	25,615
Stock on hand and on shipboard..		44,708

SUGAR.—On Tuesday 205 hhds. Porto Rico sold in warehouse at 10⅝@11c. ₱ lb., taken for the city trade and on Western orders. City refinery is selling at 11⅝@12c. for yellow clarified, 12¾@13c. for white clarified, 13½c. for crushed, and 14⅛c. for cut loaf.

MOLASSES.—The market is bare of Louisiana. The last from plantation sold at 55c. ₱ gallon for reboiled. City refinery is selling at 40c. for common, 52c. for fair, 57c. for prime, and 62c. for choice.

CORN.—On Tuesday the supply was light in the absence of receipts, and prices were firm. The sales embraced 3,000 sacks on the landing, in lots, at 63c. for yellow and white mixed, and 65c. ₱ bushel for white, and 1,179 sacks inferior, from warehouse, on private terms.

OATS—Have continued in fair supply and moderate demand at previous prices. The sales on Saturday and Monday embraced 1,500 sacks at 40@44c. for prime on the landing, and 45c for choice in warehouse. On Tuesday the supply was fair and the demand limited. The sales were confined to 150 sacks prime St. Louis at 42c. ₱ bushel.

BRAN.—With light receipts and a good demand prices have advanced 5c. ₱ 100 lbs. since our last review. On Saturday 100 bags sold at $1.05, while on Monday 650 bags sold at $1.07½@1.10 ₱ 100 lbs. On Tuesday, there being no receipts, prices were firm, and 250 bags were sold at $1 10 ₱ 100 lbs.

PORK.—On Tuesday 80 and 100 bbls. mess sold at $15, 25 at $15.50, and 20 at $16 ₱ bbl. It is retailing at $15.50 @16 ₱ bbl.

BACON.—On Tuesday the sales embraced 400 casks, in lots, at 8½@8¾c. for shoulders, 11⅝@11¾c. for clear rib sides, and 12⅛@12½c. for clear sides, mostly 12½c. Shoulders are quoted at 8¼c., clear rib sides 11⅝@11¾c., and clear sides 12¼@12½c. ₱ lb.

DRY SALT MEAT.—The stock is small and held by dealers, who are retailing shoulders at 8½c. ₱ lb. On Saturday 20 casks shoulders sold at 8½c. and 10 do. at 8¼c. ₱ lb On Monday 12 casks shoulders sold at 8¼c. ₱ lb.

BREAKFAST BACON.—The market is in fair supply and dull at 14½@15c. ₱ lb for Western, and 13@14c. for Northern. On Monday 20 boxes Western sold at 15c. ₱ lb.

MONETARY.

Gold opened on Tuesday at 114@114⅛ (against 114 at New York,) and closed at 114¼@114½. (against 114½ at New York.)

In silver we noticed only a few trifling sales, including $1,000 in American half dollars, on Saturday, at 110½. American half dollars are now quoted at 109@110, and Mexican dollars nominally at 3@5 ₱ cent. premium in gold.

New Orleans Wholesale Prices.

REVISED AND CORRECTED WEEKLY.

Made up from Actual Sales as they Transpire.

ARTICLES.	FROM	TO
Agricultural Implements:
Cotton scrapers	4 50	6 00
Cotton sweeps	4 50	6 00
Cultivators, Diam. & shovel-tooth	7 75	10 50
Cultivators, riding	45 00	60 00
Cultivators, walking	30 00	35 00
Shovels	7 50	14 50
Spades	7 50	16 50
Axes	10 00	15 00
Potato diggers	13 50	— —
Shovel plows	6 00	7 00
Half do., with cutters	8 00	9 00
Manly's D. S plow	6 00	9 75
Corn mills, Coleman's	120 00	425 00
Bread, ₱ 100 lbs:
Pilot	6 00	7 00
Loaf	— —	— —
Crackers	6 00	16 00
Navy	— —	5 00
Cream crackers	12 00	13 00
Bricks, ₱ M:
Lake	13 00	16 00
English fire	— —	50 00
American fire	40 00	— —
Candles, ₱ lb:
Sperm, New Bedford	33	36
Tallow	16	18
Chocolate, ₱ lb:
Cocoa	38	60
No. 1	50	52
Sweet and spiced	25	— —
Cider, ₱ bbl:
Western	— —	— —
Coal, ₱ ton:
Anthracite	12 00	13 00
Western, ₱ bbl	— —	55
Corks, ₱ 1000:
Regular	— —	— —
Pointed	— —	— —
Coffee, ₱ lb:
Havana (currency)	30	32
Java	25	27
Cordova	— —	— —
Copper, ₱ lb:
Braziers'	48	— —
Copper bolts	48	— —
Yellow metal	30	32
Cordage, ₱ lb:
Manilla	19	20
Tarred, American	— —	16
Russian	16	— —
Cotton seed:
Rough, ₱ ton	— —	13 00
In sacks	— —	— —
Dyes, ₱ lb:
Logwood, Camp'y	4	4½
Logwood, St. Domingo	4½	4¾
Fustic, Tampico	5	6
Indigo, ₱ lb	1 40	1 60
Madder	15	18
Eggs, ₱ dozen:
Western	27	30
Feathers, ₱ lb	65	— —
Fish, ₱ box:
Cod	1 40	— —
Herrings	45	— —
Mackerel, No. 1, ₱ bbl	15 00	— —
Mackerel, No. 2	12 00	— —
Mackerel, No. 3	9 50	— —
Flaxseed, ₱ lb	6	— —
Flour, ₱ bbl:
Double extra	6 75	7 00
Superfine	5 25	— —
Fine	4 50	4 75
Fruit, ₱ lb:
Prunes	8½	13½
Currants, new	9	10
Almonds, soft shell	19½	— —
Almonds, shelled	— —	30
Glass, ₱ box of 50 feet:
French, 8 by 10	3 45	3 50
French, 10 by 12	3 60	3 65
French, 12 by 18	4 35	4 50
Gunny bags, ₱ bag	18	— —
Hay, ₱ ton:
Prime	25 00	25 50
Choice	26 00	— —
Iron, ₱ 100 lbs:
Pig	54 00	55 00
Country bar, ₱ lb	— —	— —
English	5½	7½
Swedes, assorted	6½	8½
Hoop	7	10½
Sheet	7½	8½
Boiler	7½	8½
Nail rods	— —	11
Castings, American	— —	6
Lead, ₱ 100 lbs:
Pig	— —	9 50
Bar, ₱ lb	8½	8¾
Sheet	12	— —
Pipe	12	— —
Leather, ₱ lb:
Sole, hemlock	33	34
Sole, oak	40	43
Harness	38	45
Calf skins, ₱ dozen	42 00	70 00
Texas, rough, ₱ lb	24	26
Lime, ₱ bbl:
Western	1 25	1 50
Cement	2 50	3 00
Plaster Paris	4 00	— —
Lumber, ₱ M feet:
Boards, yellow pine	13 00	15 00
Boards, cypress	25 00	30 00
Flooring, dressed	25 00	30 00
Flooring, rough	15 00	18 00
Ceiling, dressed	20 00	25 00
Weatherboards, dressed	18 00	20 00
Weatherboards, rough	13 00	15 00
Scantling	13 00	15 00
Shingles, ₱ M	3 50	4 25
Laths	2 50	3 00
Moss, ₱ lb:
Country picked	4½	6
Clean picked	6½	7
Nails, ₱ keg:
American, 4@6d	5 85	6 00
Wrought, German, ₱ lb	14	16
Wrought, English	14	16
Oils:
Lard, ₱ gallon	70	85
Coal oil, in barrels	27	29
Coal oil, in cases	32	35
Linseed, raw	95	98
Sperm	— —	2 00
Whale, refined	95	1 00
Cotton seed, crude	— —	46
Cotton seed, refined	60	65
Castor	1 65	1 85
Olive, 22@24 oz	6 00	6 50
Olive, 11@12 oz	7 25	— —
Tanner's, ₱ gallon	75	85
Soap, ₱ lb:
Western	5½	7
Northern	5½	7
Southern	4½	6½
Castile, genuine	12	— —
Castile, imitation	11	— —
Sardines:
Half boxes	34	35½
Quarter boxes	— —	23
Spices, ₱ lb:
Cassia	36	38
Cloves	— —	23
Nutmegs	1 20	1 25
Pepper	21	21½
Pimento	12	12½
Sugar, ₱ lb:
Havana, white	12	13
Havana, yellow	10½	11½
Havana, brown	10½	11¼
Crushed	— —	13½
Pulverized	— —	13½
Teas, ₱ lb:
Imperial	45	1 10
Gunpowder	75	1 50
Hyson	75	1 25
Young Hyson	75	1 10
Oolong	45	1 10
Pouchong	30	50
Tin, ₱ box:
Block	— —	— —
In plates, I. X	19 00	19 25
In plates, I. C	16 50	16 75
Leaded plates, I. X	17 25	17 50
Leaded plates, I. C	15 00	15 25

CATTLE MARKET.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 1, 1872.

Texas beeves, choice, ₱ head	$— —	@	50 00
Texas beeves, 1st qual, ₱ head	35 00	@	45 00
Texas cattle, 2d qual, ₱ head	20 00	@	25 00
Texas cattle, 3d qual, ₱ head	15 00	@	18 00
Western beeves, ₱ lb. net	— —	@	— —
Hogs, ₱ lb. gross	6	@	7½
Sheep, first quality, ₱ head	5 00	@	6 00
Sheep, second qual., ₱ head	3 00	@	4 00
Sheep, third quality, ₱ head	2 00	@	2 50
Milch cows, choice, ₱ head	80 00	@	100 00
Milch cows, ₱ head	50 00	@	80 00
Texas cows, with calves	— —	@	— —
Calves, ₱ head	7 00	@	10 00
Yearlings, ₱ head	5 00	@	12 00

Special Notices.

Appointments for Preaching in Selma District, Alabama Conference.

On my last Round I was printed as follows: Linden, Oct. 9, 10; Shiloh, Oct. 12, 13; Wesley chapel, Oct. 15; Air Mount, Oct. 16; Mt. Andrew, Oct. 18, 19, 20; Bashi, Nov. 1, 2, 3; Dayton, Nov 7, 8, 9, 10; McKinley, Nov. 12; Center chapel, Nov. 14, 15, 16, 17; Jackson, Nov. 22; Grove Hill, Nov. 23, 24; Union, Nov 26.

Bro. Wade will please meet me at Jackson. Bro Thames will meet me at Union church, and I will fill any appointments he may make up to his quarterly meeting. The first week in December I propose to spend at Gainestown.

Dear brethren, the Lord has thus far greatly blessed your labors in the conversion of many souls. Let us earnestly pray for his presence at these appointments, and for a greater outpouring of the Spirit upon us and our people; and to him be all the glory.

A. J. BRIGGS, P. E.

Wayne Circuit Camp Meeting.

All the preachers will find conveyance to the Wayne circuit camp meeting (to be held at Frost's Bridge on Thursday before the second Sunday in October,) at Shubuta and Waynesboro. JAMES SHANKS, P. C.

Camp Meeting—Change of Time.

There will be a camp meeting on the Paulding circuit, Meridian district, Mississippi Conference, twelve miles west of Enterprise, near the Enterprise and Mount Rose road, commencing on Thursday before and embracing the third Sabbath in October. The meeting will be conducted on the primitive style. Provision will be made for all ministers and persons living at a distance. Persons living within fifteen or twenty miles of the camp ground must not expect accommodations from the citizens or tent-holders. All ministers are respectfully invited and urged to attend. There will be conveyance for ministers at Enterprise on Thursday morning. J. H. HOLLAND, P. C.

Camp Meeting.

There will be a camp meeting at Old Salem camp ground, East Pascagoula circuit, Mississippi Conference, commencing on Thursday before the second Sabbath in October. The tenters propose furnishing visitors, however, there will be a public table for the benefit of those who prefer furnishing themselves. Charges moderate. Preachers are invited. C. F. GILLASPIE, P. E., U. B. PHILLIPS, P. C.

Camp Meeting.

We have appointed our camp meeting at Ellend, eight miles east of Clinton, Louisiana, to commence on Thursday night before the second Sunday in October. Ministers and friends of camp meetings are invited from a distance, and will be accommodated on the grounds free.

WILL. H. LEITH, Pastor.

Camp Meeting.

There will be a camp meeting, twelve miles east of Pleasant Hill, Natchitoches parish—known as Beulah camp ground—commencing on the eleventh of October, instead of the eleventh of September. R. PARVIN.

Camp Meeting.

A camp meeting will be held on Spring creek, thirty miles southwest of Alexandria, near Bari's ferry, on the road from mouth of Red river to the Sabine, and on the Opelousas and Natchitoches road, beginning on Friday, October 11. All ministers and all friends are earnestly requested to give us their attendance and assistance.

FRED. WHITE,
S. H COOPER.
C. KENNER.

Appointments for Quarterly Meetings.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

VICKSBURG DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND

Rocky Springs, at Beach Grove	Sept. 28, 29
North Warren, Mildale and Cane Ridge, at Oak Ridge	Oct. 5, 6
South Warren, at Bovina	12, 13
Cayuga, at Rives' chapel	19, 20
Port Gibson	26, 27
Clover Hill, at Clover Hill	Nov. 2, 3
Rolling Fork, at Rolling Fork	9, 10
Fayette, at Fayette	16, 17
Natchez	23, 24
Kingston, at Washington	30, Dec. 1
Vicksburg and City mission	Dec. 7, 8

JOHN A. B. JONES, P. E.,
Port Gibson, Miss.

JACKSON DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Sharon circuit, at Sharon	Oct. 5, 6
Yazoo circuit, at Locust Grove	12, 13
Yazoo City and Silver Creek, at Yazoo City	19, 20
Mount Olivet circuit and Yazoo mission, at Mount Olivet	26, 27
Carthage circuit	Nov. 2, 3
Sulphur Springs circuit	9, 10
Raymond circuit, at Raymond	16, 17
Brownsville ct., at Queen's Hill	24, 24
Camden and Thomastown circuits	30, Dec. 1

The secretaries of Church Conferences will please present the report of statistics, as required by the Discipline, pages 55 and 56. The trustees of our church property will please make their report, as required by the Discipline, pages 54 and 102.

H. H. MONTGOMERY, P. E.

SUMMIT DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Sacramental meeting, at Port Vilden	Oct. 12, 13
Holmesville circuit, at Holmesville	19, 20
Covington circuit, at Spring Hill	26, 27
Amite City circuit, at Amite City	Nov. 2, 3
Franklinton circuit, at Warner's	9, 10
Big Creek miss., at Shilling church	16, 17
St. Helena ct., at Center church	23, 24
Pontchatoula mission, at Joyner's church	30, Dec. 1
Greenburg ct., at Pipkin chapel	Dec. 7, 8

J. NICHOLSON, P. E.

BROOKHAVEN DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Scotland circuit, at Caseyville	Oct. 5, 6
Pleasant Valley ct., at Beheboth	12, 13
Burtonton circuit, at Pisgah	19, 20
Beauregard	26, 27
Georgetown ct., at Pleas't Grove	Nov. 2, 3
Jackson circuit, at Spring Ridge	9, 10
Crystal Springs and Crystal Spr'gs mission	16, 17
Bogue Chitto circuit, at Johnson's Station	23, 24
Brookhaven station and Brookhaven mission	30
Hazlehurst station	Dec. 7, 8

Secretaries of the respective Boards of Stewards will prepare a financial statement for the use of the Joint Board, as required by the Discipline. Trustees will report the condition and character of titles of all property they hold for the church.

W. E. M. LINFIELD, P. E.

BRANDON DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Hillsboro circuit	Oct. 5, 6
Philadelphia circuit	12, 13
Decatur mission	19, 20
Lake circuit	26, 27
Trenton circuit	Nov. 2, 3
Raleigh and Morton circuit	9, 10
Forest circuit	16, 17
Taylorville mission	23, 24
Garlandsville circuit	30, Dec 1
Brandon circuit	Dec. 7, 8

F. M. WILLIAMS, P. E.

WOODVILLE DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Woodville	Oct. 5, 6
East Feliciana	12, 13
Clinton	19, 20
Buffalo	26, 27
Bayou Sara	Nov. 2, 3
Wilkinson	9, 10
Meadville	16, 17
Amite	23, 24
East Baton Rouge	30, Dec. 1
Jackson	Dec. 8, 9

For four long weeks I have been confined to the room of my afflicted wife, so that I have missed three of my appointments; but my dear brother, President Andrews, has and will supply my lack of service.

J. L. FORSYTH, P. E.

MERIDIAN DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Enon, at New Hope camp meeting	Oct. 5, 6
Wayne circuit, at Frost's Bridge (camp meeting)	12, 13
Paulding circuit	19, 20
Enterprise station	26, 27
Clarke circuit	Nov. 2, 3
Enterprise ct., at Pleasant Valley	9, 10
Marion circuit	16, 17
Meridian station	30, Dec. 1

WM. B. HINES, P. E.

SEASHORE DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Green mission	Oct. 5, 6
East Pascagoula, at Salem camp ground	12, 13
Enon, at Enon	19, 20
Rankin	Nov. 30, Dec. 1

C. F. GILLASPIE, P. E.

ALABAMA CONFERENCE.

DEMOPOLIS DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Cuba, at Cuba	Oct. 12, 13
Gainesville, at Gainesville	19, 20
Forkland, at Forkland	26, 27
Demopolis	Nov. 2, 3
Butler, at Mount Sterling	9, 10
Gaston, at Bethel	16, 17
Bladen Springs, at Bethel	23, 24

Preachers in charge will please have ready full statistical reports; stewards will make faithful efforts to bring up their finances, so as to meet the assessments; and trustees will be ready to give a clear statement of the condition of the property in their charges.

S. H. COX, P. E.

MOBILE DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Grand Bay mission, at Pleasant Valley	Oct. 5, 6
Citronelle circuit, at Citronelle	19, 20
St. Stephen's ct., at Pine Grove	26, 27
Franklin street	Nov. 2, 3
Pollard circuit, at Hendrick's	9, 10
Milton	16, 17
Pensacola	23, 24
St. Francis street	Dec. 1

The stewards, trustees and preachers will be ready with their reports, as the Discipline requires. They will please read and refresh their memories. H. URQUHART, P. E.

EUFAULA DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Eufaula	Oct. 5, 6
Vilula	12, 13
Glennville	19, 20
Beulah	26, 27
Enon and Midway	Nov. 2, 3
Perote	9, 10
Clayton and Louisville	16, 17
Choctawhachie	23, 24
Lawrenceville	30, Dec. 1
Chunnanachie	Dec. 7, 8

JAS. L. COTTEN, P. E.

SELMA DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Selma station	Oct. 5, 6
Rembert Hills circuit, at Shiloh	12, 13
Peachtree ct., at Mount Andrew	19, 20
Summerfield station	26, 27
Choctaw Corner circuit, at Bashi	Nov. 2, 3
Dayton and Spring Hill circuit, at Dayton	9, 10
Linden and Flatwoods mission	—, —
Quirville circuit, at Center chapel	16, 17
Jackson circuit, at Grove Hill	23, 24
Suggsville circuit, at Gainstown	30, Dec. 1

We hope for a full attendance, and complete reports, as required by the Discipline. Those who have subscribed to the district parsonage will please bring or send up their contributions to the quarterly meetings.

A. J. BRIGGS, P. E.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

ALEXANDRIA DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Centerville mission	Oct. 19, 20
Columbia circuit	26, 27
Spring Creek and Bayou Bœuf cts.	Nov. 2, 3
Trinity, at White Ridge	9, 10
Evergreen and Big Cane	16, 17
Atlanta	23, 24
Rapides circuit	30, Dec. 1

FRED. WHITE, P. E.

LAKE PROVIDENCE DIS.—FOURTH ROUND

Westley and Jordan, at Westley	Oct. 19, 20
Waterproof, at Waterproof	26, 27
Oak Ridge and Prairie Mer Rouge	Nov. 2, 3
Lake Providence, at Lake Providence	7, 10
Oak Grove, at Smith's chapel	16, 17
Floyd and Delhi, at Floyd	23, 24
Libb Grove, at Bartholomew	30, Dec. 1
Sicily Island, at Sicily Island	Dec 7, 8
Winnsboro, at Magnolia	14, 15
Bayville, at New Salem	21, 22
Bastrop, at Bastrop	28, 29

The brethren will please remember that this is the fourth and last quarter. Boards of stewards will please be prepared for a full settlement of all financial obligations. Boards of trustees will be prepared to make their annual report. Pastors will be prepared with full quarterly and statistical reports.

J. T. DAVIS, P. E.

OPELOUSAS DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Lake Charles	Oct. 5, 6
Calcasieu	12, 13
Sugartown	19, 20
Bayou Bœuf	26, 27
Kimball chapel	Nov. 2, 3
Vermilionville	9, 10
Abbeville	16, 17
New Iberia	23, 24

B. F. WHITE, P. E.
Postoffice—Opelousas, La.

SHREVEPORT DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Manny circuit, at Bayou Lee	Oct. 5, 6
Anacoco circuit, at Natchitoches	12, 13
Shreveport	19, 20

JOHN PIPER, P. E.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

YAZOO DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Attala circuit, at Pleasant Hill	Oct. 5, 6
Winona circuit, at Bethesda	12, 13
Greenwood and McNutt, at Greenwood	19, 20
Lexington	26, 27
Durant, at West's station	Nov. 2, 3
Koseiusko and Bethel, at Koseiko	9, 10
Black Hawk, at Sweetwater	16, 17

W. P BARTON, P. E.

N. B.—Camp meetings at Liberty and Durant quarterly meetings.

G. W. W. GOODWYN,
52 Gravier St., near Tchoupitoulas,
DEALER IN
STOVES AND TINWARE.

Among his assortment of Cooking Stoves he invites special attention to the COTTAGE and THE BEST, as being unsurpassed by any Cooking Stoves in this market. They have all the modern improvements, are perfect bakers, and, without extra charge, are adapted for burning wood, coke or coal, and guaranteed to give satisfaction.

HEATING STOVES.—He has various styles of these on sale. Is agent also for the NEW BALTIMORE FIRE-PLACE HEATER, the most perfect, cheerful and economical Heater in use; will heat from one to a half dozen or more rooms at a cost, for coal, of twenty-five cents per day.

TINWARE.—In this line he keeps constantly on hand a full assortment of plain Tin and Japanned Ware

(With the above, Rev. P. M. Goodwyn, a superannuate of the Louisiana Conference.)
se26 6m

FALL WORK FOR AGENTS!
"UP THE HEIGHTS OF
FAME AND FORTUNE,
"And the Routes Taken by the Climbers to Become Men of Mark."

This is the title of our splendid new octavo, 700 pages of most instructive reading, bristling with facts and alive with fresh interest, to be ready shortly. Exclusive territory given; name district you desire, and state experience in business. Send $1 for prospectus-book. Write at once for descriptive circular to WM. H. MOORE & CO.,
se5 9t Publishers, Cincinnati.

DRY GOODS—CLOTHING.

D. H. HOLMES,

155.....CANAL STREET.....155

—AND—

15.....BOURBON STREET.....15

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALER

—IN—

ALL DESCRIPTIONS

—OF—

DRY GOODS,

—SUCH AS—

SILKS, TISSUES, EMBROIDERIES, LACES, SHAWLS, CLOAKS, MADE SUITS, ETC.

The attention of the public is respectfully called to our stock, which will be found most complete, embracing every kind of Fancy and Staple Goods.

ap25 6m

W. H. PIERSON. E. L. HEWS.
PIERSON & HEWS,
DEALERS IN
Fine Clothing & Furnishing Goods,
NOS. 13 AND 15 CAMP STREET,
NEW ORLEANS, LA.
feb15 1y

STEAMSHIPS.

FOR NEW YORK.

The Cromwell New York and New Orleans Steamship Line.

Steamers of this Line leave New Orleans for New York EVERY SATURDAY at 5 P. M.

Cabin passage.....$50 00
Steerage passage.....25 00

Through bills of lading to foreign and coastwise ports issued.

ALFRED MOULTON,
mh21 1y 41 Carondelet street.

FOR NEW YORK.

MERCHANTS' STEAMSHIP LINE.

Sailing from New York and New Orleans EVERY SATURDAY.

Cabin passage.....$50 00
Steerage passage.....25 00

Through tickets to Liverpool and the Continent.

New Orleans wharf, foot of Jefferson street.
New York wharf, Pier No. 4, North river.

JOHN H. LUDWIGSEN, Agent,
feb8 1y No. 190 Common street.

MISCELLANEOUS.

LOOK TO YOUR CHILDREN.

The Great Soothing Remedy!

MRS. WHITCOMB'S SIRUP. { Cures Colic and Griping in the Bowels, and Inflamation of the process of Teething. } Subdues Convulsions and overcomes all diseases incident to Infants and Children. } PRICE, 25 CENTS.

MRS. WHITCOMB'S SIRUP. { Cures Diarrhea, Dysentery and Summer Complaint in Children of all ages. }

Relieves pain, weakness or exhaustion in 15 or 20 minutes, giving tone and power to the system. } PRICE, 25 CENTS.

It is the Infants' and Children's great Soothing Remedy in all disorders arising out of or dependent upon teething or any other cause.

Be particular to call for MRS. WHITCOMB'S SIRUP, and take no other.

Prepared by the GRAFTON MEDICINE CO., St. Louis, Mo. Sold by druggists and dealers in medicine everywhere. jy25 1yeow

BUY ME AND I'LL DO YOU GOOD

DR. HENRY'S ROOT & PLANT PILLS.

By cleansing the blood and arousing the liver and secretive organs to a healthy action, Dr. Henry's Root and Plant Pills cure many complaints which it would not be supposed they could reach, such as Headache, Pain in the Side, Numbness of the Hands and Feet, Dullness, Chilliness, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Loss of Appetite, Bilious Dysentery, Kidney Affections, Constipation, Debility, Fevers of all kinds, Dyspepsia, Jaundice, and other kindred complaints arising from a low state of the body or obstruction of its functions.

Being free from mercury and other poisons, they can be taken at all times and under all circumstances, without regard to diet, business or pleasure.

They stimulate the weakened and disordered parts into healthy action, giving them strength to disburden themselves and throw off the obstructions which are the first cause of disease, without producing either nausea or griping.

All heavy and drowsy sensations, which are the forerunners of direful diseases, such as Apoplexy, Paralytic Strokes, etc., are effectually warded off by a few doses of these searching Pills.

Full directions around each box, in English, German, French and Spanish. Price, 25 Cents a Box.

Prepared by the GRAFTON MEDICINE CO., St. Louis, Mo. Sold by druggists and dealers in medicine everywhere. jy25 1yeow

$5 TO $20 per Day.—Agents Wanted. All classes of working people, of either sex, young or old, make more money at work for us in their spare moments, or all the time, than at anything else. Particulars free. Address G. STINSON & CO., se12 1y Portland, Maine.

MEDICAL.

DR. D. JAYNE'S ALTERATIVE

WILL

BUILD UP THE SYSTEM,

PURIFY THE BLOOD,

AND

EXCITE THE ABSORBENTS TO

HEALTHY ACTION.

DR. D. JAYNE'S ALTERATIVE

IS A STANDARD MEDICINE:

a compound of those articles which long experience has proven to possess the most safe and efficient alterative and deobstruent properties, and containing no concealed poisons, no mercurial or other metallic preparations. Having before us the testimonials of thousands of persons who have been restored to sound health from its use, it is recommended to the afflicted with entire confidence as to its ability to effectually eradicate from the human system the diseases for whose cure it is designed.

For Purifying the Blood

the Alterative will be found to be a most effective medicine. Acting directly on the circulation, it purifies the blood, and passes with it into every tissue and fiber of the body, removing every particle of disease from the system.

FOR SCROFULA IN ALL ITS FORMS,

whether Ulcerations of the Flesh or Bones, Enlargement of the Joints, Glands, Swellings, Eruptions, Tumors, etc., the Alterative has been found pre-eminently successful. By its action on the blood it destroys the virus or poisonous principle from which these diseases originate.

FOR SKIN DISEASES,

the immediate cause of which will always be found to be an obstructed state of the pores, JAYNE'S ALTERATIVE is a certain remedy. It not only removes the obstinate state of the pores, but it frees the blood and perspiration from all impurities and gross particles, which are so liable to obstruct the small perspiratory organs.

All Dr. D. Jayne & Son's Family Medicines are sold by our Agents in New Orleans,

E. J. HART & Co., 73 Tchoupitoulas st.,

and by Druggists and Dealers everywhere.
se5 2m

MRS. M. G. BROWN'S

CELEBRATED

POOR RICHARD'S

EYE-WATER

derives its name from Benjamin Franklin's Almanac, which is immortal for its philosophical sayings, one of which is: "An ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure."

Giving the Eyes a cross, morning and night, of

POOR RICHARD'S EYE-WATER

would prevent every disease which attacks the human body, thus lengthening life to an indefinite period.

The Body is of the Earth, and the Eye is a Plant, which requires moisture.

The dust received into the eyes daily works itself into mortar, which clogs the machinery of the head, and closes up the eight thousand tubes and glands around the eyes; the balls contract and sink; they grow to the socket, and consequently the revolving power is impeded. This is what causes the bloodstreaks, the dark greenish color of the balls, and sears.

When the eyes are neglected the entire machinery of the face becomes distorted; even the countenance as changed. How true "The light of the body is the eye." It is as necessary to give the eye moisture as any plant of the field.

Language fails to make known the salutary effects upon the entire mental and physical machinery arising from giving the eyes a drink of POOR RICHARD'S EYE-WATER, morning and night; also the fearful consequence of neglecting so to do from the cradle to the grave.

POOR RICHARD'S EYE-WATER
Prevents Catarrh.

POOR RICHARD'S EYE-WATER
Cures Catarrh,
Opens the 8,000 tubes and glands in the head,
Prevents tightness and pains in the head,
Opens and keeps open the mucous membrane,
Removes phlegm from throat and chest.

POOR RICHARD'S EYE-WATER
Removes Wrinkles and Blotches,
Gives large, sparkling eyes,
Gives a clear, smooth complexion,
Lifts sunken eyes,
Strengthens weak eyes.

PO

The Christian Advocate.

PUBLISHED BY ROBT. J. HARP, FOR THE ALABAMA, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES, METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH SOUTH.

VOL. XVIII. NEW ORLEANS, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 10, 1872. NO. 41.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

DOMESTIC.

Little Rock, Oct. 2.—A full Liberal State ticket was nominated—three Republicans, the balance Democrats.

Andrew Hunter, Democrat, was nominated for Governor.

San Francisco, Oct. 2.—The newspapers generally denounce the acquittal of Mrs. Fair as a mockery of justice.

A three seconds' shock of earthquake was felt here this morning.

Knoxville, Oct. 3.—Three passenger coaches on the mail train going west, on the Georgia railroad, fell through a trestle, three miles west of Greenville, this morning. One brakeman was killed, seven persons seriously and twenty slightly injured.

New York, Oct. 3.—Francis Leiber, a well-known publicist, is dead.

New York, Oct. 4.—At a meeting of the American Bible Society today five new auxiliaries were recognized in the States of South Carolina, Georgia, Kansas, Tennessee and Minnesota.

New York, Oct. 5.—At a meeting held last night, at the Union League Club rooms, a committee of twenty-nine was appointed to take measures to have the products of this country suitably represented at the Vienna Exposition.

It is rumored that at a meeting of the Baptist Association, which is to take place in a few days on Long Island, the Rev. S. K. Hyatt Smith and George F. Pentecost, of Brooklyn, will be put on trial for radicalism on the subject of "open communion." Smith's views have caused a great deal of interest among the Baptists.

Atlanta, Oct. 5.—The official reports of ninety-nine counties show a majority for Smith (Democrat) of forty-six thousand and thirteen. One hundred and twenty-nine Democrats and six Radicals are so far reported elected as representatives.

New York, Oct. 6.—The Times' special from Knoxville, Tennessee, says that serious troubles are apprehended between the authorities of Georgia and United States marshals.

Governor Smith has instructed General Wofford, the receiver of the Alabama and Chattanooga railroad, not to surrender the road to Judge Haralson, Lewis and Rice, the receivers appointed by Associate Justice Bradley, of the United States Supreme Court. Marshals have already arrested the sheriff of Dade county, and further trouble is apprehended.

Eighteen Capuchin friars, expelled by the Guatemala government, sailed yesterday for Europe.

New York, Oct. 7.—The Cuban steamer Virginius has escaped from Puerto Cabello.

San Francisco, Oct. 7.—Three companies of soldiers, supported by friendly Indians, killed forty and wounded and captured many refractory savages in Arizona.

The diamond fields are pronounced a fraud by returning miners.

Washington, Oct. 8.—General C. C. Walcott, chairman of the Republican Ohio State Central Committee, telegraphs that the State is safe for fifteen thousand Republican majority.

The President has received a dispatch from Hitchcock that Nebraska has undoubtedly gone Republican.

Chipman, Republican, is elected delegate from the District of Columbia by a heavy majority.

Washington, Oct. 9, 4.30 A. M.—The best opinion places the Republican majority in Pennsylvania at fifteen thousand. The Republicans claim the State by twenty to thirty thousand majority.

Indianapolis, Oct. 9, 4 A. M.—Returns from forty townships in several counties show a net Republican gain of between seven and eight hundred. The result on the State ticket is still very doubtful. Both parties claim the State by a small majority.

FOREIGN.

Paris, Oct. 2.—The departures from Alsace and Lorraine of the inhabitants who decline German citizenship are upon an immense scale. It is estimated that eighty-eight thousand persons emigrating from Alsace will take up their residence in Nancy alone, while large numbers will go to other places.

Eighteen thousand persons have left Metz in the last fortnight to seek homes under the French jurisdiction. The population of that city numbers now only ten thousand persons.

Madrid, Oct. 2.—A dispatch from the town of Escurial, twenty-four miles northwest of this city, announces that the celebrated monastery of the Escurial was struck by lightning this evening. The building was quickly on fire, and so rapid was the progress of the devouring element that the dome and tower of the magnificent edifice have already fallen. The royal palace, with its splendid library of books, paintings and rare and costly manuscripts, is now in flames, and at the date of this there is little prospect of saving from destruction the mausoleum, as well as the summer residence of the Spanish kings. A brigade of engineers, fully equipped with material for use in such emergencies, left Madrid for the Escurial.

London, Oct. 2.—A dispatch from Melbourne, September 11, says the overland telegraph line has been completed.

Paris, Oct. 3.—It is rumored that President Thiers intends, at the next session of the Assembly, to urge the Conservative deputies to support a proposition for the definite establishment, by proclamation, of a permanent republic, based on strictly Conservative principles.

It is also stated that Casimir Perier is now using his influence with the right center of the Assembly to bring it to accept the president's views.

Vienna, Oct. 4.—General Von Schweinitz, German embassador at Vienna, was married to-day to Miss Jay, the daughter of Hon. James Jay, American minister to Austria.

Madrid, Oct. 4.—The government has determined to send fourteen thousand men to reinforce the army in Cuba.

Information reached Madrid at a late hour last night that the fire in the Escurial had been extinguished. Two of the towers and a portion of the roofing had been destroyed. The amount of damage is estimated at three million reals.

All valuable objects, which it was thought would perish in the conflagration, were reported to be safe.

London, Oct. 5.—The Paris correspondent of the New York Times telegraphs that the Russian embassador in that city has received a note from Taneiffe, secretary of the Emperor's Privy Council, withdrawing the congratulations which the Emperor had ordered to President Thiers, and expressing the dissatisfaction of Russia at the aggressive attitude of the Radical party of France.

Paris, Oct. 7.—The Journal Official to-day announces the appointment of the French supreme council of war, the members of which are Marshal McMahon, Marshal Canrobert, General L'Admirault, Duke D'Aumale, Admiral De LaRonciere, LeNowry and M. Ozenne. This council is charged with the organization and administration of the army, but not with the direction of military movements.

Von Arnim, the German embassador, has notified Remusch that citizens of France entering German territory on and after the first of November must be provided with passports.

London, Oct. 8.—The price of coal has again advanced. The mining companies of Belgium are not able to execute the orders they have received to send coal to this country in consequence of the scarcity of miners in that country.

Toronto, Oct. 8.—The disease among horses here continues, and there is scarcely a horse in the city fit for work. The interruption to business is becoming very serious. The merchants are unable to ship or get goods from the depots. There are no hacks on the stands.

Going to Meeting Instead of Going to Christ.—A woman who was in distress about her sins, went to a great many meetings in the hope of getting comfort, but did not find it. "At last," she said, "I found that I was going to meeting instead of going to Christ, and then I got light."

She gave up depending on herself, or her minister, or the prayer meetings, and came right to Christ, and he saved her.

Friend, have you come to Christ? Nothing else will save you. "For there is none other name under heaven, given among men, whereby we must be saved."—Acts iv, 12.

Your sins need an atonement; come then to Christ, "Who his own self bare our sins in his own body on the tree, that we, being dead to sins, should live unto righteousness."—First Peter ii, 24.

Come freely, for he says: "Him that cometh to me, I will in no wise cast out."—John vi, 37.

Come quickly, for "Thou knowest not what a day may bring forth."—Prov. xxvii, 1.

FROM THE WORK.

Newbern, Alabama.—Mr. Editor: Since writing my last I have had three protracted meetings: one at Pleasant Grove, five days—we took five names; one at Salem—about twenty conversions and eighteen accessions; and one at Holly Springs—several conversions and nine accessions. We have one more appointment and we will round the work. But oh! the finances.

Yours, J. W. McCann.

September 27, 1872.

Abbeville, Louisiana.—Mr. Editor: No doubt the friends of Zion will be pleased to learn that the society at Abbeville has recently had a gracious visitation from the Holy One, resulting, as we trust, in permanently strengthening the cause of Protestant Christianity in our section of country. On the twelfth instant a protracted meeting was commenced, which lasted seven days, and was then discontinued for want of help to protract it longer. Bro. T. B. White, of New Iberia, was with us from the commencement to Monday evening, and rendered very efficient service. Other brethren, who were expected, failed to come. A revival spirit was manifested from the first, which was constantly increased until it culminated on Tuesday in a pentecostal effusion. Old members remarked that they had never expected to see such a time in Abbeville. The fruits of the meeting will be known only in the day of eternity. The immediate results are twenty-one accessions to the church. There has been a gradual accession from the commencement of the year. Commencing with twenty-nine, we now number seventy. Yours in Christ, Supply.

September 30, 1872.

Summit District Conference, Mississippi Conference.—Mr. Editor: This District Conference met at Tangipahoa, Louisiana, September 27, 1872, and continued two days, Rev. J. Nicholson, presiding elder, acting president.

From the report on the state of the church I extract: "The church on the district is alive, and its life, on the whole, is increasing. We are glad to hear of conversions at some points of the district, and of additions to the membership by baptism and otherwise. The interest manifested in the building of houses of worship and in the payment of church claims indicates improvement in the spiritual state of the church. Growth is indicated in every department of church labor."

The Committee on Missions reported "three missions in the district, viz: Livingston, Pontchatoula and Big Creek. They ought to remain missions, as they are not able to support a pastor without help."

On the subject of Sunday schools and education I extract from the report as follows: "From some sections of the district we are glad to hear very encouraging accounts of the Sunday schools established, and that the preachers in charge have been making the necessary exertions to carry on this noble and useful enterprise; but yet a great deal remains to be accomplished before the law of the church on this subject shall have been carried into effect."

On education the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That our preachers will present the claims of Centenary privately and publicly to the people, and give them full information in reference to this long-established and successful institution of learning, and endeavor to obtain as many students as possible.

The Committee on Finance reported a financial plan, by which the stewards and members are to come together early in the year and agree upon the amounts to be paid by each member, monthly or quarterly, for the several claims.

The District Conference took action in reference to a district camp meeting next year.

Summit, Mississippi, is the place chosen for the meeting of the District Conference for 1873.

J. W. Sandell, Sec.

East Alabama.—Mr. Editor: After an interval of many months, perhaps a short communication will not be rejected; not that I would make mention of the success that has crowned my labors, "for I am neither local nor itinerant," but of the labors of others whose fields lie near my Wayside home. My home, though not properly within the bounds of any work, is near enough that I may co-operate with the pastors of three different charges; and it is of these I would make mention, as the preachers in charge seem to be slow in reporting the success that has crowned their efforts in the Master's vineyard, for, indeed, the Lord has done great things for us in many places. It was my good fortune to have an appointment at Villula on the second Sabbath in August, and to find, on arriving, Bro. Solomon, preacher in charge, on hand, and arrangements made not only to observe the week of prayer, but to conduct service during the week, and the church already fully alive to the importance of the occasion. Although the weather was very unfavorable for a part of the time, yet the meeting was continued, increasing in interest from hour to hour until the following Monday, the result of which was many conversions, nine accessions to the church, one young man confessed to be called of God to preach, and the church greatly revived and fully decided to build a new church, the money for which has since been raised. Bro. Solomon reports several other interesting meetings on his work. He is doing a good work on Villula circuit, and is greatly beloved by his people. The Lord has greatly blessed his labors there during his four years' administration.

At Glennville, the second charge near me, I am sorry that as much cannot be said. I had the pleasure of worshiping with them on the third Sabbath, and preaching the first sermon they had heard for six weeks—Bro. Levert, their pastor, on account of ill health of himself and family, I believe, having had to give up the work and return to his old home. But though he is gone, yet the character of his preaching was such that impressions are made that will long survive the old veteran. Such is the economy of our church that a charge is not left long without a pastor, and vice versa. Glennville is already supplied by Bro. Dyer, late of your city, and a graduate of the Southern University, I believe. He is already at his post, and the people received him gladly.

Hurtville charge is prospering under the watchful care of Bro. Williams. He has just left a protracted meeting at Hurtville, to attend his quarterly meeting at Silver Run—a very important point, where he expects to protract, and where I was to meet him to-day, but was prevented by rain. However, Bro. McCarty, the presiding elder, is there, I guess, and I trust ere many days to join them or hear of great results. But enough.

Yours, Socius.

Wayside, September 28, 1872.

Alexandria District, Louisiana Conference.—Mr. Editor: The District Conference of the Alexandria district has just closed. The attendance was good, all the circuits being represented except one. The season was a delightful one, renewing people and preachers in hope and strength. The various important interests of the church came before the conference for discussion. The subjects of deepest interest were missions, finance and the spiritual condition of the church. The Committee on Missions report a wide scope of country, included between Harrisonburg, on the Ouachita, and Simsport, on the Atchafalaya, and from the mouth of Red river to Plaquemine, on the Mississippi, as being without a preacher. While these districts are thickly settled, and many are calling for the gospel, other places are mentioned as standing in as great need. The work needs ten active preachers, who are willing to take hold with no other guarantee than the Master offers for pay. There are, however, places that will pay well.

The report of the Committee on Finance is astonishing. The total amount assessed to preachers in charge and presiding elder of the various circuits is $3,175. Of this amount there is paid to date $502 88, making $62.75 "a preacher." The last statement is a true index of the spiritual condition of the church. It shows that they, Lutber-like, walk by faith. Their conversions are bright, and they ever cherish the memory of all the circumstances of their entry. There is a great lack of spirituality, and the reason of this lack is that they are so well satisfied by the justification by faith that they make no efforts for that equally necessary justification through works. They know this grace of God: "That he so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have everlasting life." But they do not know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, who, though he was rich, yet for their sakes he became poor, that they, through his poverty, might be made rich. Consequently, having no knowledge or conception of this grace, they are not enriched by it, and feel so poor that they cannot afford to give. The spiritual condition of the church thus stands. They have had the first repentance from sin unto God; but the second great repentance—unto liberality, works and sanctification—they have not reached.

The camp meeting was well attended. There were thirty conversions and twenty-three accessions. Power attended the word preached. I saw some faces there that reminded one of the Savior—such a holy, peaceful light in their eyes. Scores were drunk on the new wine of the gospel. Shouts, sighs, tears, and faces pale with joy marked the presence of the Holy Spirit. The preachers were rejuvenated, but were too busy to shout until they took their way home; and then they who had served were served, and the Master entertains them. I would like to name each tenter—how many they entertained, and how well, on old-style camp meeting hospitality. I must mention my hostess, Sister Otum—called "Mother Otum," because she takes care of everybody. I call my home her tent, and there I was "built up" on a continued feast of good things, with some of the best bread, beef and pepper-vinegar that ever strengthened a mortal. Mother Otum has all the points of Martha at the tent and Mary at the stand—there cooking, watching, moving and preparing; here preaching with voice, eyes, tears and shouts. We shall never forget her.

The next District Conference is to be held at the Spring Creek camp ground, Rapides parish.

The lay delegates to the next Annual Conference from this district are Rev. C. R. Godfrey, H. A. Ditto, J. C. Price and D. M. Lyle. Alternates—Dr. S. P. Ward, W. S. Dickson, R. J. Bowman and W. C. Warner. C. Keener, Sec.

Evergreen, September 27, 1872.

A Fifth Gospel.—Besides our four gospels there is a fifth, which has been eighteen centuries in writing—this is the work of Christ among mankind. It bears witness to miracles as great as those of our canonical narratives. The track of his footsteps is seen wherever there has been any real progress in good, in love, in right, in the moral elevation of man. No revolution in the history of the world can be compared with that which placed the cross as the boundary between two entirely different ages, and which caused to flow forth from the rock of Calvary a river of life, which, though at times trenched in its course, rapidly purifies itself again, and goes on fertilizing the most barren soil. On the foundation-stone of our modern civilization is graven the name of Jesus. It is this, and this alone, which has given to our modern West its vast superiority and irresistible impulse to progress. We marvel, therefore, at the strange attempt of those of our cotemporaries who, under the pretext of elevating the mind, seek to bring us back to those materialistic doctrines, under the weight of which the East still sleeps its heavy sleep, haunted by impure dreams, and broken by sanguinary struggles.—De Bressense.

A Foreign Magazine has a description of a dress, of which it says: "With this costume the mouth is to be worn slightly open." This is happy, for there are so many women who do not know what to do with their mouths, any more than timid young men know what to do with their hands; and minute directions of this sort, studied with every style of dress, will be very convenient. It is to be hoped that some costumes will require the mouth to be worn shut, for the effect in the street would be anything but agreeable if every lady went about with her mouth open. So much depends on the expression, in combination with costume, that the subject is worthy of study. The effect of the prettiest dress is often spoiled by a sour expression of the face, and as expression is simply an affair of the muscles, it can be prevented by the artistic dressmaker. We are very anxious to see, by the way, what woman will be like when the Worths and other artists have finished with her. She is already, with her three-story hat, pannier built up like a dome, high heels and fascinating wiggle-walk, a creation of great interest, and if she "wears her mouth slightly open" there will be no resisting her.—Hartford Courant.

Talent alone is only the rough metal; it is diligent industry which works it and ascertains its value.

Letter of Inquiry from the North.

We publish the following letter from our brother of the North with pleasure. Texas seems to have prospered in spite of the recent rule of bayonets, carpet-baggers and negroes. For an unanswerable argument in favor of negro government we would refer our correspondent to Louisiana and South Carolina. But we presume Bro. Akin will answer the inquiries in due time. About fraternal relations we are at one with Bro. Norris—that is, we would leave the property question to arbitration, and fraternization to take care of itself.

Editor New Orleans Christian Advocate: The letter of Bro. Akin from Texas, in your issue of the twelfth instant, awakens in my mind the spirit of inquiry, as follows: Is not the State government now in the hands of white men? If not, how long has it been otherwise? If the blacks have governed Texas during the time of her greatest prosperity—if, in fact, that prosperity began only when they came to the throne, and if Bro. Akin's statements are correct concerning the rate of her recent development in intelligent appreciation of schools, enterprise in railroading, industry and shrewdness in agricultural improvements, and improvement in piety, while under the administration of the colored race—the practical New England mind will imagine some legitimate relation between the government of the State and its prosperity.

Bro. Akin has presented me one of the strongest arguments I ever heard for the administrative sagacity and executive ability of the colored race, if his statements are true and if I understand the situation.

Would you feel at liberty to publish this note in your paper, that I may perhaps hear from him, or some one else, some explanation of the above facts?

We in New England are so far from you that no doubt we have generally erroneous ideas concerning the social and civil, as well as the ecclesiastical status of the South. It was for the purpose of gaining information direct and reliable that I subscribed for your paper some months since. It seems to me that if the North and South had always been free and kindly in the social interchange of opinions—known each other better—they would have hated each other less. In the presence of the recent international arbitration of differences at Geneva the thought comes to me with force that our respective churches may learn a lesson from the children of this world—settle our property differences by an arbitration, while we cultivate fraternal relations with each other in the great work of evangelizing the world. Why not?

Yours truly, in the love of Jesus,

George W. Norris,

Pastor M. E. Ch., Bristol, N. H.

Bristol, N. H., September 23, 1872.

BISHOP JANES ON CAMP MEETINGS.

At the late session of the Northwest Indiana Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Bishop Janes made a short speech on camp meetings. We give it as reported in the Northwestern Christian Advocate. He said:

"I want to say a word on the general subject of camp meetings. I think a national camp meeting is the greatest evil in the land, and a Conference camp meeting is the next greatest. This is the reason: You hold your meetings in the same place year after year, and the few people who live in the immediate vicinity of the place where the meeting is held can enjoy the benefits of said meeting. The rich can come from a distance. A few of the preachers can come. You want district camp meetings. You want to go into the most wicked and most neglected neighborhoods. You want to allow men who are not distinguished preachers to speak at these meetings. We don't want all the preaching done by the preachers of reputation. Give the common preachers a chance to try their lungs in the open air."

The Bishop, says the Advocate, made this speech while a paper on a Conference camp meeting was being discussed. Said paper was laid on the table, and a motion passed unanimously, declaring it as the sense of this Conference that camp meetings should be held in all the most wicked and most neglected neighborhoods within the bounds of the Conference.

The Christian Advocate.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 10, 1872.

THE CROSS.

Must Simon bear the cross alone,
And all the world go free?
No, there's a cross for every one,
And there's a cross for me.
Yes, there's a cross on Calvary,
Thro' which by faith the crown I see;
To me 'tis pardon bringing.
Oh, that's the cross for me!
Oh, that's the cross for me!

How happy are the saints above
Who once went mourning here;
But now they taste unmingled love,
And joy without a tear.
For perfect love will dry the tear,
And cast out all tormenting fear
Which round my heart is clinging.
Oh, that's the love for me!
Oh, that's the love for me!

We'll bear the consecrated cross
Till from the cross we're free,
And then go home to wear the crown,
For there's a crown for me.
Yes, there's a crown in heaven above—
The purchase of my Savior's love—
For me at his appearing.
Oh, that's the crown for me!
Oh, that's the crown for me!

The saints shall hear the midnight cry:
The Lord will then appear,
And virgins wise, with burning lamps,
Will meet him in the air;
For there's a home in heaven prepared,
A house by saints and angels shared,
Where Christ is interceding.
Oh, that's the home for me!
Oh, that's the home for me!

The Educational Interests of the Alabama Conference.

MR. EDITOR: I wish, through your columns, to fix, if possible, the attention of your Alabama readers upon this subject.

Whether the church of Christ ought to educate her youth under gospel influences has never been an open question in Methodist theory or practice. The same deep insight into the teachings of Christ and the apostles that gave to the world the Wesleyan societies, gave to the societies Kingswood in England, and Cokesbury in America. Wherever Methodism has gained a foothold this beginning has been nobly followed. Our church is too far committed to denominational education, and the results of her efforts in this direction have been too satisfactory, for Methodists, at this late day, to demur to this feature of our policy. In no age has the urgency to sustain denominational schools been as great as in this; in no age has such skillful and persistent effort been made, on the one hand, to undermine Protestant Christianity, and on the other to poison at the fountain-head the religious beliefs of the educated classes. Woe betide the church if she permit her youth to be captivated by the glamour of a semi-pagan Christianity, or imbibe the latent skepticism, without the counteracting influence of enlightened religious instruction and godly example, of a large class of the popular text books of the day.

From our point of view we may assert that the Methodists within the bounds of the Alabama Conference are trying to meet the crisis. To establish denominational schools their treasure has flowed freely. In this respect they are abreast with the foremost. After having recently given to the State a college building and grounds that cost nearly $80,000, the Alabama Conference still owns three chartered institutions of learning, which she is keeping up to the highest point of efficiency. She stands pledged to the church, and to the world, to keep her line up to the front in the grand crusade upon ignorance and sin. How well she is prepared for the onset let us consider.

I scruple not to assert that the grade of her literary institutions is fully up to that of similar institutions in any Conference in our church, or of any other in the South, secular or denominational. Wherein is the Southern University inferior to the best? Not in point of faculty, for hers is composed of scholars that hold rank with the first, North or South. Not in range of study, for her curriculum embraces every branch of a liberal education, besides a complete course in biblical literature, law and medicine. Not in rigid culture, for her alumni would reflect honor upon any university. Not in her religious tone, for she sends forth as large a proportion of her alumni to preach the gospel as perhaps any literary institution in the church.

Centenary and Tuskegee Female Colleges can point to as noble a corps of educated Christian women, in Alabama and adjoining States, as adorns Southern society, and say: "These are our jewels." Those in a situation to know, report Centenary as keeping up her high standard of literary and religious culture. Tuskegee Female College, under her present regime, has abated not a whit of her former efficiency in any department, while her standard of scholarship has been advanced to that of the "mother of female colleges."

This is our view. Let us take another.

As a member of the visiting committee I attended the last commencement festival of the Southern University. Through the courtesy of the board of trustees I was present at its sittings. Grave financial difficulties had to be met—difficulties for which others, not the board of trustees nor faculty, are responsible—difficulties that none but men of liberal hearts and iron wills can meet successfully. Difficulties that would never have been in the way were Alabama Methodists loyal to their own institutions of learning, instead of sending their patronage abroad, or turning it into secular schools at home.

In ante-bellum days Centenary and Tuskegee Female Colleges were favorites in Alabama, and their halls were full. Since the war the struggle has been hard to keep them going. Their highest ground for congratulation is that they have survived the indifference of their friends, or those who ought to be such. If any deem this an imprudent confession, I answer that I am addressing myself to facts, not to questions of prudence. To sing pæans over our colleges is one thing, to sustain them is another. Not that our people who have means are letting their daughters grow up in ignorance. No. "Distance lends enchantment to" their "view" of educational points, and it has grown fashionable to send daughters far away from home to be educated.

Now, are we, as a Conference, mistaking the facts as regards our denominational schools? I begin to fear that we are. We have been going on the supposition that Methodists in the Alabama Conference do, of course, prefer, all things being equal, their own schools to all others; that Conference pride, if no higher motive, would secure them against the fulsome advertisements, inflated circulars and special bids of distant colleges and secular schools at home. It has not entered into our calculation that comparatively few of our members feel any interest in our denominational schools, as such; that a large proportion of those who have means, prefer to pour into the lap of distant or secular schools their treasure of youth and money, and have their own colleges, equal to the best, to drag out a puny existence; that any educator should ever see cause to assign as one reason for quitting our Conference limits, the conviction, founded upon the results of long observation, that he could better draw the patronage of our people to a distant point than to one in their midst. I mean not to war upon other colleges. God speed them in their efforts to dispel the clouds of ignorance from our land! But as a Methodist, and a member of the Alabama Conference, my whole being rises up against the policy upon which I am animadverting—a policy that will, if persisted in, sooner or later close our college halls, and break the arm by which we can most successfully move the minds and hearts of the coming generations.

We are making a sad practical mistake somewhere. It may be that, as preachers, we do not bring before our people, as we ought, the claims of our colleges, nor labor to impress them with the importance of denominational education. It is not my custom to join in the cant that blames preachers for everything that goes awry. But I have seen many spasms of enthusiasm upon this subject, that spent their force in Annual and District Conference resolutions, and that was the end of it. Are clerical trustees and visiting committees, who seldom if ever discharge the duties of their offices, blameless? Are pastors who encourage private or secular or distant schools, to the detriment of their own, blameless? Are they blameless if they do not, in a positive manner, exert their influence, as pastors, to dissuade, by all proper means, parents from sending the youth of their flocks to other than our own Conference schools? Can we reasonably hope to sustain our colleges until we take higher ground upon the question of denominational education, and bring our membership to feel that it is a duty they owe to their children, to the church of their choice within their own Conference, and to future generations, to build up and perpetuate their own colleges?

E. S. SMITH.

TUSKEGEE, Alabama.

A DENIAL OF THE STATEMENTS

AND IMPLICATIONS CONTAINED IN AN ARTICLE ENTITLED "DENOMINATIONAL SCHOOLS," PUBLISHED IN THE NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE OF SEPTEMBER 5, OVER THE SIGNATURE OF H. H. MONTGOMERY.

MR. EDITOR: The first implied charge which I most emphatically deny is, that I took advantage of my position and influence to pervert the daughters of the members of other churches to the Baptist Church; that being, as implied in his article, in common with other Baptist presidents and professors, destitute of the essential qualities of a gentleman, I did not respect the feelings and views of the parents who patronized me, but acted in a manner the reverse of the line of conduct of "Dr. (now Bishop) Paine when he was president of La Grange College." I affirm that my rule has been essentially the same as was his. No boarding pupil in the institute (day pupils, out of school hours, being left to the control of their parents or guardians,) whose parents belonged to one denomination, has been permitted to join the church of another without the consent—written, if necessary—of her parent or guardian. Such has been my regard for parental feelings that I have in most cases compelled my pupils to confer with their parents before they joined even the churches of which those parents were members; and not unfrequently, to prevent all misunderstanding, I have written to the parents myself and obtained their consent before permitting the pupil to join.

Again, Mr. Montgomery says: "Several daughters of Methodist families were there the last session, and I have been informed that every one who boarded in the institute was got into the Baptist Church." The statement contained in the latter clause of the sentence, commencing with "every one who," etc., is entirely without foundation in truth. What is the fact? Out of some twelve or fifteen boarding pupils, who, so far as known, were more closely connected through their relatives with the Methodist Church than with the Baptist, only two, possibly, three, joined the Baptist Church. Others were thought to have been converted, but either did not themselves wish to join, or were not permitted, because of the unwillingness of their parents.

To show that no unfair interpretation is given to the words of the writer, I will quote two of the consecutive sentences, and give my denial to what seems to be their purport. "While Mr. Hillman thought it improper for the young ladies to attend the Methodist church at night, on an occasion there, he thought it very proper and right for them to attend the Baptist church every night for several weeks in succession. Also that several young Baptist preachers should come to the institute at four o'clock P. M., and 'pen in the young ladies,' as one of them expressed it to me, and lecture them for two hours or more on immersion, joining the Baptist Church, and following the Savior down into the water." The first natural inference to be drawn from this language is that I made a discrimination in granting liberty of attendance upon religious meetings in the Methodist church and in the Baptist church. This I pronounce false. As indicated in the catalogue, the same arrangements are made for the attendance of the pupils upon the Sabbath schools and other regular religious exercises in the one case as in the other. The liberty to attend irregular meetings is granted or refused, without any regard to the denominational character of the meetings, solely upon the extent of the interference of such attendance with the appointed exercises of the institution. Whenever "protracted meetings," conducted by either of the denominations, have been made to conform to the convenience of the institute as to the season of the year and the time of the day, the young ladies have been allowed to attend. Their attendance has been refused more than once to the Baptist church, and possibly to the others, though no one instance can now be recalled of the latter, when meetings were proposed to be held at such times as would interfere with recitation or study hours. The "occasion" on which this charge of unfair dealing is based, I am told, was a "temperance lecture," and not a religious gathering. I was absent at the time, and the member of the faculty acting in my place refused to grant permission. It is unfortunate to a Mr. Montgomery, when making the declaration that "Mr. Hillman thought it improper for the young ladies to attend," had not recalled the fact that he was then informed, by one of his own members, that I was absent from home. Had he done so he certainly could not have attributed to me a sentiment which, in the very nature of the case, it was impossible for me to have entertained.

Of all the charges, perhaps the most harmful in its tendency is the one made in the latter part of the language above quoted. The inference to be drawn from this is that I thought it "right and proper" for these young preachers "to pen in the young ladies," and "lecture to them two hours or more on immersion, joining the Baptist Church, and following the Savior down into the water," and thus, by the power of their youth, as well as by their words, to convert them to the Baptist faith. Such a sentiment, attributed to me, I unequivocally pronounce false. I never thought it "right and proper;" I never gave any "young preacher" such permission; and no "young preachers" ever came to the institute on any of those occasions to which allusion is made. What were those occasions—those meetings, at four o'clock P. M., at the institute? They were simply "inquiry meetings," appointed by the pastor of the church for ladies, and ladies only—those of the town as well as those of the institute. "Inquiry meetings" for gentlemen were appointed at another hour in the chapel of Mississippi College. Who attended and conducted these meetings? Besides the pastor, there were in attendance at the same or different meetings only two or three preachers—men of families, and of age and experience in the ministry. No one to whom the term young minister could be appropriately applied was ever an attendant. In addition to these, a professor in the college, not a minister, married, and by no means young, sometimes attended. What was the object of these meetings? It was to converse with those who were anxious about the welfare of their souls, and to point out to them more clearly the way of salvation, and not to proselyte or pervert to church membership. I am informed by the pastor that scarcely one, and not two hours, was thus employed, and not in the way alleged in the above-mentioned charge. This privilege of conversing with the young ladies of the institute on the subject of religion has always been free to the ministers of other denominations, and they have not unfrequently availed themselves of it, as can easily be shown. Mr. Montgomery, as a minister of age and experience, not as a "young preacher," could have enjoyed the same privilege had he sought it.

Had Mr. Montgomery, therefore, sought out the facts, and based his statements upon them, he would have been compelled in candor to have said that the Central Female Institute had proved itself a "machine" of great efficiency in the intellectual culture and proper moral and religious training of many hundreds of young ladies, who for nearly twenty years have enjoyed its benefits. He would also have found that its president made at least one Baptist president who was gentlemanly enough to respect the feelings and views of others, and thus, instead of having "put himself beyond the pale of respect," was altogether within it, and deserving of increased patronage.

WALTER HILLMAN.

CLINTON, Miss., Sept. 26, 1872.

"WHY PERSECUTEST THOU ME?"

Dear friend, is that sweet, plaintive voice speaking to your soul? Does that gentle face, and with its burden of guilt, rise up before you? Those eyes misty with the anguish of thorns that crown the aching brow—loving, tender eyes—do you not feel their reproachful gaze? Does the love, so far exceeding aught of earth, awaken no responsive thrill? Do you love Jesus? Ah! how can you help it? How can you withhold yourself from those outstretched arms? How can you keep your head from drooping upon that loving bosom? Years and years of base ingratitude and cold contempt has he borne, yet still he stands patiently waiting, still he is whispering: "Why persecutest thou me?"

Strange, passing strange, that the heart, so alive to tender emotions, so responsive to earthly claims and friendships, should reject this divine Friend, who has every claim upon our hearts! When was ever friend found so disinterested, so nobly self-sacrificing as he who, descending from his all-powerful divinity, suffered the shameful ignominy of the cross?

From your scornful attitude one would imagine he was compelled to sue for us. Poor, insignificant atoms that we are, how would it affect him were the whole universe swept away! Where would the stern justice of a God, whose name is Holiness, have consigned us were it not for this Mediator who stands between, veiling our eyes from the blaze of his just wrath? By and by, when the gentle look of invitation changes into a terrible frown, and the stern "Depart from me" rings through your abashed soul, O then will you know how this meek suppliant can change into a stern avenger!

Alas! these words have rung year after year in ears deaf to their importunity. Men have turned scornfully away from warning and appeal, deeming fanatical words sent glowing from hearts radiant with love for the Savior. Some that have tasted the sacred happiness of his love and peace have cast him from their hearts, and, stifling the cries of conscience until it becomes callous, are drifting with reckless despair down, down—O where? Where the sweet voice of peace cannot reach them, where the golden light cannot pierce the gloom, nor entreaties, prayers, tears be heard for the wailings of despair, and the soul, with keen remorse, remembers the example and endeavors of hallowed loved ones.

O loved ones! how your estrangement from God swells anxious hearts almost to bursting. God alone witnesses the tears and agony that cries to him for relief; and when the loving, tremulous word is met with chilling, contemptuous scorn, he alone sees the wrung, uplifted hands!

And he alone can answer the heart-broken prayer—can dart light into those darkened chambers of the soul. Then to him, parents, sisters, children, let us commit our sinning loved ones, believing that ere long he will open their hearts to the yearning cry: "Why persecutest thou me?"

LITTLE BEVERLY.

THERE is some promise in your Bible exactly adapted to every trying hour.

MOUNT STERLING HIGH SCHOOL.

MR. EDITOR: The village of Mount Sterling lies four miles west of Tuscahoma, a warehouse landing on the Tombigbee river, in Choctaw county, Alabama. It is pleasantly and, we think, beautifully located. This is my second year in the village, and I regard it as being very healthy. The school has averaged about seventy-five scholars, and of that number not a single death has occurred among them while at school; indeed, no serious illness has occurred among them originating in the place. The society of Mount Sterling and the surrounding country is highly moral and truly intellectual.

We are proud to state the fact that there is not a rum-dealer in the place. We have two commodious churches in the village—Methodist and Baptist. Both churches are well attended. The principal of the Mount Sterling High School, Prof. S. S. Mellen, A. M., is truly a thorough scholar. He has been for the last thirty years engaged in the active duties of the school room. His first field of labor was in Georgia, then in Mississippi, now in Alabama. I am not alone when I assert the fact that as an educator he has few equals, if any. This is the unanimous opinion of his patrons and numerous friends. Of the young men who sought admission in our State University, last year, none were better prepared than those who had been under the care of S. S. Mellen. Such, we are informed, was the decision of the faculty of the university.

Mr. Charles Moody has charge of the primary department. This gentleman was educated by Bro. Mellen, and was selected by him for this important position. Bro. Moody is a Christian gentleman, and has the confidence of all who know him.

The musical department is under the care of Sister Armstrong, the wife of Bro. T. Armstrong, and daughter of Rev. —— Duboise, of Greensboro, Alabama. She is well qualified for the duties of her department.

Bro. Mellen is laboring in a noble cause, and I verily believe for the love he has for that cause—the building up of the educational interests of the South.

This school is such a school as the times demand—a school of high grade, purely an individual enterprise, and that individual the principal of the school. The division of responsibility has been exceedingly unfortunate in many of our schools.

The great effort that is now being made to reduce tuition, and other educational expenses, will prove exceedingly disastrous to the educational interests of our country. I cannot, however, enter into a discussion of these points in this article. It occurs to me that if the people of Louisiana, south Mississippi and Alabama knew the advantages the Mount Sterling High School would afford them, they certainly would avail themselves of it. Apart from the school, which is second to none of its grade in the South, we have an elevated, pure piny woods atmosphere. Send your sons and your daughters here, and when they visit you next summer you will realize that you have been doubly paid.

FRANCIS WALKER.

TWO EX-CATHOLIC PRIESTS.—It is not generally known, says the Interior, that Father Gavazzi took occasion, on his recent visit to Chicago, to visit his compatriot, Father Chiniquy, at St. Anne, Kankakee county, Illinois. These two distinguished reformed priests were born in the year 1809; both were leading men in the Romish Church, and exercised great influence among their countrymen. We extract the following from the Inter-Ocean:

"They left the Established Church at the same time, and have since labored for Protestantism. They are probably the only living priests who, after having left their church, have so well maintained their power and influence for good among their former co-religionists. Immediately after their change of faith both were subjected to the repeated attacks of mobs, which stoned and threatened to kill them, but their fearless attitude prevented any serious results. They have since succeeded in converting those who were at one time their worst enemies, and number their proselytes of the Church of Rome by the thousand. Father Chiniquy has now a large colony of converts at St. Anne, and is laboring to establish a college at that place to prepare young men for the ministry."

MAHARAJAH DHULEEP SINGH married in 1854 one of the girls of the United Presbyterian Mission School in Cairo, Egypt, and has since celebrated the event by sending it a check for £1,000, or $5,000 in gold, annually.

IT IS REMARKABLE that persons who speculate the most boldly often conform with the most perfect quietude to the external regulations of society. The thought suffices them without investing itself in the flesh and blood of action.—Hawthorne.

Obituaries.

JAMES F., son of Daniel and Martha Moore, was born November [illegible] in Bullock county, Alabama, July 29, 1872.

He was dedicated to God by baptism in infancy, and taught the principles of our holy religion by parents of exemplary piety. He sought and found "the pearl of great price," and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church South in the sixteenth year of his age, of which he lived a member until death. The disease of which he died was such that he could not talk; hence he left no dying testimony of his readiness for the summons which called him to his reward. He was the pride and hope of his fond parents. But their expectations have not been realized. He has been taken from earthly associations to enjoy the company of "the spirits of just men made perfect." While his place is made vacant in the family circle and the church, and while parents, brothers and sisters mourn their dead, yet they sorrow not as those without hope.

J. W. HIGHTOWER.

PATON CAKER was born in Marion district, South Carolina, May 31, 1801, and died at his residence, Lauderdale county, Mississippi, June 25, 1872.

Bro. Caker joined the Methodist Episcopal Church South in the summer of 1870, and lived a consistent member of the same until his death. Then he was transplanted from the church below to the church triumphant above. I had the privilege of visiting Bro. Caker often during his sickness. I never knew a man more fully resigned to his fate than he was. He conversed freely about death; felt no dread of the king of terrors; was patient in his sufferings, which were very severe. He called his children and friends around him, made the necessary arrangements for his departure, gave directions about his burial, took leave of them all, and requested them to meet him in heaven.

Bro. Caker's house was the home of Methodist preachers for many years before he united with the church. He was among the best Methodists I ever knew, considering how short a time he was a member. He and his children built a nice chapel, which is dedicated to God in his name. He left a devoted wife, a large family of children and grandchildren, and very many friends to mourn his loss; but their loss is his gain. Peace to his ashes.

J. C. BROGAN.

DIED, on Thursday, August 22, 1872, at the residence of her step-father, Mr. J. A. Castain, in Opelousas, Louisiana, after a short but severe illness, SOPHIA ANN MOWAT, aged twenty years, seven months and twenty-eight days.

It has seldom fallen to the lot of the writer of this notice to record the death of one who, though so young, has left behind her an example so bright of a pious and useful life. With all the retiring modesty and unassuming merit which is so lovely in youth, it was only those who knew her best that loved and appreciated her most. She was truly excellent in all the relations of life which she had been called on to sustain. A devoted daughter, an affectionate sister, an earnest Christian, a most faithful Sunday school teacher, her happy death crowned a life which was an example of excellence to all who knew her. Sad were our hearts as we looked on her vacant seat in the sabbath school, and listened to the testimony of her worth from her bereaved and sorrowing parents. But we grieve not as those without hope. The earnest desire which she expressed during her illness, "to be an angel," is now gratified. An angel in heaven she doubtless is, a ministering spirit to those still left on earth whom she so dearly loved. To her may well be applied that noblest of epitaphs: "She hath done what she could." She sleeps in Jesus. He gave her, he took her and he will restore her!

D.

IN MEMORIAM.

Died, at Ocean Springs, Mississippi, on the fifteenth of July, in the sixty first year of his age, the Rev. WILLIAM COLE CHAMBERLIN.

He was a native of Dalton, Massachusetts, but in his early manhood moved to the State of Mississippi, and there resided, excepting two years, during the rest of his life. The most part of this period he was a citizen of Natchez, where he succeeded in establishing himself firmly in the mercantile business. "He was eminently fitted for it," writes Dr. W. H. Watkins, "being honest, prompt and attentive. Frugal, industrious, energetic, and liberal almost to lavishness, his business grew and he grew rich. He needed to be known to be loved, for he was a dyspeptic. He was a Christian in purity, integrity, zeal and godly living. His house was a house of prayer, and the home of hospitality. He loved methodism and educated his children to love it, and labored to make it a power for good." This testimony, I am persuaded, does not overstate the qualities of our dear brother. Upon the general disasters of 1860–64 he determined to move away from what seemed to be a universal wreck, and in his efforts to recover financially was disappointed and defeated at every turn. In Honduras, New Orleans, Crystal Springs he struggled manfully, but the Lord "had provided some better thing" for him. He became wise in finding the uses of this adversity. And it is doubtful if any other fortune could have so ripened him for heaven. All the successes of life, were life possible to him could not have made his memory so illustrious as it now is through the riches of that grace with which it pleased God to crown his career. I dwell upon this count because but few men ever so fully gain heaven in the very sight of earth as he in the end. His fellowship with his Lord, for days before he died, was in itself a wonder even to those who long since have ventured their all on Christ. His son, the Rev. Corydon Chamberlin, who during these eventful hours was ministering to his father, and saw this spiritual halo, says: "His death-bed was the fruit of his life; here he gathered a glorious victory. Full of peace, of love and triumph, he went up in a cloud of glory. His messages, exhortations and expressions of joy were too numerous to be crowded into a short obituary. He repeatedly asked: 'Is there no one else to whom I can preach Jesus?' His mind was full of Christ. All solicitous, as he was, for the salvation of his children, he blessed them, prayed for them, and entreated them. Anxious to live for his family, yet he resigned them without fear to God." It was late at night when I arrived at Ocean Springs, and learned for the first time that he was sick and then dying. As I entered the door: "How glad," said he, "I am to see you. Now sing me one of your sweetest songs." His son sang,

"Nearer, my God, to thee," the dying man joining in the hymn with full appreciation of its sentiment. "Oh death!" he exclaimed, "where is thy sting? Oh grave! where is thy victory?" Then he presently added:

"Happy if with my latest breath
I may but gasp this name."

I had long known that our people die well, but was impressed then first, while standing by his bedside, that this glory of Methodism was not sufficiently emphasized. Any system of religion, whether ancient or modern, that could so dispel the gloom of death should command the admiration of mankind.

Bro. Chamberlin joined the church and professed religion thirty years ago, and forty-five years had been a local preacher, and at the session of the Mississippi Conference, held in Woodville, was ordained an elder by Bishop Paine. An incurable bronchitis prevented his preaching, excepting at long intervals. But as a Sunday school superintendent and as a steward he abounded in usefulness, and was always busy with some plan for advancing the kingdom of Christ. He was twice married; first to Mrs. Cynthia Turner, the daughter of Mr. John Pipes, of Adams county, Mississippi—two children by this marriage survive; next to Miss Delia Gough, daughter of Mr. John W. Gough, of Claiborne county. Of eleven children by this marriage, six survive—three sons and three daughters. And the heritage he leaves them in his life and death they would not exchange for millions. With hearts overflowing with gratitude, they rise up and bless his memory.

J. C. KEENER.

The Christian Advocate.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 10, 1872.

UNDER THE VIOLETS.

BY OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES.

Her hands are cold; her face is white;
No more her pulses come and go;
Her eyes are shut to life and light;
Fold the white vesture, snow on snow,
And lay her where the violets blow.

But not beneath a graven stone,
To plead for tears with alien eyes;
A slender cross of wood alone
Shall say, that here a maiden lies
In peace beneath the peaceful skies.

And gray old trees of hugest limb
Shall wheel their circling shadows round,
To make the scorching sunlight dim,
That drinks the greenness from the ground,
And drop their dead leaves on her mound.

When over their boughs the squirrels run,
And through their leaves the robins call,
And, ripening in the autumn sun,
The acorns and the chestnuts fall,
Doubt not that she will heed them all.

For her the morning choir shall sing
Its matins from the branches high,
And every minstrel voice of spring,
That trills beneath the April sky,
Shall greet her with its earliest cry.

When, turning round their dial track,
Eastward the lengthening shadows pass,
Her little mourners clad in black,
The crickets, sliding through the grass,
Shall pipe for her an evening mass.

At last the rootlets of the trees
Shall find the prison where she lies,
And bear the buried dust they seize
In leaves and blossoms to the skies;
So may the soul that warmed it rise!

If any, born of kindlier blood,
Should ask, What maiden lies below?
Say only this: A tender bud,
That tried to blossom in the snow,
Lies withered where the violets blow.

The First Box of Bibles in Texas.

We are sure that the following narrative will be read with interest. It comes to us from a venerable friend, Mr. David Ayres, formerly of Brooklyn, New York, but for many years a resident of Galveston, Texas. The times have changed since he first went to that interesting part of our country. We have now one hundred and fifty auxiliary Bible societies in Texas, and in three years have sent thither forty-six thousand volumes of the Scriptures, to meet the wants of its rapidly increasing population.

In May, 1834, I, with my family, embarked in the brig Asia for Texas. We had a long passage, and were finally wrecked at or near Arrasasa bar. We succeeded in getting ashore most of our effects, among which was a box of Bibles received from the American Bible Society, the first ever sent by that society to Texas; also a box of Sunday school books, sent by the American Sunday School Union, which I think were the first Sunday school books sent to Texas from any source.

After being detained for some time on the Island of St. Joseph, some boats came to our rescue from the town of San Patricio, by which I succeeded in having my effects conveyed to the main land, whence I procured transportation to San Patricio.

When we reached this place I was informed that a pious young man had preceded us to the town, and immediately commenced circulating his tracts, which he had procured from the American Tract Society. This gave so great offense to the Catholic priest that he made complaint to the alcalda, who ordered the young man's effects to be searched. They seized all his tracts and ordered them to be burned in the public square. The young man was glad to make his escape out of this settlement.

Learning the fate of those tracts, I saw I must be cautious how I attempted to distribute my Bibles, as at this period the Catholic religion was the only religion allowed by law. Having hired a house, I placed the boxes of Bibles and Sunday school books out of sight, only placing four Bibles in sight with my private library, two of them half Spanish and English, and two common school Bibles. As I was reputed to be wealthy, all the principal citizens called on me, and among them was the Catholic priest, called Father Malloy. He examined my library, and discovered the two Bibles in the Spanish and English languages. This he examined, and said it was a good edition; that he had long wished to procure a copy, and wished me to spare him one. As I had two, I presented him with a copy, for which he appeared grateful. All who came to see me examined my library, and in doing so discovered my English Bibles, and would express a wish to obtain one, as they had none. To all such I would present one, and would immediately take another one from the box, which was under the bed. There was a Mexican garrison of soldiers on the opposite side of Nueces river, in the State of Tamaulipas, the principal officers of which were furnished in the same way. After this, Father Malloy came into my house in great rage. He said: "Mr. Ayres, what do you mean by distributing that damnable book among my flock?" I replied: "You astonish me! Did you not say the edition was a good one, and did you not ask me for a copy? Had I not a right to suppose you would be pleased for all your people to have a copy?" He replied: "I can instruct my people; I do not wish your assistance;" and left me, threatening to have me sent to the calaboose, and to have my books and all my effects seized. I replied: "I am an American citizen; I have my passport; my government will protect me." But I soon found I could no longer remain there with my family, and determined to leave as soon as possible.

We started in the month of August for Austin's Colony, where I had, on a former visit, procured the erection of a cottage built with stone, known as the Stone Cottage. It took us two weeks to reach our cottage. Every house or family we called on in our journey we supplied with a Bible, most of them being destitute.

At San Felipe, then the largest town in Texas, I asked one of the principal citizens if he would permit me to make him a present of a Bible. He politely replied he did not believe a word of it, but it would do to swear by. I believe he held some public office. This Bible has a history, to which I will again allude.

I settled in Washington county, where I had made a feeble attempt to start a Sunday school in 1833, but effected little.

In 1835 Texas was invaded by Santa Anna, and the Indians were murdering our citizens on our frontiers. All our able-bodied men had gone to the army to repel Santa Anna. A threatened attack upon our settlement compelled me to a hasty flight with my family, consisting of my wife and six children. We loaded up our wagon with our necessary clothing and provisions, but I first placed in the wagon the two boxes of Bibles and books. I was compelled to leave much that was valuable, and which we did not recover again. These books were heavy, and if I had thrown them out I could have saved much of my property; but I was not even tempted to leave them. For three months we were wandering, seeking to escape from the Mexicans and Indians, during which time we did not sleep under a roof. But I regularly kept up family worship, and read a portion of Scripture to my family. After the battle of San Jacinto was fought we returned, with many others, to the town of Washington, where a large number concluded to stop that season. We procured a log house to be erected, and in that started a Sabbath school. The books we received from the American Sunday School Union supplied it with books, and I gave Bibles to those who had lost theirs when they fled to escape the Mexicans and Indians.

After the missionaries sent by the Methodist Episcopal Church had arrived, a camp meeting was held by Rev. R. Alexander, near the Colorado river. The assembled congregation was surprised at the arrival of one W. S., a notorious gambler and rowdy, who went immediately to the mourner's bench, knelt down and asked them to pray for him. He afterward told how he was awakened.

He had never read the Bible, or heard it read. He was one of the defenders of Texas from the invading Mexicans, and when the Texan commander in charge of the post at San Felipe ordered the town to be burned, to keep it out of the hands of the Mexicans, George Huff, of whom I have before spoken, invited the Texan soldiers into his store, and said: "Boys, you are welcome to take of my goods what you please, as what you do not take will be burned." W. S., seeing on the shelf the Bible which I had previously given Mr. Huff, said: "Boys, if you have no objection, I will take this book as my share of the plunder, as my wallet is now full." He went on to state that whenever they stopped to rest their horses and feed, he would read his Bible, and from reading it he became convinced of the reality of experimental religion; that he attended that camp meeting hoping to obtain an experimental knowledge of the reality of the religion of Jesus Christ.

After he was blessed he went and found his aged mother, who was as ignorant of the Bible as any heathen, took her to the meeting, and continued by her, praying for her until God spoke peace to her soul.

S. returned to his residence on the Brazos, and was the honored instrument of a great reformation there. He has since, with his mother, died in peace, leaving to all his friends a well-grounded hope that he has gone to a happy eternal state. How many have been converted through the instrumentality of this solitary Bible will not be known until the day of judgment; but if that box of Bibles had not been the means of effecting any other good than the conversion of W. S., the society has been amply repaid for its donation of books.

I will add that the first Bible Society was organized in my house by Rev. Schuyler Hoes, the first Bible agent in Texas; that my son-in-law, Rev. R. Alexander, D. D., was for several years Bible agent for western Texas.

I am now almost fourscore years old. I believe myself and wife are as happy a couple as there is living. Our eternal prospects are unclouded. All we regret is that we have not been more useful in the vineyard of the Lord Jesus Christ.

I find my memory is much impaired, but I have a distinct recollection of all the facts I have stated. If this hastily written narrative shall in any way promote the religion of Jesus Christ, I shall be amply repaid for writing it.—Bible Society Record.

A COLLECTION INCIDENT.

In a Pennsylvania town there was an excellent but eccentric clergyman named Ross. He was about taking a collection for some especial object, and had pleaded warmly in its behalf. "My brethren," he said, "I want you to give liberally tonight—none of your pennies or five cent pieces, but let every one give a quarter, and, to set you a good example, I will give the first myself," dropping a twenty-five cent piece in the basket. After the collection was taken he lifted up the baskets, looked them over carefully, and then remarked: "I see that my quarter is the only one here, so I shall take it back again," which he did, and put it in his pocket, with evident disgust at their meanness.

ANOTHER.—In a certain church a contribution was to be taken. Having no boxes, the minister's hat was borrowed. It was passed all around the church, and report says nothing was put in it. As the hat was returned to the pulpit the minister looked into it, and, seeing it empty, said: "Well, brethren, I am very much obliged to you for returning my hat."

STILL ANOTHER.—Some wag tells a story to the effect that two young men sailing recently in Delaware Bay were overtaken by a squall. They had been inside of a church, and knew something of how religious services were conducted. As it appeared that their little boat was near capsizing, one said to the other: "Bill, this is serious business; can you pray?" "No, I can't; I've heard Joe do it, and I've listened to Post, but I can't do it myself." "Well, you can sing a hymn, can't you? Do something." "No, I can't sing here. How can I sing when this boat may at any moment drown us both?" "Well, we must do something religious. If you can't pray and can't sing, let's take up a collection." To this Bill consented. In his companion's hat he deposited thirteen pennies, a corkscrew and a broken-bladed knife.

A LITTLE ABOUT FISHES.

The story is told of Prof. Agassiz that he was a poor Swiss lad, who, refusing to learn how to turn a penny by his father's trade, began alone and unaided to spell out the alphabet of nature in rocks and birds and beasts. The knowledge did not promise to help him on one whit among his neighbors; did not put shoes on his feet, or salt in his porridge; a comfortable home and successful business waited for him, but he chose to go wandering through the Alps, hatchet in hand, and often but a sou in pocket—"a sum so little," he said, "when my hunger was so big!" So, hungry and half clothed, he followed for years the half-effaced signs of this unknown language, which he fancied God had spoken and not men, as a child might trace the footsteps of a lost mother. At last he traced his way to London, to Sir Roderick Murchison, who, he thought, could help him.

"Well, sir, what do you know?" demanded the great naturalist, noting his beardless chin and ruddy cheeks.

"I think—" hesitated the lad, "a little about fishes."

That night, at a meeting of the Royal Society, Sir Rodorick held up a covered package. "I have here," he said, "a fish which existed in such an era"—some time long before Adam was born, and proceeded to state the exact conditions and position in which it was found. "Can our young friend, who knows something about fishes, tell us anything about it?"

Whereupon the Swiss boy promptly drew upon the blackboard a skeleton monster, of which the real one, when uncovered, proved to be the exact duplicate, and then the old graybeards present recognized him as one of themselves.

A CHINAMAN in Weatherville, California, whose life was insured for a large amount, was seriously hurt by falling from a wagon. There was some doubt of his ever getting better, and at length one of his friends wrote to the insurance company: "Charley half dead; likee half money."

WHY are the edicts of the Pope called bulls? Because the seals appended to them were formerly of gold bullion. The bull of Pope Clement the Seventh, conferring the title of Defender of the Faith on Henry the Eighth, had such a seal of gold affixed to it.

SCIENTIFIC.

KEROSENE OIL.—We are informed by a recent number of the Boston Journal of Chemistry that a peddler is traveling through the interior towns of Massachusetts, introducing a "new inexplosive oil," which he claims to be "pure petroleum with all the nitro-glycerine taken out!" It is not probable that this highly refined preparation will find many purchasers in an intelligent community; but there are many oils in the market which contain ingredients quite as dangerous as nitroglycerine, and against which people should be on their guard. The following items concerning the composition and manufacture of kerosene oil, for which we are indebted to the able report of Prof. C. F. Chandler to the New York Department of Health, may prove useful, as well as interesting, to many of our readers.

The dark, offensive, crude petroleum is first subjected to distillation. The apparatus employed consists of an iron still, connected with a coil or worm of wrought-iron pipe, which is submerged in a tank of water for the purpose of cooling it. When the still has been filled with crude oil, the fire is lighted beneath it, and soon the oil begins to boil. The first products of distillation are gases. At ordinary temperatures they pass through the coil and escape without being condensed. By cooling the coil with ice, or by compressing these gases by an air-pump into a strong receiver, very volatile liquors, called "rhigolene" and "chymogene," are obtained. Soon the vapors begin to condense in the worm, and a stream of oil trickles from the far end of the coil into the receiving-tank. At first light oils are obtained; as the distillation proceeds, the product becomes heavier.

In most establishments it is customary to run the product into one tank until the gravity reaches a certain point. It is then diverted into the kerosene tank, and allowed to run there until the color deepens to a yellow. The first part of the product is known as crude naphtha; the second is the burning oil, or kerosene.

After taking off the burning oil, the stream is directed to the paraffine oil-tanks, and continues to run there until coke alone remains in the still. This oil is chilled to crystallize the paraffine, and is then folded in cloths and pressed to squeeze out the oil. The solid paraffine is purified by repeatedly melting it in naphtha, chilling and pressing. The oil separated from it is purified with sulphuric acid and alkali, and used for lubricating purposes.

After the burning oil or kerosene has been separated, it is subjected to the action of sulphuric acid to remove a little color, but more particularly to sweeten it—that is, to remove the disagreeable odor which it still retains. About two per cent., by measure, of acid is poured into the oil; the mixture is thoroughly agitated, and, on standing, a dark tarry sediment separates. This is removed, and the clear oil is then agitated with water; then with alkali—either caustic soda or ammonia. This neutralizes the last traces of acid, and, after removal by water, leaves the oil "sweet." Some of the more careful refiners then subject it to a somewhat elevated temperature to expel a small percentage of naphtha or benzine which it still contains, while a few subject it to redistillation.

It is of course the presence of the inflammable, volatile naphtha or benzine which renders kerosene dangerous. Crude naphtha sells at three to five cents per gallon, while the refined petroleum or kerosene sells for twenty to twenty-five cents. Unscrupulous refiners, therefore, are accustomed to introduce these dangerous substances into their oils. The "flashing point," or temperature at which an oil evolves an inflammable vapor, should be, for safety, at least one hundred degrees Fahrenheit. The celebrated "Astral oil" flashes at one hundred and twenty-five degrees; while the "mineral sperm" is so heavy that it requires a temperature of three hundred degrees to burn it. Practically the latter is as safe as whale oil.

Dealers inform us that the best oil usually sold under the name of kerosene flashes at one hundred and ten degrees; and that, if a little of this oil be placed in a saucer, it cannot be ignited with a match.

A GERMAN NATURALIST describes a remarkable atmospheric appearance on the coast of Brazil. A few minutes after sunset, when the sky was very clear, he witnessed a sudden return of daylight, the whole western heavens being brilliantly illuminated, at first with all the colors of the spectrum, and then by a rich golden light, which cast distinct shadows. This appearance continued for about fifty minutes.

THE conversion of water into vapor develops electricity.

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

PRESIDENT E. O. HAVEN, of the Northwestern University, has resigned his office, to accept the newly-created secretaryship of the Methodist Board of Education. It is reported that Dr. Fowler, of Chicago, will be President Haven's successor.

THE Paris Univers (hyper-Ultramontane) says that the University of Pesth has been doing some scandalous things. "This establishment," says the Univers, "which formerly bore the name of 'the Catholic University,' no longer merits the name. By ten votes against five the faculty has decided to confer the rectorate upon a schismatic priest, Prof. Hattala, editor of the Tzabab-Sajjo, a journal bitterly hostile to the church." This event marks the progress of the Old Catholic movement in Hungary.

WESLEYAN PREACHERS, says the Methodist, are a long-lived race. Of twenty-eight members of the Conference reported as having died in Great Britain during the past year, fourteen, or one-half, were seventy years of age and upward; eight had spent half a century or more in the ministry, and sixteen forty years and over. Among the departed veterans are James Dixon, Elijah Hoole and John Wesley Thomas. Either the climatic conditions or the methods of Wesleyan preacher life are greatly conducive to longevity. Perhaps both causes help.

A WRITER in the Examiner and Chronicle is responsible for the following statement concerning the baptism of Miss Smiley by Dr. Pentecost, and what followed: "At the close of the baptism a little episode occurred—on which Miss Smiley laid great stress—that has not been made public. The pastor went to a private house to administer the Lord's Supper. Miss Smiley went also, and with members of different denominations partook of the supper. This 'mixed communion' Miss Smiley regarded as providential, and accepted it and spoke of it as a sign from the Master that her baptism was approved on high."

HEATHEN WOMEN ACCESSIBLE TO THE TRUTH.—But a few years since, and the women of heathendom were inaccessible to religious truth, and the evangelistic labors of the church among the heathen were almost entirely devoted to the other sex. Now the heathen women can be reached by the gospel. In India the women can easily be brought under evangelizing influences; and in the city of Calcutta alone about three hundred households, in which are found twelve hundred females, are open to Christian instruction. Wonderfully is God thus preparing the way for the conversion of the world. Save the heathen women, and heathendom will soon yield to Christianity.

THE Christian Union says: We have before this spoken of the "House of the Evangelists"—a theological school in New York which trains its students especially for work among the destitute class. It is under the immediate supervision of Dr. Tyng; but though the management is in the hands of Episcopalians, the students are under no denominational restrictions, and hitherto a majority of them have been members of other churches. We now learn that thirty-five have entered for the coming year; that accommodations and work could be given to twice as many; but that there is urgent need of funds. So effective an agency in so good a work deserves hearty sympathy and support.

A JEWISH COMMISSION sent out from New York to Jerusalem has returned, and given to the public a report of what they saw. In speaking of this, the Jewish Times says that it "is an additional argument against the folly of encouraging the emigration of the Jews to a country which has no other claim than that of a venerable monument of the past." The squalid nucleus of sixteen thousand Jews now in Palestine does not promise well for a general gathering of that people there. The commission in question suggests "the general elimination from all Jewish prayer books of the portions referring to the hopes of Israel in the restitution of the Holy Land to the possession of Israel, and the rebuilding of the temple by divine Providence."

THE editor of the English Church Times (Ritualist) tells what he saw in a Continental (probably Roman Catholic) seminary for the training of priests: "Among the various class rooms I saw one," he says, "in which stood what appeared to be an altar, with various sacred vessels upon it. On inquiry I learned that this was not a real altar, but an imitation one; and that the vessels were not used for the celebration of mass, but for the instruction of the young students in the duties that would fall to their lot after ordination. In this room they were instructed by a professor as to all the manual actions connected with the mass, the administration of baptism, and the other ceremonies of the church. Now here, surely, is something worthy of imitation." What this Ritualistic editor soberly commends is, as one of the English papers says, nothing but a dress rehearsal of the sacraments.

A NEW religious sect, known as the "Amanians" and numbering about fifteen hundred, has sprung up in Iowa. This new community is composed entirely of Germans. They have purchased about thirty thousand acres of land on the line of the Rock Island railroad, and have built several mills and manufactories. All property is held in common, and the affairs of the society managed by fifteen "fathers." Each person is allowed to draw a certain amount from the co-operative stores yearly, and no member is given any wages or any money for personal expenses. Every day religious services are held. We do not learn what the theological belief of the sect is; but, inasmuch as they are noted for honesty and fair dealing, we judge that it cannot be far out of the way. Marriage is not forbidden, but it is not encouraged; and the community is not likely, therefore, to perpetuate itself.

SOUTH SEAS.—The Chronicle of the London Missionary Society gives the following interesting intelligence respecting the society's missions in the South seas: "In Samoa, where the gospel has long had free course, our missionaries are prepared, both by personal service and by the supply of competent native evangelists, to assist in occupying the field presented in the Island of New Guinea. The European agency in the Samoan group will thus gradually be reduced, and the native churches, feeling their new responsibilities, will, we are assured, increase in strength and vigor, and in watering others will be watered also themselves. The mission in the Loyalty group, although not so advanced as that in Samoa, is showing signs of life and energy in the increase of church members, in the eagerness of the people to receive instruction, and increased contributions to the funds of the society."

PERSECUTION OF CHRISTIAN CHILDREN IN INDIA.—Two cases of persecution are reported from Bangalore, where Miss Anstey, of the London Mission, is successfully at work among native girls. In one case the parents of a girl about to be baptized made an effort to kill her by trying to persuade her to eat a piece of cocoanut which had been poisoned. Happily she did not; but it was thus made clear that her parents would rather see her dead at their feet than see her a Christian. In the other case the poor girl had been repeatedly beaten with inhuman cruelty. Attempts were made to deliver her, since which she had never been seen or spoken to by any Christian. She is watched incessantly, but there is every reason to believe that she continues steadfast in the faith. She is treated as an outcast, and kept outside the dwelling house, and has been constantly moved from place to place.

IN THE Reformed Presbyterian church near Bloomington, Indiana, composed of about eighty members, the financial plan is for each to give a tenth of his income. The money is thrown into the baskets on Sabbath morning. No account is kept of the amounts given by each, as all are supposed to be entirely honest in the matter, and it is undesirable to make any distinctions. The members are usually poor and reside in the country. About $1,600 are thus freely thrown into the baskets during the year. Out of this the entire salary of the preacher is met, the current expenses are paid, and a contribution is made to each benevolent cause. There are many churches stronger in numbers and wealth where it takes a continual struggle, accompanied by ceaseless complaint, to raise for all purposes, home and foreign, including their own minister, the sum of one or two hundred dollars in a year.

PERSONS at a distance are surprised to learn that the Third Congregational church of San Francisco is in great unrest and trouble over a new phase of the Chinese question. It would appear that sundry Chinamen have not only been evangelized but converted through the labors of some of the zealous ones of this church—a state of things which others of the same church had not counted upon. These tawny Christians—foreigners, which Irishmen and Catholics are not alone in despising—have been knocking at the door of this church for admission. The dispute inside over the question of their admission has now waxed so warm that the pastor, Rev. W. C. Pond, has thought it well to resign. The vote of forty-three to thirty-eight is named as indicating the relative size of the two parties which indulge in this difference of judgment. The Congregationalist well asks: "What do the dissenters propose to do with Chinamen who are so—unfortunate, we were about to say—as to become Christians there?"

MERE submission to authority will not develop a fine character. It depends entirely on the quality of the authority.

The Christian Advocate.

Organ of the Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 10, 1872.

REV. LINUS PARKER, D. D., Editor.
ROBT. J. HARP, PUBLISHER.

OFFICE--No. 112 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

Address, on all matters of business, Rev. R. J. HARP, 112 Camp street, New Orleans.

Address all communications designed for publication to Rev. LINUS PARKER, 112 Camp street, New Orleans.

AGENTS--All the members of the patronizing Conferences.

CONFERENCE PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

FOR ALABAMA CONFERENCE:
REV. W. A. McCARTY.
REV. EDWARD WADSWORTH, D. D.
A. W. LAMPKIN, ESQ.

FOR MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE:
REV. W. H. WATKINS, D. D.
REV. JAMES A. GODFREY.
REV. J. G. JONES.

FOR LOUISIANA CONFERENCE:
REV. WILLIAM V. TUDOR, D. D.
REV. JOHN MATHEWS.
REV. LINUS PARKER, D. D.

REDUCTION.

The New Orleans Christian Advocate will be furnished to subscribers hereafter at the following rates:

Per One Year	$2 00
Per Six Months	1 25
Per Three Months	75

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR

to all ministers of the gospel, traveling or local, and widows of deceased traveling preachers.

FREE-ONE YEAR

to any person forwarding to us four new yearly subscribers with EIGHT DOLLARS

THE PRICE PAID.

In the Christian's ordinary plane of thought and feeling it is almost impossible for him to worthily estimate the cost of redemption. We shrink from the endeavor to weigh the expressions which inspired men have used in giving account of it. What God has done, what angels have done is more than we can tell; but the price paid by Christ, as the essential ground of human salvation, is something overwhelming. In the language of Isaiah: "He poured out his soul unto death." Peter declares that redemption was not purchased with corruptible things, as silver and gold, "but with the precious blood of Christ, as of a lamb without blemish and without spot." Nothing else in the universe could pay the price. It was this, or redemption were impossible. All other conceivable or existing values could be no consideration in this momentous transaction. All other sufferings could have no atoning efficacy. This single sacrifice was of any merit, and this in itself was ample to deliver from sin and to save the world. How precious that blood was may be inferred from the value which God has put upon it in making it the only ground of pardon to the guilty, and in bestowing all spiritual and temporal blessings with strict reference to its redemptive character. It will take an eternity of study and experience to fathom the preciousness which is affirmed of the Savior's blood. It is among the things "the angels desire to look into;" it was the subject of that celestial conference on the mount of transfiguration, and will doubtless be the theme of the redeemed and glorified forever.

It is this price paid to which every forgiven soul has looked, and to which every guilty sinner must look if he would be saved. Faith in the blood of Jesus is the central and saving truth of the gospel. "Whom God hath set forth to be a propitiation through faith in his blood." This single fact, believingly apprehended, leads to the heights of a justified and regenerated heart. How carefully the Scriptures distinguish and separate the blood of Christ from everything else as the ground of pardon is abundantly seen. "Therefore we conclude that a man is justified by faith without the deeds of the law." "And having made peace through the blood of his cross by him to reconcile all things unto himself." "In whom we have redemption through his blood, even the forgiveness of sins." As the price paid there are no accessories, no mixture of other values or considerations whatever. The blood of Christ covers the entire debt; it is in itself a complete ransom, and for purposes of merit, or to supplement this foundation, there is nothing to be added. The main difficulty in receiving the atonement lies in the disposition to incorporate our own righteousness with the righteousness of God, and to put our works, and other fancied considerations, by the side of the great sacrifice. Everything must fall away from view before we are prepared to look at this single object, and to realize that we are absolutely complete in Christ.

The highest motives of the Christian life are drawn from the blood of Christ. "Ye are bought with a price." How great that price would beggar words to tell; therefore the apostle leaves the simple statement without amplification. Body and soul, ye are bought with it; ye are not your own; glorify God. "The love of Christ constraineth us because we thus judge, that if one died for all, then were all dead." Living to self is out of the question in the presence of so affecting a declaration. "That they which live should not henceforth live unto themselves, but unto him which died for them and rose again." If the precious blood does not make Jesus precious to the soul, if it does not kindle a flame of love where all was before cold and dead, it is because we have not felt the price with which we are bought. It is utterly inconceivable that he should be any longer selfish and lukewarm who knows by experience that "the blood of Jesus Christ, his Son, cleanseth us from all sin." The eye which looks upon the crucified Christ, "who his own self bare our sins in his own body on the tree," must kindle, and the heart that takes in even a part of this wealth of love and agony must be inspired with a consuming zeal. The price paid — the precious blood — must surely be forgotten by those who are slow to labor, and still more backward to consecrate their money and talent. There are other arguments which touch more lightly, which go round and about through our reason and our interest; but this one goes straight to the heart — to the center of our highest faculties and affections. It is a motive of motives, transforming and lifting up the groveling and sensual nature. It illuminates and informs the whole life, and, like the rising sun, it not only sweeps away all that is dark, but it drowns all lesser orbs in its own superior brilliancy.

The uses of this conception of the atonement for comfort are obvious. Precious blood it is to him who sees how "the Lord hath laid on him the iniqnity of us all." "Who shall lay anything to the charge of God's elect? It is God that justifieth. Who is he that condemneth? It is Christ that died." The price is paid. The debt of sin, what was due to the divine law, guilt aggravated by light hated, a prisoner in bondage to the body of death, a captive and slave of the devil! But it is all paid. Silver and gold, penance and tears, all human worth and merit, thousands of rams and ten thousands of rivers of oil could not pay it. It is Christ that died. It is a doctrine not only to be justified by, but a truth of sanctifying power. It is the golden thread which runs through the experience of the child of God. It is the stronghold of comfort, a perpetual refuge, and "as the shadow of a great rock in a weary land." It is the rallying point in the onward march and conflict, the vantage ground of progress in holiness, the joy of life, and the sweetest of all solaces in death. Blessed above others are they who, in this vale of tears and warfare, can join with the exile of Patmos in that boldest and loftiest note of praise: "Unto him that loved us, and washed us from our sins in his own blood, and hath made us kings and priests unto God and our Father: to him be glory and dominion forever and ever. Amen." Such a song as this, begun on earth, cannot be interrupted by death, but the redeemed soul will carry it with him through the gates into the eternal city.

GOD is always inviting you to his throne. He says: "Let me hear thy voice; come near unto me, that I may bless thee."

AN INTERESTING VOLUME.

The book agent recently handed us a little volume entitled "A Sketch of the Life of Rev. Elijah Steele." It was written by the Rev. B. M. Drake, D. D., and contains a funeral discourse by Dr. Winans. We were surprised to learn that there is quite a large supply of the work on the shelves of the Depository, at 112 Camp street, and we believe there are many Methodists in Louisiana and Mississippi who would be glad to obtain copies. For ourselves we have perused its pages with fresh interest. Besides reviving the memory of one of the most gifted and devoted preachers who have labored and died in New Orleans, the book has a historical value to Methodism in our city. The thousands who still revere the names of Drake and Winans will find in it also some of the pleasantest memorials of those eminent ministers. And there are many other persons and families whose names are embalmed in this record of a saintly life. The book bears the imprint of the Methodist Book Concern at Cincinnati, and was published in the year 1843. Elijah Steele was appointed to the church in New Orleans near the close of 1840, and died of yellow fever on the fifteenth of September, 1841. His brief ministry in the city was one of remarkable zeal and power, and his death was eminently triumphant. His last words were: "I am safe." His remains rest in the Cypress Grove Cemetery, in a plain marble tomb. The thirty-one years which have passed since Steele died have not effaced the impress of his character and labors. The older people remember him well and affectionately, and the young people are familiar with his name.

"He, being dead, yet speaketh."

A CHANCE.

It will be seen by the subjoined communication from Dr. Haygood, in the Sunday School Visitor, that there is a chance for authors to secure a very handsome prize, and to do good. We hope several good books to enrich our Sunday school libraries will be the result of the proposition. Dr. Haygood says:

The agent, Rev. Dr. A. H. Redford, authorizes me to say that he will pay $300 for the best Sunday school book written for our young people.

Conditions: The manuscripts — not to be longer than one hundred and seventy-five pages foolscap, ordinary writing — must be in the hands of the Sunday school secretary by April 1, 1873. All manuscripts, judged suitable for our libraries by the Sunday school secretary, may be retained by the book agent.

Writers will choose their own fields. We suggest only this: Writers are not obliged to write either stories or essays, in order to make good Sunday school books.

The awards will be published in our May number, next year, at which time the "prize money" will be paid. The names of a suitable committee will be announced in due time.

Send all communications on the subject, or manuscripts, to the undersigned.

ATTICUS G. HAYGOOD,
Sunday School Secretary.

THE Mobile Register of September 14 says: "The Rev. John W. Booth was buried on Monday morning from the residence of his son-in-law, Captain Robert Otis, on the Spring Hill road, having departed this life on Sunday, at the ripe age of eighty-six. In expectation of a speedy departure, he was recently brought hither from Biloxi, where he had been spending some months with his son, and his remains now rest in our city, where he had spent nearly or quite half of a life actively devoted to the work of the gospel. At an early day he labored extensively in the ministry in Alabama and Mississippi, and was the first, we believe, to organize a society of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Mobile."

THE obituary of Rev. William C. Chamberlin, prepared by Bishop Keener, appears on our second page this week. It is a tribute to one of the worthiest of men, and will be read with affectionate interest by hundreds.

THERE will be passages of tears in life's journey, which the most loving pilgrim must tread; but as a Gaelic proverb beautifully says: "During distress God comes; and when he comes it is no more distress."

English Wesleyan Methodist Conference.

BY HIBERNICUS.

This large and influential body of Christian ministers assembled in City Road chapel, London, on the thirty-first of August, and after singing the well-known hymn, beginning with

"And are we yet alive?"

and prayer by two of the ministers, the Conference proceeded at once to fill up the vacancies in the Legal Hundred. There were nine, and four were chosen by seniority and five by nomination. The venerable Thomas Jackson, who was twice president of the Conference, and who filled other honorable and responsible offices with great credit to himself and service to the denomination during his ministerial career, was re-elected into the legal body. A law was passed, a few years ago, constituting ex-presidents life members of the Legal Hundred. Before it was passed Mr. Jackson had ceased to be a member, and the Conference took advantage of his presence to re-elect him — an honor which he acknowledged in a speech of much feeling. Sixty-eight years ago he was received as a probationer for the Methodist ministry in the same chapel. After the other vacancies were filled the Conference proceeded to elect its president and secretary. There were six candidates for the chair of the Conference: William B. Pope, a ripe and distinguished theologian, and theological professor in Didsbury College; Dr. James H. Rigg, editor of the Quarterly Review, and a man of imperial influence outside the denomination; Dr. George Osborn, who was president before, but never likely to be re-elected; Gervase Smith, a loud, boisterous, superficial preacher, but popular and influential withal; Alexander McAulay, an untiring and successful evangelist among the outlying population of London, and a preacher of great ability; Charles Haydon, who has been a candidate for many years, and who ought to have been elected, and would if real merit and valuable service alone constituted the rule of promotion; G. T. Perks, who was elected secretary, and Luke A. Wiseman. Mr. Wiseman was elected by two hundred and ninety two majority over any of the others. Mr. Perks was elected secretary by one hundred and thirty-eight majority over Gervase Smith, who received one hundred votes. The president merely thanked the brethren for the honor, and took the chair. Then followed the usual vote of thanks to the outgoing officers, which have become somewhat nauseous in their excessive adulation and eulogy. — Discriminating and merited praise is not out of place, but overdone laudation, where the vocabulary of flattery is exhausted of its adjectives to weave its garland, is not valuable, and cannot be acceptable or appreciated by those to whom it is offered. The Conference should dispense with this custom, or confine it to the simple moving and seconding of formal resolutions set in the fewest possible words. The assistant secretaries and letter writers were all unanimously re-elected.

A congratulatory address to the Queen, expressing thankfulness for the recovery of the Prince of Wales, was adopted, and also a memorial in reference to the contagious diseases act. The repeal of this demoralizing and infamous law is demanded by the indignant and outraged moral sense of the entire country.

A decrease of members during the year led to an earnest and searching conversation, extending over an entire session of the Conference. There has been great material prosperity and progress in every department of the connection except in the membership. Those who have no sympathy with Methodism, all those, again, who envy her increasing influence, will point only too readily to her depleting membership as an evidence of her decline. But, on the whole, the body never occupied so high and commanding a position, never wielded a wider influence, never was the medium of conferring greater spiritual benefactions than at the present time. Why, sir, in former times her existence was ignored, the deliberations of her annual assembly treated with supercilious unnotice, and her ministers with patronizing and contemptuous hauteur. But what is the case now? The discussions of the Conference are watched with interest by the nation at large; and even the Times of London and the Saturday Review had each a leader upon a debate in the recent Conference. And what may this change be attributed to? Has the Conference sought for such influence and distinction? Has it baited for such an honor? Has it thrown its influence into the scale of any political party? Nay, verily. It has risen to its present position by attending to the mission it was called into existence to perform, viz.: to spread scriptural holiness through the land. It has succeeded in this, and those other things have followed. Methodism is now an acknowledged power in the world; and, if faithful to its mission, to its history and to its God, it will increase and prosper still more, and become the mightiest instrument in the hands of the Head of the Church in carrying out his mediatorial designs, and in leading an alien and rebellious world back to its only rightful Sovereign and Lord. The conversation showed that the Conference felt persuaded that it was incumbent on them to preach fully and faithfully the gospel of Christ, and to eschew the novelties of style, thought and expression which have obscured the luster and weakened the power of the pulpit of sister communions. Let Darwin & Co. speculate and dogmatize as they may; let Colenso and his followers try to their utmost to weaken and invalidate the voice of inspiration, and denude it of its authenticity and authority; let others reach forth the proud and presumptuous hands and attempt to snatch from the brow of the Son of God the diadem of divinity and godhead that sparkles there with a radiance that illumines the courts of heaven with immortal splendor, and attempt to raise mere human teachers to his seat of pre-eminent and supreme teachership; let flippant and egotistical pulpit buffoons, eaten up with overweening vanity, strut and swagger with intellectual pomposity in the pulpit of the house of God, and play fast and loose with the solemn and saving truths of the gospel to collect a crowd, raise a laugh, and secure popularity and fame; but Christ crucified is still, and nevertheless, the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth. And as long as Methodism continues faithful to this doctrine, in its breadth and depth and fullness, so long will she be able successfully to cope with error, by whomsoever advanced, and to overcome all the assailants of truth, however thoroughly replenished out of the schools of mere human learning, and march gloriously forward, conquering and to conquer, until her mission is accomplished, and the approval of the Master be the benediction at its close.

A long and animated debate on the education question characterized the Conference. This was the debate of the session. It was opened by Mr. Arthur in a broad and catholic speech. His motion was seconded by Dr. T. D. Waddy, one of the veteran debaters of the assembly. Mr. Arthur advocated biblical and unsectarian religious instruction in the schools; but I fail to see how this can be secured. If Bible instruction is to be given, it must be given by some one who has denominational preferences and leanings, and his denominational bias will of course tinge and sway the instruction he imparts. The reasoning of Mr. Arthur's speech had no logical, consistent connection with his premise. It was a beautiful, eloquent and catholic speech, but when this is said all is said that can be stated in its favor. An amendment was proposed by the Rev. William Shaw, an ex-president, and seconded by the Rev. Frederick Greeves, the youngest of three brothers, who are rendering eminent service to the church of their father, who was also a Methodist minister. The chair of the Conference has been filled by two brothers — Thomas and Samuel Jackson. Two, at least, of the Greeves brothers will occupy the same distinguished seat. Messrs. J. R. Hargreaves, McAnlay, Bond and Holland supported Mr. Arthur's motion. On the other side were Drs. Rigg and Osborn, and Messrs. Oliver, Simpson and Jenkins. Several distinguished members were prepared to speak, but were prevented for want of time. The whole matter is referred to a committee of laymen and ministers, who are to meet in a few weeks. Mr. Holland inveighed somewhat caustically against the Established Church, but he was reproved by Dr. Osborn when the doctor rose to address the Conference. The assembly did not sympathize with the doctor. The views of the assembly on this subject are altogether different from what they were a few years ago.

The two Benjamins — Gregory and Frankland — are continued as official editors, and Dr. Johnson as book steward. Rev. John D. Geden succeeds Rev. John Lomas as theological professor at Headingly College, Leeds.

The Revs. W. B. Boyce, W. B. Pope and J. Hartley were appointed to prepare a reply to the address of the French Conference. The Revs. W. Williams, Dr. Rigg and J. V. B. Shrewsbury were desired to write the reply to the Canadian, and the Revs. William Arthur, W. Shaw, W. Butlers and W. Hirst to reply to the Australian Conference.

Upward of eighty young men were received on trial as candidates for the ministry, and more than seventy were ordained by the laying on of hands. The ordination service had to be divided, so that two services were held and two charges delivered. Revs. Dr. J. H. James and John Farrar delivered the charges.

At the open session of Conference, held on the first day of meeting, a distinguished Congregational minister, Rev. Dr. Stoughton, offered prayer — the first instance of a minister of another body joining in such a service.

The public were admitted to witness the closing of the Conference. The journal was read and signed by the president and secretary, the Conference standing. A hymn was then sung, after which Mr. Radcliffe engaged in prayer. The Conference was then dismissed by the president pronouncing the benediction.

PERIODICALS.

GOOD HEALTH AND MENTAL BLISS for October contains the usual amount and variety of useful and entertaining matter.

FOR EVERYBODY is the title of a handsomely illustrated monthly, published at Buffalo, New York. We have received the September number.

DEPARTURE OF MISSIONARIES.—On Thursday of last week seven missionaries of the Presbyterian Foreign Board sailed for Mexico. Next week sixteen will take their departure for India. The Evangelist states that between the first of May and the first of November forty-seven will have gone to their respective fields. Thirty of these have never before been in the employment of the board.

Rev. John Packer, late professor in the Missouri State University, has been appointed missionary teacher by the Baptist Missionary Union, to labor in either the Theological Seminary or Baptist College at Rangoon. He will leave about the middle of October.

THE Christian Guardian announces the death of Rev. William Ryerson, at Grand River, September 15. That paper says: "He was at one time probably the most eloquent and impressive popular speaker in Canada. He entered the itinerant work in 1821, before some of our comparatively senior ministers were born, and was superannuated in 1858. A great part of that time he was a presiding elder or chairman of a district. He was president of Conference in 1841. He was one of the few remaining links that connect the present of our church with a past generation."

HIS WORKS FOLLOW HIM.—Rev. Dr. E. D. Saunders, whose liberal donation of ground and buildings, amounting to $160,000, led to the establishment of the Presbyterian hospital in Philadelphia, died in that city September 13, at the age of sixty-three years.

THE word of the Lord abideth forever; his covenant is sure; his love is unchangeable; his promises are immutable. Draw nigh unto him in the full assurance of faith, and your night of trouble will be turned into joyous day.

THE gates of heaven are low-arched — we must enter upon our knees.

THE BRIDAL WINE CUP.

"Pledge with wine—pledge with wine," cried the young and thoughtless Harvey Wood; "pledge with wine," ran through the bridal party.

The beautiful bride grew pale—the decisive hour had come. She pressed her white hands together, and the leaves of the bridal wreath trembled on her brow; her breath came quicker, and her heart beat wilder.

"Yes, Marion, lay aside your scruples for this once," said the judge, in a low tone, going toward his daughter; "the company expect it. Do not so seriously infringe upon the rules of etiquette; in your own home do as you please, but in mine, for this once, please me."

Every eye was turned toward the bridal pair. Marion's principles were well known. Harvey had been a convivialist, but of late his friends noticed the change in his manners, the difference in his habits; and to-night they watched him to see, as they sneeringly said, if he was tied down to a woman's opinion so soon.

Pouring a brimming cup, they held it with tempting smiles toward Marion. She was very pale, though more composed; and her hand shook not as, smiling back, she gracefully accepted the crystal tempter, and raised it to her lips. But scarcely had she done so when every hand was arrested by her piercing exclamation of "O! how terrible!"

"What is it?" cried one and all, thronging together, for she had slowly carried the glass at arm's length, and was fixedly regarding it as though it were some hideous object.

"Wait," she answered, while a light, which seemed inspired, shone from her dark eyes; "wait, and I will tell you. I see," she added, slowly pointing one jeweled finger at the sparkling ruby liquid, "a sight that beggars all description; and yet listen—I will paint it for you if I can. It is a lovely spot; tall mountains crowned with verdure rise in awful sublimity around; a river runs through, and bright flowers grow to the water's edge. There is a thick warm mist, that the sun seeks vainly to pierce. Trees, lofty and beautiful, wave to the airy motion of the birds; but there—a group of Indians gather; they flit to and fro, with something like sorrow upon their dark brows. And in their midst lies a manly form—but his cheek, how deathly; his eye, wild with the fitful fire of fever. One friend stands behind him—nay, I should say kneels, for see, he is pillowing that poor head upon his breast.

"Genius in ruins—O! the high, holy looking brow! why should death mark it, and he so young? Look how he throws back the damp curls! see him clasp his hands! hear his thrilling shrieks for life! mark how he clutches at the form of his companion, imploring to be saved. O! hear him call piteously his father's name—see him twine his fingers together as he shrieks for his sister—his only sister—the twin of his soul—weeping for him in his distant native land.

"See!" she exclaimed, while the bridal party shrank back, the untasted wine trembling in their faltering grasp, and the judge fell overpowered, upon his seat—"see! his arms are lifted to heaven—he prays, how wildly, for mercy! Hot fever rushes through his veins. The friend beside him is weeping; awe-stricken, the dark men move silently away, and leave the living and the dying together."

There was a hush in that princely parlor, broken only by what seemed a smothered sob from some manly bosom. The bride stood yet upright, with quivering lip, and tears stealing to the outward edge of her lashes. Her beautiful arm had lost its tension, and the glass, with its little troubled red waves, came slowly toward the range of her vision. She spoke again; every lip was mute. Her voice was low, faint, yet awfully distinct; she still fixed her sorrowful glance upon the wine cup.

"It is evening now; the great white moon is coming up, and her beams lie gently on his forehead. He moves not; his eyes are set in their sockets; dim are their piercing glances; in vain his friend whispers the name of father and sister—death is there. Death—and no soft hand, no gentle voice to bless and soothe him. His head sinks back! One convulsive shudder—he is dead!"

A groan ran through the assembly. So vivid was her description, so unearthly her look, so inspired her manner, that what she described seemed actually to have taken place then and there. They noticed also that the bridegroom hid his face in his hands and was weeping.

"Dead!" she repeated again, her lips quivering faster and faster, and her voice more and more broken; "and there they scoop him a grave, and there, without a shroud, they lay him down in that dump, reeking earth; the only son of a proud father, the only idolized brother of a fond sister. And he sleeps to-day in that distant country, with no stone to mark the spot. There he lies—my father's son—my own twin brother! a victim to this deadly poison. Father," she exclaimed, turning suddenly, while the tears rained down her beautiful cheeks, "father, shall I drink it now?"

The form of the old judge was convulsed with agony. He raised not his head, but in a smothered voice he faltered: "No, no, my child—no!"

She lifted the glittering goblet, and letting it suddenly fall to the floor, it was dashed in a thousand pieces. Many a tearful eye watched her movement, and instantaneously every wine glass was transferred to the marble table on which it had been prepared. Then, as she looked at the fragments of crystal, she turned to the company, saying: "Let no friend hereafter, who loves me, tempt me to peril my soul for wine. Not firmer are the everlasting hills than my resolve, God helping me, never to touch or taste the poison cup. And he to whom I have given my hand—who watched over my brother's dying form in that last solemn hour, and buried the dear wanderer there by the river, in that land of gold, will, I trust, sustain me in that resolve. Will you not, my husband?"

His glistening eyes, his sad, sweet smile, was her answer. The judge left the room, and when, an hour after, he returned, and with a more subdued manner took part in the entertainment of the bridal guests, no one could fail to read that he, too, had determined to banish the enemy at once and forever from his princely home.

Those who were present at that wedding can never forget the impressions so solemnly made. Many from that hour renounced forever the social glass.

The Circular and the Onward Movement.

Such is the title of a sermon recently preached by Dr. Hopkins, and founded upon Ecclesiastes iii, 15. This sermon, says the Congregationalist, begins with an illustration, taken from the motions of the planets, which is continued to the end. Our planetary system, we are told, has two movements—one circular, by which the motions return upon themselves, and the other onward in infinite space. So there are two great movements in human life, in one of which a succession of events is repeated over and over every generation; in the other there is a progress which is ever onward. In the circular movement "there is one event to the righteous and to the wicked;" in the onward movement "it shall be well with them that fear God; it shall not be well with the wicked." In those two movements the preacher finds a key to the seeming discrepancies in the Book of Ecclesiastes, and to the alleged want of harmony between science and religion. Moral progress is in connection with a movement that turns not back upon itself, and is the only progress worth making; will draw after it all other progress, and make it permanent; and, as it must be through Christ's method, it must also be through his power and leadership. The thought of the discourse is developed with all the preacher's usual skill, and with more than his accustomed tenderness. Our readers will be interested in the following quotation:

"Do I, then, disparage the world? Far from it. It is God's world. He made it; not in mockery of his creatures, or for their disappointment, but for their use. It is just such a world that is adapted to man in his present condition; and so viewed, every creature in it is good. It is marvelous in its adjustments and in its provisions. It is pleasant to live in it. * * * The world is good for what it was intended to be; but an inn is not a home. It is no disparagement of it to say so; and when he who would make it so is disappointed, it is his own fault. * * * The great mistake of men is that they do not rightly adjust their plans to the relation between the circular and the onward movement. * * * Make as much as you will of the objects and interests of the circular movement, if you do but so subordinate them to those of the onward movement that they shall contribute in the highest degree to the interests involved in that. * * * The circular movement is subordinate. It was intended to be. If that movement were all—if life were but the same round over and over—we might well go about, as Solomon did when he looked at it in this aspect, to cause our hearts to despair of all the labor that we take under the sun. But that is not all.

"'Tis not the whole of life to live,
Nor all of death to die!"

The average estimated cost of the Congregational churches in the United States is about $22 a sitting; of Presbyterian, a little less; of Episcopal, about $36; of Methodist and Baptist, about $10.

A memory well stored with Scripture, and sanctified by grace, is the best library.

THE JESUITS ARE COMING.

Germany has expelled the Jesuits. Their history in that country, as it has been in all others, has been one of secret political intrigue in favor of the authority of the Pope, and superior to and against that of the national government. The peace and safety, therefore, of the nation required their overthrow. Fortunately for Germany, Bismarck was equal to the hour, and the edict for expulsion was prepared and signed by the King and boldly issued. It will be carried out.

Many of the Jesuit chiefs are already in this country, and other thousands are coming. The millions of dollars raised here ostensibly for the "relief of the suffering Pope" will constitute the "sinews of demonstration" in securing their migration, establishment and political power in the United States. The immense contributions of the Roman Catholics of other nations will be used for the same purpose. As an instance of the work now going forward we quote the following note from Father Chiniquy, of the Evangelist:

"One of them, the precursor of many others, has made his appearance in our midst lately (we suppose at Kankakee, Illinois,) and after having purchased one hundred acres of land near our railroad depot, he has contracted for five hundred thousand bricks to begin the building of a college, which will cost $150,000. He does not conceal that the Church of Rome is determined to regain her lost ground here, at any cost. She has already expended nearly $200,000 on nunneries and Jesuit colleges in this colony and vicinity, and she is ready to expend still more to attain her object."

The question will ere long be forced upon us with an emphasis never before known among us: "Shall Rome, intolerant, corrupt and corrupting as ever, hear rule among Americans?" Free, Protestant American citizens, how shall this question be answered?—New York Christian Advocate.

Dr. Wines, the delegate from the United States and Mexico to the International Prison Congress in London, says Church and State of September 25, arrived in this city on Monday, in the Baltic. He is highly gratified at the results of the congress. The deliberations were continued through ten days, and adjourned on the thirteenth of July. A system of international prison discipline was adopted, similar to that set forth at Cincinnati in 1870. An international committee was appointed to secure uniformity in the treatment of prisoners, consisting of Dr. Wines, United States, as chairman; M. Beltrumi-Scalia, Italy, secretary; Dr. Frei, Germany; Dr. Guillaume, Switzerland; G. W. Hastings, England; Baron Von Holtzendorff, Austria; M. Loyser, France; M. Pols, Holland; Count Sollohub, Russia; and M. Sturns, Belgium. During the sittings of the congress his royal highness the Prince of Wales and the Hon. H. A. Bruce attended, as did also a large number of the nobility. There were delegates from nearly all the countries of Europe and South America, embracing twenty-five nationalities. The question of the treatment of convicts before and during imprisonment and their penal disposition was discussed, as also the most efficient means of diminishing the present criminal record of the world. Dr. Wines, as the delegate from the United States and Mexico, will submit his report to these two governments at an early day. Arrangements have been made for an International Congress in Baltimore in January next. The meeting was in all respects unprecedented in the history of prison reform, and promises highly beneficial results.

Married.

September 26, 1872 at the residence of the bride's father, at Hinden Springs, Alabama, by the Rev. R. M. Powers, Mr. JOHN H. LONG to Miss FANNIE, daughter of the Rev. W. Ira Powers.

CONFERENCE REGISTER.

Conference.	Place.	Time.	Bishop.
St Louis	Arcadia	Oct. 16	Pierce.
Arkansas	Bentonville.	Oct. 16	Wightman.
Tennessee	Nashville	Oct. 16.	Doggett.
Los Angeles.	Los Nietos.	Oct. 16	McTyeire.
N. W. Texas.	Belton	Oct. 23.	Keener.
White River.	Augusta	Oct. 30.	Wightman.
Trinity	Sul. Springs.	Nov. 6	Keener.
Memphis	Somerville	Nov. 20.	Wightman.
N. Alabama	Tuskaloosa.	Nov 20.	Doggett.
East Texas.	Tyler	Nov 20.	Keener.
Virginia	Petersburg	Nov. 20.	Paine.
N. Georgia.	Atlanta	Nov. 27.	Marvin.
N. Mississippi.	Corinth	Nov. 27.	Kavanaugh
Little Rock	Pine Bluff	Dec. 4	Wightman
Texas	Bryan	Dec. 4.	Keener.
N. Carolina	Raleigh	Dec. 4.	Paine.
S. Georgia.	Thomasv'le.	Dec. 11.	Marvin.
Mississippi.	Brandon	Dec. 11.	Kavanaugh
Alabama	Eufaula	Dec. 11.	Doggett.
West Texas.	Victoria	Dec. 18.	Keener.
S. Carolina.	Anderson	Dec. 18.	Paine.
Louisiana	N. Orleans.	Jan. 8	Pierce.
Florida	Fernandina.	Jan. 8.	Marvin.
Baltimore.	Baltimore	Mar. 6.	Paine.

The Equitable Life Assurance Society, New York.

Assets, $18,000,000. Income, $8,000,000.

Branch office—33 Camp Street.

A. P. CLEVELAND,
fe8 1y General Agent.

Dr. Henry's Root and Plant Pills.—Mild yet thorough; no nausea or griping; entirely vegetable; great liver remedy. Price, 25 cents. Sold by druggists. jy18 1y

Agt's & Publisher's Department

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS OF LETTERS and Funds, Received By Mail, for the week ending Oct. 5, 1872:

A—Philip Allen, N W Ayer & Son 2 lets, D Appleton & Co, American Tract Society, Wm T Ashford, C G Andrews, E P Angell $1.

B—Mrs L A Benjamin $2, Jas E Bradley, J Harvey Brigham, P B Bridges, Barnes & Wilkinson, S G Burk.

C—M M C Carmichael 69 cts, Geo Colfield, B P B Cleary, Claxton, Remsen & Haffelfinger, T M Coleman, Mrs D T Chamberlain, Baxter Clegg $4, Bond E Christzburg $12.75.

D—R A Daves, Dufur & Co $10, W R Davis, W J C Dulaney & Co.

E—S R Ellis $3.85, W A Edwards.

F—E A Flowers, F W Farwell, E N Freshman.

G—Jas M Goodman, Wm C Gildens, Jas M Gann, H B Graham & Bro, J W Guinn, Green & Carter, O C Gramling.

H—Hammersly & Co, E S Hill $4.25, Hubbard Bros, Joshua T Heard.

J—H F Johnson 2 lots $100.

K—Chas D Klag, J M Kelly, R W Kennon $18.65, M S Kinnebrew, J G King, Kittrell & Purnell 2 lots $5.56.

L—H P Lewis $6, J B Lippincott & Co, A C Littlejohn, Lee, Shepard & Dillingham.

M—W H McGowaa, T Moody, Charles C Maigne, C McDonald $6, David Merchant, J M Mason, A H Moss $565.

N—C B Norman $1.25.

P—John A Pace, S M Pettengill & Co, Pierce & Terry $17.55, W G Perry, J M Pugh, Packwood & Lampton $81.

R—I M Roberts $5.50, J K Randall 4 lots, J W Rush, A H Redford.

S—A H Sutherland $1.50, J W Sandell, D S Staples & Co, A P Sage $4, W K Simmons $2, Chas Scribner & Co, J W Schermerhorn, H L Smith $31.13, H F Slack $1.25.

T—S M Thames $20.

U—H Urquhart $10.

W—Fred White, George Watson, Wilkins Bros & Co, H G Wunsch, J Woodbridges, T B White, T B Wheeler $47.95, S P Wells & Co, H P Wells.

Y—R E Yancey.

Extent of Circulation.—The New Orleans Daily Times claims that its circulation is "Over double that of any other journal in the South." If the Christian Advocate be regarded as one of the "journals in the South," the Times is ill-informed. Our opportunities for obtaining accurate information are equal to those of the publishers of the Times. Their circulation cannot be more than their issue. Their regular issue falls to between two and three thousand below the circulation of the Advocate, according to our information.

The Hon. George Torrey, of Mississippi, is in the city, and will leave on the steamship Belgian for Liverpool, on Saturday next, the twelfth instant, with a view to bring out, under orders received here, English servants, laborers and mechanics. Mr. Torrey can be seen daily, from twelve M. to two P. M., at the office of Captain Wicks, No. 48 Carondelet street, by those who may be disposed to give him orders.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

The Ills that Flesh is Heir to are many, but a remedy for them all is furnished by nature. There is no doubt that for every disease there is an antidote in the vegetable kingdom. The aborigines were the victims of many and loathsome maladies, yet they found in the wilds of their forests remedies sure and powerful. Acting on this belief, Dr. Tutt's Sarsaparilla is offered the public as a most highly concentrated vegetable compound, possessing extraordinary power for the cure of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Scrofula, Ulcers, Swelling of the Glands, Eruptions of the Skin, Liver Complaint, the effect of mercury, etc. It is a most powerful Alterative and Blood Purifier, and at the same time so harmless that it may be used by all.

Watch out for Chills and Fever, and prepare the system for resisting his attack by using Dr. Tutt's Liver Pills. oct13 1t

Dr. Tutt's Hair Dye is Used in Europe and America.

Take Simmons' Liver Regulator regularly, enjoy health yourself, and give gratification to those about you.

You will have cause to bless the day you heard of Simmons' Liver Regulator. oct6 1t

Price's Celebrated Stomach Bitters.—The Great Vegetable Restorative and Life-Giving Principle.—This wonderful vegetable restorative, since it has been before the public as a Tonic (October, 1869,) the quantity sold has been some 150,000 dozen, and in every instance given the greatest satisfaction. For dyspepsia, general debility, chills and fever, nervous affections, torpor of the liver, constipation of the bowels, fever and ague, and all choleraic maladies, these Bitters will be found invaluable to all who desire a stimulating Tonic, and are particularly recommended to all persons traveling, by land or sea. Wherever introduced it has become a standard article. It is the best and purest Tonic offered. As a Tonic and Cordial it has no equal among stomachics.

It is also a great blood purifier, a life-giving principle, and a perfect renovator of the system. No one can take these Bitters long and remain unwell. A single trial will convince any one of the merits claimed for them. Sold by grocers, druggists and dealers throughout the South.

Address James W. Paice & Co, sole manufacturers and proprietors, Lock Box 166, New Orleans, Louisiana. se5 2m

Mrs. Whitcomb's Syrup.—The great soothing remedy. Price only 25 cents. Gives rest to the mother and health to the child. Sold by druggists. jy18 1y

Have your Printing and Binding Done at

THE PELICAN JOB OFFICE,

113 and 114 Poydras St., New Orleans

jn18 1y

Twelve Samples (Postage Free) for fifty cents. Sells for $10. R. L. Wolcott, 181 Chatham square, N. Y. se26 1y

Use Dr. Henry's World's Tonic and Blood Purifier.—It is the great household remedy, pleasant to take, yet potent for the prevention and cure of diseases. It is better than Bitters, Cordials, Buchu or Sarsaparilla. Sold by druggists. jy18 1y

Caution!—Every genuine box of Dr. McLane's Liver Pills bears the signature of Fleming Brothers, Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, and their private United States stamp. ☞ Take no other; the market is full of imitations.

It is the popular verdict that people who have been accustomed to the use of Bitters or Cordials are obliged eventually to resort to McLane's Liver Pills for permanent relief. np25 6m

WILLIAM HOGAN,
Manufacturer of and Dealer in
BOOTS, SHOES, TRUNKS, VALISES AND BAGS,
FRENCH AND AMERICAN,
Also Agent for the Empire Sewing Machine,
99 AND 101 CANAL STREET,
an1 3m New Orleans.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

JUST PUBLISHED.

EVOLUTION OF LIFE.

BY HENRY C. CHAPMAN, M. D.,

MEMBER OF THE ACADEMY OF NATURAL SCIENCES OF PHILADELPHIA.

ILLUSTRATED WITH NUMEROUS LITHOGRAPHIC PLATES.

8vo. Extra Cloth. $4.

"We have endeavored to place before the reader, in as popular a manner as possible, the most important generalization in reference to the structure of plants and animals, their petrified remains, and mode of development, and to point out how the theory of the evolution of life follows from the acts of anatomy, geology and embryology."—The Author's Preface.

☞ For sale by Booksellers generally, or will be sent by mail, post-paid, on receipt of the price by

J. B. LIPPINCOTT & CO., Publishers,
715 AND 717 MARKET ST.,
oct10 2t Philadelphia

BEST OFFER YET.—$8 FOR $3!

Moore's Rural New Yorker,

THE GREAT NATIONAL ILLUSTRATED

RURAL, LITERARY & FAMILY WEEKLY, has for over Twenty Years been the Standard in its Sphere, and now has more Editors, more Departments, and more and better Illustrations than any other journal of its class. It is the acknowledged

Favorite for the Farm and Fireside, and is, as an exchange says, "the most ably edited, elegantly printed, widely circulated and heartily welcomed paper, as a whole, which now finds its way among the people." It is not only the Standard in Rural and Domestic Affairs, but a superior Literary and Family paper. Sixteen Quarto pages weekly, and, aside from practical and literary matter, Illustrations, etc., contains late News, Financial and Market Reports, etc.

A GRAND PREMIUM.

MOORE'S RURAL is $2 50 a year, but we will send it for the ensuing Fifteen Months (October 1, 1872, to January 1, 1874—sixty-five numbers,) and a copy of our splendid Steel Engraving, Birthday Morning, or the Gardener's Present (size 24x30—a $5 picture,) for only $3; or we will send the Engraving to every one remitting $5 for ten Trial Subscribers for next quarter, October to January—thirteen numbers. The Engraving is first-class—a gem fit to adorn any home in town or country. Address

D. D. T. MOORE,
oct10 1t New York City.

JUST PUBLISHED.

Butler's Ecclesiastical History,

SECOND SERIES.—COMPLETING THE WORK.

AN ECCLESIASTICAL HISTORY FROM the Thirteenth to the Nineteenth Century. By the Rev. C. M. Butler, D. D., Professor of Ecclesiastical History in the Divinity School of the Protestant Episcopal Church, West Philadelphia. One volume, royal 8vo, cloth, $3.50. The work complete, two volumes, $7.

DALTON'S COMMENTARY.

AN EXPLANATORY AND CRITICAL COMMENTARY on the NEW TESTAMENT, Intended chiefly as a Help to Family Devotion. By the Rev. W. Dalton, D. D., Prebendary of Lichfield, and Vicar of St. Philips, Penn, near Wolverhampton. Fourth edition. Two vols., royal 8vo, cloth. Price, $12.

PRESENT ISSUES, OR FACTS OBSERVABLE in the Consciousness of the Age. By Rev. Robert Withers Memminger, author of "What Is Religion?" One volume, 12mo, cloth. Price, $1.50.

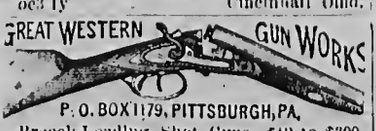
☞ Sold at the principal book stores, or where not obtainable the publishers will send copies by mail on receipt of the price.

Claxton, Remsen & Haffelfinger,
819 and 821 Market street,
an22 3m Philadelphia.

$30 PER WEEK AND EXPENSES paid. We want a reliable agent in every County in the United States. Address Hudson River Wire Co., 130 Maiden Lane, New York, or Chicago, Illinois. oc30 1yeow

IMPORTANT FRENCH MEDICAL DISCOVERY. Interesting to all. Health in a Bottle. Consumption, Chlorosis, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Dyspepsia and Pulmonary Tubercules radically cured with the Elixir J. F. Bernard, of Paris. This wonderful remedy is accepted by the most distinguished and celebrated French physicians, and in constant use in the French hospitals. Valuable instructions and information on the above seal (free) to all who desire it by addressing A. Bernard & Co., Sole Agents, 62 William street, N. Y. Postoffice Box 4125. For sale by all respectable druggists. oct13 1m

IS BY FAR
THE BEST MUSIC BOOK
For Churches, Singing Schools and Musical Conventions.
EMPHATICALLY A NEW BOOK.
New in Method, new in Lessons, new in Departments, new in Music.
HAS 400 PAGES
filled with new and fresh music. It includes also an elementary course of the best character, with interesting exercises, tunes and easy pieces for practice. A specimen copy will be sent, post paid, on receipt of $1 25, by the publishers, JOHN CHURCH & CO.,
oct 1y Cincinnati, Ohio.



P. O. BOX 1179, PITTSBURGH, PA.
Breech-Loading Shot Guns, $10 to $300. Double Shot Guns $8 to $150. Single Guns, $3 to $20. Rifles, $8 to $75. Revolvers $6 to $25. Send stamp for Price List. Army Guns, Revolvers, etc., etc., bought or traded for. an15 1yeow

S. COLLINS & CO.,
MANUFACTURERS OF
PRINTING INK,
Office and Depot—26 Frankfort Street,
jy25 6m NEW YORK.

WAVERLY STABLES.
HAYDEN & MEENAN, Proprietors.
LIVERY AND SALE STABLES,
No. 30 North Royal Street, Mobile.
Carriages and Buggies of the latest styles, and superior Horses, furnished at all hours. Calls of every description will receive prompt attention. jn4 1y

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

This unrivaled medicine is warranted not to contain a single particle of Mercury, or any injurious mineral substance, but is

PURELY VEGETABLE.

For Forty Years it has proved its great value in all diseases of the LIVER, BOWELS and KIDNEYS. Thousands of the good and great in all parts of the country vouch for its wonderful and peculiar power in purifying the Blood, stimulating the torpid Liver and Bowels, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system. SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR is acknowledged to have no equal as a

LIVER MEDICINE.

It contains four medical elements never united in the same happy proportion in any other preparation; viz.: a gentle Cathartic, a wonderful Tonic, an unexceptionable Alterative, and a certain Corrective of all impurities of the body. Such signal success has attended its use that it is now regarded as the

GREAT UNFAILING SPECIFIC

for Liver Complaint and the painful offspring thereof, to wit: Dyspepsia, Constipation, Jaundice, Bilious attacks, Sick Headache, Colic, Depression of Spirits, Sour Stomach, Heart Burn, etc. Regulate the Liver and prevent

CHILLS AND FEVER.

SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR is manufactured only by

J. H. ZEILIN & CO.,
Macon, Georgia, and Philadelphia.

Price, $1 per package; sent by mail, postage paid, $1.25 Prepared ready for use in bottles, $1.50. Sold by all druggists.

☞ Beware of all Counterfeits and Imitations. se19 1y

INSURANCE.....INSURANCE.

LOUISIANA

Equitable Life Insurance Company,

CHARTERED BY THE STATE OF LOUISIANA,

Office—Cor. Carondelet and Gravier Sts.

Parties desiring life insurance are informed that this company issues policies of insurance on all approved plans as low as any other company. All policies are non-forfeitable. Losses adjusted and settled with promptness and liberality. JAMES H. LOW,
se26 1m President.

JOSEPH GILLOTT'S

STEEL PENS,

OF THE OLD STANDARD QUALITY.

TRADE MARK: JOSEPH GILLOTT, Or Descriptive Name and Design Warranted. nat'lag Number.

The well known Original and Popular Nos.,

303.....404.....170.....351,

having been assumed by other Makers, we desire to caution the public in respect to said imitations. ☞ ASK FOR GILLOTT'S.

JOS. GILLOTT & SONS,
jy25 1y 91 John Street, N. Y.

GARDEN SEEDS,

FIELD SEEDS,

FLOWER SEEDS,

Grown largely by ourselves, on our own grounds, near Haddonfield, New Jersey.

COLLINS, BOWNS & CO.,
Warehouse, 1113 Market street,
Philadelphia, Pa.

Catalogue and Price-List furnished on application. The trade supplied on liberal terms. an22 3m

JOHN DOUGLAS, DEALER IN

Fancy and Staple Dry Goods,

NOS. 102 AND 104 RAILROAD STREET,

MOBILE, ALABAMA.

Agent for the Florence Sewing Machine.

All goods warranted as represented, and sold at the lowest rates for Cash, our object being large sales and small profits. ja1 1y

BARLOW'S INDIGO BLUE is the cheapest and best article in the market for BLUEING CLOTHES.

The genuine has both Barlow and Wilthberger's names on the label, and is put up at Wiltberger's Drug Store, No 233 North Second street, Philadelphia. For sale by grocers and druggists.

D. S. WILTBERGER,
an29 3m Proprietor.

The Great National Park in the Yosemite valley, when finished and fenced in, will be the grandest pleasure-ground in the world. If it had a fine mechanical spring, like the German Seltzer, it would be perfect. Yet this is of no importance, for who goes anywhere in summer without being provided with which is identical in its components and its effects with the famous Prussian Spa? It takes but an instant to evolve from this preparation the most delightful and admirable of all medicinal draughts. As a cure for biliousness, rheumatism, indigestion, constipation, nervousness, etc., and as a renovator of the system, it stands alone. Sold by all druggists. oct3 2t

Tarrant's Effervescent Seltzer Aperient,

40 DROPS OF CONSTITUTION WATER, three times a day, cure inflammation of the Kidneys, Stone in the Bladder, Catarrh of the Bladder, Diabetes, Gravel, Gleet, Brick-dust Deposit, Female Complaints, Dyspepsia and Torpid Liver. It is not a spring water. For sale by E. J. HART & CO.,
se26 6mos 73 75 and 77 Tchoupitoulas st.

FREE TO BOOK AGENTS

SENT FREE TO AGENTS A COMPLETE Canvassing Outfit of the PICTORIAL HOME BIBLE, with Bible History, Analysis, Dictionary, Tables and Promises too numerous to mention; profusely illustrated. The cheapest and best selling all others. Address

WM. FLINT & CO., Atlanta, Ga.,
oct3 3m Philadelphia, Pa., or Cincinnati, O.

J. A. NORSWORTHY & CO.,

BANKERS,

24 Walnut street, Jefferson, Texas.

Correspondents.—Oliver, Edwards & Co., New Orleans; Northrup & Chile, New York; Bartholow, Lewis & Co., St. Louis. se26 1y

$5 TO $20 per Day. Agents Wanted. All classes of working people, of either sex, young or old, make more money at work for us in their spare moments, or all the time, than at anything else. Particulars free. Address G. STINSON & CO., se12 1y Portland, Maine.

The Child's Corner.

JOHNNIE'S OPINION OF GRANDMOTHERS.

Grandmothers are very nice folks;
They beat all the saints in creation—
They let a chap do as he likes,
And don't worry about education.

I'm sure I can't see it at all,
What a poor fellow ever could do
For apples and pennies and cakes,
Without a grandmother or two.

Grandmothers speak softly to "ma's"
To let a boy have a good time;
Sometimes they will whisper, 'tis true,
T'other way when a boy wants to climb.

Grandmothers have muffins for tea,
And pies, a whole row, in the cellar,
And they're apt (if they know it in time)
To make chicken pies for a "feller."

And if he is bad now and then,
And makes a great racketing noise,
They only look over their specs
And say: "Ah, these boys will be boys.

"Life is only so short at the best;
Let the children be happy to-day."
Then they look for a while at the sky,
And the hills that are far, far away.

Quite often, as twilight comes on,
Grandmothers sing hymns, very low,
To themselves as they rock by the fire,
About heaven, and when they shall go.

And then, a boy stopping to think,
Will find a hot tear in his eye,
To know what will come at the last;
For grandmothers all have to die.

I wish they could stay here and pray,
For a boy needs their prayers every night;
Some boys more than others, I s'pose;
Such as I need a wonderful sight.

Little Sower.

The Children's Crusades.

BY UNCLE WILLIE.

One of the strangest events in history is what we call the Children's Crusades. And, because so little is said about them in historical books, we propose to give our little readers a short account of them, for they are of intense interest to the children, as well as to grown people.

The holy city of Jerusalem, where Christ was crucified and buried, finally came into possession of the infidel Turks, and they treated the tomb of our Savior and all the sacred places with great disrespect. This made the Christians of Europe very angry, and in the latter part of the eleventh century they gathered in immense numbers to march to the Holy Land to take the sacred places. These expeditions were called crusades, and they formed immense armies.

The first grand one, under Peter the Hermit, failed; and there went another, under Godfrey of Bouillon, who was successful in taking Jerusalem. But when he died the infidels again became troublesome, and a third crusade was organized, and so on until the people in Europe became very much discouraged, and in the meanwhile the holy city fell back again into the hands of the bitter enemies of the Christians.

Pope Innocence the Third then tried once more to stir up Europe to the recovery of the holy places; but, although all Christians were sad and sorrowful over the results of former efforts, they could not be induced to try and get up another army. It was then that there burst forth among the children the great idea of freeing the Holy Land. A sort of magic power seemed to take possession of them, and if the accounts of the ancient historians were not so clear and exact we could not possibly believe them.

In the month of June, in the year 1212, a shepherd boy named Stephen, of the region of Vendome, a city in the south of France, suddenly appeared as a preacher of the cross. He said the Savior had appeared to him in a dream in the form of a pilgrim, and, complaining that the men had deserted his cause, bid the boy take up his staff and continue the crusades.

He immediately began to preach, and his words worked wonders. Crowds gathered around him, and were astonished at the strength and fire with which he talked of the insults offered to Jesus, but they said that he was under the influence of some sorcerer, or that he had been bewitched by an evil spirit, and they simply wondered.

The children, however, listened to him, and were entranced with his words. They believed him, and whenever he came the boys and girls were seized with a great desire to go and rescue the sacred tomb. The fire of his speech and the rapture of his face, when he uttered the name of Jerusalem, seemed to make the children crazy to follow him, and crowds of them came swarming to him from all the region around. Other child-preachers soon arose to assist him, mostly shepherd boys like himself, who told the most marvelous stories of the wonders that had happened to them. One of them declared that when he was driving his sheep from a neighbor's pasture, into which they had strayed during his absence, that they all fell on their knees to beg his pardon for having done wrong.

In short, the grown people declared that the children had become crazy, and tried to control them; but when the shepherd boy, in glowing words, told them how God would care for them, and guide them over plains and deserts and distant seas, as he had once led the hosts of Israel, it was impossible to restrain their feelings. The parents then appealed to the priests to stop this extraordinary excitement among their children, which they endeavored to do, declaring the whole affair to be the work of some wicked sorcerer who desired to lead the children to destruction.

The Pope, however, thought differently, and declared that the children were inspired by God, and were putting to shame the men who refused to rescue the Holy Land. And thus the excitement increased, until crowds of boys and girls hastened from all parts of France to accompany the young St. Stephen, as he was now called, on this new crusade. When strangers would ask these bands where they were going, their tender voices would reply: "We are marching to the cross."

The King of France himself tried to stop them, but he might as well have tried to stop an earthquake, or dam up the rivers of his country. At last this wild enthusiasm began to reach the older people, and crowds of them left their work and joined in the march to the villages and cities where the children were collecting. The parents themselves began to believe that this excitement among the children must be the result of the Divine Spirit in their hearts, and, in the conviction that God was demanding their little ones, assisted them in their preparations. They provided their darling ones with pilgrim's gown and sack and staff, and bade them go in the name of God.

Many of the children that were kept back by their parents wept and moaned day and night, and at last fell under nervous attacks, or were seized with strange convulsions, so that it was absolutely necessary to release them to save their lives. Others left their homes secretly in all sorts of disguises and cunning ways, so that many declared that Satan himself was at the bottom of the whole affair. Even many little girls dressed in boys' clothes were discovered in the crowds.

Thus, in spite of all opposition, no less than thirty thousand children gathered at Vendome for the march. And they were from all classes of society, high and low; not a few were sons of princes and barons and other nobles. Some had arms and provisions, and others not even decent clothes. Some were on horseback, others in wagons, but the most on foot. The rush around their leader, St. Stephen, was so great, in the desire to see him and touch the hem of his garment, that it was necessary to surround him with a body-guard of young soldiers to prevent him from being crushed to death.

And thus the procession started, preceded by banners and music, and boys bearing lighted candles and smoking incense-pots, with which to perform prayers at the altars which they carried with them. Everywhere were heard the cries: "To the sea, to the cross, to God!" The weather was hot, and the plains were dry, and in the very first days of the pilgrimage its utter folly became apparent. The children sank by thousands from fatigue and thirst, many of them died by the wayside, and others returned to their homes.

But their wild enthusiasm enabled a great many to reach the sea at Marseilles; and, although almost exhausted, they hastened to the shore and gazed on it in rapture, expecting it to rise up in walls on either side and offer them a dry passage to the Holy Land. But when the waves moved not the people gave them food and drink, and cared for the sick, and advised all to return to their homes.

But there were two wealthy men in the town who seemed to be as enthusiastic as the children, and who offered to convey them free in ships to the sacred spot. Thus a fleet of seven of the largest vessels were filled with the children, and left Marseilles for death and destruction. On the second day of the voyage two of the ships were wrecked on a rocky island during a violent storm, and all were lost. The other ships proceeded safely on their voyage, but these men proved to be unprincipled rascals, for they steered the ships into Egyptian ports, and sold all the children at the slave markets of the various cities. Thus, they were scattered all over the East, for some of them were taken by their masters away off to Bagdad.

And at the same time a similar frenzy seized the children of Germany, who gathered in numbers to about forty thousand, all crazy with excitement, and longing to see the Promised Land and to contend for the cross. Great numbers of these perished in crossing the high passes of the Alps, many starved on the way to Genoa to find the sea, and when driven from there they wandered about in Italy, a few even reaching Rome, to be cared for by the Pope. But the most of them met with miserable deaths, or lived to lead miserable lives among strangers, for few ever reached their homes again.

One could hardly believe this strange story if we did not know that it is true, from the papers and documents preserved in the libraries and records of those times.—N. Y. Christian Advocate.

The Bill and the Butterfly.

A poor Christian woman in Buckinghamshire—I believe, Berkhampstead—was bereaved of her husband after a long illness, and left unprovided for, the only thing of value being a large chest of tools. The husband had only just been buried when a neighbor, bearing no good character, called on the widow, and presented a bill for work done, altogether beyond the widow's power to pay. The work, which had been done in the husband's lifetime, was paid for by him, and the bill receipted, of which the widow had a distinct recollection. It availed not for her to assert the fact. The payment of the bill was pressed again, and longing eyes cast at the chest of tools. In great distress the widow retired up stairs to pray, for all effort to find the receipted bill was vain.

While engaged in prayer a butterfly flew in at the open window down stairs. The widow's little child chased it until it flew behind the chest of tools. Just then the mother came in, and the child begged her to remove the box, that he might get the butterfly. The neighbor offered at once to do so; and while he was removing it from the wall a piece of paper fell down behind, which the widow, taking up, found to be the lost bill, receipted as she had said. She was overcome with praise and gratitude to God, who had answered her prayer by means of the butterfly, and caused even her enemy himself to discover the missing bill.—The Christian, London.

READ.—A Christian merchant who, from being a very poor boy, had risen to wealth and renown, was once asked by an intimate friend to what, under God, he attributed his success in life. "To prompt and steady obedience to my parents," was the reply. "In the midst of many bad examples of youths of my own age I was always able to yield a ready submission to the will of my father and mother, and I firmly believe that a blessing has, in consequence, rested upon me in all my efforts."

A CHEERFUL TEMPER is the clear blue sky of the soul.

The Farm and Garden.

Sugar From Beets.

Experiments in raising beets for sugar are still somewhat unsatisfactory. Numerous trials have been made in the West, and still nothing definite appears to have been settled. The establishment at Chatsworth, Illinois, did not prove to be a success, on account of the unsuitableness of the soil, and has been removed to Wisconsin. Several establishments in California have made large quantities of sugar, and of an excellent quality; yet the general impression is that the profits are not commensurate with the risk. The officers of the Amherst Agricultural College, Massachusetts, have tried some experiments the past year, and believe them to be successful, stating that the best granulated sugar can be produced for seven cents per pound from sugar beets, and still return a better profit to the producer than most of the crops now cultivated in the Connecticut valley.

It is ardently to be hoped that this trial will be a success, for we know of nothing that will help agriculture and internal pursuits so much as the introduction of the sugar beet industry.

In France it is a demonstrated fact that the crops in the sugar beet districts are far superior to those sections where it is not carried on, and the price of land is advanced, also the general wealth and thrift of the community is rapidly increased.

Cultivators of sugar beets in France and Prussia pay a tax of $50 an acre to the government, and still produce a sugar better than that brought from the West India colonies, at a much cheaper price.

It is also stated that the factories or refineries in France are so profitable that the owners get back the whole capital in about three years.

The great trouble in this country is that the soil has either too much nitrogenized or saline elements in it. European cultivators are very careful to keep all these substances out, and bones or phosphate of lime are the strongest fertilizers used. New land, never before used for any crop, has been found most suitable in the United States, and a deep loam better than a clay.

Machinery On The Farm.

We unhesitatingly assert that it is not so much in general use as it should be. We are expending too much human and animal muscle where metal and wood would serve a better purpose. We go without a machine because it costs $100 or even less, and employ two men to do the work which the investment would enable one man to perform. In so doing we regard the value of the extra man as only $100; and, as we so regard him, he is apt to underestimate his own value, and his powers to a certain extent lie undeveloped or dormant. Nor is the laborer the only sufferer—the whole community is a loser; each man has exerted but half his productive capacity. In the West there has been more improvement in this respect than elsewhere. At the South the constant cry is more labor, when in reality the need is more machinery, and more brain to make it available. We need to give employment to the large unproductive element in the South by introducing manufacturing machinery, which they may operate. And then we need to introduce machinery on the farm to make our farm force more effective.

The pitting of manual force against steam or water power, or against labor-saving machinery, is recognized among manufacturers as sheer folly; and it is every whit as much so upon the farm as in the factory. We only need educating up to the thinking point to comprehend it.—American Farmers' Advocate.

Wintering Bees.

Mr. J. W. Hosmer, of Janesville, Wisconsin, gives the following as his method:

To prepare bees for wintering, take your strong swarms, as soon as the great honey harvest is over, and divide them into as many swarms as possible, and have each contain one quart of worker bees. Give each hive a queen, and then let them stand until cold weather comes. They examine, and see that each swarm has at least ten pounds of honey; and if there is more than a quart of bees, take out of the frames and gently shake off the bees, leaving only one quart in the hive, of the youngest. Then set them into a cellar where it is perfectly dark, and so warm that it will not freeze. Close all under ventilation, and if the American frames are used, leave all of the mortises through the top open; at all events, give them full vent at the top of the hive. Now you have "put them to bed" for the long night of winter. Do not disturb them from peaceful slumbers by going into their bed-room with a light. If you have not a cellar, prepare them as described, with bottom closed and top open, and set them in a dry place, close together. Lay sticks or boards upon the hives, slanting toward the ground, then cover them with straw one foot deep when pressed down; upon this covering place dirt to the thickness of six inches, and smooth it down, letting it freeze. Lastly, cover it with litter to keep the frost in, and the work is done.

SWEET POTATOES should be dug and put up just as soon as the vines are slightly nipped by frost. Dig on a sunny day; dry the roots in the shade, and put up in banks of twenty-five or thirty bushels, covering with pine-straw and corn stalks, and at least six inches of solid earth; putting in a ventilating tube of six inches square, and finishing all with a rough shelter of boards over the bank. These banks should be inclosed with a high, strong picket fence, secured with a good lock, from all prowling bi or quadru-peds.

CALIFORNIA BRED HORSES, it is said, are superior in speed, endurance and general good qualities, to the best raised in the Atlantic States or Europe.

HARDWARE, STOVES, ETC.

KURSHEEDT & BIENVENU,
IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN
Plantation and Builders' Hardware,
MARBLE, MARBLEIZED, SLATE,
AND IRON MANTLES,
Grates, Hearths and Fire Bricks,
NO. 114 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
my2 1y

THE UNRIVALED

BUCK'S BRILLIANT STOVE.
Every Brilliant Is Fully Guaranteed.
H. HALLER,
No. 49 Camp street, New Orleans,
Sole Agent for Louisiana.
Sole Agent for the
CELEBRATED RINGEN WASHER,
In the States of Louisiana, Texas and Mississippi. oc19 1y

G. W. W. GOODWYN,
54 Gravier St., near Tchoupitoulas,
DEALER IN
STOVES AND TINWARE.
Among his assortment of Cooking Stoves he invites special attention to the COTTAGE and THE BEST, as being unsurpassed by any Cooking Stoves in this market. They have all the modern improvements, are perfect bakers, and, without extra charge, are adapted for burning wood, coke or coal, and guaranteed to give satisfaction.
HEATING STOVES.—He has various styles of these on sale. Is agent also for the NEW BALTIMORE FIRE-PLACE HEATER, the most perfect, cheerful and economical Heater in use; will heat from one to a half dozen or more rooms at a cost, for coal, of twenty-five cents per day.
TINWARE.—In this line he keeps constantly on hand a full assortment of plain Tin and Japanned Ware.
(With the above, Rev. P. M. Goodwyn, a superannuate of the Louisiana Conference.)
se26 6m

GROCERIES—GLASSWARE.

PURE LOUISIANA
SUGAR, MOLASSES AND SIRUPS.
REFINED SUGAR.—Cut Loaf, Crushed and Powdered.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.
GOLDEN SIRUP.—A superior article of pure Louisiana, from the Crescent City Refinery. A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.
REFINED SIRUP AND MOLASSES.—Crescent City Refinery, Orleans, Louisiana, Chalmette and Pelican brands.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.
LOUISIANA MOLASSES.—Various grades of Plantation, in barrels, half barrels and kegs. A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.
CLARIFIED SUGAR.—Various grades of White and Yellow, in hogsheads and barrels.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.
LOUISIANA SUGAR.—Various grades of Plantation, in hogsheads and barrels.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.
FOREIGN SUGAR.—Cuba, Demerara and Porto Rico, in hogsheads and boxes.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
my9 6m 48 Tchoupitoulas street.

W. C. SHEPARD & CO.,
—IMPORTERS OF—
CHINA, CROCKERY AND GLASS,
55.....CAMP STREET.....55
New Orleans.
Country dealers supplied with ASSORTED CRATES or from SHELF upon the most favorable terms.

Contents of our English Iron Stone China Dinner Set, No. 1:

12 Dinner Plates,	1 Round Soup Tureen,
12 Breakfast Plates,	1 Sauce Boat,
12 Tea Plates,	1 Salad,
12 Soup Plates,	1 Pair Covered Dishes,
12 Preserve Plates,	2 Vegetable Dishes,
12 Butter Plates,	2 Pickle Dishes,
12 Tea cups and saucers	4 Meat Dishes.

112 pieces best English Ware..... $15

Our Stone China Dinner and Tea Set, No. 2, contains
158 pieces..... $25

Our French China Dinner Set, No. 1, contains

12 Dinner Plates,	4 Meat Dishes,
12 Breakfast Plates,	1 Soup Tureen, round,
12 Tea Plates,	2 Covered Dishes, oval
12 Soup Plates,	1 Sauce Boat,
12 Preserve Plates,	1 Salad,
12 Tea cups and saucers	2 Pickles,
12 Butter Plates,	2 Vegetable Dishes.

112 pieces best French Ware..... $30

Our French China Dinner Set, No. 2, contains
166 pieces..... $45

Our French China Dinner Set, No. 3, contains
255 pieces..... $65

A large variety of the best SELF-SEALING FRUIT JARS always on hand.
Sole agents for the celebrated BLANCHARD CHURN. The best churn made.
The most complete stock of HOUSE-FURNISHING GOODS in the South.
W. C. SHEPARD & CO.,
ap4 1f No. 55 Camp st., New Orleans.

RHEUMATISM,
GOUT AND NEURALGIA PERMANENTLY CURED BY
N. JENKINS'
ANNIHILATOR.
A PURELY VEGETABLE COMPOUND, whose extraordinary virtues, in these painful diseases, are attested by certificates from many prominent citizens of every section of the country.
No medicine of the century has attracted as much attention.
Of the many to whom the proprietor is authorized to refer, may be mentioned the following well-known gentlemen:
Rev. Fisher T. Rawson, Delhi, Louisiana.
Rev. James E. Bradley, Floyd, Louisiana.
Rev. P. M. Goodwyn, New Orleans, La.
Rev. J. B. Walker, Galveston, Texas.
For circulars and for further information address N. JENKINS, Proprietor, se26 3m 100 Baronne st., New Orleans.

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

CENTENARY COLLEGE,
JACKSON, LOUISIANA.
THE NEXT TERM OF THIS VENERABLE INSTITUTION OPENS ON THE FIRST MONDAY IN OCTOBER, 1872.
FACULTY.
Rev. C. G. ANDREWS, A. M., President, and Professor of Mental and Moral Science, Political Economy and International Law.
Rev. A. R. HOLCOMBE, A. M., Professor of Mathematics and Adjunct Professor of Natural Science.
G. H. WILEY, A. M., Professor of Ancient and Modern Languages.
T. S. JONES, M. D., Professor of Natural Science.
———, Principal of the Preparatory Department.
CHARGES.
Tuition, per session of forty weeks, in College..... $60 00
Tuition, per session of forty weeks, in Preparatory Department..... 40 00
Contingent expenses..... 5 00
A matriculation fee of $5 must be paid on entering any regular college class. One-half the charges must be paid when the student enters; the other half on the beginning of the second term, March 1.
BOARD.
Board, including lodging, washing, lights and fuel, can be had in the best of families for $20 per month. Day-boarding with the same families, $13 per month. Rooms provided in the dormitories free of rent. Board to be paid in advance at least one month.
LOCATION.
This Institution is located in the lovely village of Jackson, about twelve miles from Bayou Sara, in a grove of pine, magnolia, oak and beech. The location is remarkable for its beautiful woodlands, its inland and delightful atmosphere, its pure water, its unrivaled healthfulness, and its cultivated and refined society.
WHEN FOUNDED.
The college was established by the State of Louisiana in 1825, and ceded to the Methodist Episcopal Church South in 1845.
ALUMNI.
Its Alumni numbers 203, and they are to be found in the most honorable and useful stations in the land.
APPARATUS AND CABINET.
The college possesses a valuable set of Philosophical, Astronomical and Chemical Apparatus, and also a well-selected Mineralogical and Geological Cabinet. The apparatus includes a Theodolite, Sextant, Compass, Chronometer, Atwood's Machine, Whirling Tables, Electrical Machine, Air Pump, various combinations of the Mechanical Powers, Batteries, Chemical Tests, etc., sufficient for a thorough and extended course of observations and experiments. Steps have been taken by the Board of Trustees to put these in thorough repair.
LITERARY SOCIETIES.
There are two regular Literary Societies connected with the Institution. These are of great utility to young men acquiring a liberal education—improving them in the art of public speaking, making them in some degree familiar with the proceedings of deliberative bodies, and in cultivating systematic business habits. Each Society has a convenient hall and a well selected library—about 1,600 volumes each, which, added to the College Library of 2,000 volumes, makes over 5,000 volumes in the college.
BUILDINGS.
The Trustees are determined to continue the repairs on the buildings till completed. The grand Center Building is a noble specimen of architectural beauty and adaptation to the purposes of its erection. The wings, built of solid brick, present each a front of two hundred feet, with upper and lower galleries the entire length, supported by Tuscan columns, and with the center making in the perspective a continuous front of 700 feet.
PREPARATORY DEPARTMENT.
In the Preparatory Department students are fitted for regular college classes, or may obtain a thorough English or commercial education.
ITS FACULTY are men of experience and success in teaching.
BOARD OF TRUSTEES.
Rev. Bishop J. C. KEENEN, D. D., President, New Orleans.

Rev. J. A. Godfrey, Clinton.	Hon. A. K. Farrar, Adams county, Miss.
Hon. John McVea, Clinton.	Hon. Edward J. Gay, parish of Iberville.
Hon. and Rev. Jas. H. Muse, St. Helena par.	Samuel J. Norwood, Esq., Simmsport, La.
Hon. Edward McGehee, Woodville, Miss.	C. G. McGehee, Esq., Wilkinson co., Miss.
Hon. E. T. Merrick, New Orleans	Rev. W. H. Watkins, D. D., Natchez, Miss.
Prof. W. H. N. Magruder, Baton Rouge.	Rev. W. G. Millsaps, Jefferson county, Miss.
Rev. John G. Miller, Jackson.	Rev. J. A. B. Jones, Port Gibson, Miss.
Rev. R. J. Harp, New Orleans.	Rev. John A. Ellis, Meridian, Miss.
Hon. J. O. Fuqua, Baton Rouge.	B. H. Moss, M. D., New Orleans.
T. F. Collins, Esq., East Feliciana.	Josiah D. Nettles, Esq., E. Baton Rouge, La.
Rev. J. L. Forsythe, Jackson.	Wilmot H. Goodale, Esq., Baton Rouge.
Rev. L. Parker, D. D., New Orleans.	Rev. C. G. Andrews, Jackson, La.
D. C. Hardee, Esq., Clinton.	Rev. A. E. Goodwyn, Baton Rouge, La.

THE BEST ROUTE to the college is to leave the Mississippi river at Port Hudson, take the Clinton and Port Hudson railroad to Midway station, report to Captain F. J. Hayaes as a student for Centenary, and he will convey you to the college, a distance of seven miles, for one dollar and a half for single passengers, or one dollar each where several are together. Address an1 6m C. G. ANDREWS, President, Jackson, La.

Whitworth Female College,
AT BROOKHAVEN, MISS.
THE CONTINUED SUCCESS OF THIS INstitution is one of the best evidences of its merit. During the past term there were in attendance two hundred and twenty-nine pupils.
The members of the Faculty, eleven in number—are selected on account of their ability to teach.
Prof. ECKHARDT, Music Director, has few equals.
Madame JULIUS, a Parisian lady of eighteen years' successful experience as a teacher, has been engaged to take charge of the French and Ornamental Department.
The very best care is taken of our pupils, both as to health and manners. Fires are provided for all.
No extravagance in dress is allowed.
The good health of Brookhaven is proverbial. Pupils from the miasmatic regions of Louisiana and Mississippi find this as healthful a school as can be found anywhere.
The charges are believed to be lower than in any school in the Southwest where similar advantages are afforded. Only from $230 to $265 for all expenses, excepting music, French and the ornamental branches.
No expense is spared in purchasing the most approved apparatus, maps, charts, etc., and all necessary school furniture.
Brookhaven is located on the New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern Railroad, 128 miles from the city.
Catalogues sent free on application to au1 6m REV. H. F. JOHNSON, Prest.

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE,
AT BATON ROUGE, LOUISIANA.
THE EXERCISES OF THIS SCHOOL will be resumed on Wednesday, the Second of October next.
For circulars, with all necessary information, apply to Rev. R. J. Harp, 112 Camp street, New Orleans, or to myself, at Baton Rouge, Louisiana.
au1 6m W. H. N. MAGRUDER.

EMORY AND HENRY COLLEGE,
VIRGINIA.
THE FALL SESSION of this institution begins on the FIFTEENTH OF AUGUST next. One Hundred and Fifteen Dollars will pay all the necessary expenses of a five month session, including board, tuition, fuel, room-rent, washing and contingent fees. Payments are required in advance, except for board, which is $13 per month, and payable monthly in advance. If you will consult the Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and her ministers generally, our alumni and students, or the professors of the University of Virginia, who have authorized this reference, you will be assured that we are offering excellent opportunities for a thorough collegiate training, surrounded by healthful, moral, religious influences. If you desire a catalogue, or any additional information, address
E. E. WILEY, President,
Je20 4m Emory P. O., Virginia.

TUSKALOOSA FEMALE COLLEGE,
TUSKALOOSA, ALABAMA.
THE NEXT SESSION OPENS SEPTEMBER 23, 1872.
The beautiful and healthy city of Tuskaloosa, Alabama, is unsurpassed as a location.
The Faculty will consist of three Professors and eight or ten Lady Assistants.
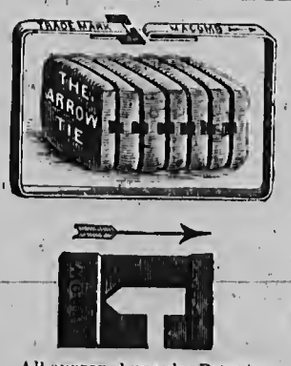
Course of study thorough. Domestic arrangements complete. Young ladies' sleeping apartments elegantly furnished and carpeted. Health department includes a finely-conducted Gymnasium. This College is believed to be equal to the best in the United States, and the cheapest in the South. Special advantages for orphan children whose guardians wish to furnish them a home and school in one. For particulars and catalogue address the proprietor,
REV. B. F. LARRABEE,
jy18 3m Tuskaloosa, Alabama.

HOMER COLLEGE.
THE SCHOLASTIC EXERCISES OF THE Thirteenth Annual Term of Homer College begin on the First Tuesday of SEPTEMBER next, 1872.
Tuition at the rate of $5 per month. Board from $12 to $15 per month.
Students received in regular classes only, and to the end of a session.
A Preparatory Department, under competent management, is attached to the college. Tuition, $4 to $5 per month.
For further particulars address
REV. J. E. COBB,
President Homer College, La.
By order of the Board.
W. F. MORELAND,
Prest. Board of Trustees. au22 3m

Wesleyan Female College,
MACON, GEORGIA.
THE THIRTY-FIFTH ANNUAL SESSION will begin OCTOBER 7, 1872.
For catalogues, containing full information, address
REV. E. H. MYERS, D. D.,
President, or
C. W. SMITH,
au15 2m Secretary of Faculty.

Rendville Seminary for Young Ladies,
BATON ROUGE, LOUISIANA.
ESTABLISHED IN 1843.—Incorporated in 1859. New buildings. Full corps of teachers. All the appliances of a first-class institution. For catalogues address
MRS. MARY W. READ, Principal,
au29 3m Baton Rouge, La.

IMPORTANT TO PLANTERS.
IRON COTTON TIES.
THE ARROW TIE



AND ALL OPEN-SLOT TIES.
All approved popular Patents:
ARROW,
ANCHOR,
WALLIS,
ALLIGATOR
AND DUNN.
For sale by all dealers in New Orleans, Mobile and Memphis; and by country merchants generally throughout the Cotton States.
BARTLETT & RAYNE,
General Agents,
48 Carondelet street, cor. Union,
my30 6m New Orleans.

MUSICAL BOXES,
PLAYING FROM ONE TO ONE HUNDRED AIRS, and costing from $2.50 to $3,000. All sizes, styles and prices. Send stamp for catalogue.
MAGIC LANTERNS,
specially for Sunday schools, lectures, etc. A priced and illustrated catalogue sent on receipt of stamp.
W. MITCHELL McALLISTER,
au29 3m 728 Chestnut st., Phila.

MISCELLANEOUS.

IMPROVED

EAGLE COTTON GINS.

THE GREAT POPULARITY of the EAGLE COTTON GINS is established from the well-known fact that they are the most reliable, strongest and best built Cotton Gins ever made. The Eagle Cotton Gin runs lighter than any other gin, thus having a great advantage for planters who wish to run by horse power. All the numerous planters who use the Eagle Cotton Gin will certify to the fact that when their cotton is sent to market it always brings the highest market price; as no other gin can produce a finer or a better sample of cotton than the Eagle Cotton Gins. Over seventeen thousand of the Eagle Cotton Gins have been made and sold. During a period of twenty years the undersigned has had the agency of the Eagle Cotton Gin in New Orleans. He has never had a gin returned or rejected out of the immense number sold. The saw cylinders of all the Eagle Cotton Gins are twelve inches in diameter, which is two inches larger than most other kinds of gins, thus giving our forty-saw gin more teeth, and they are more than equal to the fifty-saw gins of other makers, who use only a ten-inch cylinder, and the same great advantage of the twelve inch cylinder in larger sized gins can be easily estimated. Planters who wish a reliable cotton gin, with an established reputation, can purchase an Eagle Cotton Gin with a certainty that they are not making an untried experiment, but will obtain a cotton gin which is indorsed by the oldest and largest planters in the country as the best in use. A large stock of the Eagle Cotton Gins are always kept on sale in New Orleans, ready for immediate shipment. Planters should be particular to state if they want right or left-hand motion gins.

PRICES.

40-Saw Gin.....	$200	65-Saw Gin.....	$325
45-Saw Gin.....	225	70-Saw Gin.....	350
50-Saw Gin.....	250	75-Saw Gin.....	375
55-Saw Gin.....	275	80-Saw Gin	400
60-Saw Gin.....	300

All orders should be addressed to
W. L. CUSHING,
No. 61 St. Charles street,
Sole Agent for the Southern States.
Agents wanted. jy1 3m

BIGGEST COMMISSIONS on Standard Works for all Prominent Benevolent Organizations. 100,000 sold. Masonic, Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias Red Men, Mechanics, Temperance, etc. Sale unrivaled by anything heretofore offered. Agents with no experience are selling 20 Pictures and upward a day. One of our agents has cleared over $1,200 in three months. The Brethren welcome these works. Our inducements are UNPRECEDENTED. Our commissions are positively one-fourth larger than any other house does or CAN offer. Send for circular of Order to which you belong, giving No of your Lodge, and state where you saw this advertisement. You will certainly engage with us.
J. HALE POWERS & CO.,
Fraternity Publishers,
my9 7m Cincinnati Ohio.

AGENTS WANTED IN EVERY TOWNship of the United States to sell my

New County United States Map,
STATE MAPS, RELIGIOUS CHARTS,
LITHOGRAPHIC PRINTS, ETC.

Greater Inducements are offered to Agents this season than ever before. Our new plan for the sale of the County United States Map guarantees success.
Catalogues sent free of charge. Address
GAYLORD WATSON, Publisher,
16 Beekman st., New York, or
D. NEEDHAM,
Watson's Chicago Branch.
se26 1m 669 Wabash ave., Chicago, Ill.

JOHN GIBSON,
ENGRAVER
AND
Steam Power Lithographic Printer,
84 BEEKMAN ST., NEW YORK.

Checks, Notes, Drafts, Receipts, Bonds, Certificates of Stock and Deposit, Bill, Letter and Note Headings, Business Cards, Envelopes, Druggists' Fancy and Perfumery Labels, etc. Druggists wishing Labels, send for Catalogue. je7 1y

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY
Established in 1837.
Superior Bells for Churches, Schools, etc., of Pure Copper and Tin, fully warranted, and mounted with our Latest Improved Rotary Hangings, the best in use.
Illustrated Catalogue sent free
VANDUZEN & TIFT,
102 & 101 E. Second St., Cincinnati
je22 1y

WM. PHILLIPS, UNION STABLES, 180 Calliope, near St. Charles street, has every accommodation in the line of Pleasure and Family Carriages, such as hacks, broughams, phaetons, buggies, etc., for the use of the public, and at rates to correspond with the stringency of the times. All hacking done below tariff rates. Orders for weddings, balls, picnics, races, etc., will be attended to so as to guarantee satisfaction. I am also prepared to hire vehicles (alone) to parties having their own horses. de14 1y

BINGHAM HOUSE, PHILADELPHIA,
Corner of Eleventh and Market Sts.
CARLIS DAVIS, PROPRIETOR.

This popular Hotel being centrally located and accessible by street cars from all depots, makes it a desirable stopping place for travelers. It will be conducted in the same liberal manner as heretofore, it being the intention of the proprietor to maintain the reputation it has always enjoyed, of being in all respects a first-class hotel.
Terms, $3 a day. au8 1y

LANDRETH'S SEEDS have spoken their own praise for upward of three-quarters of a century.
Landreth's Rural Register and Almanac will be mailed to all who apply.
DAVID LANDRETH & SON,
au29 1y Philadelphia.

BREWER & HILTON,
MANUFACTURERS OF
Thomas Worsley's Celebrated Fancy Shaving and Toilet Soaps,
Also J. D. SMITH & CO.'S world renowned Pearl Powders, Lily Whites, Rouges, etc.,
No. 114 ARCH STREET, PHILADELPHIA
All goods warranted. au8 3m

SMITH, ENGLISH & CO.,
HOOKSELLERS AND IMPORTERS,
(ESPECIALLY OF THEOLOGICAL BOOKS.)
No. 710 Arch street, Philadelphia.
S., E. & Co. have on hand the best and most complete assortment of THEOLOGICAL BOOKS for sale in the country. Send for Complete Classified Catalogue, 25 cents, or with Alphabetical Index 50 cents—the best guide to purchasers in this department ever published. au15 2m

COMMISSION MERCHANTS.

PRICE, HINE & TUPPER,
General Commission Merchants,
FACTORS, AND
Agents of Attakapas Mail Transportation Co.,
NO. 26 CARONDELET STREET,
NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Advances made on consignments to T. Tupper & Sons, Charleston, S. C.; Williams, Birnie & Co., and Leverich & Co., New York. no2 1y

W. H. SUTTON. J. R. POWELL.
SUTTON & POWELL,
COTTON FACTORS
AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
186..... COMMON STREET 186
NEW ORLEANS, LA.
sp21 1y

H. F. GIVEN. LUCIEN J. DOIZE.
H. F. GIVEN & CO.,
COTTON, TOBACCO AND SUGAR FACTORS,
—AND—
GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
No. 64 Baronne street, New Orleans.
oc5 1y

ANDREW J. AIKEN. JOHN W. WATT.
AIKEN & WATT,
Cotton Factors and Commission Merchants,
60.....CARONDELET STREET.....60
NEW ORLEANS.
Special attention given to orders for the purchase of all descriptions of Produce, Agricultural Implements and Plantation Supplies. no2 1y

J. L. DUNNICA, New Orleans. T. A. HAMILTON, Memphis.
G. P. HARRISON, New Orleans.
J. L. DUNNICA & CO.,
FLOUR, PRODUCE AND PROVISION
COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
50.....TCHOUPITOULAS ST.....50
NEW ORLEANS, LOUISIANA.
oc22 1y

J. U. PAYNE. W. H. RAMERON. H. M. PAYNE
PAYNE, RAMERON & CO.,
COTTON FACTORS,
64 & 66....BARONNE STREET....64 & 66
Between Union and Gravier streets,
NEW ORLEANS, LA.
je19 1y

C. L. WALMSLEY & CO.,
Cotton Factors and General Commission Merchants,
31.....PERDIDO STREET.....31
oc3 1y NEW ORLEANS.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

G. W. RACE. W. B. FOSTER. E. T. MERRICK, Former Ch. Jus. La.
RACE, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK,
Attorneys, Counselors and Solicitors.
Cor. of Camp street and Commercial Place,
se25 NEW ORLEANS.

W. W. EDWARDS,
COUNSELOR AT LAW
AND
COMMISSIONER OF DEEDS,
No. 88 Common street,
se14 1y New Orleans.

DR. JOHN G. ANGELL,
DENTAL SURGEON,
152.....JULIA STREET.....152
All operations in Operative, Mechanical and Surgical Dentistry carefully performed. Nitrous Oxide and other Anæsthetics administered. no30 1y

DR. C. J. BICKHAM,
Office—680 Magazine Street,
Between Philip and First sts., New Orleans.
Will call daily at College building, corner Common and Baronne streets, between eleven and twelve o'clock. je29 1y

Relief for the Sick and Afflicted.

SOUTHERN HEPATIC PILLS.

Unsurpassed for the cure of Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint and all other Bilious diseases. Call on MRS. GEO. W. DEEMS, No 28 South Calhoun street, Baltimore, Maryland. Explanatory circulars sent on application. For sale by E. J. HART & CO., se12 3m 73 Tchoupitoulas st., New Orleans.

OCEAN SPRINGS.
Summer Resort.—Board at the Seaside.

THE SUBSCRIBER has taken the MORRIS HOUSE, at Ocean Springs, which has just undergone a thorough repair, and will be open to boarders who wish to enjoy a pleasant home, good bathing, fresh sea air, and luxuriate on fish and oysters during the heat of summer.
Terms for board: $10 per month, $10 per week, and $2 per day. Apply to the subscriber by mail, at Ocean Springs.
Refer to Bishop Keener, Rev. Robert J. Harp, J. L. Dunnica & Co., and Samuel Russ, Esq., New Orleans.
WM. C. CHAMBERLIN.
April 20, 1872. ap25 1f

Carpet and Oil Cloth Warehouse.
J. M. ELKIN. F. STRINGER
ELKIN & CO.,
168.....CANAL STREET.....168
Near Baronne, New Orleans,
IMPORTERS OF ALL VARIETIES OF ENGLISH CARPETINGS, RUGS, Etc.
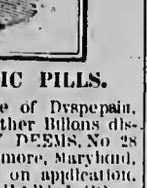
—ALSO—
Oil Cloths, Mattings,
Lace and Damask Curtains,
Window Shades, etc.,
—AND A—
Complete Assortment of Upholstery Goods.
fe8 1y

WATER
The Records of Tests
AT LOWELL, MASS., PROVE
N. F. BURNHAM'S
New Turbine
superior to all others. It gave a higher percentage than any other wheel of common finish. Pamphlet and Price List by N. F. BURNHAM, York, Pa. ap25 6m



EXCHANGE HOTEL,
JOHN SUMMERS, PROPRIETOR,
GALVESTON, TEXAS.
☞ This is the only Hotel in the city which has FREE OMNIBUSES to and from the cars and boats for the use of guests. Ask for Exchange Hotel Omnibus. feb1 1y

BUSINESS CARDS.

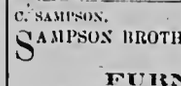
YOUR CUSTOM SOLICITED BY
R. F. W. BACHMAN,
DEALER IN BOOTS AND SHOES,
No. 18 Camp Street,
Under City Hotel, New Orleans.
Made expressly for the first-class retail Family and Plantation trade. oc3 6m

E. HEATH. M. LARA. J. P. HEATH.
HEATH, LARA & HEATH,
IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN
UPHOLSTERERS' MATERIALS,
WALL PAPER, WINDOW SHADES,
CORNICES AND CURTAIN GOODS,
Pictures, Frames, Moldings, Looking Glasses and Clocks,
NO. 99 CAMP STREET,
no16 1y NEW ORLEANS.

THE MITCHELL & RAMMELSBERG
FURNITURE COMPANY,
Manufacturers and dealers in all kinds of
Furniture, Mattresses, Looking Glasses,
ETC., ETC.,
103 and 105 Camp street, cor. Poydras,
Moresque Building, New Orleans,
have the largest and best assortment of FURNITURE of any house in the city.
Please give us a call before purchasing elsewhere. my23 1y

A. B. GRISWOLD & CO.,
CANAL ST., COR. ROYAL, NEW ORLEANS,
IMPORTERS OF
WATCHES, JEWELRY, CLOCKS,
PLATED WARE, HOUSEKEEPING GOODS,
Cutlery, Guns Pistols, Bronzes, Porcelain and Fancy Goods.
MANUFACTURERS OF
PURE COIN SILVERWARE.
Watches and Jewelry carefully repaired. Every article sold fully guaranteed.
no23 1y

J. THOMSON. G. THOMSON. W. B. THOMSON.
J. THOMSON & BROS.,



Manufacturers of
Carriages, Barouches, Buggies, Phaetons,
SPRING WAGONS, ETC.
68 and 70 Rampart Street,
Bet. Common and Gravier, New Orleans, La.
Repairing done in all its branches. no30 1y

LOUISIANA STEAM
SASH, BLIND AND DOOR FACTORY,
ROBERTS & CO., PROPRIETORS,
301, 303, 305 and 307 Gravier Street,
NEW ORLEANS. my30 1y

JAMES M'CRACKEN. GEO. E. BREWSTER.
M'CRACKEN & BREWSTER,
DEALERS IN FURNITURE,
Nos. 37, 39 and 41 Royal street.
Manufactory, corner Derbigny and Customhouse streets, New Orleans. my9 6m

JOHN L. ADAMS & CO., (JOHN L. ADAMS, JAY L. ADAMS, GEO. W. WEST, WM. H. BENAUD,) WHOLESALE GROCERS,
AND DEALERS IN
PROVISIONS, LARD, OILS, ETC., ETC.,
43, 45 and 47 Peters street,
(Formerly New Levee.)
mh24 1y NEW ORLEANS.

ELON G. SMITH. J. L. CHEATHAM. J. W. BRAUGHON.
SMITH, CHEATHAM & CO.,
(SUCCESSORS TO ELON G. SMITH & CO.)
PORK PACKERS,
Provision and Commission Merchants,
CORNER THIRD AND SPRUCE STREETS,
SAINT LOUIS.
We solicit orders from the trade for goods in our line. oc26 1y

C. SAMPSON. F. O. SAMPSON.
SAMPSON BROTHERS,
(Late C. C. Sampson,)
FURNITURE,
33 & 35.... ROYAL STREET .....33 & 35
NEW ORLEANS.
Established in 1833. jn11 1y
Carpet Warehouse—17 Chartres Street.

A. BROUSSEAU & CO.,
Importers and dealers, at Wholesale and Retail, in English and American Carpetings.
Floor Oil Cloths, Table and Enameled Oil Cloths,
Window Shades, Table and Piano Covers.
Crumb Cloths, in squares or pieces.
Curtain and Furniture Materials.
Brocatelles, Cotelines, Terries, Reps, Lace and Nottingham Lace Curtains, Hairclothe Ticking, Springs, Burlaps, Stop Covers, etc.
no24 1y A. BROUSSEAU & CO.

T. H. McMAHAN & CO.,
BANKERS,
And Dealers in Foreign and Domestic Exchange,
GALVESTON, TEXAS.
We have prompt and reliable correspondents at all the principal points throughout this State, and upon all collections payable in this city or Houston make no charge for collecting, and only actual charge upon interior collections.
Immediate and prompt attention given to all business intrusted to us. feb1 1y

RICHARD BRODERICK,
CISTERN MAKER,
134..... Julia street 134
Bet. Camp and Magazine, New Orleans.
Second hand Cisterns always on hand. All work guaranteed.
All orders left at Box 30, Mechanics' and Dealers' Exchange, will meet with prompt attention. my2 1y

E. VEAZIE,
74.....Camp street.....74
NEW ORLEANS, LA.,
LAMPS AND OILS, CHANDELIERS,
Globes, Chimneys, Shades, Trimmers, Wicks, Cans, Fillers, etc.
PRATTS' ASTRAL OIL, non-explosive and non-inflammable. ja18 1y

H. H. NOBLE. J. B. WOODS.
NOBLE & WOODS,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL GROCERS,
Nos. 9 and 11 Delta street, and 10 and 12 Front street,
ja18 1y NEW ORLEANS, LA.

JOHN D. MACLIN, (Late R. H. Maclin,) L. C. MACLIN,
COAL! WOOD! COAL!
Pittsburg, Anthracite and Cannel Coal. Oak, Ash and Pine Wood, at the lowest market rates, delivered to any part of the city.
Offices—26 Carondelet street, and corner of Third and Tchoupitoulas. mh7 1y

MENEELY'S BELLS.

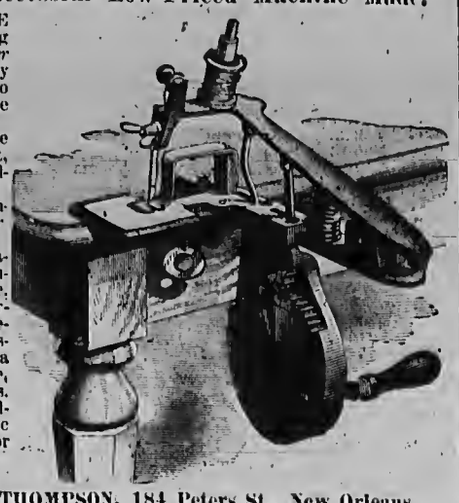
THE genuine Troy Church Bells known to the public since 1826, which have acquired a reputation unequaled by any, and a side exceeding that of all others—including more than seventy chimes and peals. One thousand testimonials received during the last six years. Every Bell made of best Copper and Tin, and formally warranted. New Patent Rotary Fixtures. Catalogues free. No agencies.
Post office address, either TROY or WEST TROY, New York.
jo13 1y E. A. & G. R. MENEELY.

THE BECKWITH SEWING MACHINE.

PATENTED APRIL 10, 1871.

PRICE, $10, including Hemmer, Guide, four Needles, Bottle of Oil and Can

The First and Only Successful Low-Priced Machine Made.



PRACTICAL, DURABLE, SIMPLE and Beautiful. Capable of making by hand upward of 800 Stitches per Minute and there is very little Family Sewing that this machine will not do as well as a $75 machine, and some work it will do better.
It is well and strongly made of the best material, but compact and light, and takes up but little room. Nickel-plated throughout.
Its SIMPLICITY adapts it to all capabilities. Every machine is fully warranted for Two Years.
Full directions for running the machine, hemming, tucking, hem-stitching, etc., accompany every machine.
Parties in the city wishing to purchase a machine can see one in operation at Mrs. Robertson's, dressmaker, corner of Camp and Julia streets, up stairs, over the cigar store, and where they can leave their orders.
Single machines sent to any address, carefully boxed, with all the equipments, on receipt of $10. For full particulars send for circular.
Address
EDWARD THOMPSON, 184 Peters St., New Orleans,
☞ Energetic Agents Wanted. (je27 6m) Agent of the Manufacturer.

"Southern Books for Southern Schools."

School-Books which are Unsectional, Unpartisan, and Unpolitical.

PREPARED BY THE MOST EMINENT SOUTHERN SCHOLARS, AND

ENTIRELY ACCEPTABLE TO SOUTHERN TEACHERS AND PARENTS.

The University Publishing Co.,

An Association composed of many of the several Southern States, feeling the necessity for a series of purely unsectional, unpartisan, and should not be offensive to the people—which should present only the facts of history and science—are now issuing a complete series by the eminent Southern scholars of School and College Text-books and educators named below, which are the

Cheapest, Best, and Most Beautiful School-Books

Now published. The "University Series" embraces

MAURY'S GEOGRAPHICAL SERIES,

By Commodor M. F. Maury, of the Virginia Military Institute. "A series of books which mark an era in the study of this science, and which, in the words of a well known and accomplished Southern teacher, "are characterized by a felicity of arrangement and simple freshness of style which must ever render them attractive to the young, and which will be used by all who wish to teach Geography as a science, as something to make pupils think, and not merely as an enumeration of dry facts."

Holmes' Readers and Spellers,

By GEORGE F. HOLMES, LL.D., Professor of History and General Literature in the University of Virginia. A series of Readers unequalled in cheapness, excellence, and typographical beauty. They are steadily progressive in character, bright and fresh in their selections of prose and verse, and illustrative of Southern scenes, incidents, and history.

Venable's Arithmetical Series,

By CHARLES S. VENABLE, LL.D., Professor of Mathematics in the University of Virginia. These books are received everywhere by intelligent teachers with the highest satisfaction, as being most admirably adapted for mental drill, as well as for business education. Their methods, rules, and reasonings are clear, distinct, logical, and comprehensive, and the series is carefully graded throughout.

Holmes' History of the United States,

By GEORGE F. HOLMES, LL.D., of the University of Virginia. It is enough to say of this admirable work, interesting, impartial, and truthful, as well as pure and graceful in style, that it is the only History of the United States which is acceptable to Southern teachers and parents. It comes down to the present date.

THE "UNIVERSITY SERIES" OF SCHOOL-BOOKS

COMPRISES, ALSO,

De Vere's French Grammar, Readers, etc.,

By M. SCHELE DEVERE, LL.D., Professor of Modern Languages in the University of Va.

Gildersleeve's Latin Series,

By B. L. GILDERSLEEVE, Ph.D., LL.D., of the University of Virginia.

Carter's Elements of General History,

By Rev. J. P. CARTER, A.M., of Baltimore, Maryland.

Holmes' English Grammars,

By GEORGE F. HOLMES, LL.D., of the University of Virginia.

LeConte's Scientific Series,

By the Professors LECONTE, late of the University of South Carolina.

Johnston's English Classics,

By R. M. JOHNSTON, A.M., late Professor of Rhetoric and Belles-Lettres in the University of Georgia.

To which list other books in other departments will early be added.
Send for our full ILLUSTRATED DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE, which will be mailed free to any teacher or school officer. Liberal terms given for introduction.
Address
UNIVERSITY PUBLISHING COMPANY,
155 and 157 Crosby Street, New York.
☞ A full supply of "The University Series" always on hand, and teachers and schools supplied by R. J. HART, Bookseller, 113 Camp St., New Orleans.
And by all prominent booksellers throughout the South.
W. IRVING CLARKE, the General Agent, will furnish any information, and afford every facility to teachers for examining the series. Office—92 CAMP ST., New Orleans. my17

ARMSTRONG, CATOR & CO.,
IMPORTERS AND MANUFACTURERS OF
Ribbons, Millinery and Straw Goods,
WHITE GOODS, LINEN LACE AND EMBROIDERY,
Nos. 237 and 239 Baltimore Street,
BALTIMORE, MARYLAND.
Orders promptly attended to se5 3m

ST. CLAIR HOTEL,
BALTIMORE, MARYLAND.
This new and beautiful Hotel is now open to the public. It is located on MONUMENT SQUARE, convenient alike to the business man and the tourist. It is the only hotel in Baltimore embracing elevator, suits of rooms with baths, and all other conveniences.
To accommodate Merchants, Commercial Travelers and others, the rates will be $2 per day for rooms on the fourth and fifth floors, making the difference on account of the elevation. Ordinary transient rates for lower rooms, $3 per day.
Guests desiring to take advantage of the above rates will please notify the clerk before rooms are assigned. An improved elevator for the use of the guests is constantly running from six A. M. until eleven P. M. se5 2m HARRY H. EAGLE, Manager.

AGENTS WANTED—for the Lives of
Grant Greeley
WILSON BROWN and The leading men of all parties. Over 40 Steel Portraits, worth twice the cost of the book. Wanted everywhere. Agents have wonderful success. Send for circular. Address
ZIEGLER & McCURDY,
au15 2m 503 N. Sixth st., St. Louis, Mo.

WIRE RAILING AND ORNAMENTAL WIRE WORKS.
DUFUR & CO.,
No. 36 North Howard St., Baltimore, manufacture Wire Railing for Cemeteries, Balconies, etc.; Sieves, Fenders, Cages, Sand and Coal Screens, Woven Wire, etc. Also Iron Bedsteads, Chairs, etc. se5 1y

SAVE $20.

THE NEW WILSON UNDER-FEED.
The Best and Cheapest First-class Shuttle SEWING MACHINE In the World.
Wm. GREGG & Co.
General Southern Agents, No. 183 Canal street, New Orleans, La.
Agents Wanted. je27 6m

AGENTS WANTED TO SELL THE ILLUSTRATED
HISTORY OF THE BIBLE
By Wm. SMITH, LL.D.
AUTHOR OF SMITH'S BIBLE DICTIONARY.

It contains 214 fine Scripture illustrations and over 1,100 pages, and is the most comprehensive and valuable History of the Bible ever published. The labor and learning of centuries are gathered in this one volume to throw a strong, clear light upon every page of the Inspired Word.
Send for circulars, and see our terms, and a full description of the work. Address
NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO.,
274 and 276 Second street,
au1 6m Memphis, Tenn.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

IMPORTANT NEW BOOKS
JUST PUBLISHED BY
HURD & HOUGHTON, NEW YORK.
THE RIVERSIDE PRESS, CAMBRIDGE.

I—A Vigorous Polemic.

THE CITY OF GOD AND THE CHURCH-Makers An Examination of Structural Christianity, and Criticism of Christian Scribes and Doctors of the Law. By R. Abbey. In one volume, crown 8vo.
Dr. Abbey's book will make a great stir in the religious community, and set old men and young to thinking.

II—Dr. Campbell's Sermons.

SERMONS BY REV. C. D. N. CAMPBELL, D.D.—In one vol., crown 8vo, cloth, $1.50.
Dr. Campbell is known as a very acceptable preacher, and he will make many new friends by the publication of this volume.
For sale by all booksellers. When no bookseller is at hand, send the price to the publishers, who will mail the books, postage free. oc3 1m

MILLER'S BIBLE AND PUBLISHING HOUSE.

NEW ILLUSTRATED FAMILY BIBLE.
The cheapest and best Bible published. Large Print, beautiful Bindings, and more than two hundred Engravings.

THE CHRISTIAN HARMONY,
A NEW MUSIC BOOK, BY WM. WALKER,
AUTHOR OF THE SOUTHERN HARMONY.

This book is printed with New-Shaped Seven-Character Notes, and is preferable to anything of the kind ever before used. Any one can learn to read music and sing in one-fourth the time required by the old methods. It contains the choicest collection of Music, both original and selected, from the best sources; particularly designed for Choirs, Singing Schools and Private Societies.
Specimen pages, with terms, mailed free.
Miller's Bible and Publishing House,
1102 and 1104 Sansom street,
je27 6m Philadelphia, Penn'a.

THE BEST SUNDAY SCHOOL MUSIC Book will be ready October 1, 1872.

PURE DIAMONDS.
BY JAMES H. MURRAY.

A new Sunday School Music Book, which we predict will become the most popular work of the kind ever published in America. Specimen pages are now ready, and will be sent free to any address.
PURE DIAMONDS will be issued in elegant style, printed on fine white paper, and substantially bound in boards. It will be ready promptly on the first of October, when orders will be filled in rotation. As the demand will be very large, all wishing specimen copies, or an early supply, should send in their orders at once.
PRICE—Bound in boards, 35 cents; $3.60 per dozen; $30 per hundred. A copy in paper covers, for examination, mailed on receipt of 25 cents. Published by
S. BRAINARD'S SONS,
ap29 1y Cleveland Ohio.

A POPULAR MUSIC BOOK!
AT A POPULAR PRICE!
"THE SCEPTER,"
By Dr. A. BROOKS EVERETT,
ONLY $1.00.—BY THE DOZEN, $10.50.

"THE SCEPTER" contains a large variety of most valuable material, embracing thymn-tunes, Anthems, Glees, the "Everett System of Teaching Vocal Music," etc., by the well known professor of music, Dr. A. BROOKS EVERETT, recognized throughout the Southern States as a most successful and popular teacher of the art of singing, as well as the author of many of the most popular tunes contained in the Tabor or Richmond Collection.
"THE SCEPTER" also contains contributions by Profs. R. M. McIntosh, B. H. Everett and other well-known composers, as well as a large number of old standard tunes.
☞ Every Choir Leader and Teacher of Music should examine "THE SCEPTER."
Sent, post paid, on receipt of $1.
PUBLISHED BY
BIGLOW & MAIN, NEW YORK,
SUCCESSORS TO WM. B. BRADBURY,
Publishers of the most popular series of SUNDAY SCHOOL SONG BOOKS—Golden Chain, Shower and Censer, Fresh Laurels, Bright Jewels, Pure Gold, etc. For sale by Booksellers generally.
All publications of Biglow & Main are for sale by ROBT. J. HART, Agent, 112 Camp street, New Orleans. jy18 3m

Uniform Lessons for 1872.

FOR TEACHERS.—The Sunday School World contains the explanations and studies prepared by Rev. John Hall, D. D., for teachers.
SCHOLARS' PAPER.—With the text of the lesson; and suggestive helps for the study of it; and questions at the foot of each page, to be answered in writing by the scholar.
INTERMEDIATE LESSON PAPER.—Adapted to the use of less advanced scholars, with questions and explanations.
Price of each Lesson Paper of four pages, at the rate of 75 cents per 100 copies for one month, or $9 per 100 copies yearly.
☞ Catalogues of the Society's publications and sample copies of its periodicals furnished gratuitously on application at the Depository of the
AMERICAN SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION,
au1 3m 1122 Chestnut st., Philadelphia.

AGENTS WANTED FOR
SECRETS OF THE CONVENT AND CONFESSIONAL.
BY JULIA M'NAIR WRIGHT.

The most thrilling and powerful book ever written on this subject. It presents a startling array of facts, and contains revelations never before made public.
Send for circulars and terms to
NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO.,
274 and 276 Second street,
au1 6m Memphis, Tenn.

HAVE YOU READ
MARK TWAIN'S
NEW BOOK?

The whole world has gone mad, and every person has read it. As known by the fact that 75,000 were sold in six days, and eighteen cars running night and day can't supply the demand. Nothing like it ever known before.
AGENTS WANTED—Send for circulars, terms, etc. Address NETTLETON & CO., 180 WEST FOURTH STREET, Cincinnati, Ohio.
se5 1

"In this charming book the author has practically unfolded the plans whereby every one of limited expense, may have a flower garden of their own, indoors and out."

GARDENING BY MYSELF.
BY ANNA WARNER.
12mo. With Illustrations. $1.25.

"Instruction for the various months of the year is given, and all that one wants to know is stated, without dry technicalities, and in a clear and simple style. There is not a home which even the children, with this little book in hand, might not make more attractive, while educating the heart in a love for the beautiful."
ANSON D. F. RANDOLPH & CO.,
770 Broadway, cor. of Ninth st., N. Y.
Sent by mail, prepaid, on receipt of the price. se19 1m

NEW ORLEANS MARKETS.

(From the New Orleans Price Current.)

The weather has been cloudy and cool, with frequent showers on Sunday and Monday. Our accounts from the country present no new feature, and, hearing nothing to the contrary, the presumption is that picking proceeds satisfactorily. We have, however, reiterated complaints of the injurious effects of the drouth, and a consequent diminution of the crop.

The river is 13 feet 3 inches below high water mark.

COTTON.—The following are the arrivals since the fourth instant:

Louisiana and Mississippi	bales	12,900
Lake		60
Mobile		3,091
Texas		48
Total		16,099

On Saturday the movement commenced with increased animation at an advance of $\frac{1}{8}$@$\frac{1}{4}$c., after which the advantage was still more on the side of the seller, and 4,850 bales changed hands, at prices showing an irregular advance of $\frac{1}{8}$@$\frac{1}{4}$c., low middling and the higher grades closing at $\frac{1}{4}$c. On Monday factors were still more stringent at the opening, and sales were made at a further advance of $\frac{1}{8}$@$\frac{1}{4}$c.; but after the news of the decline in gold at New York, prices were much less buoyant, and the closing rates indicated a net improvement of barely $\frac{1}{8}$c. The sales embraced 3,150 bales. On Tuesday the market opened with a less active demand and a moderate supply, while in the absence of much competition among buyers the tendency was to lower prices. A few sales were consequently made at a falling off of $\frac{1}{8}$c., but most factors continued to adhere to previous rates. At a later hour the advantage was still more on the side of the buyers, and at the close the quotations indicated a decline of about $\frac{1}{8}$c. Strict good to low middling sold at 18$\frac{3}{4}$c., showing no decline, low middling at 18$\frac{1}{4}$@18$\frac{5}{8}$c., and good middling at 20c. At the close low middling was offered at 18$\frac{5}{8}$c., but the ruling rate throughout the day was 18$\frac{1}{4}$@. Some authorities quoted the market $\frac{1}{8}$@$\frac{1}{4}$c. lower than on Monday, but others paid previous rates. The Exchange put down its advanced figures of Monday $\frac{1}{8}$c. in good ordinary, low middling and middling, and $\frac{1}{4}$c. in middling.

The receipts proper at this port, since the first of September (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida and Texas), are 73,346 bales, against 25,023 bales to the same date last year, and the increase in the receipts at all the ports, up to the latest dates, as compared with last year, is 117,924 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries, as compared with the same date last year, there is an increase of 12,132 to France, and a decrease of 583 to Great Britain, and of 82 to other foreign ports.

We quote:

Good ordinary	17$\frac{1}{4}$	@ 18$\frac{1}{4}$
Low middling	18$\frac{1}{4}$	@ 19
Middling	19$\frac{1}{4}$	@ 19$\frac{1}{4}$
Strict middling	19$\frac{1}{4}$	@ 19$\frac{1}{4}$
Good middling	19$\frac{1}{4}$	@ 20

COTTON STATEMENT.

Stock on hand Sept. 1, 1872, bales		6,259
Arrived past three days	16,099
Arrived previously	75,672	91,771
		98,030
Exported past three days	10,172
Exported previously	80,958	41,130
Stock on hand and on shipboard		56,900

SUGAR.—On Saturday a lot of 5 hhds good fair Louisiana sold on the landing at 10$\frac{3}{4}$c., and 9 hhds white clarified at 12c. ₱ lb. City refinery is selling at 11$\frac{3}{4}$@12c. for yellow clarified, 12$\frac{5}{4}$@13c. for white clarified, 13$\frac{1}{2}$c. for crushed, and 14$\frac{1}{2}$c. for cut loaf.

NEW LOUISIANA MOLASSES.—The First this Season.—Thirty-two half bbls. were received on the seventh instant, the first this season, by the Opelousas railroad, from Baron Lafourche, consigned to Messrs. Lapene & Fere. They classed prime, and sold at 80c. ₱ gallon. The first receipts last year were 31 bbls., on the sixth of October, from the lower coast, classed prime, and sold at 90c. ₱ gallon. Some small lots of old have come in and sold, particulars suppressed. On Tuesday 10 half bbls. old and thin sold at 25c. ₱ gallon.

CORN.—On Tuesday the supply was light, with a moderate demand. White was scarce and wanted. The sales were confined to 1,500 sacks in two lots, at 65c. for mixed, and 66c. ₱ bushel for white mixed.

OATS.—On Tuesday the supply on the landing was fair, with a limited demand. The sales comprised 800 sacks in lots, at 40c. for choice St. Louis and 45c. ₱ bushel for choice Galena.

BRAN.—On Tuesday it was in light supply and dull, at nominal prices. The sales embraced 1,000 sacks in two lots at $1 12$\frac{1}{2}$@$1 15 ₱ 100 lbs.

BACON.—On Tuesday there was a good inquiry and a firmer market, and shoulders were held at 8$\frac{1}{2}$c., clear rib sides 11$\frac{1}{2}$c., clear sides 12$\frac{1}{2}$c. ₱ lb. The sales amounted to 151 casks.

LARD.—The market is in fair supply, but is very dull. On Tuesday 10 tierces sold, in two lots, at 11$\frac{1}{2}$@12c. ₱ lb.

DRY SALT MEAT.—The stock is small, and held by dealers who are refusing shoulders at 8$\frac{1}{2}$c. ₱ lb. Small lots of shoulders coming in sell as received at 8$\frac{1}{2}$c. ₱ lb. On Tuesday a lot of 75 casks shoulders, one-third new and the balance old, sold, to arrive, at 8$\frac{1}{2}$c. ₱ lb.

BREAKFAST BACON.—The market is in fair supply and dull at 14$\frac{1}{2}$@15c. ₱ lb for Western, and 15@16c. for Northern.

CORN MEAL.—On Tuesday 100 bbls in warehouse sold at $2 75 ₱ bbl. The stock in store is now mostly redressed, and fresh receipts would command $2 90 ₱ bbl and perhaps more.

MONETARY.

Gold opened on Tuesday at 112$\frac{3}{4}$@115 (against 113$\frac{3}{4}$) at New York, and closed at 112$\frac{3}{4}$@115$\frac{3}{4}$ (against ... at New York.)

In silver we have noticed only retail sales. American half dollars are now quoted at 109@110, and Mexican dollars nominal at 2$\frac{1}{2}$ ₱ cent. premium in gold for new and old.

New Orleans Wholesale Prices.

REVISED AND CORRECTED WEEKLY.

Made up from A[illegible] Day Telegraph.

ARTICLES.	FROM	TO
Agricultural Implements:
Cotton scrapers	4 50	6 00
Cotton sweeps	4 50	6 00
Cultivators, Diam. & shovel-tooth	7 75	10 50
Cultivators, riding	45 00	60 00
Cultivators, walking	30 00	35 00
Shovels	7 50	14 50
Spades	7 50	16 50
Axes	10 00	15 00
Potato diggers	13 50
Shovel plows	6 00	7 00
Half do., with cutters	8 00	9 00
Manly's B. S. plow	6 00	9 75
Corn mills, Coleman's	120 00	425 00
Bread, ₱ 100 lbs:
Pilot	—	—
Loaf	—	—
Crackers	—	—
Navy	—	—
Cream crackers	—	—
Bricks, ₱ M:
Lake	13 00	16 00
English fire	—	50 00
American fire	40 00	—
Candles, ₱ lb:
Sperm, New Bedford	33	36
Tallow	16	18
Chocolate, ₱ lb:
Cocoa	38	60
No. 1	50	52
Sweet and spiced	25	—
Cider, ₱ bbl:
Western	—	—
Coal, ₱ ton:
Anthracite	—	—
Western, ₱ bbl	—	—
Corks, ₱ 1000:
Regular	—	—
Pointed	—	—
Coffee, ₱ lb:
Havana (currency)	—	—
Java	25	27
Coriora	—	—
Copper, ₱ lb:
Braziers'	48	—
Copper bolts	48	—
Yellow metal	30	32
Cordage, ₱ lb:
Manilla	19	20
Tarred, American	—	15
Russian	16	—
Cotton seed:
Rough, ₱ ton	—	—
In sacks	—	—
Dyes, ₱ lb:
Logwood, Campy	4	4½
Logwood, St. Domingo	4½	4¾
Fustic, Tampico	5	6
Indigo, ₱ lb	1 40	1 60
Madder	15	18
Eggs, ₱ dozen:
Western	24	28
Feathers, ₱ lb	65	—
Fish, ₱ box:
Cod	—	—
Herrings	—	—
Mackerel, No. 1, ₱ bbl	—	—
Mackerel, No. 2	—	—
Mackerel, No. 3	—	—
Flaxseed, ₱ lb	6	—
Flour, ₱ bbl:
Double extra	7 00	7 50
Superfine	5 25	5 75
Fine	4 50	4 75
Fruit, ₱ lb:
Prunes	—	—
Currants, new	—	—
Almonds, soft shell	—	—
Almonds, shelled	—	—
Glass, ₱ box of 50 feet:
French, 8 by 10	$ 45	$ 50
French, 10 by 12	3 60	3 75
French, 12 by 18	4 35	4 50
Gunny bags, ₱ bag	—	—
Hay, ₱ ton:
Prime	25 50	26 00
Choice	26 00	28 00
Iron, ₱ ton:
Pig	54 00	55 00
Country bar, ₱ lb	—	—
English		5½
Swedes, assorted		6½
Hoop		7½
Sheet		7½
Roller		7½
Nail rods		11½
Castings, American		8
Lead, ₱ 100 lbs:
Pig		$ 6 50
Bolt, ₱ lb		8½
Sheet		8½
Pipe		12
Leather, ₱ lb:
Sole, hemlock		33½
Sole, oak		34
Harness		34
Calf skins, ₱ dozen	42 00	70 00
Texas goat, ₱ lb		24
Lime, ₱ bbl:
Western	1 15	1 20
Cement		4 00
Plaster Paris		4 00
Lumber, ₱ M feet:
Boards, yellow pine		—
Boards, cypress		—
Flooring, dressed		—
Flooring, rough		—
Ceiling, dressed		—
Weatherboards, dressed		—
Weatherboards, rough		—
Scantling		—
Shingles, ₱ M		—
Laths		—
Moss, ₱ lb:
Common picked		—
Coast		—
Nails, ₱ keg:
American, 4@6d		5 00
Wrought, German, ₱ lb		12½
Wrought, English		12½
Oil:
Linseed, ₱ gallon		85
Coal oil, in barrels		45
Coal oil, in cases		55
Linseed, raw		80
Neat's-foot		1 00
Whale, refined		80
Castor, refined		1 10
Olive, refined		1 10
Sperm, refined		2 00
Tanner's, ₱ gallon		55
Soap, ₱ lb:
Washing		—
Northern		—
Southern		—
Castile, domestic		—
Castile, imitation		—
Shipping:
Bale ropes		8½
Canvas, Dundee		—
Spices, ₱ lb:
Cassia		20
Cloves		50
Ginger		20
Pepper		22
Pimento		12
Sugar, ₱ lb:
Havana, white		11
Havana, yellow		10½
Havana, brown		10½
Sandwich		—
Porto Rico		11
Tea, ₱ lb:
Gunpowder		125
Young Hyson		125
Hyson		125
Imperial		125
Twankay		125
Oolong		125
Souchong		125
Tobacco, ₱ lb:
Leaf, common to fine		10@22
Leaf, fine to choice		25@35
Manufactured, plug, No. 1		50
Manufactured, plug, No. 2		45
Manufactured, plug, No. 3		40

CATTLE MARKET.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 9, 1872.

Texas beeves, choice, ₱ head	$	@
Texas beeves, fair to good, ₱ head		@
Texas cattle, choice, ₱ head		@
Texas cattle, fair to good, ₱ head		@
Wintered beeves, ₱ head		@
Stags, ₱ head		@
Sheep, fine quality, ₱ head		@
Sheep, second class, ₱ head		@
Sheep, third quality, ₱ head		@
Mixed sheep, choice, ₱ head		@
Mixed sheep, ₱ head		@
Texas sheep, well clipped		@
Calves, ₱ head		@
Yearlings, ₱ head		@

Special Notices.

Appointments for Preaching in Selma District, Alabama Conference.

On my last round I will preach as follows: Linden, Oct. 9, 10; Shiloh, Oct. 12, 13; Wesley Chapel, Oct. 14; Air Mount, Oct. 15; Mt. Andrew, Oct. 18, 19, 20; Bashi, Nov. 1, 2, 3; Dayton, Nov. 7, 8, 9, 10; McKinley, Nov. 12; Center chapel, Nov. 14, 15, 16, 17; Jackson, Nov. 22; Grove Hill, Nov. 23, 24; Union, Nov. 26.

Bro. Wade will please meet me at Jackson. Bro. Thames will meet me at Union church, and I will fill any appointments he may make up to his quarterly meeting. The first week in December I propose to spend at Galnestown.

Dear brethren, the Lord has thus far greatly blessed your labors in the conversion of many souls. Let us earnestly pray for his presence at these appointments, and for a greater outpouring of the Spirit upon us and our people; and to him be all the glory.

A. J. BURNUS, P. E.

Camp Meeting.—Change of Time.

There will be a camp meeting on the Paulding circuit, Meridian district, Mississippi Conference, twelve miles west of Enterprise, near the Enterprise and Mount Rose road, commencing on Thursday before and embracing the third Sabbath in October. The meeting will be conducted on the primitive style. Provision will be made for all ministers and persons living at a distance. Persons living within fifteen or twenty miles of the camp ground must not expect accommodations from the citizens or tent-holders. All ministers are respectfully invited and urged to attend. There will be conveyance for ministers at Enterprise on Thursday morning.

J. H. HOLLAND, P. C.

Appointments for Quarterly Meetings.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

VICKSBURG DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

North Warren, Mildale and Cane Ridge, at Oak Ridge	Oct. 5, 6
South Warren, at Bovina	12, 13
Cayuga, at Rives' chapel	19, 20
Port Gibson	26, 27
Clover Hill, at Clover Hill	Nov. 2, 3
Rolling Fork, at Rolling Fork	9, 10
Fayette, at Fayette	16, 17
Natchez	23, 24
Kingston, at Washington	30, Dec. 1
Vicksburg and City mission	Dec. 7, 8

JOHN A. B. JONES, P. E.
Port Gibson, Miss.

JACKSON DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Sharon circuit, at Sharon	Oct. 5, 6
Yazoo circuit, at Locust Grove	12, 13
Yazoo City and Silver Creek, at Yazoo City	19, 20
Mount Olivet circuit and Yazoo mission, at Mount Olivet	26, 27
Carthage circuit	Nov. 2, 3
Sulphur Springs circuit	9, 10
Raymond circuit, at Raymond	16, 17
Brownsville ct., at Queen's Hill	23, 24
Camden and Thomastown circuits	30, Dec. 1

The secretaries of Church Conferences will please present the report of statistics as required by the Discipline, pages 55 and 56. The trustees of our church property will please make their report as required by the Discipline, pages 55 and 102.

H. H. MONTGOMERY, P. E.

SUMMIT DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Sacramental meeting, at Port Union	Oct. 12, 13
Holmesville circuit, at Holmesville	19, 20
Covington circuit, at Spring Hill	26, 27
Amite City circuit, at Amite City	Nov. 2, 3
Franklin circuit, at Warner's	9, 10
Big Creek miss., at Shilling church	16, 17
St. Helena ct., at Center church	23, 24
Pontchatoula mission, at Joyner's church	30, Dec. 1
Greenbury ct., at Pipkin chapel	Dec. 7, 8

J. NICHOLSON, P. E.

BROOKHAVEN DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Scotland circuit, at Caseyville	Oct. 5, 6
Pleasant Valley ct., at Rehoboth	12, 13
Bufkinton circuit, at Pisgah	19, 20
Southwest	26, 27
Georgetown ct., at Pearl River	Nov. 2, 3
Jackson circuit, at Spring Ridge	9, 10
Crystal Springs and Crystal Springs mission	16, 17
Bogue Chitto circuit, at Johnson's Chapel	23, 24
Brookhaven station and Brookhaven mission	30, Dec. 1
Hazlehurst station	Dec. 7, 8

Secretaries of the respective Boards of Stewards will please present a financial statement for the use of the Joint Board, as required by the Discipline. Trustees will please report the names and character of the sites of all property held in trust.

F. E. M. LINFIELD, P. E.

BRANDON DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Hillsboro circuit	Oct. 5, 6
Clinton circuit	12, 13
Newton circuit	19, 20
Lena circuit	26, 27
Pearl River circuit	Nov. 2, 3
Shiloh and Morton circuit	9, 10
Forest circuit	16, 17
Tall Timber mission	23, 24
Brandon circuit	30, Dec. 1
Pelahatchie circuit	Dec. 7, 8

F. M. WILLIAMS, P. E.

MCCOMB DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Wesson	Oct. 5, 6
East Fork	12, 13
Pearl	19, 20
Bethel	26, 27
Salem and Mount Carmel	Nov. 2, 3
Franklinton	9, 10
Tangipahoa	16, 17
Tylertown mission	23, 24
Osyka and Magnolia	30, Dec. 1
Summit circuit	Dec. 7, 8

[illegible] Quarterly Meeting at Bethel Church, Dec. 14, 15. Presiding Elder will have appointments at the following places: Osyka, Dec. 16; Magnolia, Dec. 17; Summit, Dec. 18; Bethel, Dec. 19; Tylertown, Dec. 20; Tangipahoa, Dec. 21; Franklinton, Dec. 22; Salem and Mount Carmel, Dec. 23; Pearl River, Dec. 24; Forest, Dec. 25; Lena, Dec. 26; Pelahatchie, Dec. 27; Brandon, Dec. 28; Tall Timber, Dec. 29; Newton, Dec. 30; Decatur, Dec. 31; Shiloh, Jan. 1; Wesson, Jan. 2; Hillsboro, Jan. 3; Clinton, Jan. 4; Pearl, Jan. 5; East Fork, Jan. 6; Bethel, Jan. 7.

[illegible] Quarterly Meeting at Pisgah, Dec. 21, 22. Presiding Elder will have appointments at the following places: Bufkinton, Dec. 23; Southwest, Dec. 24; Georgetown, Dec. 25; Jackson, Dec. 26; Spring Ridge, Dec. 27; Crystal Springs, Dec. 28; Bogue Chitto, Dec. 29; Brookhaven, Dec. 30; Hazlehurst, Dec. 31; Scotland, Jan. 1; Caseyville, Jan. 2; Pleasant Valley, Jan. 3; Rehoboth, Jan. 4; Pisgah, Jan. 5.

MERIDIAN DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

De Kalb ct., at New Hope	Oct. 5, 6
Hood ct.	12, 13
Walnut circuit, at Frost's Bridge	19, 20
Paulding	26, 27
Decatur circuit	Nov. 2, 3
Philadelphia station	9, 10
Quarterly meeting at Pleasant Valley	16, 17
Meridian station	23, 24

W. R. EMBRY, P. E.

SELMA DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Grove mission	Oct. 5, 6
Elm Precipice, at Salem camp ground	12, 13
Elmo, at Elmo	19, 20
Bethel	Nov. 30, Dec. 1

C. F. GILBERT, P. E.

ALABAMA CONFERENCE.

EUTAW DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Eutaw	Oct. 5, 6
Warsaw	12, 13
Gravel Hill	19, 20
Bethel	26, 27
Elliott and Midway	Nov. 2, 3
Pickens	9, 10
Pine Ridge and Lamar	16, 17
Tuscaloosa	23, 24
Tuscaloosa circuit	30, Dec. 1
Carrollton	Dec. 7, 8

T. A. L. CARROLL, P. E.

SELMA DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Selma station	Oct. 5, 6
Dallas circuit, at Salem	12, 13
Pleasant Hill ct., at Mount Moriah	19, 20
Cahaba circuit, at Bethel	26, 27
Marion and Siloam circuit, at Siloam	Nov. 2, 3
Orrville and Sprigg and circuits, at Orrville	9, 10
Uniontown and Pleasant Hill mission, at Uniontown	16, 17
Greensboro ct., at Greensboro	23, 24
Summerfield circuit, at Summerfield	30, Dec. 1
Marion station	Dec. 7, 8

[illegible] Quarterly Meeting at Bethel, Dec. 14, 15. Presiding Elder will have appointments at the following places: Orrville, Dec. 16; Sprigg, Dec. 17; Uniontown, Dec. 18; Pleasant Hill, Dec. 19; Cahaba, Dec. 20; Dallas, Dec. 21; Selma, Dec. 22; Siloam, Dec. 23; Marion, Dec. 24; Summerfield, Dec. 25; Greensboro, Dec. 26; Pleasant Hill, Dec. 27; Uniontown, Dec. 28; Orrville, Dec. 29; Sprigg, Dec. 30; Selma, Dec. 31.

[illegible] Quarterly Meeting at Pleasant Hill, Jan. 4, 5. Presiding Elder will have appointments at the following places: Cahaba, Jan. 6; Dallas, Jan. 7; Selma, Jan. 8; Siloam, Jan. 9; Marion, Jan. 10; Summerfield, Jan. 11; Greensboro, Jan. 12; Pleasant Hill, Jan. 13; Uniontown, Jan. 14; Orrville, Jan. 15; Sprigg, Jan. 16; Selma, Jan. 17.

Those who have subscribed to the district parsonage will please bring or send up their contributions to the quarterly meetings.

A. J. BURNUS, P. E.

DEMOPOLIS DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Cuba, at Cuba	Oct. 12, 13
Gainesville, at Gainesville	19, 20
Forkland, at Forkland	26, 27
Demopolis	Nov. 2, 3
Butler, at Mount Sterling	9, 10
Gaston, at Bethel	16, 17
Braden Springs, at Bethel	21, 24

Preachers in charge will please have ready full statistical reports; stewards will make faithful efforts to bring up their finances, so as to meet the assessments; and trustees will be ready to give a clear statement of the condition of the property in their charges.

S. H. COX, P. E.

MOBILE DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Grand Bay mission, at Pleasant Valley	Oct. 5, 6
Citronelle circuit, at Citronelle	19, 20
St. Stephen's ct., at Pine Grove	26, 27
Franklin street	Nov. 2, 3
Pollard circuit, at Hendrick's	9, 10
Milton	16, 17
Pensacola	23, 24
St. Francis street	Dec. 1

The stewards, trustees and preachers will be ready with their reports, as the Discipline requires. They will please read and refresh their memories.

H. URQUHART, P. E.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

ALEXANDRIA DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Centerville mission	Oct. 19, 20
Columbia circuit	26, 27
Spring Creek and Bayou Boeuf cts.	Nov. 2, 3
Trinity, at White Ridge	9, 10
Evergreen and Big Cane	16, 17
Atlanta	23, 24
Rapides circuit	30, Dec. 1

FRED. WHITE, P. E.

LAKE PROVIDENCE DIS.—FOURTH ROUND.

Westley and Jordan, at Westley	Oct. 19, 20
Waterproof, at Waterproof	26, 27
Oak Ridge and Prairie Mer Rouge	Nov. 2, 3
Lake Providence, at Lake Providence	7-10
Oak Grove, at Smith's chapel	16, 17
Floyd and Delhi, at Floyd	23, 24
Lilin Grove, at Bartholomew	30, Dec. 1
Shelly Island, at Shelly Island	Dec. 7, 8
Winnsboro, at Magnolia	14, 15
Farriville, at New Salem	21, 22
Bastrop, at Bastrop	28, 29

The brethren will please remember that this is the fourth and last quarter. Boards of stewards will please be prepared for a full settlement of all financial obligations. Boards of trustees will be prepared to make their annual report. Pastors will be prepared with full quarterly and statistical reports.

J. T. DAVIS, P. E.

OPELOUSAS DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Lake Charles	Oct. 5, 6
Calcasieu	12, 13
Sugartown	19, 20
Bayou Boeuf	26, 27
Kimball's chapel	Nov. 2, 3
Bayou Boeuf	9, 10
Verm'lionville	16, 17
Abbeville	23, 24
New Iberia

B. F. WHITE, P. E.
Postoffice—Opelousas, La.

SHREVEPORT DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Many circuit, at Bayou Lee	Oct. 5, 6
Anacoco circuit, at Natchitoches	12, 13
Shreveport	19, 20

JOHN PIPES, P. E.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

YAZOO DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Attala circuit, at Pleasant Hill	Oct. 5, 6
Winona circuit, at Bethesda	12, 13
Greenwood and McNutt, at Greenwood	19, 20
Lexington	26, 27
Durant, at West's station	Nov. 2, 3
Kosciusko and Bethel, at Kosciusko	9, 10
Black Hawk, at Sweetwater	16, 17

W. P. BARTON, P. E.

N. B.—Camp meetings at Liberty and Durant quarterly meetings.

MISCELLANEOUS.

IMPORTANT RELIGIOUS BOOKS

LATELY PUBLISHED BY

LEE & SHEPARD, BOSTON.

Prof. L. T. Townsend's New Book.

GODMAN SEARCH AND MANIFESTATION. By Prof. L. T. Townsend, author of "Credo," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1 50.

"It is written in a clear, earnest and evangelical style, from an evangelical standpoint, and will take a high place in the class of similar works."—Christian Intelligencer.

A new edition of Prof. Townsend's

CREDO. 12mo, cloth, $1 6

THE SWORD AND GARMENT, OR MINISTERIAL CULTURE. 12mo, cloth, $1 50.

Rev. Richard's New Work.

READER AND CREATION, OR THE Knowledge in the Science of God and his Work. By Laurens P. Hickok, D. D., LL. D. 12mo, cloth, $2 75.

"The distinguished author of this octavo, in the same style of quaint and evident originality, has added another to his many contributions to speculative philosophy in an age of scientific skepticism. Of the successful achievement of this purpose his eminent reputation is a full guarantee."—Christian Advocate.

MANLY IMMORTAL, OR MAN TRIED. Facts and Reasonings. By Laurens P. Hickok, D. D., LL. D. Uniform with "Creation and Creator." 12mo, cloth, $2 75.

"This work is a thorough discussion of a subject of the highest importance, and one which is well calculated to interest the reader. It is worthy of Creator and Creation, and is a fitting close to the labors of humanity's noblest benefactor. It is a treasury of that knowledge which is indispensable and profitable, and the wisdom of every page is evident. It is a book to be studied, and its study will be richly rewarded."—Methodist Quarterly Review.

"It is a work which will command attention, and will be found a valuable addition to the literature of Christian evidences."—Methodist Recorder.

"It is a work of great ability."—Christian Advocate.

"It is a masterly work."—Western Christian Advocate.

In Mr. Scribner's New Book.

HALF TRUTHS AND THE TRUTH. By Rev. M. Mallalieu, D. D. Cloth, $1.

"These articles replenish the opportune, as discussing with intelligence and spirit one of the live questions of the day."—Methodist Home.

A Model Story Book, by Mrs. Caroline Hentz and Mrs. Caroline E. Jerome.

NEW EDITION OF POEMS. By Mother and Daughter. With Introductory Notices. 12mo, gilt, $1 75.

The authors of this beautiful volume are well known as writers for the young. It contains a selection of their best articles for children as well as more elaborate productions, originally published and subsequently bound. The first book, we think, of the kind, and great talents will commend it.

Sent by the booksellers and the publishers.

LEE & SHEPARD, Publishers, Boston.
LEE, SHEPARD & DILLINGHAM, New York.

sep25 4t

FALL OF '72.

FOR THE HEIGHTS OF FAME AND FORTUNE.

And the Routes Taken by the Climbers to Become Men of Mark.

This is the title of our splendid new octavo, 700 pages of historical reading, interesting as all facts and rare with fresh interest to the general public. Exclusive territory given. Large profits for doing. Send stamp for circulars at once. Send $1 for prospectus (cloth). Write at once for descriptive circulars to

WM. E. WOOLF & CO.,
Publishers, Cincinnati.

sep25 4t

EAGLE! EAGLE! EAGLE!

Breech and Muzzle-loading Guns, Rifles, Pistols, Shot Guns, Ammunition, and Sporting Goods generally. Send for Price List. Guns made to order or repaired in the best manner.

ALEXANDER MOORMAN,
Sole Agent for Fort Smith, Ark.

sep25 3m

DRY GOODS—CLOTHING.

D. H. HOLMES,

155.....CANAL STREET.....155

—AND—

13.....BOURBON STREET.....15

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALER

—IN—

ALL DESCRIPTIONS

—OF—

DRY GOODS,

—SUCH AS—

SILKS, TISSUES, EMBROIDERIES, LACES, SHAWLS, CLOAKS, MADE SUITS, ETC.

The attention of the public is respectfully called to our stock, which will be found most complete, embracing every kind of Fancy and Staple Goods.

ap25 6m

W. H. PIERSON. E. L. HEWS.

PIERSON & HEWS,

DEALERS IN

Fine Clothing & Furnishing Goods,

NOS. 13 AND 15 CAMP STREET,

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

feb15 1y

STEAMSHIPS.

FOR NEW YORK.

The Cromwell New York and New Orleans Steamship Line.

Steamers of this Line leave New Orleans for New York EVERY SATURDAY at 5 P. M.

Cabin passage $50 00
Steerage passage 25 00

Through bills of lading to foreign and coastwise ports issued.

ALFRED MOULTON,
41 Carondelet street.

mh21 1y

FOR NEW YORK.

MERCHANTS' STEAMSHIP LINE.

Sailing from New York and New Orleans EVERY SATURDAY.

Cabin passage $50 00
Steerage passage 25 00

Through tickets to Liverpool and the Continent.

New Orleans wharf, foot of Jefferson street.
New York wharf, Pier No. 4, North river.
JOHN H. LUDWIGSEN, Agent.
feb8 1y No. 190 Common street.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE GREAT HOUSEHOLD REMEDY.

As an Invigorator, Liver Corrector and Blood Renovator is superior to all the Bitters, Elixirs, Cordials and Sarsaparillas in use. It is so adapted to the whole system that every organ and function in the body is brought under its exhilarating influence. It gives tone and strength to the digestive apparatus, dispels languor and debility, invigorates the Liver, regulates the Kidneys and Bowels, removes the effect of excess of every description of any kind, and gives vitality and purpose to the blood.

Its curative powers alter and completely regenerate the entire mass of fluids, and even the solids of the human system, thereby preventing and curing Dyspepsia and Consumptive symptoms, Fever and Ague, Bilious diseases, Fevers of all kinds, Nervous Debility, Affections of the Stomach and Bowels, etc. As a mild and delightful Invigorant for debilitated females it has no superior.

By its use new life and vigor is given to both body and mind, sending a glow of vitality through every part, which is permanent and lasting.

It is the most effectual remedy for the relief of human suffering ever discovered, and is pleasant to the taste.

I WE CHALLENGE I
I I vs. I I
I WORLD I

to produce a more decidedly meritorious medicine to take for so potent for the prevention and cure of diseases, than DR. HENRY'S

WORLD'S TONIC AND BLOOD PURIFIER

Price, $1, or Six Bottles for $5.

Prepared by the GRAFTON MEDICINE Co., St. Louis, Mo. Sold by druggists and dealers in medicines everywhere.

FREE TO BOOK AGENTS

AN ELEGANTLY BOUND CANVASSING book for the best and cheapest Family Bible ever published. We will send free of charge to all Book Agents. It contains over 600 fine Scripture illustrations, and agents are meeting with unprecedented success. A rare chance offered for agents. Write us what you want for agents are doing.

NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO.,
Memphis, Tenn.

sep25 4t

MEDICAL.

DR. D. JAYNE'S ALTERATIVE

WILL

BUILD UP THE SYSTEM,

PURIFY THE BLOOD,

AND

EXCITE THE ABSORBENTS TO

HEALTHY ACTION.

DR. D. JAYNE'S ALTERATIVE

IS A STANDARD MEDICINE;

a compound of those articles which long experience has proven to possess the most safe and efficient alterative and deobstruent properties, and containing no concealed poisons, no mercurial or other metallic preparations. Having before us the testimonials of thousands of persons who have been restored to sound health from its use, it is recommended to the afflicted with entire confidence as to its ability to effectually eradicate from the human system the diseases for whose cure it is designed.

For Purifying the Blood

the Alterative will be found to be a most effective medicine. Acting directly on the circulation, it purifies the blood, and passes with it into every tissue and fiber of the body, removing every particle of disease from the system.

FOR SCROFULA IN ALL ITS FORMS,

whether Ulcerations of the Flesh or Bones, Enlargement of the Joints, Glands, Swellings, Eruptions, Tumors, etc., the Alterative has been found pre-eminently successful. By its action on the blood it destroys the virus or poisonous principle from which these diseases originate.

FOR SKIN DISEASES,

the immediate cause of which will always be found to be an obstructed state of the pores, JAYNE'S ALTERATIVE is a certain remedy. It not only removes the obstinate state of the pores, but it frees the blood and perspiration from all impurities and gross particles, which are so liable to obstruct the small perspiratory organs.

All Dr. D. Jayne & Son's Family Medicines are sold by our Agents in New Orleans,

E. J. HART & Co., 73 Tchoupitoulas St.,

The Christian Advocate.

PUBLISHED BY ROBT. J. HARP, FOR THE ALABAMA, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES, METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH SOUTH.

VOL. XVIII. NEW ORLEANS, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1872. NO. 42.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

DOMESTIC.

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., Oct. 9.—The Alabama and Chattanooga railroad is now open from Chattanooga, Tennessee, to Meridian, Mississippi. This event is hailed with pleasure and enthusiasm by the people all along the line of the road, who have so long been deprived of its benefits.

AUBURN, N. Y., Oct. 10.—William H. Seward died at his residence, in this city, this afternoon.

SIOUX CITY, IOWA, Oct. 10, 9 30 P. M.—Yesterday the city and vicinity was visited by a severe shock of an earthquake. People rushed from houses, and considerable excitement prevailed for a brief period. The shock lasted about a minute and a half. Many buildings shook.

At Fort Randall, Dakota, the shock was severe and great excitement prevailed. At Yankton the shock, although faint, was distinctly felt. No damage done. Reports from other portions of Dakota show that the shock was felt more or less at all principal points.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Twenty States are represented in the Catholic Total Abstinence Union at Columbus, Ohio.

The election of Hendricks, in Indiana, seems conceded by three to five hundred majority. Hendricks runs ahead of his ticket. Shanks is elected in the ninth Indiana district, giving the Republicans a net gain of two Congressmen. Niblack's majority is one hundred and fifty. Voorhies was defeated by six hundred. The chances favor two Indiana Republican Congressmen at large. In the Legislature the Republicans have fourteen majority on a joint ballot.

Mr. Seward had tertian ague, with catarrhal complication and muscular palsy. Mr. Seward's intellectual faculties were clear and vigorous to the last, save when disturbed by a paroxysm of fever.

Just after an effusion from the lungs yesterday, and thinking it would relieve his breathing, he was at his own desire placed upon a lounge and bolstered up, and moved from his adjoining bedroom into his study, where, in the midst of his books and his literary and other papers, and surrounded by relatives and a few intimate friends, and all his devoted dependents, he breathed his last. For the last hour of his life his powers of nature were giving way; his condition became easy, and he spent the time in affectionate leave-takings of his relatives and dependents, and finally sank quietly to his last rest, as if going to sleep.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12.—At a quarter past four o'clock this morning two shocks of an earthquake, of several seconds' duration, were felt here. The oscillations were from east to west. No damage was done.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The departments will be closed on Monday and draped in mourning for thirty days in respect to Mr. Seward. His last words were: "Love one another."

BALTIMORE, Oct. 13.—The installation of Bishop Bayley, the successor of Archbishop Spalding, was most imposing. The procession included the highest church dignitaries from every State within the archbishopric.

PITTSBURG, PA., Oct. 13.—The rolling mill building of the Cambria Works, covering about four acres of ground, situated at Johnstown, Pennsylvania, caught fire about twelve o'clock last night.

Prompt and strenuous efforts were made by the workmen and citizens, but only a portion of the main building and west wing were saved, in a damaged condition. The light machinery of the mill is entirely destroyed, but the heavy machinery is not much damaged.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 14.—Rev. J. F. Kennedy, of Delaware, Ohio, financial agent of the Ohio Western University, suicided yesterday by shooting. He was recently presiding elder of the North Ohio Conference, and was a member of the committee charged with the investigation of the New York Book Concern. Difficulties in the recent death of his two daughters are supposed to have brought on insanity. He leaves a wife.

MEMPHIS, Oct. 15.—A feverish state of excitement still exists at Osceola, Arkansas. Many citizens are fleeing with their families, in anticipation of another attack from the negroes. No further bloodshed is reported. The whites of the village are still under arms, with all approaches guarded.

FOREIGN.

CITY OF MEXICO, Oct. 4, via Havana, Oct. 12.—Congress was convened in session on the sixteenth ultimo. President Lerdo de Tejada made the opening speech. He warmly praised Juarez, and gave a resume of the manner in which the government had been administered since his death. The relations between Mexico and foreign powers were pronounced to be in a satisfactory condition. The president stated that he was inaugurating a system of economical administration of government.

It is reported that all political parties will support Lerdo de Tejada for president.

Lafraga, the foreign minister, presented a motion to congress, in secret session, to authorize the government to appoint a counter commission for the investigation of affairs on the Rio Grande, which was unanimously carried.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 10.—A fight occurred yesterday at Stamboul, between Turks and Persians. The troops were called out to suppress the riot and fired into the Persian party, killing three and wounding thirty-five. Several soldiers were injured. The Persian colony is greatly excited, and there are fears of a general massacre.

The Sultan has conferred the order of Asmanie on the Grand Duke Nicholas of Russia.

It is estimated that three millions of the inhabitants have died from famine in Persia.

PARIS, Oct. 11, midnight.—Prince Napoleon has yielded to the peremptory order of the government and left Paris.

PARIS, Oct. 12.—The announcement late last night that Prince Napoleon had left Paris, in obedience to an order of the government, was premature. His notice to depart directed him to leave at noon to-day, but, not having complied therewith at half-past twelve o'clock, he was waited upon by the secretary of the prefect of police and two agents of the government, with orders for him to follow them toward Switzerland. The Prince thereupon left the city. The Princess Clothilde voluntarily accompanied him.

Prince Napoleon will be escorted to the frontier by a military guard.

MADRID, Oct. 12.—Later details of the revolutionary outbreak at Ferrol have been received. The garrison of the fortress and the crew of the Spanish war steamer Mejerdo continue to withstand the overtures of the rebels, and remain faithful to the government. Notwithstanding this, the insurgents had succeeded in gaining possession of the gunboats which were anchored in the harbor. They also obtained possession of the lighthouse and imprisoned the keeper. By these means they have closed the port, so that the government reinforcements cannot reach the place by sea.

PARIS, Oct. 15.—Cardinal Bonnechase, who has just returned from a visit to the Holy See, assures M. Thiers that the Pope will remain in Rome.

BERLIN, Oct. 15.—Prince Frederick Henry Albert, brother of the Emperor, died to-day.

Proclamation by the President.

WHEREAS, The revolution of another year has again brought the time when it is usual to look back upon the past and publicly to thank the Almighty for his mercies and his blessings; AND WHEREAS, If any one people has more occasion than another for such thankfulness, it is the citizens of the United States, whose government is their creature, subject to their behests; who have reserved to themselves ample civil and religious freedom and equality before the law; who, during the last twelve months, have enjoyed exemption from any grievous or general calamity, and to whom prosperity in agriculture, manufactures and commerce has been vouchsafed:

Now, therefore, by these considerations, I recommend that on Thursday, the twenty-eighth day of November next, the people meet in their respective places of worship and there make their acknowledgments to God for his kindness and bounty.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed. Done at the city of Washington, this the eleventh day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-two, and of the independence of the United States the ninety-seventh.

By the President:

U. S. GRANT.

HAMILTON FISH, Sec. of State.

WASHINGTON, October 11, 1872.

FROM THE WORK.

REMBERT HILLS CIRCUIT.—Mr. Editor: The Lord has been with us again on this circuit. We have had a good meeting at Hampden, which resulted in about twelve conversions and fourteen accessions to the church. We are looking for still greater things than these.

Yours in Christ,

C. W. CALHOUN.

SHILOH, ALA., Oct. 4, 1872.

GRAND CHENIER, LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: We have just closed a protracted meeting at Grand Chenier. It commenced on Wednesday before the fifth Sunday in September, and resulted in building up the cause of Zion. The church was abundantly revived and backsliders reclaimed. There were sixty-four accessions to the church—forty-four whites and twenty colored. The great majority of the whites were of the best citizens of that community. Bro. B. F. White, presiding elder, was present, and preached with great success. All praise to God for his blessings on our labors. God is blessing our efforts on the Leesburg and Lake Charles circuits.

JAMES G. WORLEY, P. C.

OCTOBER 10, 1872.

GEORGIANA, ALABAMA CONFERENCE. Asbury Sunday School Celebration and Protracted Meeting.—Mr. Editor: This occasion was one not soon to be forgotten. Pursuant to a preconcerted programme, the Sabbath school at Asbury met at an early hour on the morning of the twentieth ultimo, to enjoy one of those festal seasons of youthful pleasure and improvement. As early as nine A. M. the whole place was all astir with men, women and children, and at ten A. M. the Sunday school was conducted in procession by Bro. J. S. Gray, the superintendent, from a residence near by to the church (being led by a white silken banner, borne by a little boy with all the manliness of a young Napoleon,) which was filled to its greatest capacity with eager listeners to enjoy this promised treat.

The exercises were opened by reading the Scriptures, singing, and prayer by the pastor. The congregation was thus entertained for two hours by appropriate speeches, dialogues and singing—to be sure, next to the music above; after which the schools was conducted in procession out to a delightful grove, where stood a table one hundred feet long, loaded to its utmost capacity with almost everything that the heart or stomach could desire, inviting them to a sumptuous feast. After the congregation had partaken alike of these bounties, they were called to the church again, where, to their great delight, they were entertained for two hours and a half as before. Then, after an interim of two hours spent in all the youthful merriment peculiar to such festivities, the congregation was again called to the church to witness the closing exercises of that long-to-be-remembered day, which was most creditably crowned with addresses from Bros. J. S. Lowery and W. P. Stott.

The meeting commenced the next day, but for fear of making an unjustifiable draft upon your columns I will give no detail of its results; will only say that I never witnessed a more spirit-stirring, heart-moving revival than we had there. The Sunday school, church and whole community were profoundly concerned throughout the whole ten days it lasted. Thirty-five were added to the church, and I think as many converted. Bros. Jeter, Burkett and Chavers have our thanks for their assistance. We have had other good meetings on the work, especially at Georgiana, where we protracted the meeting nine days from the close of the district meeting. Twenty-one were added to the church and many converted. There have been seventy-four added to the church on the work during the last two months, and three other meetings yet in view. Pray for us. All praise to God for his abounding grace.

J. L. SKIPPER.

GEORGIANA, ALA., October, 1872.

CAMDEN DISTRICT CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: The third District Conference for the Camden district, Alabama Conference, was held in Georgiana, Butler county, Alabama, August 22 25. The attendance was large and full, all the works in the district being well represented. In the absence of a Bishop, the Rev. D. M. Hudson, the presiding elder, occupied the chair.

The conference was harmonious throughout. The meeting was "a feast of fat things." At no District Conference that I have attended was the religious element so marked as at this one. The president of the conference soon impressed all that the great work of the occasion was the salvation of souls and the glory of the Lord Jesus, and earnestly did all work to this end. The congregations were very large and serious; the preaching was plain, pointed and earnest; the prayers were the deep utterances of souls who felt that God was near, and the singing was "with the spirit and the understanding." The result was that the preachers and delegates were all refreshed, the church at Georgiana was revived, and sinners were converted and brought in to the church.

The action of the conference on many subjects would be of no interest to you or your readers; but there are some points of general interest, such as

THE GENERAL STATE OF THE CHURCH

The committee on this subject reported the district as being in a prosperous condition.

TEMPERANCE.

This subject was freely discussed, and the conference requested the publication of the following resolutions:

Resolved, That the pastors of the district form a temperance society in each church, wherever practicable, binding the members thereof not to buy, sell or give to others, or accept from others, any spirituous liquors as a beverage.

Resolved, That in the judgment of this conference the buying, selling or using, in any way, of spirituous liquors as a beverage is contrary to the spirit of the Bible and our Book of Discipline.

Resolved, That these resolutions be published in the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, and that the pastors be requested to read them to the congregations.

The report on temperance showed that the evil of intemperance was abating in the district, and if the churches make a strong effort the temperance cause will soon gain the victory.

The Sunday school cause came in for its share of attention. The reports gathered from the works showed an increased interest in this direction, and the reports of pastors strongly marked the utility and efficacy of the uniform lesson system. Some schools not using these lessons were reported prosperous; but the majority of prosperous schools do use them. As a consequence, the uniform lesson system was recommended and our Sunday school publications indorsed.

Delegates to the Annual Conference: Dr. J. M. Harrington, R. W. Russell, W. W. Drane, Rev. Dr. M. Padgett. Alternates—D. T. Sirmon, Samuel Tisdale, Rev. W. W. Walker and K. L. Davis.

D. M. HUDSON, P. E.

M. E. BUTT, Secretary.

J. S. DUDLEY, Ass't Secretary.

DEBATE AT PINEAPPLE, ALA.

MR. EDITOR: We have had the pleasure of attending the debate at Pineapple, between the Rev. D. M. Hudson, of the Alabama Conference, Methodist Episcopal Church South, and Elder J. M. Pickens, of the Christian, or more properly the Campbellite Church. The debate was conducted in a Baptist church near Pineapple.

The first question for discussion was: "Infant baptism is authorized by the Bible"—Hudson affirming, Pickens denying. Hudson's first argument was to show that the Abrahamic covenant was a spiritual covenant, and that children were admitted into it, and that this covenant never had been repealed; also that God never entered into covenant with his people but what the children were included. Then, by the history of the church, that the apostles administered baptism to infants. Hudson also showed that infant baptism was no innovation in the church, defying his opponent to show if it did not come in the room of circumcision when it was introduced into the church. Here Mr. Pickens utterly failed. In fact Bro. Hudson's argument was so conclusive that we learned that some of the Baptist brethren said if there was no more argument against infant baptism than that which Pickens produced they would have their children baptized, they seeming to think that he did not do justice to the subject; but we thought he did about as well as any one could do on his side of the question.

The second question was: "Baptism is for the remission of sins." Upon this question time would fail us to speak of all of Mr. Pickens' absurd notions in reference to the forgiveness of sins. Suffice it to say that his argument was to show that where there is no baptism there cannot be any forgiveness, and that baptism must be by immersion or there is no salvation. He (Pickens) also stated that there was no Christ proper until after the resurrection and ascension; consequently no sins were forgiven up to that time, but laid over from year to year.

Now, Mr. Editor, you may know how such notions—for I cannot call his ideas of the plan of salvation a doctrine—were shown up in the light of gospel truth by such a man as Bro. Hudson, for it was plain to be seen that Hudson was his superior on all points, he meeting and refuting all of Pickens' arguments. Pickens often failed, and a great many of Hudson's arguments he never attempted to answer.

The third question was: "The sprinkling or pouring of water upon a proper subject, by a proper administrator, is Christian baptism." Here Hudson showed his superior learning not only in the languages, but in all history connected with the church; so that Mr. Pickens asked to close the debate at twelve o'clock of the last day, not, however, without an excuse of being unwell, and a promise to meet Bro. Hudson again in February next, and have their debate reported and published. This we will believe when we know it.

J. M. JOHNSTON.

ALLENTON, October 3, 1872.

WESTERN VIRGINIA CONFERENCE.

NUMERICAL STRENGTH.

The Central Methodist, reviewing the statistics of the Western Virginia Conference, says:

While these reports are very imperfect and do not correctly represent our material resources, they are, nevertheless, very encouraging. It will be remembered that the General Conference in 1866 allowed the Baltimore Conference to embrace within its territory the Greenbrier district, or the greater portion of it, which district, according to the statistics of 1860, numbered 1,309 members and 310 probationers. With that territory belonging to us, we only numbered in 1860, 9,675 members and 2,452 probationers, making a grand total of 12,127. Allowing that one-half of the probationers would have graduated, had not the war intervened, which is an unusually large per cent., the grand totals would have been 10,901, or 523 less than our present number. Take from this about one thousand who were transferred to the Baltimore Conference, and we number to-day not less than fifteen hundred more than we numbered in the same territory in our palmiest days before the war. When we consider the fact that at the close of the war we were peeled and torn, with scarcely an organized society; our houses of worship nearly all destroyed, our ministers and membership impoverished, and not a dollar of missionary money in the treasury with which to aid in the great struggle; a rival organization securely settled upon almost every inch of our territory, backed by millions of money and plenty of men, the result is almost astounding.

REV. J. W. YARBROUGH.—As announced in our last issue, says the Southern Christian Advocate, Rev. John W. Yarbrough has withdrawn from the Methodist Episcopal Church, intending, at its next session, to apply for admission into the North Georgia Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

The Atlanta Methodist parts with Bro. Yarbrough in the utmost kindness, and speaks of him thus:

"Bro. Yarbrough, while with us, has done a good work and sustained an excellent character. His record as a gentleman, as a Christian and as a Methodist minister is unblemished and worthy of all praise. He came to us of his own accord, was cordially received by us, and on leaving us we send after him no unkind word or wish, but earnest prayers for his peace, prosperity and happiness. We hope to meet him, after life's toils are over, in that world where all denominations become one in Christ Jesus."

We doubt not that Bro. Yarbrough's old friends will warmly welcome him to his former place among them.

From the Pacific Methodist we learn that Rev. W. R. Gober, of the Pacific Conference, Methodist Episcopal Church South, has joined the Northern Methodist Church, and has been appointed by Bishop Foster to Sacramento.

BISHOP PIERCE IN THE WEST.

The Bishop, writing to the Southern Christian Advocate, September 25, says:

I was much gratified with the progress and healthy growth of this young Conference. It promises to rival in development its namesake of a former day. The increase of membership was over six hundred, and the Conference was greatly strengthened by transfers. I indulged pretty freely in that line. About sixty preachers were appointed to work, and ten places were left to be supplied. I have procured two more men, and yet need eight to fill up the programme. Hope to find them soon. The next General Conference will doubtless set up a Conference in Colorado, and yet another in Montana. Besides the reasons intrinsic to the policy, it will be a necessity growing out of distance, expense and population.

The session was short and the last two days interrupted by rain. The services were all well attended, and the religious impression decided. On Monday morning gave Tom the parting hand, and felt that the benediction of faith and hope and love was upon him.

I went down to St. Joseph on Monday, preached at night to a good audience, and left next day for Mexico, where the Missouri Conference was to meet. Arrived at a very unseasonable hour, but found "mine host" on hand and was promptly conveyed to his hospitable house. Here we had a most delightful Conference. The religious element was prominent from beginning to end. Bishop Marvin, Dr. McFerrin and Dr. Haygood were with me, and their presence was a blessing, to say nothing of their services. This is a noble Conference of earnest, consecrated men, and the people seem as devoted to Methodism as the preachers. They all seem to confide in church officers and church order—calmly, without impatience or distrust—and accept results without criticism or fault-finding. I was not bored with "peculiar cases," "special requests," or "very necessitous circumstances," but pleasantly left to do my duty as best I could. Of course I worked in good spirits, slept sweetly, and enjoyed myself socially, religiously and officially. The Conference at Mexico will be remembered as a benediction. About the close I received letters from home informing me of sickness in my family, and, contrary to my plan, I returned to Georgia. On my arrival I found the sick doing well, and all likely to be well again ere long. I am glad I came, on many accounts, and thank God for his mercies to me and mine. My father has been confined to his bed again, but to-day is up and is busy with the church papers, and ready to comment upon all the points he finds.

I leave for Missouri in the morning—have two Conferences to hold—and will return the last week in October. Then you shall hear from me a little more in detail.

WE ARE PAINED, says the Nashville Christian Advocate, to record the death of our old friend, the Rev Jacob M Jennings, M. D., of the Alabama Conference. He was the noble son of a noble sire, the late Rev. Samuel K. Jennings, of Baltimore. The Rev. Josiah Barker writes us that he was struck with apoplexy while at family devotions, September 29, and lingered paralyzed and unconscious, until October 1. The South Alabamian, of Greenville, October 5, pays a well-deserved tribute to his memory. About three weeks before his death he took charge of the editorial columns of that paper. He sustained a superannuated relation to the Conference, as he was not able to preach much, but his mental faculties were in full vigor till the time of his translation. We hope Bro. Barker will furnish us a memoir of this excellent minister.

THE Southern Christian Advocate announces the death of Rev. J. Blakely Smith, presiding elder of the Americus district, South Georgia Conference. He died suddenly of apoplexy, on the thirtieth of September. Mr. Smith was a preacher of twenty-five years' standing, a leading man in his Conference, and died in the full vigor of his powers, and in the midst of abundant labors.

MR. J. K. STREET, of the Texas Intelligencer, Rusk, Cherokee county, gave us a call this week. The Intelligencer is a good paper, well conducted and deservedly popular.

The Christian Advocate.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1872.

For the Advocate.

[illegible]

"Beginning at Jerusalem" go tell
The haughty council, who so zealously
Procured his death, that I have died for them;
And tell them they may come and welcomely
Of joys celestial feast on Joy's which I
With blood, my own life's blood, have bought for them.

"Beginning at Jerusalem" go tell
That rude, vociferating rabble, who,
Like wild hyenas, thirsted for my blood,
That they may come, and from that fountain in My side may drink a blissful draught of life—
An earnest of those draughts, they then may drink
Of water from the beauteous Stream of Life,
Ever flowing by the throne of God,
Where grows the lovely twelve fruit Tree of Life.

"Beginning at Jerusalem" go tell
To those infatuated Others, who
[illegible]
Me cruelly tried, that now my blood is my pleas
On them and on their children and from all
Their guilty stains and foul pollutions wash
Them white as snow, and fit them to dwell
And the pure celestial splendors of
The New Jerusalem untarnished, and Illuminated from the throne of God.

"Beginning at Jerusalem" go tell
That Roman soldier, who so rudely pierced
My side, that there is now a nearer road
Into my heart, by which he too can reach
A place in my affections, and upon
The wings of love arising He for him
He may ascend the heights of glory, and Into my Father's seraph-guarded fold
May enter, though he's not an Abram's son!

"Beginning at Jerusalem" go tell
To cringing Pilate I cringed not when called Upon to die for him, and that my blood
Sin's soldiers at Golgotha shed can wash
More damning stains from his soul than a Earth's floods of water can the blood of Guilt
Its hands; and tell him too, when he appears
Before my judgment bar, I'll be merciless
To him that he as judge has been to me
And hearken not to false accusing Jews.

"Beginning at Jerusalem" go sound
Abroad the glorious gospel of the [illegible]
Like the floods of some [illegible]
Around the earth, it spreads from [illegible]
Till every benighted heathen [illegible]
Shall
On sunny South Sea Isle scorched, or where sun
On his wooded vales and grassy plains,
Now I by setting in clouds and [illegible]
Or polar worshipers in Greenland
And so proclaimed celestial sound, and on
The plains of Shinar, where [illegible]
The horrid rites of Brahmah now prevail,
Shall gold redemption's glorious song, and Not
An echoing anthem of [illegible]
Of earth and all of Terra's spheres and [illegible]
Shall tremble in the grand endeavors
Love.

"Beginning at Jerusalem" go tell
The "sweet of the cross" to every son
Of Adam's race, and tell the [illegible]
Of [illegible] to [illegible]
To [illegible]

SALEM, FOSS, Mass., Sept. 30, 1872.

SPIRITUAL DEATH.

MR. EDITOR: In the Advocate of August 1, under the title of "Spiritual Death," are expressed some ideas I cannot indorse, though I may be wrong. If so, I desire to be set right. The words "Dead in sin," I think, are not to be taken in the fatness. By consulting the thirty-third chapter, twelfth verse, you will see that "the righteousness of the righteous shall not deliver him in the day of his transgression; and as for the wickedness of the wicked, he shall not fall thereby in the day that he turneth from his wickedness; neither shall the righteous be able to live for his righteousness in the day that he sinneth." And this is the same language that was spoken to Adam: "In the day thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die."—Gen. ii, 17. That the body of Adam did not die, or cease to exist, in that day is indubitable evidence that the body or physical man was not alluded to in the "thou shalt surely die" addressed to Adam. It is also true that the physical man was referred to in Heb. ix, 27: "It is appointed unto men once to die, and after death the judgment." Why should we care it there is a judgment after soul and body are dead? But remembering that the body of Adam was made of the dust of the earth, and will return to the same (Gen. iii, 19,) and that his soul came from God, and must return to him (Eccl. xii, 7,) we are no longer left without interest, deep and abiding, in the judgment after death. We learn from these and many other declarations of God's word that man is a two-fold being, existing in a separate unity, requiring and drawing sustenance from separate and distinct sources, and of a three-fold [illegible]

"A man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth," says Jesus, "and the kingdom of God," he says, "cometh not with observation."—Lu. xvii, 20. Which St. Paul says is not "meat and drink, but righteousness, peace and joy in the Holy Ghost."—Rom. xiv, 17. Isa. lv, 1, 2. [illegible] the soul finds her repose. Behold, says God to Adam: "I have given you every herb-bearing seed which is upon the face of all the earth, and every tree in which is the fruit of a tree yielding seed; to you it shall be for meat."—Gen. i, 29. And to Noah and his sons he says: "Every moving thing that liveth shall be meat for you."—Gen. ix, 3. From these things of the earth the body, which is also of the earth, gets it sustenance. But again it is said that God humbled the Israelites, and suffered them to hunger, and fed them with manna, which neither they nor their fathers knew, that he might make them know that man did not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceeded out of the mouth of the Lord.—Deut. viii, 3.

The question then is: What did Adam lose in the garden? or what died the day he ate the forbidden fruit? We are told that God created man in his own image, and St. Paul tells us that image was righteousness and true holiness (Eph. iv, 24;) and in the previous verse he tells us to be renewed in the spirit of our mind, and to put on the new man (this righteousness and true holiness.) Evidently, then, Adam possessed this when created, and he was to keep it by the exercise of this spirit of his mind, which was a mind unto holiness and righteousness. By transgression he lost this mind, and entailed upon himself a mind unto uncleanness, and to iniquity unto iniquity.—Ro. vi, 19. His mind and conscience was defiled, being abominable and disobedient, and unto every good work reprobate.—Titus i, 15, 16. To say, as Prince does, that Adam was not spiritually dead when he left the garden, seems to conflict with the word of God. Instance: "And you hath he quickened, who were dead in trespasses and sins."—Eph. ii, 1, 5. "Wherefore, as by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin, so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned."—Ro. v, 12.

Again, Prince says: "Eze. xviii, 4 has reference to spiritual death, not death to the body, for we know that the penalty of death is already inflicted on it; and as there is nothing else on which it can operate, the natural consequence is it must be the soul that must die." From Ro. vi, 16-23 he argues that spiritual death and eternal death are one and the same thing, and closes by saying there must be a resurrection of the body before there is spiritual death. If Adam left the garden with a hope still lingering in his soul—if well grounded—it was because he had faith in God's promise that the seed of the woman should bruise the serpent's head. He incurred the penalty by unbelief, and God saw proper to restore him by the exercise of the same faculty, belief, and the same holds good to this day. "Therefore, being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ; for when we were [illegible] dead, in due time Christ died for the ungodly."—Rom. v, 1, 6. If, then, we were without strength, dead in trespasses and sins, are we to be renewed in the spirit of our minds [illegible] the new man? If, in the still more forcible language of Jesus to Nicodemus, we [illegible] the word of God [illegible] Adam did [illegible] he ate the forbidden fruit? True, this was only an interlocutory judgment, and might be reversed during his probationary state by his exercising repentance and faith. By this means the second Adam may have been made to him a quickening spirit to the renewing of his mind, the spirit of which, after the fall, was according to the course of this world, of the Prince of the power of the air, and he was thereby a child of wrath, and exposed to eternal death. By faith he might have been made a new creature in Christ Jesus, created unto good works.—Eph. ii, 10. By this he might have had his understanding enlightened by the Holy Spirit, and been made to sit together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus, and made to know the hope of his calling, and have been restored to righteousness and true holiness, his mind turned from serving the lust of the flesh and Satan to serve the law of the spirit of life in Christ Jesus, which only could free him from the law of sin and death.—Ro. viii, 2. Being dead, he must have gone on bringing forth the fruits of death as long as he lived, unless by repentance and faith he was empowered again to bring forth fruit unto holiness, which alone could have prevented the interlocutory judgment from being made final and eternal at the great day of judgment.

It is true that the body is raised a spiritual body, and reunites with the spirit, and goes forth to judgment [illegible] according to the deeds done in the body. As the [illegible] to its deeds it [illegible] with it [illegible] to its deeds [illegible] eternal spiritual death.

Adam left the garden with a hope still lingering in his soul—if well grounded—it was because he had faith in God's promise that the seed of the woman should bruise the serpent's head. He incurred the penalty by unbelief, and God saw proper to restore him by the exercise of the same faculty, belief, and the same holds good to this day. "Therefore, being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ; for when we were [illegible] dead, in due time Christ died for the ungodly."—Rom. v, 1, 6. If, then, we were without strength, dead in trespasses and sins, are we to be renewed in the spirit of our minds [illegible] the new man? If, in the still more forcible language of Jesus to Nicodemus, we [illegible] the word of God [illegible] Adam did [illegible] he ate the forbidden fruit? True, this was only an interlocutory judgment, and might be reversed during his probationary state by his exercising repentance and faith. By this means the second Adam may have been made to him a quickening spirit to the renewing of his mind, the spirit of which, after the fall, was according to the course of this world, of the Prince of the power of the air, and he was thereby a child of wrath, and exposed to eternal death. By faith he might have been made a new creature in Christ Jesus, created unto good works.—Eph. ii, 10. By this he might have had his understanding enlightened by the Holy Spirit, and been made to sit together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus, and made to know the hope of his calling, and have been restored to righteousness and true holiness, his mind turned from serving the lust of the flesh and Satan to serve the law of the spirit of life in Christ Jesus, which only could free him from the law of sin and death.—Ro. viii, 2. Being dead, he must have gone on bringing forth the fruits of death as long as he lived, unless by repentance and faith he was empowered again to bring forth fruit unto holiness, which alone could have prevented the interlocutory judgment from being made final and eternal at the great day of judgment.

It is true that the body is raised a spiritual body, and reunites with the spirit, and goes forth to judgment [illegible] according to the deeds done in the body. As the [illegible] to its deeds it [illegible] with it [illegible] to its deeds [illegible] eternal spiritual death, which it can be subjected to eternal death, as the spirit can be when it leaves the body without any change. Hence we learn that the body will be changed in the twinkle of an eye at the last trump, and this mortal shall put on immortality, and this corruption incorruption.—First Cor. xv, 51-53. Then the body which was mortal before becomes immortal and spiritual, and fitted for eternal spiritual death, which it was unfitted for and could not be subjected to without the change, which change was wrought by the second Adam, who was made a quickening spirit, as well for the quickening of the body as for the spirit of the mind.—First Cor. xv, 45. Hence Jesus commands us to fear him who can destroy both soul and body in hell.—Matt. x, 28.

And now, as we have the promise that the blood of Jesus Christ shall cleanse us from all sin, that we may not only be justified, but also purified by faith in his blood, we hold that it is not only our duty, but our glorious privilege, to regain what was lost in the transgression—our righteousness and true holiness—together with the means of keeping the same, and bringing forth fruit unto holiness during this life; that we may know him, and the power of his resurrection, and the fellowship of his sufferings, being made conformable unto his death; if by any means we may attain unto the resurrection of the dead.—Phil. iii, 10. Since it has pleased the Father that in him all fullness should dwell, may we never rest until he shall be made unto us wisdom, righteousness, sanctification and redemption.—First Cor. i, 30; and then be kept by the power of God, through faith, unto eternal life. And to this end may we, with St. Paul, determine to know nothing among men save Jesus Christ and him crucified, and count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus our Lord.

JAMES W. EMITT.

WHERE IS HEAVEN?

MR. EDITOR: I see an article written by Sr. W. Hester, in the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE of September 26 under the above question. As Mr. Hester does not answer nor attempt to answer the question, we concluded we would attempt to answer it. We will do this in two ways: First, negatively; second, positively.

I. Negatively.—"Where is heaven?" First. We answer: Heaven is not in the material sun, as some have supposed, because the material sun is visible; but the third heaven of which we speak is invisible. St. Paul says Colossians i, 16: "For by him were all things created that are in heaven and that are in earth, visible and invisible." Now everybody that can see knows that the material sun is visible to mortal eyes; but the things that are invisible to mortal eyes "are in heaven." Therefore the visible, material sun is not heaven, because the material sun is visible, but [illegible] invisible. This invisible heaven St. Paul calls the third heaven that he was caught up to.—Second Cor. xii, 2, 3, 4. Into this third invisible heaven Christ Jesus is gone. His disciples saw him ascend out of their sight. From this invisible third heaven Christ Jesus will send to judge the world. See First Cor. xv, 47. First Thess. i, 10. Second Thess. i, 7. Into this third invisible heaven Enoch was translated in the patriarchal dispensation, and in the Jewish dispensation, and Jesus Christ in the Christian dispensation. Hence it is very clear that the doctrine of an invisible heaven was taught, believed and conformed to in every dispensation of the world. Therefore the visible, material sun cannot be the third invisible heaven spoken of in the Bible.

Second. The description given by St. John, in the twenty-first chapter of his Book of Revelations, does not agree with the description that astronomers give us of the material sun. And although Mr. Hester thinks that St. John's description of heaven above is a very imperfect one, I doubt very much its ability to give us a better; and if it was possible for him to give us a more tangible description of heaven than St. John has done, I would then [illegible] Here I am [illegible] Mr. Hester's [illegible] of [illegible] I propose [illegible] does not agree with a description, [illegible] the material [illegible]

1. The [illegible] by St. John of the [illegible] New [illegible] does not agree with that of the [illegible] The New [illegible] description [illegible] The [illegible] and [illegible] be the heaven [illegible]

2. The [illegible] of the city St. John describes do not agree with the inhabitants of the material sun, because there are no living inhabitants in the sun that we know of; and it is reasonable to suppose that if living creatures were there they would soon die of heat.

3. The glory and brightness of the city described by St. John does not agree with the glory and brightness of the material sun. There are no dark spots in the city described by St. John, but there are dark spots in the material sun. Therefore it follows that if the material sun is heaven, the description given by St. John of heaven is a false description, and ought not to be received or relied on. But, on the other hand, if St. John's description of heaven be true, it demolishes the absurd theory that supposes the material sun to be heaven's location.

II. We will now answer the question positively.—"Where is heaven?" We answer: It is above, invisible to mortal eyes, somewhere in infinite space; but where it is located I cannot tell. God has not revealed that to us poor ignorant creatures, and therefore we know nothing about heaven's location. We are not authorized to locate heaven in the sun, moon or any of the distant stars, because we do not know where it is; and we never will know until we get there. Our greatest concern on earth ought to be to try to get there, and then we will see it and know it as it is. That the Lord may help us all to get to heaven is my sincere prayer.

Now, in conclusion, we will briefly notice Mr. Hester's faith, as written by himself, and published to the world in the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE of September 26. He says: "I did not say that the material sun is heaven, but did say that I believed that heaven is a material structure." Now let us see what is the meaning of these two words. Mr. Webster says the word [illegible] means matter, and matter means substance of which bodies are constituted;" and that structure means "form, construction, frame, an edifice." Now if Mr. Hester believes that the New Jerusalem that St. John saw in his vision was formed of the same kind of matter that the material sun, moon and stars are formed of, or this earth, with her minerals, is formed of, it will follow as a necessary consequence that the New Jerusalem in heaven above is as subject to decay as this earth, and the sun, moon and stars are. And there is no chance, that I can see, but one to do; he can conclude, and that is to believe in the eternity of matter, and discard the Bible. It follows, therefore, that if the New Jerusalem St. John saw in his vision was formed and constructed out of matter, it must have been incorruptible matter, that cannot perish or fade away. We will [illegible] material or spiritual matter that cannot perish. That there is such a thing as immaterial substances no man will deny that believes in the immortality of the human soul and the existence of angels. To deny spiritual substances is materialism. Mr. Webster says a materialist is "one who denies the existence of spiritual substances." If, then, there is such a thing as a spiritual substance in man on earth, that we call the human soul, and if the natural body of man must be [illegible] before it can enter the [illegible] of God in glory, or the New Jerusalem that St. John saw and describes in the twenty-first chapter of the Book of Revelations, the city St. John describes must have been constructed and formed of immaterial substances, and designed for pure and holy spiritual inhabitants. Therefore I do oppose the doctrine of heaven being a local, material structure. I believe it to be a local, immaterial structure. I oppose the idea of heaven being a material structure because I believe it to be a relic of materialism.

JAMES SHANES.

[illegible]

A TRUTHFUL ARTICLE.—The London Globe gives a verbatim report of the appeal of a Catholic priest in Berlin, Germany, in behalf of the Pope, in which he depicted the miserable condition to which he is reduced by the apostate Victor Emanuel. He said:

"The Pope is a prisoner, and prays that he may be released from his captivity. The Christian people of Berlin made a pilgrimage to visit the Pope in his prison. In order to enter the Vatican it was necessary to obtain a ticket of admission from the Italian police. When the time arrived for the visit to be paid, the Pope appeared at the window, and gave his benediction to the pilgrims. Then he descended into the garden, and walked about for a quarter of an hour. He looked very pale, and appeared to suffer much. He is a prisoner, and his only companions are the birds which sing around his prison. The Pope is a prisoner, and his only companions are the birds which sing around his prison. The Pope is a prisoner, and his only companions are the birds which sing around his prison."

"Give unto the Lord, O ye kindreds of the people, give unto the Lord glory and strength. Give unto the Lord the glory due unto his name; bring an offering, and come before him: worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness. Fear before him, all the earth. Say among the heathen that the Lord reigneth: the world also shall be established that it shall not be moved: he shall judge the people righteously. Let the heavens rejoice, and let the earth be glad; let the sea roar, and the fulness thereof. Let the field be joyful, and all that is therein: then shall all the trees of the wood rejoice before the Lord: for he cometh, for he cometh to judge the earth: he shall judge the world with righteousness, and the people with his truth."—Psalm xcvi.

Grace comes by frequent meditation of portions of God's word.—"Let the word of Christ dwell in you richly."

PRESIDING ELDERS AND PASTORS

MR. EDITOR: I seldom write for any paper; but, after reading "Inquirer's" article in your issue of the twenty-sixth of September, I feel inclined to say a few words, not from a captious spirit, I trust, but that I may aid in the promotion of brotherly love and gently suggest to "Inquirer" to be a little more careful in his statements.

He tells us that his recollection reaches back twenty-five years, and that he has known only two pastors—that is, preachers who visited their flocks. Further on he says that "custom requires that a pastor" (alluding, as I understand, to preachers in charge of circuits and stations) "should visit the most ignorant and poorest member of his flock." I presume that "Inquirer" has known a great many preachers in charge. Now how can two establish the custom of a great many? You see that I am an inquirer myself.

Again, "Inquirer," in referring to the trials of presiding elders, asks: "Are not the trials of a preacher and pastor as great?" To support the affirmative he tells us that a presiding elder is not expected to preach more than two sermons at any quarterly meeting; that a few big sermons will do for the whole district; that he is not expected to stop with any one less in dignity than a judge or colonel, while the preacher is too often required to board around, etc. Now I inquire: Are those allusions kind and brotherly? Will they settle the question as to the utility of presiding elders? Does "Inquirer" speak against the judge or colonel because the presiding elder visits him, or against the presiding elder because he visits the judge or colonel? Is it wrong to preach a "big sermon" twice? As for myself, I prefer to hear a "big sermon" twice or oftener, than to hear two poor sermons.

It occurs to me that the article breathes a bad spirit. Mark, I say the article, not the author. I question not his motives.

Consider for a moment some who filled the office of presiding elder in the Mississippi Conference now gone to their reward—Winans, Drake, Campbell, Lane, Wiggins, Walton, Rogers and others. I could give the names of many now living who have labored faithfully in this office, and some of them are still at work, preaching "big sermons," and more than a few of them, and oftener than twice at a quarterly meeting: visiting too, not slighting the poor, nor the colonel and judge.

[illegible]

A BISHOP AND HIS ROBES

BY REV. SAMUEL WILBERFORCE.

The Bishop of Winchester having arrived very late at a service at Surbiton recently, thus excused himself in a speech at the luncheon which followed: "My coachman set off at an early hour to drive me to the station to meet the train. When I had got about a mile and a quarter on the road to the station, it was announced to me that my servant had left behind the robes in which I was to appear here to-day. It was a difficult moment; and I consulted whether we should drive on without them, or whether by very quick walking we could reach the station if we sent him and the carriage back. It was decided that the thing could be done; and accordingly I sent the carriage back to get the robes, while I and my friend set out on foot up a steep hill to reach the station. After a stiff walk we did arrive just in time to see the train start without us. The robes had now come, and there upon a council of war was held, and it was decided that, by taking the carriage and driving sixteen miles to the Southwestern railway, possibly Mr Scott would stop a train. Accordingly, in fulfilment of that decision, we appeared as soon as it was possible for flesh and blood in the present condition of railway life to appear here to-day. I trust every gentleman feels, now that I have made my excuse, that it is a most painful history."

[illegible]

[illegible]

Obituaries.

WILLIAM ASHCRAFT, son of Rev. Joseph M. and Amanda B. Scott, was born October 26, 1858, and died July 13, 1872, aged 13 years, eight months and seventeen days.

Willie was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and about one year before his death professed a change of heart. He was regular in his religious duties, and prayed twice every day, in a place consecrated and chosen for the purpose. His father is an excellent member of the Alabama Conference, his mother is pious, and all their twelve children, who have arrived to years, have professed religion. Willie was the first one of their children called to the home above, and he died happy and in triumph. He said to his parents that he "wished to live only to work for God," the calmly bid his parents, brothers and sisters farewell, and entreated them to meet him in heaven. After that, when near his end, he looked up into his father's face and said: "Pa I shall soon be an angel."—D. M. H.

BRO. ANGUS KELSOE was born April 8, 1809, and departed this life September —, 1871, aged sixty-three years, five months and ten days.

Bro. Kelsoe joined the Methodist Episcopal Church in 1826 as a seeker of religion, and was converted in the fall of 1828, at a camp meeting in North Carolina, where he was born and raised. He removed to Alabama in 1859, where he lived until death called him from his labors to reward.

He served the church as class leader and steward for many years, in which capacity he was very useful, and in which capacity he died. Bro. Kelsoe died in the triumphs of a living faith. Shortly before his death he called his wife and two adopted children to his bedside, and bid them good-by, exhorting them to meet him in heaven. When asked by Bro. H. G. Hunter how he felt in view of death, he said: "All is well; all is right." Almost in the last moments of his life he raised his hand and said: "I'm going home."

A. M. L. DOUGLAS.

SOUTH BUTLER, ALA., Sept. 27, 1872.

MRS. SARAH CHRISTON ALFORD, consort of Warren F. Alford, Esq., died of pneumonia, at her home in Marion, Lauderdale county, Mississippi, May 18, 1872.

Sister Alford was the daughter of Rev. Andrew and Margaret W. Crawford, of precious memory as an old member of the Alabama Conference. She was reared in Marengo county, Alabama. I suppose she was married in that county, and moved, some time after this, to Marion, where she remained until death. She joined the church in early life, and remained a consistent member until death. When conscious of approaching the dark valley and shadow of death, she exclaimed to her distressed sister and bereaved husband: "I am happy, [illegible] departed [illegible] those who [illegible] Amen for [illegible] and [illegible] in [illegible] Christ [illegible] and [illegible] and [illegible] and

The Christian Advocate.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1872.

A MORNING HYMN FOR A SUNDAY SCHOOL

May this sweet Sabbath we behold,
Which God has kindly given,
Devoted h alone to Him;
And bring us nearer heaven.

We cannot tell how many more
Blest Sabbaths we may see;
Thousands on earth when last we met,
Are in eternity.

But should this day the last one prove
With any of us here,
If God is ours, and we are His,
We nothing have to fear.

FACE TO FACE.

BY DAVID DICKSON.

I love the windows of thy grace,
Through which my Lord is seen;
I long to meet my Savior's face,
Without a glass between.

O that the happy hour were come
To change my faith to sight!
I shall behold my Lord at home,
In a diviner light.

Ha-te, my beloved, and remove
These interposing days;
Then shall my passions all be love,
And all my powers be praise.

THE VENUS OF MILO.

BY THEOPHILE GAUTIER.

At the commencement of the war, after the first disasters, and when the march of the Germans toward Paris already enabled us to foresee the investment of the great city, care had been taken to remove from the chances of the siege, and from the rapacity of an enemy perhaps victorious, the richest jewels in the casket of the Louvre—those pearls, those diamonds of painting that millions could not replace.

Leonardo da Vinci, Raphael, Titian, Paul Veronese, Correggio, Rembrandt had been carefully rolled up and dispatched to Brest, ready to put out to sea at the least alarm, facing the tempest to avoid conflagration. But it had not been possible to carry off the antiques in like manner, and place them in safety. The weight of these marbles, their size, the care demanded by their relative fragility, the brief time that remained for preparations, prevented their being sent away after the pictures. After putting up protections for the hall that contained them, and stopping the windows with sacks of earth to shield them from bombs and projectiles, nothing more could be done.

Among these statues there is one for which we are envied by all the museums of Europe, and which is correctly reputed to be the finished type of the beautiful, the most perfect realization of the eternal idea of the feminine. Every one has already divined that it is the Venus of Milo. That this adorable Greek goddess might become Prussian, and go from Athens to Berlin, notwithstanding the improbability of such a misfortune, gave anxiety to the friends of art and the guardians of our masterpieces. They therefore took measures to save her from all danger. They had the astonished Venus taken down from her pedestal, and the divine marble body laid in an oaken box shaped like a coffin, and so wadded and muffled that no rebound or friction should mar the pure contour of this beautiful form. In the night trusty men carried the precious chest down to a secret door of the Louvre, where other men were waiting, who received it, surprised at its heaviness, and carried it to a destination known to themselves alone.

An excavation had been prepared in the vaults of the prefecture of the police for the glorious creature, who had had already one resurrection, but whom the shades were again to receive for a period, after having kept her for so many ages. If Henry Heine, the poet of the gods in exile, had lived to our days, what admirable verses he would have made upon the nocturnal obsequies of the immortal, and what ironical apostrophes he would have addressed to these Kantist and Hegelian hordes, whose approach had made an inhabitant of Olympus seek refuge in the Rue de Jerusalem.

A place of concealment was contrived at the end of one of these mysterious passages that wander through the breadth and depth of such complicated edifices as the prefecture of police, and whose real extent it is difficult to appreciate. The wall built at the end of the corridor was defaced in a way to give it the appearance of age, and the Venus was deposited behind this wall. But this procedure would have been quite too simple and childish. More artfulness is needed to baffle the keenness of treasure-seekers, whose sagacity equals that of Edgar Poe's Auguste Dupin in the "Stolen Letter," and the "Murder of the Rue Morgue."

Boxes of documents, registers, papers of a certain importance, which there might be a real reason for concealing from scrutiny, were heaped up pell-mell between this wall and a second one that was built at a little interval. On penetrating this obscure cabinet, a false hiding place, masking the real one, the searchers would believe that they had reached their end at this heap of objects, and content themselves with the booty offered. This scheme was quite ingenious.

To the great anxiety of her admirers, who did not know what had become of her, the Venus of Milo passed the first siege in this absolute retreat, doubtless a little encrypt, but accustomed to darkness and silence through her residence of several ages at the bottom of the crypt, whence she was drawn by the Greek peasant Yorgos; having, besides, that indifference to time that becomes an immortal.

They were about to replace her, radiant, on her pedestal, the altar of the beautiful, and restore her to the love of the artists and poets, unhappy at her absence, when the Commune came upon us with its swarm of barbarians, not come down from Cimmerian fogs, but risen from between the paving stones of Paris, like a foul putrefaction from subterranean filth. The æsthetic gifts of these savage secretaries, and their contempt of the ideal, are well known. With them the goddess, if they had discovered her, would have run great risks; they would have sold her or broken her up as an evidence of human genius that was offensive to the stupidity of their equality. To envious mediocrity is not the aristocracy of the masterpiece most detestable? Naturally, the ugly has by nature a horror of the beautiful.

Happily, the secret of the removal had been well kept. The Venus, during the second siege, as during the first, slept tranquilly in the depths of her hiding-place; but the terrible day came, when the Commune, "wishing to prepare for herself funeral rites worthy of herself," set fire to the monuments of Paris deluged in petroleum, as tripods on the route of her funeral procession.

Fire was set to the prefecture of police, and those who knew where the goddess, vanished from the Louvre, had sought shelter, must have experienced the liveliest anxiety. After escaping the bullets of the Prussians and others, would the Venus be consumed on this immense pyre, leaving behind only a few pinches of lime, the ashes of her marble flesh?

When the victorious army had retaken the capital, and restored Paris to France, they hastened to the prefecture of the police with anxiety and apprehension not necessary to describe, because easily conceived. The crumbling rubbish, still smoking, was dug away, and under the edifice the oaken box was found uninjured. The bursting of a water-pipe had miraculously preserved it. To our Venus could be applied the proud device inscribed on the front of the chevalier's house at Heidelberg: "Prêstat invicta Venus."

The coffin of the goddess was carried back to the Louvre, and it was a moment of reverential emotion when the lid was removed in the presence of the committee appointed to prepare a report, and the Venus again appeared. Each one leaned forward eagerly to gaze upon her.

Easily reclining, and thus presented under a new aspect, she was smiling, as ever, with that smile vague and tender, the lips slightly parted as if the better to breathe in life—that smile of a luminous serenity without the least shade of irony—that smile unknown to modern lips, and possessing an irresistible charm. Her beautiful body lay extended in its unharmed perfection; the long rest down in a damp place of concealment had in nothing injured the marble.

The masterpiece was saved, but when they wished to set the goddess upright in order to replace her on her pedestal in the midst of the sanctuary of art, where she occupies the place of honor, the plaster restorations which served to cover the joinings of the pieces of which the statue is composed being changed and softened by the moisture, fell off—a very slight misfortune, easy to be repaired from a cast previously made. But this accident, in itself, revealed some curious circumstances, which perhaps will interest our readers and make them pardon our entering into details that are minute but indispensable.

The Venus, as she stands to-day, is made of five fragments: the bust, with the head, the draped legs, the two hips and the chignon. The left foot no longer exists, and it has been re-made in plaster, as well as a portion of the base. Originally the Venus of Milo was not, as might be thought, sculptured in a single block. She was formed of two blocks, one on the top of the other, of coralline marble, a highly esteemed material only found in Asia. Its beds did not exceed two cubits in depth, and, according to Pliny, in whiteness and grain it nearly approached to ivory. All the lower part of the statue up to the hips, where the drapery stops, was made of the same piece, including the plinth.

A second block furnished the head and the torso, into which were fitted arms properly adapted, as is indicated by the hole for the tenon, still visible near the shoulder. These arms are not entirely lost, as is imagined. Fragments were found near the Venus of Milo and brought to France with her. Fruitless or unskillful efforts at restoration have caused these precious remains to be despised and forgotten, but their authenticity is beyond doubt, and there is a possibility of their furnishing definite information upon the so much disputed action of the statue; but we will return to this point presently.

In falling off the soldering of plaster, that bound the two blocks together, disclosed some wooden wedges several centimeters in thickness. They were cut obliquely, making the upper block—that is to say, the head and torso—forward, and inclining the attitude of the goddess to one side. It is thus that the statue had been arranged on its arrival in Paris in 1821, during the reign of Louis the Eighteenth, by Bernard Lange, the restorer in ordinary of the Louvre at that epoch; and it is under this aspect that she has conquered the admiration of the artists and the world, and has become the traditional type of absolute beauty.

Before restoring to the Venus of Milo this attitude, which is not entirely her own, but which so many casts, reductions, photographs, drawings and engravings have consecrated and ineffaceably fixed in the universal memory, the committee had the upper block placed upon the lower one, fitting them together by their polished surfaces, and just as they were in their primitive condition, and then a cast was executed of the statue set up in its ancient attitude.

This cast, placed near the former cast, and standing out against a background of green drapery, in a hall near the Assyrian museum, allows a comparison of the two attitudes. The new attitude does not essentially change the physiognomy of the famous statue, but it modifies it, nevertheless, in a manner that is appreciable even to an eye that is not very attentive.

The Academy of Fine Arts was called together to deliberate upon this question—one of the most subtle and interesting ones that could be presented to an assemblage of sculptors, painters and critics.

We have been permitted to enter the Louvre, and have been able to compare the old cast with the new one, after having long contemplated the original statue replaced provisionally in the well-known attitude. Placed upright on the base of her hips, the Venus appears younger and of more easy grace. She has not that charming abandon, that voluptuous langnor given to her by the exhaustion of the inclined attitude. She is no longer the Venus "adorably exhausted" of whom Goethe speaks. She is less woman and more goddess.

The joy of triumph sparkles in her proud mien, which explains the direction, so much disputed, of the absent arms. W. Raoul Rochette has suggested a Venus embracing Mars, an interpretation that cannot be seriously maintained. Other men of learning have been persuaded that this Venus is a victory inscribing a name of a hero, or of a battle, on a tablet or a buckler, held up by the projection of the left knee. The winged victory of Brescia presents partly the same attitude, and gives authority to this deduction, rendered probable by the inclination imparted to the statue; but the genuine arms are still in existence, although broken into fragments, and could not fit better the action expressed in the torso placed upright. The Venus of Milo held in her hand the apple decreed by the shepherd Paris to the most beautiful of the three goddesses who had submitted themselves to his judgment, and with her right hand she raised the drapery just slipping from her, of which she had stripped herself for the trial.

* * * * * *

It is our own conclusion, after a long examination of the Venus, that it is not, as we at first thought, the ideal type of woman, but it is a woman, a sublime model, copied with a profound sentiment of life, and that the beautiful is here only the splendor of the real.

SARCASTIC, BUT SUGGESTIVE.—A Quaker gentleman, riding in a carriage with a fashionable lady decked with a profusion of jewelry, heard her complain of the cold. Shivering in her lace bonnet and shawl, as light as a cobweb, she exclaimed: "What shall I do to get warm?" "I really don't know," replied the Quaker, solemnly, "unless thee should put on another breastpin."

"You have been on the philosophy this morning," says an exasperated mother to her truant son. "I'm sure I haven't," is the muttered denial. "Yes, you have," she sternly rejoins; "I can see it by your trowsers."

IT IS estimated that a snow-storm in New York city gives temporary employment to over eight thousand men and boys. The aggregate sum paid in one day for removing snow from the sidewalks is $5,000.

THE FIRST CARPET.

I was once very much amused at an anecdote an old preacher told on himself. It occurred some sixty or seventy years ago. He had been raised in the backwoods, and knew but little of the ways of the world. Having been admitted into the Conference, he was sent to a circuit, and upon a certain occasion was invited to dine with a wealthy man.

Carpets were not near so common then as they are now. Most people had their floors scoured very clean, and nice white sand sprinkled over them. Sometimes an extra touch was given the floor by sprinkling black sand about in streaks and figures over the white.

This wealthy man with whom the young preacher was, to dine, however, had a carpet, but it was not large enough to cover the floor, so there was a naked place all round the room about the width of a chair.

It was the first carpet the preacher had ever seen, and he thought it would not do to step on it, so he took a seat near the wall and drew his feet around on each side of his chair so as not to touch it.

After awhile a servant came in, and, spreading down a piece of linen in the middle of the room, placed the dining table on it and began to set it.

The preacher was greatly troubled; he did not know how he was to get from the naked place where he sat to the piece of linen on which the table stood. He knew he could easily jump it if he had a fair chance; but how he was to manage with the chair between his feet he did not know. But then the thing must be done some way; so when dinner was announced he rose from his chair, and, summoning all his energies, he made a desperate leap, and, to his great joy, he made the trip in safety.—Pacific Methodist.

WHISKY FROM GARBAGE.—It is a sad and notorious fact that liquor-drinkers care not how or whence their liquor comes. This is not because they recognize and act on the scientific definition of dirt, as only "matter misplaced;" but because their mad, morbid craving for liquor is so intense and uncontrollable that all other considerations are lost in its gratification. But here is something for their consideration, which, while it may convey a simple scientific fact, may also aid in imparting a flavor to their drink.

It is reported that distillers are experimenting with a process for making whisky and spirits from fermented garbage. This repulsive matter is placed in water-tight vats and boiled for several hours, the grease is then carefully skimmed off for soap-making purposes, and the remaining mass is fermented and distilled. The refuse is used as manure. It is stated that a barrel of garbage yields three pounds of soap grease and four gallons of proof spirits. If this method of making whisky should be conducted on a large scale, and the product be dispensed to the drinker without adulteration, it would be a great improvement on the villainous "liquid damnation" "doctored" with strychnine and other poisons, which is now sold to unfortunate thousands, who are thereby hurried through the drunkard's career to hell.

A WOMAN'S POWERS.—Those disasters which break down the spirit of man, and prostrate him in the dust, seem to call forth all the energies of the softer sex, and give such intrepidity and elevation to their character that at times it approaches to sublimity. Nothing can be more touching than to behold a soft and tender female, who had been all weakness and dependence, and alive to trivial roughness while treading the prosperous path of life, suddenly rising in mental force to be the comforter and supporter of her husband under misfortune, and aiding, with unshrinking firmness, the bitterest blasts of adversity. As the vine which has long twined its graceful foliage about the oak, and been lifted by it in the sunshine, will, when the hardy plant is rifted by the thunderbolt, cling round it with its caressing tendrils, and bind up its shattered boughs, so is it beautifully ordered by Providence that woman, who is the mere dependent ornament of man in his happier hours, should be his stay and solace when smitten with sudden calamity; winding herself into the ragged recesses of his nature, tenderly supporting his drooping head, and binding up the broken heart.

THE frowns of the world are among the blessings of the Christian. The prosperity of fools shall destroy them. "Him whom I kiss," said Judas, "take him;" so when the world kisseth, it often betrays.

AN obstinate man does not hold opinions, they hold him; for when he is once possessed with an error, it is like a devil, only cast out with great difficulty.—Reiher.

WHAT is the best time to read the book of nature? When spring opens the leaves and autumn turns them.

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

MELBOURNE, AUSTRALIA, has a flourishing Young Men's Christian Association.

CLEVELAND, with a population of a little more than a hundred thousand, has ninety-five churches.

DR SWAZEY, late of the Interior, is to have a new Presbyterian church, on Ashland avenue, Chicago.

THE Jesuits of the Rhine Provinces will go temporarily to Holland and Belgium when they leave Germany; but many of them will finally seek a residence in England and America.

THE EDUCATIONAL SECRETARYSHIP. Rev. E. O. Haven, LL. D., president of the Northwestern University, has accepted the post of corresponding secretary of the Board of Education of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and has entered upon the work. It is understood that his headquarters are to be in New York. Dr. Haven's election to this office by the recent General Conference was unanimous, and we have no doubt he will have the most hearty co-operation of the whole church in his new and responsible duties.

REV DR GEORGE H. HEPWORTH'S new church in New York is under way, and is to be done by the first of January next. It is to occupy a lot one hundred and twenty-five feet square on the corner of Madison avenue and Forty-fifth street. The building will be of iron, an amphitheater in form, with seats for two thousand five hundred persons, and camp stool accommodations for five hundred more, and with Sunday school and Bible-class rooms. The edifice itself is to cost about $100,000, and the total cost of lot and all is estimated at $225,000.

A DISGRACE TO THE AGE.—Since the massacre of Bishop Patteson, reports have come of another murder of white residents in one of the Polynesian islands, in revenge for the cruelties practiced upon the natives. For over two years from fifteen to twenty vessels have been employed in kidnapping the Polynesians and carrying them to Fiji and Queensland, to cultivate cotton. So brutal has been their treatment that the natives, who hitherto have regarded the Europeans with great kindness, now entertain only feelings of dread and hate toward them, and their fearful retaliations are not to be wondered at.

THE name "Old Catholics," which the Döllinger party appropriate to distinguish themselves from infallibilists, is said to have been derived as follows: When the Munich Archbishop returned from the council, he summoned all the bishops and informed them of the declaration of infallibility, when, turning to Döllinger, he inquired: "Shall we begin to work anew for the holy church?" "Yes," said Döllinger, "for the old church." The archbishop was very wroth at this, and informed the recalcitrant Döllinger that there was but one true church. "But they have created a new one," said Döllinger, and thus the opposition was founded.

THE Minutes of the Annual Conference of English Primitive Methodists have been published. They show this early offshoot of Wesleyanism in a vigorous condition, with a membership of one hundred and sixty thousand, and nearly three hundred thousand children in its Sabbath schools. Their magazines and papers have a good circulation in proportion to the membership. Rev. G. Lamb has charge of the publications, with Rev J. MacPherson as editor. Rev. R. Smith is the general secretary and treasurer of the connectional funds. Rev. S. Antliff is the missionary secretary, and Rev. Dr. Antliff at the head of a well-conducted theological school. Their church property is valued at £1,360,000.

THE Board of Education of Long Island City has decided that the Bible shall be read in connection with the opening of the schools of that city; but that the religious exercises must take place before nine o'clock, so that those who do not wish their children to be present at prayers may detain them until they are concluded. The intention of the board is undoubtedly good, but we doubt the wisdom of this arrangement. It seems to divide the scholars into two classes—the devout and the undevout; and those pupils whose parents compel them to be present at the religious exercises will be quite apt to hear comments upon that fact which will not increase their love of the morning devotions. The more consistent way is the more excellent way. Let the authorities recognize the wisdom of Superintendent Weaver's statement that for the religious education of our children the State does not provide. The world will stand, and the church will not be overthrown, if the perfunctory reading of the Bible in schools be dispensed with altogether.—Independent.

REV. DR. RILEY has expressed to one of the editors of the Christian World his confidence that Lerdo de Tejada—who, by virtue of his office as president of the Supreme Court of Mexico, became president ad interim of the republic on the death of Juarez—will firmly march in the so-called "laws of reform," which permit and guarantee entire liberty of worship throughout Mexico.—The Mexican Congress met last month, in the City of Mexico. In accordance with the Mexican constitution, this Congress will appoint a day for another presidential election; and the strongest probabilities are that the present officer will be the choice of the people for this position. Lerdo de Tejada is of Spanish descent, a man of unusual natural talent and of high education; a statesman of great experience, power and executive ability. Dr. Riley feels sure that under his administration the Protestant congregations in Mexico will be protected in the enjoyment of their rights. Once, while minister of State, on learning that one of our congregations had been attacked by a mob, he remarked that, even if it took the whole army of the republic to do it, he would see that this congregation was protected.

ALL DENOMINATIONS in Scotland are at present laudably exerting themselves to overtake the spiritual destitution that exists in the large towns. In Glasgow, in particular, the Established Church have begun to erect five new places of worship, or are about to do so; the Free Church of Scotland have four building, and have four or five others in contemplation; and the United Presbyterian Church are building, or about to build, as many as will hold seven or eight thousand persons. For church accommodation for the masses, or working classes, the sum of $5,000 was left to the United Presbyterians by the late Mr. John Henderson, of Park, and it is now about to be utilized. Altogether it is expected that additional church accommodation will soon be provided in Glasgow for twenty-five or thirty thousand. These three denominations are carrying on a large amount of missionary work among the lower classes of the population, and each is endeavoring not to interfere with the labors of the others, so as to prevent all collisions or unnecessary expenditure of means.

REV. WILLIAM TAYLOR writes from Bombay of a continuance of that remarkable success which has distinguished his labors from the first; and asks for reinforcements, that he may go to "fields beyond." He advises, in addition to the work which the brethren are now doing, the organization of "a light-footed army of intents," that shall be more progressive than missionaries: that are simply planted and stationed in given localities. He says: "Our Mohammedan convert goes on well. We had a high caste Hindoo officer in the custom-house converted to God and baptized a couple of months ago. He gave up a fortune coming to him as a Hindoo, and became a despised Methodist. One night, after sacrament, I heard him exclaim: 'I have received my blessed Lord Jesus; and I would not give him up for ten thousand worlds!' He has preached out of doors to congregations of Hindoos and Parsees, ranging in numbers from two to four hundred, and reports deep and increasing attention. 'Allow God to lead us,' he adds, 'and pray for us, and we'll cut the enemy's ranks and rescue a multitude of heathen captives.'"

THE Grand Duke Constantine, says the Independent, is president of a society in St. Petersburg entitled "The Society of the Friends of Religious Instruction," which professes to be simply "an association of Orthodox Christians, who wish to help the church and contribute something to the elucidation of the religious questions of the day." To this society the Old Catholics addressed a friendly communication, suggesting a possible union between the Eastern Church and the Catholic Reformers. The reply is not encouraging. The Russian society says: "In order that a church of the West, having the power of self-government and standing in a fraternal relation to us, may come into union with the Eastern Church, there is necessary, first, an absolute identity of dogmas. This is a condition sine qua non. In this thing our church can make no concessions. It cannot yield one iota of doctrinal truth—of the truth transmitted to us by ecumenical consent; nor can it permit anything to be added to it. Second. In demanding perfect fidelity to dogmas the Orthodox Church does not demand of the particular churches which compose it uniformity of ritual. It respects and has always respected local traditions and usages, which are not in contradiction to the doctrine of the church universal. It demands uniformity only in those rites which respect the essence of the sacraments." This seems to hold out but slight promise of any close relations between the two churches.

TALKATIVE people are like clocks that keep on striking: there is something wrong about their inside works.

The Christian Advocate.

Organ of the Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1872.

REV. LINUS PARKER, D. D., Editor.
ROBT. J. HARP, Publisher.

OFFICE—No. 112 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

Address, on all matters of business, Rev. R. J. Harp, 112 Camp street, New Orleans.

Address all communications designed for publication to Rev. Linus Parker, 112 Camp street, New Orleans.

AGENTS—All the members of the patronizing Conferences.

CONFERENCE PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

FOR ALABAMA CONFERENCE:
REV. W. A. McCARTY.
REV. EDWARD WADSWORTH, D. D.
A. W. LAMPKIN, ESQ.

FOR MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE:
REV. W. H. WATKINS, D. D.
REV. JAMES A. GODFREY.
REV. J. G. JONES.

FOR LOUISIANA CONFERENCE:
REV. WILLIAM V. TUDOR, D. D.
REV. JOHN MATHEWS.
REV. LINUS PARKER, D. D.

REDUCTION.

The New Orleans Christian Advocate will be furnished to subscribers hereafter at the following rates:

For One Year	$2 00
For Six Months	1 25
For Three Months	75

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR

to all ministers of the gospel, traveling or local, and widows of deceased traveling preachers.

FREE ONE YEAR

to any person forwarding to us four new yearly subscribers with EIGHT DOLLARS.

THE PRAYER CHALLENGE.

It has surprised us that the test proposed by Tyndall has been regarded in any serious light by devout people. It could hardly have been proposed in a spirit of candor, and with an earnest desire to ascertain the truth. The moral impossibility of isolating a single ward, or an entire hospital, so as to exclude every other, as an object of prayer, exposes the folly and insincerity of the whole affair. Besides, we have no warrant for putting God to such a test. It would be a profane proceeding from first to last, and very properly rejected in such language as Christ used in answering the temptation of the devil: "It is written, Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God." It is the temper and style of disguised atheism to sneer at the temporal and material results of prayer. Buckle characterized prayer for rain as utterly disgraceful to the civilization of the times, and a most stupid superstition. But this skepticism is not new. The language of materialism in Job's time was: "What is the Almighty, that we should serve him? and what profit should we have if we pray unto him?" It is evident that David had met with similar phases of unbelief when he declares that "the fool hath said in his heart, There is no God."

The marvel is that so gross and absurd a test as that submitted by Tyndall should have created a sensation such as usually attaches to something novel or rational. The infidelity of Job's and David's time has anticipated this modern school; and the devil pitched upon substantially the same thing when he exhorted the Savior to the presumptuous experiment of casting himself down from the pinnacle of the temple. The Bible stands upon its own array of evidences, and, until this is overthrown, its teachings on the subject of prayer remain impregnable. The testimonies of Scripture as to the efficacy of prayer are neither few nor ambiguous. Prayer is woven into the entire texture of revelation, it runs through the warp and woof of the gospel, and it can be no more eliminated from it than the doctrine of God's existence. The latter doctrine, indeed, implies the former. "For he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him." True, science may accept prayer as availing for spiritual objects, while it discards the physical and material. But our warrant to pray for the latter is the same as for the former, and in either case the inexplicable and the mysterious are about equal.

There are laws mental and spiritual, as well as physical, and prayer is in harmony with them all. The prayer of Elias is mentioned as an encouragement to Christian faith; but his prayer had reference to rain. The drouth and the rain were in answer to his prayer—the prayer of "a man subject to like passions as we are."—And this instance is adduced to illustrate and enforce the general truth that "the effectual, fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much." The devout believer has in his Bible and in his experience abundant evidence of the power of prayer. While we doubt whether one scientific skeptic will be convinced by the discussion, we believe that Christians, by re-examining and investigating the foundations of their faith, will be stronger than ever in their confidence. If it shall stir them up to greater diligence in prayer, and to a profounder realization of its import, it will be another of innumerable instances in which God has made the folly, as well as the wrath, of man to praise him.

LYING AND LIARS.

Falsehood has always been a prominent manifestation of human depravity. Falstaff uttered half in jest what has always been true when he exclaimed: "Lord, Lord, how the world is given to lying!" The sequel of a great war, the progress of an exciting political contest, and the almost preternatural activity of business enterprise and competition have perhaps conspired to throw this vice more to the surface than usual. We are appalled at the flood of lying and the general disregard of truth which prevail. It was a hasty thing in David to say that all men are liars; but he has said very much at his leisure concerning the wicked, that "they go astray as soon as they be born, speaking lies." Solomon takes the pains to say that "a poor man is better than a liar;" but this, we fear, is not the judgment of the present generation. The haste to get rich pushes truth aside when it is in the way, and wealth is apt to cover this among a multitude of other sins.

Lying in trade—in buying and selling—is scarcely thought to be reprehensible, provided it is shaded off by some degree of shrewdness. In political matters truth is the rarest of commodities, both in respect to what men think and what they know. Falsehoods, set afloat for effect, are seemingly regarded as expedients patriotic and commendable. The end sanctifies the means, and gilds this black spawn of perdition with a singular glory. It may be too much to assert that some lying is done in the avowed interests of religion, but there are perversions and misstatements, flowing from sectarian prejudice and bigotry, which would seem to justify the charge. How much sectional lying there is—as, for instance, between the North and the South—it would be difficult to estimate; but there must be a great deal, if what we read and hear is any indication. Then when we take into the account the conventional lies of society, the hollowness, duplicity and shams of fashionable life, the various phases of deception, the politic suppression of truth, false appearances, and the alarming fertility of devices in the art of prevarication, we may well shudder before the half is told. The father of lies must look upon the scene with a malignant complacency, and be well-nigh satisfied with the result.

Are the churches, preachers, parents doing what they can to promote truth in the earth, and to reinstate it as the jewel of virtues? God certainly demands "truth in the inward parts." The citizen of Zion is one "that speaketh the truth in his heart." Liars are put in the same list with murderers and the most abominable of criminals. Along with them "all liars shall have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone." It is enumerated prominently among the things which exclude from the heavenly citizenship: "Whatsoever worketh abomination, or maketh a lie." "For without are dogs and sorcerers, and whoremongers, and murderers, and idolaters, and whosoever loveth and maketh a lie." The moral sense of the people needs to be revived in the direction of truth. When the conscience is dead to this, the door is open to every vice. The moral and religious foundations are undermined when lying once gets possession. It brings with it the possibility of every crime, and embraces all the elements of social degradation. Hence the sanctions of the gospel must be leveled against it, and the utmost care should be taken to make truth prominent in the education of the young. The boy or man who will resolutely and conscientiously tell the truth has in him the basis of a great and noble character.

A HAPPY CORRECTION.

We are glad to have occasion to make the correction contained in the subjoined note from Bro. Merchant. We suppose the Conference secretary could hardly believe his own eyes, and so he thought the five hundred was meant for five. Bro. Harp, the book agent, informs us that Bro. Merchant is a model pastor in this matter of distributing books, pursuing the most judicious plan—that of sending for the books after he has taken orders for them, and selling them mainly by sample and catalogue. By this course he closes his invoices at once, and makes prompt payments. This diligent circulation of our books is the old Methodist style, and we hope to see it extensively revived. Spread our publications—the Advocate among the rest, of course—and we shall have an intelligent and stable type of piety. But here is Bro. Merchant's note:

MR. EDITOR: It is or was printed in the Minutes of our last Mississippi Conference that five dollars' worth of books were sold on White Plains mission. Please state that it was five hundred dollars' worth.

D. MERCHANT, P. C.
HARRISON CO., MISS., Sept. 26, 1872.

BY A PRIVATE NOTE of October 7, from Rev. Joel T. Davis, presiding elder of the Lake Providence district, Louisiana Conference, we learn that his work is in a most prosperous condition. We quote a few lines:

I closed my third round, last Saturday and Sunday, in a blaze of revival glory. I have never had such a glorious work. Work, work, plenty of work—the life of man. My preachers are a noble set of fellows—enter into the work with a vim. I suppose we have added over five hundred the third quarter, and the work still going on. One preacher added one hundred and twenty-one the past quarter.

I desire you presiding elders to know beforehand that the Lake Providence district is to stand at the head of the list. Look out!

FROM the following paragraph it will be seen that Dr. Kennedy, editor of the Southern Christian Advocate, is at home, but not yet able to resume his labors. The Southern of the second instant says:

Dr. Kennedy arrived in Macon on Friday night. He appears to be much better than when he left us, and feels that he is greatly improved. His nervous system, however, has been so affected by his illness that he must have time to recuperate still more ere he can safely resume his duties in the office. Let his friends abroad be patient, and his friends in Macon will gladly relieve him until such time as he is really able to take charge again.

A DISCLAIMER.—Bishop Keener wishes us to say that Rev. William Shepherd's letter inviting the transfer of English preachers to this country, especially for Mississippi and Louisiana, was written without his knowledge or authority. Dr. Tudor also disclaims any knowledge or responsibility in the premises. The letter referred to was written from Holly Springs, and published, we believe, in the Methodist Recorder of England, and referring parties to Bishop Keener and Dr. Tudor.

WE ARE INDEBTED to the enterprising publishers, Sheldon & Co., New York, for copies of Colton's New Introductory and Colton's Common School Geography. These geographies are of the latest date, and very handsomely illustrated. The maps especially appear to be accurate and well executed. The Common School Geography contains lessons on map-drawing, and also two large double-paged railroad maps.

THE REV. PETER CARTWRIGHT, D. D., the venerable and eccentric Methodist preacher, died on the twenty-fifth of September, at the age of eighty-seven.

THE SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY.

MR. EDITOR: A letter from Greensboro tells me "the present session opened with between ninety and one hundred students, with a fair prospect of one hundred and forty during the year. They are from Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Arkansas, Tennessee and Kentucky." This is good news, and the church should hear it. It is the best opening since the college was founded, and shows what can be done by strong common sense and persistent hard work. Dr. Andrews' practical sense and love of the church would not permit him to remain at home during the summer stilted on presidential dignity, and talking superciliously about the degradation of a learned professor who goes about to do good, and build up a vital interest of the church. He and his faculty went out, and the result is many friends for themselves and unprecedented prosperity for their school. During the entire vacation the doctor was traveling continuously, visiting district and camp meetings, preaching to the people and lecturing on education. In this way hundreds of people became acquainted with him, and through him with the University. May the Lord bless and preserve him, and keep him there for years to come!

He succeeded also in collecting funds sufficient to put the building in good repair—$1,000 or more. Oh! that some rich man or men would give it an ample endowment. Why not? Our colleges are for the most important charges in our church, and still they are hardly living. The professors are scantily supported. This is a reproach upon us which we should wipe away with haste. I fully believe it will be wiped away; but until the Lord opens the hearts and hands of his servants to do this duty, we must rally with enthusiasm around the noble men who labor in our schools—must aid them in every way, by prayers, by words of sympathy, by sending up pupils, by money collections. There should be in every patronizing Conference an organized plan of solicitation. This plan should embrace three objects: First. The hunting up and sending in of young men who desire to be better educated for the work of the ministry. Second. The collecting of money to pay all their expenses, including tuition as well as board, and of other money to be invested in a permanent endowment. Third. The turning of Methodist patronage, as far as can be, to our own colleges.

Every year our people pay thousands of dollars to send their children to other colleges, some of which—nearly all, in fact—are so constituted or so conducted as greatly to weaken, if not entirely to break, the bonds that attach our sons and daughters to the peculiar doctrines and usages of our church. The number of Methodist boys now in Virginia, and at the brass-button colleges, would, if sent to our own, put them at once in the very front rank as to numbers, respectability, talents and financial success. And if the differences between the amount required to meet expenses at Greensboro and these other schools were added together, in ten years it would be great enough to endow one professorship, probably two. At Greensboro a student can go through the year on from $160 to $230, whereas at nearly all others the cost is from $230 to $500. The patronizing Conferences should let their people know these facts, and organize some plan to arrest the unnecessary and suicidal practice of sending our sons and daughters away to build up the renown and the fortunes of schools antagonistic or indifferent to our Methodism. Every preacher should feel an interest in this matter, and communicate that interest to his flock. May we not hope to see such a concert of action as will lead us to the highest success? The president and faculty are faithful teachers, and will watch the mental and spiritual life of all the young men we send them. Let us work with them as God gives us ability.

J. W. RUSH.

REV. M. D. FLY AND REV. T. M. BEARD, of the North Mississippi Conference, gave us a call this week. They were on their way to the Northwest Texas Conference, whither they go as transfers.

BISHOP McTYEIRE IN OREGON AND CALIFORNIA.

From a late letter of the Bishop to the Nashville Advocate we extract:

I must not leave Oregon without a few more words, in addition to a former letter. Some will say that the Willamette valley, one hundred and twenty miles long, and twenty wide, is Oregon. It is, indeed, a region of wonderful fertility and beauty, capable of supporting a vast population, and in it lie the principal farms and towns; but there is much beside that. The valleys of the Umpqua and Rogue rivers are numerous and lovely; they are small, and afford snug homesteads. In the hereafter of noisy, busy life, I expect to long for some of those quiet dwelling-places that are hung up in my mind like a picture. It requires little labor to make a living, and the people accuse themselves of being lazy on this account.

Their fruit trees disappointed me, especially the apples; but they said the trees began to bear early, and had overborne themselves to barrenness or death, and "it didn't pay nohow," and they had failed generally to set out new ones; and again they would pleasantly accuse themselves of being lazy. Their wheat is plump, and fails not. Their sheep find the best pasturage on the mountains and plains, and a few thousand will bring in money when wool sells at forty and fifty cents per pound.

Whatever the men may be, the women are the smartest in the world. They dispatch washing, cooking, housework and gardening quicker, better, and in a more amiable mood, than any I ever saw. They bring up their children well. And this remark applies to the Pacific coast so far as my observation extends. Boys and girls are taught to be useful rather than ornamental; they assist their parents and each other cheerfully; they obey readily; they seem to have got the right ideal of life—that pleasure is to be found in duty—that life is for work, and indisposition to it must be overcome. I have hope for a generation that bears the yoke in their youth. Children on this side of the continent are self-reliant and disciplined, and making a contribution to self-support, when those of the same age, on the other side, are puling and dawdling, and tensing their parents for candy-money, and need to have their faces washed for them, their food cooked, and their clothes put on. O that the Sunday schools might be alive to their work! There is a harvest for Sunday school workers here.

No two peoples are more different than the Oregonians and the Californians. The latter go with a rush—the former go easily. Most of the settlers of Oregon came to their present abodes by the overland route, from 1849 to 1867—came by ox-teams, five and six months on the way, and they have never got out of that slow and sure gait. Weary and tired, they were glad to rest. Compared with the desert and the mountain passes of their long journey, these fertile valleys seemed a paradise, and they are content. I like them much; would like them better if they were not so slow in building churches and parsonages. Mostly Missourians, you will find here and there a man from every other State. The Southern element is excellent and strong. As for the Californians, they came for gold—came by steam—from all the regions they came; and though last in date, they are first of all the States in enterprise.

Here in Chico, having got into California, you are struck with the difference. There goes a team of ten mules, one driver, two wagons loaded with ten thousand feet of lumber; and there eight mules, one driver, two wagons—the hind one a size smaller, and hitched on with chains and traces—loaded with sacks of wheat. There goes another team, one driver, and three wagons loaded with cords of wood. All this speaks abundance of production and scarcity of labor. I amused myself by contrast, looking at this last. In the old States, say in passing Atlanta, you have seen a driver in shirt-sleeves, sitting on a lean, consumptive load of wood—black-jack poles—which a reeling ox is hauling to market. If that sight should happen here, Woodward the Barnum of this coast would seize the whole establishment, driver, team and all, and put them in his Gardens on exhibition.

At Stockton we spent two days. The San Joaquin (pronounced San Wa-keen) Valley Fair was going on. The grapes, apples and pears exhibited were new to me; the live stock not better, perhaps not so good, as Tennessee and Kentucky can show. But here, as elsewhere, horse-racing has been allowed to run away with what was once a most useful and interesting department. Strange that solid men, Methodists, Presbyterians, Baptists, Christians, will allow a few intruding gamblers to carry everything their own way!

What is of more interest to us—Dr. Fitzgerald, our pastor, has initiated measures for a new church, and I look for success. Have you not seen it so—that building a church—new, larger, better—or any similar enterprise—is a means of grace to a people? It brings them together—puts them upon mutual confidence, and sacrifice, and labor—gives them something to do, and think about, and pray for, unites them; and in building up the outward and material house, the inward and spiritual one is improved also. My stay in Stockton was rendered pleasant not only by meeting with the church and its pastor, and counseling of their designs, but by the kind attentions of Mr. Samuel Miller and family, brother-in-law to our good friends of Nashville, the Messrs. W. M. and B. H. Cocke. He put himself and carriage at our service, and in his hospitable home we felt that Tennessee was not very far off. In the sheep market I met another friend, Mr. Sledge, formerly of Marengo county, Alabama, who, some years ago, led out a colony to the San Joaquin. For two or three years they met disastrous seasons, but now plenty smiles on that valley, and their barns are too small for their crops. Mr. Sledge seems well pleased, and was looking at some Spanish Merinos for improving his stock, the price of which ugly animals I will not dare to state.

I say nothing of big trees and pumpkins; but wheat is king here, as cotton is with you. I have seen wheat-patches before, never wheat-fields. Let me add a few items which I clip from a reliable source.

"The San Joaquin valley contains a wheat-field forty-two miles long by sixteen miles wide, which will produce this season over two million bushels of wheat."

"STANISLAUS.—John Mitchell has sown on his own lands thirty-six thousand acres of grain. His bill of expense for sacks alone, in which to sack his crop of the present year, is estimated to be upward of $30,000.

"Between the Tuolumne and Merced rivers there is an unbroken body of grain, containing about three hundred and fifty thousand acres of land.

"Some fields of barley in the county will yield fully eighty bushels to the acre."

For health's sake I left the hot interior, and spent last Sabbath in San Francisco, instead of Sacramento. The climate here is raw and restless—not pleasant to me. In the hottest days men go out with overcoats on their arms. But it is bracing, and I feel myself quite restored. This is a great country for sleep; hence the people are very wide-awake. Two things are a serious drawback—the dust, the dust, the dust; you never saw the like. For four and five months no rain. It seems the whole country would burn up if you touched a match to it. The fields and fences have been plowed round, and every precaution taken around stacks and granaries and standing crops; but the inevitable spark sometimes gets into the dry stubble. Doubt not about Samson's burning up the standing corn of the Philistines. The great forests of Oregon are in a chronic state of burning. The high mountains of Hood and Shasta, by fog and smoke, are oftentimes hid from view.

ANOTHER FOLDED LAMB.

We sincerely sympathize with our afflicted brother and sister in their sorrow. These little ones, going before, draw us nearer to God and heaven. Rev. J. Marshall Brown, of the Alabama Conference, writes as follows of the death of his little daughter, Ida May:

MR. EDITOR: I write to inform you of the death of my little daughter, Ida May Brown, which occurred on the morning of the third. Her age was nine years and twenty-five days. She died of congestion of the brain and stomach. Her illness was short but severe. The day before her death, being rational for a time, she told my wife she felt like she was dying; said she was not afraid to die, but hated to leave papa, mamma and her sisters. Please be kind enough to announce her death in the Advocate.

The people of my charge were very kind to us all the time, and did all that could be done.

DAYTON, ALA., October 5, 1872.

CORRECTION.

MR. EDITOR: Your types make me say, in my article on Quarterly Conferences and Superannuates, that Bishop Early attended the Mississippi Conference in 1856, when I think I wrote 1857.

H. H. MONTGOMERY.

To Members of the Alabama Conference.

Presiding elders will please forward to me the names of lay delegates elect. Brethren proposing to visit or bring their wives will please inform me. E. M. BOUNDS.

EUFAULA, ALA., October 7, 1872.

BISHOP KEENER left on Friday, the eleventh instant, for Texas, going by the gulf route, and purposing to spend last Sunday in Galveston.

Agt's & Publisher's Department

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS OF LETTERS and Funds, Received by Mail, for the week ending Oct. 12, 1872:

A—W H Ashworth, Richard H Adair $2, W T Ashford $11.70, S D Aiken, E P Angell.

B—Horace Bishop $21.81, H W Brown, Robt Burst Jr, W A Brown, E H Butler & Co, Miss Maggie Beale, Mrs E G Boyd $3.05, John L Burt, P H B Ihn, Barnes & Wilkinson, M Black, Mrs L Burt.

C—Robt Carter & Bros, Baxter Clegg, Miss Ella S Carpenter, Edward A Cobleigh, S H Cox 2 lots, John F Cook, Colton, Zahm & Roberts.

D—W H Dennis, P H Dieffenwierth, Dabl & Mead, Joel T Daves 2 lots $40, J J Davis $1.05, Dinkamp & Labbe $25, L F Dowdell $5.

F—M D Fly, J L Futrell $17.

G—W A Gill, J N Grny, Gould & Lincoln, C C Gillespie, W W Gamble, A Gotschall $1, T & S Globs.

H—A R Holcombe, R D Howe, W K Henderson 50 cts, Jeff Hamilton, Hudsnn & Menett, H C Hollemann, Hurd & Houghton.

I—R S Isbell 2 lots.

J—W H Jaines, H F Johnston 3 lots $260, J M Johnston, E D Jones, W T Johnston $1, P A Johnston.

K—C Keener $10.

L—J H Lippincott & Co 2 lots, W B Lewis, G M Liverman $12, W E M Linfield $2, Wm Littlejohn M J Law.

M—J H Millspaugh 3 lots $10, A H Moss 2 lots $ 72 33, John P Morton & Co, J M McKee, H V McDonald $5.50, T H Morris $32.

N—R A New, Thos Nelson & Sons 2 lots, Jos D Newsom 2 lots $25.

O—J Osgood.

P—Polk, Young & Co, Jesse B Panky 75 cts, R Patton, S M Pettengill & Co.

Q—Queen City Publishing Co.

R—J H Richardson, J K Ramlall 6 lots $31.35, C B Richardson $26, A D F Randolph & Co, A Riser, R H Rogers $1.30, J W Rush, T B Renan.

S—Henry H Sage, J W Schermerhorn, J A Scruggs, Scribner, Welford & Armstrong 2 lots, Harris Stens $2; Sheldon & Co.

T—H J Thurston, M M P Tucker $3; John Tally $2.

V—Robt C Vaughn.

W—J M Wright $18.10, W S Winters $85.80, J M Weems 2 lots $5, J Weaver & Co, John F Wynn $18, John Wilkinson, J A Welborn, J G Worley, J Woodridge, E W Wailes, D J Wright, Whitfield & Harrington, Wesleyan Female College $10.

Y—Henry A Young & Co, R E Yancy.

Z—J H Zeilin & Co.

EXTENT OF CIRCULATION.—The New Orleans Daily Times claims that its circulation is "OVER DOUBLE that of any other journal in the South." If the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE be regarded as one of the "journals in the South," the Times is misinformed. Our opportunities for obtaining accurate information are equal to those of the publishers of the Times. Their circulation cannot be more than their issue. Their regular issue falls to between two and three thousand below the circulation of the ADVOCATE, according to our information.

PURCHASERS of printers' ink should visit the establishment of Mr. J. Douglas, No 10 Camp street, who manufactures a superior quality.

TO THE ADVERTISEMENT of Martin Lannes, butcher, occupying stalls 6, 7 and 8, at the Magazine market, the attention of our readers is directed.

GOODSPEED'S PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN Book will doubtless be valuable to many persons interested in the coming election. Agents wanted at 41 Natchez street.

MR. S. W. WREN, at his new cash house, No. 637 Magazine street, is now opening a large stock of new fall and winter staple and fancy dry goods, to which he invites the attention of purchasers, especially the ladies.

WE CALL ATTENTION to the advertisement, in another column, of Mr. T. J. Brown, practical paper hanger, and dealer in wall paper, etc. At his establishment, No. 263 Camp street, can be found a fine assortment of goods in his line.

THERE is no dealer in garden seeds in the United States more deservedly popular than Robert Buist, Jr., seed grower, whose warehouse and office is at No. 922 and 924 Market street, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. Buist's new Southern Garden Manual and Almanac for 1873 is issued this month.

SOULE'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE.—We have ever regarded the above-named institution as one of the best of its class in the country. Mr. Soule has been known to us for many years as a high-toned and honorable gentleman, and we take pleasure in calling attention to his card in our advertising columns.

IF YOU are looking for comfortable quarters for the winter, go to the Upper City Hotel, corner of Magazine and Jackson streets, where you will find fine, large, comfortable rooms, neatly furnished, and all in the best style. The table is always supplied with the best the markets afford. Two lines of city cars pass the door every five minutes.

COAL.—The approaching cold weather already warns housekeepers of the necessity of laying in a supply of coal for the winter. From present indications the price of coal may increase, and the wisdom of purchasing now cannot be questioned. No better establishment can be found than the well-known firm of B. D. Wood & Bros., 106 Common street.

STATE NATIONAL BANK.—It will be seen, by reference to the report of this deservedly popular bank in our advertising columns, that its directory have adopted the mutual system, which will doubtless increase the popularity of the bank, which has been rapidly growing in confidence and favor through the straightforward and judicious management of its president, Mr. Samuel H. Kennedy.

ST. LOUIS HOTEL.—No building in the Second District is fraught with more interesting reminiscences of past times than the old St. Louis Hotel. During its season of last winter it did much to redeem the good opinions it had earned of old, and the present season the efforts of the managers will be redoubled toward retaining its reputation as one of the first hotels of the country. It opened on the fifteenth instant, under the able management of Mr. E. F. Mioton, president of the association.

MECHANICS' AND TRADERS' INSURANCE COMPANY. We know of no incorporation which has grown more steadily in public confidence than the above-named company. The promptness and spirit of fairness with which it has met all claims, the good judgment evinced by the officers in the management of its affairs, as well as their uniform urbanity to customers, have secured the encouraging results shown by the exhibit of their third annual statement, which appears in our advertising columns.

LIKE A BEE-HIVE.—When we passed the store of Captain B. T. Walshe, No. 110 Canal street, we could not help thinking how much it resembled a bee-hive—every one was busy. Immense piles of new goods, just from the New York steamer, loaded the counters, and to assort, examine, admire, mark and put away these kept all hands busy. The numerous customers who came in expressed their admiration of the beautiful articles thus brought to view. Walshe's customers have, this season, the largest and most desirable stock to select from ever offered them by this enterprising merchant.

BRASELMAN & ADAMS.—This large and well-known dry goods house, which was the first to present to the inhabitants of the Fourth District the opportunity of purchasing goods almost at their own doors, and at prices much lower than those of Canal street, have received at their elegant establishment, Nos. 586 and 588 Magazine street, full lines of new and seasonable fall goods, including silks, cashmeres, reps, alpacas, empress cloths, etc. They have on hand also a few rolls of carpets, only slightly damaged by rain water, which will be sold exceedingly low. Their motto in business is "Small Profits and Quick Returns," and buyers cannot do better than call there before purchasing elsewhere.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

Strong Testimony.—DR. WM. H. TUTT—Dear Sir: I feel it a duty to you and to suffering humanity to make public the great merits of your Extract Sarsaparilla. For years I have been a great sufferer; my general health broke down, and I was afflicted with nervousness of the most terrible character, which was soon followed by an eruption all over the body, forming large ulcers in some places, and attended with rheumatic pains. Tongue cannot describe my suffering; I was reduced almost to a skeleton, and had a perfect loathing of food. I was attended by several physicians, who rendered me no relief. I despaired of ever being well again; but, thanks to a kind Providence, I accidentally heard of your medicine. I sent for half a dozen bottles, and before I had taken three I began to feel better, my appetite improved, and the rheumatic pains became less severe, and I could enjoy sleep. I have continued its use, and have taken eleven bottles, and believe I am a sound man again. The ulcers have all healed, my skin is smooth and healthy, and I have gained twenty-two pounds in weight. I believe my sickness resulted from a taint of scrofula. I would earnestly recommend your compound to my fellow-sufferers.

With deep gratitude to you, I am ever your friend, JAMES FRANKLIN.
STEUBENVILLE, OHIO, Sept. 4, 1871.

Dr. Tutt's Liver Pills are a mild and gentle purgative, possessing the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving congestive or torpid liver. They have no equal. oc17 1t

Dr. Tutt's Hair Dye Promotes the Growth of the Hair.

I Write you to Certify that I have used Dr. Shammons' Liver Regulator in my family with complete success.
J. W. D. BIRD,
oc17 1t Chattahoochee, Florida.

Best and Oldest Family Medicine.—St. Louis Lac Ingredients. A purely Vegetable Cathartic and Tonic, for Dyspepsia, Constipation, Debility, Sick-headache, Bilious attacks, and all derangements of Liver, Stomach and Bowels. Ask your druggist for it. Beware of imitations. jal1 1yeow

Price's Celebrated Stomach Bitters.—The Great Vegetable Restorative and Life-Giving Principle.—This wonderful Vegetable Restorative, since it has been before the public as a Tonic (October, 1868), the quantity sold has been some 150,000 dozen, and in every instance given the greatest satisfaction. For dyspepsia, general debility, chills and fever, nervous affections, torpor of the liver, constipation of the bowels fever and ague, and all choleraic maladies, these Bitters will be found invaluable to all who desire a stimulating Tonic, and are particularly recommended to all persons travelling by land or sea. Wherever introduced it has become a standard article. It is the best and purest Tonic offered. As a Tonic and Cordial it has no equal among stomachics.

It is also a great blood purifier, a life-giving principle, and a perfect renovator of the system. No one can take these Bitters long and remain unwell. A single trial will convince any one of the merits claimed for them. Sold by grocers, druggists and dealers throughout the South.

Address JAMES W. PRICE & Co., sole manufacturers and proprietors, Lock Box 106, New Orleans, Louisiana. se5 2m

Mrs. Whitcomb's Strup.—The great soothing remedy. Price only 25 cents. Gives rest to the mother and health to the child. Sold by druggists. jy18 1y

Have your Printing and Binding Done at

THE PELICAN JOB OFFICE,
112 and 114 Poydras St., New Orleans.
jy18 1y

The Equitable Life Assurance Society, New York.
Assets, $18,000,000. Incor., $8,000,000.
Branch office 33 Camp STREET.
A. P. CLEVELAND,
fe8 1y General Agent.

Dr. Henry's Root and Plant Pills.—Mild yet thorough; no nausea or griping; entirely vegetable; great Liver remedy. Price, 25 cents. Sold by druggists. jy18 1y

Twelve Samples (Postage Free) for fifty cents. Sells for $10. R. L. WOLCOTT, 181 Chatham square, N. Y. se26 1y

Use Dr. Henry's World's Tonic and BLOOD PURIFIER.—It is the great household remedy, pleasant to take, yet potent for the prevention and cure of diseases. It is better than Bitters, Cordials, Buchu or Sarsaparilla. Sold by druggists. jy18 1y

Caution!—Every genuine box of Dr. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS bears the signature of Fleming Brothers, Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, and their private United States stamp. Take no other; the market is full of imitations.

It is the popular verdict that people who have been accustomed to the use of Bitters or Cordials are obliged eventually to resort to McLane's Liver Pills for permanent relief. ap25 6m

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

CASH HOUSE.

1872-3. Fall and Winter. 1872-3.

In calling attention to our Establishment this season, we take great pleasure in stating that our increased facilities for

BUYING GOODS CHEAP

will enable us to be of great pecuniary advantage to the CASH BUYERS who wish to make their money do them good service. We feel confident in saying that our NEW

FALL AND WINTER STOCK,

NOW OPENED, WILL PROVE NOT ONLY

UNEQUALED IN VARIETY
AND DESIRABILITY,
BUT
UNAPPROACHABLE IN CHEAPNESS

The great increase in our business convinces us that our efforts to please are fully appreciated, and incites us to unusual exertions to prove that we are not unworthy of the confidence of our constituents.

To persons residing out of the city we would say that it is always a pleasure to forward them samples and prices, and that we send Goods "C. O. D." to any section where the Railroads or Packets run.

We deem it unnecessary to mention our stock in detail. We keep everything that belongs to

A First-Class Dry Goods House.

It shall be our constant aim to have the

NEWEST STYLES OF GOODS

AT THE

LOWEST POSSIBLE PRICES,

AND OUR

LIGHT EXPENSES, CASH SYSTEM AND SHREWD BUYERS

JUSTIFIES THE BELIEF THAT

WE CANNOT BE UNDERSOLD.

BRASELMAN & ADAMS.

DEALERS IN

Foreign and Domestic Dry Goods,

586 AND 588 MAGAZINE ST.,
CORNER ST. ANDREW ST.
☞ CASH HOUSE.
ESTABLISHED IN 1828.

Are Popular Because Reliable,
AND EXCLUSIVELY
THE GROWTH of BUIST.

They cannot fail affording the utmost satisfaction to every purchaser, and are so warranted. Sold by the leading Druggists and Seed Dealers throughout the South, and by RICHARD FROTSCHER, No. 12 Dumaine street, New Orleans, Louisiana. Grown and sold by

ROBT. BUIST, JR., SEED GROWER.
WAREHOUSE,
922 and 924 Market St., Philadelphia.

☞ BUIST'S SOUTHERN GARDEN MANUAL AND PA. ALMANAC for 1873 issued in October. One hundred and thirty pages of useful information on gardening, etc., etc. oc17 3m

WANTED.—A Lady of several years' experience as a teacher, a graduate of a respectable female college, and fully qualified to teach the usual branches of an English education, wishes a situation in a school or family. Address
A. F., care Advocate office,
oc17 3t 110 and 112 Camp st., New Orleans.

S. W. WREN'S
NEW CASH HOUSE,
NO. 637 MAGAZINE ST. (Wade Block,)
is opening Fall and Winter NEW GOODS, which will be sold at very low prices. He solicits the public, especially the ladies, to call and examine his stock of fresh Staple, Fancy and Dress Goods of latest styles. oc17 1m

REOPENING OF THE ST. LOUIS,
(FIRST-CLASS HOTEL,)
ON THE FIFTEENTH OF OCTOBER,
Under the Management of oc17 1m E. F. MIOTON, President.

TO PRINTERS.—I AM MANUFACTURING
SUPERIOR PRINTERS' INK,
on a scale to supply the demand, made of the purest material, and sold at New York prices. Orders solicited. J. DOUGLAS, oc17 4m 10 Camp Street.

T. J. BROWN,
PRACTICAL PAPER HANGER,
and dealer in Wall Paper, Window Shades, Cornices, Buff, Green and White Hollands, Picture Cord, Tassels, etc.,
No. 263 Camp street,
oc17 2m New Orleans.

AGENTS WANTED FOR
GOODSPEED'S
PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN BOOK.
Every citizen wants it. Also for Campaign Goods. Address, for circulars and terms,
J. W. GOODSPEED'S
Empire Publishing House,
oc17 3m 41 Natchez street, New Orleans.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

Soule's Commercial College,

CORNER OF CAMP AND COMMON STS., (STORY BUILDING,) NEW ORLEANS.
The Commercial Athenæum of the South.
Founded in 1856. Chartered in 1864.

This is a full-course BUSINESS COLLEGE, complete in all its departments. It is conducted by progressive minds, and as the daily cycles of time roll by the increased wisdom, the improvements and the superior facilities of the age are combined and used to meet the demands of the rising business generation and advance the interests of its patrons.

It is located in the Athens of the great Southwest, and is emphatically the Commercial Athenæum of the South.

It possesses a commercial library, numerous counting rooms and lecture halls, and a proficient and well-appointed faculty. Stores and banks are connected, business regularly transacted, daily lectures given, and all branches practically, scientifically and philosophically taught.

The curriculum of studies is specially arranged to meet the wants of the planter, mechanic and professional man, as well as the merchant and banker. All branches of a thorough English education are taught, and also the higher mathematics, the French, Spanish and German languages.

Ninety-one premiums, gold and silver medals, diplomas, money prizes, silver plate, etc., attest the superior merits of this Institution.

Tuition fees low, and scholarships good in thirty-six colleges.

By reason of the ability and fidelity of the principal and instructors of this institution, and his many truly-superior advantages, it has gained an unsurpassed popularity, and through nearly sixteen years of prosperous business it has enjoyed the almost unbounded confidence of the business community.

For circulars call at the College office, or address GEO. SOULE, Principal.

N. B.—Soule's Analytic and Philosophic Commercial and Exchange Calculator (880 octavo pages,) the great arithmetical work of the age and which no student, teacher, accountant or business man should be without, is for sale at principal stationers and at the office of Soule's Commercial College. oc17 1m

MECHANICS' AND TRADERS' INSURANCE CO.,

14 CARONDELET ST., NEW ORLEANS, LA.

CAPITAL $500,000

THIRD ANNUAL STATEMENT.

In conformity with the requirements of their charter, the Company makes the following statement.

Premiums for the year ending August 31, 1872:

On fire risks	$152,207 75
On marine risks	23,810 90
On river risks	62,722 33
		$238,740 98
Deduct unearned and returned premium during the year		45,178 39
		$193,571 59
Losses paid during the year:
On fire risks	$52,917 61
On marine risks	18,146 07
On river risks	15,555 99
		$85,620 67
		$107,881 92
Reinsurances and returns	$27,168 11
Taxes and general expenses, less interest, and contingent fund	6,998 88
		$34,167 29
		$73,774 63
Reserved for unadjusted losses		12,100 00
Net profits		$61,361 63

The Company have the following Assets:

Stock notes	$363,182 00
Bills receivable for premiums and for loans secured by pledge	178,978 59
Insurance scrip	291 00
Premiums in course of collection	19,482 57
Cash on hand	52,279 78
Invested in bank, insurance and other stocks, bonds, etc., cost	30,892 67
Total	$585,205 61

The above statement is a true and correct transcript from the books of the Company.
LLOYD R. COLEMAN, President.
JAMES A. WHITE, Secretary.

STATE OF LOUISIANA,
City of New Orleans.

Sworn to and subscribed before me, the undersigned Notary Public, on the eighteenth day of September, eighteen hundred and seventy-two. CHAS. G. ANDRY,
Notary Public.

The Board of Trustees have declared the following profits, to wit:

Interest on debt in Capital, Ten per cent.
Dividend on paid-in Capital, Nine per cent.
Dividend on earned Premium, Twenty-four per cent.—

All of which dividends will be credited on stock notes, certificates for which will be issued on and after the twenty-first of October next.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES.

C. W. Allen,	I. Bloom,
John D. Cobb,	Frederick Ernest,
I. L. Hays,	J. A. Lane,
Edward Naile,	J. Pinckney Smith,
A. J. Aiken,	C. H. C. Brown,
George W. Church,	Benjamin Gerson,
John N. Harrison,	Robert L. Moore,
R. H. Noble,	W. B. Thompson,
J. A. Braselman,	Thomas B. Bodley,
J. E. Campbell,	C. A. Green,
T. H. Hunt,	John Myers,
Edward C. Payne,	Frederick Wing,
W. T. Blakemore,	Louis A. Wiltz,
Lucien J. Dolze,	T. S. Waterman,
James S. Lanphier,	Lloyd R. Coleman.
G. W. Scantell.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 21, 1872 oc17 1m

B. T. WALSHE
IMPORTER AND DEALER IN MEN'S FURNISHING GOODS
BOYS' & CHILDREN'S CLOTHING,
No. 110 CANAL ST.
NEW ORLEANS
oc17 3m

THE UPPER CITY HOTEL,
SITUATED UPON TWO LINES OF DOUBLE-track railroad, within fifteen minutes' ride of Canal street. Possesses all the conveniences of city life, combined with country pleasantry. The rooms are magnificently furnished, and there is nothing that obstructs the view to the private gardens surrounding the Hotel. Surrounded by a veranda twelve feet wide, two hundred and fifty feet in length, affording a magnificent promenade for the guests of the Hotel. The situation and convenience, with a good table, affords the Proprietor the pleasant duty of naming "THE UPPER CITY" a first-class Family Hotel. We allow our accommodations and our attentions a full guarantee against the influence of runners. It requires but to see and be pleased. oc17 3m

COAL..... COAL..... COAL.
B. D. WOOD & BROS.,
106 Common st., opposite City Hotel.
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in all kinds of COAL. Pittsburg Coal delivered by boat load or less on the coast, and shipped in casks or in bulk at lowest market rates. City trade supplied. oc17 3m

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

REPORT OF THE CONDITION
OF THE
STATE NATIONAL BANK,
(NOW A MUTUAL BANK,)
AT NEW ORLEANS, IN THE STATE OF LOUISIANA, AT THE CLOSE OF BUSINESS,
Saturday, September 28, 1872.

RESOURCES.

Loans and discounts		$962,950 53
Overdrafts		1,683 49
United States bonds to secure circulation		556,000 00
Other stocks, bonds and mortgages		21,129 00
Due from redeeming and reserve agents		124,733 12
Due from other national banks		11,306 51
Due from other banks and bankers		68,891 11
Banking houses		60,000 00
Other real estate		138,198 00
Furniture and fixtures		10,178 25
Premiums on U. States bonds		55,600 00
Exchanges for clearing house	$704,622 69
Bills of other national banks	5,096 00
Fractional currency, including nickels	4,022 44
Specie, viz.: coin	52,300 81
Legal-tender notes	188,172 00	434,216 94
		$2,486,439 16

LIABILITIES.

Capital stock paid in		$850,000 00
Surplus fund (old)	$14,000 00
Surplus fund, increased Sept. 28, 1872	3,000 00	17,000 00
Special surplus fund		25,000 00
Profit and loss		2,055 30
National bank circulation outstanding		436,300 00
Dividends unpaid	$9,416 65
Quarterly dividend of 2½ per cent., declared Sept. 28, 1872, payable Oct. 14, 1872	21,250 00	30,666 65
Individual deposits		868,015 41
Due to national banks		89,156 68
Due to other banks and bankers		167,074 15
		$2,486,469 16

CHAS. L. C. DUPUY, Cashier.

The Board of Directors of the State National Bank, duly authorized by an affirmative vote of a majority of the stockholders, have resolved to adopt the mutual system in the disposition of the earnings of the bank on and after the first of October, 1872.

Dividends of earnings will be made quarterly, on the last days of December, March, June and September.

Stockholders will receive quarterly dividends of two and one-half per cent.; after carrying ten per cent. of net earnings to surplus fund, as provided by law. The balance of earnings will be divided pro rata between depositors on their daily balances, and stockholders on the amount of capital stock.

This system commends itself to depositors as well as to stockholders.

To depositors it is but a just equivalent for their good will and patronage, which produces increased profits to stockholders.

The statement published above shows the condition of the bank after passing to dividend account two and one half per cent. for the last three months' profits, and leaving the premium on its United States bonds at ten per cent., and reserve funds, with a credit of $12,000.

SAM'L H. KENNEDY, President.
E. RIGNY, Vice President
CHAS. L. C. DUPUY, Cashier.

DIRECTORS.

Sam'l H. Kennedy,	S. Friedlander,
E. Rigny,	Chas. E. Slaylock,
Joseph Brobst,	G. P. Blanchard,
A. Foster Elliot,	W. T. Blakemore.

oc17 1t

ROBERT PATON, MANUFACTURER OF SCHOOL, CHURCH & OFFICE
FURNITURE,

Sunday School and Lecture Room Settees of every description, Blackboards, etc., 26 GROVE STREET, NEW YORK, N. B. Particular attention is called to the Patent Reversible Settees. Send for a catalogue. oc17 6meow

STALLS NOS. 38, 7 AND 8,
Magazine Market.
MARTIN LANNES, BUTCHER.
Supplies Ships, Families, Hotels, etc., with Beef, Mutton, Pork, and all varieties of Sausages, Game, Tripe, Pigs, Fowls, Vegetables, etc., and everything the market affords. All Meats delivered free of charge. oc17 6m

Signals of Danger.—Disease, like the rattlesnake, usually gives fair warning before it strikes. A failing appetite, a furred tongue, nausea, headache, want of proper action in the bowels, feverishness, lassitude, nervousness, an uneasy feeling in the stomach, etc., are all symptomatic of a coming attack of indigestion, biliousness, colic, fever, or some other positive form of disease. When thus menaced, resort immediately to

Tarrant's Effervescent Seltzer Aperient,

and thus avert the attack. Acting simultaneously upon the digestive organs, the liver, the bowels and the nerves, this refreshing and agreeable alterative will soon restore the system to its normal condition of health, regularity and vigor. Sold by all druggists. oc17 2t

GARDEN SEEDS,
FIELD SEEDS,
FLOWER SEEDS,
Grown largely by ourselves, on our own grounds, near Haddonfield, New Jersey.
COLLINS, BOWNS & CO.,
Warehouse, 1113 Market street,
Philadelphia, Pa.
Catalogue and Price-List furnished on application. The trade supplied on liberal terms. au22 3m

S. COLLINS & CO.,
MANUFACTURERS OF
PRINTING INK,
Office and Depot—26 Frankfort Street,
jy27 6m NEW YORK.

WILLIAM HOGAN,
Manufacturer of and Dealer in
BOOTS, SHOES, TRUNKS, VALISES AND BAGS;
FRENCH AND AMERICAN,
Also Agent for the EMPIRE SEWING MACHINE,
98 AND 101 CANAL STREET,
au4 3m New Orleans.

WAVERLY STABLES,
HAYDEN & MEENAN, Proprietors.
LIVERY AND SALE STABLES,
No. 30 North Royal Street, Mobile.
Carriages and Buggies of the latest styles, and superior Horses; furnished at all hours. Calls of every description will receive prompt attention. jal 1y

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

This unrivaled medicine is warranted not to contain a single particle of Mercury, or any injurious mineral substance, but is

PURELY VEGETABLE.

For FORTY YEARS it has proved its great value in all diseases of the LIVER, BOWELS and KIDNEYS. Thousands of the good and great in all parts of the country vouch for its wonderful and peculiar power in purifying the Blood, stimulating the torpid Liver and Bowels, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system. SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR is acknowledged to have no equal as a

LIVER MEDICINE.

It contains four medical elements never united in the same happy proportion in any other preparation, viz.: a gentle Cathartic, a wonderful Tonic, an unexceptionable Alterative, and a certain Corrective of all impurities of the body. Such signal success has attended its use that it is now regarded as the

GREAT UNFAILING SPECIFIC

for LIVER COMPLAINT and the painful suffering thereof, to wit: Dyspepsia, Constipation, Jaundice, Bilious attacks, Sick-Headache, Colic, Depression of Spirits, Sour Stomach, Heart-burn, etc. Regulate the Liver and prevent

CHILLS AND FEVER.

SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR is manufactured only by

J. H. ZEILIN & CO.,
Macon, Georgia, and Philadelphia.

Price, $1 per package; sent by mail, postage paid, $1.25. Prepared ready for use in bottles, $1.50. Sold by all druggists.

☞ Beware of all Counterfeits and Imitations. se19 1y

JUST PUBLISHED.

EVOLUTION OF LIFE.

BY HENRY C. CHAPMAN, M. D.,

MEMBER OF THE ACADEMY OF NATURAL SCIENCES OF PHILADELPHIA.

ILLUSTRATED WITH NUMEROUS LITHOGRAPHIC PLATES.

8vo. Extra Cloth. $3.

"We have endeavored to place before the reader, in as popular a manner as possible, the most important generalization in reference to the structure of plants and animals, their petrified remains, and mode of development, and to point out how the theory of the evolution of life follows from the facts of anatomy, geology and embryology." The Author's Preface.

☞ For sale by Booksellers generally, or will be sent by mail, post-paid, on receipt of the price by

J. B. LIPPINCOTT & CO., Publishers,
715 AND 717 MARKET ST.,
oc10 2t Philadelphia.

INSURANCE..... INSURANCE.
LOUISIANA
Equitable Life Insurance Company,
CHARTERED BY THE STATE OF LOUISIANA,
Office—Cor. Carondelet and Gravier Sts.

Parties desiring life insurance are informed that this company issues policies of insurance on all approved plans as low as any other company. All policies are non-forfeitable. Losses adjusted and settled with promptness and liberality. JAMES H. LOW,
President.

JOSEPH GILLOTT'S
STEEL PENS,
OF THE OLD STANDARD QUALITY.
TRADE MARK: JOSEPH GILLOTT, Name and Designation Number. Or Descriptive Warranted.
The well-known Original and Popular Nos., 303 ... 101 ... 170 ... 351,
having been assumed by other Makers, we desire to caution the public in respect to said imitations. ☞ ASK FOR GILLOTT'S.
JOS. GILLOTT & SONS,
jy25 1y 91 John street, N. Y.

JOHN DOUGLAS, DEALER IN
Fancy and Staple Dry Goods,
NOS. 102 AND 104 DAUPHIN STREET,
MOBILE, ALABAMA.
Agent for the Florence Sewing Machine. All goods warranted as represented, and sold at the lowest rates for Cash, our object being large sales and small profits. jal 1y

BARLOW'S INDIGO BLUE is the cheapest and best article in the market for BLUEING CLOTHES.
The genuine has both Barlow and Wilberger's names on the label, and is put up at Wilberger's Drug Store, No 233 North Second street, Philadelphia. For sale by grocers and druggists.
D. S. WILTBERGER,
au29 3m Proprietor.

For Churches, Schools, Fire Alarms, Farms, etc.
FINE-TONED, WARRANTED, LOW-PRICED.
Descriptive circular sent free.
BLYMYER, NORTON & CO.,
661 to 669 W. Eighth st., Cincinnati, O.
ja25 26t eow

Effervescing Citrate of Magnesia,
IN SIX OUNCE BOTTLES, IN POWDER.
This Magnesia is a mild purgative and aperient, very acceptable to the stomach for Sick Headache, Sour or Sick Stomach, and all febrile cases. Good for all seasons of the year. For sale by most druggists. Prepared by ARTHUR ROGERS, se19 6m&w3m 193 Spring st., N. Y.

J. A. NORSWORTHY & CO.,
BANKERS,
21 Walnut Street, Jefferson, Texas.
CORRESPONDENTS: Ober, Edwards & Co., New Orleans; Northrop & Child, New York; Bartholow, Lewis & Co., St. Louis. se26 1y

ESTABLISHED IN 1813.
GUNS! GUNS! GUNS!
Breech and Muzzle-loading Guns, Rifles, Pistols, Sportsmen's Apparatus, Ammunition and Material for Gunmakers, etc., wholesale and retail. Guns made to order or repaired in the best manner.
ALEXANDER McCOMAS,
se12 2m 51 South Calvert st., Baltimore, Md.

The Child's Corner.

COUNTRY CHILDREN.

Little fresh violets,
Born in the wild wood:
Sweetly illustrating Innocent childhood;
Shy as the nutelope,
Brown as a berry,
Free as the mountain air,
Romping and merry.

Blue eyes and hazel eyes
Peep from the hedges,
Shaded by sun bonnets,
Frayed at the edges;
Up in the apple trees,
Heedless of danger—
Manhood in embryo
Stares at the stranger.

Out in the hilly patch,
Seeking the berries—
Under the orchard tree,
Feasting on cherries—
Trampling the clover blooms
Down 'mong the grasses,
No voice to hinder them,
Dear lads and lasses!

No grip propriety,
No intrudne foe:
Free as the birdlings
From city restriction!
Coloring the purest blood,
Strengthening each muscle,
Dooming health's armor
'Gainst life's coming bustle.

Dear little innocents!
Born in the wild wood:
Oh, that all little ones
Had such a childhood!
God's blue spread over them,
God's green beneath them;
No sweeter heritage
Could we bequeath them.

The Geography Lesson.

BY HAPPY HOPE.

Willie was spending the last few weeks of his long summer vacation with Grandpa and Grandma Smiley, on the fine old farm which Willie's father called the old homestead; and Willie thought it almost the best place in the whole world—the very best when father and mother, with the little baby brother, and four-year-old Nettie, were there too. And truly the substantial farmhouse, with its comfortable surroundings, ample barns and roomy sheds—the adjacent pond, which dimpled and sparkled in the dancing sunlight; rushing away over the mimic falls; part of it, however, being enticed to run through a race, and over a wheel, which, when set in motion, did the churning of grandpa's dairy of twenty cows, after which it bubbled along, losing itself in little curves playing in and out, then, with a gurgling laugh, hastened to overtake the swifter current, and all glided away under the bridge across the road in front of the house—all this picture greeted Willie's eyes when he was first awakened in the morning by the noisy clattering and gabble of geese and ducks, as they escorted their several families to their early morning bath in the pretty pond.

A grand old woods, too, added its numerous fascinations to this charming home; and when you shut your eyes and imagine it all, you will not wonder that Willie loved the place, nor that he should surprise his Aunt May by saying that he couldn't bear to think of going back to school.

Aunt May was a great lover of boys, and Willie was an especial favorite. Nor had she so far outgrown her school days as not to remember that there were rough as well as smooth places in the routine of lessons, and by a few judicious questions she soon discovered some of Willie's troubles. He says: "While some of the boys fairly hate their arithmetic exercise, but come to geography and grammar recitations with pleasure, they are the very lessons I dread. There is no reason in them. It's just all remember; but the arithmetic example reasons right out. Then when review day comes, and the teacher begins: Master Willie, bound Prussia and tell its capital, or where is Blackstone river?—it's so all over like, I never can think."

Aunt May soon found that Willie's teaching was too much in the abstract; but she said nothing of this, and after a nice little chat sent him to hunt eggs in the barn, while she attended to other duties.

In the afternoon, when the large apple tree cast a refreshing shadow over the croquet ground, she called Willie out for a play, but instead of mallet and ball she only handed to him some nicely sharpened sticks and a tape measure.

"Now," said she, in a bright, cheerful way, "I have a new game for you, and if you follow my directions I think you will enjoy it."

Willie's bright eyes were eager with interest, and he measured and marked out on the clean plot of the croquet ground just exactly as Aunt May dictated.

When it was all outlined what do you suppose it was? Willie did not recognize it at first, but when Aunt May handed him his geography, open at the map of the United States, he was not long in seeing that he had drawn New York State.

"Now," said Aunt May, "you may take a good look at which country you would put on the north, east, south and west." And after he got well her that, she told him to take a good look at the mountains and rivers. Then we will put little heaps of sand for the mountains, and dig ditches for the rivers."

Willie was all admiration over this new play, and soon Lakes Erie and Ontario were done out in complete miniature, and properly connected by Niagara river with its wonderful falls.

Aunt May had to go through quite a course of logic before she could convince him that he must make his falls toward the north, because he would persist that in the book it looked the other way. But when his sand was disposed of properly Aunt May gave him an object-lesson in contour and relief, which gave a new channel for his thoughts.

Papa came round and held an admiration meeting just as Willie was taking an imaginary trip down the Hudson. And he told Willie a wonderful story about the "Massacre in Cherry Valley," that did more to awaken a thirst for history than weeks of study could have done. At the tea-table grandpa was informed of the geography lesson; consequently the croquet grounds had a new visitor after tea. Grandpa gave the little boy a short account of Revolutionary times around Lake Champlain. I need hardly tell you the consequences of these judicious lessons. But Aunt May was in great demand to play geography, and some time I would like to tell you how she showed Willie the way to inner-mit railroads and build cities. Willie does not hate geography now.—New York Observer.

Trees that Wear Hats.

You never heard of such a thing! Of course not, and I'm glad of it, for now I can have the pleasure of telling you something new.

These trees that wear hats—and there are I don't know how many hundreds of kinds of them—are very wonderful and beautiful. I dare say you've been in the woods and seen them a hundred times, even gathered them into baskets and carried them home.

I may as well tell you that you don't call them trees, but mosses; and it's only by the help of the microscope that you can see the perfect tree, and the cunning little hats they wear.

These hats are not like your father's "stovepipe." Some of them are round like a skull-cap; others are shaped like the helmets the old knights used to wear—you've seen pictures of them. Some are high, with a long point, like a tent; and others look like the high fur caps the Russians wear. Some have long tassels on top, like a gentleman's smoking cap; and others are short and square like a paper hat. In fact, there's hardly a shape of hat you ever saw, or could think of, that couldn't be found among these wonderful little trees.

They are not just to look pretty, either, any more than yours is. They cover and protect from the sun and rain tiny seeds, until they are ripe and ready to start life for themselves.

Then, as the hats are no longer useful, they just fall off, or tip over one side, and let the little atoms of seeds fall to the ground, or sail off in the breeze to start a new family of mosses somewhere.

Their hats are not the only odd things about these little wonders. Part of the tiny plants we call mosses are called by the wise men liverworts, just because they don't wear hats. They carry their seeds in the daintiest boxes and baskets, just the right size for a fairy. The baskets are most elegant little things, and when filled with seeds look like birds' nests full of eggs. And all, you must remember, too small to be seen without a microscope. When the seeds are ripe they get loose from the basket, and the first rain washes them out.

The boxes are even more curious. They are tightly closed until the seeds are ripe, when they suddenly spring open and scatter the seeds afar off. Just the bursting of the box would not throw them far, you know; but there's a most wonderful little spiral spring coiled up in the box. It is the pressure of the spring that bursts the box and scatters the seeds. Not all the boxes open wide; some just open a little door in one side, and the seeds drop out; others jerk a trap-door off the top and shoot out the seed.

The seed cups are not the only beautiful part of them. Their leaves—for they do have leaves, though you can hardly believe it, if you haven't a microscope to see them—the leaves are exquisitely beautiful, pointed, and often trimmed with white fringe on the end. The delicate stems, with their branches, look under the microscope exactly like a forest of evergreen trees.

These tiny plants were made to collect and keep moisture, and splendidly they do their duty. Long and thick and spongy, they hold every drop of water that falls into their arms, feeding it out gradually to the giant trees whose feet they cover. When their laps are too full to hold the drops, they gather together and trickle off in a tiny streamlet; other little threads of water join it; it grows larger and stronger, and finally becomes a broad river, cradled and constantly fed by the moss-beds up in the mountains.

You see your old song is true, after all:

"Little drops of water,
Little grains of sand,
Make the mighty ocean,
And the beauteous land."

There's another lovely thing about them. When all nature is gay and glorious in summer, the soft little mosses almost dry up; but the moment the frost comes, and green tree and gaudy flower alike turn brown and die, then the little mosses put on their freshest and greenest hue, then they grow and flourish, as though to console us for all the beauty we have lost with the summer.—Little Corporal.

A Heroic Boy.

The Swiss Times tells a very nice story of a shepherd lad, fourteen years of age, in the Canton Grisons. On the Monte di Campo the youthful shepherd fed his flock, when a huge bear made his appearance, and unceremoniously began to feed himself on the same flock. When he had seized one of the finest sheep the courageous boy began to beat him about the head with a stick, in order to drive him away. The infuriated beast turned upon his slender assailant, determined to finish his mutton on him. The youth turned and ran, and remembering that there was not far off a gorge nearly two hundred feet deep, but so narrow that he might clear it by a vigorous leap, started for it, with bruin close at his heels. He reached the edge of the ravine, and, by a very desperate bound, landed safely on the other side, while the stupid brute behind him, not noticing his danger, stumbled headlong to the bottom. The boy, descending the gorge, found his enemy disabled by the bruises, and soon dispatched him by beating out his brains with stones.—Little Chief.

As the most dangerous winds may enter little openings, so the devil never enters more dangerously than by little unobserved incidents, which seem to be nothing, yet insensibly open the heart to great temptations.

The Farm and Garden.

Breeding and Feeding Turkeys.

The turkey does not attain its maturity until the third year, and the largest chicks can only be secured from mature parents. So common is the practice of selling off everything at a year old or less, that it is almost impossible to get stock two and three years old. In purchasing breeders it is the best economy to buy the heaviest birds, even at fancy prices. A ten months' cock weighing thirty pounds is cheaper at fifty dollars than a twenty-pound bird at five. Young hens weighing sixteen to eighteen pounds are cheaper at twenty dollars than twelve-pound birds at five. Large, well formed birds of perfect plumage will leave their mark upon their progeny. They will not only be more comely to look at, but they will bring much more satisfactory prices, whether we sell them to the butcher or to the breeder. Under the stimulus given to poultry raising by the numerous poultry societies and journals started in all parts of this country and Canada, there is likely to be a lively demand for extra breeding stock of all the finer varieties for some years to come. The breeder who goes in for the very best stock, taking premium birds when he can get them, and selling nothing from his yards but prime birds, will be likely to make the most money.

Feeding.—The practice of most farmers who raise turkeys is not to feed at all after the young birds are six or eight weeks old. They are driven off to the pasture or woods early in the morning, and get their living where they can find it. Their chief food is grasshoppers and other insects, and they do the pastures and meadows a great service in keeping under these destructive creatures. This may be well enough where insects and must are plenty. But upon many farms the range of woodland is exceedingly limited, and the growth of the birds will not be satisfactory without feed from the corn crib. They should come to the roost every night with full crops, and if, on examination, this is not found to be the case, they should be regularly fed once a day at least. There is no danger of fattening a young turkey on a good range in the first six months. With first-class stock, full feed will make a difference of four or five pounds in the weight of the birds at Thanksgiving. Turkeys like a variety of food, though they do very well upon corn, which they never refuse while in health.

They are very fond of a mash of boiled potatoes and Indian meal, and thrive admirably upon it. Whatever the provender, it should be fed regularly, and the birds be kept thriving from the shell to the butcher's block.—Poultry World.

Progressive Bee-Culture.

The commencement of true and successful bee-culture dates with the use of movable bee-hives; and it is only a few years since such culture began to be rapidly extended in this country. The importation and breeding of the Italian bee marks the second era. This feature did not assume anything of a general character until about five years ago; but since that time great progress has been made. The third era is marked by the invention and the use of the honey-extracting machine, and it may be said that the present year is the time of its coming into somewhat general use.

These three steps are all very important, and each makes a distinct advance in bee-culture. Previous to the introduction of movable combs, it may be said there was no such thing as bee-culture, only bee keeping. Farmers hived their swarms into boxes or guns, and set them beside the parent hives in the long row. No special care was bestowed upon them. If queens were lost, as they often were, the colony inevitably dwindled away; and as the worms generally took possession, the loss of the colony was attributed to the depredations of the bee-moth. But now, if queens are lost or become unfertile, prolific mothers are promptly supplied and the colony saved. Colonies are not permitted to swarm to excess, and the increase is almost completely controlled by the bee-master. A healthier, hardier, more industrious and more vigilant race of bees is cultivated; the moths are no dread, for the bees are always their masters. No bees are brimstoned, but an abundance of honey is taken in boxes or frames, and the industrious insect is saved.

The extractor next comes to our aid, and the combs are emptied of their honey, and then return to the colony without injury, to be again filled and emptied, and refilled and re-emptied, till hundreds of pounds of the purest nectar are taken from a single colony.

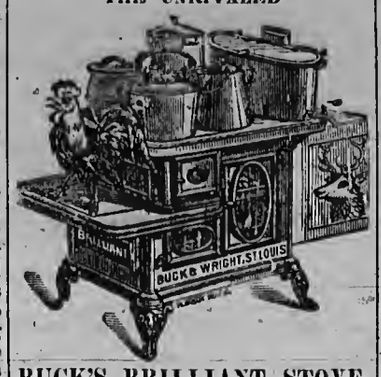
And as though perfection could never be reached, we are now told that the annual increase of stocks can be successfully made in the fall, after the honey harvest is over, and these divided colonies wintered with less consumption of honey, and with greater increase of bees, than by the original method indicated by the instinct of the bees. And thus, as it were, we may get the benefit of increase a whole year in advance of its natural occurrence. Verily, we may say, where shall the end be?—W. C. Condit, in Country Gentleman.

Seasoning Wood.—A writer in an English journal informs us that a small piece of non-resinous wood can be seasoned perfectly by boiling four or five hours, the process taking the sap out of the wood, which shrinks nearly one-tenth in the operation. The same writer states that trees felled in full leaf in June or July, and allowed to lie until every leaf has fallen, will then be nearly dry, as the leaves will not drop off themselves until they have drawn up and exhausted nearly all the sap of the tree. The time required is from a month to six weeks, according to the dryness or wetness of the weather. The floor of a mill laid with poplar so treated and cut up, and put in place in less than a month after the leaves fell, has never shown the slightest shrinkage.

HARDWARE, STOVES, ETC.

KURSHEEDT & BIENVENU,
IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN
Plantation and Builders' Hardware,
MARBLE, MARBLEIZED SLATE
AND IRON MANTLES,
Grates, Hearths and Fire Bricks,
NO. 114 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
my2 1y

THE UNRIVALED



BUCK'S BRILLIANT STOVE.

Every Brilliant is Fully Guaranteed.

H. HALLER,
No. 49 Camp street, New Orleans,
Sole Agent for Louisiana.

Sole Agent for the
CELEBRATED RINGEN WASHER,
In the States of Louisiana, Texas and Mississippi. oc19 1y

G. W. W. GOODWYN,
52 Gravier St., near Tchoupitoulas,
DEALER IN
STOVES AND TINWARE.

Among his assortment of Cooking Stoves he invites special attention to the COTTAGE and THE BEST, as being unsurpassed by any Cooking Stoves in this market. They have all the modern improvements, are perfect bakers, and, without extra charge, are adapted for burning wood, coke or coal, and guaranteed to give satisfaction.

HEATING STOVES.—He has various styles of these on sale. Is agent also for the NEW BALTIMORE FIRE-PLACE HEATER, the most perfect, cheerful and economical Heater in use; will heat from one to a half dozen or more rooms at a cost, for coal, of twenty-five cents per day.

TINWARE.—In this line he keeps constantly on hand a full assortment of plain Tin and Japanned Ware.

(With the above, Rev. P. M. Goodwyn, a superannuate of the Louisiana Conference.)
se26 6m

GROCERIES—GLASSWARE.

PURE LOUISIANA
SUGAR, MOLASSES AND SIRUPS.

REFINED SUGAR.—Cut Loaf, Crushed and Powdered.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

GOLDEN SIRUP.—A superior article of pure Louisiana, from the Crescent City Refinery.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

REFINED SIRUP AND MOLASSES.—Crescent City Refinery, Orleans, Louisiana, Chalmette and Pelican brands.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

LOUISIANA MOLASSES.—Various grades of Plantation, in barrels, half barrels and kegs.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

CLARIFIED SUGAR.—Various grades of White and Yellow, in hogsheads and barrels.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

LOUISIANA SUGAR.—Various grades of Plantation, in hogsheads and barrels.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

FOREIGN SUGAR.—Cuba, Demerara and Porto Rico, in hogsheads and boxes.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
my9 6m 48 Tchoupitoulas street.

W. C. SHEPARD & CO.,
—IMPORTERS OF—
CHINA, CROCKERY AND GLASS,
55.....CAMP STREET.....55
New Orleans.

Country dealers supplied with ASSORTED CRATES or from SHELF upon the most favorable terms.

Contents of our English Iron Stone China Dinner Set, No 1:

12 Dinner Plates,	1 Round Soup Tureen
12 Breakfast Plates,	1 Sauce Boat,
12 Tea Plates,	1 Salad,
12 Soup Plates,	1 Pair Covered Dishes,
12 Preserve Plates,	2 Vegetable Dishes,
12 Butter Plates,	2 Pickle Dishes,
12 Tea cups and saucers	4 Meat Dishes.

112 pieces best English Ware..... $18

Our Stone China Dinner and Tea Set, No. 2, contains
158 pieces..... $25

Our French China Dinner Set, No. 1, contains

12 Dinner Plates,	4 Meat Dishes,
12 Breakfast Plates,	1 Soup Tureen, round,
12 Tea Plates,	2 Covered Dishes, oval
12 Soup Plates,	1 Sauce Boat,
12 Preserve Plates,	1 Salad,
12 Tea cups and saucers	2 Pickles,
12 Butter Plates,	2 Vegetable Dishes.

112 pieces best French Ware..... $30

Our French China Dinner Set, No. 2, contains
166 pieces..... $45

Our French China Dinner Set, No. 3, contains
255 pieces..... $65

A large variety of the best SELF-SEALING FRUIT JARS always on hand.

Sole agents for the celebrated BLANCHARD CHURN. The best churn made.

The most complete stock of HOUSE-FURNISHING GOODS in the South.

W. C. SHEPARD & CO.,
ap4 tf No. 55 Camp st., New Orleans.

RHEUMATISM,
GOUT AND NEURALGIA PERMANENTLY CURED BY
N. JENKINS'
ANNIHILATOR.

A PURELY VEGETABLE COMPOUND, whose extraordinary virtues, in these painful diseases, are attested by certificates from many prominent citizens of every section of the country.

No medicine of the century has attracted as much attention.

Of the many to whom the proprietor is authorized to refer, may be mentioned the following well-known gentlemen:

Rev. Fisher T. Hawson, Delhi, Louisiana.
Rev. James E. Bradley, Floyd, Louisiana.
Rev. P. M. Goodwyn, New Orleans, La.
Rev. J. B. Walker, Galveston, Texas.

For circulars and for further information address N. JENKINS, Proprietor, se26 3m 100 Baronne st., New Orleans.

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

CENTENARY COLLEGE,
JACKSON, LOUISIANA.

THE NEXT TERM OF THIS VENERABLE INSTITUTION OPENS ON THE FIRST MONDAY IN OCTOBER, 1872.

FACULTY.

Rev. C. G. ANDREWS, A. M., President, and Professor of Mental and Moral Science, Political Economy and International Law.
Rev. A. R. HOLCOMBE, A. M., Professor of Mathematics and Adjunct Professor of Natural Science.
G. H. WILEY, A. M., Professor of Ancient and Modern Languages.
T. S. JONES, M. D., Professor of Natural Science.
——— ———, Principal of the Preparatory Department.

CHARGES.

Tuition, per session of forty weeks, in College	$60 00
Tuition, per session of forty weeks, in Preparatory Department	40 00
Contingent expenses	5 00

A matriculation fee of $5 must be paid on entering any regular college class. One-half the charges must be paid when the student enters; the other half on the beginning of the second term, March 1.

BOARD.

Board, including lodging, washing, lights and fuel, can be had in the best of families for $20 per month. Day-boarding with the same families, $13 per month. Rooms provided in the dormitories free of rent. Board to be paid in advance at least one month.

LOCATION.

This institution is located in the lovely village of Jackson, about twelve miles from Bayou Sara, in a grove of pine, magnolia, oak and beech. The location is remarkable for its beautiful woodlands, its bland and delightful atmosphere, its pure water, its unrivaled healthfulness, and its cultivated and refined society.

WHEN FOUNDED.

The college was established by the State of Louisiana in 1825, and ceded to the Methodist Episcopal Church South in 1845.

ALUMNI.

Its Alumni numbers 203, and they are to be found in the most honorable and useful stations in the land.

APPARATUS AND CABINET.

The college possesses a valuable set of Philosophical, Astronomical and Chemical Apparatus, and also a well-selected Mineralogical and Geological Cabinet. The apparatus includes a Theodolite, Sextant, Compass, Chronometer, Atwood's Machine, Whirling Tables, Electrical Machine, Air Pump, various combinations of the Mechanical Powers, Batteries, Chemical Tests, etc., sufficient for a thorough and extended course of observations and experiments. Steps have been taken by the Board of Trustees to put these in thorough repair.

LITERARY SOCIETIES.

There are two regular Literary Societies connected with the institution. These are of great utility to young men acquiring a liberal education—improving them in the art of public speaking, making them in some degree familiar with the proceedings of deliberative bodies, and in cultivating systematic business habits. Each Society has a convenient hall and a well selected library—about 1,600 volumes each, which, added to the College Library of 2,000 volumes, makes over 5,000 volumes in the college.

BUILDINGS.

The Trustees are determined to continue the repairs on the buildings till completed. The grand Center Building is a noble specimen of architectural beauty and adaptation to the purposes of instruction. The wings, built of solid brick, present each a front of two hundred feet, with upper and lower galleries the entire length, supported by Tuscan columns, and with the center making in the perspective a continuous front of 700 feet.

PREPARATORY DEPARTMENT.

In the Preparatory Department students are fitted for regular college classes, or may obtain a thorough English or commercial education.

ITS FACULTY are men of experience and success in teaching.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES.

Rev. Bishop J. C. KEENER, D. D., President, New Orleans.

Rev. J. A. Godfrey, Clinton.	Hon. A. K. Farrar, Adams county, Miss.
Hon. John McVea, Clinton.	Hon. Edward J. Gay, parish of Iberville.
Hon. and Rev. Jas. H. Mose, St. Helena par.	Samuel J. Norwood, Esq., Shumsport, La.
Hon. Edward McGehee, Woodville, Miss.	C. G. McGehee, Esq., Wilkinson co., Miss.
Hon. E. T. Merrick, New Orleans.	Rev. W. H. Watkins, D. D., Natchez, Miss.
Prof. W. H. N. Magruder, Baton Rouge.	Rev. W. G. Millsaps, Jefferson county, Miss.
Rev. John C. Miller, Jackson.	Rev. J. A. B. Jones, Port Gibson, Miss.
Rev. R. J. Harp, New Orleans.	Rev. John A. Ellis, Meridian, Miss.
Hon. J. G. Fuqua, Baton Rouge.	R. H. Moss, M. D., New Orleans.
T. F. Collins, Esq., East Feliciana.	Josiah D. Nettles, Esq., E. Baton Rouge, La.
Rev. J. L. Forsythe, Jackson.	Wilmot H. Goodale, Esq. Baton Rouge.
Rev. L. Parker, D. D., New Orleans.	Rev. C. G. Andrews, Jackson, La.
D. C. Hardee, Esq., Clinton.	Rev. A. E. Goodwyn, Baton Rouge, La.

THE BEST ROUTE to the college is to leave the Mississippi river at Port Hudson, take the Clinton and Port Hudson railroad to Midway station, report to Captain F. J. Havnes as a student for Centenary, and he will convey you to the college, a distance of seven miles, for one dollar and a half for single passengers, or one dollar each where several are together. Address

au1 6m C. G. ANDREWS, President, Jackson, La.

Whitworth Female College,
AT BROOKHAVEN, MISS.

THE CONTINUED SUCCESS of this institution is one of the best evidences of its merit. During the past term there were in attendance two hundred and twenty-nine pupils.

The members of the Faculty—eleven in number—are selected on account of their ability to teach.

Prof. ECKHART, Music Director, has few equals.

Madame JULIUS, a Parisian lady of eighteen years' successful experience as a teacher, has been engaged to take charge of the French and Ornamental Department.

The very best care is taken of our pupils, both as to health and manners. Fires are provided for all.

No extravagance in dress is allowed.

The good health of Brookhaven is proverbial. Pupils from the miasmatic regions of Louisiana and Mississippi find this as healthful a school as can be found anywhere.

The charges are believed to be lower than in any school in the Southwest where similar advantages are afforded. Only from $230 to $265 for all expenses, excepting music, French and the ornamental branches.

No expense is spared in purchasing the most approved apparatus, maps, charts, etc., and all necessary school furniture.

Brookhaven is located on the New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern Railroad, 128 miles from the city.

Catalogues sent free on application to au1 6m REV. H. F. JOHNSON, Prest.

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE,
AT BATON ROUGE, LOUISIANA.

THE EXERCISES OF THIS SCHOOL will be resumed on Wednesday, the Second of October next.

For circulars, with all necessary information, apply to Rev. R. J. Harp, 112 Camp street, New Orleans, or to myself, at Baton Rouge, Louisiana.

au1 6m W. H. N. MAGRUDER.

EMORY AND HENRY COLLEGE,
VIRGINIA.

THE FALL SESSION of this Institution begins on the FIFTEENTH OF AUGUST next. One Hundred and Fifteen Dollars will pay all the necessary expenses of a five-month session, including board, tuition, fuel, room-rent, washing and contingent fees. Payments are required in advance, except for board, which is $13 per month, and payable monthly in advance. If you will consult the Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and her ministers generally, our alumni and students, or the professors of the University of Virginia, who have authorized this reference, you will be assured that we are offering excellent opportunities for a thorough collegiate training, surrounded by healthful, moral, religious influences. If you desire a catalogue, or any additional information, address

E. E. WILEY, President.
je20 4m Emory P. O., Virginia.

TUSKALOOSA FEMALE COLLEGE,
TUSKALOOSA, ALABAMA.

THE NEXT SESSION OPENS SEPTEMBER 23, 1872.

The beautiful and healthy city of Tuskaloosa, Alabama, is unsurpassed as a location.

The Faculty will consist of three Professors and eight or ten Lady Assistants.

Course of study thorough. Domestic arrangements complete. Young ladies' sleeping apartments elegantly furnished and carpeted. Health department includes a daily-conducted Gymnasium. This College is believed to be equal to the best in the United States, and the cheapest in the South. Special advantages for orphan children whose guardians wish to furnish them a home and school in one. For particulars and catalogue address the proprietor,

REV. R. F. LARRABEE,
jy18 3m Tuskaloosa, Alabama.

HOMER COLLEGE.

THE SCHOLASTIC EXERCISES OF THE Thirteenth Annual Term of Homer College begin on the First Tuesday of SEPTEMBER next, 1872.

Tuition at the rate of $5 per month. Board from $12 to $15 per month.

Students received in regular classes only, and to the end of a session.

A Preparatory Department, under competent management, is attached to the college. Tuition, $4 to $5 per month.

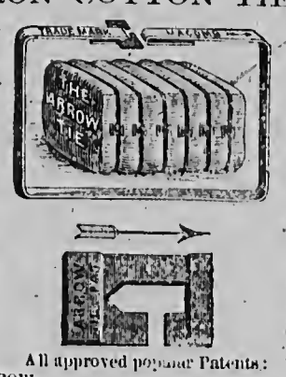
For further particulars address
REV. J. E. COBB,
President Homer College, La.
By order of the Board.
W. F. MORELAND,
Pres. Board of Trustees. au22 3m

Readville Seminary for Young Ladies,
BATON ROUGE, LOUISIANA.

ESTABLISHED IN 1843.—Incorporated in 1859. New buildings. Full corps of teachers. All the appliances of a first-class institution. For catalogues address
MRS. MARY W. READ, Principal.
au29 3m Baton Rouge, La.

IMPORTANT TO PLANTERS.

IRON COTTON TIES.



All approved popular Patents:
ARROW,
ANCHOR,
WALLIS,
ALLIGATOR
AND DUNN

For sale by all dealers in New Orleans, Mobile and Selma, and by country merchants generally throughout the Cotton States.
BARTLETT & RAYNE,
General Agents,
48 Carondelet street, cor. Union,
my30 6m New Orleans

MUSICAL BOXES,

PLAYING FROM ONE TO ONE HUNDRED Airs, and costing from $2.50 to $3,000. All sizes, styles and prices. Send stamp for catalogue.

MAGIC LANTERNS,

specially for Sunday schools, lectures, etc. A priced and illustrated catalogue sent on receipt of stamp.

W. MITCHELL McALLISTER,
au29 4m 728 Chestnut st., Phila.

FREE TO BOOK AGENTS

AN ELEGANTLY BOUND CANVASSING book for the best and cheapest Family Bible ever published will be sent free of charge to any Book Agent. It contains nearly 500 fine Scripture Illustrations, and agents are meeting with unprecedented success. Address, stating experience, etc., and we will show you what our agents are doing.
NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO.,
se5 4m Memphis, Tenn.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

JUST PUBLISHED.

Butler's Ecclesiastical History,

SECOND SERIES.—COMPLETING THE WORK.

AN ECCLESIASTICAL HISTORY FROM the Thirteenth to the Nineteenth Century. By the Rev. C. M. BUTLER, D. D., Professor of Ecclesiastical History in the Divinity School of the Protestant Episcopal Church, West Philadelphia. One volume, royal 8vo, cloth, $3.50. The work complete, two volumes, $7.

DALTON'S COMMENTARY.

AN EXPLANATORY AND CRITICAL COMmentary on the NEW TESTAMENT. Intended chiefly as a Help to Family Devotion. By the Rev. W. DALTON, D. D., Prebendary of Lichfield, and Vicar of St. Philips, Penn, near Wolverhampton. Fourth edition. Two vols., royal 8vo, cloth. Price, $12.

PRESENT ISSUES, OR FACTS OBSERVABle in the Consciousness of the Age. By Rev. ROBERT WITHERS MEMMINGER, author of "What is Religion?" One volume, 12mo, cloth. Price, $1.50.

☞ Sold at the principal book stores, or where not obtainable the publishers will send copies by mail on receipt of the price.

Claxton, Remsen & Haffelfinger,
819 and 821 Market street,
an22 3m Philadelphia.

30,000 COPIES SOLD IN ADVANCE.

IS BY FAR

THE BEST MUSIC BOOK

For Churches, Singing Schools and Musical Conventions.

EMPHATICALLY A NEW BOOK.

New in Method, new in Lessons, new in Departments, new in Music.

HAS 400 PAGES

filled with new and fresh music. It includes also an elementary course of the best character, with interesting exercises, tunes and easy pieces for practice. A specimen copy will be sent, post paid, on receipt of $1 25, by the publishers, JOHN CHURCH & CO.,
oct1 1y Cincinnati Ohio.

BIGGEST COMMISSIONS

on Standard Works for all Prominent Benevolent Organizations, Lodges, Societies, Masonic, Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias Red Men, Mechanics, Temperance, etc. Sale unrivaled by anything heretofore offered. Agents with no experience are selling 20 Pictures and upward a day. One of our agents has cleared over $1,200 in three months. The Brethren endorse these works. Our inducements are UNPRECEDENTED. Our commissions are positively or refunds larger than any other house does or can offer. Send for circular of Order to which you belong, giving No of your Lodge, and state where you saw this advertisement. You will certainly engage with us.

J. HALE POWERS & CO.,
Fraternity Publishers,
my9 7in Cincinnati Ohio.

AGENTS WANTED IN EVERY TOWNship of the United States to sell my

New County United States Map,

STATE MAPS, RELIGIOUS CHARTS,

LITHOGRAPHIC PRINTS, ETC.

Greater inducements are offered to Agents this season than ever before. Our new plan for the sale of the County United States Map guarantees success.

Catalogues sent free of charge. Address GAYLORD WATSON, Publisher, 16 Beekman st., New York, or
L. NEEDHAM,
Watson's Chicago Branch,
se26 13in 669 Wabash ave., Chicago, Ill.

JOHN GIBSON,

ENGRAVER

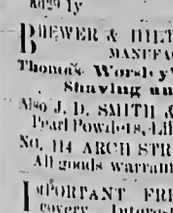
AND

Steam Power Lithographic Printer,

82 BEEKMAN ST., NEW YORK.

Checks, Notes, Drafts, Receipts, Bonds, Certificates of Stock and Deposit, Bill, Letter and Note Headings, Business Cards, Envelopes, Druggists' Fancy and Perfumery Labels, etc. Druggists wishing Labels, send for Catalogue. je27 4y

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY



Established in 1837.

Superior Bells for Churches, Schools, etc., of Pure Copper and Tin, fully warranted, and mounted with our Latest Improved Rotary Hangings, the best in use.

Illustrated Catalogue sent free

VANDUZEN & TIFT,
102 & 101 E. Second St., Cincinnati
je22 1y

WM. PHILLIPS, UNION STABLES, 180 Calliope, near St. Charles street, has every accommodation in the line of Pleasure and Family Carriages, such as hacks, bretts, phaetons, buggies, etc., for the use of the public, and at rates to correspond with the stringency of the times. All hacking done below tariff rates. Orders for weddings, balls, parties, races, etc., will be attended to so as to guarantee satisfaction. I am also prepared to hire vehicles (alone) to parties having their own horses. de14 1y

BINGHAM HOUSE, PHILADELPHIA,

Corner of Eleventh and Market Sts.

CARLILE DAVIS, PROPRIETOR.

This popular Hotel being centrally located and accessible by street cars from all depots, makes it a desirable stopping place for travelers. It will be conducted in the same liberal manner as heretofore, it being the intention of the proprietor to maintain the reputation it has always enjoyed, of being in all respects a first-class hotel.

Terms, $3 a day. au26 1y

LANDRETH'S

SEEDS

Have spoken their own praise for upward of three-quarters of a century.

Landreth's Rural Register and Almanac will be mailed to all who apply.

DAVID LANDRETH & SON,
au29 1y Philadelphia.

BREWER & HILTON,

MANUFACTURERS OF

Thomas Worsley's Celebrated Fancy Shaving and Toilet Soaps,

Also J. D. SMITH & CO.'S world renowned Pearl Powders, Lily Whites, Rouges, etc.,

No. 114 ARCH STREET, PHILADELPHIA.

All goods warranted. au26 3m

IMPORTANT FRENCH MEDICAL DISCovery. Interesting to all. Health in a Bottle. Consumption, Chlorosis, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Dyspepsia and Pulmonary Tubercules radically cured with the Elixir J. F. Bernard, of Paris. This wonderful remedy is accepted by the most distinguished and celebrated French physicians, and in constant use in the French hospitals. Valuable instructions and information on the above sent (free) to all who desire it by addressing A. BERNARD & CO.; Sole Agents, 62 William street, N. Y. Postoffice Box 4456. For sale by all respectable druggists. oc10 1m

COMMISSION MERCHANTS.

PRICE, HINE & TUPPER,

General Commission Merchants,

FACTORS, AND

Agents of Attnkapns Mail Transportation Co.,

NO. 26 CARONDELET STREET,
NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Advances made on consignments to T. Tupper & Sons, Charleston, S. C.; Williams, Birnie & Co., and Leverich & Co., New York. no2 1y

W. H. SUTTON. J. R. POWELL.

SUTTON & POWELL,

COTTON FACTORS
AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

186..... COMMON STREET 186
NEW ORLEANS, LA.
se21 1y

H. F. GIVEN. LUCIEN J. DOIZE.

H. F. GIVEN & CO.,

COTTON, TOBACCO AND SUGAR FACTORS,

—AND—

GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

No. 64 Baronne street, New Orleans.

oc5 1y

ANDREW J. AIKEN. JOHN W. WATT.

AIKEN & WATT,

Cotton Factors and Commission Merchants.

60.....CARONDELET STREET..... 60
NEW ORLEANS.

Special attention given to orders for the purchase of all descriptions of Produce, Agricultural Implements and Plantation Supplies. no2 1y

J. L. DUNNICA, New Orleans. T. A. HAMILTON, Memphis.
G. P. HARRISON, New Orleans.

J. L. DUNNICA & CO.,

FLOUR, PRODUCE AND PROVISION

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

50.....TCHOUPITOULAS ST.....50
NEW ORLEANS, LOUISIANA.
oc22 1y

J. U. PAYNE. W. H. DAMERON. H. M. PAYNE

PAYNE, DAMERON & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS,

64 & 66....BARONNE STREET....64 & 66
Between Union and Gravier streets,
NEW ORLEANS, LA.
je19 1y

C. L. WALMSLEY & CO.,

Cotton Factors and General Commission Merchants,

31.....PERDIDO STREET.....31
oc3 1y NEW ORLEANS.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

G. W. RACE. W. H. FOSTER. E. T. MERRICK, Former Ch. Jus. La.

RACE, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK,

Attorneys, Counselors and Solicitors.

Cor. of Camp street and Commercial Place,
se25 NEW ORLEANS.

W. W. EDWARDS,

COUNSELOR AT LAW

AND

COMMISSIONER OF DEEDS,

No. 88 Common street,

se11 1y New Orleans.

DR. JOHN G. ANGELL,

DENTAL SURGEON,

152 .....JULIA STREET.....152

All operations in Operative, Mechanical and Surgical Dentistry carefully performed. Nitrous Oxide and other Anæsthetics administered. oc30 1y

DR. C. J. BICKHAM,

Office—680 Magazine Street,

Between Philip and First sts., New Orleans.

Will call daily at College building, corner Common and Baronne streets, between eleven and twelve o'clock. je29 1y

Relief for the Sick and Afflicted.

SOUTHERN HEPATIC PILLS.

Unsurpassed for the cure of Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint and all other Bilious diseases. Call on MRS. GEO. W. DEEMS, No 28 South Calhoun street, Baltimore, Maryland. Explanatory circulars sent on application. For sale by E. J. HART & CO., se12 5in 73 Tchoupitoulas st., New Orleans.

OCEAN SPRINGS.

Summer Resort.—Board at the Seaside.

THE SUBSCRIBER has taken the MORRIS HOUSE, at Ocean Springs, which has just undergone a thorough repair, and will be open to boarders who wish to enjoy a pleasant home, good bathing, fresh sea air, and luxuriate on fish and oysters during the heat of summer.

Terms for board: $40 per month, $10 per week, and $2 per day. Apply to the subscriber by mail, at Ocean Springs.

Refer to Bishop Keener, Rev. Robert J Harp, J. L. Dunnica & Co., and Samuel Russ, Esq., New Orleans.

WM. C. CHAMBERLIN.
APRIL 20, 1872. ap25 1f

Carpet and Oil Cloth Warehouse.

J. M. ELKIN. F. STRINGER

ELKIN & CO.,

168.....CANAL STREET.....168
Near Baronne, New Orleans,

IMPORTERS OF ALL VARIETIES OF ENGLISH CARPETINGS, RUGS, Etc.

—ALSO—

Oil Cloths, Mattings,
Lace and Damask Curtains,
Window Shades, etc.,

—AND A—

Complete Assortment of Upholstery Goods.

fe8 1y

The Records of Tests

AT LOWELL, MASS., PROVE

N. F. BURNHAM'S

New Turbine

superior to all others. It gave a higher percentage than any other wheel of common finish. Pamphlet and Price List by N. F. BURNHAM, York, Pa. ap25 6m

EXCHANGE HOTEL,

JOHN SUMMERS, PROPRIETOR,

GALVESTON, TEXAS.

☞ This is the only Hotel in the city which has FREE OMNIBUSES to and from the cars and boats for the use of guests. Ask for Exchange Hotel Omnibus. feb1 1y

BUSINESS CARDS.

YOUR CUSTOM SOLICITED BY

R. F. W. BACHMAN,

DEALER IN BOOTS AND SHOES,

No. 18 Camp Street,

Under City Hotel, New Orleans.

Made expressly for the first-class retail Family and Plantation trade. oc3 6m

E. HEATH. M. LARA. J. P. HEATH.

HEATH, LARA & HEATH,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

UPHOLSTERERS' MATERIALS,

WALL PAPER, WINDOW SHADES,

CORNICES AND CURTAIN GOODS,

Pictures, Frames, Mouldings, Looking Glasses and Clocks,

NO. 99 CAMP STREET,

no16 1y NEW ORLEANS.

THE MITCHELL & RAMMELSBERG

FURNITURE COMPANY,

Manufacturers and dealers in all kinds of

Furniture, Mattresses, Looking Glasses,

ETC., ETC.,

103 and 105 Camp street, cor. Poydras,

Moresque Building, New Orleans,

have the largest and best assortment of FURNITURE of any house in the city.

Please give us a call before purchasing elsewhere. my23 1y

A. B. GRISWOLD & CO.,

CANAL ST., COR. ROYAL, NEW ORLEANS,

IMPORTERS OF

WATCHES, JEWELRY, CLOCKS,

PLATED WARE, HOUSEKEEPING GOODS,

Cutlery, Guns, Pistols, Bronzes, Porcelain and Fancy Goods.

MANUFACTURERS OF

PURE COIN SILVERWARE.

Watches and Jewelry carefully repaired. Every article sold fully guaranteed.
no23 1y

J. THOMSON, G. THOMSON, W. B. THOMSON.

J. THOMSON & BROS.,

Manufacturers of Carriages, Barouches, Buggies, Phaetons, SPRING WAGONS, ETC.

68 and 70 Rampart Street,

Bet. Common and Gravier, New Orleans, La. Repairing done in all its branches. no10 1y

LOUISIANA STEAM

SASH, BLIND AND DOOR FACTORY,

ROBERTS & CO., PROPRIETORS,

301, 303, 305 and 307 Gravier Street,

NEW ORLEANS. my30 1y

JAMES M'CRACKEN. GEO. E. BREWSTER.

M'CRACKEN & BREWSTER,

DEALERS IN FURNITURE,

Nos. 37, 39 and 41 Royal street.

Manufactory, corner Derbigny and Customhouse streets, New Orleans. my9 6m

JOHN I. ADAMS & CO., (JOHN I. ADAMS, JAY L. ADAMS, GEO. W. WEST, WM. H. RENAUD,)

WHOLESALE GROCERS,

AND DEALERS IN

PROVISIONS, LARD, OILS, ETC., ETC.,

43, 45 and 47 Peters street,

(Formerly New Levee,)

mh21 1y NEW ORLEANS.

ELON G. SMITH. J. L. CHEATHAM. J. W. DRAUGHON.

SMITH, CHEATHAM & CO.,

(SUCCESSORS TO ELON G. SMITH & CO.)

PORK PACKERS,

Provision and Commission Merchants,

CORNER THIRD AND SPRUCE STREETS,
SAINT LOUIS.

We solicit orders from the trade for goods in our line. oc26 1y

C. SAMPSON. F. G. SAMPSON.

SAMPSON BROTHERS,
(Late C. C. Sampson,)

FURNITURE,

33 & 35.... ROYAL STREET.....33 & 35
NEW ORLEANS.
Established in 1833. jo11 1y

Carpet Warehouse—17 Charles Street.

A. BROUSSEAU & CO.,

Importers and dealers, at Wholesale and Retail, in English and American Carpetings.

Floor Oil Cloths, Table and Enameled Oil Cloths.
Window Shades, Table and Piano Covers.
Crumb Cloths, in squares or pieces.
Curtain and Furniture Materials.
Brocatelles, Cutelenes, Terries, Reps, Lace and Nottingham Lace Curtains, Hairclath Tickling, Springs, Hurlaps, Stop Covers, etc.
no23 1y A. BROUSSEAU & CO.

T. H. McMAHAN & CO.,

BANKERS,

And Dealers in Foreign and Domestic Exchange,

GALVESTON, TEXAS.

We have prompt and reliable correspondents at all the principal points throughout this State, and upon all collections payable in this city or Houston make no charge for collecting, and only actual charge upon interior collections.

Immediate and prompt attention given to all business intrusted to us. feb1 1y

RICHARD BRODERICK,

CISTERN MAKER,

132.....Julia street.....132

Bet. Camp and Magazine, New Orleans.

Second hand Cisterns always on hand. All work guaranteed.

All orders left at Box 30, Mechanics' and Dealers' Exchange, will meet with prompt attention. my2 1y

E. VEAZIE,

74.....Camp street.....74
NEW ORLEANS, LA.,

LAMPS AND OILS, CHANDELIERS,

Globes, Chimneys, Shades, Trimmers, Wicks, Cans, Fillers, etc.

PRATTS' ASTRAL OIL, non-explosive and non-inflammable. ja18 1y

R. H. NOBLE. J. B. WOODS.

NOBLE & WOODS,

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL GROCERS,

Nos. 11 and 13 Delta street, and 10 and 12 Front street,

ja18 1y NEW ORLEANS, LA.

JOHN D. MACLIN, (Late R. D. Maclin.) L. C. MACLIN,

COAL! WOOD! COAL!

Pittsburg, Anthracite and Cannel Coal, Oak, Ash and Pine Wood, at the lowest market rates, delivered to any part of the city.

Offices—26 Carondelet street, and corner of Third and Tchoupitoulas. mh7 1y

MENEELY'S BELLS.

THE genuine Troy Church Bells known to the public since 1826, which have acquired a reputation unequaled by any, and a sale exceeding that of all others—including more than seventy chimes and peals. One thousand testimonials received during the last six years. Every Bell made of best Copper and Tin, and fully warranted. New Patent Rotary Fixtures. Catalogues free. No agencies.

Post office address, either TROY or WEST TROY, New York.

je13 1y E. A. & G. R. MENEELY.

THE BECKWITH SEWING MACHINE.

PATENTED APRIL 10, 1871.

PRICE, $10, including Hemmer, Guide, four Needles, Bottle of Oil and Can.

The First and Only Successful Low-Priced Machine Made.

PRACTICAL, DURABLE, SIMPLE and Beautiful. Capable of making by hand upward of 800 Stitches per Minute and there is very little Family Sewing that this machine will not do as well as a $75 machine, and some work it will do better.

It is well and strongly made of the best material, but compact and light, and takes up but little room. Nickel-plated throughout.

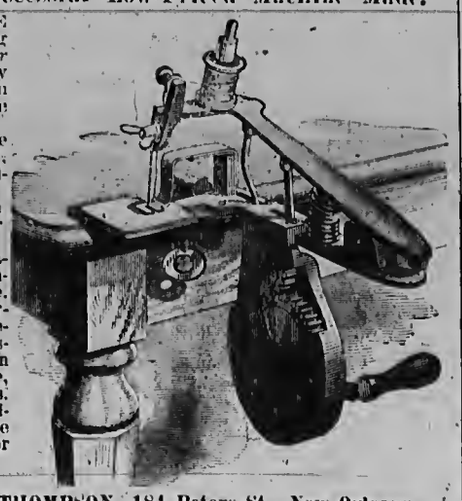
Its SIMPLICITY adapts it to all capabilities. Every machine is fully warranted for Two Years.

Full directions for running the machine, hemming, tucking, hem stitching, etc., accompany every machine.

Parties in the city wishing to purchase a machine can see one in operation at Mrs. Robertson's, dressmaker, corner of Camp and Julia streets, up stairs, over the cigar store, and where they can leave their orders.

Single machines sent to any address, carefully boxed, with all the equipments, on receipt of $10. For full particulars send for circular.

Address,



EDWARD THOMPSON, 184 Peters St., New Orleans,

☞ Energetic Agents Wanted. (je27 6m) Agent of the Manufacturer.

"Southern Books for Southern Schools."

School-Books which are Unsectional, Unpartisan, and Unpolitical.

PREPARED BY THE MOST EMINENT SOUTHERN SCHOLARS, AND

ENTIRELY ACCEPTABLE TO SOUTHERN TEACHERS AND PARENTS.

The University Publishing Co.,

An Association composed of many of the several Southern States, feel-ing the necessity for a series of School Books which should be entirely unsectional, unpartisan, and in their teaching thought and feeling of the Southern people—which should present only the facts of history and science—and be offensive to none, now issuing a complete series of School and College Text-books by the eminent Southern scholars and educators named below, which are the most eminent citizens of the

Cheapest, Best, and Most Beautiful School-Books

Now published. The "University Series" embraces

MAURY'S GEOGRAPHICAL SERIES,

By Commodore M. F. MAURY, of the Virginia Military Institute. A series of books which mark an era in the study of this science, and which, in the words of a well known and accomplished Southern teacher, "are characterized by a felicity of arrangement and simple freshness of style which must ever render them attractive to the young, and which will be used by all who wish to teach Geography as a science, as something to make pupils think, and not merely as an enumeration of dry facts."

Holmes' Readers and Spellers,

By GEORGE F. HOLMES, LL.D., Professor of History and General Literature in the University of Virginia. A series of Readers unequalled in cheapness, excellence, and typographical beauty. They are steadily progressive in character, bright and fresh in their selections of prose and verse, and illustrative of Southern scenes, incidents, and history.

Venable's Arithmetical Series,

By CHARLES S. VENABLE, LL.D., Professor of Mathematics in the University of Virginia. These books are received everywhere by intelligent teachers with the highest satisfaction, as being most admirably adapted for mental drill, as well as for business educations. Their methods, rules, and reasonings are clear, distinct, logical, and comprehensive, and the series is carefully graded throughout

Holmes' History of the United States,

By GEORGE F. HOLMES, LL.D., of the University of Virginia. It is enough to say of this admirable work, interesting, impartial, and truthful, as well as pure and graceful in style, that it is the only History of the United States which is acceptable to Southern teachers and parents. It comes down to the present day.

THE "UNIVERSITY SERIES" OF SCHOOL-BOOKS

COMPRISES, ALSO,

De Vere's French Grammar, Readers, etc.,

By M. SCHELE DEVERE, LL.D., Professor of Modern Languages in the University of Va.

Gildersleeve's Latin Series,

By B. L. GILDERSLEEVE, Ph.D., LL.D., of the University of Virginia.

Carter's Elements of General History,

By Rev. J. P. CARTER, A.M., of Baltimore, Maryland.

Holmes' English Grammars,

By GEORGE F. HOLMES, LL.D., of the University of Virginia.

LeConte's Scientific Series,

By the Professors LECONTE, late of the University of South Carolina.

Johnston's English Classics,

By R. M. JOHNSTON, A.M., late Professor of Rhetoric and Belles-Lettres in the University of Georgia.

To which list other books in other departments will early be added.

Send for our full "ILLUSTRATED DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE, which will be mailed free to any teacher or school officer. Liberal terms given for introduction.

Address

UNIVERSITY PUBLISHING COMPANY,

155 and 157 Crosby Street, New York.

☞ A full supply of "The University Series" always on hand, and teachers and schools supplied by R. J. GARG, Bookseller, 124 Camp St., New Orleans.

And by all prominent booksellers throughout the South.

W. IRVING CLARKE, the General Agent, will furnish any information, and afford every facility to teachers for examining the series. Office—124 CAMP ST., New Orleans. jeb7 ''

ARMSTRONG, CATOR & CO.,

IMPORTERS AND MANUFACTURERS OF

Ribbons, Millinery and Straw Goods,

WHITE GOODS, LINEN LACE AND EMBROIDERY,

Nos. 237 and 239 Baltimore Street,

BALTIMORE, MARYLAND.

Orders promptly attended to se5 3m

ST. CLAIR HOTEL,

BALTIMORE, MARYLAND.

This new and beautiful Hotel is now open to the public. It is located on MONUMENT SQUARE, convenient alike to the business man and the tourist. It is the only Hotel in Baltimore embracing elevator, suits of rooms with baths, and all other conveniences.

To accommodate Merchants, Commercial Travelers and others, the rates will be $2 per day for rooms on the fourth and fifth floors, making the difference on account of the elevator. Ordinary transient rates for lower rooms, $3 per day.

Guests desiring to take advantage of the above rates will please notify the clerk before rooms are assigned. An improved elevator for the use of the guests is constantly running from six A. M. until eleven P. M.

se5 2m HARRY H. FOGLE, Manager.

WIRE RAILING AND ORNAMENTAL WIRE WORKS.

DUFUR & CO.,

No. 36 North Howard St., Baltimore, manufacture Wire Railing for Cemeteries, Balconies, etc.; Sleeves, Fenders, Cages, Sand and Coal Screens, Woven Wire, etc. Also Iron Bedsteads, Chairs, etc. se5 1y

FREE TO BOOK AGENTS

SENT FREE TO AGENTS—A COMPLETE Canvassing Outfit of the PICTORIAL HOME BIBLE, with Bible History, Analysis, Dictionary, Tables and Treatises too numerous to mention; profusely illustrated. The cheapest, excellent all others. Address

WM. FLINT & CO., Atlanta, Ga.,
oc3 3m Philadelphia, Pa., or Cincinnati, O.

SAVE $20.

THE NEW WILSON UNDER-FEED.

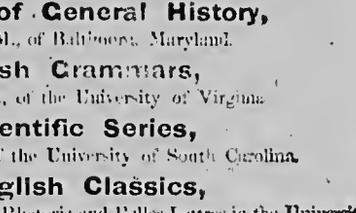
The first and Cheapest First-class Shuttle SEWING MACHINE In the World.

Wm GREGG & Co. General Southern Agents, No. 189 Canal street, New Orleans, La.

Agents Wanted. je27 6m



AGENTS WANTED TO SELL THE

ILLUSTRATED

HISTORY OF THE BIBLE

By Wm. SMITH, LL.D.

AUTHOR OF SMITH'S BIBLE DICTIONARY.

It contains 241 fine Scripture Illustrations and over 1,100 pages, and is the most comprehensive and valuable History of the Bible ever published. The labor and learning of centuries are gathered in this one volume to throw a strong, clear light upon every page of the Inspired Word.

Send for circulars, and see our terms and a full description of the work. Address

NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO.,
274 and 276 Second street,
au1 6m Memphis, Tenn.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

IMPORTANT NEW BOOKS

JUST PUBLISHED BY

HURD & HOUGHTON, NEW YORK.

THE RIVERSIDE PRESS, CAMBRIDGE.

I—A Vigorous Polemic.

THE CITY OF GOD AND THE CHURCH-Makers. An Examination of Structural Christianity, and Criticism of Christian Scribes and Doctors of the Law. By R. Abbey. In one volume, crown 8vo.

Dr. Abbey's book will make a great stir in the religious community, and set old men and young to thinking.

II—Dr. Campbell's Sermons.

SERMONS BY REV. C. D. N. CAMPBELL, D. D. In one vol., crown 8vo, cloth, $1.50.

Dr Campbell is known as a very acceptable preacher, and he will make many new friends by the publication of this volume.

For sale by all booksellers. When no bookseller is at hand, send the price to the publishers, who will mail the books, postage free. oc3 1m

MILLER'S BIBLE AND

PUBLISHING HOUSE.

NEW ILLUSTRATED FAMILY BIBLE.

The cheapest and best Bible published. Large Print, beautiful Bindings, and more than two hundred Engravings.

THE CHRISTIAN HARMONY,

A NEW MUSIC BOOK, BY WM. WALKER,

AUTHOR OF THE SOUTHERN HARMONY.

This Book is printed with New-Shaped Seven-Character Notes, and is preferable to anything of the kind ever before used. Any one can learn to read music and sing in one-fourth the time required by the old methods. It contains the choicest collection of Music, both original and selected, from the best sources; particularly designed for Choirs, Singing Schools and Private Societies.

Specimen pages, with terms, mailed free.

Miller's Bible and Publishing House,
1102 and 1104 Sansom street,
Je27 6m Philadelphia, Penn'a.

THE BEST SUNDAY SCHOOL MUSIC Book will be ready October 1, 1872.

PURE DIAMONDS.

BY JAMES R. MURRAY.

A new Sunday School Music Book, which we predict will become the most popular work of the kind ever published in America. Specimen pages are now ready, and will be sent free to any address.

PURE DIAMONDS will be issued in elegant style, printed on fine white paper, and substantially bound in boards. It will be ready promptly on the first of October, when orders will be filled in rotation. As the demand will be very large, all wishing specimen copies, or an early supply, should send in their orders at once.

PRICE—Bound in boards, 25 cents; $3.60 per dozen; $30 per hundred. A copy in paper covers, for examination, mailed on receipt of 25 cents. Published by

S. BRAINARD'S SONS,
au22 4y Cleveland Ohio.

A POPULAR MUSIC BOOK!

AT A POPULAR PRICE!

"THE SCEPTER,"

By Dr. A. BROOKS EVERETT,

ONLY $1.00.—BY THE DOZEN, $10.50.

"THE SCEPTER" contains a large variety of most valuable material, embracing Hymn-tunes, Anthems, Glees, the "Everett System of Teaching Vocal Music," etc., by the well known professor of music, Dr. A. BROOKS EVERETT, recognized throughout the Southern States as a most successful and popular teacher of the art of singing, as well as the author of many of the most popular tunes contained in the Tabor or Richmond Collection.

"THE SCEPTER"

also contains contributions by Prof. R. M. McIntosh, E. H. Everett, and other well-known composers, as well as a large number of old standard tunes.

☞ Every Choir Leader and Teacher of Music should examine "THE SCEPTER."

Sent post paid, on receipt of $1.

PUBLISHED BY

BILLOW & MAIN, NEW YORK,

SUCCESSORS TO W. B. BRADBURY,

Publishers of the most popular series of SUNDAY SCHOOL SONG BOOKS Golden Chain, Shower and Censer, Fresh Laurels, Bright Jewels, Pure Gold, etc. For sale by Booksellers generally.

A. [illegible] Bigelow & Main are for [illegible] Agents, 112 Camp [illegible] New Orleans. jy18 3m

Uniform Lessons for 1873.

FOR TEACHERS.—The Sunday School Record contains the explanations and studies prepared by Rev. John Hall, D. D., for teachers.

SCHOLARS' PAPER.—With the text of the lesson, and suggestive helps for the study of it; and questions at the foot of each page, to be answered in writing by the scholar.

INTERMEDIATE LESSON PAPER.—Adapted to the use of less advanced scholars, with questions and explanations.

Price of each Lesson Paper of four pages, at the rate of 75 cents per 100 copies for one month, or $9 per 100 copies yearly.

☞ Catalogues of the Society's publications and sample copies of its periodicals furnished gratuitously on application at the Depository of the

AMERICAN SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION,
au1 3m 1122 Chestnut st., Philadelphia.

AGENTS WANTED FOR

SECRETS OF THE CONVENT AND CONFESSIONAL.

BY JULIA M'NAIR WRIGHT.

The most thrilling and powerful book ever written on this subject. It presents a startling array of facts, and contains revelations never before made public.

Send for circulars and terms to

NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO.,
274 and 276 Second street,
au1 6m Memphis, Tenn.

HAVE YOU READ

MARK TWAIN'S

NEW BOOK?

The whole world has awakened to it, and every person who has read it is in some good humored, cheerful mood. 75,000 sold in 90 days, and eight presses running night and day on it to supply the demand. Nothing like it ever known before.

AGENTS WANTED.—Send for circulars, terms, &c. Address NETTLETON & CO., 180 WEST FOURTH STREET, Cincinnati, Ohio.

se21 1y

"In this charming book the author has practically unfolded the plans whereby every one at trifling expense may have a flower garden of their own, indoors and out."

GARDENING BY MYSELF.

BY ANNA WARNER.

12mo. With Illustrations. $1 25.

"Instruction for the various months of the year is given, and all that one wants to know is stated, without dry technicalities, and in a clear and simple style. There is not a home which, even the children, with this little book in hand, might not make more attractive, while educating the heart in a love for the beautiful."

ANSON D. F. RANDOLPH & CO.,
770 Broadway, cor. of Ninth st., N. Y.

Sent by mail, prepaid, on receipt of the price. se19 1m

NEW ORLEANS MARKETS.

(From the New Orleans Price Current.)

The weather has been clear and cool enough for fires. A slight frost was reported in the suburbs on Saturday morning. Our accounts from the country present no new feature, except frosts along the northern belt of the cotton region.

The river is 13 feet 11 inches below high water mark.

COTTON.—The following are the arrivals since the closing instant:

Louisiana and Mississippi	bales.	12,834
Lake	"	68
Mobile	"	3,498
Texas	"	393
Total	"	16,791

On Saturday the demand was quite active, and the sales embraced 5,000 bales. On Monday, with a further advance of ¼c. at New York and of 1-16d. at Liverpool, buyers came forward with still more spirit, and took 6,000 bales (the heaviest business yet this season) at a pretty general advance of ¼c., good ordinary closing at 17¾@18¼c., low middling at 18⅛@18⅞c., middling at 19@19⅛c., strict middling at 19¼@19⅜c., and good middling at 19⅝@19¾c. During the morning, however, sales were made at 18⅛c. for low middling, and 18⅝c. for strict do. On Tuesday, the supply having been greatly reduced by the heavy business of the day previous, less scope was afforded to buyers, and the demand was consequently less active, but the sales, nevertheless, summed up 4,000 bales. In the absence of much competition prices at one time were manifestly easier, and offers were accepted which would have been previously refused; but later in the day factors evinced renewed confidence, and the closing rates showed no falling off from the previous advance. Strict good ordinary to low middling sold at 18⅜c., low middling at 18⅛@18⅝c., strict do. at 18¾c., middling at 19@19⅜c., and good middling at 19¾c.

The receipts proper at this port, since the first of September (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida and Texas,) are 97,710 bales, against 42,556 bales to the same date last year, and the increase in the receipts at all the ports, up to the latest dates, as compared with last year, is 137,409 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries, as compared with the same date last year, there is an increase of 10,369 to Great Britain, of 16,200 to France, and of 1,948 to other foreign ports.

We quote:

Good ordinary	17¾ @ 18¼
Low middling	18¼ @ 18⅝
Middling	19 @ 19⅛
Strict middling	19¼ @ 19⅜
Good middling	19⅝ @ 19¾

COTTON STATEMENT.

Stock on hand Sept. 1, 1872, bales.		6,259
Arrived past three days..	16,791
Arrived previously	107,236—	124,027
		130,286
Exported past three days.	12,463
Exported previously	46,812—	59,275
Stock on hand and on shipboard..		71,011

SUGAR.—Buyers are awaiting receipts of the new crop, the first of which is expected daily, and only a very small retail business is doing at 11c. ₱ lb. for good fair. On Tuesday 25 hhds. white clarified sold, in the sheds, on private terms. The stock in the sheds on Tuesday was 368 hhds. old. City refinery is selling at 11½@12c. for yellow clarified, 13@13½c. for white clarified, 13½c. for crushed, and 14½c. for cut loaf.

MOLASSES.—On Saturday there were no receipts of new, but the last arrivals had sold at 67c. ₱ gallon. On Monday 14 bbls. new sold on private terms, said to be at 65c. ₱ gallon; 4 and 18 bbls. old were received and sold on private terms. On Tuesday 6 bbls. prime new were received and sold at 72½c. ₱ gallon. There is a stock in the sheds of 719 bbls. old.

CORN.—On Tuesday the supply and demand were fair, with sales of 3,500 sacks, in lots, at 63c. for ordinary mixed, 64@65c. for yellow mixed, and 65c. ₱ bushel for white.

OATS.—On Tuesday the supply was good, with a fair demand, and 3,300 sacks were sold, in lots, at 35c. for ordinary St. Louis, 38c. for prime, and 39@40c. for choice. A round lot of choice St. Louis sold at 38c. ₱ bushel.

BRAN.—On Tuesday the supply was good, but the market was dull. Only 100 sacks were sold at $1.12½ ₱ 100 lbs.

PORK.—On Saturday 200 bbls. sold, in several lots, at $16.37½@16.50 ₱ bbl. It is retailing at $16.75 ₱ bbl.

BACON.—On Tuesday the stock was held at the previous prices, but there was no demand at wholesale, though a good retail business was done. 5 casks clear sides sold at 12¾c. ₱ lb.

HAMS.—The sales have been only in a small or job way. On Saturday 15 tierces choice sold at 19c. ₱ lb. On Tuesday 25 tierces choice sugar-cured sold, in lots, at 19c. ₱ lb.

LARD.—There were no sales worthy of note on Saturday and Monday excepting 20 tierces kettle-rendered at 9½c. ₱ lb, and 80 kegs packers' at 11½c.

DRY SALT MEAT.—The stock is small and held by dealers, who are retailing shoulders at 8¼c. ₱ lb. Summer-cured shoulders are quoted at wholesale at 8c., and winter-cured at 7¾c. ₱ lb. On Tuesday 5 tierces shoulders sold on private terms, and 15 boxes clear sides at 10¾c. ₱ lb.

BREAKFAST BACON.—The market is in fair supply and dull.

CORN MEAL.—It is quoted at wholesale at $2.75 in store, and $2.85@3 ₱ bbl. on the landing. Some 300 bbls. sold, in lots on the landing, on Saturday and Monday, at these prices, and 50 bbls. sold, in warehouse, at $2.75 ₱ bbl. On Tuesday there was none on the landing, and the stock in store was very dull at $2.75 ₱ bbl.

MONETARY.

Gold opened on Tuesday at 112¼@112¾ (against 112⅝ at New York,) and closed at 112⅝@112⅞ (against 112¾ at New York.)

In silver we have noticed only retail sales. American half dollars are now quoted at 109@110, and Mexican dollars nominal at 2@5 ₱ cent. premium in gold for new and old.

New Orleans Wholesale Prices.

REVISED AND CORRECTED WEEKLY.

Made up from Actual Sales as they Transpire.

ARTICLES.	FROM	TO
Agricultural Implements:
Cotton scrapers	4 50	6 00
Cotton sweeps	4 50	6 00
Cultivators, Diam. & shovel-tooth	7 75	10 50
Cultivators, riding	45 00	60 00
Cultivators, walking	30 00	35 00
Shovels	7 50	14 50
Spades	7 50	13 50
Axes	10 00	15 00
Potato diggers	13 50	— —
Shovel plows	6 00	7 00
Half do., with cutters	8 00	9 00
Manly's 14, 8 plow	6 00	9 75
Corn mills, Coleman's	120 00	425 00
Bread, ₱ 100 lbs:
Pilot	6 00	7 00
Loaf	— —	— —
Crackers	7 00	8 00
Navy	— —	5 00
Cream crackers	12 00	13 00
Bricks, ₱ M:
Lake	13 00	16 00
English fire	— —	50 00
American fire	40 00	— —
Candles, ₱ lb:
Sperm, New Bedford	33	36
Tallow	16	18
Chocolate, ₱ lb:
Cocoa	38	60
No. 1	50	52
Sweet and spiced	25	— —
Cider, ₱ bbl:
Western	— —	— —
Coal, ₱ ton:
Anthracite	12 50	13 00
Western, ₱ bbl	— —	— —
Corks, ₱ 1000:
Regular	— —	— —
Pointed	— —	— —
Coffee, ₱ lb:
Havana (currency)	— —	— —
Java	25	27
Cordova	— —	— —
Copper, ₱ lb:
Braziers'	45	48
Copper bolts	45	— —
Yellow metal	30	32
Cordage, ₱ lb:
Manilla	19	20
Tarred, American	—	15
Russian	16	— —
Cotton seed:
Rough, ₱ ton	— —	— —
In sacks	— —	14 00
Dyes, ₱ lb:
Logwood, Camp'y	4	4¼
Logwood, St. Domingo	4¼	4½
Fustic, Tampico	5	6
Indigo, ₱ lb	1 40	1 60
Madder	15	18
Eggs, ₱ dozen:
Western	20	25
Feathers, ₱ lb	— —	— —
Fish, ₱ box:
Cod	— —	— —
Herrings	— —	45
Mackerel, No. 1, ₱ bbl	— —	— —
Mackerel, No. 2	— —	— —
Mackerel, No. 3	— —	— —
Flaxseed, ₱ lb	6	— —
Flour, ₱ bbl:
Double extra	6 87½	7 00
Superfine	5 25	5 75
Fine	— —	5 00
Fruit, ₱ lb:
Prunes	8½	9
Currants, new
Almonds, soft shell	— —	19½
Almonds, shelled	— —	30
Glass, ₱ box of 50 feet:
French, 8 by 10	3 50	3 75
French, 10 by 12	3 75	4 00
French, 12 by 18	4 35	4 50
Gunny bags, ₱ bag	— —	— —
Hay, ₱ ton:
Prime	— —	25 00
Choice	— —	28 00
Iron, ₱ ton:
Pig	54 00	55 00
Country bar, ₱ lb	— —	— —
English	5½	7½
Swedes, assorted	6½	8½
Hoop	7	10½
Sheet	7½	8½
Bidler	7¾	8¾
Nail rods	— —	11
Castings, American	— —	6
Lead, ₱ 100 lbs:
Pig	— —	9 50
Bar, ₱ lb	8½	8¾
Sheet	12	— —
Pipe	12	— —
Leather, ₱ lb:
Sole, hemlock	33	34
Sole, oak	40	43
Harness	38	45
Calf skins, ₱ dozen	42 00	70 00
Texas, rough, ₱ lb	24	26
Lime, ₱ bbl:
Western	1 25	1 50
Cement	2 50	3 00
Plaster Paris	4 00	— —
Lumber, ₱ M feet:
Boards, yellow pine	— —	— —
Boards, cypress	— —	— —
Flooring, dressed	— —	— —
Flooring, rough	— —	— —
Ceiling, dressed	— —	— —
Weatherboards, dressed	— —	— —
Weatherboards, rough	— —	— —
Scantling	— —	— —
Shingles, ₱ M	— —	— —
Laths	— —	— —
Moss, ₱ lb:
Country picked	— —	— —
Clean picked	— —	— —
Nails, ₱ keg:
American, 4@6d	5 85	6 00
Wrought, German, ₱ lb	14	16
Wrought, English	14	16
Oils:
Lard, ₱ gallon	70	85
Coal oil, in barrels	31	34
Coal oil, in cases	35	37
Linseed, raw	91	92
Sperm	— —	2 00
Whale, refined	95	1 00
Cotton seed, crude	— —	46
Cotton seed, refined	60	65
Castor	1 65	1 85
Olive, 22@24 oz	6 00	6 50
Olive, 11@12 oz	7 25	— —
Tanner's, ₱ gallon	75	85
Soap, ₱ lb:
Western	— —	— —
Northern	— —	— —
Southern	— —	— —
Castile, genuine	— —	— —
Castile, imitation	— —	— —
Sardines:
Half boxes	34	35½
Quarter boxes	— —	23
Spices, ₱ lb:
Cassia	36	38
Cloves		23
Nutmegs	1 20	1 25
Pepper	21	21½
Pimento	12	12½
Sugar, ₱ lb:
Havana, white	12	13
Havana, yellow	10¾	11½
Havana, brown	10½	11½
Crushed	— —	13½
Pulverized	— —	13½
Teas, ₱ lb:
Imperial	45	1 10
Gunpowder	75	1 50
Hyson	75	1 25
Young Hyson	75	1 10
Oolong	45	1 10
Pouchong	30	50
Tin, ₱ box:
Block	— —	— —
Ia plates, I. X	19 00	19 25
In plates, I. C	16 50	16 75
Leaded plates, I. X	17 25	17 50
Leaded plates, I. C	15 00	15 25

CATTLE MARKET.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 15, 1872.

Texas beeves, choice, ₱ head	$— —	@	50 00
Texas beeves, 1st qual, ₱ head	35 00	@	45 00
Texas cattle, 2d qual, ₱ head	20 00	@	28 00
Texas cattle, 3d qual, ₱ head	15 00	@	18 00
Western beeves, ₱ lb, net	— —	@	— —
Hogs, ₱ lb, gross	6	@	7½
Sheep, first quality, ₱ head	5 00	@	6 00
Sheep, second qual., ₱ head	3 00	@	4 00
Sheep, third quality, ₱ head	2 00	@	2 50
Milch cows, choice, ₱ head	80 00	@	100 00
Milch cows, ₱ head	50 00	@	80 00
Texas cows, with calves	— —	@	— —
Calves, ₱ head	7 00	@	10 00
Yearlings, ₱ head	8 00	@	12 00

Special Notices.

Appointments for Preaching in Selma District, Alabama Conference.

On my last round I will preach as follows: Linden, Oct. 9, 10; Shiloh, Oct. 12, 13; Wesley chapel, Oct. 15; Ar Monni, Oct 16; Mt. Andrew, Oct. 18, 19, 20; Bashi, Nov. 1, 2, 3; Dayton, Nov. 7, 8, 9, 10; McKinley, Nov. 12; Center chapel, Nov. 14, 15, 16, 17; Jackson, Nov. 22; Grove Hill, Nov. 23, 24; Union, Nov 26.

Bro. Wade will please meet me at Jackson. Bro Thames will meet me at Union church, and I will fill any appointments he may make up to his quarterly meeting. The first week in December I propose to spend at Gainestown.

Dear brethren, the Lord has thus far greatly blessed your labors in the conversion of many souls. Let us earnestly pray for his presence at these appointments, and for a greater outpouring of the Spirit upon us and our people; and to him be all the glory.

A. J. BRIGGS, P. E.

Appointments for Quarterly Meetings.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

VICKSBURG DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

North Warren, Milldale and Cane Ridge, at Oak Ridge	Oct. 5, 6
South Warren, at Bovina	12, 13
Cayuga, at Rives' chapel	19, 20
Port Gibson	26, 27
Clover Hill, at Clover Hill	Nov. 2, 3
Rolling Fork, at Rolling Fork	9, 10
Fayette, at Fayette	16, 17
Natchez	23, 24
Kingston, at Washington	30, Dec. 1
Vicksburg and City mission	Dec. 7, 8

JOHN A. B. JONES, P. E., Port Gibson, Miss.

JACKSON DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Sharon circuit, at Sharon	Oct. 5, 6
Yazoo circuit, at Locust Grove	12, 13
Yazoo City and Silver Creek, at Yazoo City	19, 20
Mount Olivet circuit and Yazoo mission, at Mount Olivet	26, 27
Carthage circuit	Nov. 2, 3
Sulphur Springs circuit	9, 10
Raymond circuit, at Raymond	16, 17
Brownsville ct., at Queen's Hill	23, 24
Camden and Thomastown circuits	30, Dec. 1

The secretaries of Church Conferences will please present the report of statistics, as required by the Discipline, pages 55 and 56. The trustees of our church property will please make their report, as required by the Discipline, pages 55 and 102.

H. H. MONTGOMERY, P. E.

SUMMIT DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Sacramental meeting, at Port Vicksburg	Oct. 12, 13
Holmesville circuit, at Holmesville	19, 20
Covington circuit, at Spring Hill	26, 27
Amite City circuit, at Amite City	Nov. 2, 3
Franklinton circuit, at Warn r's	9, 10
Big Creek miss., at Shilling church	16, 17
St. Helena ct., at Center church	23, 24
Pontchatoula mission, at Joyner's church	30, Dec. 1
Greenburg ct., at Pipkin chapel	Dec. 7, 8

J. NICHOLSON, P. E.

BROOKHAVEN DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Scotland circuit, at Caseyville	Oct. 5, 6
Pleasant Valley ct., at Rehoboth	12, 13
Burtonton circuit, at Pisgah	19, 20
Beauregard	26, 27
Georgetown ct., at Pleas't Grove	Nov. 2, 3
Jackson circuit, at Spring Ridge	9, 10
Crystal Springs and Crystal Springs mission	16, 17
Bogue Chitto circuit, at Johnson's Station	23, 24
Brookhaven station and Brookhaven mission	30
Hazlehurst station	Dec. 7, 8

Secretaries of the respective Boards of Stewards will prepare a financial statement for the use of the Joint Board, as required by the Discipline. Trustees will report the condition and character of titles of all property they hold for the church.

W. E. M. LINFIELD, P. E.

BRANDON DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Hillsboro circuit	Oct. 5, 6
Philadelphia circuit	12, 13
Decatur mission	19, 20
Lake circuit	26, 27
Trenton circuit	Nov. 2, 3
Raleigh and Morton circuit	9, 10
Forest circuit	16, 17
Taylorsville mission	23, 24
Garlandsville circuit	30, Dec 1
Brandon circuit	Dec. 7, 8

F. M. WILLIAMS, P. E.

WOODVILLE DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Woodville	Oct. 5, 6
East Feliciana	12, 13
Clinton	19, 20
Buffalo	26, 27
Bayou Sara	Nov. 2, 3
Wilkinson	9, 10
Meadville	16, 17
Amite	23, 24
East Baton Rouge	30, Dec. 1
Jackson	Dec. 8, 9

For four long weeks I have been confined to the room of my afflicted wife, so that I have missed three of my appointments; but my dear brother, President Andrews, has and will supply my lack of service.

J. L. FORSYTH, P. E.

MERIDIAN DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

DeKalb ct., at New Hope (camp meeting)	Oct. 5, 6
Wayne circuit, at Frost's Bridge (camp meeting)	12, 13
Paulding circuit	19, 20
Enterprise station	26, 27
Clarke circuit	Nov. 2, 3
Enterprise ct., at Pleasant Valley	9, 10
Marion circuit	16, 17
Meridian station	30, Dec. 1

WM. B. HINES, P. E.

SEASHORE DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND

Green mission	Oct. 5, 6
East Pascagoula, at Salem camp ground	12, 13
Enon, at Enon	19, 20
Rankin	Nov. 30, Dec. 1

C. F. GILLASPIE, P. E.

ALABAMA CONFERENCE.

UNION SPRINGS DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Brundidge circuit, at Williams'	Oct. 5, 6
Union circuit, at Line Creek	12, 13
Union Springs station	19, 20
Pine Level circuit, at Orion	23, 24
Troy and Brundidge station, at Brundidge	26, 27
Ohnstee circuit, at Shady Grove	30, 31
Rocky Mount ct., at Rocky Mount	Nov. 2, 3
Ruledge circuit, at Ruledge	9, 10
Elba circuit, at Oak Grove	12, 13
Fort Deposit ct., at Tabernacle	16, 17
Greenville circuit, at Mount Nebo	23, 24
Greenville station	30, Dec. 1
Troy ct., at North Wesley chapel	Dec. 7, 8

The preachers will please attend to their collections and the statistics. Stewards are earnestly requested to try to bring up the assessments. Trustees will not forget to be ready with their reports. A full attendance is solicited.

J. W. SHORES, P. E.

EUFAULA DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Eufaula	Oct. 5, 6
Villula	12, 13
Glennville	19, 20
Beulah	26, 27
Enon and Midway	Nov. 2, 3
Perote	9, 10
Clayton and Louisville	16, 17
Choctawhatchie	23, 24
Lawrenceville	30, Dec. 1
Chunnennehie	Dec. 7, 8

JAS. L. COTTEN, P. E.

SELMA DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Selma station	Oct. 5, 6
Benbert Hills circuit, at Shiloh	12, 13
Peachtree ct., at Mount Andrew	19, 20
Summerfield station	26, 27
Choctaw Corner circuit, at Bashi	Nov. 2, 3
Dayton and Spring Hill circuit, at Dayton	9, 10
Linden and Flatwoods mission
Orrville circuit, at Center chapel	16, 17
Jackson circuit, at Grove Hill	23, 24
Suggsville circuit, at Gainstown	30, Dec. 1

We hope for a full attendance, and complete reports, as required by the Discipline. Those who have subscribed to the district parsonage will please bring or send up their contributions to the quarterly meetings.

A. J. BRIGGS, P. E.

DEMOPOLIS DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Cuba, at Cuba	Oct. 12, 13
Gainesville, at Gainesville	19, 20
Forkland, at Forkland	26, 27
Demopolis	Nov. 2, 3
Butler, at Mount Sterling	9, 10
Gaston, at Bethel	16, 17
Bladen Springs, at Bethel	23, 24

Preachers in charge will please have ready full statistical reports; stewards will make faithful efforts to bring up their finances, so as to meet the assessments; and trustees will be ready to give a clear statement of the condition of the property in their charges.

S. H. COX, P. E.

MOBILE DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Grand Bay mission, at Pleasant Valley	Oct. 5, 6
Citronelle circuit, at Citronelle	19, 20
St. Stephen's ct., at Pine Grove	20, 27
Franklin street	Nov. 2, 3
Pollard circuit, at Hendrick's	9, 10
Milton	16, 17
Pensacola	23, 24
St. Francis street	Dec. 1

The stewards, trustees and preachers will be ready with their reports, as the Discipline requires. They will please read and refresh their memories.

H. URQUHART, P. E.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

NEW ORLEANS DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Carondelet street	Oct 6
Moreau street	13
Louisiana avenue	20
Cadiz street	27
Chapmeline	Nov. 3
Algiers	10
Thibodaux	17
German charges	24
German charges	Dec. 1
Felicity street	8
Houma	22
Baton Rouge	29

LINUS PARKER, P. E.

SHREVEPORT DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Caddo circuit	Nov. 9, 10
Pleasant Hill circuit	16, 17
Anacoco circuit	23, 24
Keachie circuit	30, Dec. 1
Manny circuit	Dec. 7, 8
Springville circuit	14, 15
Shreveport station	21, 22
Mansfield station	28, 29

JOHN PIPES, P. E.

ALEXANDRIA DIST.—FOURTH ROUND

Centerville mission	Oct. 19, 20
Columbia circuit	26, 27
Spring Creek and Bayou Bœuf cis.	Nov. 2, 3
Trinity, at White Ridge	9, 10
Evergreen and Big Cane	16, 17
Atlanta	23, 24
Rapides circuit	30, Dec. 1

FRED. WHITE, P. E.

LAKE PROVIDENCE DIS.—FOURTH ROUND

Westley and Jordan, at Westley	Oct. 19, 20
Waterproof, at Waterproof	26, 27
Oak Ridge and Prairie Mer Rouge	Nov. 2, 3
Lake Providence, at Lake Providence	7-10
Floyd and Delhi, at Floyd	16, 17
Oak Grove, at Smith's chapel	23, 24
Lum Grove, at Bartholomew	30, Dec. 1
Shelly Island, at Shelly Island	Dec. 7, 8
Winnsboro, at Magnolia	14, 15
Rayville, at Rayville	21, 22
Bastrop, at Bastrop	28, 29

The brethren will please remember that this is the fourth and last quarter. Boards of stewards will please be prepared for a full settlement of all financial obligations. Boards of trustees will be prepared to make their annual report. Pastors will be prepared with full quarterly and statistical reports.

J. T. DAVES, P. E.

OPELOUSAS DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND

Lake Charles	Oct. 5, 6
Cheneston	12, 13
Sugartown	19, 20
Bayou Bœuf	26, 27
Kimball chapel	Nov. 2, 3
Vermilionville	9, 10
Abbeville	16, 17
New Iberia	23, 24

B. F. WHITE, P. E.
Postoffice—Opelousas, La.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

YAZOO DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Abala circuit, at Pleasant Hill	Oct 5, 6
Winona circuit, at Bethesda	12, 13
Greenwood and McNutt, at Greenwood	19, 20
Lexington	26, 27
Durant, at West's station	Nov. 2, 3
Koschusko and Bethel, at Koschusko	9, 10
Black Hawk, at Sweetwater	16, 17

W. P. BARTON, P. E.

N. B.—Camp meetings at Liberty and Durant quarterly meetings.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THIRD EDITION.

GOD WITH US,

Or the Person and Work of Christ, with an Examination of the "Vicarious Sacrifice" of Dr. Bushnell. By Alvah Hovey, D. D., president of Newton Theological Seminary. 12mo. cloth, $1 50.

CONTENTS.—Part I.—The Person of Christ. The Deity of Christ. The Humanity of Christ. The Unity of Christ.

Part II.—The Atonement as Related to God. The Atonement as Related to Man.

Part III.—"The Vicarious Sacrifice" of Dr Bushnell. The Fundamental Principles of the Work. The Interpretation of the Language of Scripture, etc.

A thorough, interesting and very timely work.

Dr. W. R. Williams, of New York, writes to the publishers:

"I have read carefully throughout the work of Dr. Hovey, 'God With Us.' It seems to me a clear succinct and admirably cogent book; well timed, and not easily answered."

Dr. Caldwell, of Providence, Rhode Island, writes:

"I have just been reading Dr. Hovey's 'God With Us,' and with the greatest interest. The treatment of the subject is very fr. just, clear, and will relieve many minds obscured by speculations on the subject. The style is remarkably vivid and animated for a theological treatise. It is the best of Dr. Hovey's works."

A CHOICE BOOK.—SECOND EDITION.

IN CHRIST,

Or the Believer's Union with his Lord. By Rev. A. J. Gordon, pastor of the Clarendon Street Church, Boston. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

A volume full of the "seeds of things," fresh, vigorous and instructive. To those "looking unto Jesus" this volume will be intensely interesting, and prove refreshing as "water to a thirsty soul."

The Sunday Courier says: "This book comes well up to its divine theme. We do not remember, since Thomas a'Kempis, a book so thoroughly imbued with great personal love of Christ, and such longing desire to bring men into the love of our Lord and Master as this. * * * This book has, beside its spiritual beauty, great literary merit. It is written in that full, rich old style which once was common among good divines, but now is unhappily so rare anywhere."

The Boston Globe says: "It is really a book of 'vital' religion, and which is at the same time 'sound' in doctrine. We make the distinction, because doctrinal soundness is often accompanied with spiritual dryness. Mr. Gordon is all alive. He is intensely 'orthodox,' but he is also intensely human. As a writer he is both fervid and pointed."

Published by

GOULD & LINCOLN,

59 Washington street, Boston.

For sale by

ROBERT J. HARP,
New Orleans.

oc3 2naow

DRY GOODS—CLOTHING.

D. H. HOLMES,

155.....CANAL STREET.....155

—AND—

15.....BOURBON STREET.....15

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALER

—IN—

ALL DESCRIPTIONS

—OF—

DRY GOODS,

—SUCH AS—

SILKS, TISSUES, EMBROIDERIES, LACES, SHAWLS, CLOAKS, MADE SUITS, ETC.

The attention of the public is respectfully called to our stock, which will be found most complete, embracing every kind of Fancy and Staple Goods.

ap25 6m

W. H. PIERSON. E. L. HEWS.

PIERSON & HEWS,

DEALERS IN

Fine Clothing & Furnishing Goods,

NOS. 13 AND 15 CAMP STREET,

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

feb15 1y

STEAMSHIPS.

FOR NEW YORK.

The Cromwell New York and New Orleans Steamship Line.

Steamers of this Line leave New Orleans for New York EVERY SATURDAY at 5 P. M.

Cabin passage $50 00
Steerage passage 25 00

Through bills of lading to foreign and coastwise ports issued.

ALFRED MOULTON,
41 Carondelet street.

mh21 1y

FOR NEW YORK.

MERCHANTS' STEAMSHIP LINE.

Sailing from New York and New Orleans EVERY SATURDAY.

Cabin passage $50 00
Steerage passage 25 00

Through tickets to Liverpool and the Continent.

New Orleans wharf, foot of Jefferson street. New York wharf, Pier No 4, North river.

JOHN H. LUDWIGSEN, Agent,
No. 190 Common street.

feb8 1y

MISCELLANEOUS.

LOOK TO YOUR CHILDREN.

The Great Soothing Remedy!

MRS. WHITCOMB'S SIRUP. Cures Colic and Griping in the Bowels, and in flimites the process of Teething. Subdues Convulsions and overcomes all diseases incident to Infants and Children. PRICE, 25 CENTS.

MRS. WHITCOMB'S SIRUP. Cures Diarrhea, Dysentery and Summer Complaint in Children of all ages. Relieves pain, weakness or exhaustion in 15 or 20 minutes, giving tone and power to the system. PRICE, 25 CENTS.

It is the Infants' and Children's great Soothing Remedy in all disorders brought on by teething or any other cause.

Be particular to call for MRS. WHITCOMB'S SIRUP, and take no other.

Prepared by the GRAFTON MEDICINE CO., St. Louis, Mo. Sold by druggists and dealers in medicine everywhere. jy25 1yeow

BUY ME AND I'LL DO YOU GOOD

DR. HENRY'S ROOT & PLANT PILLS.

By cleansing the blood and arousing the liver and secretive organs to a healthy action, Dr. Henry's Root and Plant Pills cure many complaints which it would not be supposed they could reach, such as Headache, Pain in the Side, Numbness of the Hands and Feet, Dullness, Chilliness, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Loss of Appetite, Billions Dysentery, Kidney Affections, Constipation, Debility, Fevers of all kinds, Dyspepsia, Jaundice, and other kindred complaints arising from a low state of the body, or obstruction of its functions.

Being free from mercury and other poisons, they can be taken at all times and under all circumstances, without regard to diet, business or pleasure.

They stimulate the weakened and distempered parts into healthy action, giving them strength to disburden themselves and throw off the obstructions which are the first cause of disease, without producing either nausea or griping.

All heavy and drowsy sensations, which are the forerunners of direful diseases, such as Apoplexy, Paralytic Strokes, etc., are effectually warded off by a few doses of these searching Pills.

Full directions around each box, in English, German, French and Spanish. Price, 25 Cents a Box.

Prepared by the GRAFTON MEDICINE CO., St. Louis, Mo. Sold by druggists and dealers in medicine everywhere. jy25 1yeow

$5 TO $20 per Day.—Agents Wanted. All classes of working people, of either sex, young or old, make more money at work for us in their spare moments, or all the time, than at anything else. Particulars free. Address G. STINSON & CO., Portland, Maine. se12 1y

MEDICAL.

DR. D. JAYNE'S ALTERATIVE

WILL

BUILD UP THE SYSTEM,

PURIFY THE BLOOD,

AND

EXCITE THE ABSORBENTS TO

HEALTHY ACTION.

DR. D. JAYNE'S ALTERATIVE

IS A STANDARD MEDICINE:

a compound of those articles which long experience has proven to possess the most safe and efficient alterative and deobstruent properties, and containing no conceded poisons, no mercurial or other metallic preparations. Having before us the testimonials of thousands of persons who have been restored to sound health from disease, it is recommended to the afflicted with entire confidence as to its ability to effectually eradicate from the human system the diseases for whose cure it is designed.

For Purifying the Blood

the Alterative will be found to be a most effective medicine. Acting directly on the circulation, it purifies the blood, and passes with it into every tissue and fiber of the body, removing every particle of disease from the system.

FOR SCROFULA IN ALL ITS FORMS,

whether Ulcerations of the Flesh or Bones, Enlargement of the Joints, Glands, Swellings, Eruptions, Tumors, etc., the Alterative has been found pre-eminently successful. By its action on the blood it destroys the virus or poisonous principle from which these diseases originate.

FOR SKIN DISEASES,

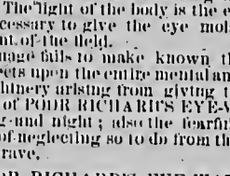
the immediate cause of which will always be found to be an obstructed state of the pores, JAYNE'S ALTERATIVE is a certain remedy. It not only removes the obstinate state of the pores, but it frees the blood and perspiration from all impurities and gross particles, which are so liable to obstruct the small perspiratory organs.

All Dr. D. Jayne & Son's Family Medicines are sold by our Agents in New Orleans,

E. J. HART & Co., 73 Tchoupitoulas St., and by Druggists and Dealers everywhere.

ae5 2m.

MRS. M. G. BROWN'S



CELEBRATED

POOR RICHARD'S

EYE-WATER

derives its name from Benjamin Franklin's Almanac, which is immortal for its philosophical sayings, one of which is: "An ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure."

Living the Eyes a drink, morning and night, of

POOR RICHARD'S EYE-WATER

would prevent every disease which attacks the human body, thus lengthening life to an indefinite period.

The Body is of the Earth, and the Eye is a Plant, which requires moisture.

The dust received into the eyes daily works itself into mortar, which clogs the machinery of the head, and closes up the eight thousand tubes and glands around the eyes; the balls contract and sink; they grow to the sockets, and consequently the revolving power is impeded. This is what causes the bloodstreaks, the dark greenish color of the balls, and scum.

When the eyes are neglected the entire machinery of the face becomes distorted; even the countenance is changed. How true: "The light of the body is the eye." It is as necessary to give the eye moisture as any plant of the field.

Language fails to make known the salutary effects upon the entire mental and physical machinery arising from giving the eyes a drink of POOR RICHARD'

The Christian Advocate.

PUBLISHED BY ROBT. J. HARP, FOR THE ALABAMA, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES, METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH SOUTH.

VOL. XVIII. NEW ORLEANS, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 24, 1872. NO. 43.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

DOMESTIC.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Oct. 16.—The State election to-day was exceedingly quiet. No conclusive returns are in, but the probabilities are that Moses and the regular Republican ticket is elected by a large majority.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Hon. Caleb Cushing, who has arrived here, expresses himself eminently satisfied with the result at Geneva. He says the counterbalancing claims will not reach $2,000,000. The records of the commission, as printed, make twenty-five volumes.

BUFFALO, Oct. 19.—The Canada horse epidemic is prevailing to an alarming extent among the horses in this city.

CHARLESTON, Oct. 20.—The new constitution forbidding an increase of the State debt, except for ordinary current expenses, without submitting the same to a vote of the people, has been adopted. A two-thirds vote authorizes an increase of debt.

CLEBURNE, Oct. 19, via Waco, Texas, Oct. 20.—A gentleman just from Granberry reports that about one hundred Indians made a dash into Hood county, and attacked a camp of emigrants about five miles from Granberry, killing four men, six women, and from twelve to fifteen children, and wounding many others.

This is the boldest raid the Indians have made for a long time, as Granberry has generally been considered safe.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—During the past week the wife of the Hon. Horace Greeley has been lying at the point of death; she can survive but a few days. Mr. Greeley constantly remains at her side, and cannot meet the demands for his presence in various sections of the country.

SHREVEPORT, Oct. 22.—Work has been commenced on all three divisions of the Texas Pacific railroad, from Dallas east, from Sherman east, and from Longview west. The offices of the company at Marshall have been completed, and work on machine shops at the same place commenced. Supplies and material for the road are being delivered at Dallas and Sherman. Locomotives, machinery and other materials for the east end of the road are lying at the mouth of Red river, waiting for high water.

BOSTON, Oct. 22.—The Canada horse disease has made its appearance here, but as yet no fatal cases have occurred.

BUFFALO, Oct. 22.—The horse disease has become a public calamity. Many branches of business have been stopped. The street railroads are running only half their usual number of cars, and the omnibuses are entirely suspended. The canal horses, which were exempt until to-day, are now afflicted. Commercial men are alarmed.

FOREIGN.

BERLIN, Oct. 11.—A fleet of five men-of-war is now fitting out for a cruise around the world. The expedition will be under the command of Admiral Werner. The fleet sails directly for the West Indies, and thence will proceed to New Orleans and other ports in the United States.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—A dispatch from the East announces that the railway between Yokohama and Yeddo, Japan, has been formally opened by the Mikado.

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 16.—Five thousand laborers on the steamship docks in this city are on a strike.

MADRID, Oct. 17.—The end of the revolt in Ferrol is officially announced. The insurgents, fearing the result of an attack, began to disperse during the night, which was dark and stormy. Some took refuge on board the vessels they had seized and sailed for Leigo. Others fled through town under the fire of the troops, and about one hundred were captured. The government forces this morning entered the arsenal, meeting no resistance. Four hundred insurgents remained within the walls, of whom nearly all were taken prisoners.

PARIS, Oct. 19.—Charles Sumner visited Gambetta yesterday. During the conversation between them Mr. Sumner expressed his warmest sympathy for the French republic, but regretted the want of sincere religion in the French.

Gambetta was deeply impressed by the eloquence of Mr. Sumner.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—The Rev. Mr. Purchas, a prominent Ritualist of Brighton, who was tried and condemned last year by the Ecclesiastical Council of the Established Church, died to-day.

GENEVA, October 21.—Rev. Jean Henri Merle D'Aubigne, the celebrated historian of the Reformation, died suddenly to-day, in this city, aged seventy-six years.

MANAM, Oct. 21.—The insurgents fled from Ferrol in all directions. Five hundred were captured.

LONNON, Oct. 22.—Miss Agnes Livingstone, daughter of Dr. Livingstone, has published a letter from her father, in which he says: "I have written two letters to Mr. Bennett. I meant to keep matters to myself, but because the expedition was an expense, I gave Stanley what would help him to write a book Americans are good and generous friends."

LONGSHOREMEN'S STRIKE.

A great deal of excitement prevailed along the levee yesterday morning, growing out of a strike among the levee laborers for $4 per day. At different points squads assembled from one hundred to two hundred strong, and marching up and down the levee, led by bands of music, in such an array as suggested a thorough organization, and by use of threats stopped those who were at work from their duties, compelling them to unite in the demand for advanced wages.

It appears the action of the strikers was the result of a concerted movement, which had been banking up for months. The laborers or longshoremen work in gangs, under the control of contractors or stevedores—men who contract to do the loading and unloading of steamboats and ships.

About twelve o'clock a disturbance occurred at the head of Philip street, where a large number of strikers attempted to stop men from work, who were engaged in loading barge No. 34 of the Mississippi Valley Transportation Company. The rioters were ordered away by Captain Joseph W. Barnes, the stevedore of the company, when they threatened him with personal violence, upon which Captain Barnes picked up a hatchet with which to defend himself, remarking at the same time that he would brain the first man who came on board. At this several pistol shots were fired and a fearful avalanche of stones thrown, in the course of which Captain Barnes fell severely wounded. He died shortly afterward, and was removed to his residence, corner of Third and Rousseau, where Coroner Creagh held an inquest, and it was ascertained that he had been shot through the arm, near the shoulder, and that death was caused by a blow from one of the stones striking him over the eye and fracturing his skull.

White men "long shore" were shy of such a procession, though many of them were seen in it. It was astonishing that so many men with such an object committed no depredations. Indeed, there was a fear that such would be the case, but, saving the robbery of a stone-pile, the catching up of hoop-poles, no other acts of the kind usually committed by mobs occurred.

In the afternoon all excitement had subsided, and things on the levee wore their wonted look and jogged along as usual, excepting that the men were at work for $4 a day.

There is an impression that "the end is not yet," and that another day may bring forth other and more important developments.—Picayune, October 18.

FIRE IN NEW ORLEANS.

A very disastrous fire broke out about nine o'clock on the night of October 21, in the second story of the four-story brick building, No. 60 Camp street, occupied as a stationery establishment by Mr. F. J. Kuhnholz. The fire is supposed to have had accidental origin, and spread with fearful rapidity to the upper and lower stories, which were in a short while completely enveloped in flames.

The store of Messrs. Stetson & Armstrong, stationers, at No. 58 Camp street; that of Messrs. J. P. Cross & Co., of the Septoline Oil Company, No. 62 Camp, and the Picayune office building, No. 64 Camp, were seriously threatened, and apprehensions were entertained for awhile that they would all fall a prey to the devouring element.

Mr. Kuhnholz lost all but about $2,000 worth of his stock, and his loss is put at $15,000, upon which there was only a partial insurance. The building belonged to parties living in France, and was insured in local companies. The bare walls are all that now remain of it. Damage to the building, $10,000.

The adjoining buildings, occupied by J. P. Cross & Co., and Stetson & Armstrong, with the stocks which they contained, were injured to the extent of $7,000.

FROM THE WORK.

GRAND CHENIER.—Mr. Editor: Bro. Worley and myself have just closed a quarterly meeting at Grand Chenier, resulting in sixty-five additions to the church. A fine revival has been experienced at Abbeville, resulting in over twenty accessions. This meeting was held by Bros. Hollister, Isbell, Hoffpaver and T. B. White. We are now engaged in an interesting meeting at this place; already some valuable accessions. The work thus far has resulted in an unusual number of prominent men uniting with the church.

B. F. WHITE.

LAKE CHARLES, LA., Oct. 5, 1872.

ELMORE CIRCUIT, ALABAMA CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: We have recently closed six very interesting protracted meetings on this circuit, which resulted in a general revival of the church, forty-four accessions and over fifty conversions. At one meeting seventeen were added to the church and twenty-three professed conversion. Some have joined other churches. We were assisted by Bros. M. C. Turrentine and A. M. Jones, of the Conference, at one meeting, and some of the local brethren, all of whom rendered efficient aid. But to the Lord belongeth all the praise, now and forever.

R. H. ROGERS.

OCTOBER 16, 1872.

CALCASIEU MISSION.—Mr. Editor: The Lord has visited us in a gracious manner. I held a two-days' meeting at Rino chapel on the fourteenth and fifteenth instant. Twenty-two united with the church, mostly young men. I never witnessed a more powerful feeling generally. One young man fell from his seat in the congregation as if he had been shot. The church was greatly revived. A revival spirit is prevailing throughout the circuit, and we are looking confidently for a more powerful outpouring of the Holy Spirit. The people are preparing for protracted meetings all round the circuit. We expect to make a yet more favorable report before our work shall have closed this year.

J. W. WILLIAMS, P. C.

SEPTEMBER 22, 1872.

OUACHITA DISTRICT.—Mr. Editor: We are now closing the third round of quarterly meetings, which have been almost a continued season of revival. Since the District Conference there have been nearly one hundred conversions, a large proportion of which have joined the Methodist Episcopal Church South. We have just closed a camp meeting at Indian Village, for Castor circuit, numbering forty conversions and twenty-one accessions. There is one circumstance worthy of note, which varies from the usual results on the Sabbath on similar occasions. Although there had been some bad behavior on the ground on Saturday night, the entire services of the Sabbath were signalized with great victory for the glorious gospel and the institutions of the church.—There were conversions at eight o'clock A. M., eleven o'clock A. M. and three o'clock P. M. At night we administered the sacrament of the Lord's Supper, which was the grand triumph of the day. As the Savior triumphed over sin in shedding his blood on Mount Calvary, in that same proportion was the victory, as the members through faith partook of the emblems, and as sinners saw the need of that blood and repented, and as penitents through faith in the atoning blood realized that it was shed for them. At the close of the services twenty came forward and testified that during the present and the preceding services of the day God, for Christ's sake, had graciously pardoned their sins. We thank God for the return of camp meeting days.

S. S. SCOTT.

MONROE, Oct. 9, 1872.

ST. STEPHEN'S AND WASHINGTON MISSION, ALABAMA CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: When I entered this work, assigned me by the Bishop, I wept over it, feeling my inability to do justice to such a large field of labor, which was in part owing to the high waters and the low state of my health at that time. In the strength of the Lord I went to work, wept, preached and prayed, though I saw and felt but little spiritual influence up to our third Quarterly Conference, at which time our excellent presiding elder, H. Urquhart, that holy man of God, preached in the spirit and demonstration of the truths of the gospel, and the Spirit carried the words to the hearts of the hearers, and some found peace in believing in the Lord Jesus Christ. This was the beginning of better times, and I am still holding protracted meetings on different parts of the work, and the holy influence has widened and spread until it has swept almost this whole country. Up to this time we have received into the church ninety-one members. To God be all the praise! Amen.

I am now taking up Conference collection; but alas! these good people, whose hearts are open to the glorious cause, will fail to meet the claims of the church, which is owing principally to the overflow of the Tombigbee and some of its tributaries, which spread largely over many beautiful farms, and, like some of Pharaoh's plagues, left but little behind. The few small cotton crops that were not exposed to the overflow are greatly injured by the worm. Our sympathies are much excited for these dear people; yet we can truly say, in the language of the Psalmist, we have never seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed begging bread. R. F. PENDUE.

ST. STEPHEN'S, ALA., Oct. 11, 1872.

MANSFIELD DISTRICT CONFERENCE, LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: At our last District Conference a committee was appointed to select and secure a suitable place for a district camp ground, at which the Shreveport District Conference should be held in 1872. After consultation they found it impracticable, and according to their arrangement the conference met at Keachie on Thursday, September 26, 1872.

Rev. A. Williams, on missions, reported an increase in the aggressive spirit of the church and one actual missionary in the field—Rev. William Liezer—who has commenced a work among the Germans in Shreveport, even working with his own hands to secure a lot for the church.

Rev. C. W. Carter, on education, presented a report hopeful, and to which were supplemented resolutions setting forth the merits and claims of Homer, Centenary and Mansfield Female Colleges. Pierce and Paine College, at Pleasant Hill, is in a languishing condition, not from mismanagement, but from the great misfortune of having lost its principal building by fire during the last Conference year.

Rev. R. Parvin, being the Dept. G. W. A. D. of the Temperance Reform of Louisiana, of course reported on temperance. Many of the whisky dealers have given up their craft, and are engaging in more just and righteous pursuits. The membership of the church are recognizing the benefit accruing from the use of cold water as a beverage.

Rev. C. B. Stuart, B. F. Spearman and Dr. J. S. Benzley reported on finances. The sifting of the district on this subject was complete. Only about one-half the assessments are paid to date. The committee submitted the individual assessment plan as the best for raising money, and this was adopted and recommended to all the stewards and churches on the various charges.

Rev. William D. Stayton, on books and periodicals, reported as follows: NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATES taken on the district, 331; Nashville, 34; Family Friends, 50; Quarterly Reviews, 12; and a scattering of other religious papers. The people are not supplied with books, especially the old standard "leather-backed theology," partly from two considerations: First. The people are not so apt readers as formerly. Second. They can get cheaper books, and the preachers can get better terms elsewhere than they can at the Publishing House in Nashville.

Rev. John Wilkinson, on Sabbath schools, reported 19 Sunday schools, 860 children attending; volumes in library, 2,020; number of periodicals taken, 301—a good improvement on last year. The report impresses the necessity of laboring specially for the conversion of the children.

Revs. H. L. Smith and J. R. Hampton, and Edward Rencher reported 18 churches, valued at $23,500, and 4 parsonages, valued at $10,900. This is an increase of $5,700 in the value of church property on last year, notwithstanding the loss of Greenwood church by fire since the last conference.

Rev. J. M. Franklin reported on the spiritual condition of the work. Gracious revivals have been going on in the camp, protracted, monthly and social meetings of the church, especially where the sacrament has been faithfully administered and the children baptized. Considerable interest on the subject of camp meetings is manifested. New grounds have been and are being established.

By resolution the preachers are to preach specially on the subject of infant baptism before each church.

Rev. C. B. Stuart, B. F. Spearman, Dr. J. S. Beazley and J. B. Cassidy were elected lay delegates to the Annual Conference, and H. A. Perryman and George Simpson alternates.

The District Conference memorializes the Louisiana Annual Conference to change its law upon the subject of composing the district meeting, requesting that it shall consist of one representative from each congregation and two from each Quarterly Conference on the district.

The establishment of a district camp ground on the Pacific railroad, eight or ten miles west of Shreveport, was provided for by appointing a committee of four zealous laymen, who, headed by our determined brother, John Wilkinson, will provide for this feast of the tabernacles. The next session of the conference will be held at Shreveport, just before, in order to finish business and adjourn to the camp ground in time for the meeting. This is the best compromise yet upon the subject of District Conference camp meetings.

The preaching was equal to the occasion, and the subjects, having been published previously, had awakened a hearty interest in the popular mind, which in attention fully responded to the zeal and eloquence of the pulpit. On Sabbath the communion was administered to twelve ministers and about seventy communicants. The services were protracted, Revs. A. Williams and R. Parvin remaining and laboring faithfully several days. Keachie church is much revived, and I trust lasting good accomplished.

R. H. ADAIR, Sec.

KEACHIE, LA., Oct. 12, 1872.

CONFERENCE ITEMS.

INDIAN MISSION CONFERENCE.

The Indian Mission Conference, says the Nashville Christian Advocate, was held at Okmulgee, October 2—6. Bishop Wightman presided. D. T. Holmes was secretary. Dr. McFerrin was in attendance, and brings us the minutes. He says the session was delightful and profitable. J. S. Miller, A. S. Smith, admitted on trial. G. Battiest, J. Denton, continued. T. K. B. McSpadden, J. Sevier, admitted into full connection. W. G. Davis, received by transfer from Trinity Conference; J. Denton, from White River; E. R. Shapard, from Tennessee. J. S. Miller (traveling,) A. Bosin, S. Bradley (local,) elected and ordained deacons. A. S. Smith (local,) elected and ordained elder. S. P. Willis, supernumerary. D. B. Cummings, J. C. Robinson, T. B. Ruble, superannuated. T. W. Mitchell, died. The statistics are gotten up in clerkly style. The arithmetic is correct—the recapitulation drawn up in order for the General Minutes. Good for the Indians! Increase—whites, 45; Indians, 260; colored, 20; local preachers, 21; infants baptized, 507; adults, 511; Sunday schools, 15; teachers, 49; scholars, 475. Collected for missions, $488 35. The next session is to be at Tahlequah.

Dr. McFerrin, who was in attendance, writes of the Conference as follows:

The council and chiefs offered to the Conference the use of the council house for its deliberations and preaching. It was singularly interesting to see the council of the nation and a Conference of Christian ministers and laymen in session at the same time under the same roof. The preaching was well attended every evening in the council house, and large assemblies convened day and night at the camp ground, about two miles from Okmulgee, near the house of the chief. The natives came in wagons and tented on the ground. The order was excellent, and I hope much good was done. The proceedings of the Conference were marked by kindness, and I think the plan for the work the present year is more satisfactory than any time since 1865. There was an increase of members, as you will see from the statistical report. All went to their work in good heart, praying for success in the work of the Master. Our brethren in the Indian Mission Conference are faithful laborers. The members of the Conference pledged $150—a handsome contribution—to aid in building the Publishing House. The brethren are beginning to lift collections in all their charges in aid of our missionary work. The two schools—Ashury Manual Labor School, in the Creek nation, and New Hope Seminary, in the Choctaw nation—are both promising. Bro. Holmes has charge of the former, and our Bro. E. R. Shapard is to take charge of the latter. Here is a good field, and you know Bro. Shapard is well qualified for the position. He will succeed. Bishop Wightman was delighted with this his first visit to the Indian Territory. His sermons at Fort Gibson and Okmulgee made a deep spiritual as well as intellectual impression on the public mind. The church has reason to take courage in prosecuting her missionary work among the Red Men of the West. I learned that the wild tribes still farther on are becoming anxious for preaching and the education of their children. May God speed the day when all those sons of the forest shall hear the tidings of salvation.

LOUISVILLE CONFERENCE.

The Louisville Conference held its session at Lebanon, October 2—9. Bishop Marvin presided. S. C. Allen was secretary. He has sent us the minutes, minus the memoir of A. L. Alderson G. W. Means, T. G. Fallin, F. C. Mayberry, W. C. Brandon, were admitted on trial. Ten continued. J. B. Perry, J. Peak, A. Aiken, W. H. Morrison, A. McCown, A. C. DeWitt, superannuated. White members, 28,570; increase, 1,238; colored, 70; decrease, 72; local preachers, 192; decrease, 2. These totals differ from those of the statistical secretary, who has 28,510—70—195; but the figures in the Elizabethtown district add up 3,519 whites, not 3,459; and those in Princeton district 13 local preachers, not 16. We call attention to this, that if there were errors in transcribing, they may be corrected. Baptized infants, 821; adults, 1,530. Sunday schools, 205; teachers, 1,438; scholars, 10,852. Collected for claimants, $1,967.15; for missions, $3,196 10. The next session is to be at Princeton.

Bishop Marvin writes us, St. Louis, October 10: "I send you the minutes of the Louisville Conference. We had a delightful session, closing as the sun went down on Tuesday. The business was transacted with painstaking thoroughness. Ample time was taken for everything. The spirit of debate was not high; but there was an independent discussion, when occasion called for it, always seasoned with courtesy. The religiousness of the session was remarked by many. The spirit of prayer was among us. The public worship was greatly profitable, and the public interest in the business sessions quite unusual. The appointments as I send them are to be printed in the Advocate in preference to any other copy you may receive, as there were several changes made after the adjournment, one or two of which, perhaps, the secretary did not hear of. The finances of the Conference are not in a good condition. The salaries of pastors are greatly in arrear, and the Conference Board of Missions is dreadfully in debt. James McCown, Josiah E. Cook and A. W. Spraggen, young men in the local ranks, but looking to the itinerancy, go to take work in Illinois. Bros. Branstetter and R. P. Jones, of that Conference, were present, calling for recruits. I would have given them some from the Conference, but we had a scant supply for the work at home. Some of the young men who have gone have been employed on circuits, and all bid fair to be useful men."—Nashville Christian Advocate.

WEST ST. LOUIS CONFERENCE.

The West St. Louis Conference held its session at Nevada City, October 2—7. Bishop Pierce presided. W. M. Prottsman was secretary. From the Bishop's minutes we learn that S. M. Godbey, L. Hornbeck, E. W. Woodward, J. H. Read, I. Stapleton, M. L. McLure, C. C. Armstrong, J. M. Breeding, T. J. Stringfield, were admitted on trial. Nine were continued—two discontinued. N. G. Berryman, N. M. Talbott, died. The statistical tables furnished us add up 13,432 white members; increase, 995; colored, 26; decrease, 16; local preachers, 125; increase, 7. Infants baptized, 417; adults, 841 (obviously imperfect reports.) Sunday schools, 155; teachers, 765; scholars, 5,449. Amount necessary for claimants, $2,200; collected, $1,330. For missions, $1,549.90. The next session is to be held at Springfield.—Nashville Christian Advocate.

A LIBERAL DONATION.

MR. EDITOR: A German brother in Houston, Texas, who declines giving his name, sends me $50 as a donation for our German chapel in Petersburg, Virginia. A sister of my congregation hands me $10 for the same purpose.

J. B. A. ANDREW

The Christian Advocate.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 24, 1872.

THE LOST SHEEP.

There were ninety and nine that safely lay
In the shelter of the fold;
And one was out on the hills away,
Far off from the gates of gold;
Away on the mountains wild and bare—
Away from the tender Shepherd's care.

"Lord, thou hast here the ninety and nine—
Are they not enough for thee?"
But the Shepherd made answer: "This of mine
Has wandered away from me;
And, although the roads be rough and steep,
I go to the desert to find my sheep."

But none of the ransomed ever knew
How deep were the waters crossed,
Nor how dark the night that the Lord passed through,
Ere he found his sheep that was lost.
Out in the desert he heard its cry,
Sick and helpless, and ready to die.

"Lord, whence are those blood-drops all the way That mark out the mountain's track?"
"They were shed for one who had gone astray Ere the Shepherd could bring him back."
"Lord, whence are thy hands so rent and torn?"
"They were pierced to-night by many a thorn."

And all through the mountains, thunder-riven,
And up from the rocky steep,
There rose a cry to the gates of heaven:
"Rejoice, I have found my sheep!"
And the angels echoed around the throne:
"Rejoice, for the Lord brings back his own!"

Little Sower.

BISHOP PIERCE'S DECISION.

MR. EDITOR: During the last session of the Alabama Conference, which met in Mobile, November 29, 1871, Bishop Pierce decided that a superannuated preacher "is not a member of any Quarterly Conference;" and it seems, from an article written by the Rev. J. G. Jones, of the Mississippi Conference, and published in the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE of September 26, that Bro. Jones believes that the decision of the Bishop was illegal. Bro. Jones believes that superannuated preachers are legal members of Quarterly Conferences; and to prove that they are, and that the Bishop's decision is wrong, he wrote the article above referred to, in which article he tries the Bishop's decision by what he calls common law, and condemns it as illegal. But what is common law? "Unwritten or common law is a rule of action which derives its authority from long usage or established custom, which has been immemorially received and recognized by judicial tribunals. As this law can be traced to no positive statutes, its rules or principles are to be found only in the records of courts, and in the reports of judicial decisions." Now we would respectfully ask Bro. Jones, and all who read the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, What has this common law to do with Bishop Pierce's decision? Did he decide the question according to this common law? We answer, He did not; but he decided according to the law that governed the case, namely, the written statute law of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, that governs Quarterly Conferences, as found in our Book of Discipline, section 4, page 50. There the question is asked: "Who shall compose a Quarterly Conference?" It is answered: "All the traveling and local preachers, exhorters," etc. Now we ask Bro. Jones if he believes that our superannuated preachers are considered by our Annual Conferences traveling preachers? If not, they cannot be members of any Quarterly Conference, for the Discipline expressly says: "All the traveling and local preachers are members, and none else." Hence it is very clear that superannuated preachers are not members of our Quarterly Conferences. They are barred out by a statute law in our Book of Discipline that governs Quarterly Conferences. Our Quarterly Conferences are governed by written statute law, and not by unwritten common law. And therefore the Bishop's decision has nothing to do with Bro. Jones' common law, by which he tries it. This, we think, is Bro. Jones' capital mistake: he tries the Bishop's decision by a law that has nothing to do with the case. It follows that his argument, based on common law, to prove the Bishop's decision illegal, is without force and worthless. His premise is wrong, and his conclusion is also wrong. He has entirely missed the mark, and it follows that Bishop Pierce's decision is right, and that Bro. Jones has failed to prove it wrong. Bro. Jones loves "to see things done according to law." I hope, when he tries the decision of a Bishop again, in order to prove it illegal, he will do the Bishop the justice of trying his decision by the law that governed his action, and not by a law altogether irrelevant to his decision.

Now, according to Bro. Montgomery, Bishop Pierce has not only the statute law in our Book of Discipline to sustain his decision, but also Bishop Early and three General Conferences. Bro. Montgomery himself believes that the Bishop's decision is legal, and his trying two or three times, in the General Conferences, to have the statute law that governs Quarterly Conferences changed so as to make superannuates members of our Quarterly Conferences, proves it. Hence you see, Mr. Editor, that Bro. Jones has our Book of Discipline, Bishop Early, Bishop Pierce, three General Conferences and Bro. Montgomery all against his opinion that superannuated preachers are legal members of our Quarterly Conferences. All the difference I see between Bro. Jones and Bro. Montgomery, on this point, is this: Bro. Jones believes that superannuated preachers are at this time legal members of our Quarterly Conferences. Bro. Montgomery believes that they are not at this time legal members, but that they ought to be, and hopes the next General Conference will change the rule so as to make them members. Now we think both these opinions wrong. We think they are not legal members now, and we think also that our statute book ought not to be so changed as to make them so; and we do hope that when we send Bro. Montgomery to our next General Conference he will not move nor sanction such an innovation as this.

JAMES SHANKS.

SHUBUTA, October 8, 1872.

UNITY OF BRETHREN.

Behold how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity! It is like the precious ointment upon the head, that ran down upon the beard, even Aaron's beard, that went down to the skirts of his garments.—Psalms cxxxiii, 1, 2.

MR. EDITOR: In the world in which we live there are two great forces arrayed against each other. There is a great battle to be fought and a great victory to be won. On the one side are the worldlings; on the other are the Christians. The object of one is vanity; that of the other is righteousness, and the moral result, the final victory, will be greatly influenced by the union of the one or of the other side. And this is a real contest—just as real as the battles of Wellington, Napoleon or Cæsar. Nor must we think, because no rifles flash nor thunders roar, no mountains or plains shake with the approach of armed hosts, that we as Christians have no enemies to fight. There, right before you, are your enemies—the world, the flesh and the devil—and on they come with the rush of an eagle and the roar of a lion. Do you expect to contend with this host single-handed? Think you that you have no need of aid? Will you not, at such a time, remember that as there are commercial combinations that link the Old with the New World, covering the seas with their ships and dotting the world with their houses, so you must have a Christian combination of hearts and hands, minds and resources, of every man and every tongue, and in every land, all sympathizing with one another, all loving one another, and all declaring with one voice: "Your people are my people, and your God is my God!" Such is brotherly union, and such is the will of our Commander, Jesus Christ. Such are his orders to his soldiers, and we must either obey these orders or desert like cravens to the camp of the enemy, whose eyes are fixed with a falcon gaze upon all our movements; and the moment we begin with sectarian spirit, the moment we light the fires of persecution, the moment we engage in angry controversy, that moment is the Christian phalanx weakened, and that moment are some tempted to desert to the devil.

Not such was the army of three hundred under the iron-hearted Leonidas at the pass of Thermopolae, when by their glorious union the tide of victory rolled across the Hellespont, and glowed in living beauty over the field of Marathon. Not such was the army under Wellington on that far-famed day when, by the union of his men, Bonaparte was defeated, and the British lion was triumphant. Not such was that still more glorious day when, with one consent, the worshipers of God were gathered together at one place, "and suddenly there came a sound from heaven as of a rushing mighty wind, and it filled all the house where they were sitting; and there appeared unto them cloven tongues, like as of fire, and it sat upon each of them." Now these were of different tribes, for there were Parthians, Medes, Elamites and many others, and yet they all spoke, as if with one tongue, "of the wonderful works of God." So of all true Christians, of whatever name or of whatever land, whether they may think as Methodists, Baptists or Episcopalians.—These are nothing more than earthly names, whether they live in regions of eternal winter or far down beneath the fiery blaze of the Southern cross. That is a mere difference of country. They are all soldiers in the great Christian army, marching onward to heaven under the leadership of One who causes "star to differ from star," yet holdeth each alike in his orbit, who guides the pale-faced moon by night, and gives us the sun's rays by day to complete our twenty-four hours.

Now he sends a spring, with its bursting buds and opening petals; changing to a summer, with its green verdure and full-blown flowers; which passes into autumn, with its falling leaves and withering flowers; and this now passes into old winter, with its hoar frost and icy snow—all different seasons, yet all necessary to complete a year. So in the Christian army we may have many names, yet are we under one Leader. We are fighting for one cause, and struggling for the same heaven.

On a bright summer day, when the birds are singing, and the bees are humming, and the flowers are blooming, and the whole atmosphere is fragrant with perfume, I turn my eyes to yonder grassy plain, from whence shouts of merry laughter come. I see groups of happy children walking or romping in their joyous moods. No cloud is on their brows, no hatred is in their hearts, and I exclaim: How glorious, how beautiful is the sight! 'Tis as if an angel had descended to earth and touched their lips; 'tis something like the voice of him who said in days by-gone: "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased."

But, alas! the picture changes. One, accidentally hit by a hasty ball, becomes mad with his playfellows, and from high words proceeds to hard blows. The game is broken, and, sad and dreary, one by one leaves the play-ground for the old school house, to tell that their play is over and their fun is gone, for John and Charles have had a fight. And alas! for us, my Christian friends, does it not sometimes happen, when sailing down the stream of life together, with the music of Christian love in our ears, and the gentle murmuring waters of contentment driving us along, and we seem almost to have reached yon blessed harbor—does not some rude truth, shot accidentally, it may be, from the hands of a brother, strike us too roughly, and we become angry, school-boy-like, and we retaliate in angry discussion, giving blow for blow. Our Christian brethren, sad and disgusted, retire from the scene, while the world exclaims with sarcastic glee: "Behold how these Christians hate one another!" It was to avoid such scenes as this that David, who had once fled as a vagabond from place to place to escape the fury of Saul, who had been lifted from a shepherd's life to a kingly throne, and had therefore passed through many a fiery trial, well says, pointing to the union of brethren: "Behold how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity!"

P. S. P. CORLIN.

HOUMA, Louisiana.

QUESTIONS.

MR. EDITOR: Permit me, in the honest simplicity of my heart, to ask a few questions, through the ADVOCATE, of all whom it may concern. Why is it that Christian ministers and editors are conceding to geologists all that they claim with regard to the antiquity of our earth? Many Christian writers have striven hard to reconcile the various theories set forth by geologists to the history of Moses. But to my mind they have utterly failed. If the science of geology, so called, be true, why Moses' history is false, however men may quibble. Take, for instance, the argument of Hugh Miller that the six creative days were not natural days, but lengthened periods. How could Moses, as a correct historian, use the word day, in the first chapter of Genesis, to mean one thing, and in the seventh to mean quite another, without advertising his reader of the fact? Now we maintain that we can with equal propriety say that the seven days in which the animals were entering the ark, or the forty days in which the rain descended, or the one hundred and fifty days that the water was upon the earth, were all lengthened periods. Make them such, and we have a good long wet spell. Now I ask, What is better calculated to bring the Bible into disrepute and the whole Christian system into ridicule?

Again, Miller says that by a certain "depression of the earth in one place and an upheaval in another, a very small portion of the earth was deluged with water; while the larger portion escaped with the animals upon it." God said by Moses: "I will destroy everything in which is the breath of life under the whole heaven." Reconcile it who can!

Again, Mr. Morris says in his "Science and the Bible:" "This creative act was quite distinct from and long anterior to the acts included in 'the six days,' which begin with the emergence of light from darkness, at the third verse." Moses says (Exodus xx, 11:) "For in six days the Lord made heaven and earth, the sea, and all that in them is." St. Paul says: "Through faith we understand that the worlds were formed by the word of God; so that things which are seen were not made of things which do appear."—Hebrews xi, 3. Mr. Morrie to the contrary notwithstanding. Again I ask, Where can you find two sentences that more flatly contradict each other? No wonder Hugh Miller's brain reeled and reason left her throne on the day that he finished his "Testimony of the Rocks," because the science of geology, as he taught it, is irreconcilable with theology. And the very thing that drove him to madness is now unsettling the minds of thousands, and driving them to infidelity and skepticism. If Christian writers cannot meet the arguments of infidel geologists (for it is evident that their object has been from the first to contradict the history of Moses) they had better never touch it, for they are only darkening council. What good has the science of geology ever done the world? Who will answer the question? "Hidden things belong to God, but revealed things to us and our children." In vain may men break the solid marble, and class her primitive parts, in order to find the date of the corner-stone in earth's old building. They will utterly fail; for every theorist contradicts the former. Let the investigation go on. The Bible is in no danger. But let the friends of religion take heed how they touch the ark of God, lest, like Uzah, they be smitten.

It is very evident that the Bible was written for the common people, and not for the scientific investigator alone. But with the construction that is being put upon it by modern writers a great deal of it is unintelligible to the common reader. Will you, Mr. Editor, or some of your contributors, give us something satisfactory on this subject, or direct us to some one who has written at length on the subject, and met the points at issue fairly and squarely?

T. A. LANCASTER.

PRAYER.

A great many interesting things can be said about it, as, for instance, its necessity, its nature, its spirit, etc.—perhaps nothing new, nothing original; old things said in an original way; many things from its negative and positive aspects.

On the present occasion, however, we have but these two things to say: It does not consist in empty compliments to God, or fulsome eulogies to the Almighty. Many people, even many preachers who ought to know better, seem to think so. They spend half the time devoted to public prayer in complimenting the Divine Being—telling him how grand, sublime and glorious he is in his perfection. Instead of confession, intercession, giving of thanks, etc., as a stench in the nostrils of the Almighty arises a round of fulsome eulogies. Instead of praying for the people and to God, they pray at the people, and from God.

The second thing we have to say is this: Prayer does not consist in exhortation. Some people's prayers consist of these two parts: First. Heavy and turgid compliments to God. Second. Vapid, verbose exhortation to the people. This is sailing under false colors. The people are invited to prayer, and instead of hearing and uniting in sending up the voice of supplication, their ears are berated with hortatory exclamations and appeals. We have heard preachers spend one-half the five minutes some of them devote to prayer in this kind of exercise. It is not prayer. Don't know what to call it. Thousands of hungry hearts turn away from our altars, empty and dissatisfied.

"Ye ask and receive not, because ye ask amiss." ***

REMINISCENCE.

How incomprehensible, how full of mysterious shadow and sunshine this life of ours! A passing breath, a leaf, a flower, and what floods of reminiscences pour in upon the heart! Every incident of the past appears as vivid as yesterday. The scenes and voices of childhood are ours again. Strange how one can live a lifetime in an hour! Last evening, while walking through the woods which skirted my old home—once inclosed for my morning walks, but now lonely and deserted—I plucked a tender green branch of huckleberry from a tree which in childhood had been my favorite resort, and lo! I was again living in the days of yore—again a happy girl pacing the old path, and weaving radiant pictures of the future. I almost expected to hear the call to supper which had so often caused me to turn reluctantly toward the house. But the voice of my companion dispelled the illusion. I came back to sober reality, and the knowledge that she and I had outlived the time when, hand in hand, we opened our hearts to each other under the same foliage. As we turned away and walked slowly toward the old spring we contrasted the imaginings of the past with present realities. Where all our bright hopes?—the friends on whom we lavished the wealth of loving, confiding natures? Alas! why is it that our ardent, unquestioning faith in humanity, our loving belief in the purity and good will of all we meet, in the flush and exhilarance of our young lives, are destined to be crushed out!

It sometimes seems a mystery to me that he who loves all his children so, that has made this green earth radiant with beauty, he who is the God of purity and justice, should permit them to deceive one another so cruelly—that the blue heavens could smile down on so much misery and want. But then comes the thought: "Were all our dreams realized, were this life the embodiment of happiness, would we care for the other life? Is it not only through the crucible of affliction that we are purified for eternity?

Ah! happy for us such a wise God rules the universe! What a chaos we would make out of it in less than a minute! Our God would not be an object of reverence could we comprehend all his dealings; our love and faith but lukewarm could we not trust our Father. All friends are not false, all hopes are not frustrated; those that come refined through the fires go with us through life's pilgrimage, nobler, purer, better.

These thoughts purged away regretful remembrances. We spoke of the innocent, happy days of the past, "shaken like buds from life's tree," and the future, full of possibilities, that awaits our footsteps. No regrets marred the reminiscence of our childish friendship; for our tie had strengthened with the growth of years, purified by adversity and trial. And with a firmer grasp of hands we are passing to the "ancient gate," strengthening each other in all trial, viewing humanity not with the romantic eyes of childhood, but willing to bear and forbear. Not expecting perfection in this world of ours, trying to find all the good we can, and throwing the mantle of charity and faith over the evil, we endeavor to heed the admonition of our Savior: "Judge not, lest ye be judged."

LITTLE BEVERLY.

GERMAN METHODISM (NORTH.)

Bishop Haven gives the following statements in the Central Christian Advocate:

There were three hundred and fifty-four German preachers in our Conferences in America last winter, beside three hundred and thirty-nine local preachers; there are not less than three hundred and seventy-five, probably more, now. This makes a preaching force of not less than seven hundred. The membership of the Central German Conference is over ten thousand five hundred—almost the exact size of the late Genesee, the East Maine and the late Black River Conferences, only one thousand less than the Vermont and the West Wisconsin, only two thousand less than the Maine and the Minnesota. Its churches are worth over half a million, ranking above all the above numerical rivals and competitors in the first half of the Conferences, there being thirty-five less than it, and thirty-six higher. One is surprised to find California less than $50,000 richer in church property than the Central German, while Maine, Black River and Vermont range considerably below it, and East Maine, Kansas, West Wisconsin, West Virginia and Minnesota climb only half way, or a little more, to its altitude. No Southern Conference approaches it in wealth, only one or two in numbers. In liberality its ratio is yet higher. Forty-two Conferences gave less than this, putting it well up into the first grade. Only twenty-nine surpassed it, and in percentage only half a dozen excelled it; and then, probably, if the property value of the members were estimated, would fall far below it; for no one ranks the worth of these brethren in the market place as highly as those of Baltimore, New York, New York East, which give the largest pro rata, New England and Philadelphia, which are the only Conferences that largely exceed the Central German. It is beaten by its own brother, the Northwest German, and possibly by some other of the smaller Conferences, though it far excels the most of the great rich Conferences of the great rich West and East in this chief test of discipleship—the sending of the gospel to the lost of our land and all lands.

BISHOP FOSTER was present, says the Western Christian Advocate, at the love-feast of the California Conference, and spoke of his early experience. He was licensed to preach when but thirteen and a half years old. He said:

"I entered the ministry when but seventeen years of age. My life and energies have been given without reserve to the ministry. Four years ago my daughter, the first-born of our house, was taken up in a cloud of glory; a few months after the mother was also taken to the same blessed home. Since that time I have lived at the gate of the celestial world, having no happiness but preaching Christ."

As soon as the Bishop had finished, a brother, in his eighty-fourth year, arose and said that he had heard a little exhorter forty years ago, whose name was Foster. The exhortation had produced fruit. It was blessed to the salvation of one who was a backslider. That man and his family are still in the way of life. That little boy, whose name was Foster, he had just heard give his testimony in the love-feast.

WALK, believing God's word, when you cannot see the light of his countenance.

Married.

In Felicity Street church, New Orleans, on the first inst. by Rev. Dr. Watkins, assisted by Rev. J. Mathews, JULIA S. MEYER to W. H. WATKINS, M. D.

On the eleventh of September, at Elleray, near Woodville, Mississippi by Rev. Dr. Watkins, ROBERT SEMPLE, Esq., to SALLIE, youngest daughter of the late John W. Burruss.

On the third instant, at the residence of Dr P. F. Ellis, in Attala county, Mississippi, by the Rev. J. M. Weems, Mr. J. C. MCGARGHEY and Miss MARY E. PATTERSON.

September 21, 1872, at the residence of the bride's mother, near Sidon, Mississippi, by the Rev. Joseph B. Newsom, Dr. WILLIAM W. DUDDEN to Miss SALLIE S. ROBINSON.

By the Rev. D. J. Wright, at the residence of the bride's father, on the tenth of October, 1872, Mr. WILLIAM W. HORN to Miss MARY GORDON, all of Camden, Wilcox county, Alabama.

Obituaries.

LITTLE ADA, daughter of Bro. Joseph and Sister Susan R. Pack, living in Natchitoches parish, Louisiana, died, after a long illness, August 10, 1872, aged four years, four months and nineteen days.

Before breathing her last she clasped her hands with an upward expression and a smile, as if she saw some of the heavenly host. H. L. S.

JOHN JAMES HERRAN, son of Milton S. Herran, died of diphtheria, in Perry county, Alabama, October 2, 1872, aged seven years, five months and sixteen days. It was forty-four days from the time he was taken with the disease until he died.

This is the fourth child Bro. Herran has lost, in a few weeks, with this fearful disease, and is the only one he had left. Terrible is the blow thus inflicted upon our dear brother and his beloved wife. They had previously lost two others, making six in all. But, while the affliction is sad, there is one blessed consolation: these children are now in heaven, and make it more attractive to the sorrowing parents. W. A. MONTGOMERY.

MARTHA ROSALIND GWIN, infant daughter of S. A. and M. R. Gwin, was born February 20, 1870, and died October 3, 1872.

Little Rosa lived long enough to deeply enshrine herself in the affections of her parents, her relatives and all who knew her. Though so young, she would entertain her mother with plans of joining the church and being religious, when, she was older and larger. In her last illness, before danger was apprehended, she talked of dying, not with dread, but as something that would pass her to the heavenly world. I never knew one so young followed by so many tears. Strong men stood at her grave and wept. They had been made, while she lived, to feel her gentle power. J. D. NEWSOM.

MRS. CORNELIA P., wife of Robert A. Gilbert, and daughter of Mrs. E. J. Figures, died at Collierville, Clarke county, Alabama, August 8, 1872, after a painful illness of several weeks, leaving a husband, a little daughter fourteen months old, a mother, a brother and a sister to mourn her loss.

She joined the Methodist Episcopal Church South when quite young, and soon thereafter experienced conversion. After her conversion she became a devoted Christian, and made great progress in spiritual things, attaining the state of perfect love, and this perfect love cast out all fear, even the fear of death.

She was married to R. A. Gilbert in 1870, with whom she lived happily for nearly two years, when the messenger said: "It is enough." But during this short time she was the light of his heart, as well as the light of his home, for it was her constant care to keep sunshine and happiness there. By her sweet-tempered words and deeds she won many friends, who feel deeply bereaved in her early death. She loved much the little daughter that God had given them, and it was her constant care to watch the budding intellect and train it for immortality. But His bright young servant of God must leave these bright scenes, of which she is the center, and enter that brighter reward that is reserved for her and all that love his appearing. Therefore she calmly bids farewell to earth, husband, child, mother, relatives and friends, and departs in peace. She was not afraid to die, but expressed strong hope, based upon her faith in Christ, of a happy immortality just beyond the dark river of death.

She commended her husband to God, and exhorted him to continue in holy living; she requested that her little child should be trained in the nurture and admonition of the Lord, and then resigned herself to death's cold embrace. She now rests beneath the shades of the trees that bear twelve manner of fruit. She cheerfully awaits the judgment of the great day. C. W. C.

M. A. GOLSON, the subject of this sketch, was born in Autauga county, Alabama, July 3, 1834, and died in Elmore county, Alabama, August 18, 1872. She was twice married: first, April 23, 1857, to G. W. Zeigler, and in December, 1867, after a period of six years widowed life, she was again married, to Bro. J. H. Golson, of Autaugaville, who preceded her about two years to the grave. She joined the Methodist Episcopal Church South when only twelve or thirteen years of age, and after her first connection with the church I suppose there was never a blemish on her religious character.

Religion that does not affect and influence the social life and general deportment of its possessor would seem but an empty profession; but when it shines as a light in every situation of life—at home around the fireside, in the world, and everywhere that person is seen—it is not an empty profession; it is a great reality, a real possession. So it affected the life of Sister Golson. It is true she was naturally amiable and lovely, yet she could not have been all that she was without the sanctifying grace of God. At home, as a wife, she was adorned with a "meek and quiet spirit," and won to her heart the entire household by her quiet and even temper, her obliging disposition and ingratiating manners, all of which were sanctified and brought under the absolute dominion of God's spirit. But we need not speak of her domestic life. Her record is too clear to require vindication, and among her friends was so well known and approved that any encomiums would be considered superfluous.

Her religious life was marked by three distinct and commendable features: First. She was not a "Sunday Christian." She was "a living epistle, known and read of all men." No change of season or times or places made any change in her mind. She was an every-day Christian. Second. She was attentive to church. When the bell rang she went. You might expect Sister Golson at preaching, prayer meeting, class meeting, Sabbath school and with the choir. Third. She was a participant in nearly all these exercises. She came not as a stranger to church, but felt at home; that she was in the house of God, and that it was a place for all to worship that went. O that we had in the church such a membership generally! What a power it would be!

But death spares not. At the twang of his bow his arrows seek the brightest mark. She is numbered with the dead: has "crossed over the river and rests under the shade." Her assurances of a home in heaven were entirely satisfactory to her family and friends. She said she regretted to leave her friends here, but that she had many in heaven she would soon see. She told those around her that it might do to live without religion, but it would not do to die without it. The last words she uttered were: "I am dying, surely dying, and will soon be across the beautiful river." Yes, a patient sufferer is across the beautiful river "that flows by the Throne of God."

WILLIAM A. EDWARDS.

MR. BERGH has sent letters to all the Governors of States, urging them to organize societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals.

The Christian Advocate.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 24, 1872.

CITY OF GOD.

My feet are worn and weary with the march
Over the rough road and up the steep hill-side;
Oh city of our God! I fain would see
Thy pastures green, where peaceful waters glide.

My hands are weary, toiling on,
Day after day, for perishable meat;
Oh city of our God! I fain would rest—
I sigh to gain thy glorious mercy seat.

My garment, travel-worn and stained with dust,
Oft rent with briars and thorns that crowd my way,
Would fain be made, oh Lord, my righteousness!
Spotless and white in heaven's unclouded ray.

My eyes are weary looking at the sin,
Ingolory and scorn upon the earth;
Oh city of our God! within thy walls
All, all are clothed again with thy new birth.

My heart is weary of its own deep sin—
Sinning, repenting, sinning still again;
When shall my soul thy glorious presence feel,
And find, dear Savior, it is free from stain?

Patience, poor soul! The Savior's feet were worn;
The Savior's heart and hand were weary too;
His garments stained and travel-worn and old;
His vision blinded with a pitying dew.

Love thou the path of sorrow that he trod;
Toil on, and walk in patience for thy rest;
Oh city of our God! we soon shall see
Thy glorious walls—home of the loved and blest.

ST. PAUL'S AND CANON LIDDON.

BY WILLIAM MACKAY.

The building which more than any other becomes identified in the memory of the visitor with London is St. Paul's. In nine cases out of ten at least, we venture to think, this will be the institution most frequently called to mind. As St. Peter's is to Rome, as Notre Dame is to Paris, so is St. Paul's to the English metropolis. The distances from which its massive proportions can be seen prevent its having a serious rival in that far Westminster Abbey. From Hampstead Heath you catch sight of the dome and the golden cross above it, glittering in the hot air. From Westminster, from Vauxhall, from any part of the Thames between Lambeth and the Tower of London, you can gaze on this greatest achievement of Christopher Wren's genius. It is the most distinctively London building in London. Westminster Abbey has no such representative part to play. Its interest is too universal to admit of its qualification by the adjective "cockney." Its "Poets' Corner" has drawn the affections of the universe round it, and sublimes it into an independence of geographical arrangements. Westminster Abbey belongs not to London, but to the world. About St. Paul's one has no such feelings. Nor can the absence of the sentiment be accounted for more rationally, perhaps, than by alleging its position in the very center of the city, and the manner in which its dome obtrudes itself on the observer in a hundred different parts of London.

It is the one city church which can boast now and then of a congregation. Sunday in the city is a strange contrast to a week-day in the city. All the rush and roar of traffic ceased; the hurrying passengers, the thousand clerks and messengers all gone; the pavement empty, the place desolate. But in nearly every street an old church has opened its doors, and the bells are clanging, and little congregations straggle into porches—little congregations, some twenty, some thirty-fold. Literally, two or three are gathered together in these large, gloomy, mildewed buildings; and as the preacher intones the service, as the indifferent organ struggles through the indifferent anthem, and as the charity children in the gallery squeak their shrill "Amens," the thought will force itself into the mind that a much worse thing might be done than would be accomplished by pulling down all these old churches, dismissing all these old perfunctory rectors with fat livings, and building and endowing one or two large and commodious edifices for the accommodation of the five hundred people that at present spread themselves for worship over about fifty churches.

St. Paul's, however, always has its quota of worshipers. Every morning and every evening there is service in the nave, at which is gathered a fair assemblage of tourists, of bank porter's wives, and of people who have simply come in out of the sweltering July sun to wander about the cool, wide spaces of the church. There is no sermon at these services, and the congregation kneels for an hour, listening to the "storm their high-built organ makes."

The most interesting and popular of the services at St. Paul's are those which are held, during certain months of the year, on Sunday afternoon. These services take place not in the nave, but under the dome. The great clear space over which it was permitted to the week-day visitor to wander unimpeded, is now covered with the most ingeniously uncomfortable chairs in Christendom. If the preacher of the day be Canon Liddon, every one of these reed-bottomed seats is occupied long before the hour announced for service. And many of those who cannot obtain seats wander up and down the flags that stretch away behind the seats. It seems indeed a habit with many of those who attend the service to arrive purposely late. These are, for the most part, fondly-dressed shop boys accompanied by saucy-looking milliners' apprentices, and they occupy the time in whispered discussions, not always, it is to be presumed, of a theological nature. The gay dresses, the toss of the head, the flashing eyes, the whispers, how they carry the imagination back to the time when the whispers were shouts, and when the flags of the church were crowded with laughing promenaders and peripatetic venders of trinkets and of fruit!

The full choral service is performed, and as the organ-blasts roll about the roof you think that it will take a preacher of tremendous lung-power to make himself at all audible to this vast congregation. The preacher is Canon Liddon. As he ascends the pulpit your surmise becomes a misgiving; your misgiving becomes incredulity. That pale-faced little man will never make himself heard, you say to yourself. He is a man of about average height; has a shaved face, intelligent, but not striking. His mouth is not large. He looks a student, and not an orator. The task before him is one of no ordinary difficulty. He has to interest some thousands of people for an hour—people whose senses have just been appealed to by the performance of a full choral service—people assembled in a building which has a suggestion in every stone of it of the beautiful and the sublime. I can imagine no fiercer test for a pulpit orator. To keep his congregation awake at all, his sermon must be as good in its way as Handel's music—it must be in harmony with the vast structure and the sacred memories of the place.

Canon Liddon has risen from his knees, and opens a small Bible which he carries in his hand. An irreverent lad sitting behind me says to his companion: "Bet you anything he preaches from St. Paul." And sure enough, the preacher, in a voice distinctly audible in every corner of the vast building, reads a text from Ephesians. His voice is very powerful, not melodious, but metallic rather. The metallic note is not, however, disagreeable. It is a voice to argue in. His style is fine, scholarly, argumentative. It is founded evidently on St. Paul's. He excels especially in antithesis. Does an argument seem to limp, or theory appear to want support? St. Paul, and St. Paul always, is hailed to the rescue. He does not affect "beauties of style," as flowery passages are often most erroneously termed. But his style is naturally and severely beautiful. It possesses an element essential to all beauty in oratory, namely, strength. You are not treated to nice little bits of scene-painting in which the local coloring is sedulously applied; your ear is not tickled with frequent quotations from Tennyson and other companions of the drawing-room. The preacher has no time for trifling of that kind. He has got an important message to deliver. His arguments in favor of the acceptance of this message are of the strongest kind. The message and the argument are given with vigor and rare skill. There is no inattentive ear in the church; and although the preacher exceeds an hour by five minutes in the delivery of his sermon, there are but few signs of weariness in his audience.

Canon Liddon holds about the same position in the esteem of members of the Church of England as the Rev. Mr. Spurgeon does in the esteem of Nonconformists. He will be known to some of my readers as one of the Bampton lecturers. His greatest successes, however, are not those of literature, but those which he has gained as one of the Sunday afternoon preachers in St. Paul's Cathedral.—Christian Union.

BEECHER'S METHOD.

A contributor to the Advance describes Mr. Beecher's method of preparation for the pulpit;

The preparation thus made, Mr. Beecher broods his sermon. He rarely or never pronches a sermon that is not ripe. He rarely or never breaks the shell before the bird is ready to come out. His sermons are never addled eggs. On his study table lies—or at least used to—a little note book with flexible covers, about the size of a sheet of commercial note paper. It is full of sketches of sermons, hints, subjects, themes, with an occasional fully drawn-out skeleton. His pocket is generally half full of letters, and on the back of from one to half a dozen of these, thoughts for sermons are jotted down as they strike him, in the cars, the hotel, the steamboat. And there they wait till, revolved over and over in his fertile brain at all odd moments, they have drawn to themselves juice from much thinking, and are ripe and mellow, and ready to be plucked and presented.

Several years ago he was to preach an ordination sermon in New England. "I think," he said to me (I was then carrying Harpers' edition of his sermons through the press, and was making a selection,) "I think," said he, "I shall preach a sermon at ——'s ordination which you had better look at, on pulpit dynamics—that is, on the origin of pulpit power—and the methods of pulpit ministration." When the sermon came out it proved to be a description of the advantages and happiness incidental to the ministry, as a profession. The next time I met him I asked for an explanation. "Where is that sermon on pulpit dynamics?" said I. "Oh! it wasn't ripe," he replied. "I shall get something out of it yet, however"—and he has; has got out of it what seems to me the best piece of work of his life, the Yale Lectures on Preaching.

If one will prepare as Mr. Beecher does, by first, much study, and second, much brooding, it may be safe to follow his example further, though probably only very facile workers will be able to do so. During the week, two or three topics lie in his mind as those from which he will most probably select his next Sabbath's discourses. His thoughts turn to them; his eyes gather illustrations for them; his pencil sometimes, though not often, jots them down—the sermon, however, is rarely definitely outlined in his mind. Ask him on Saturday night what he is going to preach on Sabbath morning, and he cannot usually tell you; Sabbath morning, after breakfast, he goes into his study, feels his various themes, takes one that seems ripest, skeletons the outline, selects his text, and begins to write. At first he writes fully, but as time goes on his pen leaves great gaps, sketches only at the beginnings of separate paragraphs, then only the heads; sometimes the pencil finishes up the hints in the pulpit. His sermon at the beginning is read—the commencement almost disappoints you; but as he warms he grows more and more oblivious of his notes; his imagination fills up the gaps; and the pulpit completes what the study only began. The manuscript sermon is a literary curiosity, a study in itself. After sermon he goes home, eats a good dinner, goes to bed, sleeps away the afternoon, rises to a cup of coffee, and thence goes into his study to bring forth the evening sermon by a similar operation.

A MISTAKE IN CHILD-TRAINING.

A party of friends, during a social call, were chatting about their little ones in the fond, proud way that parents will, when one, a man of the world and a scholar—in certain directions a public educator—said gayly: "My little puss isn't bashful—not a bit of it. She knows how to hold her own, little two-year-old as she is. She is a fast one, I assure you."

A young student, hearing the professor's remark, and noting the parent's pleased manner as he spoke thus of his girl-baby, turned to his own mother, who stood near, and, with a perceptible curl of his lip, said:

"Yes, that's the way it goes. When their daughters are babies they let them be as rude and forward as they will, and think it smart, and call them 'fast,' and laugh; and when they're grown up they have the pleasure of hearing other men call them 'fast,' and laugh on the other side of their mouths."

A stroke of lightning out of a clear sky could not more have startled the mother than did these words from her son. That youth, a mere boy, himself by no means a model of perfection, had with one sentence fathomed the depths of one of our period's sorest evils.

I have not drawn from imagination for my illustration. Within the past week the youth's plain words were spoken within my hearing. I yet recall the half contemptuous, half compassionate glance he turned on those near by, and every word that he uttered lingers yet in my memory.—Christian Weekly.

Our Roman Correspondent, says the New York Observer, writes in a postscript: I cannot help copying a little bit of the last speech of the Pope, in which he refers to the death of a member of Parliament, himself, with all his family, good Catholics, and whose only sin was that he was a deputy: "He died, giving his soul into the hands of Satan, to go and curse God forever in the lowest depths of hell." There is plenty more of the same kind, with a blasphemous prayer against the Italian government at the end. Protestants who kneel at Pius the Ninth's feet after this require no advice.

Nothing can be plainer than that ignorance and vice are two ingredients absolutely necessary in the composition of free-thinkers, who, in propriety of speech, are no thinkers at all.—Swift.

SCIENTIFIC.

It may be important to know, on the authority of M. Gaudin, that a mixture of equal parts of cryolite and chlorids of barium forms a flux superior to borax for soldering iron, or brazing copper, brass or bronze. Cryolite is found in great abundance in Greenland; it is a double fluorid of aluminium and sodium, and has been largely employed in the production of the metal aluminium.

In the sands of the Turkistan desert, at a considerable distance east of the Aral lake, well-preserved specimens have been found of two varieties of shells belonging to mollusks of still living species in the lake, and in the Caspian, Black and Mediterranean seas. It is, therefore, concluded that the entire region was covered with salt water up to the commencement of the present geological epoch.

The Boston Journal of Chemistry has been analyzing the paper on which its exchanges are printed, and finds that the paper makers mix a white clay with the paper-pulp to add to the weight. Its own paper has less than half of one per cent. of this matter; that of the Independent 8.71 per cent.; and that of the Scientific American has 14.50 per cent. As the paper sells by weight for more than ten times as much as does the clay, the profit on the clay is very large, the Scientific American having to pay, at paper price, for eleven tons of it annually.

An Apparatus for obtaining water from the depths of the ocean has been invented in Germany. An open vessel is lowered by means of rope and weights until the desired depth has been reached. Then an electric current is transmitted through an accompanying wire, which, by inducing another current in an electro-magnet in an apparatus attached to the vessel, releases springs which turn stop-cocks, and the water of the depth is inclosed. Several most interesting experiments for the determination of the amount of carbonic acid in deep-sea water have been made by means of this invention.

Mr. Jeffrey has established the fact that bones disappear in the ocean. By dredging it is common to bring up teeth, but rarely ever a bone of any kind; these, however compact, dissolve if exposed to the action of the water but a little time. On the contrary, teeth—which are not bones any more than whales are fish—resist the destroying action of sea-water indefinitely. It is, therefore, a powerful solvent. Still the popular opinion is that it is a brine. If such were the case, the bottom of all the seas would long ago have been shallowed by immense accumulations of carcasses and products of the vegetable kingdom constantly floating into them. Dentine, the peculiar material of which teeth are formed, and the enamel covering them, offer extraordinary resistance to those chemical agencies which resolve other animal remains into nothingness. Mounds in the West, tumuli in Europe and Asia, which are believed to antedate sacred history for thousands of years, yield up perfectly sound teeth, on which time appears to have made no impression whatever.

It is remarked that no material increase in the speed of steamboats has been attained within the last twenty years. After a vessel has attained a comparatively high speed, further additions to the power fail to produce any corresponding increase of speed. It is thought that we can go no farther with our present models. The limitation of speed which all engineers thus encounter is accounted for by the tendency observable at the bows of fast-going vessels to emerge or rise above the water. This tendency is increased by the impact of her inclined planes at the bow against the opposing water. Every ton of two thousand pounds so lifted above her stationary load-line, at a speed of fifteen miles per hour, exhausts eighty-seven horse-power of her engines. This theory is aptly illustrated by the transit of a railroad train up an inclined grade—the engine actually lifting bodily in the air a portion of the weight of the train in addition to overcoming the friction and impact of the air as on the horizontal grade. Experiments in submarine artillery practice have proven that the tendency of a body moving through the water to rise to the surface is proportionally greater at high velocities than at low—the projectile emerging at the surface at sharper angles as the velocity is increased; hence the proportion of the weight of the ship and cargo lifted by the engine above the stationary load-line is determined by the speed and lines at the bow. We learn from the Nautical Gazette that Mr. E. M. Strange has invented a new model, in which he proposes to counteract this tendency to emergence, and hopes thereby to remove the limitation to the increase of speed.

Why is Ireland likely to become the richest country in the world? Because the capital is always Dub-lin.

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

Returning from a tour in his former field of the Lower Danube, Rev. Dr. Long reports great progress and a gratifying condition of the church at Sistof. He says: "There is only one other place in Bulgaria where the truth has gained so much of a position as in Sistof, and that is in a mountain station in the field of the American Board."

The sudden death is reported of two missionaries in China. Rev. W. E. McChesney, of the American Presbyterian mission, was shot on the night of July 9, by river pirates, while he was on his boat going on a missionary tour up the river from Canton. Dr. A. Thomson, a physician connected with the English Presbyterian mission at Swatow, was on the steamer Rena when it was run into, April 4, by the French mail steamer Ava. Dr. Thomson fell back while being drawn up by a rope into the Ava, and was drowned. Both Dr. Thomson and Mr. McChesney had been only two years in China.

On the ninth of June two men and three women were received into the membership of the native Japanese church in Yokohama, which now numbers twenty-two members. The communion was administered and the bread and wine distributed by a native elder. Prayer meetings, conducted by the Japanese themselves, are held weekly. Nearly forty men and women attended the Sunday evening Bible class. Rev. David Thompson has arrived in Japan, and taken temporary charge of the native church in Yokohama, to give a respite to Rev. James Ballagh, whose health has been greatly impaired by long and peculiarly trying labors. Rev. Mr. Gulick, of the American Board, has obtained a foothold in Kioto by accepting a nominal position as teacher.

Retreat for Infirm Clergymen.—The object of the St. Augustine Mission House, Haverstraw, on the Hudson, is to afford a suitable retreat for the clergy of the Protestant Episcopal Church, who, overcome by age or infirmity, are no longer able to discharge the active duties of their calling, yet are not so entirely incapacitated for labor but that a certain amount can be accomplished when they are grouped together in a college. School rooms, suitable for the education of the youth of both sexes, are already secured, and mission work at five important points can be connected with the Mission House. The estate selected is a beautiful site of fifteen acres on the west bank of the Hudson, about thirty-five miles above New York city, amidst fine mountain and river scenery, with a comfortable home, and groves of fruit and shade trees. Here, surrounded by every reasonable comfort, these servants of the living God can pass their declining years free from care and the anxieties of poverty. When the small average income of the American clergy is taken into account, it will be immediately perceived that no provision can be made, by most of them, for age or infirmity. Yet both are certain to come, and no more certain than that, when come, there will be no resting place for their possessors.

The missionaries hope soon to be able to occupy Kioto, the "Miako" or sacred capital of Japan, the residence of the Mikado. The city was recently thrown open to foreigners for a limited time during the exhibition of Japanese industry. It was visited by three missionaries of the American Board. Mr. Gulick wrote, June 15: "There now remain about twenty days of the term during which the city is open to foreigners. What we shall find it necessary to do, in order to remain after the expiration of this term, is not quite certain; but it seems probable that I shall be obliged to make some engagement with the government for teaching school; otherwise my continuance here would constitute a precedent which other foreigners would not fail to urge, to the annoyance of the government. At an interview between an officer who ranks third in the city, Dr. Berry, Mr. Davis and myself, the officer stated that as yet the government had not permitted the introduction of Christianity, and therefore I could not commence at present to preach to the people. I said that, until it was permitted, I should not be able to preach, but that if people came to my house I could talk to them of Christianity. He replied that I could do that, but not preach publicly; and added that ere long Japan would probably be opened to Christianity, though as yet it was not. Our settlement here has been attended with many remarkable and favoring providences—in the way of securing a house in a suitable locality, gaining friendly acquaintances among persons of influence, and receiving a welcome from many who can, as yet, but in a small degree appreciate our motives in seeking an abode among them. We find ourselves in the heart of a most populous country, with villages and cities on every hand."

The Tribune has a letter from an intelligent correspondent in Vienna, giving the history of the Old Catholic movement in Austria. In that country, the correspondent thinks, this movement shows its greatest strength. The Austrian Old Catholics have an organization, of which Father Alois Anton is the spiritual head and Dr. Lindner is lay president. There are also vice presidents and secretaries in the various provinces. They have sent out missionaries to all parts of Austria, preaching reform, with such success that they already have enrolled a large body of members. "They are making such progress in the number of converts which join their ranks that the government can scarcely refuse to give them equal rights with all other faiths before long. In Vienna alone there are 3,000 families professing Old Catholicism. In Bohemia there are seven villages, every family of which is Old Catholic. Altogether that province is said to number about 123,000 Old Catholics. Upper Austria has about 19,000, and there are others scattered about the empire in single communities. One of the chief difficulties the Old Catholics have to contend against is the small number of priests of anything beyond the lowest rank which have joined the sect. They have no bishops; and it is probable they will no longer wait for the high priests of the Roman Catholic religion to join them, but create some from among their own body. At first—that is, eighteen months ago—it was thought the Old Catholic movement would spread with great rapidity, and rival in importance the Reformation worked out by Luther. These anticipations have not been realized, principally owing to the want of frankness of the delegates sent to the meeting at Munich; but there is every reason to suppose that as soon as the difficulties placed in its way by some governments are removed, the movement will make an advance and assume an importance little expected by most observers at this moment."

In the annual sermon before the directors and friends of the London Missionary Society Rev. Griffith John represented the Chinese as a nation to be characterized by an absence of religious feeling and life. They are shrewd, practical, commercial and secular to an extreme, and never more so than in their religious performances. In the temple, as well as in the shop, they have a steady eye to business. They bargain with their gods, just as they do with each other, and their religious duties are purely business transactions. A sense of sin, contrition for guilt, humble gratitude, spiritual communion, reverence, love and emotions of like character do not enter into the composition of their worship. There is no thirsting for the spiritual, the heavenly and the divine; no longing for blessedness and the life eternal. On this account it is difficult to draw their attention to the question of religion at any time, and, even when this is attracted, to make them feel its importance. Still there are at the present time more than seven thousand communicants in China. There are devoted Christians, church members, who, notwithstanding the weakness of the religious instinct in the Chinese mind, have tasted the good word of God, and the powers of the world to come; men who are earnest, zealous, warm-hearted followers of Jesus, and are exerting their utmost to spread the divine life in the hearts of their fellow-countrymen. "I have seen," he said, "the story of divine love move even the Chinese to tears." Yet it would be untrue to regard these seven thousand converts as representing the total apparent results. There are hundreds around the various stations who are standing somewhere between the two kingdoms. Men who have been halting between two opinions for years are constantly being received into communion. Here and there people are beginning to question their old creeds and superstitions; some have already cast them aside as worthless; and there are not a few who have become Christian in sentiment, although they have not as yet joined any church organization. And, in addition to all this, there are invisible results which are still greater and even more important in the foundation and preparation for all future growth and success.

The St. Louis Republican draws attention to the fact that the presidential election will not take place, as is generally believed, the same day in all the States. It will begin in Louisiana on the fourth of November. All the other States, except Texas, will vote on the fifth, and Texas will close up the business with a four days' election, from the fifth to the eighth inclusive. Louisiana is required to vote on the fourth—one day in advance of the other States—by a special act of Congress at the last session.

He who has put bounds to our intelligence has not put any to our desires, so that we might conceive a happiness superior to this present life.

The Christian Advocate.

Organ of the Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 24, 1872.

REV. LINUS PARKER, D. D., Editor.
ROBT. J. HARP, PUBLISHER.

OFFICE—No. 112 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

Address, on all matters of business, Rev. R. J. HARP, 112 Camp street, New Orleans.

Address all communications designed for publication to Rev. LINUS PARKER, 112 Camp street, New Orleans.

AGENTS—All the members of the patronizing Conferences.

CONFERENCE PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

FOR ALABAMA CONFERENCE:
REV. W. A. McCARTY.
REV. EDWARD WADSWORTH, D. D.
A. W. LAMPKIN, ESQ.

FOR MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE:
REV. W. H. WATKINS, D. D.
REV. JAMES A. GODFREY.
REV. J. G. JONES.

FOR LOUISIANA CONFERENCE:
REV. WILLIAM V. TUDOR, D. D.
REV. JOHN MATHEWS.
REV. LINUS PARKER, D. D.

REDUCTION.

The New Orleans Christian Advocate will be furnished to subscribers hereafter at the following rates:

Per One Year.....$2 00
Per Six Months.....1 25
Per Three Months.....75

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR

to all ministers of the gospel, traveling or local, and widows of deceased traveling preachers.

FREE ONE YEAR

to any person forwarding to us four new yearly subscribers with EIGHT DOLLARS.

Notice to the Trustees of the Depository.

The members of the board are requested to meet on Thursday evening, October 31, in the office of the ADVOCATE, at six o'clock P. M.

THE WHISKY PLAGUE.

From the daye of Noah until this present, drnnkenness has been a prevailing vice. The allusione to it in the Scriptnres, and by ancient classic writers, are evidence of the fact. Bnt upon ns, "upon whom the ends of the world have come," has come alco the most eweeping and destructive flood of intemperance that any age hae witnessed. To arrest thie torrent of destruction social drinking must he tahooed. It must come to be nnderstood that good society doee not tolerate the preeence of the decanter and the wine-glass, and that bibulous people lose caste, and are eubject to a deserved ostracism. A great deal of drnnkenness originates in the social glass, and the habit is formed by subjection to the usages of fashionable and convivial life. Thousands of young people are led by this influence as sheep to the slaughter.

Another fruitful cause is in the dietetic use of etimulating drinks. The idea prevails with many that these, used as a beverage, are nutritious, or, if not nutritious, that they contribute indirectly to the nourishing of the eyetem by increasing the appetite, and by promoting digestion. It is in a dietary way that many contract the fatal appetite, and go rapidly down to a drunkard's grave. We cannot enter into the arguments on the subject. We do not believe that wine or strong drinks are needful or wholesome in a dietetic point of view, exeept in the rarest instancee; but if they were, we shonld etill discard them as leading to evils a thousand-fold worse than those which thoy may be supposed to avert. No form of dyspepsia, no chronic marasmue, no aspect of constitutional decline, is so bad as the wreeke which drunkenness makes. Our pnrpose, however, ie eimply to indicate that the use of stimulants in a dietary way fostere and develops a groat deal of inebriety.

Another fountain-head of the evil is in the medicinal use of alcoholic stimulants. We aro glad to notice that science is coming to the aid of temperance, and showing that liquors, even as a medicine, are of donhtful value in most instances. It is not always that etrong drink, given "to him that is ready to perish," revives the patient. We know some doctors who rarely administer it, and they are the most successfnl in their profession. We have also known some patients, apparently in extremis, who, knowing tho danger of arousing a slumbering appetite, have refused to taste the stimulant, and who. contrary to the predictions of their medical advisers, have recovered and lived sober lives for many years after. We do not take the position that alcoholic preparations are never of mediciual value, but we do sincerely believe that the doctors are responsible for a fearful amount of drinkenness. Its use as a remedy is abnsed, and in the majority of cases it is prescribed where no real necessity exists.

The commercial and business interests involved in the manufacture and sale of liquor inspire one of the strongest advocacies of its use. The love of money, in one way or another, may be the root of every evil, and so of this as one of the greatest. There is money in the business—more, probahly, than in any one of the great staples of agriculture. The whisky traffic touches and taints many branches of trade and industry. Colossal fortunes are made by it, and there is gain, from the man who raises the grain through all the processes, to the manufacturer, the commission merchant, the wholesale dealer, and the man who pours it out in eingle drinks. There ie profit—money profit—all along until it reaches the blood and brain of the consumer. There the profit stops, and poverty and wretchedness alone mark ite progrees. With so much capital invested, with thie greed of gain enlisted in promoting its sale, and with all the other agencies at work, it is not wonderful that the whisky plague growe to euch monetrous proportions.

How to stay this plague is a problem of difficult eolution. Some have suggested that a plentiful snpply of pure winee would have a beneficial effect, but we fear that thie would be fighting the devil with fire. As well attempt to put out a conflagration by pouring petroleum upon the flame. We know there are different opinione held npon this subject by wise and observant men. After all we have seen and read on the eubject, we believe that the wine remedy would aggravate rather than cure. Legislative action, to a certain extent, ie doubtless feasible, but thie must be bronght about by an enlightened public opinion. Moral and religious ageucies are the chief reliance. These have done much and are doing considerable, hut there needs to be a more general awakening of the religioue mind upon the subject. The organizations for the promotion of temperance should be encouraged, and Christians should place themselves upon no equivocal grounde on the subject. The gospel is the only eure and universal remedy for sin, but its methods and teachings should have direct and specific application to the more promiuent vices of tho times. We subjoin some appropriate statemente and reflections from the Picayune, written by Colonel Dennett, the able editor of the industrial department of that paper. Colonel Dennett says:

Those who think that bad government is even the chief cause of our State afflictions are, we think, greatly in error.

New Orleans manufactures yearly thirty-five thousand barrels of whisky, and about sixty-eight thousand barrels come to this port from the West.

It takes about seventy thousand barrels of whisky yearly to supply the thirsty inhabitante of Louisiana. How much wine, brandy, rum, gin and other liquors the people of New Orleans and other portions of the State consume yearly it is difficult to determine. But those who observe the drinking usagee of society in this city and State will admit that the aggregate amount and expense are enormous.

We know of four parishes in this State, with a population of about forty-three thousand of all ages, colors and sexes, in which four thousand barrels of whisky are required to meet the yearly demand. It has been estimated, upon a fair basis of calculatiou, that the consumere in theso four parishes pay $500,000 yearly for liquor and strong drinks—about threo times the amount of their State and parish taxes.

The colored population all over the State—not only the men but the women—drink enormous quantities of whisky.

Most of the stores in all of the villages and country parishes take out licenses to sell whisky.

Tho city of New Orleans, with a population equal to one-third of the inhabitants of the State, consumes an almost fabulous quantity of whisky and other strong drinks, for which they usually pay fifteen cents a glass, and great quantities of lager beer and milder beverages, for which they pay from ten down to five cents a glass.

The gross sales of the cotton and sugar crops of the State, since the war, usually do not amount to over $30,000,000 yearly. The "drinks" of the people of the State and the liquor bills amonnt to more than $30,000,000 yearly.

We merely state facts. The remedy for these evils is another question.

To what extent do these strong drinks paralyze the energies of the people and cripple the industry of the State?

How far are our present embarrassments attrihntable to the drinking usages of the people?

To what extent do these innumerable "drinks" prevent our people from throwing off the chains that hind them, and restoring good government and prosperity?

How many premature graves do these "drinks" fill, and bow much miscry does it entail upon the multitude?

It strikes directly at the strong arm of labor, and at the fonntainhead of enterprise, and produces more than three-fourthe of the crimce of the city and State.

ENLARGING.

Bro. Harp, our book agent and publisher, has added the adjoining building to the book store, and by throwing the first floore of both into one, he hae a moet capacioue and handsome salesroom. There ie now plenty of elbow room for bneiness, and abundant epace for the arrangement and display of stock. The Depository is now the grand book etore of the Sonthwest, and hae unquestionably, beeides our own church publications, a better supply of valuable etandard and freeh literaturo than any establishment in the South. This exhibition of energy and enterprise on the part of the agent ehould be most gratifying to the friends of a sound literature, and ehould eecure a wider and ever-increasing patronage. Let our city and country people, our merchante and teachers, remember that the Depository can fill orders to any extent for school books and stationery, and at prices as reaeonable as any establishment in the city.

We notice that the ADVOCATE sign has been extended across the entire front, and is in handsome and conspicuous style. We hope for a corresponding spread in our circulation. We are evidently on rising gronud, hut we must riee much higher. At the low price of $2 a year, and with largely enhaneed priees for paper and other material, it requires a very large circulation, and a good advertieing patronage in addition, to meet the inexorable montbly hills. This year thero hae been a gratifying increase, and many have dono nobly, but there ie need of a more vigoroue and advaneed movement all along the line. We hope the brethren, dnring tbo closing months and weeke of the Conference year, will see that the ADVOCATE is in every Methodist family.

IT IS WITH DEEP SORROW that we have heard of the sore bereavement of our friend and brother, Rev. W. H. Scales, of Dallas, Texas. His daughter, Sallie Grayeon, died on the second of October, in her fifteenth year. Sho was highly gifted and cultivated in mind, and a most exemplary Christian. The certainty of a life of blessednese beyond the grave is tho only thing which explains the sad diepensation, and brings resignation to the stricken heart. An appropriate obituary will appear next week.

WE ARE PAINED TO LEARN that Mrs. Lusk, wife of Jamee A. Lusk, of New Orleane, died in Iowa on tbe seventeenth of the present month. Mrs. Lusk had for yeare been afflicted with pulmonary disease, and had spout the last year or two in Minnesota for hor health. Sho was a lady of great piety and worth, and a consistent member of our church. The boreaved husband, children and other kindred have our deepest sympathies in their affliction.

BY REFERENCE to our news columns it will be seen that the venerable historian and diviue, Merle D'Aubigne, died in Geneva, Switzerland, on tho twentieth of this month. Ho had reached tbe ripo age of seventy-six.

MINISTERS AND CHURCHES.

There are defecte in every system of church polity, our own not excepted. Perhaps each has its peculiar excellence and its peculiar weak points. The New York Observer points out the spot in the Presbyterian system where it has not been efficient, and it is a point at which the Methodist plan has a marked superiority. Whatever difficulties we have to encounter, it will be seen that others have theire. About churches withont preachers, and preachers without churches, the New York Observer says:

By the figures in the Minutes of the Presbyterian General Assemhly for 1871 it appears that nearly one-fifth of its whole nnmber of ministers are unemployed! More than one-half of this number were considered capable of performing service for the church. Besides this idle body, are agents, teachers, chaplains, editors, etc., who are not included in the one-fifth with nothing to do.

And now another fact. The same Minutes show that more thau one-fifth of all the chnrches are vacant from year to year, while a prodigioue number of capahle minieters continue unemployed to fill these vacancies!

There are ahundant sacrifices and inconveniencce connected with the itinerancy, but certainly not greater distress than the Observer depicte in the following etatement:

Certainly thie ie the very epot where the system hae not been efficient; and while it hae been always deplored as a defect, no attempt has been made to remedy it. Lately the pressure of the evil has become eo great that it challengee attention. A cry has come up from starving ministere who want work and cannot find it. The waste places want ministers and cannot find them. And this cry is heard all over the church. It ought not to be.

We doubt much if any other church can be named with such a fearful array of weakneee as thie. One-fifth of all its ministers idle, and a etill greater number of ite pulpits vacant!

Carlyle, or eomebody else, eaye the eaddest eight in the world ie a man willing to work, but no work for him to do. But of all such sad sighte, the eaddeet ie a minister willing to preach and no chance for him! He has epent years of his life in preparation for his work. He has learning, talents, piety and willingness to labor. He thinks he wae called of God to the ministry. We have eeen etrong men sit and weep becauee they had no field, hut had wife and children wanting bread! They would not steal, could not dig, and were ashamed to beg. We have heard them utter lond eriee of anguish because no door wae open, and despair was faet taking hold upon them.

Churches ae well as preachors, it seeme, are sadly suffering for want of some meane to bring the idle pastors and vacant charges together. Tbie difficulty is well put in the language of the Observer:

At the same time churcbes are in want of theso willing aud earneet men. They look out and seo no one coming. Thoy cry aloud, but none anewers. They do not know to whom they should apply. Perhaps they write to tho editor of a religions nowspaper, including innocently the idea that an editor knows everything, and will know the man they need. Too often it occurs that they have no intention of giving an adequate support to a pastor, and desiro to find one who can come as near to "work for nothing and find himself" ae possible. Other congregations, willing and anxions to make a ministor comfortable, have no facilities for ascertaining the circumetancee of tho many men who might be sought for. They might be embarrassed in making inquiries of the man if they were in direct commnnication with him, bnt could learn thom readily by applying to an authorized and competent agent.

Tho romedy for this unfortunate state of affairs ie euggested. The establishment of a central bureau, and the exerciso of authority by the presbyteriee in sending licentiates to vacant churches aro proposed. Wo have a central bureau and effective for the distribution of our preachers and the supply of the churches; but tho remarke of the Observer are suggestive:

This central bureau, which wo earnestly commend, is not a perfect cure of the evil, and will not produce all the good that is desired. There should be such a modification (as we know will never be made) by wbich licentiates shall be sent to vacant churches in their own presbyteries, or to any part of the church where they are the most needed. Young men in training for tho ministry should be educated to the idea that they are not their own, hut are dedicated Christoet ec ... to Christ and the church. And coming to the work with such a spirit they wonld not tarry at Jerusalem, lingering around the great centers, and waiting for dead men's shoes, or a chance to he settled in fat pastures. The Christian idea of devotion to tho Master's work ought to impel our young men to throw themselves at once into the arms of the church, saying sincerely: "Here am I; send me."

But with this presbyterial supervision and ready snbmission to proper advice or authority, it will still he found that the church needs what it has never yet had, and we fear never will have—a central ageney, directed by the highest law of the church, at the general expense; so without cost to themselves, unemployed ministers and vacant churches may he brought into union.

THE OLD CATHOLIC CONGRESS.

This body recently met at Cologne, and its action has been looked for with mnch interest. We give the following condensed statement, as prepared by the Independent:

The celibacy of the clergy wae not touched, except in the epeech of the president. That eubject ie deferred till another year; but nobody can donht what the final decision will he. This wae, however, the only eymptom of wavering which the congress ehowed. The breach with Rome is made an impassable chaem. The resolutions which were paesed, and of which we give the subetance below, define the movement. The first eeries of these resolutione relates to the paetoral office. We condense, using the words of the reeolutions themselves:

"Those priests who have been suspended or excommunicated becauee of their fidelity to their religion are qualified to exercise all pastoral functions.

"That regulation, unknown to the ancient church, resting only on positive legislation, that every priest requiree, before administering the sacrament enjoining penance, the approbation of the Bishop, cannot, in our present need, be considered ae binding.

"Wherever the necessity ie felt, the Catholics who have romained trne to the old faith are justified in organizing a regnlar pastorato by the appointment of a prieet. Under the present circumstances euch a priest can, even without institution and in spite of the prohibition of the Bishop fallen from the old faith, perform all paetoral functions.

"In so far as the observation of the liturgical ordinances is not possible, the samo are not obligatory, since tbe validity of the liturgical act doee not depend npon euch things; and according to the formal right, these ordinances may he disregarded.

"When a Catholic church cannot he procured for the celebration of divine service, an Evangelical one, or another edifice, may unhesitatingly be made use of.

"The traditional litnrgical usagee are to be retained as nearly ae possible. The carrying out of reform in the department ef discipline and worehip remaine for the future. For the present a wholesome and unquestionably justifiable reform will be attained by the abolition of surplice fees, stipends for the mass, and the avoidaneo of the nuisance and outgrowths of the system of indulgeneca, the veneration of the saiuts, the scapnlary, medallions, etc.

"It ie also a wholesome reform that in the eermons of our clergy all doclamatione on religioeo-political quoetions of the day, as well as bitterness against the membere of other faiths, be avoided.

"We maintain the right to establieh a regular episcopal jurisdiction—that worthy men bo chosen by tho priests aud the repreeentatives of the congregations, who have remained true to the Old Catholic faitb, ae Bishops, to be consecrated by an orthodox (Old Catholic) Biehop; and that he ehall first of all perform the episcopal functions in the manner of the missionary Bishops of the ancient churcb.

"The congress elects a committee of eeven membere, of whom three ehall be theologiane, two canonists and two laymen. They ehall take all preparatory measures for the election of Bishops."

The congress passed strong resolutione in favor of Christian union, and appointed committees to take measures for ite promotion. The righte of tho Old Catholice in the State were also sharply defined. Tho congress demanded that the German and Anetrian governments, as well as that of Switzerland, shall "(a) consider the Catholice holding fast to tbe Old Catholic Church, and who repudiate the Vatican decrees as an innovation, ae members of the church reeoguized by the State, and as such to be protected. (b) On thō otlrer hand, that they consider the Bishops who have adopted tho Vatican innovation—and their organs—as deprived of every jurisdiction over the Old Catholics, who, without this, are declared in the Vatican decrees as not belonging to the New Catholic sect."

A resolution was also passed requesting tho governments to recognize the Bishops about to be elected as Bishops of the Catholic Church; to consider them as endowed with the same authority over Old Catholic communities as belongs to Catholic Bishops under the existing laws; to grant them dotations from the treasnry; and to appoint the priests to livings under the patronage of the State. The general introduction to the obligatory civil marriage was also declared to he necessary. Three of the resolutions of thie series are especially important:

"The Old Catholics are not bound to contribute to the ecclesiastical objects of the New Catholics.

"The Old Catholic communities are urgently recommended to strive for the repossession of the property of the Catholic Church, by administrative and legal proceedings.

"The Old Catbolics have the unqualified right to demand the joint nse of all churches consecrated to the Catholic service, since the same are consecrated to the Catholic worship, whether we assume that the church belongs to itself or adopt the theory that the end would justify ns in demanding it, or whether, according to the law of the land, the religioue community is the possessor, since the apostasy of the one cannot rob the other of its rights."

So the ieene ie joined and the great contest for the purification of the Catholic Church has fairly begun. We cannot doubt the ultimate result.

TEXAS REVIVAL NEWS.—Our revival intelligence for the month of September sume up, for the five Texae Conferences, seven hundred and eighty conversione and nine hundred and forty-four accessions to the church. These figures, we are eure, fall below the actual results, arising from the failure of some to report the exact number of conversions or accessions to the church. In euch cases we have omitted them from the summary or approximated the number, being careful to be below the probahle nnmber. We again ask our brethren to be ae exact as possible in their reports.

Our churches in Texae are being highly favored this year. From no part of the church do we notice in our religioue exchanges so many and such gracious revivals of religion. Our field of labor is particularly favored. Let us thank God and take conrage.

The above summary does not include the revivals reported in this number, which will be included in the report for October.—Galveston Christian Advocate.

BISHOP KEENER, saye the Galveston Christian Advocate of October 16, reached our city laet Saturday and preached in St. John's church on Sabbath. We were glad to see him looking so fresh and vigorons, notwithstanding his arduous labors during the summer. We do not design this as a hint for our people to work him to death. Our Bishops aro truly obeying the command: "As yon go, preach;" bnt we must not be unmindful of the fact that there is a limit to even episcopal endnrance. Bishop Keener leaves to-day for Belton, where he is duo October 23, to hold the Northwest Texas Conference, the first in the round of Texas Conferencos. A most cordial welcome awaits tho Bishop from his brethren in Texas.

THE STRIKES and disturbances among the laborers on the levee are still kept up to somo oxteut. The police, however, have the matter pretty well under control, and are affording protection to those who choose to work on any terms. Tho right to ask $4 a day ie conceded, but the right to prevent by violence those who wish to work for less is not. The usual result will follow. The strikers will have done much damago to business, and have lost much time and money themselves, while wages will perhaps go lower than ever.

REVIVAL IN BATON ROUGE.—Our latest reports of the meeting at Baton Rouge, which began with the quarterly meeting, October 6, are to the effect that thirty persons have professed conversion and as many have united with the church. The meeting was being continued by the pastor, Rev. A. E. Goodwyn, last week, and we do not know that it has even yet been discontinued. We shall have additional reports for our next issue.

WE HAVE RECEIVED the Minutes of the fifth annual eession of the Lake Providence District Conference. It is a handsome pamphlet of thirty-two pages. The Conference met at Rayville, Louisiana, and the business was transacted with thoroughness—Rev. Joel T. Daves, presiding elder, presiding.

REV. CHRISTIAN KEENEN, writing from Opelousas, October 17, says: "Camp meeting just closed on Spring Creek; large attendance, good order. Eleven preachers in attendance, and nineteen accessions to the church."

THE LORD'S SUPPER.

Mr. Editor: We have been thinking for some time that a few suggestions on the preparation and reception of the sacrament of the Lord's Supper would not be out of place. We will preface our suggestions by a few quotations from Dr. Adam Clark. He says: "If any respect should be paid to the primitive institution, in the celebration of this ordinance, then unleavened, unyeasted bread should be used." Again he says: "I have learned with extreme regret that in many churches and chapels a vile compound, wickedly denominated wine, but of the elder, gooseberry or currant tree, and not unfrequently the issue of the sweepings of a grocer's shop, is substituted for wine in the sacrament of the Lord's Supper." Again he says: "To receive the Lord's Supper with a glove on is indecent, not to say irreverent." Now if any should think that we dwell on small or unimportant matters, still we claim to be in good company. It is often the case that no regard is paid to the kind of bread used in the sacrament. Light or leavened bread is often furnished because it is convenient; or, what is worse, when light bread is not convenient, a dime's worth of soda biscuit is obtained from the grocer's shop. Light bread is difficult enough to use; but it is exceedingly embarrassing, not to say ridiculous, to use soda biscuit, which breaks and crumbles into almost innumerable particles.

We suggest that the steward, whose duty it is to provide the bread, have the dough made with water, let it be well beaten, rolled thin, then marked each way with a knife, making squares one-fourth of an inch large, which may be easily used by the minister.

As to the wine, almost anything called by that name and sold in the grocery is obtained. At the present day a large proportion of the wine is drugged, and often that which is sold for wine is solely made up of chemicals and prepared for traffic. This compound, denominated in the Scriptures mixed wine, and which Solomon says is a mocker, and which symbolizes the wrath of God, is often used in the sacrament of the Lord's Supper. We suggest that the steward, whose duty it is to provide the wine, procure the unfermented and pure juice of the grape. It is now manufactured and put up for the purpose, and can be obtained at about the same cost of other wine. We further suggest that the steward provide neat white linen cloths for the sacramental table, and that it be set decently and in order. If a suitable set cannot be had, let the wine be put in a pitcher, that the significant wine-bottle be kept out of sight. If the steward does not see fit to bear the expenses, then let him order a collection to be taken for the purpose, which he has a right to do. How much more impressive would this sacred ordinance be if thus prepared?

This is one of the most important means of grace, and it may be rendered more so by attaching that importance to it which its sacred character demands. J. P.

Mansfield, La., Oct. 7, 1872.

Brandon District Camp Ground.

Mr. Editor: We, the undersigned, a portion of the committee appointed by the Braudon District Conference for the purpose of locating and securing the ground for a camp meeting for said district, met on the fourth Monday of September, and performed that part of our duty by selecting a spot about one mile south of Morton, in Scott county—a railroad depot. We have the promise of forty acres of land, which will furnish plenty of wood and water. The title is not yet secured, but presume it will be in a short time. A saw mill and other valuable conveniences surround the spot.

Respectfully yours,

Wm. H. Batte.
J. S. Holbert.
A. G. Tadlock.
L. M. Horton.

Brandon, Miss., Oct. 14, 1872.

CONFERENCE REGISTER.

Conference.	Place.	Time.	Bishop.
White River	Augusta	Oct. 30	Wightman.
Trinity	Sul. Springs	Nov. 6	Keener.
Memphis	Somerville	Nov. 20	Wightman.
N. Alabama	Tuskaloosa	Nov. 20	Doggett.
East Texas	Tyler	Nov. 20	Keener.
Virginia	Petersburg	Nov. 20	Paine.
N. Georgia	Atlanta	Nov. 27	Marvin.
N. Missis'ppi	Corinth	Nov. 27	Kavanaugh
Little Rock	Pine Bluff	Dec. 4	Wightman.
Texas	Bryan	Dec. 4	Keener.
N. Carolina	Raleigh	Dec. 4	Paine.
S. Georgia	Thomasv'le	Dec. 11	Marvin.
Mississippi	Brandon	Dec. 11	Kavanaugh
Alabama	Eufaula	Dec. 11	Doggett.
West Texas	Victoria	Dec. 18	Keener.
S. Carolina	Anderson	Dec. 18	Paine.
Louisiana	N. Orleans	Jan. 8	Pierce.
Florida	Fernandina	Jan. 8	Marvin.
Baltimore	Baltimore	Mar. 6	Paine.

Agt's & Publisher's Department

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS OF LETTERS and Funds, Received by Mail, for the week ending Oct. 19, 1872:

A—D Appleton & Co, Erwin, Alden 3 lets $37.25, C G Andrews $17.65, Armstrong, Cator & Co $24.

B—Baltimore Episcopal Methodist, Robert Babbington, Barnes & Wilkinson, James E Bradley 50 cts.

C—B E Christenberg, Robt Carter & Bros, John F Cook, Cassell & Baughn $18, J E Cobb, Mrs Ella Carpenter $5.

D—R B Downer, D M Doom $12.55, J T Daves, Duble & Wooters $14.50, George J Dicks & Sons $25.93, J C DuBose, Park W DeFranc.

E—S R Ellis, John W Ellet.

F—D V Fonro $5.

G—W A Gill 2 lets, Griffin & Hoffman $63.75, Gould & Lincoln, Chas B Galloway $2, U S Grant, R H Graves, Thos C M Golland $200

H—A J Hancy $3.38, W C Halslip, Thos W Hines, Thos Holloway.

J—W W Jones, H F Johnston 2 lets, Geo Jackson.

K—J T Kilgour, Chris Kecner.

L—J B Lippincott & Co 3 lets, J E Letton, A C Littlejohn, R M Lenton $100.

M—A W Mooro $2, H H Montgomery, S McPhatton, E H Mounger, T Moody, J M McKee.

N—J Nicholson.

P—R T Parish, Powers Paper Co, T C Parish, J H Packwood 2 lets, J B Price, L Prang & Co, R Parvin.

R—J W Rush $24.65, A H Redford, T B Russel, Randolph Macon College $15.

S—J A Sanderson, H L Smith, Sheldon & Co, J F Scurlock, Geo S Scofield, T W Stanton, B L Selman $4.20, W H Scales.

T—E L Tarver $4.

W—Amicus W Williams, W M Wlan, J Woodbridge $18, S Wildblood, W R Williams $15, Horace Waters, J F Wynn, J R Wilson.

Y—R L Yancy $16.

Z—J H Zellia & Co.

F. R. Hardon, at No. 29 Chartres street, has on hand a large stock of straw, millinery and fancy goods.

P. W. McKitrick & Co., 169 Poydras street, manufacture window shades, awnings, etc. See their advertisement in another column.

We direct the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Messrs. Wallace & Co., importers and wholesale dealers in dry goods.

We take pleasure in recommending Mr. J. H. Dorand to those in want of the services of a competent and faithful carpenter and builder.

Mrs. Charles Brown, dressmaker, has removed her establishment, and can now be found at No. 176 Canal street, opposite the Varieties Theater.

We call the attention of our readers to the card of Julius Loeffler, gas fitter, 43 Royal street. His work is always performed in a satisfactory manner.

Messrs. McCloskey, Bigley & Co. are prepared to supply any demand for Pittsburg, anthracite and Peytonia or Virginia cannel coals. Their office is at 166 Gravier street.

George Coats, 168 Magazine street, is now prepared to furnish new and second-hand safes, repair lightning rods, bank locks, printing presses, etc. See advertisement elsewhere.

O. P. Alford, at the Southern sale stables, corner of Delord and Dryades streets, is just in receipt of a lot of working stock, to which he invites the attention of merchants, dealers and planters.

Charles H. Reed, Real Estate Broker, 87 St. Charles street, offers his services in the negotiation of rent and sale of property, etc. Attention is directed to his card in another column.

As the winter approaches the question of a supply of coal becomes interesting, and we would remind our readers that John D. & L. C. Macfin, 31 Carondelet street, long and favorably known in this business, are prepared to promptly execute all orders for Pittsburg and anthracite coal.

Messrs. Darcy & Wheeler, No. 70 Canal street, one of our largest and most reliable clothing firms, advertise in another column. Buyers will find it to their advantage to call on them. Their manufactory at Newark, New Jersey, affords them extraordinary facilities in the sale of goods in their line.

Messrs. Hillman & Manard, whose card will be found in another column, ask their friends and the public generally to remember that they are still at the old stand, 157 Poydras street, where they are prepared to furnish choice family groceries, teas, domestic and imported fruits at prices to suit the times.

Rice Brothers & Co.—The firm of Rice Brothers & Co., well known as dealers in hardware and house furnishing goods of every description for the past twenty-five years, have on hand a full line of carpenters', cabinet makers', coopers' and blacksmiths' tools, as well as tinners' stock, tools and machines, and cooking and heating stoves and ranges. They are manufacturers of bright tin and Japan ware, and agents for the celebrated Charter Oak cooking stove, the only perfect baking stove in use, and without which no household is complete.

A Select Boarding House.—We know of no person more thoroughly capacitated to keep a home-like boarding house than Mrs. H. A. Garrett, whose advertisement appears elsewhere. Her location at 394 St. Charles street is convenient and pleasant. We have known Mrs. Garrett for many years, and take pleasure in recommending her house.

New Orleans Mutual Insurance Company.—The above company may be safely recommended to the patronage of the public. The name of a gentleman of such extensive resources and consummate ability as a financier as Mr. C. Cavaroc, at the head of any corporation, is a tower of strength. It is with pleasure we call attention to their October exhibit in another column.

Pianos at $450, on One Year's Time. Mr. Philip Werlein, the popular and enterprising piano dealer of New Orleans, is selling splendid, fine, rich and brilliant-toned pianos on most liberal and accommodating terms. Hale's seven octave pianos, rosewood case, carved legs, with patent agraffe, for $450—$90 cash, $90 in three months, $90 in six months, $90 in nine months and $90 in one year. No extra charge for stool and cover, and a full guarantee. Monthly payments can be made; instead of quarterly, if preferred. A discount at the rate of ten per cent. per annum for cash. Needham's Silver Tongue organs he sells on the same terms. Complete lists will be mailed to any address free. Address Philip Werlein, Nos. 80, 82 and 90 Baronne street.

Dr. Henry's Root and Plant Pills.—Mild yet thorough; no nausea or griping; entirely vegetable; great Liver remedy. Price, 25 cents. Sold by druggists. jy18 1y

Twelve Samples (Postage Free) for fifty cents. Sells for $10. R. L. Wolcott, 181 Chatham square, N. Y. se26 1y

Use Dr. Henry's Wechl's Tonic and Blood Purifier.—It is the great household remedy, pleasant to take, yet potent for the prevention and cure of diseases. It is better than Bitters, Cordials, Buchu or Sarsaparilla. Sold by druggists. jy18 1y

BUSINESS NOTICES.

A Triumph.—No medicine ever offered to the people has won for itself such a reputation in so short a time as Dr. Tutt's Expectorant. Wherever it has been introduced it has superseded all other cough remedies. It not only cures the cough, but so thoroughly purifies the lungs that no fears of its return need be apprehended.

Memphis, February 11, 1869.

Dr. William H. Tutt—Sir: I have been sufferlag for nearly two years with a severe cough and great difficulty of breathing. My weight was one hundred and forty-five pounds; and when I commenced taking your Expectorant I was reduced to one hundred and sixteen. I had tried almost everything; had terrible night sweats. I have taken half a dozen bottles. The night swoals have left me, the cough has almost disappenred, and I have gained fifteen pounds in weight. I believe it will cure my cough. I recommend it to all my friends. With respect, oc24 1t OLIVER RICE.

Dr. Tutt's Hair Dye has no Bad Odor.

Ladies will find Relief from their Headache, Costiveness, Swimming in the Head, Colic, Sour Stomach, Restlessness, etc., by taking Simmons' Liver Regulator.

Persons living in unhealthy localities may avoid all bilious attacks by taking a dose of Simmons' Liver Regulator occasionally to keep the liver in healthy action. It should be used by all persons, old and young. It is not unpleasant, is a purely vegetable compound, is not injurious to the most delicate constitution, and will keep the liver in healthy action. oc24 1t

Price's Celebrated Stomach Bitters.—The Great Vegetable Restorative and Life-Giving Principle.—This wonderful vegetable restorative, since it has been before the public as a Tonic (October, 1869,) the quantity sold has been some 150,000 dozen, and in every instance given the greatest satisfaction. For dyspepsia, general debility, chills and fever, nervous affections, torpor of the liver, constipation of the bowels, fever and ague, and all choleraic maladies, these Bitters will be found invaluable to all who desire a stimulating Tonic, and are particularly recommended to all persons traveling, by land or sea. Wherever introduced it has become a standard article. It is the best and purest Tonic offered. As a Tonic and Cordial it has no equal among stomachics.

It is also a great blood purifier, a life-giving principle, and a perfect renovator of the system. No one can take these Bitters long and remain unwell. A single trial will convince any one of the merits claimed for them. Sold by grocers, druggists and dealers throughout the South.

Address James W. Price & Co., sole manufacturers and proprietors, Lock Box 166, New Orleans, Louisiana. se5 2m

Have your Printing and Binding Done at

THE PELICAN JOB OFFICE,

112 and 111 Poydras St., New Orleans. jn18 1y

The Equitable Life Assurance Society, New York.

Assets, $18,000,000. Income, $8,000,000.

Branch office—33 Camp Street.

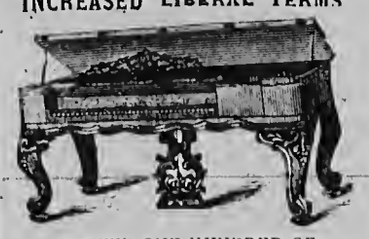
A. P. CLEVELAND,
fe8 1y General Agent.

Mrs. Whitcomb's Syrup.—The great soothing remedy. Price only 25 cents. Gives rest to the mother and health to the child. Sold by druggists. jy18 1y

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

PIANOS AND ORGANS.

INCREASED LIBERAL TERMS



I OFFER ONE HUNDRED OF

HALE & COMPANY'S

Fine, Rich and Brilliant-Toned Pianos, with Rosewood Case, Carved Legs and Patent Agraffe, fully guaranteed, for $150—for $90 cash, $90 in three months, $90 in six months, $90 in nine months and $90 in one year. Payments can be made monthly, if preferred. A discount at the rate of ten per cent. per annum will be made for cash. Same terms on lower and higher-priced pianos. No extra charge for fine Stool and Cover.

ONE HUNDRED MAGNIFICENT

WALNUT-CASED ORGANS,

WITH EMBELLISHED MOLDINGS.

NEEDHAM'S SILVER TONGUE, six stops, two sets reeds, best and sweetest-toned in the world, at $200—for $72 cash, $12 in three months, $12 in six months, $12 in nine months and $12 in one year. Ten per cent. discount for cash. Complete list mailed free, if desired. Address

PHILIP WERLEIN,
80, 82 and 90 Baronne street,
oc24 1y NEW ORLEANS.

COAL..... COAL..... COAL.

We are prepared to supply, at reasonable rates, any demand in Pittsburg, Anthracite and Peytonia or Virginia Cannel Coals.

McCLOSKEY, BIGLEY & CO.,
oc24 2m 166 Gravier street.

WALLACE & CO.,

IMPORTERS AND WHOLESALE DEALERS IN

DRY GOODS,

11 and 13 Magazine sts., and 79, 81, 83, 85, 87 and 89 Common st.,
oc24 6m NEW ORLEANS.

JULIUS LOEFFLER, GAS FITTER, AND

DEALER IN GAS FIXTURES, ETC.,

No. 43 Royal street,

Bet. Customhouse and Bienville streets,
oc24 3m NEW ORLEANS.

DARCY & WHEELER,

Clothing, Furnishing Goods and Trunks

AT WHOLESALE,

No. 70 Canal street, New Orleans.

Manufactory—Garthwaite, Darcy & Wheeler, Newark, New Jersey. oc24 1y.

F. R. HARDON,

DEALER IN

Straw, Millinery and Fancy Goods,

No. 29 Chartres street,

Between Canal and Customhouse streets,
oc24 2m NEW ORLEANS.

Select Boarding House, 394 Saint Charles street.—Mrs. H. A. Garrett, at the above address, is prepared to accommodate a limited number of boarders, and has several desirable rooms which she would rent to gentlemen wishing rooms without board. References required. References—Advocate office, C. L. Walmsley & Co., and Dr. James Jones, Jr. oc24 3m

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

This unrivaled medicine is warranted not to contain a single particle of Mercury, or any injurious mineral substance, but is

PURELY VEGETABLE.

For Forty Years it has proved its great value in all diseases of the LIVER, BOWELS and KIDNEYS. Thousands of the good and great in all parts of the country vouch for its wonderful and peculiar power in purifying the Blood, stimulating the torpid Liver and Bowels, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system. SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR is acknowledged to have no equal as a

LIVER MEDICINE.

It contains four medical elements never united in the same happy proportion in any other preparation, viz.: a gentle Cathartic, a wonderful Tonic, an unexceptionable Alterative, and a certain Corrective of all impurities of the body. Such signal success has attended its use that it is now regarded as the

GREAT UNFAILING SPECIFIC

for Liver Complaint and the painful offspring thereof, to wit: Dyspepsia, Constipation, Jaundice, Bilious attacks, Sick Headache, Colic, Depression of Spirits, Sour Stomach, Heart-burn, etc. Regulate the Liver and prevent

CHILLS AND FEVER.

SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR is manufactured only by

J. H. ZEILIN & CO.,

Macon, Georgia, and Philadelphia.

Price, $1 per package; sent by mail, postage paid, $1.25. Prepared ready for use in bottles, $1.50. Sold by all druggists.

☞ Beware of all Counterfeits and Imitations. se19 1y

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN FOREIGN and Domestic Heavy and Shelf HARDWARE.—Carpenters', Cabinet Makers', Coopers' and Blacksmiths' Tools; Tinners' Stock, Tools and Machines; Cast, Tinned and Enameled Hollowware; Cooking and Heating Stoves and Ranges; House Furnishing Goods of every description. Manufacturers of Bright Tin and Japan Ware. Sole agents for the celebrated Charter Oak Cooking Stove, known for eighteen years as the only perfect and complete Baking Stove in use. Every Charter Oak is fully guaranteed. Send for descriptive catalogues and price lists.

89 and 91 Camp street,
Branch Store, 565 Magazine street,
oc24 3m NEW ORLEANS, LA.

New and Entertaining Books.

Charles Dickens as a Reader.

BY CHARLES KENT.

With Fac-Similes. 12mo. Extra cloth. $1.50.

"The book is pleasantly and simply written, and will be received with pleasure by all admirers of perhaps the most finished elocutionist of his day."—American Athenæum.

VICTOR NORMAN, RECTOR;

OR BESSY'S HUSBAND.

A ROMANCE.

BY MRS. MARY A. DENISON,

Author of "What Not?" "Among the Squirrels," "The Lover's Trials," etc.

12mo. Fine cloth. $1.50.

Distinguished for its insight into character, its natural and unaffected style, and for an influence at once gentle, exhilarating and refined.

WORLD OF ANECDOTE.

An Accumulation of Facts, Incidents and Illustrations, Historical and Biographical, from Books and Times Recent and Remote.

BY E. PAXTON HOOD,

Author of "Lamps, Pitchers and Trumpets," etc., etc.

An elegant Demi 8vo. Vol. of 700 pp. $3.50.

Doctrine of the Lord's Supper

AS SET FORTH IN THE BOOK OF CONCORD,

CRITICALLY EXAMINED AND ITS FALLACY DEMONSTRATED.

BY REV. J. B. GROSS.

12mo. Extra cloth. $1.25.

☞ For sale by Booksellers generally, or will be sent by mail, post-paid, on receipt of the price by

J. B. LIPPINCOTT & CO., Publishers,
715 AND 717 MARKET STREET,
oc24 2t Philadelphia.

Chas. H. Reed, Real Estate Broker, 87 St. Charles street.—Buys and sells all sorts of city and country property. Mortgages made promptly. Various pretty Cottages in choice locations are offering on long terms. Has for sale the finest Building Sites in the city, and, being largely interested himself, can speak confidently on all matters pertaining to the sale, rental, appraisement and management of real estate. oc24 2m

P. W. McKitrick & Co., No. 169 Poydras street, between St. Charles and Carondelet, manufacturers of

WINDOW SHADES, AWNINGS,

Wire Screens and Boxes,

and agents for Marston's celebrated Hand and Foot Circular Sawing and Boring Machine combined—$34. $2 Shades, complete and put up. oc24 2m

HILLMAN & MANARD, 157 POYDRAS ST., Bet. St. Charles and Carondelet sts.,

DEALERS IN

FANCY GROCERIES, FRUITS, TEAS,

AND ALL KINDS OF

FAMILY & PLANTATION SUPPLIES.

Special attention paid to consignments of Country Produce. Orders and consignments respectfully solicited. oc24 2m

To the Public.—I am now prepared to remove and repair Iron Safes; also Lightning Rods repaired and put up to order. I have also on hand New and Second-hand SAFES for sale, both Burglar and Fire-Proof. Particular attention paid to repairing Bank Locks and Printing Presses, on most reasonable terms, by GEO. COATS, oc21 2m 168 Magazine st., near Julia.

Established in 1843.

GUNS! GUNS! GUNS!

Breech and Muzzle-loading Guns, Rifles, Pistols, Sportsmen's Apparatus, Ammunition and Material for Gunmakers, etc., wholesale and retail. Guns made to order or repaired in the best manner.

ALEXANDER McCOMAS,
se12 2m 51 South Calvert st., Baltimore, Md.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS

NEW ORLEANS

Mutual Insurance Association,

NO. 10 EXCHANGE ALLEY.

THIRD QUARTERLY STATEMENT.

In conformity with their charter, the New Orleans Mutual Insurance Association publish the following statement of their affairs for the third quarter, ending Sept. 30, 1872:

Fire premiums	$221,481 16
Marine premiums	52,409 46
River premiums	42,601 46
		$316,492 08
Less unearned prem's.	165,972 74
Less returned prem's.	231 44
		166,204 18
Net earned premiums		$150,287 90
Fire losses	$3,858 70
Marine losses	11,265 42
River losses	832 91
Reserved for unadjusted losses	27,500 00
	$43,456 73
Reinsurances	925 24
Taxes, licenses and internal revenue stamps	7,135 00
General expenses	13,453 36
Rebate	1,541 48
Profit and loss	6,997 52
	$73,509 33
Add 2½ per ct. interest for third quarter on capital paid $22,617 44
Less discount and interest 16,790 96	5,858 48
		79,365 81
Net profits		$70,922 09

ASSETS.

Stock notes	$88,802 29
Cash	104,803 63
Notes and bills receivable	564,732 10
Stocks and bonds	123,915 38
Real estate	135,934 77
Premiums in course of collection.	7,070 96
Assessment of fifty per cent. on $134,298.43	67,149 22
Total	$1,092,438 35

The above statement is a correct transcript from the books of the New Orleans Mutual Insurance Association.

C. CAVAROC, President.
George Lanaux, Secretary.

State of Louisiana,
Parish of Orleans, City of New Orleans.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this fourth day of October, 1872.

G. LEGARDEUR, Notary Public.

At a special meeting of the Board of Directors, held this day, it was resolved, in conformity with article seven of the charter, to collect forthwith from stockholders an assessment of fifty per cent. on the net earned premiums of the third quarter of 1872, subject to assessment, amounting to $134,298.43; and it was further resolved to pay to stockholders, on demand, a quarterly interest of two and a half per cent. on the amount of capital paid in.

C. CAVAROC, President.
George Lanaux, Secretary.

Directors.

C. Cavaroc,	S. Cambon,
Charles DeRuyter,	A. Policy,
Leon Haas, Jr.,	J. Egli,
E. F. Moton,	L. S. Wiltz.
W. Agar,	L. Queyrouze,
oc24 1m	A. Thibaut.

J. H. DORAND,

CARPENTER AND BUILDER.

Shop on St. Charles street,

Bet. Louisiana avenue and Toledano street,
NEW ORLEANS.
Box 171 Mechanics' Exchange. oc24 1y

Mrs. Charles Brown,

DRESSMAKER,

176 Canal street, New Orleans, La.

oc24 6m Opposite Varieties Theater.

Southern Sale Stables, corner of Delord and Dryades streets.—Having purchased the above Stables from George W. Fisher, I will constantly keep on hand the largest variety of Kentucky MULES; also Harness and Saddle HORSES. Take the Jackson Railroad and Dryades street cars, foot of St. Charles street; they take you to the Stables in five minutes. Merchants, planters and dealers will find it to their interest to give me a call before purchasing elsewhere. (oc24 3m) O. P. ALFORD.

A Tremendous Success

T. S. ARTHUR'S NEW BOOK.

THREE YEARS IN A MAN TRAP.

(A Companion to "Ten Nights in a Barroom.") 25,000 sold in a few weeks!

Agents say they never had a book which sells like it. One canvasser took eighty orders in three days, another twenty-in a half day. It sells to all classes, and is so cheap that any family can afford to buy it. Strongly indorsed by all the leading men in the temperance cause. Send for illustrated circular and terms, and secure good territory at once. QUEEN CITY PUBLISHING CO., 18 West Fourth Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

se5 1y

Wanted.—A Lady of several years' experience as a teacher, a graduate of a respectable female college, and fully qualified to teach the usual branches of an English education, wishes a situation in a school or family. Address

A. F., care Advocate office,
oc17 3t 110 and 112 Camp st., New Orleans.

S. W. WREN'S

NEW CASH HOUSE,

NO. 637 MAGAZINE ST. (Wade's Block.)

is opening Fall and Winter NEW GOODS, which will be sold at very low prices. He solicits the public, especially the ladies, to call and examine his stock of fresh Staple, Fancy and Dress Goods of latest styles. oc17 1m Reopening of the St. Louis,

(FIRST-CLASS HOTEL.)

ON THE FIFTEENTH OF OCTOBER,

Under the Management of oc17 1m E. F. MOTON, President.

To Printers.—I am manufacturing

SUPERIOR PRINTERS' INK,

on a scale to supply the demand, made of the purest material, and sold at New York prices. Orders solicited. J. DOUGLAS,
oc17 1m 10 Camp street.

S. Collins & Co.,

MANUFACTURERS OF

PRINTING INK,

Office and Depot—36 Frankfort Street,

Jy25 6m NEW YORK.

COAL..... COAL..... COAL.

B. D. WOOD & BROS.,

106 Common st., opposite City Hotel,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in all kinds of COAL. Pittsburg Coal delivered by boat load or less on the coast, and shipped in casks or in bulk at lowest market rates. City trade supplied. oc17 3m

40 DROPS OF CONSTITUTION WATER, three times a day, cure inflammation of the Kidneys, Stone in the Bladder, Catarrh of the Bladder, Diabetes, Gravel, Gleet, Brick-Dust Deposit, Female Complaints, Dyspepsia and Torpid Liver. It is not a spring water. For sale by E. J. HART & CO., se26 Gaeow 73, 75 and 77 Tchoupitoulas st.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

CASH HOUSE.

1872-3. Fall and Winter. 1872-3.

In calling attention to our Establishment this season, we take great pleasure in stating that our increased facilities for

BUYING GOODS CHEAP

will enable us to be of great pecuniary advantage to the CASH BUYERS who wish to make their money do them good service. We feel confident in saying that our NEW

FALL AND WINTER STOCK,

NOW OPENED, WILL PROVE NOT ONLY

UNEQUALED IN VARIETY

AND DESIRABILITY,

BUT

UNAPPROACHABLE IN CHEAPNESS

The great increase in our business convinces us that our efforts to please are fully appreciated, and inclines us to unusual exertions to prove that we are not unworthy of the confidence of our constituents.

To persons residing out of the city we would say that it is always a pleasure to forward them samples and prices, and that we send Goods "C. D. D." to any section where the Railroads or Packets run.

We deem it unnecessary to mention our stock in detail. We keep everything that belongs to

A First-Class Dry Goods House.

It shall be our constant aim to have the

NEWEST STYLES OF GOODS

AT THE

LOWEST POSSIBLE PRICES,

AND OUR

LIGHT EXPENSES, CASH SYSTEM, AND SHREWD BUYERS

JUSTIFIES THE BELIEF THAT

WE CANNOT BE UNDERSOLD.

BRASELMAN & ADAMS,

DEALERS IN

Foreign and Domestic Dry Goods,

586 AND 588 MAGAZINE ST.,

CORNER ST. ANDREW ST.

☞ CASH HOUSE. oc17 1m

MECHANICS' AND TRADERS' INSURANCE CO.,

14 CARONDELET ST., NEW ORLEANS, LA.

CAPITAL..... $500,000

THIRD ANNUAL STATEMENT.

In conformity with the requirements of their charter, the Company makes the following Statement.

Premiums for the year ending August 31, 1872:

On fire risks	$152,207 75
On marine risks	24,819 90
On river risks	62,724 33
		$238,719 98
Deduct unearned and returned premium during the year	45,178 39
		$193,571 59
Losses paid during the year:
On fire risks	$52,017 61
On marine risks	18,116 07
On river risks	15,555 99
	$85,689 67
	$107,881 92
Reinsurances, and rebate	$27,108 41
Taxes and general expenses, less interest, and contingent fund	6,938 88
	$34,167 29
	$73,711 63
Reserved for unadjusted losses	12,400 00
Net profits	$61,311 63

The Company have the following Assets:

Stock notes	$303,182 00
Bills receivable for premiums and for loans secured by pledge	178,978 59
Insurance scrip	200 00
Premiums in course of collection.	19,582 57
Cash on hand	52,279 78
Invested in bank, insurance and other stocks, bonds, etc., cost	30,892 67
Total	$585,295 61

The above statement is a true and correct transcript from the books of the Company.

LLOYD R. COLEMAN, President.
James A. White, Secretary.

State of Louisiana,
City of New Orleans.

Sworn to and subscribed before me, the undersigned Notary Public, on the eighteenth day of September, eighteen hundred and seventy-two. CHAS. G. ANDRY,
Notary Public.

The Board of Trustees have declared the following profits, to wit:

Interest on paid in Capital, Ten per cent.
Dividend on paid-in Capital, Nine per cent.
Dividend on earned Premium, Twenty-four per cent.

All of which dividends will be credited on stock notes, certificates for which will be issued on and after the twenty-first of October next.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES.

C. W. Allen,	I. Bloom,
John D. Cobb,	Frederick Ernest,
I. L. Haas,	J. A. Lane,
Edward Nalle,	J. Pinckney Smith,
A. J. Aiken,	C. H. C. Brown,
George W. Church,	Benjamin Gerson,
John N. Harrison,	Robert L. Moore,
R. H. Noble,	W. H. Thompson,
J. A. Braselman,	Thomas B. Hodley,
J. E. Campbell,	P. A. Green,
T. H. Hunt,	John Myers,
Edward C. Payne,	Frederick Wiltz,
W. T. Blakemore,	Louis A. Wiltz,
Lucien J. Boize,	T. S. Waterman,
James S. Laupheir,	Lloyd R. Coleman.
G. W. Sentell.

New Orleans, Sept. 23, 1872. oc17 1m

$30 PER WEEK AND EXPENSES paid. We want a reliable agent in every County in the United States. Address Hudson River Wire Co., 130 Malden Lane, New York, or Chicago, Illinois. oc10 1yeow

The Child's Corner.

THE BLIND BOY.

BY THE LATE REV. DR. HAWES.

"Dear Mary," said the poor blind boy,
"That little bird sings very long:
Say, do you see him in his joy,
And is he pretty as his song?"

"Yes, Edward, yes," replied the maid;
"I see the bird on yonder tree;"
The poor boy sighed and gently said:
"Sister, I wish I could see.

"The flowers, you say, are very fair,
And bright green leaves are on the trees,
And pretty birds are singing there—
How beautiful for one who sees!

"Yet I the fragrant flowers can smell,
And can feel the green leaf's shade,
And I can hear the notes that swell
From those dear birds that God has made.

"So, sister, God to me is kind,
Though sight, alas! he has not given;
But tell me, are there any blind
Among the children up in heaven?"

"No, dearest Edward, there all see;
But why ask me a thing so odd?"
"Oh, Mary, he's so good to me,
I thought I'd like to look at God!"

Ere long disease his hand had laid
On that dear boy, so meek and mild;
His widow'd mother wept and prayed
That God would spare her sightless child.

He felt her warm tears on his face,
And said: "Oh! never weep for me;
I'm going to a bright, bright place,
Where, Mary says, I first shall see.

"And you'll be there—dear Mary too—
But mother, when you get up here,
Tell Edward, mother, that 'tis you—
You know I never saw you here."

He spoke no more, but sweetly smil'd,
Until the final blow was given—
When God took up that poor blind child,
And open'd first his eyes in heaven.

Another Letter from Roy Hammond.

MR. EDITOR: You know I told you in my other letter I was going to Glendale. Well, so I did, and here I am still, and it is the jolliest place. I should, like to tell you all about the farm, grandpa and grandma and my cousins; but seeing you are a minister, I guess you'd rather hear about the minister and church we have here. Well, in the first place, the church (meeting house everybody calls it here) is a very old one, and there hasn't been a meeting in it, before this summer, for years and years, and some of the folks near by have used it to store apples and corn-fodder in. So you may know it's not very fine-looking, outside or in. Way up high there are a lot of swallows' nests, and right in the midst of prayer, sometimes, those swallows will come sailing over our heads. There's no need of raising the windows, no matter how hot the weather is; there isn't one pane of glass left, for the boys have stoned them all out. Joe and I wish there was, for they would make a splendid mark to hit. May be you think it would be wicked, but as long as so many are gone, I don't see the harm of finishing the rest. But it is the very best place to go to church in ever you saw. I can remember the text every time, and a good part of the sermon too, because, you see, the minister is different from ours. He just goes from one end of the pulpit to the other, and stamps his feet, and brings his fist down so hard on the Bible, you'd think it would most mash it (his fist, I mean,) and then he'll put both hands on the desk, and lean way over, ever so far, for he's a very long man, and just when I begin to hold my breath for fear he's going to tumble over he'll come up with a quick jerk, and I've had my scare for nothing. So, you see, I want to know what he's going to do next, and I keep my eyes upon him all the time, and hear more of the sermon than I used to at home when I was catching flies. I haven't wanted to catch a fly here, neither has Joe. I don't believe we could if we wanted to ever so much; for some reason they don't seem to light. I guess it's because there's so much air and sunshine that nobody gets sleepy, not even the flies, for all the people say amen! out loud every time the minister says anything they think is good and true, and I believe it's the right way to do, for it must make the minister feel good to see the folks all agreeing with him, and it keeps them all awake too; for I'm sure nobody, not even papa, could go to sleep with so many amens all about him.

I do wish pa could be here just one Sunday. I'll bet his head wouldn't be nodding before the sermon was half through, as it is at home. And then the singing! I jumped off my seat the first Sunday, 'cause after the minister read the hymn, when everything was just as still, I heard a loud voice way up in the roof (it seemed to me) call out: "Forty-third page, fust piece." I looked behind me, and way up ever so high I saw the choir. In a few minutes I heard a faint little sound, which went—ting—and saw a queer fat man, holding a sort of steel thing, made with two prongs, to his right ear (grandpa says it's a pitchfork—no, a tune fork, I mean,) and then he sung kind of soft, Do, mi, sol, and the choir all said Do, mi, sol, after him; and then they all got up, and a big man with a bass-viol most as big as himself, rose up at the same time, and drew his bow, and the singing began. And it was singing, I can tell you, for there was a crowd of them, and it seems as if they made most as much noise as they did at the Peace Jubilee, counting the bass-viol and all.

We live three miles from meeting, and we don't go home noons, for we have Sunday school between the two services. I want to tell you how my little cousin made the whole school laugh last Sunday, and even the minister smiled. When the teacher asked: "Walter, can you tell me for what purpose Eve was created?" he replied, at the top of his voice: "To steal apples, marm." Grandma always takes a basket of luncheon, and, after Sunday school, we all go out to the graveyard near by, and put the things on a big flat stone, which covers the grave of my great grandpa, just like a table, and we eat our dinner there. I wonder if it is quite right? Won't you tell me what you think about it? To be sure he lived a great many years ago, and died long before any of us were born. So, of course, we can't feel very sorry he is dead, but I do wish we might eat our dinner somewhere else. Seems as though it would taste better—don't you think so?

I want to tell you how I hurt my foot. You see my grandpa is what they call a big farmer, and keeps ever so many cows, and most all of 'em has got a calf, and some have got two. Grandpa keeps them in a big pen behind the west barn, and Joe and I thought it was the very tallest kind of fun to get on their backs and ride them. We used to do it a good many times each day, and after a little while they began to grow poor, and grandpa couldn't think what ailed them till one day he caught us at it, and he called us to him, and told us, in a louder voice than I ever thought he had, if ever we did it again he would tune us. Now we didn't really know what he meant by that, but 'spose'd it was something like tuning a fiddle. But any way we didn't think it was anything very bad, and we did want to ride those calves dreadfully. Mr. Beecher, did you ever ride a calf when you was a little chap? I'll bet, if you did, you'd have done it once more, even if you knew you'd get two tunings. Well, the next morning grandpa set off to mill with a big grist. He asked us to go with him, but we didn't want to. Oh, how I wish we had! for we knew he'd be gone a great while, and, just as soon as he was out of the yard, we went straight to the calf pen, pulled off our jackets, for it was pretty warm work, riding calves, and each of us got on one, and the fun began. We hadn't been round the pen more than half a dozen times, when who should we see standing by the gate but grandpa! And he didn't look one bit pleasant, either. I was so scart I let go my calf's tail (for I sat with my back to its head, so I could get a good grip on its tail to keep me on) and off I tumbled, and somehow the calf came top of me, and hurt my ankle dreadfully. By the time I got straightened out, and could look about me, I saw Joe was getting his tuning. Grandpa had just had the barn newly shingled, and they were lying all about. Grandpa was holding poor Joe over his knee, and using one of those shingles which lay there so handy. Ah, my! how Joe did holler! By the time Joe was finished off, my ankle was aching terribly, and it did seem as if I couldn't bear anything more just then. I'm ashamed to tell of it, but I was howling most as loud as Joe, and began to beg grandpa not to tune me till the next day, and he didn't. He took me up just as carefully as he could, and carried me to the house, but I could see his mouth twitching, and he kept biting his lips all the way. I 'spose he felt bad to think what naughty boys we were, and I'm sure we've both been very sorry, and promised never to do it again. I had to lie on the lounge a good many days, and I'm so lame now I can't go without a crutch. I haven't got my tuning yet, but I know I shall, for grandpa never breaks his word. He's just like me about that. I do wish it was over with, though, for it keeps me awake nights, thinking of it. I know it's pretty hard to bear, for Joe was so sore for a week he didn't want to ride a calf, he said. That's how I happen to be here now, after Tom has gone home and begun school. It was pretty lonesome after he went, but grandma makes me lots of nice things to eat, and that's a great comfort. Then Jane tells me stories, and they are all real good to me, and next week papa's coming, and, if I'm a good deal better, I'm going home with him. What a long letter I have written you! I shall be pretty busy making up my lessons, but if you want any help about your paper let me know, and I'll do as I said. Good by. ROY HAMMOND.

Christian Union.

Do It Well.

Said Harry, throwing down the shoe-brush: "There, that'll do; my shoes don't look very bright. No matter; who cares?"

"Whatever is worth doing is worth doing well," replied a serious but pleasant voice.

Harry started, and turned round to see who spoke. It was his father. Harry blushed. His father said: "Harry, my boy, your boots look wretched. Pick up your brush and make them shine. When they look as they should come into the library."

"Yes, pa," replied Harry, pouting; and, taking up the brush in no very good humor, he brushed the dull boots until they shone nicely. When the boots were polished he went to his father, who said to him:

"My son, I want to tell you a short story. I once knew a poor boy whose mother taught him the proverb: 'Whatever is worth doing is worth doing well.' The boy went to be a servant in a gentleman's family. He took pains to do everything well, no matter how trivial it seemed. His employer was pleased, and took him into his shop. He did his work well there. When he was sent on an errand he went quickly, and did his work faithfully. When he was told to make out a bill, or enter an account, he did that well. This pleased his employer, so that he advanced him step by step until he became clerk, then a partner, and now a rich man, and anxious that his son Harry should learn to practice the rule which made him prosper."

"Why, pa, were you a poor boy once?" asked Harry.

"Yes, my son; so poor that I had to go into a family and black boots, wait on the table, and do other little menial services for a living. But doing these things well, I was soon put, as I have told you, to do things more important. Obedience to the proverb, with God's blessing, made me a rich man."

Harry never forgot the conversation. Whenever he felt like slighting a bit of work he thought of it, and felt spurred to do his work well. "Whatever is worth doing is worth doing well" cheered him in his daily duties.

BE VERY INDUSTRIOUS. Our time should be employed in helping others, or in getting good to ourselves. It is a sin to be idle.

The Farm and Garden.

Hints for October.

The cool nights, bracing breezes and pleasant sunshine, which gives to our Southern autumns a charm unknown to most other regions, has a wonderfully invigorating effect upon our people, so reduced and enervated by our long summers.

While October is decidedly the most pleasant month of the year in our latitude, there is none more crowded with important duties. The labors of the year have their fruition, in a great measure, during this pleasant and busy month.

The whole of the corn crop should be carefully and securely housed before the end of this month. The sweet potato crop should be dug and stored toward the end of the month—always before a killing frost appears. Much long forage may still be gathered in our favored Southern land; this should have been mainly attended to during the past months.

Oats, barley and rye should be sown during this month—the earlier the better—but not until the ground is thoroughly prepared by deep plowing, frequent harrowing and liberal manuring. And here we would impress a hint upon farmers which we regard of very great importance. By sowing the whole of the cultivated fields in oats during this month a pasturage is secured for the farm stock throughout the winter, quite sufficient to keep them in fine condition, without drawing upon the corn crib till the lands are broken the following spring, preparatory to the next crop.

And when the lands are broken a green sward is turned under, the fertilizing value of which will compensate the cost of the seed oats and the labor of sowing, thus rendering this winter pasturage, and the consequent saving of corn, a great city. We have seen this matter tested, and know whereof we affirm.

The area of the turnip crop may still be profitably enlarged. Well prepared and liberally-manured ground, sown during the first half of the month, with flat Dutch, purple tops, or any of the rough-leaved variety, will give a good yield, and for table use they will be found more tender and crisp than those sown earlier. There is no labor on the farm that is more literally compensated than that given to turnip culture. Rural Southland.

Bee Feed.

Bees cannot be fed without going to some expense; but every one is desirous of obtaining something cheap and reliable, if possible. I have been experimenting on artificial bee feed on a large scale, and am now convinced that an artificial feed can be made that will answer as well as the honey gathered from the flowers, and at about one-fourth of its value.

To test the merits of this bee feed, I selected five colonies on the fifteenth of October last and gave them nothing but empty combs, and fed them with my artificial feed ever since, and all five are in thriving condition at the present writing—January 5. The five colonies have consumed about thirty pounds since I began feeding.

The feed I prepare as follows: To ten pounds of sugar I add three pounds of water, and bring to a boil; remove the scum and add one ounce of gum arabic finely pulverized, one pound infusion of slippery elm, six and a half pounds of corn starch of the consistency of thick molasses, and two tablespoonsful of salt. The whole is well mixed, and when cool it is ready for use.—Journal of the Farm.

Best Time to Cut Bushes.

Twenty years ago I bought a pasture of good soil, but badly overrun with bushes—roses, blackberry, bayberry and barberry. For several years thereafter, as opportunity occurred during the summer season, the bushes were cut, and I had a good opportunity to observe the effect upon their life when cut at different times. It was uniformly the case with all the kinds, that when they were cut in the latter part of August or early in September they were most injured if not killed by the proceeding. The roses were nearly all killed by one cutting at that season, and the barberry, especially those of large growth and which were in fruit, never sent up a sprout from the stump or root. The bayberry and blackberry were more difficult to eradicate with the scythe, but were then, and are now, kept down better when cut late in summer than at any other time. I am confident the time mentioned is the best to destroy any plant by cutting up; and I think it would be more effectual if done before the foliage drops in the autumn, while the plant is growing, and too late for it to make a new growth before winter.—Country Gentleman.

The Life of a Bee.

Adair says there is a perfect system governing the work of the bee; that, contrary to former notions, which supposed that the different offices of the bees were directed, as a system of policy in a government, by a head, and were executed by the exercise of reason and discretion, they are involuntary, and each bee in succession performs all the duties. As it increases in age it is crowded outwardly by the development of others in the center. From a nurse in the brood nest, its labors are first transferred to the wax structure; thence to the gathering and storing of honey; and when it is no longer of use as a product agent, it takes its place in the living wall that protects what it can no longer produce, and finally is cast off like the withered leaf.

THE composition of hay, as well as the composition of a turnip or a beet or a potato, will be modified very greatly by the soil on which it is grown. It can, therefore, have no uniformity of composition, unless there is a similarity of soils on which it is grown.

HARDWARE, STOVES, ETC.

KURSHEEDT & BIENVENU,
IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN
Plantation and Builders' Hardware,
MARBLE, MARBLEIZED SLATE
AND IRON MANTLES,
Grates, Hearths and Fire Bricks,
NO. 114 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
my2 ly

THE UNRIVALED

BUCK'S BRILLIANT STOVE.
Every Brilliant is Fully Guaranteed.
H. HALLER,
No. 49 Camp street, New Orleans,
Sole Agent for Louisiana.

Sole Agent for the
CELEBRATED RINGEN WASHER,
In the States of Louisiana, Texas and Mississippi. oc19 1y

G. W. W. GOODWYN,
54 Gravier St., near Tchoupitoulas,
DEALER IN
STOVES AND TINWARE.

Among his assortment of Cooking Stoves he invites special attention to the COTTAGE and THE BEST, as being unsurpassed by any Cooking Stoves in this market. They have all the modern improvements, are perfect bakers, and, without extra charge, are adapted for burning wood, coke or coal, and guaranteed to give satisfaction.

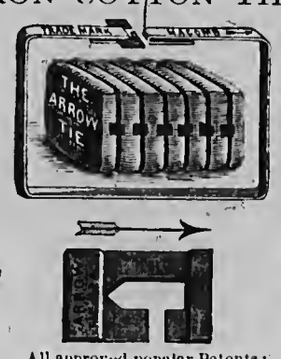
HEATING STOVES.—He has various styles of these on sale. Is agent also for the NEW BALTIMORE FIRE-PLACE HEATER, the most perfect, cheerful and economical Heater to use; will heat from one to a half dozen or more rooms at a cost, for coal, of twenty-five cents per day.

TINWARE.—In this line he keeps constantly on hand a full assortment of plain Tin and Japanned Ware.

(With the above, Rev. P. M. Goodwyn, a superannuate of the Louisiana Conference.)
se28 6m

MISCELLANEOUS.

IMPORTANT TO PLANTERS.
IRON COTTON TIES.



THE ARROW TIE AND ALL OPEN-SLOT TIES.

All approved popular Patents:
ARROW,
ANCHOR,
WALLIS,
ALLIGATOR
AND DUNN.
For sale by all dealers in New Orleans, Mobile and Memphis, and by country merchants generally throughout the Cotton States.
BARTLETT & RAYNE,
General Agents,
48 Carondelet street, cor. Union,
my30 6m New Orleans.

ESTABLISHED IN 1828.

Are Popular Because Reliable,
AND EXCLUSIVELY
THE GROWTH of BUIST.

They cannot fail affording the utmost satisfaction to every purchaser, and are so warranted. Sold by the leading Druggists and Seed Dealers throughout the South, and by RICHARD FROTSCHER, No. 12 Dumaine street, New Orleans, Louisiana. Grown and sold by ROBT. BUIST, JR., SEED GROWER,
WAREHOUSE,
922 and 924 Market st., Philadelphia.
BUIST'S SOUTHERN GARDEN MANUAL AND PA. ALMANAC for 1873 issued in October. One hundred and thirty pages of useful information on gardening, etc., etc. oc17 3m

GARDEN SEEDS,
FIELD SEEDS,
FLOWER SEEDS,
Grown largely by ourselves, on our own grounds, near Haddonfield, New Jersey.
COLLINS, DOWNS & CO.,
Warehouse, 1113 Market street,
Philadelphia, Pa.
Catalogue and Price-List furnished on application. The trade supplied on liberal terms. au22 3m

JOSEPH GILLOTT'S
STEEL PENS,
OF THE OLD STANDARD QUALITY.
TRADE MARK: JOSEPH GILLOTT, Or Descriptive Name and Designating Number. Warranted.
The well-known Original and Popular Nos., 303.....404.....170.....351,
having been assumed by other Makers, we desire to caution the public in respect to said imitations. ASK FOR GILLOTT'S.
JOS. GILLOTT & SONS,
Jy25 1y 91 John street, N. Y.

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

CENTENARY COLLEGE,
JACKSON, LOUISIANA.

THE NEXT TERM OF THIS VENERABLE INSTITUTION OPENS ON THE FIRST MONDAY IN OCTOBER, 1872.

FACULTY.

Rev. C. G. ANDREWS, A. M., President, and Professor of Mental and Moral Science, Political Economy and International Law.
Rev. A. R. HOLCOMBE, A. M., Professor of Mathematics and Adjunct Professor of Natural Science.
G. H. WILEY, A. M., Professor of Ancient and Modern Languages.
T. S. JONES, M. D., Professor of Natural Science.
——, Principal of the Preparatory Department.

CHARGES.

Tuition, per session of forty weeks, in College..... $60 00
Tuition, per session of forty weeks, in Preparatory Department..... 40 00
Contingent expenses..... 5 00

A matriculation fee of $5 must be paid on entering any regular college class. One-half the charges must be paid when the student enters; the other half on the beginning of the second term, March 1.

BOARD.

Board, including lodging, washing, lights and fuel, can be had in the best of families for $20 per month. Day-boarding with the same families, $13 per month. Rooms provided in the dormitories free of rent. Board to be paid in advance at least one month.

LOCATION.

This institution is located in the lovely village of Jackson, about twelve miles from Bayou Sara, in a grove of pine, magnolia, oak and beech. The location is remarkable for its beautiful woodlands, its bland and delightful atmosphere, its pure water, its unrivaled healthfulness, and its cultivated and refined society.

WHEN FOUNDED.

The college was established by the State of Louisiana in 1825, and ceded to the Methodist Episcopal Church South in 1845.

ALUMNI.

Its Alumni numbers 203, and they are to be found in the most honorable and useful stations in the land.

APPARATUS AND CABINET.

The college possesses a valuable set of Philosophical, Astronomical and Chemical Apparatus, and also a well-selected Mineralogical and Geological Cabinet. The apparatus includes a Theodolite, Sextant, Compass, Chronometer, Atwood's Machine, Whirling Tables, Electrical Machine, Air Pump, various combinations of the Mechanical Powers, Batteries, Chemical Tests, etc., sufficient for a thorough and extended course of observations and experiments. Steps have been taken by the Board of Trustees to put these in thorough repair.

LITERARY SOCIETIES.

There are two regular Literary Societies connected with the institution. These are of great utility to young men acquiring a liberal education—improving them in the art of public speaking, making them in some degree familiar with the proceedings of deliberative bodies, and in cultivating systematic business habits. Each Society has a convenient hall and a well selected library—about 1,600 volumes each, which, added to the College Library of 2,000 volumes, makes over 5,000 volumes in the college.

BUILDINGS.

The Trustees are determined to continue the repairs on the buildings till completed. The grand Center Building is a noble specimen of architectural beauty and adaptation to the purposes of its erection. The wings, built of solid brick, present each a front of two hundred feet, with upper and lower galleries the entire length, supported by Tuscan columns, and with the center making in the perspective a continuous front of 700 feet.

PREPARATORY DEPARTMENT.

In the Preparatory Department students are fitted for regular college classes, or may obtain a thorough English or commercial education.
ITS FACULTY are men of experience and success in teaching.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES.

Rev. Bishop J. C. KEENER, D. D., President, New Orleans.

Rev. J. A. Godfrey, Clinton.	Hon. A. K. Farrar, Adams county, Miss.
Hon. John McVea, Clinton.	Hon. Edward J. Gay, parish of Iberville.
Hon. and Rev. Jas. H. Muse, St. Helena par.	Samuel J. Norwood, Esq., Shum [illegible] La.
Hon. Edward McGehee, Woodville, Miss.	C. G. McGehee, Esq., Wilkinson co., Miss.
Hon. E. T. Merrick, New Orleans.	Rev. W. H. Watkins, D. D., Natchez, Miss.
Prof. W. H. N. Magruder, Baton Rouge.	Rev. W. G. Millsaps, Jefferson county, Miss.
Rev. John C. Miller, Jackson.	Rev. J. A. B. Jones, Port Gibson, Miss.
Rev. R. J. Harp, New Orleans.	Rev. John A. Ellis, Meridian, Miss.
Hon. J. O. Fuqua, Baton Rouge.	B. H. Moss, M. D., New Orleans.
T. F. Collins, Esq., East Feliciana.	Josiah H. Nettles, Esq., E. Baton Rouge, La.
Rev. J. L. Forsythe, Jackson.	Wilmot H. Goodale, Esq., Baton Rouge.
Rev. L. Parker, D. D., New Orleans.	Rev. C. G. Andrews, Jackson, La.
D. C. Hardee, Esq., Clinton.	Rev. A. E. Goodwyn, Baton Rouge, La.

THE BEST ROUTE to the college is to leave the Mississippi river at Port Hudson, take the Clinton and Port Hudson railroad to Midway station, report to Captain F. J. Haynes as a student for Centenary, and he will convey you to the college, a distance of seven miles, for one dollar and a half for single passengers, or one dollar each where several are together. Address
au1 6m C. G. ANDREWS, President, Jackson, La.

GROCERIES—GLASSWARE.

PURE LOUISIANA
SUGAR, MOLASSES AND SIRUPS.

REFINED SUGAR.—Cut Loaf, Crushed and Powdered.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

GOLDEN SIRUP.—A superior article of pure Louisiana, from the Crescent City Refinery.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

REFINED SIRUP A ND MOLASSES.—Crescent City Refinery, Orleans, Louisiana, Chalmette and Pelican brands.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

LOUISIANA MOLASSES.—Various grades of Plantation, in barrels, half barrels and kegs.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

CLARIFIED SUGAR.—Various grades of White and Yellow, in hogsheads and barrels.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

LOUISIANA SUGAR.—Various grades of Plantation, in hogsheads and barrels.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

FOREIGN SUGAR.—Cuba, Demerara and Porto Rico, in hogsheads and boxes.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
my9 6m 48 Tchoupitoulas street.

Relief for the Sick and Afflicted.

SOUTHERN HEPATIC PILLS.

Unsurpassed for the cure of Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint and all other Bilious diseases. Call on MRS. GEO. W. DEEMS, No 28 South Calhoun street, Baltimore, Maryland. Explanatory circulars sent on application. For sale by E. J. HART & CO.,
se12 3m 73 Tchoupitoulas st., New Orleans.

RHEUMATISM,
GOUT AND NEURALGIA PERMANENTLY CURED BY
N. JENKINS'
ANNIHILATOR.

A PURELY VEGETABLE COMPOUND, whose extraordinary virtues, in these painful diseases, are attested by certificates from many prominent citizens of every section of the country.
No medicine of the century has attracted as much attention.
Of the many to whom the proprietor is authorized to refer, may be mentioned the following well-known gentlemen:
Rev. Fisher T. Rawson, Delhi, Louisiana.
Rev. James E. Bradley, Floyd, Louisiana.
Rev. P. M. Goodwyn, New Orleans, La.
Rev. J. B. Walker, Galveston, Texas.
For circulars and for further information address N. JENKINS, Proprietor, se26 3m 140 Baronne st., New Orleans.

BREWER & HILTON,
MANUFACTURERS OF
Thomas Worsley's Celebrated Fancy, Shaving and Toilet Soaps,
Also J. H. SMITH & CO.'S world-renowned Pearl Powders, Lily Whites, Rouges, etc.,
NO. 114 ARCH STREET, PHILADELPHIA.
All goods warranted. au8 3m

Whitworth Female College,
AT BROOKHAVEN, MISS.

THE CONTINUED SUCCESS OF THIS INSTITUTION is one of the best evidences of its merit. During the past term there were in attendance two hundred and twenty-nine pupils.
The members of the Faculty—eleven in number—are selected on account of their ability to teach.
Prof. ECKHARDT, Music Director, has few equals.
Madame JULIUS, a Parisian lady of eighteen years' successful experience as a teacher, has been engaged to take charge of the French and Ornamental Department.
The very best care is taken of our pupils, both as to health and manners. Fires are provided for all.
No extravagance in dress is allowed.
The good health of Brookhaven is proverbial. Pupils from the miasmatic regions of Louisiana and Mississippi find this as healthful a school as can be found anywhere.
The charges are believed to be lower than in any school in the Southwest where similar advantages are afforded. Only from $230 to $265 for all expenses, excepting music, French and the ornamental branches.
No expense is spared in purchasing the most approved apparatus, maps, charts, etc., and all necessary school furniture.
Brookhaven is located on the New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern Railroad, 128 miles from the city.
Catalogues sent free on application to au1 6m REV. H. F. JOHNSON, Prest.

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE,
AT BATON ROUGE, LOUISIANA.

THE EXERCISES OF THIS SCHOOL will be resumed on Wednesday, the Second of October next.
For circulars, with all necessary information, apply to Rev R. J. Harp, 112 Camp street, New Orleans, or to myself, at Baton Rouge, Louisiana.
au1 6m W. H. N. MAGRUDER.

HOMER COLLEGE.

THE SCHOLASTIC EXERCISES OF THE Thirteenth Annual Term of Homer College begin on the first Tuesday of SEPTEMBER next, 1872.
Tuition at the rate of $5 per month. Board from $12 to $15 per month.
Students received in regular classes only, and to the end of a session.
A Preparatory Department, under competent management, is attached to the college. Tuition, $4 to $5 per month.
For further particulars address
REV. J. E. COBB,
President Homer College, La.
By order of the Board.
W. F. MORELAND,
Prest. Board of Trustees. au22 3m

Rendville Seminary for Young Ladies,
BATON ROUGE, LOUISIANA.

ESTABLISHED IN 1843.—Incorporated in 1859. New buildings. Full corps of teachers. All the appliances of a first-class institution. For catalogues address
MRS. MARY W. READ, Principal,
au29 3m Baton Rouge, La.

MUSICAL BOXES,

PLAYING FROM ONE TO ONE HUNDRED Airs, and costing from $2.50 to $3,000. All sizes, styles and prices. Send stamp for catalogue.
MAGIC LANTERNS,
specially for Sunday schools, lectures, etc. A priced and illustrated catalogue sent on receipt of stamp.
W. MITCHELL McALLISTER,
au29 3m 728 Chestnut st., Phila.

MISCELLANEOUS.

BIGGEST COMMISSIONS on Standard Works for all Prominent Benevolent Organizations. 100,000 sold. Masonic, Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias, Red Men, Mechanics, Temperance, etc. Sale unrivaled by anything heretofore offered. Agents with no experience are selling 20 Pictures and upward a day. One of our agents has cleared over $1,200 in three months. The Brethren welcome these works. Our inducements are UNPRECEDENTED. Our commissions are positively one-fourth larger than any other house does or CAN offer. Send for circular of Order to which you belong, giving No. of your Lodge, and state where you saw this advertisement. You will certainly engage with us.

J. HALE POWERS & CO.,
Fraternity Publishers,
my9 7m Cincinnati, Ohio.

TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT. Trade Mark. Patented.

Signals of Danger.—Disease, like the rattlesnake, usually gives fair warning before it strikes. A failing appetite, a furred tongue, nausea, headache, want of proper action in the bowels, feverishness, lassitude, nervousness, an uneasy feeling in the stomach, etc., are all symptomatic of a coming attack of indigestion, biliousness, colic, fever, or some other positive form of disease. When thus menaced, resort immediately to

Tarrant's Effervescent Seltzer Aperient,

and thus avert the attack. Acting simultaneously upon the digestive organs, the liver, the bowels and the nerves, this refreshing and agreeable alternative will soon restore the system to its normal condition of health, regularity and vigor. Sold by all druggists. oc17 2t

INSURANCE.....INSURANCE.

LOUISIANA

Equitable Life Insurance Company,

CHARTERED BY THE STATE OF LOUISIANA,

Office—Cor. Carondelet and Gravier Sts.

Parties desiring life insurance are informed that this company issues policies of insurance on all approved plans as low as any other company. All policies are non-forfeitable. Losses adjusted and settled with promptness and liberality. JAMES H. LOW,
se26 1m President.

MENEELY'S BELLS.

THE genuine Troy Church Bells known to the public since 1826, which have acquired a reputation unequaled by any, and a sale exceeding that of all others—including more than seventy chimes and peals. One thousand testimonials received during the last six years. Every Bell made of best Copper and Tin, and fully warranted. New Patent Rotary Fixtures. Catalogues free. No agencies.

Post office address, either TROY or WEST TROY, New York.
je13 1y E. A. & G. R. MENEELY.

JOHN GIBSON,

ENGRAVER

AND

Steam Power Lithographic Printer,

83 BEEKMAN ST., NEW YORK.

Checks, Notes, Drafts, Receipts, Bonds, Certificates of Stock and Deposit, Bill, Letter and Note Headings, Business Cards, Envelopes, Druggists' Fancy and Perfumery Labels, etc. Druggists wishing Labels, send for Catalogue. je27 1y

AGENTS WANTED FOR

SECRETS OF THE CONVENT AND CONFESSIONAL.

BY JULIA M'NAIR WRIGHT.

The most thrilling and powerful book ever written on this subject. It presents a startling array of facts, and contains revelations never before made public.

Send for circulars and terms to
NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO.,
274 and 276 Second street,
au1 6m Memphis, Tenn.

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY

Established in 1837.

Superior Bells for Churches, Schools, etc., of Pure Copper and Tin, fully warranted, and mounted with our Latest Improved Rotary Hangings, the best in use.

Illustrated Catalogue sent free

VANDUZEN & TIFT,
102 & 104 E. Second St., Cincinnati
fe22 1y

WM. PHILLIPS, UNION STABLES, 180 Calliope, near St. Charles Street, has every accommodation in the line of Pleasure and Family Carriages, such as hacks, brettes, phætons, buggies, etc., for the use of the public, and at rates to correspond with the stringency of the times. All hacking done below tariff rates. Orders for weddings, balls, picnics, races, etc., will be attended to so as to guarantee satisfaction. I am also prepared to hire vehicles (alone) to parties having their own horses. de14 1y

BINGHAM HOUSE, PHILADELPHIA.

Corner of Eleventh and Market Sts.

CARLIS DAVIS, PROPRIETOR.

This popular Hotel being centrally located and accessible by street cars from all depots, makes it a desirable stopping place for travelers. It will be conducted in the same liberal manner as heretofore, it being the intention of the proprietor to maintain the reputation it has always enjoyed, of being in all respects a first-class hotel.

Terms, $3 a day. my8 1y

LANDRETH'S SEEDS

Have spoken their own praise for upward of three-quarters of a century.

Landreth's Rural Register and Almanac will be mailed to all who apply.

DAVID LANDRETH & SON.
au29 1y Philadelphia.

IMPORTANT FRENCH MEDICAL DISCOVERY. Interesting to all. Health in a Bottle. Consumption, Chlorosis, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Dyspepsia and Pulmonary Tubercules radically cured with the Elixir J. F. Bernard, of Paris. This wonderful remedy is accepted by the most distinguished and celebrated French physicians, and in constant use in the French hospitals. Valuable instructions and information on the above sent (free) to all who desire it by addressing A. BERNARD & CO., Sole Agents, 62 William street, N. Y. Postoffice Box 4485. For sale by all respectable druggists. oc10 1m

BARLOW'S INDIGO BLUE is the cheapest and best article in the market for BLUEING CLOTHES.

The genuine has both Barlow and Willberger's names on the label, and is put up at Willberger's Drug Store, No 233 North Second street, Philadelphia. For sale by grocers and druggists.

D. S. WILTBERGER,
au29 3m Proprietor.

COMMISSION MERCHANTS.

PRICE, DINE & TUPPER

General Commission Merchants,

FACTORS, AND

Agents of Attakapas Mail Transportation Co.,

NO. 26 CARONDELET STREET,

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Advances made on consignments to T. Tupper & Sons, Charleston, S. C.; Williams, Birnie & Co., and Leverich & Co., New York. no21y

W. H. SUTTON. J. R. POWELL.

SUTTON & POWELL,

COTTON FACTORS,

AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

186..... COMMON STREET 186

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

se21 1y.

H. F. GIVEN. LUCIEN J. DOIZE.

H. F. GIVEN & CO.,

COTTON, TOBACCO AND SUGAR FACTORS,

—AND—

GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

No. 64 Baronne street, New Orleans.

oc5 1y

ANDREW J. AIKEN. JOHN W. WATT.

AIKEN & WATT,

Cotton Factors and Commission Merchants,

60.....CARONDELET STREET.....60

NEW ORLEANS.

Special attention given to orders for the purchase of all descriptions of Produce, Agricultural Implements and Plantation Supplies. no2 1y

J. L. DUNNICA, New Orleans. T. A. HAMILTON, Memphis.
G. P. HARRISON, New Orleans.

J. L. DUNNICA & CO.,

FLOUR, PRODUCE AND PROVISION

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

50.....TCHOUPITOULAS ST.....50

NEW ORLEANS, LOUISIANA.

oc22 1y

J. U. PAYNE. W. H. DAMERON. H. M. PAYNE

PAYNE, DAMERON & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS,

64 & 66....BARONNE STREET....64 & 66

Between Union and Gravier streets,

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

je19 1y

C. L. WALMSLEY & CO.,

Cotton Factors and General Commission Merchants,

31.....PERDIDO STREET.....31

oc3 1y NEW ORLEANS.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

G. W. RACE. W. H. FOSTER. E. T. MERRICK, Former Ch. Jus. La.

RACE, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK,

Attorneys, Counselors and Solicitors,

Cor. of Camp street and Commercial Place,

se25 NEW ORLEANS.

W. W. EDWARDS,

COUNSELOR AT LAW

AND

COMMISSIONER OF DEEDS,

No. 88 Common street,

se14 1y New Orleans.

DR. JOHN G. ANGELL,

DENTAL SURGEON,

152.....JULIA STREET.....152

All operations in Operative, Mechanical and Surgical Dentistry carefully performed. Nitrous Oxide and other Anæsthetics administered. no30 1y

DR. C. J. BICKHAM,

Office—680 Magazine Street,

Between Philip and First sts., New Orleans.

Will call daily at College building, corner Common and Baronne streets, between eleven and twelve o'clock. je29 1y

BUSINESS CARDS.

Carpet and Oil Cloth Warehouse.

J. M. ELKIN. F. STRINGER

ELKIN & CO.,

168.....CANAL STREET.....168

Near Baronne, New Orleans,

IMPORTERS OF ALL VARIETIES OF ENGLISH CARPETINGS, RUGS, Etc.

—ALSO—

Oil Cloths, Mattings,
Lace and Damask Curtains,
Window Shades, etc.,

—AND A—

Complete Assortment of Upholstery Goods.

fe8 1y

oc17 3m

EXCHANGE HOTEL,

JOHN SUMMERS, PROPRIETOR,

GALVESTON, TEXAS.

☞ This is the only Hotel in the city which has FREE OMNIBUSES to and from the cars and boats for the use of guests. Ask for Exchange Hotel Omnibus. 6b1 1y

WILLIAM HOGAN,

Manufacturer of and Dealer in

BOOTS, SHOES, TRUNKS, VALISES AND BAGS,

FRENCH AND AMERICAN.

Also Agent for the EMPIRE SEWING MACHINE.

99 AND 101 CANAL STREET,

au1 3m New Orleans.

JOHN DOUGLAS, DEALER IN

Fancy and Staple Dry Goods,

NOS. 102 AND 301 DAUPHIN STREET,

MOBILE, ALABAMA.

Agent for the Florence Sewing Machine.

All goods warranted as represented, and sold at the lowest rates for Cash, our object being large sales and small profits. ja1 1y

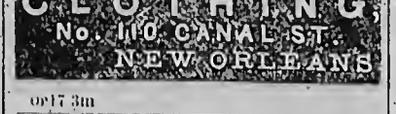
T. J. BROWN,

PRACTICAL PAPER HANGER,

and dealer in Wall Paper, Window Shades, Cornices, Buff, Green and White Hollands, Picture Cord, Tassels, etc.,

No. 265 Camp street,

oc17 2m New Orleans.



STALLS NOS. 38, 7 AND 8,
Magazine Market.

MARTIN LANNES, BUTCHER,

supplies Ships, Families, Hotels, etc., with Beef, Mutton, Pork, and all varieties of Sausages, Game, Tripe, Pigs, Fowls, Vegetables, etc., and everything the market affords. All Meats delivered free of charge. oc17 6m

BUSINESS CARDS.

YOUR CUSTOM SOLICITED.

R. F. W. BACHMAN,

DEALER IN BOOTS AND SHOES,

No. 18 Camp Street,

Under City Hotel, New Orleans.

Made expressly for the first-class retail Family and Plantation trade. oc3 6m

E. HEATH. M. LARA. J. P. HEATH.

HEATH, LARA & HEATH,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

UPHOLSTERERS' MATERIALS,

WALL PAPER, WINDOW SHADES,

CORNICES AND CURTAIN GOODS,

Pictures, Frames, Moldings, Looking Glasses and Clocks,

NO. 99 CAMP STREET,

no16 1y NEW ORLEANS.

THE MITCHELL & RAMMELSBERG

FURNITURE COMPANY,

Manufacturers and dealers in all kinds of

Furniture, Mattresses, Looking Glasses,

ETC., ETC.,

103 and 105 Camp street, cor. Poydras,

Moresque Building, New Orleans,

have the largest and best assortment of FURNITURE of any house in the city.

Please give us a call before purchasing elsewhere. my23 1y

A. B. GRISWOLD & CO.,

CANAL ST., COR. ROYAL, NEW ORLEANS,

IMPORTERS OF

WATCHES, JEWELRY, CLOCKS,

PLATED WARE, HOUSEKEEPING GOODS,

Cutlery, Guns, Pistols, Bronzes, Porcelain and Fancy Goods.

MANUFACTURERS OF

PURE COIN SILVERWARE.

Watches and Jewelry carefully repaired. Every article sold fully guaranteed.

a023 1y

J. THOMSON. G. THOMSON. W. B. THOMSON.

J. THOMSON & BROS.,

Manufacturers of Carriages, Barouches, Buggies, Phaetons, SPRING WAGONS, ETC.

68 and 70 Rampart Street,

Bet. Common and Gravier, New Orleans, La.

Repairing done in all its branches. no30 1y

LOUISIANA STEAM

SASH, BLIND AND DOOR FACTORY,

ROBERTS & CO., PROPRIETORS,

301, 303, 305 and 307 Gravier Street,

NEW ORLEANS. my30 1y

JAMES M'CRACKEN. GEO. E. BREWSTER.

M'CRACKEN & BREWSTER,

DEALERS IN FURNITURE,

Nos. 37 & 39 and 41 Royal street.

Manufactory, corner Derbigny and Customhouse streets, New Orleans. my9 6m

JOHN I. ADAMS & CO., (JOHN I. ADAMS, JAY L. ADAMS, GEO. W. WEST, WM. H. RENAUD,)

WHOLESALE GROCERS,

AND DEALERS IN

PROVISIONS, LARD, OILS, ETC., ETC.,

43, 45 and 47 Peters street,

(Formerly New Levee,)

mh21 1y NEW ORLEANS.

ELON G. SMITH, J. L. CHEATHAM, J. W. DRAUGHON.

SMITH, CHEATHAM & CO.,

(SUCCESSORS TO ELON G. SMITH & CO.)

PORK PACKERS,

Provision and Commission Merchants,

CORNER THIRD AND SPRUCE STREETS, SAINT LOUIS.

We solicit orders from the trade for goods in our line. oc26 1y

C. SAMPSON. F. G. SAMPSON.

SAMPSON BROTHERS,

(Late C. C. Sampson,)

FURNITURE.

33 & 35.... ROYAL STREET.....33 & 35

NEW ORLEANS.

Established in 1833. ja11 1y

Carpet Warehouse—17 Chartres Street.

A. BROUSSEAU & CO.,

Importers and dealers, at Wholesale and Retail, in English and American Carpetings.

Floor Oil Cloths, Table and Enameled Oil Cloths.
Window Shades, Table and Piano Covers.
Crumb Cloths, in squares or pieces.
Curtain and Furniture Materials.
Brocatelles, Coralenes, Terries, Reps, Lace and Nottingham Lace Curtains, Haircloth Ticking, Springs, Burlaps, Stop Covers, etc.
no24 1y A. BROUSSEAU & CO.

T. H. McMAHAN & CO.,

BANKERS,

And Dealers in Foreign and Domestic Exchange,

GALVESTON, TEXAS.

We have prompt and reliable correspondents at all the principal points throughout this State, and upon all collections payable in this city or Houston make no charge for collecting, and only actual charge upon interior collections.

Immediate and prompt attention given to all business intrusted to us. feb1 1y

J. A. NORSWORTHY & CO.,

BANKERS,

21 Walnut street, Jefferson, Texas.

CORRESPONDENTS.—Ober, Edwards & Co. New Orleans; Northrup & Chick, New York Barthulon, Lewis & Co., St. Louis. se26 1y

RICHARD BRUDERICK,

CISTERN MAKER,

132.....Julia street.....132

Bet. Camp and Magazine, New Orleans.

Second hand Cisterns always on hand. All work guaranteed.

All orders left in Box 30, Mechanics' and Dealers' Exchange, will meet with prompt attention. my2 1y

E. YEAZIE,

74.....Camp street.....74

NEW ORLEANS, LA.,

LAMPS AND OILS, CHANDELIERS,

Globes, Chimneys, Shades, Trimmers, Wicks, Cans, Fillers, etc.

PRATTS' ASTRAL OIL, Non-explosive and non-inflammable. ja18 1y

H. H. NOBLE. J. B. WOODS.

NOBLE & WOODS,

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL GROCERS,

Nos. 9 and 11 Delta street, and 10 and 12 Front street,

ja18 1y NEW ORLEANS, LA.

JOHN D. MACLIN, L. C. MACLIN, (Late R. D. Maclin.)

COAL! WOOD! COAL!

Pittsburg, Anthracite and Cannel Coal, Lime, Ash and Pine Wood, at the lowest market rates, delivered to any part of the city.

Offices—26 Carondelet street, and corner of Third and Tchoupitoulas. mh7 1y

WAVERLY STABLES.

HAYDEN & MEENAN, Proprietors.

LIVERY AND SALE STABLES,

No. 39 North Royal Street, Mobile.

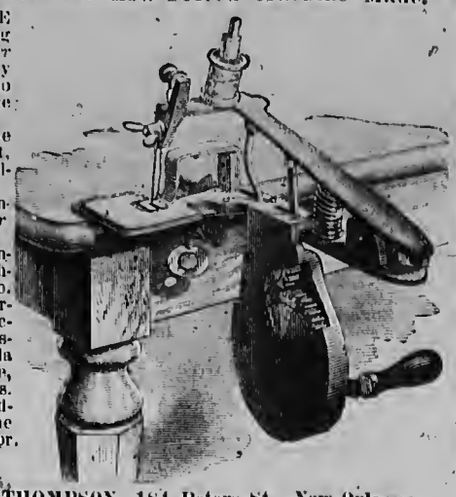
Carriages and Buggies of the latest styles, and superior Horses, furnished at all hours. Calls of every description will receive prompt attention. ja4 1y

THE BECKWITH SEWING MACHINE.

PATENTED APRIL 10, 1871.

PRICE, $10, including Hemmer, Guide, four Needles, Bottle of Oil and Can.

The First and Only Successful Low-Priced Machine Made.



PRACTICAL, DURABLE, SIMPLE and Beautiful. Capable of making by hand upward of 800 Stitches per Minute and there is very little Family Sewing that this machine will not do as well as a $75 machine, and some work it will do better.

It is well and strongly made of the best material, but compact and light, and takes up but little room. Nickel-plated throughout.

Its SIMPLICITY adapts it to all capacities. Every machine is fully warranted for Two Years.

Full directions for running the machine, hemming, tucking, hem-stitching, etc., accompany every machine.

Parties in the city wishing to purchase a machine can see one in operation at Mrs. Robertson's, dressmaker, corner of Camp and Julia streets, up stairs, over the cigar store, and where they can leave their orders.

Single machines sent to any address, carefully boxed, with all the equipments, on receipt of $10. For full particulars send for circular.

Address

EDWARD THOMPSON, 184 Peters St., New Orleans,

☞ Energetic Agents Wanted. (je27 6m) Agent of the Manufacturer.

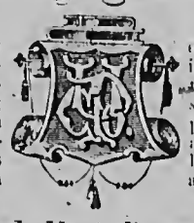
"Southern Books for Southern Schools."

School-Books which are Unsectional, Unpartisan, and Unpolitical.

PREPARED BY THE MOST EMINENT SOUTHERN SCHOLARS, AND

ENTIRELY ACCEPTABLE TO SOUTHERN TEACHERS AND PARENTS.

The University Publishing Co.,



An Association composed of many of the most eminent citizens of the several Southern States, feeling the necessity for a series of School Books which should be entirely unsectional, unpartisan, and unpolitical, and in their teaching thought and feeling of the Southern people—which should present only the facts of history and science—of School and College Text-books and educators named below, which are now issuing a complete series by the eminent Southern scholars are the

Cheapest, Best, and Most Beautiful School-Books

Now published. The "University Series" embraces

MAURY'S GEOGRAPHICAL SERIES,

By Commodore M. F. MAURY, of the Virginia Military Institute. A series of books which mark an era in the study of this science, and which, in the words of a well known and accomplished Southern teacher, "are characterized by a felicity of arrangement and simple freshness of style which must ever render them attractive to the young, and which will be used by all who wish to teach Geography as a science, as something to make pupils think, and not merely as an enumeration of dry facts."

Holmes' Readers and Spellers,

By GEORGE F. HOLMES, LL.D., Professor of History and General Literature in the University of Virginia. A series of Readers unequalled in cheapness, excellence, and typographical beauty. They are steadily progressive in character, bright and fresh in their selections of prose and verse, and illustrative of Southern scenes, incidents, and history.

Venable's Arithmetical Series,

By CHARLES S. VENABLE, LL.D., Professor of Mathematics in the University of Virginia. These books are received everywhere by intelligent teachers with the highest satisfaction, as being most admirably adapted for mental drill, as well as for business education. Their methods, rules, and reasonings are clear, distinct, logical, and comprehensive, and the series is carefully graded throughout

Holmes' History of the United States,

By GEORGE F. HOLMES, LL.D., of the University of Virginia. It is enough to say of this admirable work, interesting, impartial, and truthful, as well as pure and graceful in style, that it is the only History of the United States which is acceptable to Southern teachers and parents. It comes down to the present date.

THE "UNIVERSITY SERIES" OF SCHOOL-BOOKS

COMPRISES, ALSO,

De Vere's French Grammar, Readers, etc.,

By M. SCHELE DEVERE, LL.D., Professor of Modern Languages in the University of Va.

Gildersleeve's Latin Series,

By B. L. GILDERSLEEVE, Ph.D., LL.D., of the University of Virginia.

Carter's Elements of General History,

By Rev. J. P. CARTER, A.M., of Baltimore, Maryland.

Holmes' English Grammars,

By GEORGE F. HOLMES, LL.D., of the University of Virginia.

LeConte's Scientific Series,

By the Professors LECONTE, late of the University of South Carolina.

Johnston's English Classics,

By R. M. JOHNSTON, A.M., late Professor of Rhetoric and Belles-Lettres in the University of Georgia.

To which list other books in other departments will early be added.

Send for our full ILLUSTRATED DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE, which will be mailed free to any teacher or school officer. Liberal terms given for introduction.

Address

UNIVERSITY PUBLISHING COMPANY,

155 and 157 Crosby Street, New York.

☞ A full supply of "The University Series" always on hand, and teachers and schools supplied by R. J. HARP, Bookseller, 112 Camp St., New Orleans.

And by all prominent booksellers throughout the South.

W. IRVING CLARKE, the General Agent, will furnish any information, and afford every facility to teachers for examining the series. Office 92 CAMP ST., New Orleans. oc17 1y

ARMSTRONG, CATOR & CO.,

IMPORTERS AND MANUFACTURERS OF

Ribbons, Millinery and Straw Goods,

WHITE GOODS, LINEN LACE AND EMBROIDERY,

Nos. 237 and 239 Baltimore Street,

BALTIMORE, MARYLAND.

Orders promptly attended to. se5 3m

ST. CLAIR HOTEL,

BALTIMORE, MARYLAND.

This new and beautiful Hotel is now open to the public. It is located on MONUMENT SQUARE, convenient alike to the business man and the tourist. It is the only Hotel in Baltimore embracing elevator, suits of rooms with baths, and all other conveniences.

To accommodate Merchants, Commercial Travelers and others, the rates will be $2 per day for rooms on the fourth and fifth floors, making the difference on account of the elevation. Ordinary transient rates for lower rooms, $3 per day.

Guests desiring to take advantage of the above rates will please notify the clerk before rooms are assigned. An improved elevator for the use of the guests is constantly running from six A. M. until eleven P. M.

se5 2m HARRY H. FOGLE, Manager.

WIRE RAILING AND ORNAMENTAL WIRE WORKS.

DUFUR & CO.,

No. 36 North Howard St., Baltimore,

manufacture Wire Railing for Cemeteries, Balconies, etc.; Sieves, Fenders, Cages, Sand and Coal Screens, Woven Wire, etc. Also Iron Bedsteads, Chairs, etc. se5 1y

FREE TO BOOK AGENTS

SENT FREE TO AGENTS—A COMPLETE Canvassing Outfit of the PICTORIAL HOME BIBLE, with Bible History, Analysis, Dictionary, Tables and Treatises too numerous to mention; profusely illustrated. The cheapest, excelling all others. Address

WM. FLINT & CO., Atlanta, Ga.,
oc3 3m Philadelphia, Pa., or Cincinnati, O.

SAVE $20.

THE NEW WILSON UNDER-FEED.

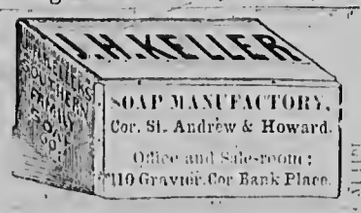
The Best and Cheapest First-Class Shuttle SEWING MACHINE In the World,

Wm. GREGG & Co. General Southern Agents, No. 189 Canal street, New Orleans, La.

Agents Wanted. je27 6m



AGENTS WANTED TO SELL THE

ILLUSTRATED

HISTORY OF THE BIBLE

By Wm. SMITH, LL.D.

AUTHOR OF SMITH'S BIBLE DICTIONARY.

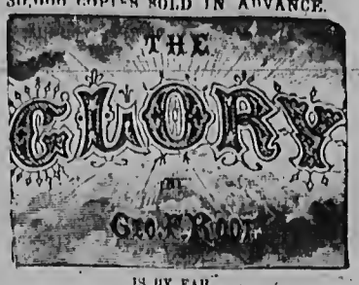
It contains 213 fine Scripture Illustrations and over 1,100 pages, and is the most comprehensive and valuable History of the Bible ever published. The labor and learning of centuries are gathered in this one volume to throw a strong, clear light upon every page of the inspired Word.

Send for circulars, and see our terms and a full description of the work. Address

NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO.,
271 and 276 Second street,
au1 6m Memphis, Tenn.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

30,000 COPIES SOLD IN ADVANCE.



IS BY FAR

THE BEST MUSIC BOOK

For Churches, Singing Schools and Musical Conventions.

EMPHATICALLY A NEW BOOK.

New in Method, new in Lessons, new in Departments, new in Music.

HAS 400 PAGES

filled with new and fresh music. It includes also an elementary course of the best character, with interesting exercises, tunes and easy pieces for practice. A specimen copy will be sent, post paid, on receipt of $1 25, by the publishers, JOHN CHURCH & CO., oc3 1y Cincinnati, Ohio.

JUST PUBLISHED.

Butler's Ecclesiastical History,

SECOND SERIES. COMPLETING THE WORK.

AN ECCLESIASTICAL HISTORY FROM the Thirteenth to the Nineteenth Century. By the Rev. C. M. BUTLER, D. D., Professor of Ecclesiastical History in the Divinity School of the Protestant Episcopal Church, West Philadelphia. One volume, royal 8vo, cloth, $3.50. The work complete, two volumes, $7.

DALTON'S COMMENTARY.

AN EXPLANATORY AND CRITICAL Commentary on the NEW TESTAMENT. Intended chiefly as a Help to Family Devotion. By the Rev. W. DALTON, D. D., Prebendary of Lichfield, and Vicar of St. Philips, Penn, near Wolverhampton. Fourth edition. Two vols., royal 8vo, cloth. Price, $12.

PRESENT ISSUES, OR FACTS OBSERVABLE in the Consciousness of the Age. By Rev. ROBERT WITHERS MEMMINGER, author of "What is Religion?" One volume, 12mo, cloth. Price, $1.50.

☞ Sold at the principal book stores, or where not obtainable the publishers will send copies by mail on receipt of the price.

Claxton, Remsen & Haffelfinger,
819 and 821 Market street,
au22 3m Philadelphia.

IMPORTANT NEW BOOKS

JUST PUBLISHED BY

HURD & HOUGHTON, NEW YORK.

THE RIVERSIDE PRESS, CAMBRIDGE.

I—A Vigorous Polemic.

THE CITY OF GOD AND THE CHURCH-Makers. An Examination of Structural Christianity, and Criticism of Christian Scribes and Doctors of the Law. By R. Abbey. In one volume, crown 8vo.

Dr. Abbey's book will make a great stir in the religious community, and set old men and young to thinking.

II—Dr. Campbell's Sermons.

SERMONS BY REV. C. H. N. CAMPBELL, D. D. In one vol., crown 8vo, cloth, $1.50.

Dr. Campbell is known as a very acceptable preacher, and he will make many new friends by the publication of this volume.

For sale by all booksellers. When no bookseller is at hand, send the price to the publishers, who will mail the books, postage free. oc3 3m

MILLER'S BIBLE AND

PUBLISHING HOUSE.

NEW ILLUSTRATED FAMILY BIBLE.

The cheapest and best Bible published. Large Print, beautiful Bindings, and more than two hundred Engravings.

THE CHRISTIAN HARMONY,

A NEW MUSIC BOOK, BY WM. WALKER,

AUTHOR OF THE SOUTHERN HARMONY.

This Book is printed with New-Shaped Seven-Character Notes, and is preferable to anything of the kind ever before used. Any one can learn to read music and sing in one-fourth the time required by the old methods. It contains the choicest collection of Music, both original and selected, from the best sources; particularly designed for Choirs, Singing Schools and Private Societies.

Specimen pages, with terms, mailed free.

Miller's Bible and Publishing House,
1102 and 1104 Sansom street,
je27 6m Philadelphia, Penn'a.

THE BEST SUNDAY SCHOOL MUSIC Book will be ready October 1, 1872.

PURE DIAMONDS.

BY JAMES H. MURRAY.

A new Sunday School Music Book, which we predict will become the most popular work of the kind ever published in America. Specimen pages are now ready, and will be sent free to any address.

PURE DIAMONDS will be issued in elegant style, printed on fine white paper, and substantially bound in boards. It will be ready promptly on the first of October, when orders will be filled in rotation. As the demand will be very large, all wishing specimen copies, or an early supply, should send in their orders at once.

PRICE—Bound in boards, 35 cents; $3.60 per dozen; $25 per hundred. A copy in paper covers, for examination, mailed on receipt of 25 cents. Published by

S. BRAINARD'S SONS,
au22 1y Cleveland, Ohio.

Uniform Lessons for 1872.

FOR TEACHERS.—The Sunday School World contains the explanations and studies prepared by Rev. John Hall, D. D., for teachers.

SCHOLARS' PAPER.—With the text of the lesson, and suggestive helps for the study of it; and questions at the foot of each page, to be answered in writing by the scholar.

INTERMEDIATE LESSON PAPER.—Adapted to the use of less advanced scholars, with questions and explanations.

Price of each Lesson Paper of four pages, at the rate of 75 cents per 100 copies for one month, or $9 per 100 copies yearly.

☞ Catalogues of the Society's publications and sample copies of its periodicals furnished gratuitously on application at the Depository of the

AMERICAN SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION,
au1 3m 1122 Chestnut st., Philadelphia.

AGENTS WANTED IN EVERY TOWNship of the United States to sell my

New County United States Map,

STATE MAPS, RELIGIOUS CHARTS,

LITHOGRAPHIC PRINTS, ETC.

Greater inducements are offered to Agents this season than ever before. Our new plan for the sale of the County United States Map guarantees success.

Catalogues sent free of charge. Address

GAYLORD WATSON, Publisher,
16 Beekman st., New York, or
D. NEEDHAM,
Watson's Chicago Branch,
se26 1m 609 W. Lush ave., Chicago, Ill.

FREE TO BOOK AGENTS

AN ELEGANTLY BOUND CANVASSING Book for the best and cheapest Family Bible ever published will be sent free of charge to any Book Agent. It contains nearly 500 fine Scripture illustrations, and agents are meeting with unprecedented success. Address, stating experience, etc., and we will show you what our agents are doing,

NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO.,
se5 4m Memphis, Tenn.

NEW ORLEANS MARKETS.

(From the New Orleans Price Current.)

The weather continued clear and pleasant on Saturday and Sunday, since which it has been cloudy and rainy. Our accounts from the country present no new feature. Picking appears to be proceeding satisfactorily, and the general tenor of the reports is more encouraging.

The river is 13 feet 8 inches below high water mark.

COTTON.—The following are the arrivals since the eighteenth instant:

Louisiana and Mississippi	bales..	12,660
Lake		47
Mobile		4,578
Texas		446
Total		17,731

On Saturday the market opened with an active demand and decided upward tendency, which was stimulated by an advance of 1-16d. at Liverpool, and quite a large business was done during the morning at irregular prices, some sales showing no improvement, but others an advance of ⅛@¼c., the ruling rates toward noon indicating ¼c., after which buyers continued to operate with unabated spirit, and, notwithstanding moderate supplies, the sales summed up 5,400 bales, good ordinary closing at 18¼@18¾c., low middling at 19@19⅜c., middling at 19⅝@19½c. (strict low middling and Liverpool middling selling frequently at the same,) strict middling at 19⅝@19¾c., and good middling at 20c., showing a net advance of ¼c. in good ordinary and low middling, and about ⅛c. in middling and strict middling, with no quotable improvement in good middling. On Monday 5,100 bales changed hands, at prices indicating no quotable variation. On Tuesday the market opened with a light and moderate demand, and a manifest tendency to an unfavorable reaction in prices. The sales during the morning were consequently of moderate extent and at irregular rates, a part showing no variation from the day previous, but the rest a reduction of fully ⅛c. Later in the day, although the offerings were increased by the opening of additional samples, it failed to impart any spirit to the movement, and, with a slack demand and buyers urging further concessions, the prices accepted showed a still further falling off, and the closing quotations were ¼c. under Monday's in all grades except good middling. At the same time good staple kinds maintained their positions better than other descriptions. Good ordinary sold in the morning at 18¼c. for average lists, and 18¾c. for strict, but at the close the extremes were 18@18¼c. The sales were confined to 2,300 bales.

The receipts proper at this port, since the first of September (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida and Texas,) are 123,998 bales, against 61,458 bales to the same date last year, and the increase in the receipts at all the ports, up to the latest dates, as compared with last year, is 150,251 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries, as compared with the same date last year, there is an increase of 14,416 to Great Britain, of 24,389 to France, and of 9,434 to other foreign ports.

We quote:

Ordinary	16½ @ 17
Good ordinary	18 @ 18¼
Low middling	18¾ @ 19¼
Middling	19¼ @ —
Strict middling	19⅜ @ 19½
Good middling	19½ @ 20

COTTON STATEMENT.

Stock on hand Sept. 1, 1872, bales.		6,259
Arrived past three days	17,731
Arrived previously	141,030—	158 761
		165.020
Exported past three days	13,741
Exported previously	70,622—	84,363
Stock on hand and on shipboard		80,657

SUGAR.—As yet the new crop is coming in only in occasional small lots. On Saturday 10 hhds. old came in, no new. On Monday 36 hhds. new came in and sold at 8¾c. for common and 11½c. for yellow clarified. On Tuesday there were receipts of 19 hhds. new and 35 hhds. old.

MOLASSES.—On Tuesday the receipts comprised 63 bbls. and 8 half bbls. new, which were all sold at 60c. for common, 79 and 80c. for prime; 45 bbls. old were also received but not sold. The demand is increasing as the receipts augment, and prices are advancing.

CORN.—Has been in fair supply and good demand since our last review, and prices have advanced 3c. ₱ bushel. The sales on Saturday and Monday embraced 5,000 bags, in lots, at 67@68c. for white, and 68c. for yellow and mixed, and on Friday, not reported, 2,500 bags white and mixed sold at 65c.

OATS.—On Tuesday the supply was good, with a fair demand at previous prices, and 1,300 sacks, in lots, were sold at 37½c. for fair, and 39@40c. ₱ bushel for choice St. Louis.

BRAN.—On Tuesday it was in light supply and fair demand at a decline, with sales of 800 bags, in lots, at $1.05 @1.07½ ₱ 100 lbs.

PORK.—The market has been very dull, but the stock is held firmly at $16.25 ₱ bbl. for mess. There were sales on Saturday and Monday of 100 bbls. mess at $16, and 300 bbls., in lots, at $16.25 ₱ bbl.

BACON.—On Tuesday there was no movement other than in a job way, and shoulders were quoted at 7¾@8c., clear rib sides 11⅞@12c., clear sides 12⅛@12¼c. ₱ lb. The principal sales were confined to 14 casks clear rib sides, in store, at 12c., and 10 do. clear sides, on the landing, at 12⅛c. ₱ lb.

HAMS.—The stock of choice sugar-cured is small and is in few hands. They command 19@19½c., ordinary brands 17½@18½c., plain 15½@16c. ₱ lb. The sales have been mostly in a job way. On Monday 20 tierces choice sugar-cured sold at 19c., and 10 do., in lots, at 19½c. ₱ lb.

MONETARY.

Gold opened on Tuesday at 113¼@113⅛ (against 113 at New York,) and closed at 113¾ (against 113⅛ at New York.)

In silver we have noticed only retail sales, including $1,000 in American half dollars on Saturday at 110.

New Orleans Wholesale Prices.

REVISED AND CORRECTED WEEKLY.

Made up from Actual Sales as they Transpire.

ARTICLES.	FROM	TO
Agricultural implements:
Cotton scrapers	4 50	6 00
Cotton sweeps	4 50	6 00
Cultivators, Diam. & shovel-tooth	7 75	10 50
Cultivators, riding	45 00	60 00
Cultivators, walking	30 00	35 00
Shovels	7 50	14 50
Spades	7 50	16 50
Axes	10 00	15 00
Potato diggers	13 50	— —
Shovel plows	6 00	7 00
Half do., with cutters	8 00	9 00
Manly's D. S. plow	6 00	9 75
Corn mills, Coleman's	120 00	425 00
Bread, ₱ 100 lbs:
Pilot	6 00	7 00
Loaf	— —	— —
Crackers	7 00	8 00
Navy	— —	5 00
Cream crackers	12 00	13 00
Bricks, ₱ M:
Lake	13 00	16 00
English fire	50 00	— —
American fire	40 00	— —
Candles, ₱ lb:
Sperm, New Bedford	33	36
Tallow	16	18
Chocolate, ₱ lb:
Cocoa	38	60
No. 1	50	52
Sweet and spiced	25	— —
Cider, ₱ bbl:
Western	— —	— —
Coal, ₱ ton:
Anthracite	— —	— —
Western, ₱ bbl	— —	— —
Corks, ₱ 1000:
Regular	4 00	4 50
Pointed	3 25	4 00
Coffee, ₱ lb:
Havana (currency)	—	—
Java	25	27
Cordova	— —	— —
Copper, ₱ lb:
Braziers'	45	48
Copper bolts	45	— —
Yellow metal	30	32
Cordage, ₱ lb:
Manilla	19	20
Tarred, American	— —	15
Russian	16	— —
Cotton seed:
Rough, ₱ ton	— —	— —
In sacks	— —	— —
Dyes, ₱ lb:
Logwood, Camp'y	4	4½
Logwood, St. Domingo	4½	4¾
Fustic, Tampico	5	6
Indigo, ₱ lb	1 40	1 60
Madder	15	18
Eggs, ₱ dozen:
Western	20	23
Feathers, ₱ lb	— —	— —
Fish, ₱ box:
Cod	— —	— —
Herrings	— —	— —
Mackerel, No. 1, ₱ bbl	— —	— —
Mackerel, No. 2	— —	— —
Mackerel, No. 3	— —	— —
Flaxseed, ₱ lb	6	— —
Flour, ₱ bbl:
Double extra	6 75	7 00
Superfine	5 25	5 75
Fine	4 25	4 50
Fruit, ₱ lb:
Prunes	8½	9
Currants, new	— —	9
Almonds, soft shell	— —	19½
Almonds, shelled	— —	30
Glass, ₱ box of 50 feet:
French, 8 by 10	3 50	3 75
French, 10 by 12	3 75	4 00
French, 12 by 18	4 35	4 50
Gunny bags, ₱ bag	— —	— —
Hay, ₱ ton:
Prime	27 00	27 50
Choice	28 00	29 00
Iron, ₱ ton:
Pig	59 00	60 00
Country bar, ₱ lb	— —	— —
English	5½	7½
Swedes, assorted	6½	8½
Hoop	7	10½
Sheet	7½	8½
Boiler	7½	8½
Nail rods	— —	11
Castings, American	— —	6
Lead, ₱ 100 lbs:
Pig	— —	9 50
Bar, ₱ lb	8½	8¾
Sheet	12	— —
Pipe	12	— —
Leather, ₱ lb:
Sole, hemlock	32	36
Sole, oak	40	43
Harness	33	45
Calf skins, ₱ dozen	42 00	70 00
Texas, rough, ₱ lb	24	28
Lime, ₱ bbl:
Western	1 25	1 50
Cement	2 50	3 00
Plaster Paris	4 00	— —
Lumber, ₱ M feet:
Boards, yellow pine	14 00	15 00
Boards, cypress	20 00	25 00
Flooring, dressed	22 00	25 00
Flooring, rough	15 00	18 00
Ceiling, dressed	18 00	20 00
Weatherboards, dressed	16 00	18 00
Weatherboards, rough	13 00	14 00
Scantling	12 00	14 00
Shingles, ₱ M	3 50	4 00
Laths	2 50	— —
Moss, ₱ lb:
Country picked	— —	— —
Clean picked	— —	— —
Nails, ₱ keg:
American, 4@6d	6 00	6 15
Wrought, German, ₱ lb	— —	— —
Wrought, English	— —	— —
Oils:
Lard, ₱ gallon	— —	— —
Coal oil, in barrels	31	33
Coal oil, in cases	35	37
Linseed, raw	91	92
Sperm	—	2 00
Whale, refined	95	1 00
Cotton seed, crude	— —	— —
Cotton seed, refined	— —	— —
Castor	1 65	1 85
Olive, 22@24 oz	6 00	6 50
Olive, 11@12 oz	7 25	— —
Tanner's, ₱ gallon	75	85
Soap, ₱ lb:
Western	— —	— —
Northern	— —	— —
Southern	— —	— —
Castile, genuine	— —	— —
Castile, imitation	— —	— —
Sardines:
Half boxes	34	35½
Quarter boxes	— —	23
Spices, ₱ lb:
Cassia	36	38
Cloves	— —	23
Nutmegs	1 20	1 25
Pepper	21	21½
Pimento	12	12½
Sugar, ₱ lb:
Havana, white	12	13
Havana, yellow	10¾	11½
Havana, brown	10½	11¾
Crushed	— —	13½
Pulverized	— —	13½
Teas, ₱ lb:
Imperial	45	1 10
Gunpowder	75	1 50
Hyson	75	1 25
Young Hyson	75	1 10
Oolong	45	1 10
Ponchong	30	50
Tin, ₱ box:
Block	— —	— —
In plates, I. X	19 00	19 25
In plates, I. C	16 50	16 75
Leaded plates, I. X	17 25	17 50
Leaded plates, I. C	15 00	15 25

CATTLE MARKET.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 22, 1872.

Texas beeves, choice, ₱ head	$— —	@	50 00
Texas beeves, 1st qual, ₱ head	35 00	@	45 00
Texas cattle, 2d qual, ₱ head	20 00	@	28 00
Texas cattle, 3d qual, ₱ head	15 00	@	18 00
Western beeves, ₱ lb. net	— —	@	— —
Hogs, ₱ lb. gross	6	@	7½
Sheep, first quality, ₱ head	5 00	@	6 00
Sheep, second qual., ₱ head	3 00	@	4 00
Sheep, third quality, ₱ head	2 00	@	2 10
Milch cows, choice, ₱ head	80 00	@	100 00
Milch cows, ₱ head	50 00	@	80 00
Texas cows, with calves	— —	@	— —
Calves, ₱ head	7 00	@	10 00
Yearlings, ₱ head	8 00	@	12 00

Appointments for Quarterly Meetings.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

VICKSBURG DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

North Warren, Milldale and Cane Ridge, at Oak Ridge	Oct. 5, 6
South Warren, at Bovina	12, 13
Cayuga, at Rives' chapel	19, 20
Port Gibson	26, 27
Clover Hill, at Clover Hill	Nov. 2, 3
Rolling Fork, at Rolling Fork	9, 10
Fayette, at Fayette	16, 17
Natchez	23, 24
Kingston, at Washington	30, Dec. 1
Vicksburg and City mission	Dec. 7, 8

JOHN A. B. JONES, P. E., Port Gibson, Miss.

JACKSON DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Sharon circuit, at Sharon	Oct. 5, 6
Yazoo circuit, at Locust Grove	12, 13
Yazoo City and Silver Creek, at Yazoo City	19, 20
Mount Olivet circuit and Yazoo mission, at Mount Olivet	26, 27
Carthage circuit	Nov. 2, 3
Sulphur Springs circuit	9, 10
Raymond circuit, at Raymond	16, 17
Brownsville ct., at Queen's Hill	23, 24
Camden and Thomastown circuits	30, Dec. 1

The secretaries of Church Conferences will please present the report of statistics, as required by the Discipline, pages 55 and 56. The trustees of our church property will please make their report, as required by the Discipline, pages 55 and 102.

H. H. MONTGOMERY, P. E.

SUMMIT DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Sacramental meeting, at Port Vincle	Oct. 12, 13
Holmesville circuit, at Holmesville	19, 20
Covington circuit, at Spring Hill	26, 27
Amite City circuit, at Amite City	Nov. 2, 3
Franklinton circuit, at Warner's	9, 10
Big Creek miss., at Shilling church	16, 17
St. Helena ct., at Center church	23, 24
Pontchatoula mission, at Joyner's church	30, Dec. 1
Greenburg ct., at Pipkin chapel	Dec. 7, 8

J. NICHOLSON, P. E.

BROOKHAVEN DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Scotland circuit, at Caseyville	Oct. 5, 6
Pleasant Valley ct., at Reheboth	12, 13
Burtonton circuit, at Pisgah	19, 20
Beauregard	26, 27
Georgetown ct., at Pleas't Grove	Nov. 2, 3
Jackson circuit, at Spring Ridge	9, 10
Crystal Springs and Crystal Spr'gs mission	16, 17
Bogue Chitto circuit, at Johnson's Station	23, 24
Brookhaven station and Brookhaven mission	30
Hazlehurst station	Dec. 7, 8

Secretaries of the respective Boards of Stewards will prepare a financial statement for the use of the Joint Board, as required by the Discipline. Trustees will report the condition and character of titles of all property they hold for the church.

W. E. M. LINFIELD, P. E.

BRANDON DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Hillsboro circuit	Oct. 5, 6
Philadelphia circuit	12, 13
Decatur mission	19, 20
Lake circuit	26, 27
Trenton circuit	Nov. 2, 3
Raleigh and Morton circuit	9, 10
Forest circuit	16, 17
Taylorville mission	23, 24
Garlandsville circuit	30, Dec. 1
Brandon circuit	Dec. 7, 8

F. M. WILLIAMS, P. E.

WOODVILLE DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Woodville	Oct. 5, 6
East Feliciana	12, 13
Clinton	19, 20
Buffalo	26, 27
Bayou Sara	Nov. 2, 3
Wilkinson	9, 10
Meadville	16, 17
Amite	23, 24
East Baton Rouge	30, Dec. 1
Jackson	Dec. 8, 9

For four long weeks I have been confined to the room of my afflicted wife, so that I have missed three of my appointments; but my dear brother, President Andrews, has and will supply my lack of service.

J. L. FORSYTH, P. E.

MERIDIAN DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

DeKalb ct., at New Hope (camp meeting)	Oct. 5, 6
Wayne circuit, at Frost's Bridge (camp meeting)	12, 13
Paulding circuit	19, 20
Enterprise station	26, 27
Clarke circuit	Nov. 2, 3
Enterprise ct., at Pleasant Valley	9, 10
Marion circuit	16, 17
Meridian station	30, Dec. 1

WM. B. HINES, P. E.

SEASHORE DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Green mission	Oct. 5, 6
East Pascagoula, at Salem camp ground	12, 13
Enon, at Enon	19, 20
Rankin	Nov. 30, Dec. 1

C. F. GILLASPIE, P. E.

ALABAMA CONFERENCE.

UNION SPRINGS DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Brundidge circuit, at Williams'	Oct. 5, 6
Union circuit, at Line Creek	12, 13
Union Springs station	19, 20
Pine Level circuit, at Orion	23, 24
Troy and Brundidge station, at Brundidge	26, 27
Dinsted circuit, at Shady Grove	30, 31
Rocky Mount ct., at Rocky Mount	Nov. 2, 3
Rutledge circuit, at Rutledge	9, 10
Elba circuit, at Oak Grove	12, 13
Fort Deposit ct., at Tabernacle	16, 17
Greenville circuit, at Mount Nebo	23, 24
Greenville station	30, Dec. 1
Troy ct., at North Wesley chapel	Dec. 7, 8

The preachers will please attend to their collections and the statistics. Stewards are earnestly requested to try to bring up the assessments. Trustees will not forget to be ready with their reports. A full attendance is solicited.

J. W. SHOAES, P. E.

EUFAULA DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Eufaula	Oct. 5, 6
Villula	12, 13
Glennville	19, 20
Beulah	26, 27
Enon and Midway	Nov. 2, 3
Perote	9, 10
Clayton and Louisville	16, 17
Choctawhatchie	23, 24
Lawrenceville	30, Dec. 1
Chanahatchie	Dec. 7, 8

JAS. L. COTTEN, P. E.

DEMOPOLIS DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Cuba, at Cuba	Oct. 12, 13
Gainesville, at Gainesville	19, 20
Forkland, at Forkland	26, 27
Demopolis	Nov. 2, 3
Butler, at Mount Sterling	9, 10
Gaston, at Bethel	16, 17
Bladen Springs, at Bethel	23, 24

Preachers in charge will please have ready full statistical reports; stewards will make faithful efforts to bring up their finances, so as to meet the assessments; and trustees will be ready to give a clear statement of the condition of the property in their charges.

S. H. COX, P. E.

MOBILE DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Grand Bay mission, at Pleasant Valley	Oct. 5, 6
Citronelle circuit, at Citronelle	19, 20
St. Stephen's ct., at Pine Grove	26, 27
Franklin street	Nov. 2, 3
Pollard circuit, at Hendrick's	9, 10
Milton	16, 17
Pensacola	23, 24
St. Francis street	Dec. 1

The stewards, trustees and preachers will be ready with their reports, as the Discipline requires. They will please read and refresh their memories.

H. URQUHART, P. E.

SELMA DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Selma station	Oct. 5, 6
Rembert Hills circuit, at Shiloh	12, 13
Peachtree ct., at Mount Andrew	19, 20
Summerfield station	26, 27
Choctaw Corner circuit, at Basil	Nov. 2, 3
Dayton and Spring Hill circuit, at Dayton	9, 10
Linden and Flatwoods mission	— —
Orrville circuit, at Center chapel	16, 17
Jackson circuit, at Grove Hill	23, 24
Suggsville circuit, at Gainstown	30, Dec. 1

We hope for a full attendance, and complete reports, as required by the Discipline. Those who have subscribed to the district parsonage will please bring or send up their contributions to the quarterly meetings.

A. J. BROOKS, P. E.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

OUACHITA DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Vernon circuit, at Wesley chapel	Oct. 19, 20
Homer, at Arizona	26, 27
Haynesville, at Colquett	Nov 2, 3
Ouachita, at Ebenezer	16, 17
Farmerville, at Alabama church	30, Dec. 1
Castor, at Brooklyn	Dec. 14, 15
Monroe station	21, 22
Trenton	28, 29

S. S. SCOTT, P. E.

NEW ORLEANS DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Carondelet street	Oct 6
Moreau street	13
Louisiana avenue	20
Cadiz street	27
Plaquemine	Nov. 3
Algiers	10
Thibodaux	17
German charges	24
German charges	Dec. 1
Felicity street	8
Houma	22
Baton Rouge	29

LINUS PARKER, P. E.

SHREVEPORT DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Caddo circuit	Nov. 9, 10
Pleasant Hill circuit	16, 17
Anacoco circuit	23, 24
Keachie circuit	30, Dec. 1
Manay circuit	Dec. 7, 8
Springville circuit	14, 15
Shreveport station	21, 22
Mansfield station	28, 29

JOHN PIPES, P. E.

ALEXANDRIA DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Centerville mission	Oct. 19, 20
Columbia circuit	26, 27
Spring Creek and Bayou Bœuf cts.	Nov. 2, 3
Trinity, at White Ridge	9, 10
Evergreen and Big Cane	16, 17
Atlanta	23, 24
Rapides circuit	30, Dec. 1

FRED. WHITE, P. E.

LAKE PROVIDENCE DIS.—FOURTH ROUND

Westley and Jordan, at Westley	Oct. 19, 20
Waterproof, at Waterproof	26, 27
Oak Ridge and Prairie Mer Rouge	Nov. 2, 3
Lake Providence, at Lake Providence	7-10
Floyd and Delhi, at Floyd	16, 17
Oak Grove, at Smith's chapel	23, 24
Lind Grove, at Bartholomew	30, Dec. 1
Sicily Island, at Sicily Island	Dec. 7, 8
Winnsboro, at Magnolia	14, 15
Rayville, at Rayville	21, 22
Bastrop, at Bastrop	28, 29

The brethren will please remember that this is the fourth and last quarter. Boards of stewards will please be prepared for a full settlement of all financial obligations. Boards of trustees will be prepared to make their annual report. Pastors will be prepared with full quarterly and statistical reports.

J. T. DAVES, P. E.

OPELOUSAS DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND

Lake Charles	Oct. 5, 6
Calcasieu	12, 13
Sugartown	19, 20
Bayou Bœuf	26, 27
Kimball chapel	Nov. 2, 3
Vermillionville	9, 10
Abbeville	16, 17
New Iberia	23, 24

B. F. WHITE, P. E.
Postoffice—Opelousas, La.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

YAZOO DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Attala circuit, at Pleasant Hill	Oct. 5, 6
Winona circuit, at Bethesda	12, 13
Greenwood and McNutt, at Greenwood	19, 20
Lexington	26, 27
Durant, at West's station	Nov. 2, 3
Koschusko and Bethel, at Koscl'ko	9, 10
Black Hawk, at Sweetwater	16, 17

W. P. BARTON, P. E.

N. B.—Camp meetings at Liberty and Durant quarterly meetings.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Soule's Commercial College,

CORNER OF CAMP AND COMMON STS., (STORY BUILDING,) NEW ORLEANS.

The Commercial Atheneum of the South.

Founded in 1856.....Chartered in 1861.

This is a full-course BUSINESS COLLEGE, complete in all its departments. It is conducted by progressive minds, and as the daily cycles of time roll by the increased wisdom, the improvements and the superior facilities of the age are combined and used to meet the demands of the rising business generation and advance the interests of its patrons.

It is located in the Athens of the great Southwest, and is emphatically the Commercial Atheneum of the South.

It possesses a commercial library, numerous counting rooms and lecture halls, and a proficient and well-appointed faculty. Stores and banks are connected, business regularly transacted, daily lectures given, and all branches practically, scientifically and philosophically taught.

The curriculum of studies is specially arranged to meet the wants of the planter, mechanic and professional man, as well as the merchant and banker. All branches of a thorough English education are taught, and also the higher mathematics, the French, Spanish and German languages.

Ninety-one premiums, gold and silver medals, diplomas, money prizes, silver plate, etc., attest the superior merits of this institution.

Tuition fees low, and scholarships good in thirty-six colleges.

By reason of the ability and fidelity of the principal and instructors of this institution, and its many truly superior advantages, it has gained an unsurpassed popularity, and through nearly sixteen years of prosperous business it has enjoyed the almost unbounded confidence of the business community.

For circulars call at the College office, or address GEO. SOULE, Principal.

N. B.—Soule's Analytic and Philosophic Commercial and Exchange Calculator (880 octavo pages,) the great arithmetical work of the age and which no student, teacher, accountant or business man should be without, is for sale at principal stationers and at the office of Soule's Commercial College. oc17 1m

THE UPPER CITY HOTEL,

SITUATED UPON TWO LINES OF DOUble-track railroad, within fifteen minutes' ride of Canal street. Possesses all the conveniences of city life, combined with country pleasantry. The rooms are magnificently furnished, and there is nothing that obstructs the view to the private gardens surrounding the Hotel. Surrounded by a veranda twelve feet wide, two hundred and fifty feet in length, affording a magnificent promenade for the guests of the Hotel. The situation and convenience, with a good table, affords the Proprietor the pleasant duty of naming "THE UPPER CITY" a first-class Family Hotel. We allow our accommodations and our attentions a full guarantee against the influence of runners. It requires but to see and be pleased. oc17 3m

AGENTS WANTED FOR GOODSPEED'S

PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN BOOK.

Every citizen wants it. Also for Campaign Goods. Address, for circulars and terms,

J. W. GOODSPEED'S
Empire Publishing House,
oc17 3m 41 Natchez street, New Orleans.

$5 TO $20 per Day.—Agents Wanted. All classes of working people, of either sex, young or old, make more money at work for us in their spare moments, or all the time, than at anything else. Particulars free. Address G. STINSON & CO., Portland, Maine
se12 1y

DRY GOODS—CLOTHING.

D. H. HOLMES,

135.....CANAL STREET.....135

—AND—

15.....BOURBON STREET.....15

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALER

—IN—

ALL DESCRIPTIONS

—OF—

DRY GOODS,

—SUCH AS—

SILKS, TISSUES, EMBROIDERIES, LACES, SHAWLS, CLOAKS, MADE SUITS, ETC.

The attention of the public is respectfully called to our stock, which will be found most complete, embracing every kind of Fancy and Staple Goods.

ap25 6m

W. H. PIERSON. E. L. HEWS.

PIERSON & HEWS,

DEALERS IN

Fine Clothing & Furnishing Goods,

NOS. 13 AND 15 CAMP STREET,

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

feb15 1y

STEAMSHIPS.

FOR NEW YORK.

The Cromwell New York and New Orleans Steamship Line.

Steamers of this Line leave New Orleans for New York EVERY SATURDAY at 5 P. M.

Cabin passage..... $50 00
Steerage passage..... 25 00

Through bills of lading to foreign and coastwise ports issued.

ALFRED MOULTON,
mh21 1y 41 Carondelet street.

FOR NEW YORK.

MERCHANTS' STEAMSHIP LINE.

Sailing from New York and New Orleans EVERY SATURDAY.

Cabin passage..... $50 00
Steerage passage..... 25 00

Through tickets to Liverpool and the Continent.

New Orleans wharf, foot of Jefferson street.
New York wharf, Pier No. 4, North river.

JOHN H. LUDWIGSEN, Agent,
feb8 1y No. 190 Common street.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE GREAT

HOUSEHOLD REMEDY.

As an Invigorator, Liver Corrector and Blood Renovator is superior to all the Bitters, Elixirs, Cordials and Sarsaparillas in use. It is so adapted to the whole system that every organ and function in the body is brought under its exhilarating influence. It gives tone and strength to the digestive apparatus, dispels languor and debility, invigorates the Liver, regulates the Kidneys and Bowels, removes the effect of excess or overtaxation of any kind, and gives vitality and richness to the blood.

Its curative powers alter and completely reorganize the entire mass of fluids, and even the solids of the human system, thereby preventing and curing Dyspeptic and Consumptive symptoms, Fever and Ague, Bilious diseases, Fevers of all kinds, Nervous Debility, Affections of the Stomach and Bowels, etc. As a mild and delightful Invigorant for delicate females it has no superior.

By its use new life and vigor is given to both body and mind, sending a glow of vitality through every part, which is permanent and lasting.

It is the most effectual remedy for the relief of human suffering ever discovered, and is pleasant to the taste.

WE CHALLENGE
THE WORLD
to produce a more delicious medicine to take, yet so potent for the prevention and cure of diseases, than DR. HENRY'S

WORLD'S TONIC AND BLOOD PURIFIER.

Price, $1, or Six Bottles for $5.

Prepared by the GRAFTON MEDICINE Co., St. Louis, Mo. Sold by druggists and dealers in medicines everywhere. jy18 1yeow

P. O. BOX 1179, PITTSBURGH, PA.

Breech-Loading Shot Guns, $10 to $300. Double Shot Guns, $8 to $150. Single Guns, $3 to $20. Rifles, $8 to $75. Revolvers, $6 to $25. Send stamp for Price List. Army Guns, Revolvers, etc., etc., bought or traded for. au15 1yeow

MEDICAL.

DR. D. JAYNE'S ALTERATIVE

WILL

BUILD UP THE SYSTEM,

PURIFY THE BLOOD,

AND

EXCITE THE ABSORBENTS TO

HEALTHY ACTION.

DR. D. JAYNE'S ALTERATIVE

IS A STANDARD MEDICINE:

a compound of those articles which long experience has proven to possess the most safe and efficient alterative and deobstruent properties, and containing no concealed poisons, no mercurial or other metallic preparations. Having before us the testimonials of thousands of persons who have been restored to sound health from its use, it is recommended to the afflicted with entire confidence as to its ability to effectually eradicate from the human system the diseases for whose cure it is designed.

For Purifying the Blood

the Alterative will be found to be a most effective medicine. Acting directly on the circulation, it purifies the blood, and passes with it into every tissue and fiber of the body, removing every particle of disease from the system.

FOR SCROFULA IN ALL ITS FORMS,

whether Ulcerations of the Flesh or Bones, Enlargement of the Joints, Glands, Swellings, Eruptions, Tumors, etc., the Alterative has been found pre-eminently successful. By its action on the blood it destroys the virus or poisonous principle from which these diseases originate;

FOR SKIN DISEASES,

the immediate cause of which will always be found to be an obstructed state of the pores, JAYNE'S ALTERATIVE is a certain remedy. It not only removes the obstinate state of the pores, but it frees the blood and perspiration from all impurities and gross particles, which are so liable to obstruct the small perspiratory organs.

All Dr. D. Jayne & Son's Family Medicines are sold by our Agents in New Orleans,

E. J. HART & Co., 73 Tchoupitoulas St.,

and by Druggists and Dealers everywhere.
se5 2m

MRS. M. G. BROWN'S

CELEBRATED

POOR RICHARD'S

EYE-WATER

derives its name from Benjamin Franklin's Almanac, which is immortal for its philosophical sayings, one of which is: "An ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure."

Giving the Eyes a drink, morning and night, of

POOR RICHARD'S EYE-WATER

would prevent every disease which attacks the human body, thus lengthening life to an indefinite period.

The Body is of the Earth, and the Eye is a Plant, which requires moisture.

The dust received into the eyes daily works itself into mortar, which clogs the machinery of the head, and closes up the eight thousand tubes and glands around the eyes; the balls contract and sink; they grow to the socket, and consequently the revolving power is impeded. This is what causes the bloodstreaks, the dark greenish color of the balls, and scum.

When the eyes are neglected the entire machinery of the face becomes distorted; even the countenance is changed. How true: "The light of the body is the eye." It is as necessary to give the eye moisture as any plant of the field.

Language fails to make known the salutary effects upon the entire mental and physical machinery arising from giving the eyes a drink of POOR RICHARD'S EYE-WATER, morning and night; also the fearful consequence of neglecting so to do from the cradle to the grave.

POOR RICHARD'S EYE-WATER
Prevents Catarrh.

POOR RICHARD'S EYE-WATER
Cures Catarrh,
Opens the 8,000 tubes and glands in the head.
Prevents tightness and pains in the head.
Opens and keeps open the mucous membrane,
Removes phlegm from throat and chest.

POOR RICHARD'S EYE-WATER
Removes Wrinkles and Blotches,
Gives large, sparkling eyes,
Gives a clear, smooth complexion,
Lifts sunken eyes,
Strengthens weak eyes.

POOR RICHARD'S EYE-WATER
Removes tan freckles,

The Christian Advocate.

PUBLISHED BY ROBT. J. HARP, FOR THE ALABAMA, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES, METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH SOUTH.

VOL. XVIII. NEW ORLEANS, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1872. NO. 44.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

DOMESTIC.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—The Secretary of the Treasury directs collectors to forbid the importation of horses suspected of disease. The collectors report that the disease is epidemic, but not contagious, and, when taken early, yields readily to remedies

The Indian commissioners promise pardons for Santana and Big Tree, after two years' good behavior on the part of their tribes.

The following dispatch was to-night received from Minister Bancroft:

"BERLIN, October 23, 1872.

"HON. HAMILTON FISH, Washington: The three experts to whom the American memorial on the Canal DeHaro and the British lease were referred, have made each for himself a very elaborate report on the question, supporting their opinions by reason, stated with technical precision and exactness. The Emperor has also, with the highest sense of official duty, given his personal attention to the subject, and after the most careful study and deliberation he has arrived at the conclusion satisfactory to his own sense of justice.

The reports of the experts, with reason, have not been communicated to the United States. The decree of imperial arbitration, which has been communicated, has the form not so much of a decree in council as of a cabinet order. It does not enter into any elaborate exposition of the decision, but without diverging the least from the point presented for arbitration, decrees that the claim of the United States of America is most in accordance with the true interpretation of the treaty of June 15, 1846. I shall forward the official copy of the decree by a special messenger. BANCROFT."

INDIANAPOLIS, October 23.—Hendricks' official majority is eleven hundred and forty-eight.

NEW YORK, Oct 24.—Various reports of the horse disease are received up to this afternoon, but it is generally conceded that no mortality has yet accompanied it. The papers discuss the various modes of treatment—some being successful with lobelia, others with tar, and one person gives testimony of the efficacy of the French treatment, by phenic acid injections into the veins. Great numbers of horses continue to be affected, and nearly every second horse seen in the streets shows signs of being under the influence of the disease.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Of the three hundred horses used on the North river by stevedores, two hundred and eighty have got the disease.

Very few horses in Brooklyn escape the contagion. Grocers, bakers, butchers, milkmen and teamen are unable to supply their customers.

HUDSON, N. Y., Oct. 25.—The horse epidemic has made its appearance in this county. Yesterday a number of horses were taken sick in Claverack, Chatham, Hillsdale and other adjacent towns.

AUGUSTA, ME., Oct. 25.—There are a number of horses sick. Only a few died so far.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 25.—Investigation shows that there is no horse disease here.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 25.—The horse doctors announce the appearance of the malady here.

LEWISTON, ME., Oct. 25.—Several hundred horses sick. Only a few deaths.

BOSTON, Oct. 26.—The first known and authenticated case of horse malady communicated to a human being was reported here to-day. Russell White, the driver of Engine No. 4, while driving his horses, was suddenly taken with the malady. He had all the symptoms—coughing, running at the eyes and nose, and general feverish debility.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—The horse disease to-night is reported to be unabated; in fact, the distemper is said to be spreading. The feeling of alarm is increasing, and the owners of animals not seriously affected are keeping their horses in stables, giving them every care. The number of street cars running was decreased very materially to-day, though this is not quite so much due to the disease as to the inclemency of the weather, caused by heavy rains. The Ninth avenue railroad stopped its cars, as did also the Fifth Avenue Stage Company.

In some of the stables the distemper has made no apparent increase; in others, notably that of the Third avenue, it became severer. Express companies report the recovery of some of their horses. It is stated that the United States Express Company has forty car loads of freight in Jersey City in consequence of the scarcity of teams.

Mr. Bergh suggests as a remedy for the prevailing horse disease: Complete rest, warm blankets, no exposure to drafts of air, disinfectants, total absence of bleeding and prostrating cathartics, twenty or thirty drops of tincture of iron in a gill of Jamaica rum diluted with water, given every four hours. In order to preserve the strength of the horse, tincture of arnica will produce relief. A plaster bound round the throat, composed of one portion of cayenne pepper and two of flaxseed, mixed with vinegar, is excellent.

BOSTON, Oct. 29.—The horse disease has taken a favorable turn.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 29.—There are fifty cases of the horse disease here, and a hundred in Camden.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—The reports are that the horse disease is increasing in extent and violence. Overworked horses are stabled for needed rest, embarrassing business still more. The fire department horses are nearly all sick.

Horsemen say the disease has reached its crisis and will be on the decline from to-day. Weather cool.

FOREIGN.

CITY OF MEXICO, Oct. 23.—The political situation is improving, and it is thought the administration of Lerdo de Tejada will be successful. Primary elections took place on the thirteenth instant.

Lerdo de Tejadas' nomination was unopposed, and the result will probably be declared in time for him to enter upon the regular term of office, which is the first of December.

A commission has been appointed to investigate affairs on the Rio Grande, and has been instructed to investigate everything. The Two Republics says: "This is unlike the American commission, which only made ex parte examination."

The same journal also says that affairs on the Rio Grande have been greatly exaggerated, and that it is in possession of American testimony showing that General Cortina, since entering the service of the government, has neither been guilty of or accessory to robbing the Texans of their cattle.

The government has relieved General Cortina from service on the Rio Grande frontier, and ordered him to report at the capital.

Mazatlan is again in possession of the government.

Porfirio Diaz and Donato Guerra are the only rebels of note who have not accepted amnesty.

MELBOURNE, VICTORIA, Oct. 24, via London, Oct. 25.—Trouble has occurred with the natives of Chatham Islands, in the South Pacific ocean, and whites are threatened with extermination.

PARIS, Oct. 26.—The Paris papers foreshadow the adoption, at the coming session of the Assembly, of the constitutional amendments making M. Thiers president for life, creating an upper chamber and the office of vice president, partially remodeling the Assembly and providing restrictions upon the right of universal suffrage.

ROME, Oct. 26.—The floods on the banks of the river Po, caused by overflow of the waters into that stream, have not abated. Many persons have been drowned, and a vast amount of property destroyed.

ROME, Oct. 28.—Damages caused by inundations by the Po, especially in the provinces of Mantua and Ferrara, are immense. Several hundred kilometers of the most fertile land in Italy are covered with water, and whole towns and villages were submerged. Many houses have been undermined and fallen. In some places the water reaches the roofs of the highest buildings. Thousands of people are homeless, and others are flying from their homes, which are threatened with destruction.

The towns of Casal, Maggirre and Asteglia, on the river Po, are in great danger, and the inhabitants are panic-stricken. The suffering is widespread and intense, but relief is going forward from all parts of Italy.

THE steamship Victor, Captain Gates, which sailed from New York for this port on the sixteenth instant, went ashore, on the twenty-first, on Jupiter Inlet. The vessel is a total loss. Passengers and crew saved, a portion of whom arrived last night on board the steamship General Meade. The steamship Victor was built in 1864 at Mystic, Connecticut, rated A1 in Lloyds, registered one thousand three hundred and twenty-six tons, and was owned by Messrs. C. H. Mallory & Co., of New York.—Picayune, October 28.

FROM THE WORK.

WAYNE CIRCUIT, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: We had a good camp meeting at Frost's Bridge, on the Wayne circuit. Seventeen joined the church, and we suppose as many were converted to God. At this camp meeting we held our fourth Quarterly Conference, and sixty-nine were reported as having joined the church the last quarter. Now add to these the seventeen who joined at our camp meeting, and we have eighty-six members who have joined the church on Wayne circuit the last quarter. Forty-three of these joined at a protracted meeting held by Dr. West and Bro. Thomas Chapman, two of our local preachers. So you see, Bro. Parker, our local preachers on the Wayne circuit are doing a good work. As to our finances, we believe the Wayne circuit will pay up all its dues. JAMES SHANKS, P. C.

OCTOBER 21, 1872.

RYAN'S CHAPEL, CALCASIEU PARISH, LOUISIANA.—Mr. Editor: Our meeting at Lake Charles was quite a success. We had nine valuable accessions to the church, nearly all being men, and intelligent, responsible men. At this place the Lord has poured out his Spirit, and twenty-one have been added to the fold. We have also had the pleasure of dedicating a new church to God's worship. On Sabbath there was one of the largest and most attentive audiences that I have ever preached to in this State. To show the increased interest for God's work in this section, let me say that three new and comfortable churches have been built during the last three months within a radius of six miles; and on last Sabbath, besides every usual mode of getting to church, two steamboats were brought into requisition for this purpose. Our church in this "far west" of my district is ten-fold stronger than at the commencement of the Conference year. To God be all the praise. Yours in Christ,

B. F. WHITE.

OCTOBER 15, 1872.

GASTON CIRCUIT, ALABAMA CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: The camp meeting of this charge, as published in the ADVOCATE, commenced on Friday before the first Sunday in this month, and continued five days. The results, thank God, we can say, are quite encouraging. Perceptible interest was evidenced from the beginning of the meeting, and continued with increased vigor to its close.

Many souls have had their spiritual strength renewed, sinners in large numbers felt the drawings of the Holy Ghost, and many tasted the sweets of pardoning love. Besides this, the good seed sown by the preached word, we feel assured, will yet spring up and bring forth abundant fruit—bring many a prodigal back to his Father's house, and comfort and cheer and nourish many earnest souls. Many will be the blessings which Gaston circuit will bestow upon Bros. Bancroft, Walker, Evans, Hood, Mason, Thames and others for their labors of love.

There were thirty-two accessions to our church. Good order prevailed during the entire meeting—no disturbances. There is considerable revival here on the subject of camp meetings. Years ago this circuit was noted for these meetings. The brethren are determined to have "old times" back again. The camp meeting with them is a fixture. The meeting for 1873 is now appointed. Already more than double the number of tenters we had at our late meeting are pledged for the coming year. The prospect is indeed cheering. May the Lord carry forward the good work.

Prior to the camp meeting I held two protracted meetings—one at Tompkinsville, the other at Coke's chapel. At both places the Spirit of the Lord was present in awakening and converting power. Fourteen were added to the church at Tompkinsville, and eleven at Coke's chapel.

I will state that seven-eighths of all who have thus far united with the church on this work are young people—those of tender years and blooming manhood and womanhood. Is not the Lord answering the prayers of the church for the conversion of the young?

The finances of the circuit we consider good. We believe every dime of all the assessments will be paid.

C. B. DUBOSE, P. C.

DESOTOVILLE, ALA., Oct. 17, 1872.

AT THE late session of the North Ohio Conference, at Mansfield, Ohio, four presiding elders, who had completed their four years' term, were each honored with presents.

LETTER FROM WACO, TEXAS.

MR. EDITOR: On leaving New Orleans, some time since, I promised to note anything of interest that might transpire about my new home for the gratification of your numerous readers.

In regard to church matters, which I regard the first in importance, it is noticeable that all the denominations represented here are prospering. The Presbyterians have a handsome brick church, with sittings for two hundred and fifty, and the services of Rev. Mr. King are well attended, and the work is prospering in his hands.

The Baptists have a commodious church building, and their pastor, Rev. Mr. Carroll, has generally a full house to preach to. The late protracted meeting in this church has resulted in the addition of twenty-six through the ordinance of baptism.

The Methodists hold their services in the college building, the hall containing sittings for five hundred. The Rev. W. R. D. Stocton, who has been stationed here for the past year, has abundant reason to be thankful in view of the result of his labors. The additions to the church during the late protracted meeting, in which he was assisted by Rev. W. C. Conner, president of the college, have been thirty, making a total for the year of upward of one hundred.

Rev. Bishop Keener, of Louisiana, preached here yesterday to a crowded house. He, with other Methodist brethren, left this morning to attend the Annual Conference at Belton.

The Episcopal church has also been blessed of late by the outpouring of the Spirit of God. At a service yesterday a week, conducted by Rev. Bishop Gregg, D. D., the rite of confirmation was administered to fourteen persons. This is now one of the weakest organizations in our midst; but it is growing, and will, no doubt, soon take her position among the stronger sister churches.

The Sabbath schools connected with the foregoing churches are all in a flourishing condition, and prove to be of great assistance to the church.

In a secular point of view the city of Waco is certainly prosperous. Its massive blocks of brick buildings give proof of the energy and enterprise of its business men, and the large stocks of goods just received give evidence of their faith in its future prosperity.

New faces are constantly seen on the streets, and many families are arriving to take up their abode in this and the adjoining counties. Our fertile prairies will soon be under tillage, and the long-horned cattle will soon be required to graze on the more distant western ranges.

The Indians are still at their bloody work, making their periodical visits to the quiet settlements on the frontier. Last week a gang of about twenty visited the neighborhood of Granbury, and in a most wanton manner shot down three women while they were at home attending to their household affairs, killing two of them and severely wounding the third; then rushing, with a demoniac yell, into the house, they seized and carried off the children. My son, who was on the spot just after this murderous attack, writes: "The Indians are not satisfied with killing the women and stealing all the horses they can take away, but they kill all that come within their range, and the fields and roads are strewn with dead horses." "The citizens turned out en masse, and the Red Skins retreated to their strongholds in the mountains." One month ago the town of Gatesville was visited during the night by these thieves, and a number of fine horses taken off.

How long the good people of this State are to be subject to such assaults and depredations is a question which the government that promises protection to life and property should answer, and speedily put them to an end.

During the last twelve hours we have been blessed with refreshing showers, sufficiently heavy to lay the dust for a day or two at least, which has not been the case since the twenty-eighth of June—nearly four months. Yours truly, G.

WACO, TEXAS, October 21, 1872.

PROF. C. C. CUMMINGS, of Los Neitos, California, called on us and gave us information of a great revival in progress at Los Neitos camp meeting. He says that the revival is very extensive, scores are being converted, and the whole community is aroused. Our brethren of the Los Angeles Conference have been greatly blessed this season.—Pacific Methodist.

CONFERENCE ITEMS.

ST. LOUIS CONFERENCE.

The St. Louis Conference held its annual session at Arcadia, October 16–20, Bishop George F. Pierce presiding. The appointments only are given in the last St. Louis Christian Advocate. The appointments of the St. Louis district are as follows:

ST. LOUIS DISTRICT.—W. M. Leftwich, P. E.—First church and Marvin mission, L. M. Lewis, W. Browning; Centenary, J. H. Linn; St. John's, J. W. Lewis; St. Paul's, C. D. N. Campbell; Wesley chapel, J. C. Duncan; Bellefontaine, W. M. Williams; Eden, J. R. Hicks; Bridgeton, F. A. Morris; Maremec, L. W. Powell; Manchester, J. H. St. Clair; Mount Olive and Kirkwood, J. S. Frazier; Carondelet, to be supplied; Labadie and Washington, J. E. Godbey, and one to be supplied; St. James, to be supplied; McAnally Institute, D. R. McAnally; editor St. Louis Christian Advocate, T. M. Finney.

TENNESSEE CONFERENCE.

The Tennessee Conference held its session in the McKendree church, Nashville, October 16–23. Bishop Doggett presided and preached greatly to the satisfaction of all.

Our old friend Doty was present, seeking volunteers for Louisiana—we guess he was successful. Dr. Walden, of the Western Book Concern, also made a visit to the Conference.

The missionary anniversary was a grand success. Dr. Kelley says: "The Tennessee Conference Board of Missions held its anniversary at McKendree church on Saturday night of the Conference session. Addresses carefully prepared, and limited to thirty minutes each, were delivered by the Rev. R. K. Hargrove, of the Tennessee Female College, Franklin, and Dr. Haygood, not only full of the true missionary spirit, but so pregnant in facts and grand principles that the years to come can only measure the results, and eternity exhibit the fruits. A collection followed of over $1,600, since increased by contributions from the congregation to $1,950. McKendree has set the key-note high; let all our churches go and do likewise."

The report on statistics was made out in clerkly style, and all correct, by the fourth day of the session. White members, 38,619; increase, 2,160; colored, 53; decrease, 97; local preachers, 307; decrease, 10; adults baptized, 2,950; infants, 1,118; Sunday schools, 351; decrease, 5; teachers, 2,007; decrease, 25; scholars, 17,388; increase, 369; volumes in library, 29,231; necessary for claimants, $3,000; collected, $2,287.85; collected for missions, $5 520.24; for Bishops, $1,719 50. The next session is to be held at Franklin.

The Conference acted favorably in regard to the Central University. But we must reserve reports, etc., to a future issue. The session was very profitable and pleasant—it was eminently deliberative.

The Conference, by a unanimous and hearty vote, expressed its high appreciation of the able manner in which the Bishop had conducted the session—and indeed he did bishop it in admirable style; and the Bishop spoke of the session as one of the most delightful he ever attended.

The following are the appointments for the Nashville district:

NASHVILLE DISTRICT.—J. W. Hanner, P. E. McKendree and West End, D. C. Kelley and S. M. Merrill; Elm street, R. A. Young; Claiborne, R. T. Roland; City mission, W. W. Brinsfield; Tulip street, R. K. Brown; North Edgefield, P. A. Sowell; Hobson chapel, J. W. Hill; Trinity, T. B. Fisher; White's Creek, T. H. Woodward, A. C. Matthews, sup.; Goodlettsville, W. G. Dorris; Nashville circuit, J. H. Chamblis; A. L. P. Green, financial secretary of Central University; J. B. McFerrin, missionary secretary.—Nashville Advocate.

PACIFIC CONFERENCE.

The Pacific Conference, says the Nashville Christian Advocate, held its session at Santa Rosa, October 2–8. Bishop McTyeire presided. E. E. Hoss, T. L. Moody, W. A. Finley, J. Anderson, received by transfer. D. F. Overton, located. I. Taylor, J. L. Porter, superannuated. A. E. Layson (on trial,) died. W. R. Gober struck from the roll. White members, 3,195; increase, 80; colored, 7; increase, 7; local preachers, 53; decrease, 2; baptized: infants, 204; adults, 131; Sunday schools, 61; teachers, 461; scholars, 2,389; necessary for claimants, $1,000; collected, $792; for missions, $1,023. The next session is to be at Colusa, California. The Bishop writes us, Santa Rosa, October 9:

"We closed a very pleasant session of the Pacific Conference last night. The secretary—one of the best I have been favored with and helped by—Rev. E. K. Miller, sends you the minutes.

"Our closing services, and those on Sunday, were held in the college chapel—a room about twice the capacity of the average church buildings. The ten-acre campus, the really imposing and well-arranged college building, the excellent faculty at work, and their 155 students, make this center of our educational interests of much promise and importance to our work in California.

"The harmony of this Conference, clerical and lay, and their spirit of hope and enterprise, is very grateful. As a distinguished layman said to me: 'Things are purging themselves.' Now for a new departure toward the old paths—and may the Lord send now prosperity! I believe he will. The tokens of moral health and consecration and unity are palpable. Every interest, of which we take account in our Annual Conferences, has advanced this year. Churches have been built and parsonages repaired, and plans for more adopted. The membership and the Sunday schools have moved up by a few figures, after a close census. All the collections have moved up also. And resolutions are strong.

"The transfers are hailed with joy—would I had four more of the same sort. I must have them—even this year. The church here is raising up a ministry—has done well in this respect; but its population increases mainly by immigration, and for awhile the supply of preachers must be supplemented in the same way.

"I am amazed that shrewd foes, or weak friends, have anywhere made the impression that the permanence of the Methodist Episcopal Church South is a question on the Pacific coast. 'An enemy hath done this.' Then it is a question in Tennessee. We have nothing to do but enter the doors which the Head of the Church has opened for us, to maintain our ecclesiastical principles, to follow manifest duty, and, by the continued blessing of God, we shall make up one of our best chapters in enlarging the kingdom of Christ. All the tokens are good.

"Large congregations have attended the preaching and the Conference services, and we trust an unction of the Holy One has been experienced."

AT WORK IN OLD AGE.

Rev. Henry Boehm, now in his ninety-eighth year, preached in the Methodist Episcopal church, Palermo, Canada, on Sunday, September 15, from the text, Nahum i, 7: "The Lord is good; a stronghold in the day of trouble, and he knoweth them that trust in him." The congregation was very large. He exhorted in the evening after the sermon. Last week's Canada Christian Advocate states that Christian baptism was administered by this veteran of the cross to an infant relative of the seventh generation during this visit.

A Vermont paper says Rev. Simon Parmelee, D. D., now in the ninety-first year of his age, preached, September 8, in the church in Westford, in commemoration of the sixty-fourth anniversary of his settlement in Westford. Dr. Parmelee, although feeling the infirmities of age, is still in excellent health. He is the last, save one, of the old preachers of Vermont. He began as a missionary of the Connecticut Missionary Society. When he was installed at Westford the services were held in a barn. Dr. Parmelee said in his sermon that no member of the congregation on that day was alive, to his knowledge.

Hon. Governeur Kemble, now in his eighty-seventh year, has amused himself with translating from the Spanish a tale by Mrs. Semper, of Bogota, entitled "Dolores, or the Story of a Leper." What is remarkable in this is that Mr. Kemble had not for fifty years previous read a book in Spanish. He undertook the task for a lady, who has had the little work printed for private distribution.—New York Christian Advocate.

"WHO was Richard the Third before he was 'himself again?'" The answer is plain: He was somebody beside himself.

I HAVE LIVED to know that the secret of happiness is never to allow your energies to stagnate.

The Christian Advocate.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1872.

A MOTHER'S MORNING PRAYER.

Up to me sweet childhood looketh,
Heart and mind and soul awake;
Teach me of thy ways, O Father!
For sweet childhood's sake.

In their young hearts, soft and tender,
Guide my hand good seed to sow,
That its blossoming may praise thee
Wheresoe'er they go.

Give to me a cheerful spirit,
That my little flock may see
It is good and pleasant service
To be taught of thee.

Father, order all my footsteps:
So direct my daily way
That, in following me, the children
May not go astray.

Let thy holy counsel lead me,
Let thy light before me shine,
That they may not stumble over
Word or deed of mine.

Hymns for Mothers and Children.

SUPERANNUATES AND QUARTERLY CONFERENCES.

MR. EDITOR: I am glad I wrote the article on "Common Law," which appeared in your issue of September 26. As a church we ought to be a unit, both in doctrine and disciplinary administration, and it forebodes coming evil to have our presiding elders and Bishops to give official decisions on points of law adverse to each other, and to carry out their opinions in their administration where they affect the personal rights and privileges of our worthy and most devoted ministers. I am a superannuated preacher, but I have at present no personal interest in discussing the question whether a superannuate is a member of a Quarterly Conference or not. In truth, it suits me just now not to be a member of any Quarterly Conference, and I have been excusing my absence from all Quarterly Conferences under Bishop Pierce's decision that "a superannuated preacher is not a member of any Quarterly Conference." As the administration of our high officials has heretofore been so diverse on this point, I think a dignified discussion, of short duration, conducted in a Christian spirit, may lead to good results. I rejoice to meet my old friend and fellow-laborer, Rev. H. H. Montgomery, as the first on the arena to controvert my opinion in regard to Bishop Pierce's decision. The sum and substance of what he says is that I have committed a mistake in my reference to Bishop Pierce's decision "that a superannuated preacher is not a member of any Quarterly Conference," and he quotes Bishop Early and three General Conferences as sustaining the decision of Bishop Pierce. I think it likely that the known candor of Bro. Montgomery will compel him to acknowledge that he has committed several mistakes in his "references" to sustain Bishop Pierce's decision.

First. He says: "At the session of the Mississippi Conference for 1856 Bishop Early stated—gave it as his decision—to the presiding elders that he had no authority to announce that a president or professor of a college was a member of any Quarterly Conference, or that an agent was, and a superannuated preacher was not, and that the language of the Discipline ('and none else') was inserted by the General Conference to keep them out of the Quarterly Conferences." He thinks Bishop Early gave 1836 as the date of the General Conference at which the prohibitory words ("and none else") were inserted. Bro. Montgomery has made many mistakes in his "references" to Bishop Early's decision about these matters. The Mississippi Conference which planned the work for 1856 was held in Vicksburg, November 28 to December 5, 1855, Bishop Kavanaugh presiding, and the Conference which planned the work for 1857 was held by Bishop Pierce, in Kosciusko, November 26 to December 2, 1856. My recollection is that Bro. Montgomery was not a member of the Bishops' Council at either of those Conferences. Bishop Early presided at the Conference held in Brandon, November 18-25, 1857; but as Bro. Montgomery was not a presiding elder the previous year, he was not a member of Bishop Early's council, and how he got included among "we, the presiding elders," to express his surprise at the Bishop's decision, is more than I know. I was a presiding elder five years, including 1855 to the end of 1859, and though I have some recollection of some Bishop saying that it was not necessary to announce the names of presidents and professors and agents as belonging to any Quarterly Conference, as they were amenable to the presiding elder of the district to which their names were attached, I recollect no decision excluding superannuates from Quarterly Conferences. If I had I certainly would have conformed my administration to it. But I always admitted superannuates into my Quarterly Conferences because I considered it the "common law" of the church.

Second. I have read, within the past few years, the printed journals of all the General Conferences from 1796 to the last act of 1870, and I recollect the passage of no law to exclude a superannuate from membership in a Quarterly Conference. Since reading Bro. Montgomery's article I have reviewed the journals of 1836, 1858 and 1866, and have found nothing to throw any light on the subject. Bro. Montgomery will confer a special favor on myself and many others if he will call our attention to any recorded law passed by any General Conference on this subject. As to the words "and none else," used in reference to the membership of a Quarterly Conference, they were in the Discipline in 1832—and how many before I know not—and have been in every edition from that date to the present; but that they were not intended to exclude the classes of persons referred to by Bishop Early, as quoted by Bro. Montgomery, from membership in a Quarterly Conference, is evident from the fact that our older Bishops, especially Andrew, Paine and Kavanaugh, have up to a late date been in the habit, at least occasionally, of announcing their names connected with a Quarterly Conference, as any one can see by looking in the printed Minutes, and from the further fact that where their names have not been so announced they have, almost without exception, been in the habit of sitting as members in our Quarterly Conferences without let or hinderance. The usage is so old and uniform that it has all the authority of common law up to a recent date; and this, I presume, is the reason why Bro. Montgomery could not get the General Conferences of 1858 and 1866 to touch the subject. They thought any legislation on the subject unnecessary. I cannot see the utility of the policy that would exclude superannuates from a Quarterly Conference. I think, as a general rule, they make a very safe conservative element in those Conferences. Though physically disabled, most of them have clear and improving minds, and hearts full of love to the church, in whose service they have spent the prime of their manhood.

I think it likely, however, that in discussing this subject we are doing a superfluous work. According to the requirements of the Discipline, it was Bishop Pierce's duty to present the decision he made at the last Alabama Conference to the College of Bishops, at their ensuing annual meeting, for their affirmation or rejection; and if this has been done, all we want to settle the matter is the published decision of the College of Bishops. That will be law, and we will all abide by it while it remains law.

With the kindest and most courteous feelings toward all who may be with me or against me in opinion on these matters, I am yours affectionately, J. G. JONES.

PORT GIBSON, MISS., Oct. 7, 1872.

The Orchard-Graves History of the Baptist Church Examined.—No. I.

MR. EDITOR: I have of late years been a pretty close investigator of the subject of baptism in all its phases, particularly the rite of infant baptism, and verily believed, from all the sources of information that I had ramified, that it had a scriptural basis. I am still of that opinion. I was reading my Bible, some few months ago, at the fifteenth chapter of First Corinthians, twenty-ninth verse. In this chapter Paul, as you remember, argues the grand subject of the resurrection, and at the twenty-ninth verse he asks the following question: "Else what shall they do which are baptized for the dead, if the dead rise not at all? Why are they then baptized for the dead?" I had read the same thing often, but at this particular time the inquiry arose in my mind: What does the apostle mean by this? I immediately examined some authorities on the subject; among the rest Clark. He is very elaborate, and sets out with this remark: "This is certainly the most difficult verse in the New Testament." In the winding up of his remarks he says: "The sum of the apostle's meaning appears to be this: If there be no resurrection of the dead, those who, in becoming Christians, expose themselves to all manner of privations, crosses, severe sufferings, and a violent death, can have no compensation, nor any motive sufficient to induce them to expose themselves to such miseries. But as they receive baptism as an emblem of death in voluntarily going under the water, so they receive it as an emblem of the resurrection unto eternal life in coming up out of the water. Thus they are baptized for the dead, in perfect faith of the resurrection." I confess to have been considerably stunned by this comment; but when I came to consider that the doctor was perhaps largely governed by educational bias, I recovered my wonted position. I determined, however, to investigate the claim of the Baptist Church, so called, to apostolic rule and origin. If I found, upon careful examination, that their claim was well founded, I would no longer contend, but yield the palm. As I understood Benedict was no longer regarded as authority, but "Orchard," I procured a copy—"tenth edition"—and which, as I now suppose, was "carefully revised and improved" by J. R. Graves. I read patiently, and after going regularly through, I thought I discovered many discrepancies which I believed could not belong to an authentic history; so I began again. The phrases "I presume," "it is probable," and such like, too frequently occurred. I cannot concede the right to any historian, Orchard-Graves not excepted, to presume this or think that as probable, and give it me as history. It would be granting a latitude and longitude that he nor any other historian is entitled to. But he is the acknowledged benefactor of the Baptist Church. If the Baptist brethren will read him a little more carefully and critically, I think they will come to the conclusion with myself that it is not all gold that shines, neither is all truth that is written, notwithstanding his Latin text, "Tenebris lux lucet"—the light shineth in darkness. One or two glaring absurdities are sufficient to disgust any intelligent and honest reader with a historian whose main object is to gull and deceive the world. I think I can produce more than that number.

To begin. He has Tertullian born in the year 195, of pagan parents, at Carthage. He was brought up to the law. His learning was considerable, etc.—Baptist History, by Orchard-Graves, page 32. Then in the year 202, which is a lapse of only seven years, he parades him as a lawyer at Carthage! What a precocious chap he was! But that is not all. At this early age (shame on the Baptists of the present age!) he has him a Christian, joining the church in that city—Carthage. He was an elder and wrote ably in defense of the Christian religion.—See page 69, same History. Then in 215, when he was only twenty years old, we find him in full charge of the church, examining with the utmost scrutiny every applicant for membership into his church. Unless they could make it appear that they were members of some church, and had been baptized therein, which was in communion with the church at Carthage, he rebaptized them. This was high authority for one of his years to assume. I had ever thought that the elders in the Baptist Church had but little authority—the power lay in the laity—but here we have a stripling of twenty summers "lording it over God's heritage." In this same year (215) this remarkably pert young elder was addressed by a rich lady named Quintilla, who lived at Pepuza, a town in Phrygia, whether infants might be baptized on condition they ask to be baptized and produce sponsors. To this we find Tertullian returning rather an evasive answer, notwithstanding he was baptized himself, according to their own showing, when only seven years old.—See History, pages 69 and 70. By your permission more anon. JOHN SAMPLE.

LETTER FROM BROOKLYN, N. Y.

DR. TALMADGE—FATHER GAVAZZI.

MR. EDITOR: While visiting friends in this city we had the privilege of hearing the distinguished orator, Dr. Talmadge, at the Tabernacle. The building is admirably designed for a large audience. It is something in the form of an amphitheater, in a semicircle, the seats rising one above another, giving a full view of the speaker, whose platform has ample room to see and address the people on all sides. It is no little box of a pulpit to conceal his figure—only a desk to hold a book. He took no notes, as we saw, but was perfectly free from any embarrassment. Just back of the platform, in a recess, stands a magnificent organ, whose lofty tones ascend its arches in sublime grandeur. The organist seemed to be touching the strings in the front—invisible to us—in harmony with the voices of the choir and all the assembly of worshipers.

When he stepped upon the stage, his slight figure and personal appearance did not impress us with his masculine powers or superior mental capacities; but his simple, unpretending manners interested and absorbed our attention. The trumpet of fame often detracts from its votaries, and human greatness is lessened at the sight of Alexander, the conqueror of the world. Imagination has much to do with unseen celebrities, and often robs man of his physical glory; for there is none great but God!

He selected his text from the Prophet Malachi, third chapter and seventeenth verse: "And they shall be mine, saith the Lord of hosts, in that day when I make up my jewels; and I will spare them as a man spareth his own son who serveth him." His figures were exquisitely beautiful—suited to his peculiar style of preaching—picturesque and graphic. Christians were thus classified: from the most brilliant diamond upon the crowns of kings, to the pearl from the ocean's bed, with all the gems of intermediate beauty—their different shapes, size and color. Then came the lapidary to test their worth and prepare them for his use, according to their value. Some required the most careful and delicate machinery to give the finishing touch for their luster to shine; and that the lapidary, by breathing upon the gems, could tell whether they were real or of paste. We ourselves heard a workman, in a gorgeous jeweler's shop of Damascus, Palestine, say that he could deceive a king with one of his splendid gold snuff-boxes, set with artificial diamonds, they looked so perfect. But here was One who could not be deceived—the Creator, the Redeemer of our souls. And now comes the process of refinement—the trials of the Christian's faith in every emergency, even in the furnace, to come out like gold seven times purified; and he that wins souls, to shine like the stars in the firmament forever. It was certainly one of the most beautiful illustrations of a holy life that it is possible to imagine, the sizes, colors and shapes representing the different gifts and talents of God's own servants, in their calling in Christ Jesus, to show forth his glory in converting the world; redeemed by his precious blood. His earnestness and gesticulations were in perfect harmony with his subject, for he brought "—— forth the royal diadem,

To crown him Lord of all!"

in whose crown these polished jewels were yet to be set. An observation we once heard from a talented young Methodist preacher, of the New York Conference, some fifty years ago (who died young:) When he heard a great sermon, he said he loved to see them send up sky rockets! And here they were seen and felt at this time—their power and flame. There were ten or twelve taken into his church in full communion that morning, and we witnessed the ceremony of their baptism. I have only given what I heard in some portions of the sermon; but his language was beyond my reach.

In the evening we went to hear Father Gavazzi, at Dr. Buddington's church. Having a seat near the pulpit, we saw him ascend its stairs and take his position, with head bowed down—so peculiar to the monks of Italy—with such a solemn, grave aspect, that we had seen in their country, that we could not from his appearance divine the future. But when he arose and gave out his text the icy surface broke, and the crystal waters flowed in such a clear strain of spiritual eloquence that the whole audience were attracted and fixed with profound attention. It was said to be a continuation of a sermon delivered in New York in the morning, on the subject of faith, without which it was impossible to please God. The continuation was: Without works faith was dead, and that one must necessarily follow the other. This was the beauty of the gospel of Jesus. His action was a perfect pantomime. The warmth and zeal which accompanied every period rose to a height which bordered on enthusiasm of the divine afflatus. He was carried up on the pinions of holy love, and Jesus was his theme—to him be all the glory. He dwelt upon his charms; the fitness of the gospel to the wants and capacities of man; its demands on our time, talents and means to advance his cause; must fill out the mission appointed by infinite wisdom, and it was so beautiful we could not help it. Much of his language was lost to my ear in consequence of his rapidity and peculiar accent. But its spirit was felt, and that sympathy which unites soul to soul in the work of evangelizing the world.

Those who are personally acquainted with him say he abounds with wit and humor, and is a delightful companion in social life. He has left our shores with funds to build a Protestant church in Italy, his native land.

This morning we were reading of the conflagration of the Escurial, that ancient kingly palace of Spain, with all its wealth and art treasures, of which it is said Philip the Second was the holy founder—in which he lived fourteen years, half king, half monk, and expired. We had just been reviewing a relic of a large brass mortar and pestle, kept by the Van Bokkelen family for three hundred years, whose ancestors lived in the Netherlands during the reign of William, Prince of Orange, suffering in the persecutions of that monarch, Philip the Second, and eventually fleeing to America; and one member adorns the ministry of the Episcopal Church. Such recollections call up the past and give to history a peculiar interest. God, it seems, has touched that gorgeous palace, which was thought secure from fire and flood, with his lightning flash. S. B. T.

BROOKLYN, October 3, 1872.

"Day Unto Day Uttereth Speech."

Yes, King David, with your keen appreciation of God's omnipotence, well could you hear and comprehend his voice through all the realm of nature. Grand in truth and beautiful in thought are the words of your song.

When the music of the Creator's voice thrilled into being light, earth and life, it rendered vocal with its melody his works; and the echoes have rolled down the ages even unto us. True, evil's discord once strove to hush the strains, but on Calvary's hill they received a new and sweeter impulse, thereby becoming more distinct than ever; and whoever will may hear. Yet who hears? Not the infidel who, with the fickle aid of reason, endeavors to solve the great why and wherefore of human life. He sees the wondrous burden of blessings and beauty which day delivers unto day; he reaches forth his hand to robe and adorn himself with these blessings, but will not allow his soul to rise from its material prison and hear the tones that, through the countless avenues of the gifts, declare: "I Am hath sent me unto you."

Neither the worldling, recognizing a God, yet bowing in worship before mammon. Power's clarion notes arouse his energies; the chimes of ambition excite his ardor; pleasure, with enticing tones, allures and captivates him; building stores and barns, he cries: "Soul, eat, drink and be merry, for thou hast goods laid up for many years!" While from him day is speeding with the strain he should have heard and heeded: "Lay up for yourself treasure in heaven."

One who tries, with acts of penance, to propitiate an offended Maker? Alas! not he. To him, indeed, day is vocal, but, coming through the medium of self, the sounds seem to hear only the stern requirements of justice unsoftened by mercy; while faith is too weakly developed to listen to the melody that day, in truth, is breathing: "Is the Lord's hand shortened at all, that it cannot redeem?" "Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters, and he that hath no money; yea, come, buy wine and milk without money and without price."

The Christian? Yes. Beyond the babble of human woe and care, drowning the noise of sensual pleasure, clear and comfortingly to his soul, day unto day continually utters speech.

When from his cloudy tabernacle the sun goes forth to run his race, the morning hours sing out the glorious strain: "God so loved the world that he gave his only Son, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have everlasting life." Then other hours send back an answer: "Behold the Sun of Righteousness, with healing in his wings." And, uniting their music, the chorus comes: "Mighty to save! mighty to save!"

Go on, minute unto minute, hour unto hour, sending promises of comfort and peace, till, at all times, in all places, the days vibrate with message of God's loving kindness toward men. GOODWYN.

GILMAN, the Georgia correspondent of the St. Louis Christian Advocate, speaks of the recent national camp meeting, held by the Northern Methodists near Knoxville, Tennessee, in the following terms:

Bro. Inskip was within four miles of Knoxville, and I went out to see him and his camp meeting.

I must confess my feelings toward the irrepressible John and his staff were not of the most exalted nature, and I had to make an effort to divest myself of anything like prejudice before I went. I think I did. I saw much to commend. First. The tabernacle is a grand one. Second. It was well lighted. Third. The singing was exquisite. Fourth. The behavior of the people was unexceptionable. I am sorry to say that this was about all that was commendable. The prayers were not, for there was neither confession of sin nor prayer for pardon in them. The sermon was not, for it was a weak effort every way. The preacher started out with my abomination—a text which had no application to his sermon. His text was: "Believest thou I am able to do this?" His subject was faith in the ability of Christ to sanctify us now, using the word sanctify in a sense in which it is never used in the New Testament. Then the sermon was theatrical, exceedingly so, the preacher going so far as to kneel at one time in his sermon, to show how he knelt when he resolved to give up tobacco. The altar exercises were simply abominable. Such an effort to get up an arousement, such a lamentable, pitiable failure I never saw.

I do think and do say, in the fear of God, that the whole thing is calculated to do only harm—harm now, and harm continually.

I am sorry to say our colored friends were badly treated—not a colored preacher on the stand, not a colored seeker in the altar, and even a colored sister, who came from New York, sitting among the colored folks.

Bishop Gilbert, our diocesan, must look after the general-in-chief and his staff, or the spirit of caste will not be put down. The whole thing is fanaticism gone to seed.

WHAT has friendship so signal as its sublime attraction to whatever virtue is in us?—Emerson.

Obituaries.

DIED, at Greenville, Jefferson county, Mississippi, October 16, 1872, HOWARD WALLES, youngest son of Frank A. Jones and E. Olivia Walles, and grandson of Rev. J. G. Jones, of the Mississippi Conference, aged two months and twenty days. The child is safe. We can go to him.

DIED, at the residence of Major Sarnett, Hickory, Newton county, Mississippi, JAMES P. HARPER, son of George W. and Ann E. Harper, in his seventeenth year.

"Jimmie" was a household word with us all. He always met you with a smile, and was seldom out of humor. We never saw one of his age more studious, and so well beloved by all. He lay down on Saturday night, September 28, feeling a little unwell, was taken suddenly ill during the night, and spoke no more. He died at two o'clock A. M. on Monday, September 30, 1872. May God, in his infinite goodness, sanctify this sudden bereavement to the good of the family. L. P. MEADOR.

DIED, at his residence in Linden, Marengo county, Alabama, on the second of September, 1872, Bro. A. W. DUNN.

Bro. Dunn was a native of South Carolina, but settled in Marengo county when a young man. He was a substantial, useful citizen, a permanent person, and a useful member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Bro. Dunn was about forty-eight years of age, and leaves an interesting family. By his industry and frugality he leaves them well provided for. The best of all is, he has left them a good Christian example. But few men have left a better record than Bro. Dunn. Our church in Linden has sustained a great loss by the death of Bro. Dunn. We have no doubt but that he has gained a home in heaven. So we ought to be contented. He was taken sick while teaching a Sabbath class one Sabbath morning, and after a few days of great suffering he quietly fell asleep in the arms of Jesus. The writer was with him a short time before he died. Although he was suffering intensely, he expressed himself ready to meet his God. "Let me die the death of the righteous." T. S. AUBERSETHY.

Southern Christian Advocate please copy.

DIED, August 16, 1872, at the residence of E. S. Wilson, on Lake Providence, after a long and severe illness, Sister SARAH E. LESTER.

Sister Lester was born in Marion, South Carolina, January 5, 1808. In her seventeenth year she professed saving faith in the cross of Christ, but did not connect herself with the church until some time afterward. She was married to Isaac W. Lester November 30, 1826, and from that time to the moment of her death she was a most exemplary member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and after its division, of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

Although her sickness was long and severe, she exhibited a patient spirit throughout. She spoke of her death as if it were only a pleasant journey to some beautiful land of birds and flowers. She expressed herself as "ready and willing," if it were her Father's pleasure. All was clear and bright ahead. She exhorted her dear children to be devoted Christians, and then the happy spirit quit its frail, falling tabernacle, on the side of the river, for the beautiful land "over there."

Sister Lester was a mother in Israel, and beloved by a very large circle of friends and relatives throughout this whole community. May our death be as glorious.

JAMES E. BRADLEY, P. C.

MR. JAMES S. MCCLENDON, son of Louis and James McClendon, was born in Chambers county, Alabama, April 5, 1847. He removed to Claiborne parish, Louisiana, with his parents, in the year 1848, where he remained the balance of his life. He professed religion and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church South in the year 1859, and died, at the residence of his father, October 1, 1872. He remained a consistent member of the church at Lisbon, Louisiana, until removed by death to his reward in a better world. "Jimmie," as he was familiarly called, was a pious and devoted Christian, an obedient son, a kind husband, and sincere in his attachment to his friends. He always manifested a great fondness for the doctrines and usages of the church to which he belonged. The disease that terminated his earthly existence was consumption, with which he suffered intensely—so much so that he often prayed to be delivered by death from his great pain and suffering; but he expressed a perfect willingness to endure and suffer if it was the will of his heavenly Father that it should be so. He said repeatedly to his friends that he was not afraid to die. Death had no terrors to him. The only thing that seemed to hold him to earth was his sorrowing companion, for whom he had the greatest fondness and affection. With tearful solicitude he resigned her, together with all his loved ones of earth, to God, who gave them, and went down into the cold Jordan of death with a cheerful assurance of entering into that rest prepared for the people of God. When asked if he had any word to leave to his father and sister, who were absent on a visit to Georgia, he calmly said: "Tell them to meet me in heaven." J. L. W.

DIED, in Dallas, Texas, on Wednesday, October 2, 1872, at two o'clock A. M., typho malarial fever, SALLIE GRAYSON, only daughter of Rev. W. H. Seales, aged fourteen years, nine months and twenty-two days.

Thus had Sallie only a few years to live in this troublesome world. Deprived of mother's tender care at the age of six years, she soon began to show intellectual powers beyond her years, and to take to mother's place in the little attentions to her father, and to manifest a watchful care over her little brother, that early made her a necessity to the happiness of both.

In her eleventh year she joined, of her own accord, the Methodist Church, in which she lived an exemplary member till her death.

The very ripest of scholars for her age among the very best in all her classes at school, caressed by friends, and honored by her schoolmates, none can say that it spoiled her.

Many years since, left without a mother, by the sweetness of her disposition she had won to her many mothers, who, with unwearied and sleepless solicitude ministered maternal tenderness around her sick-bed. God bless the good women who tenderly their kindness and sympathy to this motherless child in her last illness!

There was in her no stronger trait of character than her fondness for, and tact at managing little children; and there are in a few little ones in Dallas, some of whom could not lisp the name of Sallie, who would watch eagerly her coming, and put up their little mouths for those kisses and caresses she never refused. And many a hearty "God bless the child" has followed her from the older members of the community. Her "little deeds of kindness" do live and will live with perennial freshness in the hearts of this community.

Obedient to her father to a fault, no persuasion could induce her to overstep his wishes. Intenser and purer affection never bound child to parent, nor sister to brother. Mere words are utterly inadequate to portray her loss to her father and brother. She was the fountain of their earthly happiness while there was not a plan or purpose of the little family for the future in which Sallie did not occupy the chief place. As to them, so to us and to many others, there was but one Sallie Scales; another we never expect to see. But she has gone home to join the company of the redeemed beside the River of Life. Among those who follow in tears may she, after awhile, greet her uncle. M.

BE ASHAMED of your unbelief. It dumps your joy, brings a dark cloud between you and the blessed Sun of righteousness, and withholds the glory of your heart. "Be not faithless, but believing."

The Christian Advocate.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1872.

THE BOYS.

There come the boys! Oh, dear, the noise!
The whole house feels the racket;
Behold the knee of Harry's pants,
And wdep o'er Bertie's jacket!

But never mind. If eyes keep bright,
And limbs grow straight and limber;
We'd rajther lose the tree's whole bark
Than find unsound the timber!

Now hear the tops and marbles roll!
The floors—Oh, woe betide them!
And I must watch the banisters,
For I know boys who ride them!

The very chairs are tied in pairs,
And made to prance and caper;
What swords are whittled out of sticks!
What brave hats made of paper!

The dinner-bell peals loud and well,
To tell the milkman's coming;
And then the rush of "steam-car trains"
Sets all our ears a-humming.

How oft I say: "What shall I do
To keep these children quiet?"
If I could find a good receipt
I certainly should try it.

But what to do with these wild boys,
And all their din and clatter,
Is really quite a grave affair—
No laughing, trifling matter.

"Boys will be boys"—but not for long;
Ah! could we hear about us
This thought—how very soon our boys
Will learn to do without us!

How soon but tall and deep-voiced men
Will gravely call us "Mother;"
Or we be stretching empty hands
From this world to the other.

More gently we should chide the noise,
And when night quells the racket,
Stitch in but loving thoughts and prayers
While mending pants and jacket!

Christian Union.

THE AMMERGAU PASSION-PLAY.

It had been raining with little intermission all night, and the prospects were of a wet day. At seven A. M. a cannon was fired, and we all went to the theater. It is a wooden building just outside of the town, between two rows of poplars, after the model of a Greek theater. The proscenium is exposed to the sky, except a portion in the middle, where most of the acting and all the tableaux are performed. On the front gable of this covered part a village artist has painted a starry firmament, with figures of Faith, Hope and Charity, and crowned it by a pelican and young. On the left is Pilate's house, and on the right that of Annas, the high priest, and beyond, all along the open space on either side, the streets of Jerusalem stretching away in the distance. The stage is one hundred and eighteen feet broad and one hundred and sixty-eight feet deep, and contains twenty thousand square feet. The seats in the auditorium rise tier above tier; half of them are open wooden benches uncovered. Behind these is a row of comfortable chairs for the royalty. Behind these are tiers of wooden benches, with backs and stuffed seats covered with canvas; this part of the theater is roofed in. Admission to all parts is by tickets, and the highest price is three florins (about $1.25;) so you see the managers cannot be accused of avarice, as so great is the demand for tickets that they could make any charge they wished.

The origin of the Ammergau Passion-play is this: In 1632 a pestilence raged in the valley of the Ammer, the infected districts being Paterkirchen, Eschelohe and Rohlgust, all separated from Ammergau by a rampart of mountains. The inhabitants of the latter place took every precaution to protect their valley from the dread contagion; but a native of Ammerthal, who worked during the summer as a day-laborer at Eschelohe, evaded the quarantine and entered the valley by a secret path in order to celebrate some festival with his family. He carried the infection with him, and the third day after his arrival he was a corpse. In three weeks eighty-four of the small community perished; and the survivors, despairing of human aid, made their prayer to God and registered a solemn vow, if he heard their cry and removed the plague, they would represent every ten years, "for thankful remembrance and edifying contemplation, and by help of the Almighty, the sufferings of Jesus the Savior of the world." So runs the local tradition, which goes on to say that the prayer was heard, for "not a single person died of the plague after the vow was made, though many were infected by it." In the following year the first fulfillment of the vow was made, and since then has been continued without intermission every ten years. Last year was the year, but many of the actors were taken off by the conscription; so this year the Passion-play took place. The first representation was on June 24, and since then every Sunday till September 24. The sanction of the King has to be obtained before each representation. The text used was written by a monk of the Ettal monastery; the music used now was composed by Rochus Dealer, who was the schoolmaster at Ammergau in 1802, and who died in 1822. He is buried in the churchyard. The music is simple and very beautiful. It is not allowed to be published, and is learned by the performers only, so jealous are they in guarding it. Visitors are also forbidden to take notes during the performance.

When we reached the theater we found it already crowded; but as our seats were numbered we soon secured them. Every variety of dress was represented, from the latest fashions to the poorest peasant's. The orchestra were all in the traditional Tyrolese costume, consisting of a shooting-jacket with green collar and facings, a waistcoat adorned with two rows of shining silver buttons, short breeches reaching within two inches of the knee, and green woolen leggings covering the calf, but leaving the knee and about an inch of the small part of the leg exposed. A stout boot reaches to the ankle, and the head is covered with the broad-brimmed hat, adorned with a bunch of cock's feathers and flowers, and cord and tassels of gold. Over this costume in rainy weather the hunter wears a loose covering, like a blanket with a hole cut in the center. The orchestra numbered about fifty musicians, and was led by the schoolmaster, who was dressed in great style. They played the overture, which was very beautiful; and at eight o'clock a gun was fired, and as its last echo died away among the mountains, the choristers entered, eight men and twelve women. They were all dressed alike in a loose robe which came to the feet, over which was a white muslin tunic which came to the knee, and over this a long mantle, open in front and reaching almost to the ground. The robes and mantles were of different colors. The chorus entered from corresponding doors on either side of the proscenium, and arranged themselves in a row, the tallest in the middle.

The play consists of a series of acts in the life of our Lord, beginning with his entrance into Jerusalem on an ass, the people bearing palms before him, and his clearing the temple of the money-changers Each act is preceded by one or more types from the Old Testament represented in tableau vivants, and the duty of the chorus is to explain each type with its appropriate lesson to the audience. The coryphæus, a handsome, bearded baritone, the only man in the chorus who wears any beard, sang or recited in monotone a short explanation of the type and ensuing act. When the chorus have sung their part about half through, they divide and file off to the right and left of the drop-scene. As they are doing this the curtain rises and you see the type in tableaux. These tableaux are wonderful for the grace and beautiful combination of the figures, sometimes there being five hundred persons on the stage, men, women and children of even three years. I timed one picture, and it was ten minutes, and yet I could not detect the slightest movement even with my opera-glass. After the tableaux the chorus leave the stage, and some incident in the life of our Lord is acted by the respective characters. A libretto is published in English, so I could follow the tableaux and acts very well, although none of the dialogues are published. Everything was in low German, and Frau —— told me she could understand very little of it; but I knew the incidents so well that I could follow them easily.

The play opens with Adam and Eve driven out of Paradise by an angel wielding a flaming sword. The second tableau is a cross with a figure clasping it, and some children kneeling around, while the chorus, also kneeling, chant a beautiful prayer. The curtain falls and the chorus retire. After a short interval you see a motley crowd of men, women and children in Oriental dresses, with branches in their hands, approaching through one of the streets of Jerusalem. At the end of the procession is a figure clad in a purple robe and crimson cloak, riding an ass. The figure is striking, but his look is worn and sad. His hair is parted in the middle, and falls over his shoulders. This is Joseph Mair, who represents Christ. As the procession winds along they sing a welcome to the Son of David. The curtain rises and the temple is seen, with the money-changers. Jesus dismounts, goes in and overturns the tables, and drives the money-dealers out. There is a dignity about Mair's manner that I little expected to see in a peasant. The next tableau was Joseph's brethren plotting his death. The act which followed showed the priests and Pharisees discussing the propriety and the means of putting Jesus to death. The next tableau represents Tobias taking leave of his parents; next a tableau in which the forlorn bride in the Canticles adjures the maidens to give her tidings of her beloved; then follows an act in which Jesus takes leave of his mother and friends, and where Mary anoints him, and Judas murmurs at the waste. Fourth tableau represents King Ahasuerus putting away Vashti, and raising Esther to her forfeited throne. Act following is Christ and his disciples in Olivet, and his last journey to Jerusalem. The city is seen in the soft glow of sunset, and he stops and bewails his coming doom. This was acted with great pathos. He selects two of his disciples, Peter and John, and sends them to provide a room for the Passover. They separate, and you see them again entering the city, and they approach a lad at the fountain. The next scene is Judas, who is alone, dallying with his evil thoughts. One Pharisee and then another join him, and he is at last prevailed on to go to the Sanhedrim to seal the compact of betrayal. I never saw better acting. A tableau followed, representing the Israelites fed with manna in the desert. In this picture there were three hundred figures, in every variety of position, yet not a single figure could be found fault with, even children of three years. The manna was represented by pieces of silver paper. The sun shone out clearly, and I could have looked for hours on this scene, the most beautiful tableau I ever saw. The next was the same grouping of figures, and two men bearing the wonderful bunch of grapes. Succeeding these tableaux was the celebration of the Last Supper. The Lord and disciples appear seated at table, evidently after the picture of Leonardo da Vinci. Jesus went to each and gave the bread and wine, to each separately, as we do in the Episcopal Church; he then girds himself with a towel and washes the disciples' feet. It was all done so solemnly that all seemed impressed; and when Christ gives the benediction and the disciples rise to follow their Master to Gethsemane, and the curtain fell, there was a sigh throughout the audience The next tableau was the sons of Jacob selling Joseph to the Midianites; this followed by Judas before the Sanhedrim. After some chaffing he receives the thirty pieces of silver. His eagerness, the counting them with the hurry of a guilty conscience, the putting them into his bag, and his rushing out to fulfill his promise, was the most perfect acting. Before the bargain is completed Nicodemus and Joseph of Arimathea plead for justice in vain, and then leave the council. The next tableau was Adam and Eve with their children tilling the ground, followed by another tableau; Joab, while kissing Amasa, thrusts the sword into his side. This picture is typical of Judas' kiss of treachery. After these tableaux Christ appears with his disciples in the Garden of Gethsemane. Our Savior's prayers, the appearance of the angels, the heavy sleep of the disciples, their being suddenly roused by the approach of the soldiers, Judas rushing up and kissing our Lord, all is represented with great solemnity and fidelity to the gospel narrative. Then followed a rest of an hour, and at one o'clock the play began again by a tableau representing Micaiah, the prophet, smitten on the face because he told the truth of King Ahab. This was typical of Christ, in his examination before the high priest, smitten on the face, which scene came next. The next tableau was Naboth condemned to death on false accusation; a second represents Job laughed at by his friends and his own wife. The next scene is Christ before Caiaphas; he is found guilty and condemned. The conduct of the soldiers, Peter's denial and the crowing of the cock, the look Jesus gives Peter—all is represented. The next scene is Judas' remorse and his appeal to the council; he then rushes out and is seen hanging himself. Then follows the scene before Herod, and then before Pilate. The scene before Herod is introduced by a tableau representing King David's servants insulted by the King of Ammon. The next scene, before Pilate's judgment-seat, is a long and exciting one, and is faithfully rendered. After are two tableaux—the first, in which Joseph's brethren show Jacob the coat of many colors covered with blood; the second, the sacrifice of Abraham on Mount Moriah. Then follow the scourging of Jesus, the crown of thorns, the purple robe of scorn. This scene was so true that many around me, even men, burst into tears, and I felt cold chills pass over me. This was followed by two tableaux—Joseph presented in magnificence to the people in time of famine as their savior, and the sacrifice of the goat by Moses and Aaron for the sins of the people. Then follows the last scene before Pilate, and he releases Barabbas and condemns Jesus. A tableau represents Isaac bearing the wood for the sacrifice up Mount Moriah, typical of Jesus bearing his cross up Calvary. A second shows the brazen serpent which Moses puts upon a cross; then followed the scene Jesus bearing his cross and the multitude following. Exhausted, Jesus sinks beneath the cross, and Simon the Cyrenian bears it. As he passes along he meets a group of women and children, and repeats those memorable words: "Ye daughters of Jerusalem," etc. The procession passes, followed at a distance by Mary, John and some others. The curtain falls and soon rises, and the cross is seen with Christ upon it, and on each side the two thieves. You hear before the curtain rises the strokes of the hammer, and I shuddered to think of the scene of which these sounds were ominous. As the curtain slowly rose two crosses are seen, already erect, each bearing its victim. Between them is a latter cross, with a sad, wan figure nailed to it. It is slowly raised and fixed erect in its socket. The head is crowned with thorns and the face bedewed with blood. You see the nail-heads in his hands and feet, the blood slowly oozing out of the wounds. Of course I knew that the hands were not pierced, yet the deception is wonderful. The secret of it is only revealed to the man who personates Christ, and to those who nail him to the cross and who take him down. The figure is covered by a close-fitting, flesh-colored tricot, and about the loins linen is tied. All the circumstances of the crucifixion are gone through—the seven words on the cross, the casting of dice for the robe, the breaking the limbs of the thieves, the piercing the side of Christ, his look at his mother and then at John. As he sinks his head and dies a roll of thunder is heard, and nature seems to lend her aid to the verisimilitude of the scene, for there was a somber hue over all the band as the pale figure cried: "It is finished!" At this point a lad rushes in and says the vail of the temple is rent. Every eye was strained, and I felt as if afraid to draw my breath. The crowd slowly withdraws, and Mary, Mary Magdalene, John and a few others only are left. By-and-by Joseph of Arimathea comes with an order to take the body.

The descent from the cross, a most difficult achievement, was managed perfectly. Two ladders were planted against the cross, one before and one behind. Two men mounted and placed a long strip of linen across the chest and under the arms of the body, the ends being drawn up behind and allowed to fall to the ground over the arms of the cross. The man on the ladder behind draws out the nails from each hand. As the last was drawn out this man released his hold on the cloth, and the upper part of the body dropped gently over the shoulders of this man in front, who slowly descended with his burden to the ground, where a white sheet is laid at Mary's feet. As the body is laid on it the women crowd around. It is then wrapped and reverently lifted into the sepulcher. There was a sob through the audience, for we all felt the scene which had been so perfectly acted. Then followed the various incidents of the resurrection, the earthquake, the confusion of the Roman guard, the opening of the sepulcher, the visits of the disciples and women, the different appearances of Christ, and finally the ascension. He is seen among his disciples, and suddenly he is seen to ascend. I only wished these last two scenes had been omitted; but as this drama is intended for a simple people, who have warm hearts and a lively imagination, they of course felt that each act of Christ's life must be carried out.

And thus ended the most remarkable relic still surviving of the old religious drama. — Southern Magazine.

THE Papists have inaugurated a movement in behalf of the four millions of freedmen. The Missionary College of St. Joseph's, near London, sustained by the St. Joseph's Society of the Sacred Heart, blessed by Pius the Ninth, recommended by Propaganda Fide, and placed under the jurisdiction of the most reverend and right reverend prelates of the American hierarchy, has commenced a mission in the South in behalf of the freedmen. The superintendent and four missionaries have entered upon the work; forty more will soon follow; and these are soon to be reinforced by four hundred more. Headquarters are to be established in Maryland, and the officers have power to add to their number graduates of Catholic theological seminaries in this and the old country. Students of the seminary at Troy, New York, once owned by Methodists, have signified a desire to enter this work. So it seems that the South is to become the battle-ground where the great question between Protestantism and Romanism is to be settled. It will be a fearful struggle; and unless we wake up to the magnitude of the conflict, and rally our forces, the Papists will win the day.—Northern Christian Advocate.

GOD never turns his servants off to shift for themselves in old age. No; for when they are unable to work or walk he will keep them, if it be only to look at. Be assured of it, he will take good care of you.

AS IT respects general habits, a parent can scarcely teach a child a more valuable art than dispatch without bustle; nor can any one that values his time cultivate a more valuable one for himself.

IN CLOSING the eyes for the nightly rest it is good to say: "He giveth his beloved sleep;" and in opening them, when night is past, to say: "When I awake I am still with thee."

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

COUNT DE VOGUE has secured a fine Phœnician inscription of fifteen lines, dug up at Beirut.

WELL TRAINED.—One-sixth of all the candidates for the ministry examined and recommended to the British Wesleyan Conference at their last meeting, were sons of Methodist ministers.

A SECULAR PAPER says: "The Hindoos of Bombay are subscribing liberally to build a pagoda in London, where their countrymen there resident may worship the great gods Vishnu and Siva."

A SHORT TIME SINCE Dr. Caswell, the president of Brown University, an eminent Baptist clergyman, decided to advocate and practice open communion. It is said that the belief in open communion is making rapid progress within the denomination.

OF THE entire population of Palestine the number of Jews is only 15,293, according to the latest census. Of these 8,000 live in Jerusalem, about 4,000 in Safed, 2,000 in Tiberias, 900 in Hebron, and the remainder in Acre, Haifa, Shechem and Shefa 'Omer.

THE British Wesleyans have erected a chapel in Melbourne, Australia, for the Chinese, and its inscription, in Chinese, reads: "The House of the Sound of Peace." There is a large emigration of that people to Australia, and missions have been organized for their conversion, chiefly by the Wesleyans.

BUENOS AYRES.—Rev. H. G. Jackson is calling for help. Our work in South America is largely self-supporting, and is growing daily in power and proportions. The missionary represents the future as most promising, and hopes to be permitted himself soon to enter the Spanish work and preach the gospel to the natives.

A WRITER IN Hermes, showing how far Herodotus speaks from personal knowledge of places and how far he depends on information from others, maintains the view that the Cadytis of Herodotus was Gaza, and not Jerusalem, and argues against a recent theory which makes it a matter of doubt whether Herodotus ever visited Babylon.

REV. MR. BUTLER, of the Presbyterian Board, writes from Ningpo that a new church has been organized at Kao-gyiao, about eight miles west of that place. The missionaries have now nine churches in their presbytery, all of which, it is hoped, will soon be under the care of native pastors. Twelve years ago two small congregations were the beginning of this flourishing mission.

THE OPENING VERSE OF THE BIBLE. Rev. Jonathan Goble, appointed by the Baptist Missionary Union to go to Japan, writes from England that one of the high commissioners of the Japanese embassy professes to have become a convert to Christianity, ascribing his first religious impressions to his discussions with Mr. Goble on the first verse of Genesis on their voyage from Japan to this country.

CAWNPORE.—Rev. W. J. Gladwin writes most enthusiastically from Cawnpore, India, where he is stationed. The work among the English residents amounts to a real revival. He reports ten conversions, and calls for a preacher for the English residents, who will be responsible for his support. William Taylor's "Pauline" work, as he calls it, is evidently not to be confined to Bombay.

AGOP EFFENDI, the leader of the native Protestants in Turkey, recently made a tour of inspection. He reports 23,000 members of Protestant churches belonging to twelve nationalities. The largest number of them stand in connection with the American Board of Foreign Missions. There are 5,600 scholars in the schools. The Protestant churches number 250. The members contribute twelve per cent. of their incomes for the support of the gospel among them.

REV. DR. CROSS, of the Karen mission of the Baptist Union, sends word of new interest in the southern part of the Yoma district. Five young men, who give every evidence of being true converts, accompanied him to the quarterly meeting of the mission. One of the preachers brought the welcome news that among the villages in the region of his travels there were at least a hundred large ones, beside those where school teachers were stationed during the season, which are determined to receive the gospel. This entire field is a most promising one, and presents as great a demand for missionaries as any other in the country.

TWO COLPORTEURS in the Shantung mission of the same board have just returned from a long trip, bringing very cheering accounts of the interest manifested in the gospel among several villages of the district. The difference was very marked in the treatment they now received from that of years before in respect to the women. Formerly they were not allowed to speak to them; but this time they were invited in many places to go into their houses, for the women wished to hear about the way of salvation.

DR. J. C. AND MRS. HEPBURN have arrived in Yokohama from Shanghai, in which latter place he spent nearly nine months in getting the revised edition of his dictionary through the press. The new edition is a gem of typography and binding, besides being a model of scholarship and minute and painstaking labor. It is about one-third larger than the former edition; and, besides correcting the very few old errors, he has, in addition to the many new words, added more examples of their uses, idioms, etc. Prefixed to the vocabulary is a concise and exceedingly valuable introduction to Japanese grammar. The whole work is an ornament to American scholarship, and a shining result of missionary ability and diligence.

THE REV. S. MINTON, a clergyman of the Church of England, has been preaching in London in the pulpit of the Rev. Newman Hall, Congregationalist. Mr. Hall made a graceful address in announcing the preacher, in which he said that Surry chapel had always been open to the preachers of other churches, and that Scott, the commentator, Venn and other Episcopalians had frequently assisted Rowland Hill in preaching common salvation. Mr. Minton preached from, "Blessed are the peacemakers," and boldly justified himself in the course he had taken, declaring that, though there were legal obstacles in the way of a thorough fellowship between the Episcopal and other churches, some churchmen were laboring with all their might to get these impediments removed.

THE work in Barcelona is of great interest as regards the education of children, more being gathered into Christian schools and its immediate suburbs than in any other city of Spain. Mr. Empaytez, of Switzerland, supported by a committee in Lausanne, has two chapels and over two hundred children under instruction; Mr. Brown, English Wesleyan, has three chapels and about three hundred children; and Messrs. Fenn and Payne have seven schools, supported by George Muller, of Bristol, with about seven hundred pupils. Four months since Messrs. Lawrence and Payne commenced a girls' boarding school, assisted by the American Board of Missions, Boston. It has been under the direct tuition of Miss Harriet Blake, recently laboring in Seville. The results are so satisfactory that effort will be made to continue and enlarge the school.

WE ARE very glad to learn, says the Independent, that the Third Congregational church in San Francisco has taken up and favorably acted on the question of the admission of the Chinese converts. By the expiration of the six months' probation the question came before the church on October 2. Upon motion of those who had been leaders in the opposition, it was voted (nem. con.) that they be received. On the acceptance, however, of Rev. William C. Pond's resignation, these brethren felt that no cordial welcome could be extended to them and no real Christian fellowship exist there, and had sent in a communication, conceived in the most Christian spirit, courteously but decidedly withdrawing their names. A committee was hereupon appointed, of which the late pastor was a member, to endeavor to persuade them to reconsider their determination; and at the date of our advices it was expected that they would be received and baptized on the next Sabbath.

THE Examiner and Chronicle is responsible for this paragraph: A plan has been under consideration, for some time, for the establishment of a Presbyterian Church South in New York, for the accommodation of Southern families who do not feel at home in the Northern organization. The movement hangs fire for the want of the right sort of a minister. A man of talent, magnetic force and eloquence would be needed to make such a movement a success. Dr. Palmer, of New Orleans, is the favorite. So far he has not seen his way clear to join the movement. In the meantime the Presbyterian Church North is moving in the direction of the South. At the request of the General Assembly, Rev. Dr. James Richards, of Boston, has consented to represent his church in West Virginia. He passed through New York on his way to his charge, which is located in Charleston, the capital of the State. In the absence of a church edifice, divine service is held in the senate chamber.

WHEN Dr. Johnson asked the widow Porter to be his wife he told her candidly that he was of mean extraction, that he had no money, and that he had an uncle hanged. The widow replied that she cared nothing for his parentage, that she had no money herself, and though she had not had a relative hanged, she had fifty who deserved hanging. So they made a match of it.

The Christian Advocate.

Organ of the Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1872.

REV. LINUS PARKER, D. D., Editor.
ROBT. J. HARP, PUBLISHER.

OFFICE--No. 112 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

Address, on all matters of business, Rev. R. J. HARP, 112 Camp street, New Orleans.

Address all communications designed for publication to Rev. LINUS PARKER, 112 Camp street, New Orleans.

AGENTS—All the members of the patronizing Conferences.

CONFERENCE PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

FOR ALABAMA CONFERENCE:
REV. W. A. McCARTY.
REV. EDWARD WADSWORTH, D. D.
A. W. LAMPKIN, ESQ.

FOR MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE:
REV. W. H. WATKINS, D. D.
REV. JAMES A. GODFREY.
REV. J. G. JONES.

FOR LOUISIANA CONFERENCE:
REV. WILLIAM V. TUDOR, D. D.
REV. JOHN MATHEWS.
REV. LINUS PARKER, D. D.

REDUCTION.

The New Orleans Christian Advocate will be furnished to subscribers hereafter at the following rates:

Per One Year	$2 00
Per Six Months	1 25
Per Three Months	75

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR

to all ministers of the gospel, traveling or local, and widows of deceased traveling preachers.

FREE ONE YEAR

to any person forwarding to us four new yearly subscribers with EIGHT DOLLARS.

THE LIKES OF THE KINGDOM.

The scriptural method of teaching is usually very concrete. Its historical and biographical scenes and sketches are to instruct, and its parables and metaphors make up no inconsiderable portion of the sacred volume. God, who made the soul and knows best how to move and inform it, has largely adopted types, symbols and all varieties of figures. Such imagery as abounds in the most impassioned eloquence, and in the highest kinds of poetry, illuminate and embellish the inspired page. Abundant illustration characterizes the Savior's teachings. He is at great pains to unfold what the kingdom of heaven is like. It is like leaven, like a grain of mustard seed, like unto a man that is a householder. It is likened unto a certain king which would take account of his servants, and unto ten virgins which took their lamps and went forth to meet the bridegroom. In the exhibition of doctrine, in the delineation of character, and in portraying the future life this process of comparison is freely used. The barren fig tree, the rich man and Lazarus, and the Pharisee and the publican, are pictorial illustrations of the most startling and graphic nature. Things which in themselves are purely metaphysical and spiritual are made to appear to the eye as clearly as if spread upon the canvas, or wrought in brass or marble.

With all their seeming plainness and simplicity, the inspired comparisons are often unfathomably profound. The careless and superficial, while delighted and attracted by the mere dress of the thought, may miss of the lesson intended. Hence there is nothing contradictory in the declaration: "Therefore speak I to them in parables, because they, seeing, see not; and hearing, they hear not; neither do they understand." The mysteries of the kingdom are veiled or disclosed, according to the character and spirit of the hearer. The Savior's illustrations were so constructed as to become a test of character, shedding light upon those who were panting for it, and leaving others to the darkness which they loved. Besides the quality of discrimination, this mode of presenting truth has the advantage of condensation.—Seemingly diffuse, it is exceedingly compact. The parables are like gems which flash their colors from many sides, and like those supreme landscapes which display wondrous beauties from many different approaches. In the parable of the wheat and the tares, or in that of the ten virgins, it is difficult to conceive how so much could be told in so few words in any other form. The office of figure and all illustrative speech is really to condense. While it simplifies and embellishes, it also throws the subject in hand into the utmost compactness.

Plainness, discrimination and attractiveness are qualities in the use of illustrations, but in Scripture are the further purposes of depth and brevity. This style is doubtless in keeping with the luxuriance of the Oriental imagination, and especially in accord with the genius of the Hebrew mind. But human nature craves it everywhere, and Christ spoke the universal language of man when he clothed the sublime truths of religion in imagery of the utmost grace and beauty. These likes of the kingdom are the most attention-compelling, and the most awakening and enchaining of all the great Teacher's words. Many a careless soul has turned to repentance at that point in the discourse where the rich man and Lazarus are sketched; and many another has first yielded to the love and hope which the prodigal son inspires. The Bible is adapted to the human mind, and everywhere recognizes this need and appetite for illustration. Hence we have the epic of Job, the pastoral of Ruth, the lyrics of David, and the surpassingly sublime drama of the Apocalypse.—Hence also the likes of the kingdom. The sensation created by the Passion-play of Ober Ammergau indicates the strength of this craving for the scenic and dramatic. Truth is good in itself, but few like the raw material. To reach the popular apprehension it must be cooked, and seasoned with condiments to awaken desire. It must wear clothes, and this not for service alone, but also for adornment. The eye drinks in color even as the thirsty stomach drinks in water. The mind hungers for rhythm and grace in forms and sounds, as the body hungers for convenient food.

The old scribes illuminated their otherwise dry and turgid manuscripts, and adorned their parchments with pictures which have outlined the text. Our own is eminently an age of pictures. Books, papers and magazines are nothing without them. The style of writing and speaking partakes of this pictorial character. The pulpit glows more than ever with illustrations, and this demand of human nature is pre-eminently recognized in the forcible presentation of the gospel message. This is as it should be, only that there are dangers and excesses to be avoided. If we would attract and instruct we must adapt our means to influence and enlighten men as we find them. It is safe to speak "as the oracles of God," and especially to draw our figures and illustrations from this inspired treasury. The analogies of the natural to the spiritual may, however, be easily misapplied, and there are no more fruitful sources of error than this fertility in the use of comparisons. In the fashion for object-teaching and illustrative preaching, there is danger of such degeneracy as ends in the mere burlesque of truth. In the effort to simplify and popularize it is hard to avoid the peril of degradation. Talmage is frequently open to these objections, and Beecher, though a much superior painter, is not altogether clear of them. The likes of the kingdom are suggestive of matter and style, and to be sought and cultivated. All, however, cannot hold the pencil with equal skill, and for many to affect the pictorial style would be simply ludicrous. Then, again, the Bible is not all epic and parable, but there is a judicious admixture of lights and shades, such as the mosaics of art present.

Beyond what the inspired mode of instruction may suggest in reference to the methods of presenting truth, we are called to study and expound these resemblances at least to ourselves. It is most important for us to know what the kingdom of heaven is like, that we may realize its establishment in the heart, and recognize it in the life and history around us. These portraits and scenes are to be placed in every possible light, and to be looked at and analyzed and re-examined. If they may not teach us to preach, they will assuredly tell us how to live and what to be. Studied with the light of the Holy Spirit shining on them and us, we shall be rewarded by a thousand surprises. New merits and hitherto undiscovered expressions will burst upon us, and we shall find in our experience what it is for those to whom it "is given to know the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven."

WANTED.

We receive letters of inquiry from preachers of other Conferences, and sometimes asking our advice about transferring to Louisiana. From all we can learn the average support is as good as in the other Conferences, and our climate is far from being the most unhealthful. In this respect it is fully as good as Alabama, South Georgia, the Mississippi Conferences, Arkansas and Eastern Texas. Much of our territory was wasted by the war, and some very inviting portions have run down for lack of laborers. With an adequate supply of vigorous and capable young men these waste places would blossom as the rose in a few years.

Men with very small families or with none at all, who have the art of organizing and developing the work, and of taking care of themselves and the church, are wanted—men who can plant churches and nourish and develop them; men imbued with the missionary spirit, and who feel called not so much to enter into "another man's line of things" as to raise up the tabernacles that are fallen down, and to occupy "the regions beyond." We have naturally the richest country in the world, a good climate and an intelligent people. There is no field where cultivated and effective men will find a better appreciation, or where their labors will be more productive of good.

But then, with all our wants, we need men who have self-reliance, resources within themselves of pluck and faith, and who are willing to "endure hardness as good soldiers of Jesus Christ." The land is here to be possessed, the souls are waiting. We would like a score of such men as our brother, Rev. Amicus W. Williams, who transferred to us from Georgia two years ago. Writing to the Southern Christian Advocate, he says:

Knowing, as I do, the great destitution of this Conference in the lack of preachers, I feel called upon to inform my brethren of the two Georgia Conferences thereof, and thereby appeal especially to the young men to come over and help us.

Having been for four years a member of the North Georgia Conference, and my wife being at present in Georgia, I feel a very great longing to return to the land of my childhood; but with the knowledge of the vast destitution in this Conference, I feel that I would be acting falsely to the imperative command of my Master to do so.

I have been written to by some of my Georgia brethren on the subject of our wants in this Conference. In replying to them through your columns I would say: "Come over and help us." You can have a chance to preach here without being crowded to suffocation. Here we have no necessity of "cutting circuits into patch-work." We have a large territory, sparsely populated, however, but in which many precious "souls are perishing for lack of knowledge." We need help. O may the spirit that came upon the preachers in the heroic days of Methodism visit many in your crowded Conferences. Methodism is growing in this country, and all we need is men and means—men who are willing to make sacrifices, and who are ready to endure hardships in a hot climate for the privilege of preaching Jesus to the dying destitute. I am happy to see so many cheering reports from the brethren in the dear old State. May God bless and prosper our glorious Zion everywhere.

AN EPISODE.—Speaking of the recent session of the Pacific Conference, the Pacific Methodist says:

There were several interesting little episodes in the history of the Conference. Mrs. Kavanaugh, wife of our beloved Bishop, was present, and made an interesting little speech to the preachers' wives, which brought tears to all eyes. Resolutions expressive of deep regard for her husband and herself, and promising earnest prayers for their welfare, were unanimously adopted by a rising vote.

THE camp meetings, so many of which were held near Baltimore, says the Methodist, are now all over, and the general spiritual result is far greater than that of previous years. Besides the impulse given to the spirituality and working power of the church itself, one thousand conversions are reported to be a small estimate of the aggregate success of these meetings.

Centenary College, Jackson, Louisiana.

MR. EDITOR: The friends of Centenary will be rejoiced to hear of our encouraging condition.

Up to this, the close of the second week of our session, we have enrolled seventy-six students, counting several now in town ready to begin on Monday. Others are coming in almost daily; many who promised to come, and whom we confidently expect, not having arrived as yet.

The exercises are going regularly and successfully forward. The young men generally exhibit a disposition for earnest work, and are for the most part moral and religious. They have established a prayer meeting among themselves for Sabbath evenings. Four, perhaps five, of them are preparing for the ministry.

Nothing is in the way of the thorough and triumphant re-establishment of Centenary but the repair of the buildings. Our friends who have given notes and promises for money need have no fear that they may be giving to a sinking cause. Indeed it is conscientiously believed that no one of Heaven's claims offers to the benevolent of Mississippi and Louisiana a surer and more productive investment than that of enabling this nursing mother of consecrated learning to proceed untrammeled on her way of usefulness and honor.

Oh! that we could procure the means of restoring finish and beauty to our magnificent buildings ere the next commencement.

C. G. ANDREWS.

JACKSON, LA., Oct. 19, 1872.

FROM BATON ROUGE.

MR. EDITOR: We closed our meeting at this place last Sunday night—that is, the daily services. We still hold three services a week besides those of Sunday—Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday evenings, the latter being an inquiry meeting in connection with the class of the recent converts. There are still some earnest inquirers after the way of life, and many who seem to be serious upon the subject of religion. This is a wide and inviting field, calling upon pastor and church to thrust in the sickle and gather a yet larger harvest of souls for Christ.

The congregations are large, and hear the word with respectful attention. Hundreds of young people wait on our ministry. O that they, every one, may give themselves to the blessed Savior! A new life has been infused into the church and Sabbath school. Up to Sunday night thirty-three persons had joined the church and thirty-four professed conversion. I trust the ingathering will still go on, and many more be added to the church, and joined indissolubly to the Lord their Savior. Yours truly,

A. E. GOODWYN.

BATON ROUGE, Oct. 22, 1872.

WE QUOTE the following from the Raleigh Christian Advocate. For some reason the Episcopal Methodist has not reached our table for several weeks. Dr. Poisal has made a fine paper, and we wish success and prosperity to his successor.

The last Baltimore Methodist contains the valedictory of Rev. Dr. Poisal, who retires from that paper, and Rev. William S. Baird becomes sole proprietor. He has associated with him J. E. Martin, Esq., a gentleman of culture and good business quality. Bro. Baird has been connected with the Methodist since the last Baltimore Conference as one of its editors. He is a good writer and a minister of high Christian character. We wish the paper great success.

WE ARE GLAD TO LEARN that Centenary Female College, Summerfield, Alabama, has opened with a larger number of pupils than at any time since the war; and that there are more boarders than it has had for ten years, so that nearly every available room is occupied. The art department is in successful operation, and this and all the other departments are filled by the best talent. We congratulate President McVoy on the flattering prospects of the institution.

THE Lynchburg Virginian of September 25 says: "The new Methodist church at Burkeville, Virginia, was dedicated on Sunday morning with appropriate and solemn services. The dedicatory sermon was preached by the Rev. Dr. James A. Duncan, president of Randolph Macon College."

BOOKS AND PERIODICALS.

A COMMENTARY, CRITICAL, EXPERIMENTAL AND PRACTICAL, OF THE OLD AND NEW TESTAMENTS. By the Rev. Robert Jamieson, D. D., Rev. A. R. Fausset, A. M., and the Rev. David Brown, D. D. Vol. III—Joh-Isaiah. By the Rev. A. R. Fausset, A. M. Philadelphia: J. B. Lippincott & Co.

The third volume of this excellent commentary embraces some of the most difficult grounds of critical exposition, and well calculated to test the merits of the expositor. We think there will be no disappointment in the present volume. The notes are to the point—terse, practical and generally satisfactory. For the majority of readers it is sufficiently critical, and will prove to them a valuable help in the study of these most interesting books of the Old Testament. For sale by R. J. Harp, Depository, 110 and 112 Camp street, New Orleans. Price, $5 a volume.

FIFTEEN YEARS OF PRAYER IN THE FULTON STREET MEETING. By S. Irenæus Prime. New York: Scribner, Armstrong & Co., 1872.

From twelve to one o'clock every day, Sundays excepted, this prayer meeting has been kept up for fifteen years in the very heart of the business center of New York. This volume is made up of reports of the facts and incidents of the meeting, remarkable answers to prayer, and the conversions which may be traced to the influences of the meeting. The contents are conveniently arranged in chapters, and the entire volume is most suggestive and instructive. It is a more conclusive vindication of the efficacy and availability of prayer than any learned scientific or philosophical treatise. We have received our copy of the work through Kain & Co., of New Orleans.

A CYCLOPEDIA OF THE BEST THOUGHTS OF CHARLES DICKENS. By F. C. DeFontaine. E. J. Hale & Son, publishers, New York.

We have received Nos. 1 and 2 of this work. Those who wish to get the gems of Dickens' voluminous works will find them here.

THE YOUNG DECLAIMER. By Charles Northend, A. M. New York: A. S. Barnes & Co., 1872.

A very beautiful 12mo volume, and well adapted to furnish choice pieces for school declamation.—Price, sent by mail, seventy-five cents. For sale at our Depository, 110 and 112 Camp street.

THE SOUTHERN REVIEW for October has reached us late. We are sorry to see its delightful pages marred by typographical errors, owing, we suppose, to careless proof-reading. The article on "Apostolical Succession," like the preceding one on the same subject, is admirable, and we are glad that still another article is to follow. Dr. Bledsoe has no equal in this field, and he has the rare art of handling this class of subjects with a sprightliness and freshness which cannot fail to charm and instruct every reader. There is no pedantry, no display of irrelevant learning, no affectation of technical phraseology so much in vogue with many critical and polemical writers. It is English undefiled—simple, strong, lively and cogent. It is a style to be studied and commended. When the series on "Apostolical Succession" is completed we hope it will be put into a handsome duodecimo, and placed in the catalogue of our Publishing House. "Hume's Philosophy" we have not been able to read. This may be no disparagement to the article, but rather a reflection upon ourselves; but we have sampled, not read it. "Wit and Humor" is first-rate, and forms a most reviving and restful transition from the article just mentioned. "Religion and Civil Government" is about right, and worth a careful perusal. "Formation of Elizabethan English" is a contribution to the history of English literature of great merit. "Ecclesiastical Accumulations of Wealth" has particularly arrested our attention. The history of the subject is well stated, and the evils and dangers from ecclesiastical accumulations are presented in a truthful and convincing manner. It somewhat reconciles us to the stinted giving, and the comparative poverty of our church, to reflect that the other extreme might lead to corruption and the great damage of religion. It may be well for us that people are not more lavish in their gifts to the churches. "All spiritual guides ought also," says the writer, "to instruct rich Christians against the policy of pious testamentary bequests, save in exceptional cases; and they should urge the rich to be their own almoners and executors, being, while yet alive, 'rich in good works, ready to distribute, willing to communicate.' We remember no instance of a pious bequest in the Scripture." "The Character of the Late War" is a review of Mr. Stephens' second volume, and is written with ability. We hope it will receive the thoughtful attention it deserves. It has, perhaps, a bearing upon the pending election, and may be regarded as political. It is political in a broad and statesman-like sense, and not out of place in the Southern Review. The "Notices of Books" are very good indeed, and, as ever, we pray for more of the same sort. The editor bestows just praise upon "A Treatise on the Preparation and Delivery of Sermons," by Dr. Broadus. It is worth all the books we have ever seen on the subject. On the whole we are more than pleased with this number of the Review, and would most earnestly commend it to our readers. Subscribe for it, and thereby enrich yourselves.

DR. HAYGOOD'S monthly budget of good things is to hand. The November Sunday school papers, embracing the Magazine, Visitor and Little People, are good enough for anybody. Teachers and children will have a feast this month.

THE AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST for October still maintains its supremacy as the best illustrated agricultural periodical of the day. We know of nothing in its line comparable to it. Published by Orange Judd & Co., New York.

THE HOUSEHOLD is the first of the November monthlies to reach our table. It is always a favorite with us, and most cordially welcomed by the lady of our house. Published at Brattleboro, Vermont, at $1 per year.

BRAINARD'S MUSICAL WORLD for October has been received. Appletons' Journal of October 26 contains illustrations of New Orleans, besides other entertaining articles.

LOOMIS' MUSICAL AND MASONIC JOURNAL is a handsome monthly, published at New Haven, Connecticut.

THE HORSE DISEASE.

The most prominent topic of domestic news is the horse disease. It seems to be spreading with amazing rapidity throughout the North, and is most seriously embarrassing business in the large cities. We observe that the epidemic has reached Baltimore, and we suppose it will spread over the South. We have seen no mention of mules being attacked, and it is possible that in our climate they may be less liable to the disease. A New York physician gives the following description and treatment:

It is in reality a severe cold, which, by some strange concatenation of circumstances, appears to also partake of the characteristics of an epidemic. Seemingly it is in the air, for it spreads with unexampled rapidity. At all events, as I have intimated, no danger need be apprehended from the primal symptoms, unless the inflammation attacks the mucous membrane of the lungs. In that case graver results may be looked for, and the horse would require very careful and attentive treatment. But in the greater number of cases all that the sick animal really needs is care and consideration. Now, I can give you an illustration of my mode of operation from my own experience. Awhile ago I had some horses attacked in the same manner and with, in every respect, the same malady from which so many are at present suffering. I sent them into the country, to be under the care and in the stables of a man in Orange county, who keeps quite a stud, with the important reservation, however, that my horses were to be doctored precisely as I directed. My treatment was very simple. A hot mash of bran and water, mixed quite thin, and renewed every two or three hours, so that it should be continually warm, was placed under the horse's nose in his stall. Smelling always around the pail, his head was, so to speak, kept constantly in a steam bath. That naturally broke up the cold, and in a few days the running from the nose entirely ceased, and the animal was cured, with the exception of the consequent exhaustion. Of course it is hardly necessary to say that the most thorough cleanliness was observed. No refuse matter was allowed to remain in the stalls a moment longer than could be helped, and the stable was deodorized until the air was perfectly fresh and pure. On the other hand, the man who had charge of my horses dosed his own and physicked them until one out of every three or four died or was rendered useless for the remainder of his life.

If the signs of the disease are noticed, the best plan is to stop and unharness the horse immediately—even the drawing of the carriage or wagon would injure him, perhaps seriously. He should be at once unharnessed, blanketed and led slowly to his stable, there to be treated as I have stated.

An English gentleman in Toronto stated that the disease is not uncommon in England, where the mode of treatment is very simple and effectual. Sulphur is used as a prophylactic, and is a certain cure. A few ounces of common sulphur are warmed in a pan of coals five or six times a day, in the stables, so that every part shall become fumigated. He says this simple remedy never fails.

Married.

October 23, 1872, at the Felicity Street church, New Orleans, by Rev. Linus Parker, Mr. FRANK B. WEBSTER to Miss KATIE NESBITT FASH.

October 15, 1872, at the residence of the bride's mother, by Rev. George M. Liverman, Mr E. A. GILBERT, of Scott county, to Miss MATTIE E. TURNER, of Smith county, Mississippi. May Heaven bless and cement their union.

On the evening of October 16, 1872, at the Methodist church, New Iberia, Louisiana, by Rev. T. B. White, HENRY E. SAUNDERS, of Franklin, and MARY LAVENIA SHADLE, of New Iberia.

By Rev. B. F. Alexander, October 14, 1872, at the residence of Joseph T. Evans, in the parish of Tensas, Louisiana, Mr. S. DUNCAN FARRAR, of Kingston, Mississippi, to Miss ELLA J. MORRIS, of Natchez, Mississippi.

On the evening of the seventeenth of September, at the residence of the bride's father, by the Rev. W. B. Dennis, Mr. JOHN ROURKE and Miss ADNIE THOMPSON, daughter of Mr. B. W. Thompson, of Blackwater (near Milton,) Florida.

October 10, 1872, at Lake, Mississippi, by Rev. G. W. Chatfield, LEE C. SCOTT, Esq., and Miss KITTIE J. YARBROUGH.

At the residence of the bride, on the eighteenth of September, 1872, by Rev. H. Walter Featherstun, Mr. JOHN T. WINSTON to MRS. MARGARET B. WADE, both of Washington county, Mississippi.

At the residence of the bride's father, Skipwith, Mississippi, on the thirteenth of October, 1872, by Rev. H. Walter Featherstun, Mr. ALBERT MANN to Miss MARY E. HORNSBY, both of Skipwith, Mississippi.

Agt's & Publisher's Department

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS OF LETTERS and Funds, Received by Mail, for the week ending Oct. 26, 1872:

A—Abercrombie & Hanton $35.95, E P Angell, A C Allen, N W Ayer & Co, Wm T Ashford $29.80.

B—F Barksdale $2, J J Bender, Thomas W Brown $12, W A Brown, D P Bradford $2, D T Boyd, M E Butt $1.

C—W J Carnes, John Connerly, Baxter Clegg, Mrs M H Caln, D P Cullen, Lyman Carley.

D—Dodd & Mead, A S Dickinson, Joel T Daves, Logan D Dameron & Co, George J Dicks & Sons, J W Danks $10, W B Dennis.

E—S R Ellis.

G—Oscar C Gramling $3.50, Jos Gillott & Son, Griffin & Hoffman, G J Gooch, T & S Gibbs $19.20, W Grafton & Co $50, Thomas Green, H B Graham & Co, Green & Cator, W W Graham.

H—Wm Hardy $36.15, E J Hale & Sons, J P & W R Holmes $10, W E Halloman & Co, P Howard $10.75, A R Holcombe, L D Hargis $1, John W Hall $2.50, S W Henry $5.

J—Robt D Johnson $7.80, John A Jones & Bro $100, H F Johnston, I G John $10.

K—Kittrell & Purnell, Chris Keener.

L—J B Lippincott & Co 3 lots, W J Linn $15, W H Leith $5, H P Lewis.

M—J O McDowell, Jas H Muse, C McDonald 2 lots $25, Jos Medlock $50, M C Manly $30, A H Moss, J H Millspaugh $31, H H Montgomery, D Merchant.

N—Joseph D Newsom.

P—L A Pow $6, J S Penn $125, W C Palmer & Co, R T Parish.

R—A H Redford 2 lots, Roberts & Bros, A Riser, C B Richardson, Dr Arthur Rogers $16, J K Randall $75, J B Robinson, S P Rice.

S—J M Steel, A D Stealey, W H Shea, Geo H Stinson, S S Scott.

T—M T Tucker.

W—Wilson, Hinkle & Co, Worthington, Dostin & Co, Thomas B White $6, Miss M C Wright, Orville Whitaker, Jas L Wright.

CHANCE FOR NEW SUBSCRIBERS.—Paper Sent Till 1874 for $2.—Persons subscribing for the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE at any time from the first of November, 1872, to the first of January, 1873, will have the paper sent to them till the first of January, 1874.

EXTENT OF CIRCULATION.—The New Orleans Daily Times claims that its circulation is "OVER DOUBLE that of any other journal in the South." If the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE be regarded as one of the "journals in the South," the Times is misinformed. Our opportunities for obtaining accurate information are equal to those of the publishers of the Times. Their circulation cannot be more than their issue. Their regular issue falls to between two and three thousand below the circulation of the ADVOCATE, according to our information.

CAUTION.—Remittances should always be accompanied with instructions how to apply them. A brother sends money to Robert J. Harp, agent. It is placed to his credit on back account. The ADVOCATE book-keeper never saw it except in the list of acknowledgments, and sends him the customary monthly statement, showing a balance against him. He writes, sarcastically perhaps: "Remitted at such and such dates." We refer to files of letters and find it even so, but that he had accounts with Book Concern and also with ADVOCATE, and did not say on which one of them it should be credited. The amount due on one side of the house stood to his credit; on the other the discrepancy resulted from his neglecting to say "for Advocate." By giving us specific instructions our correspondents will save us much trouble.

WE CALL ATTENTION to the advertisement of William M. Pluckard, agent for choice varieties of cotton seed.

WE CALL ATTENTION to the advertisement of Metz's Armenian Hair Vigor and Zozozontz. Wheelock, Finlay & Co. are the agents.

H. & C. TYLER, No. 9 Carondelet street, advertise Pittsburg, anthracite and cannel coal, in quantities to suit purchasers, at the lowest market rates.

B. L. MANN & Co., 103 Peters street, are prepared to supply a superior article of tallow, put up in packages to suit. See their advertisement in another column.

WILLIAM E. COOPER & Co., 89 Canal street, general Southern agents, are now ready to deliver, free, Butterick's Catalogue of Fashions. They keep a full stock of patterns on hand.

MR. R. L. BRUCE, No. 62 Lafayette street, has a complete assortment of the celebrated green turtle and turtle soup, prepared in cans of two, four and six pounds, by Messrs. Harrison & Co., of Rockport, Texas. Hotels, saloons, steamboats and families promptly supplied.

NEW CROCKERY STORE.—An extensive and well-assorted crockery store has been opened at No. 36 Camp street, by Messrs. McCandlish, Christian & Co.

These gentlemen are well and favorably known, and we feel sure that they will be extensively patronized by their old friends, as they deserve to be. We advise purchasers, who do not know them, to call; they will find them courteous and honorable gentlemen. See their advertisement elsewhere.

D. H. HOLMES.—The extent, variety and beauty of the mammoth importing and dry goods establishment of Mr. D. H. Holmes are truly wonderful. The skill and capacity required in the successful management of such an establishment are as rare as is the success of the house. We know of no better house to deal with, and we have never known a house which has retained so many of its customers for so long a period. The reason is that Mr. Holmes has not displayed greater judgment in anything connected with his business than in the character of his employes, and especially that of the leading business manager, Mr. Hoffman.

BESSBROOK.—Merchants who are familiar with the finest and most beautiful linen fabrics and damasks, may be better acquainted than others with the word which heads this notice, and which is the name of a model manufacturing town near Belfast, Ireland. There are over four thousand hands employed at the linen mills of Mr. John G. Richardson, the proprietor of Bessbrook. More than $250,000 are paid out annually in wages. Raw material to the value of more than $1,000,000 is worked up annually, employing twenty-two thousand spindles and five hundred power looms. But what has of late called the special attention of travelers and journalists to Bessbrook, given it commercial importance, and given a world-wide reputation to the product of its looms, is the superior industry and skill developed under the advantages of total abstinence from intoxicating drinks, and the absence of drinking houses, the latter not being allowed on any part of the estate, embracing six thousand acres. We are not surprised at the statement made in a pamphlet now before us, written by J. Ewing Richie, and published by William Tweedie, of London—for which we must thank Messrs. Hullock & Lock, of New York—that the presence of the police is not required in the town. Churches, schools, reading rooms, savings banks and temperance societies take the places of the "taphouse," police, handcuffs, jails and squalid misery. The stupidity which comes from nights of dissipation, the nerves shattered by inebriation, as well as the wandering mind, absent from the work in hand, and ruminating amid scenes of revel with boon companions, are all unfavorable to the development or the faithful application of superior skill in manufacturing. It is truly gratifying to hear of a thrifty and happy manufacturing town, such as Mr. Richie represents Bessbrook to be, and which we find corroborated by a recent article in the Friendly Visitor, published by S. W. Partridge & Co., London. The experiment of Mr. Richardson has realized achievements transcending his most sanguine hopes, and is a valuable practical lesson to capitalists.

CONFERENCE REGISTER.

Conference.	Place.	Time.	Bishop.
Trinity	Sul. Springs.	Nov. 8.	Keener.
Memphis	Somerville.	Nov. 20.	Wightman.
N. Alabama.	Tuskaloosa.	Nov 20.	Doggett.
East Texas	Tyler	Nov. 20.	Keener.
Virginia	Petersburg	Nov 20.	Paine.
N. Georgia	Atlanta	Nov. 27.	Marvin.
N. Missis'ppi.	Corinth	Nov. 27.	Kavanaugh
Little Rock.	Pine Bluff	Dec. 4	Wightman.
Texas	Bryan	Dec. 4.	Keener.
N. Carolina	Raleigh	Dec. 4.	Paine.
S. Georgia	Thomasv'le,	Dec. 11.	Marvin.
Mississippi	Brandon	Dec. 11.	Kavanaugh
Alabama	Eufaula	Dec. 11.	Doggett.
West Texas.	Victoria	Dec. 18	Keener.
S. Carolina.	Anderson	Dec. 18.	Paine.
Louisiana	N. Orleans.	Jan. 8	Pierce.
Florida	Fernandina.	Jan. 8.	Marvin.
Baltimore	Baltimore	May 6.	Paine.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

Beware of Calomel, and all Mercurial compounds. Better, far better, endure disease than tamper with this mineral poison, no matter how carefully prepared. Its extensive use has already proven the cause of great and distressing injury. Dr. Tutt's Liver Pills contain not a particle of mercury, and can be taken at all times with perfect safety.

YAZOO CO., MISS., May 3, 1869.

DR. WILLIAM H. TUTT; I have been a martyr to liver complaint for three years, and after employing the best of doctors, and spending almost all I was worth for different kinds of medicine, your agent induced me to try your Liver Pills. I have taken them regularly for several weeks, and have been so much benefited by them that I feel confident of a perfect cure. I consider them the best liver medicine ever discovered.

oc31 1t J. CRAPON.

Tutt's Hair Dye Requires but a few Minutes.

Do not be Discouraged. If you have dyspepsia or any disease of the liver, there is a long life of happiness before you if you only use Simmons' Liver Regulator. oc31 1t

Best and Oldest Family Medicine.—Sanford's Liver Invigorator.—A purely Vegetable Cathartic and Tonic, for Dyspepsia, Constipation, Debility, Sick-headache, Bilious attacks, and all derangements of Liver, Stomach and Bowels. Ask your druggist for it. Beware of imitations. jal1 1yeow.

Price's Celebrated Stomach Bitters.—The Great Vegetable Restorative and Life-Giving Principle.—This wonderful vegetable restorative, since it has been before the public as a Tonic (October, 1869,) the quantity sold has been some 150,000 dozen, and in every instance given the greatest satisfaction. For dyspepsia, general debility, chills and fever, nervous affections, torpor of the liver, constipation of the bowels, fever and ague, and all cholerine maladies, these Bitters will be found invaluable to all who desire a stimulating Tonic, and are particularly recommended to all persons travelling, by land or sea. Wherever introduced it has become a standard article. It is the best and purest Tonic offered. As a Tonic and Cordial it has no equal among stomachics.

It is also a great blood purifier, a life-giving principle, and a perfect renovator of the system. No one can take these Bitters long and remain unwell. A single trial will convince any one of the merits claimed for them. Sold by grocers, druggists and dealers throughout the South.

Address JAMES W. PRICE & Co., sole manufacturers and proprietors, Lock Box 136, New Orleans, Louisiana. se5 2m

Have your Printing and Binding Done at

THE PELICAN JOB OFFICE,

113 and 111 Poydras St., New Orleans. ja18 1y

The Equitable Life Assurance Society, New York.

Assets, $18,000,000. Income, $8,000,000.

Branch office—33 CAMP STREET.

A. P. CLEVELAND, General Agent. fe8 1y

Dr. Henry's Root and Plant Pills.—Mild yet thorough; no nausea or griping; entirely vegetable; great Liver remedy. Price, 25 cents. Sold by druggists. jy18 1y

Twelve Samples (Postage Free) for fifty cents. Sells for $10. R. L. WOLCOTT, 181 Chatham square, N. Y. se26 1y

Use Dr. Henry's World's Tonic and BLOOD PURIFIER.—It is the great household remedy, pleasant to take, yet potent for the prevention and cure of diseases. It is better than Bitters, Cordials, Buchu or Sarsaparilla. Sold by druggists. jy18 1y

Mrs. Whitcomb's Syrup.—The great soothing remedy. Price only 25 cents. Gives rest to the mother and health to the child. Sold by druggists. jy18 1y

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

D. H. HOLMES,

135.....CANAL STREET.....135

—AND—

15.....BOURBON STREET.....15

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALER

—IN—

ALL DESCRIPTIONS

—OF—

DRY GOODS,

—SUCH AS—

SILKS, TISSUES, EMBROIDERIES, LACES, SHAWLS, CLOAKS, MADE SUITS, ETC.

The attention of the public is respectfully called to our stock, which will be found most complete, embracing every kind of Fancy and Staple Goods.

oc24 6m

NEW CROCKERY STORE.

McCANDLISH, CHRISTIAN & CO.,

36 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS,

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN

Crockery, China and Glassware,

Silver-Plated and Britannia ware.

HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS AND TINWARE.

Tea Trays, Waiters and Japanned Ware, Wooden and Willowware, Clocks and Looking-Glasses, Lamps and Lamp Fixtures, and everything usually kept in a

FIRST-CLASS CROCKERY STORE.

We are offering our immense stock of entirely new goods to merchants and others as cheap as they can be purchased anywhere; will be pleased to duplicate New York bills at same prices.

White French China Dining and Breakfast Sets, 125 pieces..... $29 50

12 Dinner Plates, 12 Soup Plates,
12 Breakfast Plates, 12 Tea Plates,
12 Dessert Plates, deep 12 Butter Plates,
12 Teacups and saucers 12 Egg Stands,
1 Soup Tureen, 1 Sauce-Stand,
2 Covered Dishes, 2 Vegetable Dishes,
4 Meat Dishes, 1 Salad Bowl,
2 Pickle Dishes,

Best Stone China Dinner Sets, 118 pieces..... $15 00
French China Tea Sets, 44 pieces..... 7 50
Stone China Tea Sets, 44 pieces..... 4 50
Stone China Bed-Room Sets, 44 pieces 4 00

Goblets, ninety cents per dozen, and all other goods in our line correspondingly cheap.

Orders from the country promptly attended to, and goods carefully packed. Satisfaction guaranteed

McCANDLISH, CHRISTIAN & CO., oc31 1t 36 Camp street, New Orleans.

A VALUABLE PATENT RIGHT FOR SALE.

The Rochester Riving, Shaving and Jointing Shingle Machine Patent, for the larger portion of the State of Mississippi, is offered for sale. As an investment this offers an opportunity to a small capitalist to engage in a very desirable manufacturing business. The shingles are not only superior to the hand-made article, but can be produced at a cost of from fifty to seventy-five cents per thousand; and, being uniformly made and perfectly finished, ready to put in place without further labor on the part of the builder, they will always sell more readily, and command better prices than the hand-made; in fact, builders will find it to their interest to use them, in preference to others, from the fact that there will not only be a saving of time in laying them, but that they will run fully twenty-five per cent. further in the measurement.

The Louisiana Shingle Company, of this city, are operating under this patent, and working it with success. The machines are durably built, are not liable to get out of order, occupy but little space, and three-horse power is sufficient to drive them to their fullest capacity. Timber, either hard or soft, can be worked on them, and a machine will average, per day of ten hours, from fifteen to twenty thousand shingles. Any ordinarily intelligent man can operate it. For further information address

F. BEAUMONT, JR., Agent, oc31 1t 112 Camp street, New Orleans, La.

LADIES!.....LADIES!.....LADIES!

BUTTERICK'S

CATALOGUE OF FASHIONS,

FOR FALL OF 1872,

Is now ready for delivery, FREE.

It will be mailed to any address upon application. A full and complete stock of these Patterns constantly on hand.

WM. E. COOPER & CO.,

No. 89 Canal street,

oc31 1m General Southern Agents.

R. L. BRUCE, AGENT FOR HARRISON & Co.'s celebrated Green Turtle and Turtle Soup, prepared, in cans of 2, 4 and 6 lbs., at Rockport, Texas. Warranted in any climate. Adapted for Hotels, Saloons, Boarding Houses and Private Families. For sale in quantities at BRUCE'S FEED STORE, oc31 2m 62 Lafayette street.

COAL.....COAL.....COAL.

H. & C. TYLER, No. 9 Carondelet st., will sell Pittsburg, Anthracite and Cannel COAL, in quantities to suit customers, at the lowest market rates.

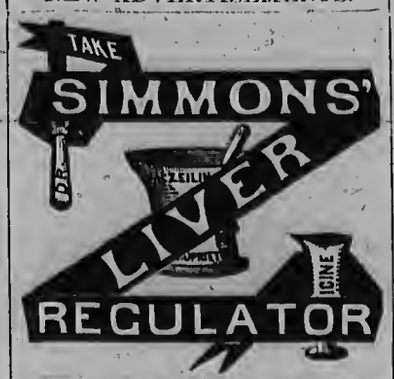
oc31 2m H. & C. TYLER.

TALLOW—TALLOW.—Tallow in cans of 40 lbs., prepared expressly for engineers and machinery use in general, composed of neatsfoot oil, pure tallow and beeswax.

Tallow in barrels, half barrels, kegs and cakes, in store and for sale by

B. L. MANN & CO., oc31 2m 103 Peters street.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.



This unrivaled medicine is warranted not to contain a single particle of Mercury, or any injurious mineral substance, but is

PURELY VEGETABLE.

For FORTY YEARS it has proved its great value in all diseases of the LIVER, BOWELS and KIDNEYS. Thousands of the good and great in all parts of the country vouch for its wonderful and peculiar power in purifying the Blood, stimulating the torpid Liver and Bowels, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system. SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR is acknowledged to have no equal as a

LIVER MEDICINE.

It contains four medical elements never united in the same happy proportion in any other preparation, viz.: a gentle Cathartic, a wonderful Tonic, an unexceptionable Alterative, and a certain Corrective of all impurities of the body. Such signal success has attended its use that it is now regarded as the

GREAT UNFAILING SPECIFIC

for LIVER COMPLAINT and the painful offspring thereof, to wit: Dyspepsia, Constipation, Jaundice, Bilious attacks, Sick Headache, Colic, Depression of Spirits, Sour Stomach, Heart-Burn, etc. Regulate the Liver and prevent

CHILLS AND FEVER.

SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR is manufactured only by

J. H. ZEILIN & CO.,

Macon, Georgia, and Philadelphia.

Price, $1 per package; sent by mail, postage paid, $1.25. Prepared ready for use in bottles, $1.50. Sold by all druggists.

☞ Beware of all Counterfeits and Imitations. se19 1y

METZ'S ARMENIAN HAIR VIGOR CONTAINS no lead or other corrosive mineral substance. The cheapest and best preparation for preserving, restoring and beautifying the Hair ever invented. It gives new vigor and vitality to the hair follicles, prevents its turning gray or falling off, and completely eradicates dandruff, etc. Try it! Price, 75 cents. Ask for Metz's. Take no other! Also ZOZOZONTZ, or Botanic Specific Cure for Toothache, Headache, etc. Never known to fail in giving instant relief in one minute, without danger. Will eradicate Pimples, Tetter, Freckles, Moth Patches, Tan, Sunburn, Black heads or Grubs, Roughness and all Cutaneous affections and discolorations of the skin, so harassing and disagreeable in a beautiful complexion. It contains no creosote, chloroform, corrosive sublimate, or any material injurious to health or beauty. Can be taken internally for Sick Stomach, Cramps and pains in the Bowels. LOUIS S. METZ, proprietor. Laboratory, corner of Bienville and Prieur streets. WHEELOCK, FINLAY & Co., Agents, New Orleans. For sale by druggists and perfumers everywhere. oc31 6m

COTTON SEED FOR PLANTING.—All the Choice Varieties, carefully selected for PLANTING purposes.

Agent for David Dickson's Georgia Improved and Extra COTTON SEED.

Also for Dr. H. J. Holmes' Extra Georgia PROLIFIC COTTON SEED.

WM. M. PINCKARD,
Successor to Steele, Pinckard & Co.,
Cor. Common and Tchoupitoulas streets.
oc31 2m New Orleans, La.

Treat the Human Machine Gently.—The winding passage, thirty feet in length, through which the main portion of the waste matter of the system is discharged, is lined with a membrane as delicate as silk, and as sensitive as a net-work of nerves can make it. Neither constipation, colic, diarrhea, dysentery or any other bowel complaint can be cured by abusing and convulsing this tender membrane with a furious purgative. The best and safest remedy in such cases is that mild balsamic and delightful tonic laxative, which heals, tones and invigorates the irritated intestines, while it relieves them from the morbid humors which provoke abdominal disease. Sold by all druggists. oc31 4t

Tarrant's Effervescent Seltzer Aperient,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN FOREIGN and Domestic Heavy and Shelf HARDWARE.—Carpenters', Cabinet Makers', Coopers' and Blacksmiths' Tools; Tinners' Stock, Tools and Machines; Cast, Tinned and Enameled Hollowware; Cooking and Heating Stoves and Ranges; House Furnishing Goods of every description. Manufacturers of Bright Tin and Japan Ware. Sole agents for the celebrated Charter Oak Cooking Stove, known for eighteen years as the only perfect and complete Baking Stove in use. Every Charter Oak is fully guaranteed. Send for descriptive catalogues and price lists.

89 and 91 Camp street,
Branch Store, 565 Magazine street,
oc24 3m NEW ORLEANS, LA.

GARDEN SEEDS,

FIELD SEEDS,

FLOWER SEEDS.

Grown largely by ourselves, on our own grounds, near Haddonfield, New Jersey.

COLLINS, DOWNS & CO.,
Warehouse, 1113 Market street,
Philadelphia, Pa.

Catalogue and Price-List furnished on application. The trade supplied on liberal terms. an22 3m

S. COLLINS & CO.,

—MANUFACTURERS OF

PRINTING INK,

Office and Depot—26 Frankfort Street,

Jy25 6m NEW YORK.

WANTED.—A Lady of several years' experience as a teacher, a graduate of a respectable female college, and fully qualified to teach the usual branches of an English education, wishes a situation in a school or family. Address

A. F., care Advocate office,
oc17 3t 110 and 112 Camp st., New Orleans.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

NEW ORLEANS Mutual Insurance Association,

NO. 10 EXCHANGE ALLEY,

THIRD QUARTERLY STATEMENT.

In conformity with their charter, the New Orleans Mutual Insurance Association publish the following statement of their affairs for the third quarter, ending Sept. 30, 1872:

Fire premiums	$221,481 16
Marine premiums	52,409 46
River premiums	42,601 46
		$316,492 08
Less unearned prem's.	165,972 73
Less returned prem's.	231 44
		166,204 18
Net earned premiums		$150,287 90
Fire losses	$3,858 70
Marine losses	11,265 12
River losses	832 91
Reserved for unadjusted losses	27,500 00
	$43,456 73
Reinsurances	925 24
Taxes, licenses and internal revenue stamps	7,135 00
General expenses	13,453 36
Rebate	1,511 18
Profit and loss	6,097 52
	$73,509 33
Add 2½ per ct. interest for third quarter on capital paid	$22,617 44
Less discount and interest	16,790 98
	5,826 48
		79,365 81
Net profits		$70,922 09

ASSETS.

Stock notes	$88,802 29
Cash	104,803 63
Notes and bills receivable	564,732 10
Stocks and bonds	123,945 38
Real estate	135,931 77
Premiums in course of collection	7,070 93
Assessment of fifty per cent. on $134,298.43	67,149 22
Total	$1,092,438 35

The above statement is a correct transcript from the books of the New Orleans Mutual Insurance Association.

C. CAVAROC, President.
GEORGE LANAUX, Secretary.

STATE OF LOUISIANA,
Parish of Orleans, City of New Orleans.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this fourth day of October, 1872.

G. LEGARDEUR, Notary Public.

At a special meeting of the Board of Directors, held this day, it was resolved, in conformity with article seven of the charter, to collect forthwith from stockholders an assessment of fifty per cent. on the net earned premiums of the third quarter of 1872, subject to assessment, amounting to $131,298.43; and it was further resolved to pay to stockholders, on demand, a quarterly interest of two and a half per cent. on the amount of capital paid in.

C. CAVAROC, President.
GEORGE LANAUX, Secretary.

Directors.

C. Cavaroc,	S. Cambon,
Charles DeRuyter,	A. Poincy,
Leon Haas, Jr.,	J. Egli,
E. F. Mioton,	L. S. Wiltz,
W. Agar,	L. Queyrouze,
oc24 1m	A. Thibaut.

NEW AND ENTERTAINING BOOKS.

Charles Dickens as a Reader.

BY CHARLES KENT.

With Fac-Similes. 12mo. Extra cloth. $1.50.

"The book is pleasantly and simply written, and will be received with pleasure by all admirers of perhaps the most finished elocutionist of his day." American Athenæum.

VICTOR NORMAN, RECTOR,

OR BESSY'S HUSBAND.

A ROMANCE.

BY MRS. MARY A. DENISON,

Author of "What Not?" "Among the Squirrels," "The Lover's Trials," etc.

12mo. Fine cloth. $1.50.

Distinguished for its insight into character, its natural and unhackneyed style, and for an influence at once gentle, exhilarating and refined.

WORLD OF ANECDOTE.

An Accumulation of Facts, Incidents and Illustrations, Historical and Biographical, from Books and Times Recent and Remote.

BY E. PAXTON HOOD,

Author of "Lamps, Pitchers and Trumpets," etc., etc.

An elegant Demi 8vo. Vol. of 760 pp. $4.50.

Doctrine of the Lord's Supper

AS SET FORTH IN THE BOOK OF CONCORD.

CRITICALLY EXAMINED AND ITS FALLACY DEMONSTRATED.

BY REV. J. B. GROSS.

12mo. Extra cloth. $1.25.

☞ For sale by Booksellers generally, or will be sent by mail, post-paid, on receipt of the price by

J. B. LIPPINCOTT & CO., Publishers,
715 AND 717 MARKET STREET,
oc24 2t Philadelphia.

A Tremendous Success

T. S. ARTHUR'S NEW BOOK.

THREE YEARS IN A MAN TRAP.

(A Companion to "Ten Nights in a Bar room.") 25,000 sold in a few weeks!

Agents say they never had a book which sells like it. One canvasser took eighty-one orders in three days, another twenty in a half day. It sells to all classes, and is so cheap that any family can afford to buy it. Strongly indorsed by all the leading men in the temperance cause. Send for illustrated circular and terms, and see why good territory is yours. QUEEN CITY PUBLISHING CO., 18 West Fourth Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

se5 1y

REOPENING OF THE ST. LOUIS,

(FIRST-CLASS HOTEL,)

ON THE FIFTEENTH OF OCTOBER,

Under the Management of oc17 1m E. F. MIOTON, President.

TO PRINTERS.—I AM MANUFACTURING

SUPERIOR PRINTERS' INK,

on a scale to supply the demand, made of the purest material, and sold at New York prices. Orders solicited. J. DOUGLAS, 10 Camp street.

S. W. WREN'S

NEW CASH HOUSE,

NO. 637 MAGAZINE ST. (Wade Block.)

is opening Fall and Winter NEW GOODS, which will be sold at very low prices. He solicits the public, especially the ladies, to call and examine his stock of fresh Staple, Fancy and Dress Goods of latest styles. oc17 1m

SELECT BOARDING HOUSE, 304 SAINT Charles street.—Mrs. H. A. GARRETT, at the above address, is prepared to accommodate a limited number of boarders, and has several desirable rooms which she would rent to gentlemen wishing rooms without board. References required. REFERENCES—Advocate office, C. L. Walmsley & Co., and Dr. James Jones, Jr. oc24 3m

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

CASH HOUSE.

1872-3. Fall and Winter. 1872-3.

In calling attention to our Establishment this season, we take great pleasure in stating that our increased facilities for

BUYING GOODS CHEAP

will enable us to be of great pecuniary advantage to the CASH BUYERS who wish to make their money do them good service. We feel confident in saying that our NEW

FALL AND WINTER STOCK,

NOW OPENED, WILL PROVE NOT ONLY

UNEQUALED IN VARIETY

AND DESIRABILITY,

BUT

UNAPPROACHABLE IN CHEAPNESS

The great increase in our business convinces us that our efforts to please are fully appreciated, and incites us to unusual exertions to prove that we are not unworthy of the confidence of our constituents.

To persons residing out of the city we would say that it is always a pleasure to forward them samples and prices, and that we send Goods "C. O. D." to any section where the Railroads or Packets run.

We deem it unnecessary to mention our stock in detail. We keep everything that belongs to

A First-Class Dry Goods House.

It shall be our constant aim to have the

NEWEST STYLES OF GOODS

AT THE

LOWEST POSSIBLE PRICES,

AND OUR

LIGHT EXPENSES, CASH SYSTEM AND SHREWD BUYERS

JUSTIFIES THE BELIEF THAT

WE CANNOT BE UNDERSOLD.

BRASELMAN & ADAMS,

DEALERS IN

Foreign and Domestic Dry Goods,

586 AND 588 MAGAZINE ST.,

CORNER ST. ANDREW ST.

☞ CASH HOUSE. oc17 1m

MECHANICS' AND TRADERS' INSURANCE CO.,

14 CARONDELET ST., NEW ORLEANS, LA.

CAPITAL.....$500,000

THIRD ANNUAL STATEMENT.

In conformity with the requirements of their charter, the Company makes the following Statement.

Premiums for the year ending August 31, 1872:

On fire risks	$152,207 75
On marine risks	24,819 90
On river risks	62,722 33
		$238,749 98
Deduct unearned and returned premium during the year		45,178 39
		$193,571 59
Losses paid during the year:
On fire risks	$52,017 61
On marine risks	18,116 07
On river risks	15,555 99
		$85,089 67
		$107,881 92
Reinsurances and return	$27,168 41
Taxes and general expenses, less interest and contingent fund	6,998 88
		$34,167 29
		$73,714 63
Reserved for unadjusted losses		12,400 00
Net profits		$61,314 63

The Company have the following Assets:

Stock notes	$303,182 00
Bills receivable for premiums and for loans secured by pledge	178,978 59
Insurance scrip	230 00
Premiums in course of collection	19,582 57
Cash on hand	52,279 78
Invested in bank, insurance and other stocks, bonds, etc., cost	30,892 67
Total	$585,205 61

The above statement is a true and correct transcript from the books of the Company.

LLOYD R. COLEMAN, President.
JAMES A. WHITE, Secretary.

STATE OF LOUISIANA,
City of New Orleans.

Sworn to and subscribed before me, the undersigned Notary Public, on the eighteenth day of September, eighteen hundred and seventy-two. CHAS. G. ANDRY, Notary Public.

The Board of Trustees have declared the following profits, to wit:

Interest on paid-in Capital, Ten per cent.
Dividend on paid-in Capital, Nine per cent.
Dividend on earned Premium, Twenty-four per cent.

All of which dividends will be credited on stock notes, certificates for which will be issued on and after the twenty-first of October next.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES.

C. W. Allen,	I. Bloom,
John D. Cobb,	Frederick Ernest,
I. L. Haas,	J. A. Lane,
Edward Nalle,	J. Pinckney Smith,
A. J. Aiken,	C. H. C. Brown,
George W. Church,	Benjamin Gerson,
John N. Harrison,	Robert L. Moore,
R. H. Noble,	W. B. Thompson,
J. A. Braselman,	Thomas B. Bodley,
J. E. Campbell,	C. A. Green,
T. H. Hunt,	John Myers,
Edward C. Payne,	Frederick Wing,
W. T. Blakemore,	Louis A. Wiltz,
Lucien J. Dolze,	T. S. Waterman,
James S. Lauphier,	Lloyd R. Coleman.
G. W. Sentell,

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 23, 1872. oc17 1m

$5 TO $20 per Day.—Agents Wanted. All classes of working people, of either sex, young or old, make more money at work for us in their spare moments, or all the time, than at anything else. Particulars free. Address G. STINSON & CO., se12 1y Portland, Maine.

The Child's Corner.

WISHING.

BY WILLIAM ALLINGHAM.

Ringting I wish I was a primrose,
A bright yellow primrose blowing in the spring,
The stooping boughs above me,
The wandering bee to love me,
The fern and moss to creep a-mong,
And the warm sun to kiss me so long!

Nay—stay! I wish I were an elm tree,
A great lofty elm tree with green leaves gay!
The winds would set them dancing,
The sun and moon sometime glance in,
The birds would house among the boughs,
And sweetly sing.

Oh—no! I wish I were a robin,
A robin or a little wren, everywhere to go:
Through forest, field or garden,
To ask no leave or pardon,
Till winter comes with icy thumbs,
To ruffle up our wing!

Well—tell! Where should I fly to,
Where go to sleep in the dark wood or dell?
Before a day was over
Home comes rover
For mother's kiss—sweeter this Than any other thing!

Dr. Spanxter's Remedy.

We give but an extract of this excellent story. Our young readers must study out the meaning, and get their parents to explain where needful.—EDITOR ADVOCATE.

At length the prince grew so weak with crying and kicking they were afraid he would die, and one day, as the queen was sitting in her private parlor weeping and eating popped corn, the king came in. "My dear!" said he, in such a loud and joyful voice the queen nearly choked herself with a corn, "there's a new doctor from abroad come to town; shall we send for him to visit our dear Puckery? They say he really knows something."

"Oh, directly, directly!" sobbed the queen, spilling all the corns into the fire in her agitation, and wiping her eyes on her apron of blue satin.

So next morning the lord chamberlain called on the celebrated Dr. Spanxter, from foreign parts, and requested him to visit the palace at twelve o'clock. The queen was sitting by Prince Pucker's bed, in a lavender-colored double gown, with pink ribbons to her cap, and a lace handkerchief in her hand, looking as interesting as she possibly could, and the prince lay snuffling and sobbing and howling under the green velvet coverlid, when the clock struck twelve, and immediately somebody stamped up the big staircase, the chamber door flew open, and in bounced a big man with a brown wig, a thick nose, blue spectacles, a snuff-colored suit, and boots fit for a clam digger.

First he looked at Prince Pucker through his spectacles, and said "Hum!" then he looked at the queen over his spectacles, and said "Hm!" both in a very loud voice; then he took off his spectacles, and turning a pair of small gray eyes, sharp as gimlets, on the queen, said: "What's the matter, eh?"

"O, my dear sir," sobbed the queen, using her pocket handkerchief a great deal, "my lovely boy beheld the moon one woeful night, and has cried to have it ever since, till his life is wasting in tears and sighs."

"Fiddlestick!" growled the doctor. The queen could not believe her ears, so she pretended not to have heard him, which is a very good way when people say unpleasant things; and she went on: "We have had all the celebrated physicians in the kingdom, and they have been useless; the king and myself despaired until we heard of your arrival; dear sir, for any sake, tell us what to do!"

The doctor glared at the queen till his blue spectacles burned like a Roman candle. "Spank him!" roared he; and, banging the door behind him, clattered down the palace stairs.

Prince Pucker sat straight up in bed, and the queen tumbled down in a fit; but as there was nobody there to pick her up, she got over it at once, and sat square in her chair as she was before. In rushed the king with the hosebleed, for he had been listening at the keyhole, and Dr. Spanxter bumped his nose when he bounced out.

"Wh-wh-what did he say?" spattered his majesty, though he knew perfectly well.

"O my dear! oh! oh! oh! he said!—oh! how shall I? oh! the ferocious creature! the awful man! he said—he—he said: 'Spank him!'"

"Goodness gracious me!" exclaimed the king, still mopping his royal nose, but thinking only of Prince Pucker. "Send for the lord chamberlain at once. I suppose we must try it; but let it be easy, easy, sussive, my dear; there must be a royal road to everything, and a common shingle is not to be thought of."

By and by the lord chamberlain came in and received the king's orders, trying so hard to keep his face properly solemn that his eyes got crossed, and never got back again to their places; then he took ten of the most skillful workmen in wood, went out with them into the forest, cut down the biggest red cedar to be found, and from the very heart of it cut a long and wide shingle that smelt of sandal and roses and sweetbrier mixed, and fainting to the very dream of a perfume; this was carried to the city, shaved down to the thinness of a card, rubbed with sandpaper, polished on an emery-wheel, and finished off with dinmoud-dust and a white kid burnisher, till no satin or velvet could be so shining and soft; then the handle was set with pearls and opals—no cut stones might roughen even that part of the royal rod—the edge was fringed with swan's down, and the whole wrapped in tissue paper, laid in a box, and solemnly presented to the queen.

It was an awful day in the palace when Prince Pucker was spanked. Nobody but the king or queen dared lay hands on the Prince Royal, and the queen wouldn't; she took to fainting away with such ease and rapidity that it took seventeen maids of honor and the chief lady to sprinkle and fan and rub her, and she never recovered till Angelica accidentally ran a hair-pin into her left ear.

The king seized the kind moment while everybody was busy, whisked down the bed-clothes, and, grasping the royal limbs, snatched Prince Pucker with great celerity and grace; the bed shook beneath the prince's agitated form, and the king, bursting into tears, dropped the shingle. That wicked Angelica, who was peeping between the curtains behind the bed at that moment, having first punched the hair-pin a little deeper into the queen's ear, always declared, upon her honor that Prince Pucker was in fits of laughter; but nobody believed her, of course.

At length the queen came to, the king went down to the back parlor and swallowed some methegln and ketchup to quiet his feelings, and the prince began to yell louder than usual. In vain did the queen sprinkle him with rose-water and offer him cream-candy—he was more eager after the moon than ever; vainly also did she, choking with sobs, feebly suggest more shingle: the prince made a very contemptuous nose at her, and, winking one eye, gave a fresh howl, so long and shrill that it pierced even to the king's retirement, and made him swallow some ketchup the wrong way. So matters went on for three days, Prince Pucker still growing feebler, except as to his lungs, which remained very powerful. At last the king advised sending for Dr. Spanxter again, much to the queen's horror; however, the king kissed her every time she began to say anything about it, and that is a good way to stop anybody's mouth—it is so impolite to object when one kisses you; and so Dr. Spanxter came clattering up the great staircase once more, and found the queen by Prince Pucker's bedside, looking even more interesting than before, and the prince screaming still louder. "Hem!" grunted the doctor, putting his hands in his pockets and glaring frightfully at the queen over his spectacles.

"Have you spanked him?"

"Oh, yes, yes!" cried the queen, sobbing and wringing her hands. "The king himself did it."

"With what?" sputtered the doctor.

The queen rose from her chair, and, sailing gracefully to a bureau of sandal wood and silver, opened the top drawer, and, extracting therefrom the royal shingle, laid it in Dr. Spanxter's extended hand.

"Donner and blitzen! what nonsense!" growled the doctor, like an angry bear. Another moment and the despised thing was sent spinning through the open window, and from one of those great coat pockets the man hauled a real shingle, split from a mighty chestnut-tree, tough and rough enough, and pierced with many a hole. With one hand he clutched Prince Pucker by the collar of his nightgown, whirled him out of bed, and applied the instrument of discipline with such force and dexterity that the royal boy writhed, kicked and roared again; his shrieks echoed through the galleries and saloons of the palace till all the maids of honor clapped their hands for joy, and the gentlemen of the king whistled waltzes like a thousand happy canary birds, while the king rushed to the scene just as the spanking was well over.

"There!" said Dr. Spanxter, depositing the prince on the bed; "now you have something to cry for! I shall come again when you do again cry!" and off he stamped.

The queen had hysterics, and the king more methegiin and ketchup all the afternoon; but the prince lay quiet in his bed and eat a quart bowl of soup. From that day he grew better fast; once, indeed, when the great soft moon beamed in through his window, he began to weep bitterly, and Angelica, slipping out of a private door, sent a little page post-haste to fetch Dr. Spanxter, who came with more speed and fury than ever, and applied the shingle with greater zeal.

This, however, was the last time; the prince shook in his shoes when a shingle was named before him, and behaved himself like the best of boys ever after. Dr. Spanxter left for his own country with two saddlebags full of gold; the maids of honor grew fat, and the gentlemen all raised mustaches, now that the prince had grown too good to pull them. Prince Pucker grew up to be a great and good king, and the first law he made, as soon as he was crowned, ordered everybody in his kingdom to keep a stout shingle hung up behind the kitchen door, and spank all their children regularly every Saturday night. In consequence of this there were never seen such good and well-mannered children as those living in that island; they never thought of disobeying their parents; they never cried for anything denied to them, or whined or fretted; and they always said: "Yes, sir," and "No, sir," "Please" and "Thank you."—Rose Terry, in Our Young Folks.

A Good Conscience.

An Indian, being among his white neighbors, asked for a little tobacco, and, one of them having some loose in his pocket, gave him a handful. The day following the Indian came back, inquiring for the donor, saying he had found a quarter of a dollar among the tobacco. Being told that, as it had been given to him, he might as well keep it, he answered, pointing to his breast: "I got a good man and a bad man here; and the good man say it is not mine, I must return it to the owner. The bad man say, 'Why, he gave it to you, and it is your own now;' the good man say, 'That's not right, the tobacco is yours, not the money;' the bad man say, 'Never mind, you got it, go buy some dram;' the good man say, 'No, no, you must not do so;' so I don't know what to do, and I think to go to sleep; but the good man and the bad man keep talking all night, and trouble me; and now I bring the money back I feel glad."

CHILDREN, do not form the habit of making excuses. If you have done wrong be willing to confess it. Do not try to hide it, or to throw the blame on another. A person who is quick at making excuses is not likely to be good at anything else, or to be loved and honored. Be honest, be frank, be truthful.

A LIGHT, covered, will expire of itself for want of air.

The Farm and Garden.

What we Can Do With Honey.

Honey seems to be plenty in Australia, and the Queenslander has the following list of good uses to which it can be applied:

With honey at six pence per pound retail, and three pence wholesale, we should begin to use it. Of course honey is good with bread, and it is now very general upon breakfast and tea tables in the bush. Townspeople generally are not so far advanced. Here are a few other methods of using it:

Preserving Grapes with Honey.—Take seven pounds of sound grapes on the stems, the branches as perfect as possible, and pack them snugly, without breaking, in a jar. Make a sirup of four pounds of honey and one pint of good vinegar, with cloves, cinnamon, etc., to suit (about three ounces each is a fair average.) Boil this sirup for about twenty minutes, and skim well; then turn boiling hot over the grapes and seal up immediately. They will keep years, if desired, and are exceedingly nice. Apples, peaches and plums may be done in this way.

Preserving Grapes Cold.—Pick grapes from the stem and pack in a jar until it is full. Then turn honey cold over them until they are covered well. Seal up without heat, and keep in a cool place. After a few months they will be found delicious.

All kinds of fruit made into jam and sweetened with honey, instead of sugar, are very nice. Those who are fond of honey consider "butter" made in this way nicer than when made with sugar.

Ginger Snaps.—One pint of honey, three-fourths pound of butter, two teaspoonfuls of ginger; boil together a few minutes, and when nearly cold put in flour until it is nearly stiff; roll out thin and bake quickly.

Honey Cake.—One cup butter, two cups honey, four eggs well beaten, one teaspoonful essence lemon, half a cup milk, sour, if possible, one teaspoonful soda, flour enough to make it as stiff as can well be stirred; bake at once in a quick oven.

Honey Fruit Cake.—Four eggs, five cups flour, two cups honey, one cup sweet milk, two teaspoonfuls cream of tartar, one spoonful of soda, one pound raisins and currants, one-fourth pound citron, one teaspoonful each of cloves, cinnamon and nutmeg; bake in large loaf and slow oven. This will be good for months after baking, as well as when fresh.

Honey Gingerbread.—One cup of butter, two of honey, one of sour milk, one teaspoonful soda; flour stiff as can be stirred.

The Fireweed.

The fireweed is a species of cotton plant which springs up spontaneously on evergreen lands that have been burnt over. The following interesting facts concerning it we owe to Public Opinion. Hundreds of acres of this plant are to be seen in the northern woods of New York. It is perennial, grows to the height of four to six feet, the stem being one fourth of an inch in diameter. Some two feet from the top it puts out from a dozen to twenty branches, each bearing from fifteen to twenty pods. In August these open and display a white fiber like that in the ball of the cotton plant. The seeds are small and numerous, but do not require ginning to separate them from the fiber. The plants grow close together on poor or rich soil, and in any climate from forty degrees north to the Arctic Circle. The southern limit of its growth is the northern limit of cotton.

From this material candle and lamp wicks have been made, and ropes that proved as strong as cotton ropes of the same size. Carded and spun, it made excellent yarn, from which a stocking was knit. Its fiber makes the finest of paper, being almost equal to silk for this purpose.

Irish Potatoes.

The Irish people are the greatest potato eaters in the world, and know all about cooking that fine esculent. We copy their mode of boiling potatoes from an Irish paper:

Put the potatoes, in a pot or kettle without a lid or cover, and with water just sufficient to cover them. After the water comes nearly to a boil pour it off, replace it with cold water, into which throw a good portion of salt. The cold water sends the heat from the surface to the heart, and makes the potato mealy. After they are boiled and the water poured off, let them stand on the fire ten or fifteen minutes to dry.

Netting Hogs.

The Kentucky rule is said to be, for the first 100 pounds deduct 25 for gross; for the second 100 pounds deduct 12½; for the third 100 pounds deduct 6¼; all over the third hundred is net. The net weight of a hog weighing 100 gross is 75 pounds; a hog of 150 gross will net 118¾; of 250 gross 209¾ net, and a hog, the gross weight of which is 300 pounds, will net 256¼ pounds. From the gross weight of a hog that goes over 300, 43¼ pounds only is deducted, even should the weight be 400. This rule, if correctly stated, may be of use to somebody.

THE American Agriculturist describes a variety of pear which may prove valuable, both as an ornamental tree and as a fruit-bearer; and is a horticultural curiosity. A cion was recently grafted on an old pear tree, and its growth was wonderful. Some of the leaves were as large as one's hand (that is, we suppose, as large as a lady's number six,) and in autumn they clung to the branches long after most of the other pears had cast their leaves, assuming as they died a color equal to that of the maple. The fruit is so like an apple in shape that several experts have taken it for that kindred fruit; but it has undeniably the wood, growth and habits of the pear. The fruit is very abundant, and makes delicious preserves, with a quince-like flavor.

HARDWARE, STOVES, ETC.

KURSHEEDT & BIENVENU,
IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN
Plantation and Builders' Hardware,
MARBLE, MARBLEIZED SLATE AND IRON MANTLES,
Grates, Hearths and Fire Bricks,
NO. 114 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
my2 1y

G. W. W. GOODWYN,
54 Gravier St., near Tchoupitoulas,
DEALER IN
STOVES AND TINWARE.

Among his assortment of Cooking Stoves he invites special attention to the COTTAGE and THE BEST, as being unsurpassed by any Cooking Stoves in this market. They have all the modern improvements, are perfect bakers, and, without extra charge, are adapted for burning wood, coke or coal, and guaranteed to give satisfaction.

HEATING STOVES.—He has various styles of these on sale. Is agent also for the NEW BALTIMORE FIRE-PLACE HEATER, the most perfect, cheerful and economical Heater in use; will heat from one to a half dozen or more rooms at a cost, for coal, of twenty-five cents per day.

TINWARE.—In this line he keeps constantly on hand a full assortment of plain Tin and Japanned Ware.

(With the above, Rev. P. M. Goodwyn, a superannuate of the Louisiana Conference.)
se26 6m

COMMISSION MERCHANTS.

PRICE, HINE & TUPPER,
General Commission Merchants,
FACTORS AND
Agents of Attakapas Mail Transportation Co.,
NO. 26 CARONDELET STREET,
NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Advances made on consignments to T. Tupper & Sons, Charleston, S. C.; Williams, Birnie & Co., and Leverich & Co., New York.
no1 1y

W. H. SUTTON. J. R. POWELL.
SUTTON & POWELL,
COTTON FACTORS
AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS.
186 ..... COMMON STREET 186
NEW ORLEANS, LA.
se21 1y

H. F. GIVEN. LUCIEN J. DOIZE.
H. F. GIVEN & CO.,
COTTON, TOBACCO AND SUGAR FACTORS,
—AND—
GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
No. 64 Baronne street, New Orleans.
oc5 1y

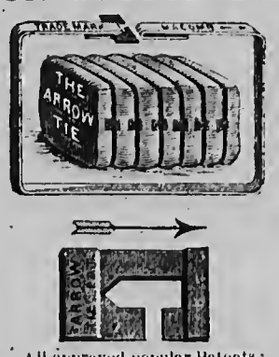
ANDREW J. AIKEN. JOHN W. WATT.
AIKEN & WATT,
Cotton Factors and Commission Merchants,
60.....CARONDELET STREET.....60
NEW ORLEANS.
Special attention given to orders for the purchase of all descriptions of Produce, Agricultural Implements and Plantation Supplies.
no2 1y

J. L. DUNNICA, New Orleans. T. A. HAMILTON, Memphis
G. P. HARRISON, New Orleans.
J. L. DUNNICA & CO.,
FLOUR, PRODUCE AND PROVISION
COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
50.....TCHOUPITOULAS ST.....50
NEW ORLEANS, LOUISIANA.
oc22 1y

J. C. PAYNE. W. H. DAMERON. H. M. PAYNE
PAYNE, DAMERON & CO.,
COTTON FACTORS,
64 & 66 ...BARONNE STREET....64 & 66
Between Union and Gravier streets,
NEW ORLEANS, LA.
le19 1y

C. L. WALMSLEY & CO.,
Cotton Factors and General Commission Merchants,
31.....PERDIDO STREET.....31
oc3 1y NEW ORLEANS.

IMPORTANT TO PLANTERS.
IRON COTTON TIES.
THE ARROW TIE. AND ALL OPEN-SLOT TIES.



All approved popular Patents;
ARROW,
ANCHOR,
WALLIS,
ALLIGATOR
AND DUNN.
For sale by all dealers in New Orleans, Mobile and Memphis, and by country merchants generally throughout the Cotton States.
BARTLETT & RAYNE,
General Agents,
48 Carondelet street, cor. Union,
my30 6m New Orleans.

ESTABLISHED IN 1828.

Are Popular Because Reliable,
AND EXCLUSIVELY
THE GROWTH of BUIST.

They cannot fail affording the utmost satisfaction to every purchaser, and are so warranted. Sold by the leading Druggists and Seed Dealers throughout the South, and by RICHARD FROTSCHER, No. 12 Dumaine street, New Orleans, Louisiana. Grown and sold by ROBT. BUIST, JR., SEED GROWER,
WAREHOUSE,
923 and 924 Market St., Philadelphia.
☞ BUIST'S SOUTHERN GARDEN MANUAL AND PA. ALMANAC for 1873 issued in October. One hundred and thirty pages of useful information on gardening, etc., etc. oc17 3m

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

CENTENARY COLLEGE,
JACKSON, LOUISIANA.

THE NEXT TERM OF THIS VENERABLE INSTITUTION OPENS ON THE FIRST MONDAY IN OCTOBER, 1872.

FACULTY.

Rev. C. G. ANDREWS, A. M., President, and Professor of Mental and Moral Science, Political Economy and International Law.
Rev. A. S. HOLCOMBE, A. M., Professor of Mathematics and Adjunct Professor of Natural Science.
G. H. WILEY, A. M., Professor of Ancient and Modern Languages.
T. S. JONES, M. D., Professor of Natural Science.
———, Principal of the Preparatory Department.

CHARGES.

Tuition, per session of forty weeks, in College..... $60 00
Tuition, per session of forty weeks, in Preparatory Department..... 40 00
Contingent expenses..... 5 00

A matriculation fee of $5 must be paid on entering any regular college class. One-half the charges must be paid when the student enters; the other half on the beginning of the second term, March 1.

BOARD.

Board, including lodging, washing, lights and fuel, can be had in the best of families for $2 per month. Day-boarding with the same families, $13 per month. Rooms provided in the dormitories free of rent. Board to be paid in advance at least one month.

LOCATION.

This institution is located in the lovely village of Jackson, about twelve miles from Bayou Sara, in a grove of pine, magnolia, oak and beech. The location is remarkable for its beautiful woodlands, its bland and delightful atmosphere, its pure water, its unrivaled healthfulness, and its cultivated and refined society.

WHEN FOUNDED.

The college was established by the State of Louisiana in 1825, and ceded to the Methodist Episcopal Church South in 1845.

ALUMNI.

Its Alumni numbers 503, and they are to be found in the most honorable and useful stations in the land.

APPARATUS AND CABINET.

The college possesses a valuable set of Philosophical, Astronomical and Chemical Apparatus, and also a well-selected Mineralogical and Geological Cabinet. The apparatus includes a Theodolite, Sextant, Compass, Chronometer, Atwood's Machine, Whirling Tables, Electrical Machine, Air-Pump, various combinations of the Mechanical Powers, Batteries, Chemical Tests, etc., sufficient for a thorough and extended course of observations and experiments. Steps have been taken by the Board of Trustees to put these in thorough repair.

LITERARY SOCIETIES.

There are two regular Literary Societies connected with the institution. These are of great utility to young men acquiring a liberal education—improving them in the art of public speaking, making them in some degree familiar with the proceedings of deliberative bodies, and in cultivating systematic business habits. Each Society has a convenient hall and a well selected library—about 1,600 volumes each, which, added to the College Library of 2,000 volumes, makes over 5,000 volumes in the college.

BUILDINGS.

The Trustees are determined to continue the repairs on the buildings till completed. The grand Center Building is a noble specimen of architectural beauty and adaptation to the purposes of its erection. The wings, built of solid brick, present each a front of two hundred feet, with upper and lower galleries the entire length, supported by Tuscan columns, and with the center making in the perspective a continuous front of 700 feet.

PREPARATORY DEPARTMENT.

In the Preparatory Department students are fitted for regular college classes, or may obtain a thorough English or commercial education.
ITS FACULTY are men of experience and success in teaching.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES.

Rev. Bishop J. C. KEENER, D. D., President, New Orleans.

Rev. J. A. Godfrey, Clinton.	Hon. A. K. Farrar, Adams county, Miss.
Hon. John McVea, Clinton.	Hon. Edward J. Gay, parish of Iberville.
Hon. and Rev. Jas. H. Muse, St. Helena par.	Samuel J. Norwood, Esq., Slumsport, La.
Hon. Edward McGehee, Woodville, Miss.	C. G. McGehee, Esq., Wilkinson co., Miss.
Hon. E. T. Merrick, New Orleans	Rev. W. H. Watkins, D. D., Natchez, Miss.
Prof. W. H. N. Magruder, Baton Rouge.	Rev. W. G. Millsaps, Jefferson county, Miss.
Rev. John C. Miller, Jackson.	Rev. J. A. B. Jones, Port Gibson, Miss.
Rev. R. J. Harp, New Orleans.	Rev. John A. Ellis, Meridian, Miss.
Hon. J. G. Fagan, Baton Rouge.	B. H. Moss, M. D., New Orleans.
T. F. Collins, Esq., East Feliciana.	Josiah D. Nettles, Esq., E. Baton Rouge, La.
Rev. J. L. Forsythe, Jackson.	Wilmot H. Goodale, Esq., Baton Rouge.
Rev. L. Parker, D. D., New Orleans.	Rev. C. G. Andrews, Jackson, La.
D. C. Hardee, Esq., Clinton.	Rev. A. E. Goodwyn, Baton Rouge, La.

THE BEST ROUTE to the college is to leave the Mississippi river at Port Hudson, take the Clinton and Port Hudson railroad to Midway station, report to Captain F. J. Haynes as a student for Centenary, and he will convey you to the college, a distance of seven miles, for one dollar and a half for single passengers, or one dollar each where several are together. Address
au1 6m C. G. ANDREWS, President, Jackson, La.

GROCERIES—GLASSWARE.
PURE LOUISIANA
SUGAR, MOLASSES AND SIRUPS.

REFINED SUGAR.—Cut Loaf, Crushed and Powdered.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

GOLDEN SIRUP.—A superior article of pure Louisiana, from the Crescent City Refinery
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

REFINED SIRUP AND MOLASSES.—Crescent City Refinery, Orleans, Louisiana, Chalmette and Pelican brands.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

LOUISIANA MOLASSES.—Various grades of Plantation, in barrels, half barrels and kegs.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

CLARIFIED SUGAR.—Various grades of White and Yellow, in hogsheads and barrels.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

LOUISIANA SUGAR.—Various grades of Plantation, in hogsheads and barrels.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
48 Tchoupitoulas street.

FOREIGN SUGAR.—Cuba, Demerara and Porto Rico, in hogsheads and boxes.
A. THOMSON & CO.,
my8 6m. 48 Tchoupitoulas street.

Relief for the Sick and Afflicted.

SOUTHERN HEPATIC PILLS.

Unsurpassed for the cure of Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint and all other Bilious diseases. Call on MRS. GEO. W. DEEMS, No. 28 South Calhoun street, Baltimore, Maryland. Explanatory circulars sent on application. For sale by E. J. HART & CO., se12 3m 73 Tchoupitoulas st., New Orleans.

RHEUMATISM,
GOUT AND NEURALGIA PERMANENTLY CURED BY
N. JENKINS'
ANNIHILATOR.

A PURELY VEGETABLE COMPOUND, whose extraordinary virtues, in these painful diseases, are attested by certificates from many prominent citizens of every section of the country.
No medicine of the century has attracted as much attention.
Of the many to whom the proprietor is authorized to refer, may be mentioned the following well-known gentlemen:
Rev. Fisher T. Rawson, Delhi, Louisiana.
Rev. James E. Bradley, Floyd, Louisiana.
Rev. P. M. Goodwyn, New Orleans, La.
Rev. J. B. Walker, Galveston, Texas.
For circulars and for further information address N. JENKINS, Proprietor, se26 3m 100 Baronne st., New Orleans.

BREWER & HILTON,
MANUFACTURERS OF
Thomas Worsley's Celebrated Fancy, Shaving and Toilet Soaps,
Also J. D. SMITH & CO.'S world-renowned Pearl Powders, Lily Whites, Rouges, etc.,
NO. 114 ARCH STREET, PHILADELPHIA.
All goods warranted. au8 3m

Whitworth Female College,
AT BROOKHAVEN, MISS.

THE CONTINUED SUCCESS OF THIS INstitution is one of the best evidences of its merit. During the past term there were in attendance two hundred and twenty-nine pupils.
The members of the Faculty—eleven in number—are selected on account of their ability to teach.
Prof. EICHBAUM, Music Director, has few equals.
Madame JULIUS, a Parisian lady of eighteen years' successful experience as a teacher, has been engaged to take charge of the French and Ornamental Department.
The very best care is taken of our pupils, both as to health and manners. Fires are provided for all.
No extravagance in dress is allowed.
The good health of Brookhaven is proverbial. Pupils from the miasmatic regions of Louisiana and Mississippi find this as healthful a school as can be found anywhere.
The charges are believed to be lower than in any school in the Southwest where similar advantages are afforded. Only from $230 to $265 for all expenses, excepting music, French and the ornamental branches.
No expense is spared in purchasing the most approved apparatus, maps, charts, etc., and all necessary school furniture.
Brookhaven is located on the New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern Railroad, 128 miles from the city.
Catalogues sent free on application to au1 6m REV. H. F. JOHNSON, Prest.

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE,
AT BATON ROUGE, LOUISIANA.

THE EXERCISES OF THIS SCHOOL will be resumed on Wednesday, the Second of October next.
For circulars, with all necessary information, apply to Rev. R. J. Harp, 112 Camp street, New Orleans, or to myself, at Baton Rouge, Louisiana.
au1 6m W. H. N. MAGRUDER.

HOMER COLLEGE.

THE SCHOLASTIC EXERCISES OF THE Thirteenth Annual Term of Homer College begin on the First Tuesday of SEPTEMBER next, 1872.
Tuition at the rate of $5 per month. Board from $12 to $15 per month.
Students received in regular classes only, and to the end of a session.
A Preparatory Department, under competent management, is attached to the college. Tuition, $4 to $5 per month.
For further particulars address
REV. J. E. COBB,
President Homer College, La.
By order of the Board.
W. F. MORELAND,
Pres. Board of Trustees. au22 3m

Rendville Seminary for Young Ladies,
BATON ROUGE, LOUISIANA.

ESTABLISHED IN 1843.—Incorporated in 1859. New buildings. Full corps of teachers. All the appliances of a first-class institution. For catalogues address
MRS. MARY W. READ, Principal,
au29 3m Baton Rouge, La.

MUSICAL BOXES,

PLAYING FROM ONE TO ONE HUNDred Airs, and costing from $2.50 to $3,000. All sizes, styles and prices. Send stamp for catalogue.
MAGIC LANTERNS,
specially for Sunday schools, lectures, etc. A priced and illustrated catalogue sent on receipt of stamp.
W. MITCHELL, McALLISTER,
au29 3m 729 Chestnut st., Phila.

MISCELLANEOUS.

BIG GEST

COMMISSIONS

on Standard Works for all Prominent Benevolent Organizations. 100,000 sold. Masonic, Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias, Red Men, Mechanics, Temperance, etc. Sale unrivaled by anything heretofore offered. Agents with no experience are selling 20 Pictures and upward a day. One of our agents has cleared over $1,200 in three months. The Brethren welcome these works. Our inducements are UNPRECEDENTED. Our commissions are positively one-fourth larger than any other house does or CAN offer. Send for circular of Order to which you belong, giving No. of your Lodge, and state where you saw this advertisement. You will certainly engage with us.

J. HALE POWERS & CO.,
Fraternity Publishers,
my9 7m Cincinnati, Ohio.

INSURANCE.....INSURANCE.

LOUISIANA

Equitable Life Insurance Company,

CHARTERED BY THE STATE OF LOUISIANA,

Office—Cor. Carondelet and Gravier Sts.

Parties desiring life insurance are informed that this company issues policies of insurance on all approved plans as low as any other company. All policies are non-forfeitable. Losses adjusted and settled with promptness and liberality. JAMES H. LOW,
se26 1m President.

MENEELY'S BELLS.

THE genuine Troy Church Bells known to the public since 1826, which have acquired a reputation unequaled by any, and a sale exceeding that of all others—including more than seventy chimes and peals. One thousand testimonials received during the last six years. Every Bell made of best Copper and Tin, and fully warranted. New Patent Rotary Fixtures. Catalogues free. No agencies.

Post office address, either TROY or WEST TROY, New York.
jy13 1y E. A. & G. R. MENEELY.

JOHN GIBSON,

ENGRAVER

AND

Steam Power Lithographic Printer,

83 BEEKMAN ST., NEW YORK.

Checks, Notes, Drafts, Receipts, Bonds, Certificates of Stock and Deposit, Bill, Letter and Note Headings, Business Cards, Envelopes, Druggists' Fancy and Perfumery Labels, etc. Druggists wishing Labels, send for Catalogue. Je27 1y

JOSEPH GILLOTT'S

STEEL PENS,

OF THE OLD STANDARD QUALITY.

TRADE MARK: JOSEPH GILLOTT. Or Descriptive Name and Design Warranted. Mailing Number.

The well-known Original and Popular Nos.,

303.....404.....170.....351,

having been assumed by other Makers, we desire to caution the public in respect to said imitations. ☞ ASK FOR GILLOTT'S.

JOS. GILLOTT & SONS,
jy25 1y 91 John street, N. Y.

READY-PREPARED
PLASTIC SLATE ROOFING.

Thoroughly Fire-Proof and Durable.

Adapted to any style of roof, steep or flat. Can be applied by any one. Its cost on the roof is less than shingles in nearly every section of the country, and the water from it is of the best quality. Sample sent on application to

EDWARD THOMPSON, Manufacturer,
je27 6m 184 Peters street, New Orleans.

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY

Established in 1837.

Superior Bells for Churches, Schools, etc., of Pure Copper and Tin, fully warranted, and mounted with our Latest Improved Rotary Hangings, the best in use.

Illustrated Catalogue sent free

VANDUZEN & TIFT,
102 & 104 E. Second St., Cincinnati
fe22 1y

WM. PHILLIPS, UNION STABLES, 180 Calliope, near St. Charles street, has every accommodation in the line of Pleasure and Family Carriages, such as hacks, broughams, phætons, buggies, etc., for the use of the public, and at rates to correspond with the stringency of the times. All hacking done below tariff rates. Orders for weddings, balls, picnics, races, etc., will be attended to so as to guarantee satisfaction. I am also prepared to hire vehicles (alone) to parties having their own horses. de14 1y

BINGHAM HOUSE, PHILADELPHIA,
Corner of Eleventh and Market Sts.
CARLIS DAVIS, PROPRIETOR.

This popular Hotel being centrally located and accessible by street cars from all depots, makes it a desirable stopping place for travelers. It will be conducted in the same liberal manner as heretofore, it being the intention of the proprietor to maintain the reputation it has always enjoyed, of being in all respects a first-class hotel.
Terms, $3 a day. au8 1y

LANDRETH'S SEEDS

Have spoken their own praise for upward of three-quarters of a century.

Landreth's Rural Register and Almanac will be mailed to all who apply.

DAVID LANDRETH & SON,
au29 1y Philadelphia.

IMPORTANT FRENCH MEDICAL DISCOVERY. Interesting to all. Health in a Bottle. Consumption, Chlorosis, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Dyspepsia and Pulmonary Tubercles radically cured with the ELIXIR d. F. Bernard, of Paris. This wonderful remedy is accepted by the most distinguished and celebrated French physicians, and in constant use in the French hospitals. Valuable instructions and information on the above sent (free) to all who desire it by addressing A. HERNARD & CO., Sole Agents, 62 William street, N. Y. Postoffice Box 4485. For sale by all respectable druggists. oc10 1m STALLS NOS. 38, 7 AND 8, Magazine Market.

MARTIN LANNES, BUTCHER,

supplies Ships, Families, Hotels, etc., with Beef, Mutton, Pork, and all varieties of Sausages, Game, Tripe, Pigs, Fowls, Vegetables, etc., and everything the market affords. All Meats delivered free of charge. oc17 6m

BARLOW'S INDIGO BLUE is the cheapest and best article in the market for BLUEING CLOTHES.

The genuine has both Barlow and Wiltberger's names on the label, and is put up at Wiltberger's Drug Store, No 233 North Second street, Philadelphia. For sale by grocers and druggists.

D. S. WILTBERGER,
au29 3m Proprietor.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

Former Ch. Jus. La.

RACE, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK,

Attorneys, Counselors and Solicitors,

Cor. of Camp street and Commercial Place,
se25 NEW ORLEANS.

W. W. EDWARDS,

COUNSELOR AT LAW

AND

COMMISSIONER OF DEEDS,

No. 88 Common street,

se14 1y New Orleans.

DR. JOHN G. ANGELL,

DENTAL SURGEON,

152.....JULIA STREET.....152

All operations in Operative, Mechanical and Surgical Dentistry carefully performed. Nitrous Oxide and other Anæsthetics administered. no30 1y

DR. C. J. BICKHAM,

Office—680 Magazine Street,

Between Philip and First sts., New Orleans.

Will call daily at College building, corner Common and Baronne streets, between eleven and twelve o'clock. Je29 1y

BUSINESS CARDS.

CHAS. H. REED, REAL ESTATE BROKER, 87 St. Charles street.—Buys and sells all sorts of city and country property. Mortgages made promptly. Various pretty Cottages in choice locations are offering on long terms. Has for sale the finest Building Sites in the city, and, being largely interested himself, can speak confidently on all matters pertaining to the sale, rental, appraisement and management of real estate. oc21 2m

JULIUS LOEFFLER, GAS FITTER,

AND

DEALER IN GAS FIXTURES, ETC.,

No. 43 Royal street,

Bet. Customhouse and Bienville streets,
oc21 3m NEW ORLEANS.

F. R. HARDON,
DEALER IN
Straw, Millinery and Fancy Goods,
No. 29 Chartres street,
Between Canal and Customhouse streets,
oc21 2m NEW ORLEANS.

WALLACE & CO.,

IMPORTERS AND WHOLESALE DEALERS IN

DRY GOODS,

11 and 13 Magazine st., and 79, 81, 83, 85, 87 and 89 Common st.,

oc21 6m NEW ORLEANS.

P. W. McKITRICK & CO., NO. 160 POYDRAS street, between St. Charles and Carondelet, manufacturers of

WINDOW SHADES, AWNINGS,

Wire Screens and Boxes,

and agents for Marston's celebrated Hand and Foot Circular Sawing and Boring Machine combined—$31. $2 Shades, complete and put up. oc21 2m

HILLMAN & MANARD, 157 POYDRAS ST., Bet. St. Charles and Carondelet sts.,

DEALERS IN

FANCY GROCERIES, FRUITS, TEAS,

AND ALL KINDS OF

FAMILY & PLANTATION SUPPLIES.

Special attention paid to consignments of Country Produce. Orders and consignments respectfully solicited. oc24 2m

TO THE PUBLIC.—I am now prepared to remove and repair Iron Safes; also Lightning Rods repaired and put up to order. I have also on hand New and Second-hand SAFES for sale, both Burglar and Fire-Proof. Particular attention paid to repairing Bank Locks and Printing Presses, on most reasonable terms, by GEO. COATS, oc24 2m 168 Magazine st., near Julia.

J. H. BORAND.

CARPENTER AND BUILDER.

Shop on St. Charles street,

Bet. Louisiana avenue and Toledano street,
NEW ORLEANS.
Box 171 Mechanics' Exchange. oc24 1y

SOUTHERN SALE STABLES, CORNER of Delord and Dryades streets.—Having purchased the above Stables from George W. Fisher, I will constantly keep on hand the largest variety of Kentucky MULES; also Harness and Saddle HORSES. Take the Jackson Railroad and Dryades street cars, foot of St. Charles street; they take you to the Stables in five minutes. Merchants, planters and dealers will find it to their interest to give me a call before purchasing elsewhere. 10:21 3m) O. P. ALFORD.

COAL.....COAL.....COAL.

B. D. WOOD & BROS.,

105 Carondelet st., opposite City Hotel.

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in all kinds of COAL. Pittsburg Coal delivered by boat load or less on the coast, and shipped in casks or in bulk at lowest market rates. City trade supplied. oc17 3m

Carpet and Oil-Cloth Warehouse.

J. M. ELKIN. F. STRINGER.

ELKIN & CO.,

168.....CANAL STREET.....168

Near Baronne, New Orleans,

IMPORTERS OF ALL VARIETIES OF ENGLISH CARPETINGS, RUGS, Etc.

—ALSO—

Oil Cloths, Mattings,
Lace and Damask Curtains,
Window Shades, etc.,

—AND A—

Complete Assortment of Upholstery Goods.
fe8 1y

B. T. WALSHE,

IMPORTER AND DEALER IN

MEN'S FURNISHING GOODS

BOYS' & CHILDREN'S

CLOTHING,

No. 110 CANAL ST.

NEW ORLEANS

oc17 3m

EXCHANGE HOTEL,

JOHN SUMMERS, PROPRIETOR,

GALVESTON, TEXAS.

☞ This is the only Hotel in the city which has FREE OMNIBUSES to and from the cars and boats for the use of guests. Ask for Exchange Hotel Omnibus. feb1 1y

WILLIAM HOGAN,

Manufacturer of and Dealer in

BOOTS, SHOES, TRUNKS, VALISES AND BAGS,

FRENCH AND AMERICAN,

Also Agent for the EMPIRE SEWING MACHINE,

99 AND 101 CANAL STREET,
au1 3m New Orleans.

JOHN DOUGLAS, DEALER IN

Fancy and Staple Dry Goods,

NOS. 102 AND 104 DAUPHIN STREET,

MOBILE, ALABAMA.

Agent for the Florence Sewing Machine.

All goods warranted as represented, and sold at the lowest rates for Cash, our object being large sales and small profits. ja4 1y

BUSINESS CARDS.

MRS. DRESSMAKER,

176 Canal street, New Orleans, La.

oc21 3m Opposite Varieties Theater.

YOUR CUSTOM SOLICITED BY

R. F. W. BACHMAN,

DEALER IN BOOTS AND SHOES,

No. 18 Camp Street,

Under City Hotel, New Orleans.

Made expressly for the first-class retail Family and Plantation trade. oc3 6m

E. HEATH. M. LARA. J. P. HEATH.

HEATH, LARA & HEATH,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

UPHOLSTERERS' MATERIALS,

WALL PAPER, WINDOW SHADES,

CORNICES AND CURTAIN GOODS,

Pictures, Frames, Moldings, Looking Glasses and Clocks,

NO. 99 CAMP STREET.

no16 1y NEW ORLEANS.

THE MITCHELL & RAMMELSBERG

FURNITURE COMPANY,

Manufacturers and dealers in all kinds of

Furniture, Mattresses, Looking Glasses, ETC., ETC.,

103 and 105 Camp street, cor. Paydras,

Moresque Building, New Orleans,

have the largest and best assortment of FURNITURE of any house in the city. Please give us a call before purchasing elsewhere. my23 1y

A. B. GRISWOLD & CO.,

CANAL ST., COR. ROYAL, NEW ORLEANS,

IMPORTERS OF

WATCHES, JEWELRY, CLOCKS,

PLATED WARE, HOUSEKEEPING GOODS,

Cutlery, Guns, Pistols, Bronzes, Porcelain and Fancy Goods.

MANUFACTURERS OF

PURE COIN SILVERWARE.

Watches and Jewelry carefully repaired. Every article sold fully guaranteed.
no23 1y

J. THOMSON. G. THOMSON. W. B. THOMSON.

J. THOMSON & BROS.,

Manufacturers of Carriages, Hacnches, Buggies, Phaetons, SPRING WAGONS, ETC.

68 and 70 Rampart Street,

Bet. Common and Gravier, New Orleans, La.
Repairing done in all its branches. no30 1y

LOUISIANA STEAM

SASH, BLIND AND DOOR FACTORY,

ROBERTS & CO., PROPRIETORS,

301, 303, 305 and 307 Gravier Street,

NEW ORLEANS. my30 1y

JAMES M'CRACKEN. GEO. E. BREWSTER.

M'CRACKEN & BREWSTER,

DEALERS IN FURNITURE,

Nos. 37, 39 and 41 Royal street.

Manufactory, corner Derbigny and Customhouse streets, New Orleans. my9 3m

JOHN I. ADAMS & CO., (JOHN I. ADAMS, ALY L. ADAMS, GEO. W. WEST, WM. H. RENAUD,)

WHOLESALE GROCERS,

AND DEALERS IN

PROVISIONS, LARD, OILS, ETC., ETC.,

43, 45 and 47 Peters street,

(Formerly New Levee,)

mh21 1y NEW ORLEANS.

ELON G. SMITH. J. L. CHEATHAM. J. W. DRAUGHON.

SMITH, CHEATHAM & CO.,

(SUCCESSORS TO ELON G. SMITH & CO.)

PORK PACKERS,

Provision and Commission Merchants,

CORNER THIRD AND SPRUCE STREETS,

SAINT LOUIS.

We solicit orders from the trade for goods in our line. oc26 1y

C. SAMPSON. F. G. SAMPSON.

SAMPSON BROTHERS,

(Late C. C. Sampson.)

FURNITURE,

33 & 35.....ROYAL STREET.....33 & 35

NEW ORLEANS.

Established in 1833. ja11 1y

Carpet Warehouse—17 Chartres Street.

A. BROUSSEAU & CO.,

Importers and dealers, at Wholesale and Retail, in English and American Carpetings.

Floor Oil Cloths, Table and Enameled Oil Cloths.

Window Shades, Table and Piano Covers.

Crumb Cloths, in squares or pieces.

Curtain and Furniture Materials.

Brocatelles, Colellenes, Terries, Reps, Lace and Nottingham Lace Curtains, Haircloth Ticking, Springs, Burlaps, Stair Covers, etc.
no23 1y A. BROUSSEAU & CO.

T. H. McMAHAN & CO.,

BANKERS,

And Dealers in Foreign and Domestic Exchange,

GALVESTON, TEXAS.

We have prompt and reliable correspondents at all the principal points throughout this State, and upon all collections payable in this city or Houston make no charge for collecting, and only actual charge upon interior collections.

Immediate and prompt attention given to all business intrusted to us. feb1 1y

J. A. NORSWORTHY & CO.,

BANKERS,

24 Walnut street, Jefferson, Texas.

CORRESPONDENTS, Dber, Edwards & Co, New Orleans; Northrup & Chick, New York Barthelon, Lewis & Co., St. Louis. se24 1y

RICHARD BRODERICK,

CISTERN MAKER,

134.....Julia street.....134

Bet. Camp and Magazine, New Orleans.

Second-hand Cisterns always on hand. All work guaranteed.

All orders left at Box 30, Mechanics' and Dealers' Exchange, will meet with prompt attention. my2 1y

E. VEAZIE,

74.....Camp street.....74

NEW ORLEANS, LA.,

LAMPS AND OILS, CHANDELIERS,

Globes, Chimneys, Shades, Trimmers, Wicks, Cans, Filters, etc.

PRATTS' ASTRAL OIL, non-explosive and non-inflammable. ja15 1y

JOHN D. MACLIN, L. C. MACLIN,
(Late R. D. Maclin.)

COAL! WOOD! COAL!

Pittsburg, Anthracite and Cannel Coal, Gas, Ash and Pine Wood, at the lowest market rates, delivered to any part of the city.

Offices—34 Carondelet street, and corner of Third and Tchoupitoulas. mh7 1y

WAVERLY STABLES,

HAYDEN & MEENAN, Proprietors.

LIVERY AND SALE STABLES,

No. 39 North Royal Street, Mobile.

Carriages and Buggies of the latest styles, and superior Horses, furnished at all hours. Calls of every description will receive prompt attention. ja4 1y

WOMAN'S FRIEND WASHING MACHINE.

THE UNDERSIGNED OFFERS THIS Machine to the public as the Simplest and Best Washing Machine of the age, while the cost is the lowest. It is the invention of a Kentuckian, and is operated by rocking, and washes the clothes by beating, instead of rubbing. It will wash sixteen shirts or twenty-five ordinary pieces of clothing or two single blankets at a time, and it will thoroughly wash, rinse and blue one hundred pieces ordinary clothing in forty-five minutes, without the least wear of the clothing, the breaking of a button or the pulling of a thread.

The most delicate fabrics can be washed with it without the least injury. It gives a grass-bleached whiteness to the clothes. To blankets and woolen clothes it gives a new appearance and feeling. Its construction is so simple that it will last for years with care, and costs less than wash-tubs in the aggregate. Any one can repair it, as there are no cog-wheels or cranks to replace.

The directions for its use are very simple, and every Machine will do as represented if the directions are followed. It is a most excellent Wool-washer likewise. Send for circular and certificates of its merits.

PRICE, $12. WITH WRINGER, $18.

EDWARD THOMPSON, Manufacturer and Proprietor,
je27 6m 184 Peters street, near Julia, New Orleans.

"Southern Books for Southern Schools."

School-Books which are Unsectional, Unpartisan, and Unpolitical.

PREPARED BY THE MOST EMINENT SOUTHERN SCHOLARS, AND

ENTIRELY ACCEPTABLE TO SOUTHERN TEACHERS AND PARENTS.

The University Publishing Co.,

An Association composed of many of the several Southern States, feel the necessity for a series of Text-Books which should be entirely unsectional, unpartisan, and should not be offensive to the people—which should present only the facts of history and science—and in their teaching (though not obtruding it) a feeling of the Southern heart. They are now issuing a complete series of School and College Text-books by the eminent Southern scholars and educators named below, which are now in use in the most eminent citizens of the

Cheapest, Best, and Most Beautiful School-Books

Now published. The "University Series" embraces

MAURY'S GEOGRAPHICAL SERIES,

By Commodore M. F. MAURY, of the Virginia Military Institute. A series of books which mark an era in the study of this science, and which, in the words of a well known and accomplished Southern teacher, "are characterized by a felicity of arrangement and simple freshness of style which must ever render them attractive to the young, and which will be used by all who wish to teach Geography as a science, as something to make pupils think, and not merely as an enumeration of dry fact."

Holmes' Readers and Spellers,

By GEORGE F. HOLMES, LL.D., Professor of History and General Literature in the University of Virginia. A series of Readers unequaled in cheapness, excellence, and typographical beauty. They are steadily progressive in character, bright and fresh in their selections of prose and verse, and illustrative of Southern scenes, incidents, and history.

Venable's Arithmetical Series,

By CHARLES S. VENABLE, LL.D., Professor of Mathematics in the University of Virginia. These books are received everywhere by intelligent teachers with the highest satisfaction, as being most admirably adapted for mental drill, as well as for business education. Their methods, rules, and reasonings are clear, distinct, logical, and comprehensive, and the series is carefully graded throughout.

Holmes' History of the United States,

By GEORGE F. HOLMES, LL.D., of the University of Virginia. It is enough to say of this admirable work, interesting, impartial, and truthful, as well as pure and graceful in style, that it is the only History of the United States which is acceptable to Southern teachers and parents. It comes down to the present date.

THE "UNIVERSITY SERIES" OF SCHOOL-BOOKS

COMPRISES, ALSO,

De Vere's French Grammar, Readers, etc.,

By M. SCHELE DE VERE, LL.D., Professor of Modern Languages in the University of Va.

Gildersleeve's Latin Series,

By B. L. GILDERSLEEVE, Ph.D., LL.D., of the University of Virginia.

Carter's Elements of General History,

By Rev. J. P. CARTER, A.M., of Baltimore, Maryland.

Holmes' English Grammars,

By GEORGE F. HOLMES, LL.D., of the University of Virginia.

LeConte's Scientific Series,

By the Professors LECONTE, late of the University of South Carolina.

Johnston's English Classics,

By R. M. JOHNSTON, A.M., late Professor of Rhetoric and Belles-Lettres in the University of Georgia.

To which list other books in other departments will early be added.

Send for our full "ILLUSTRATED DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE, which will be mailed free to any teacher or school officer. Liberal terms given for introduction.

Address

UNIVERSITY PUBLISHING COMPANY,

155 and 157 Crosby Street, New York.

☞ A full supply of "The University Series" always on hand, and teachers and schools supplied by R. J. HARP, Bookseller, 112 Camp St., New Orleans.

And by all prominent booksellers throughout the South.

W. IRVING CLARKE, the General Agent, will furnish any information, and afford every facility to teachers for examining the series. Office—93 CAMP ST., New Orleans. mh7 1y

ARMSTRONG, CATOR & CO.,

IMPORTERS AND MANUFACTURERS OF

Ribbons, Millinery and Straw Goods,

WHITE GOODS, LINEN LACE AND EMBROIDERY,

Nos. 237 and 239 Baltimore Street,

BALTIMORE, MARYLAND.

Orders promptly attended to. se5 3m

ST. CLAIR HOTEL,

BALTIMORE, MARYLAND.

This new and beautiful Hotel is now open to the public. It is located on MONUMENT SQUARE, convenient alike to the business man and the tourist. It is the only hotel in Baltimore embracing elevator, suits of rooms with baths, and all other conveniences.

To accommodate Merchants, Commercial Travelers and others, the rates will be $2 per day for rooms on the fourth and fifth floors, making the difference on account of the elevation. Ordinary transient rates for lower rooms, $3 per day.

Guests desiring to take advantage of the above rates will please notify the clerk before rooms are assigned. An improved elevator for the use of the guests is constantly running from six A. M. until eleven P. M.
se5 2m HARRY H. FOGLE, Manager.

WIRE RAILING AND ORNAMENTAL WIRE WORKS.

DUFUR & CO.,

No. 36 North Howard St., Baltimore,

manufacture Wire Railing for Cemeteries, Balconies, etc.; Sieves, Fenders, Cages, Sand and Coal Screens, Woven Wire, etc. Also Iron Bedsteads, Chairs, etc. se5 1y

FREE TO BOOK AGENTS

SENT FREE TO AGENTS—A COMPLETE Canvassing Outfit of the PICTORIAL HOME BIBLE, with Bible History, Analysis, Dictionary, Tables and Treatises too numerous to mention; profusely illustrated. The cheapest, excelling all others. Address

W.M. FLINT & CO., Atlanta, Ga.,
oc3 3in Philadelphia, Pa., or Cincinnati, O.

AGENTS WANTED FOR

GOODSPEED'S

PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN BOOK.

Every citizen wants it. Also for Campaign Goods. Address, for circulars and terms,

J. W. GOODSPEED'S
Empire Publishing House,
oc17 3m 41 Natchez street, New Orleans.

SAVE $20.

THE NEW WILSON UNDER-FEED.

The Best and Cheapest First-class Shuttle SEWING MACHINE In the World.

Wm. GREGG & Co.
General Southern Agents, No. 189 Canal street, New Orleans, La.
Agents Wanted. Je27 6m

AGENTS WANTED TO SELL THE

ILLUSTRATED

HISTORY OF THE BIBLE

By Wm. SMITH, LL.D.

AUTHOR OF SMITH'S BIBLE DICTIONARY.

It contains 213 fine Scripture Illustrations and over 1,100 pages, and is the most comprehensive and valuable History of the Bible ever published. The labor and learning of centuries are gathered in this one volume to throw a strong, clear light upon every page of the inspired Word.

Send for circulars, and see our terms and a full description of the work. Address

NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO.,
274 and 276 Second street,
au1 6m Memphis, Tenn.

T. J. BROWN,

PRACTICAL PAPER HANGER,

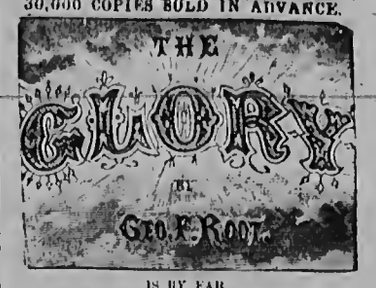
and dealer in Wall Paper, Window Shades, Cornices, Buff, Green and White Hollands, Picture Cord, Tassels, etc.,

No. 263 Camp street,

oc17 2m New Orleans.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

30,000 COPIES SOLD IN ADVANCE.



IS BY FAR

THE BEST MUSIC BOOK

For Churches, Singing Schools and Musical Conventions.

EMPHATICALLY A NEW BOOK.

New in Method, new in Lessons, new in Departments, new in Music.

HAS 400 PAGES

filled with new and fresh music. It includes also an elementary course of the best character, with interesting exercises, tunes and easy glees for practice. A specimen copy will be sent, post paid, on receipt of $1 25, by the publishers, JOHN CHURCH & CO., oct 1y Cincinnati, Ohio.

JUST PUBLISHED.

Butler's Ecclesiastical History,

SECOND SERIES. COMPLETING THE WORK.

AN ECCLESIASTICAL HISTORY FROM the Thirteenth to the Nineteenth Century. By the Rev. C. M. BUTLER, D. D., Professor of Ecclesiastical History in the Divinity School of the Protestant Episcopal Church, West Philadelphia. One volume, royal 8vo, cloth, $3.50. The work complete, two volumes, $7.

DALTON'S COMMENTARY.

AN EXPLANATORY AND CRITICAL COMmentary on the NEW TESTAMENT. Intended chiefly as a Help to Family Devotion. By the Rev. W. PALTON, D. D., Prebendary of Lichfield, and Vicar of St. Philips, Penn, near Wolverhampton. Fourth edition. Two vols., royal 8vo, cloth. Price, $12.

PRESENT ISSUES, OR FACTS OBSERVable in the Consciousness of the Age. By Rev. ROBERT WITHERS MEMMINGER, author of "What is Religion?" One volume, 12mo, cloth. Price, $1.50.

☞ Sold at the principal book stores, or where not obtainable the publishers will send copies by mail on receipt of the price.

Clayton, Remsen & Haffelfinger,
819 and 821 Market street,
au22 3m Philadelphia.

IMPORTANT NEW BOOKS

JUST PUBLISHED BY

HURD & HOUGHTON, NEW YORK.

THE RIVERSIDE PRESS, CAMBRIDGE.

I—A Vigorous Polemic.

THE CITY OF GOD AND THE CHURCHMakers. An Examination of Structural Christianity, and Criticism of Christian Scribes and Doctors of the Law. By R. Abbey. In one volume, crown 8vo.

Dr. Abbey's book will make a great stir in the religious community, and set old men and young to thinking.

II—Dr. Campbell's Sermons.

SERMONS BY REV. C. D. N. CAMPBELL, D. D. In one vol., crown 8vo, cloth, $1.50.

Dr. Campbell is known as a very acceptable preacher, and he will make many new friends by the publication of this volume.

For sale by all booksellers. When no bookseller is at hand, send the price to the publishers, who will mail the books, postage free. oct 1m

MILLER'S BIBLE AND

PUBLISHING HOUSE.

NEW ILLUSTRATED FAMILY BIBLE.

The cheapest and best Bible published. Large Print, beautiful Bindings, and more than two hundred Engravings.

THE CHRISTIAN HARMONY,

A NEW MUSIC BOOK, BY WM. WALKER,

AUTHOR OF THE SOUTHERN HARMONY.

This Book is printed with New-Shaped Seven-Character Notes, and is preferable to anything of the kind ever before used. Any one can learn to read music and sing in one-fourth the time required by the old methods. It contains the choicest collection of Music, both original and selected, from the best sources; particularly designed for Choirs, Singing Schools and Private Societies.

Specimen pages, with terms, mailed free.

Miller's Bible and Publishing House,
1102 and 1104 Sansom street,
je27 6m Philadelphia, Penn'a.

THE BEST SUNDAY SCHOOL MUSIC Book will be ready October 1, 1872.

PURE DIAMONDS.

BY JAMES R. MURRAY.

A new Sunday School Music Book, which we predict will become the most popular work of the kind ever published in America. Specimen pages are now ready, and will be sent free to any address.

PURE DIAMONDS will be issued in elegant style, printed on fine white paper, and substantially bound in boards. It will be ready promptly on the first of October, when orders will be filled in rotation. As the demand will be very large, all wishing specimen copies, or an early supply, should send in their orders at once.

PRICE.—Bound in boards, 35 cents; $3.60 per dozen; $25 per hundred. A copy in paper covers, for examination, mailed on receipt of 25 cents. Published by

S. BRAINARD'S SONS,
au22 1y Cleveland, Ohio.

Uniform Lessons for 1872.

FOR TEACHERS.—The Sunday School World contains the explanations and studies prepared by Rev. John Hall, D. D., for teachers.

SCHOLARS' PAPER. With the text of the lesson, and suggestive helps for the study of it; and questions at the foot of each page, to be answered in writing by the scholar.

INTERMEDIATE LESSON PAPER.—Adapted to the use of less advanced scholars, with questions and explanations.

Price of each Lesson Paper of four pages, at the rate of 75 cents per 100 copies for one month, or $9 per 100 copies yearly.

☞ Catalogues of the Society's publications and sample copies of its periodicals furnished gratuitously on application at the Depository of the

AMERICAN SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION,
au1 3m 1122 Chestnut St., Philadelphia.

AGENTS WANTED FOR

SECRETS OF THE CONVENT AND CONFESSIONAL.

BY JULIA M'NAIR WRIGHT.

The most thrilling and powerful book ever written on this subject. It presents a startling array of facts, and contains revelations never before made public.

Send for circulars and terms to

NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO.,
274 and 276 Second street,
au1 6m Memphis, Tenn.

FREE TO BOOK AGENTS

AN ELEGANTLY BOUND CANVASSING Book for the best and cheapest Family Bible ever published will be sent free of charge to any Book Agent. It contains nearly 500 fine Scripture illustrations, and agents are meeting with unprecedented success. Address, stating experience, etc., and we will show you what our agents are doing,

NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO.,
se5 4m Memphis, Tenn.

NEW ORLEANS MARKETS.

(From the New Orleans Price Current.)

Our accounts from the country present no new feature. Picking appears to be proceeding satisfactorily, and the general tenor of the reports is encouraging.

The river is 13 feet 4 inches below high water mark.

COTTON.—The following are the arrivals since the twenty-fifth instant:

Louisiana and Mississippi	bales..	13,635
Lake		91
Mobile		4,591
Texas		779
Total		19,090

On Saturday the sales summed up 5,200 bales, low middling closing at 18¼@18⅝c. for average lists, all desirable lists commanding the outside rate, strict do. at 18¾@18⅞c., middling at 19@19⅛c., strict middling at 19¼@19⅜c., and good middling at 19⅝@19¾c. On Monday the demand continued active, while prices showed some irregularity, a portion of the sales being at previous rates, while the bulk of the business was at a further advance of ⅛c., at which the market closed with increased firmness. The sales embraced 4,700 bales. On Tuesday prices were strengthened by an improvement of ⅛c. at New York and of 1-16d. in uplands and ⅛d. in Orleans at Liverpool, but operations were restricted by the supply being only moderate and the rate of steam freight for Liverpool having been advanced to 1d., against ⅞d. previously. The sales were consequently confined to 3,750 bales, and prices showed more irregularity, ruling for a part of the day at an advance of fully ⅛c., but subsequently showing less buoyancy, and closing at a partial improvement of ⅛c. in good ordinary, an advance of ⅛c. in low middling, and but little variation in the higher grades.

The receipts proper at this port, since the first of September (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida and Texas,) are 155,093 bales, against 87,118 bales to the same date last year, and the increase in the receipts at all the ports, up to the latest dates, as compared with last year, is 162,288 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries, as compared with the same date last year, there is a decrease of 3,880 to Great Britain, and an increase of 41,760 to France, and of 20,450 to other foreign ports.

We quote:

Ordinary	16½ @ —
Good ordinary	18⅛ @ 18⅜
Low middling	18¾ @ 19⅛
Middling	— @ 19¼
Strict middling	19⅜ @ 19¾
Good middling	19⅝ @ 19⅞

COTTON STATEMENT.

Stock on hand Sept. 1, 1872, bales.		6,259
Arrived past three days..	19,096
Arrived previously	179,614	198,710
		204,969
Exported past three days.	13,765
Exported previously	96,778	110,543
Stock on hand and on shipboard..		94,426

SUGAR.—On Tuesday the receipts comprised 176 hhds., of which about 100 hhds. sold, in lots, at 6½c. for inferior, 8c. for good common, 9⅛@9⅝c. for fully fair, 10c. for primo, 9½c. for seconds, and 10⅝@11c. for yellow clarified.

MOLASSES.—On Tuesday the market was dull and prices declined about 2c. ₱ gallon. The receipts on Tuesday comprised 330 bbls., which were mostly sold at 35c. for old, 52c. for common new, 57½c. for fair new, 63c. for good, 65c. for prime, 67@68c. for strictly prime, and 70@71c. for choice, a lot of choice commanding 73c. ₱ gallon.

CORN.—On Tuesday the supply was light, with a moderate demand at previous prices, and the sales were confined to 2,500 sacks, in two lots, at 70c. ₱ bushel for yellow mixed and yellow.

OATS.—On Tuesday 2,500 sacks were sold, in lots, at 38c. for ordinary, 39c. for prime, and 40c. ₱ bushel for choice St. Louis.

BRAN.—The supply on Saturday was good, with a fair demand, and the sales embraced 1,500 sacks, in lots, at $1 for ordinary, $1.05 for good, and $1.10 for fancy.

PORK.—On Tuesday the stock was held strongly at $17.50 ₱ bbl., and 200 bbls. sold, in two equal lots, to arrive, at $17.25, and 30 bbls., on the spot, at $17.50 ₱ bbl. It is retailing at $17.50 @17.75 ₱ bbl.

BACON—Has been dull, but the stock on hand being very small, previous prices were sustained. The sales on Saturday and Monday were confined to 100 casks, in lots, at 7¼@7⅜c. for shoulders, 11¾@11⅞c. for clear rib sides, and 12¼@12⅜c. ₱ lb. for clear sides.

HAMS.—The sales are only in a job way. On Saturday 25 tierces choice sugar-cured sold, in job lots, at 19½@19¾c. ₱ lb. The stock of choice is becoming very low.

LARD.—The market has been steady, with a fair demand for Cuba. The stock is now reduced and prices are firmer. On Tuesday 95 tierces refined sold, in three lots, at 9⅛c. ₱ lb. Tierces, packers', are quoted at 9c., refined 9⅛@9¼c., choice 9⅜c. ₱ lb. Kegs 11¼c. ₱ lb.

DRY SALT MEAT—Is very dull, and only a small retail business is being done by the dealers at 7½@7¾c. ₱ lb. for shoulders.

BREAKFAST BACON.—The market has continued dull. Western is quoted at 12½@13c. ₱ lb., Northern 13@14c. ₱ lb., with nothing doing at wholesale.

BUTTER.—Choice Western is in light supply and good demand at 22@23c. ₱ lb.

CORN MEAL.—On Saturday a lot of 50 bbls. sold, in warehouse, at $2.75 ₱ bbl., and on Monday 25 bbls. sold, on the landing, at $2.85 ₱ bbl. On Tuesday 275 bbls. sold, in several lots on the landing, at $2.80@2.85 ₱ bbl.

MONETARY.

Gold opened on Tuesday at 113⅛@113¾ (against 112⅞ at New York,) and closed at 113⅜@113⅝ (against 112⅞ at New York.)

In silver we have noticed only retail sales. American half dollars are now quoted at 109@110, and Mexican dollars nominal at 2@5 ₱ cent. premium in gold for new and old.

New Orleans Wholesale Prices.

REVISED AND CORRECTED WEEKLY.

Made up from Actual Sales as they Transpire.

ARTICLES.	FROM	TO
Agricultural implements:
Cotton scrapers	4 50	6 00
Cotton sweeps	4 50	6 00
Cultivators, Diam. & shovel-tooth	7 75	10 50
Cultivators, riding	45 00	60 00
Cultivators, walking	30 00	35 00
Shovels	7 50	14 50
Spades	7 50	16 50
Axes	10 00	15 00
Potato diggers	13 50	— —
Shovel plows	6 00	7 00
Half do., with cutters	8 00	9 00
Manly's D. S plow	6 00	9 75
Corn mills, Coleman's	120 00	425 00
Bread, ₱ 100 lbs:
Pilot	6 00	7 00
Lonf	— —	— —
Crackers	7 00	8 00
Navy	— —	5 00
Cream crackers	12 00	13 00
Bricks, ₱ M:
Lake	13 00	16 00
English fire	50 00	— —
American fire	40 00	— —
Candles, ₱ lb:
Sperm, New Bedford	33	36
Tallow	16	18
Chocolate, ₱ lb:
Cocon	38	60
No. 1	50	52
Sweet and spiced	25	— —
Cider, ₱ bbl:
Western	— —	— —
Coal, ₱ ton:
Anthracite	— —	— —
Western, ₱ bbl	— —	— —
Corks, ₱ 1000:
Regular	4 00	4 50
Pointed	3 25	4 00
Coffee, ₱ lb:
Havana (currency)	— —	— —
Java	— —	— —
Cordova	— —	— —
Copper, ₱ lb:
Brazlers'	45	48
Copper bolts	45	— —
Yellow metal	30	32
Cordage, ₱ lb:
Manilla	19	20
Tarred, American	— —	15
Russian	16	— —
Cotton seed:
Rough, ₱ ton	— —	— —
In sacks	— —	— —
Dyes, ₱ lb:
Logwood, Camp'y	4	4½
Logwood, St. Domingo	4½	4½
Fustic, Tampico	5	6
Indigo, ₱ lb	1 40	1 60
Madder	15	18
Eggs, ₱ dozen:
Western	20	23
Feathers, ₱ lb	— —	— —
Fish, ₱ box:
Cod	— —	— —
Herrings	— —	— —
Mackerel, No. 1, ₱ bbl	— —	— —
Mackerel, No. 2	— —	— —
Mackerel, No. 3	— —	— —
Flaxseed, ₱ lb	6	— —
Flour, ₱ bbl:
Double extra	6 50	7 75
Superfino	5 70	— —
Fine	4 25	— —
Fruit, ₱ lb:
Prunes	8½	9
Currants, new	— —	9
Almonds, soft shell	— —	19½
Almonds, shelled	— —	30
Glass, ₱ box of 50 feet:
French, 8 by 10	3 50	3 75
French, 10 by 12	3 75	4 00
French, 12 by 18	— —	— —
Gunny bags, ₱ bag	— —	— —
Hay, ₱ ton:
Primo	27 00	— —
Choice	28 00	28 50
Iron, ₱ ton:
Pig	59 00	60 00
Country bar, ₱ lb	— —	— —
English	5½	7½
Swedes, assorted	6½	8½
Hoop	7	10½
Sheet	7½	8½
Boiler	7¾	8¾
Nail rods	— —	11
Castings, American	— —	6
Lead, ₱ 100 lbs:
Pig	— —	9 50
Bar, ₱ lb	8½	8½
Sheet	12	— —
Pipe	12	— —
Leather, ₱ lb:
Sole, hemlock	32	36
Sole, oak	40	43
Harness	38	45
Calf skins, ₱ dozen	42 00	70 00
Texas, rough, ₱ lb	24	26
Lime, ₱ bbl:
Western	1 25	1 50
Cement	2 50	3 00
Plaster Paris	— —	4 00
Lumber, ₱ M feet:
Boards, yellow pine	14 00	15 00
Boards, cypress	20 00	25 00
Flooring, dressed	22 00	25 00
Flooring, rough	15 00	18 00
Ceiling, dressed	18 00	20 00
Weatherboards, dressed	16 00	18 00
Weatherboards, rough	13 00	14 00
Scantling	12 00	14 00
Shingles, ₱ M	3 50	4 00
Laths	2 50	— —
Moss, ₱ lb:
Country picked	— —	— —
Clean picked	— —	— —
Nails, ₱ keg:
American, 4@6d	6 00	6 15
Wrought, German, ₱ lb	— —	— —
Wrought, English	— —	— —
Oils:
Lard, ₱ gallon	— —	— —
Coal oil, in barrels	34	35
Coal oil, in cases	38	40
Linseed, raw	91	92
Sperm	— —	2 00
Whale, refined	95	1 00
Cotton seed, crude	— —	— —
Cotton seed, refined	— —	— —
Castor	1 65	1 85
Olive, 22@24 oz	6 00	6 50
Olive, 11@12 oz	7 25	— —
Tanner's, ₱ gallon	75	85
Soap, ₱ lb:
Western	— —	— —
Northern	— —	— —
Southern	— —	— —
Castile, genuine	— —	— —
Castile, imitation	— —	— —
Sardines:
Half boxes	34	35½
Quarter boxes	— —	23
Spices, ₱ lb:
Cassia	36	38
Cloves	— —	23
Nutmegs	1 20	1 25
Pepper	21	21½
Pimento	12	13½
Sugar, ₱ lb:
Havana, white	12	12½
Havana, yellow	10⅜	— —
Havana, brown	10⅛	— —
Crushed	13⅛	13⅜
Pulverized	13⅛	13⅜
Teas, ₱ lb:
Imperial	45	1 10
Gunpowder	75	1 50
Hyson	75	1 25
Young Hyson	75	1 10
Oolong	45	1 10
Ponchong	30	50
Tin, ₱ box:
Block	— —	— —
Ingplates, I. X	19 00	19 25
Ia plates, I. C	16 50	16 75
Leaded plates, I. X	17 25	17 50
Leaded plates, I. C	15 00	15 25

CATTLE MARKET.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 29, 1872.

Texas beeves, choice, ₱ head	$ —	@	50 00
Texas beeves, 1st qual, ₱ head	35 00	@	45 00
Texas cattle, 2d qual, ₱ head	20 00	@	28 00
Texas cattle, 3d qual, ₱ head	15 00	@	18 00
Western beeves, ₱ lb. net	— —	@	— —
Hogs, ₱ lb. gross	6	@	7½
Sheep, first quality, ₱ head	5 00	@	6 00
Sheep, second qual., ₱ head	3 00	@	4 00
Sheep, third quality, ₱ head	2 00	@	2 50
Milch cows, choice, ₱ head	80 00	@	100 00
Milch cows, ₱ head	50 00	@	80 00
Texas cows, with calves	— —	@	— —
Calves, ₱ head	7 00	@	10 00
Yearlings, ₱ head	8 00	@	12 00

Appointments for Quarterly Meetings.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

VICKSBURG DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Clover Hill, at Clover Hill.....Nov. 2, 3
Rolling Fork, at Rolling Fork.... 9, 10
Fayette, at Fayette..... 16, 17
Natchez..... 23, 24
Kingston, at Washington..... 30, Dec. 1
Vicksburg and City mission.....Dec. 7, 8

JOHN A. B. JONES, P. E.,
Port Gibson, Miss.

JACKSON DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Carthage circuit.....Nov. 2, 3
Sulphur Springs circuit..... 9, 10
Raymond circuit, at Raymond... 16, 17
Brownsville ct., at Queen's Hill.. 23, 24
Camden and Thomastown circuits 30, Dec. 1

The secretaries of Church Conferences will please present the report of statistics, as required by the Discipline, pages 55 and 56. The trustees of our church property will please make their report, as required by the Discipline, pages 55 and 102.

H. H. MONTGOMERY, P. E.

SUMMIT DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Amite City circuit, at Amite City.Nov. 2, 3
Franklinton circuit, at Warn'r's.. 9, 10
Big Creek miss., at Shilling church 16, 17
St. Helena ct., at Center church. 23, 24
Pontchamula mission, at Joyner's church..... 30, Dec. 1
Greensburg ct., at Pipkin chapel..Dec. 7, 8

J. NICHOLSON, P. E.

BROOKHAVEN DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Georgetown ct., at Pleas't Grove.Nov. 2, 3
Jackson circuit, at Spring Ridge.. 9, 10
Crystal Springs and Crystal Springs mission..... 16, 17
Bogue Chitto circuit, at Johnson's Station..... 23, 24
Brookhaven station and Brookhaven mission..... 30
Hazlehurst station..... Dec. 7, 8

Secretaries of the respective Boards of Stewards will prepare a financial statement for the use of the Joint Board, as required by the Discipline. Trustees will report the condition and character of titles of all property they hold for the church.

W. E. M. LINFIELD, P. E.

BRANDON DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Trenton circuit.....Nov. 2, 3
Raleigh and Morton circuit..... 9, 10
Forest circuit..... 16, 17
Taylorville mission..... 23, 24
Garlandsville circuit..... 30, Dec. 1
Brandon circuit.....Dec. 7, 8

F. M. WILLIAMS, P. E.

WOODVILLE DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Bayou Sara.....Nov. 2, 3
Wilkinson..... 9, 10
Meadville..... 16, 17
Amite..... 23, 24
East Baton Rouge..... 30, Dec. 1
Jackson.....Dec. 8, 9

J. L. FORSYTH, P. E.

MERIDIAN DIST.—FOURTH ROUND

Clarke circuit.....Nov. 2, 3
Enterprise ct., at Pleasant Valley. 9, 10
Marion circuit..... 16, 17
Meridian station..... 30, Dec. 1

WM. B. HINES, P. E.

ALABAMA CONFERENCE.

UNION SPRINGS DIST.—FOURTH ROUND

Rocky Mount ct., at Rocky Mount.Nov. 2, 3
Rutledge circuit, at Rutledge.... 9, 10
Elba circuit, at Oak Grove..... 12, 13
Fort Deposit ct., at Tabernacle.. 16, 17
Greenville circuit, at Mount Nebo. 23, 24
Greenville station..... 30, Dec. 1
Troy ct., at North Wesley chapel Dec. 7, 8

The preachers will please attend to their collections and the statistics. Stewards are earnestly requested to try to bring up the assessments. Trustees will not forget to be ready with their reports. A full attendance is solicited.

J. W. SHORES, P. E.

EUFAULA DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Enon and Midway..... Nov. 2, 3
Perote..... 9, 10
Clayton and Louisville..... 16, 17
Chattahoochie..... 23, 24
Lawrenceville..... 30, Dec. 1
Channahatchie.....Dec. 7, 8

JAS. L. COTTEN, P. E.

DEMOPOLIS DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Demopolis.....Nov. 2, 3
Butler, at Mount Sterling..... 9, 10
Gaston, at Bethel..... 16, 17
Bladen Springs, at Bethel..... 23, 24

S. H. COX, P. E.

MOBILE DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Franklin street.....Nov. 2, 3
Pollard circuit, at Hendrick's.... 9, 10
Milton..... 16, 17
Pensacola..... 23, 24
St. Francis street.....Dec. 1

The stewards, trustees and preachers will be ready with their reports, as the Discipline requires. They will please read and refresh their memories.

H. URQUHART, P. E.

SELMA DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Choctaw Corner circuit, at Bashi.Nov. 2, 3
Dayton and Spring Hill circuit, at Dayton..... 9, 10
Linden and Flatwoods mission..... —, —
Orrville circuit, at Center chapel. 16, 17
Jackson circuit, at Grove Hill..... 23, 24
Suggsville circuit, at Gainstown.. 30, Dec. 1

We hope for a full attendance, and complete reports, as required by the Discipline. Those who have subscribed to the district parsonage will please bring or send up their contributions to the quarterly meetings.

A. J. BIGGS, P. E.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

OUACHITA DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND.

Haynesville, at Colquett..... Nov 2, 3
Onachita, at Ebenezer..... 16, 17
Farmerville, at Alabama church. 30, Dec. 1
Castor, at Brooklyn.....Dec. 14, 15
Monroe station..... 21, 22
Trenton..... 28, 29

S. S. SCOTT, P. E.

NEW ORLEANS DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Plaquemine .....Nov. 3
Algiers..... 10
Thibodaux 17
German charges..... 24
German charges.....Dec. 1
Felicity street 8
Houma 22
Baton Rouge..... 29

LINUS PARKER, P. E.

SHREVEPORT DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Caddo circuit.....Nov. 9, 10
Pleasant Hill circuit..... 16, 17
Amoneo circuit 23, 24
Keachie circuit..... 30, Dec. 1
Manny circuit.....Dec. 7, 8
Springville circuit..... 14, 15
Shreveport station..... 21, 22
Mansfield station..... 28, 29

JOHN PIPES, P. E.

ALEXANDRIA DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Spring Creek and Bayou Boeuf cts.Nov. 2, 3
Trinity at White Ridge..... 9, 10
Evergreen and Big Cane 16, 17
Atlanta..... 23, 24
Rapides circuit.....30, Dec. 1

FRED. WHITE, P. E.

LAKE PROVIDENCE DIS.—FOURTH ROUND.

Oak Ridge and Prairie Mer Rouge, Nov. 2, 3
Lake Providence, at Lake Providence..... 7-10
Floyd and Delhi, at Floyd..... 16, 17
Oak Grove, at Smith's chapel..... 23, 24
Lime Grove, at Bartholomew..... 30, Dec. 1
Sicily Island, at Sicily Island..Dec. 7, 8
Winnsboro, at Magnolia 14, 15
Rayville, at Rayville..... 21, 22
Bastrop, at Bastrop..... 28, 29

The brethren will please remember that this is the fourth and last quarter. Boards of stewards will please be prepared for a full settlement of all financial obligations. Boards of trustees will be prepared to make their annual report. Pastors will be prepared with a full quarterly and statistical reports.

J. T. DAVES, P. E.

OPELOUSAS DISTRICT.—FOURTH ROUND
